FARMERS AND PAVEMENT

Now that most of the main highways are arteries of traffic paved to the marketing centers of the country, efforts should be made to build more farm to market roads.

Nearly 5,000,000 American farmers are forced to drive over some 2,400,000 miles of dusty, muddy, rutty dirt roads to reach their market place. To make the trip, they pay these relics of the oxcart a terrific tax, which though indirect, is very tangible. In the aggregate this mud tax is astonishing and, if properly used, it could, without extra demand on public treasuries, work miracles. For, with this concealed mud tax, these 2,400,000 miles of unimproved medieval highways could be transformed and adapted to modern transportation facilities now denied agriculture.

To drive an automobile over an unimproved dirt road costs 2.06 cents more per mile than over a high-type pavement, according to findings in actual investigation, although federal officials use the more conservative figure of 1.15 cents in their estimate.

American farmers travel an average distance of five miles to market, and, if forced to use an unimproved dirt road, the mud tax for one round trip is 15 cents. If made daily the year's total mud tax would be well over $50. This is no exaggeration, as a New York state college study revealed that farmers living on dirt roads drove their cars an average of 2,700 miles a year. At 1.5 cents per mile their mud tax was thus actually $40.50.

R. W. McGaha Died Tuesday, March 8, 1932

Two Chicago Bankers Prominent In Drive Against Depression

Charles G. Dawes (left), Chairman of the New Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Melvin A. Traylor, Chicago Banker.

CHICAGO and the Middle West have a double interest in the success of the gigantic Reconstruction Finance Corporation which is now being organized in Washington following speedy action by Congress.

Charles G. Dawes, whose name is almost synonymous for the business community of Chicago will sit in the driver's seat as the active head of the great $2,000,000,000 Federal corporation just authorized by Congress.

Another Chicago banker, a Democrat who is being repeatedly mentioned as a man of Presidential timber, has the distinction of making a vital contribution to the initial strength and success of the Reconstruction Corporation. That man is Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, who was the first to visualize and propose that the Reconstruction Corporation render some service to thousands of depositors of small banks which had failed during the past two years. The gist of Mr. Traylor's proposal before a Senate Sub-Committee was that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation be authorized to make loans to closed banks as well as to financial institutions and others needing its aid. Such a step would release substantial amounts of money to depositors whose funds had been "frozen" by the failure of such banks.

Mr. Traylor's suggestion made such an impression that it was embodied in the Bill as finally passed by Congress. He, more than any other man, is responsible for the timely assistance that will now be possible for many depositors of small banks throughout the country.

How hard is your house to Heat?

This Is The Season of The Year When You Have Big Gas Bills, And It Will Behove You To Watch The Ways in Which That Bill Can Be Reduced.

In many of the homes of this town we have found that there is a reason for the bill being larger than usual. The houses are more open. Doors have sagged, window frames are loose; there are cracks in the floors. In fact the house is just naturally hard to heat because it is more open than it was a few years ago. The older the house, the harder it is to heat, for it has become more open. Look around and you will find that you have more cracks that cold air comes in constantly. That means in many homes that the air is coming in faster than it can be heated.

A leak of cold air into your home is just as bad as a leak in your gas pipe and calls for constant use of gas to overcome this difference in temperature which will result.

Putting the Hog on a Normal Basis

Many years of study and experiment have ended uncertainty as to what is best for the hog, says a recent report. In pork raising, as in building up any other source of profit on the farm, much can be learned through the experience of others.

The U. S. Government and Agricultural Colleges spend big sums each year at their experimental stations. Both the Government and the Agricultural Colleges issue literature which tells about these experiments in detail. Anyone interested can secure the literature without cost by writing the U. S. Department of Agriculture or such Agricultural Experimental Stations. The great value in Government bulletins lies in the fact that they are based on the results of observation and study by trained, experienced men and at an expense which makes it prohibitive for the farmer to make these experiments himself.

Generally speaking, hogs have a normal period of growth and development. Many raisers ship before the hogs are finished—others hold their hogs and feed them beyond the period that the herd would be most profitable for them. It is natural, therefore, to find that the raiser is reluctant to hold his hogs any longer than absolutely necessary, even though the hog market is good; but it is a mistake to start raising a market herd and quit before the job is really finished.

Judging from prices of the past few months, a fat hog is the one that is commanding a premium and experts say, will continue to do so for some time. That is because of the large numbers of unfinished hogs that have been and are still being sent to market. Using the Chicago hog market for a day in mid-December, 1924, a 170 lb. hog brought $14.10, while a 265 lb. hog brought $25.55, or a difference of $11.45.

The average hog raiser knows that it takes about 400 lbs. of corn and 40 lbs. of tankage to bring in that last 100 lbs. of weight, or in dollars and cents, approximately $10.00 for the last 100 lbs. in feed expense, leaving more than $2.25 per pig for the additional trouble.

Shipping weights of hogs are reflected in the feed crop. Last year the corn crop in many sections was small and therefore most of the hogs sent to market ranged around the 175 lb. class. Unless relative market prices on either hogs or feed are extremely abnormal, it pays the raiser to go through with his feeding program up to that stage where he can secure the greatest benefit from his efforts and the best market price for his pork.

JUNIOR-SENIOR DINNER

ITS caps-and-gowns, class prophecies and class parties again. And when the class of '25 entertains for the class of '21 there must be the cleverest entertainment, the swankiest decorations and the most breathtaking banquet ever planned by aspiring Juniors to impress lordly Seniors. A lively and spectacular event is a vaudeville show or revue, followed by a banquet or dinner. The first act may be a fashion show, with masculine models as feminine mannikins—if it is to be a co-ed affair. The glee-club star tenor might croon a song written by the class composer with humorous verses apropos of the fashion whim of each member of the Senior class, while the junior member, impersonating that senior, parades across the stage. Be sure to burlesque the girl whose halo hat is worn so far back that it appears to be gracing the head as well as "off-the-face"—and the chap whose handkerchief-and-hose color-scheme runs riot.

Some Entertaining "Stunts"

Let each department give its own stunt. For example, the history department might do some research into the "past" of the individual seniors, presenting an enlightening survey of four scholastic years. In similar vein, the science department might delve into the future and evolve a class prophecy.

A good act for the commercial boys will be for ten pretty girls give a typewriter speed-demonstration, clicking the keys in time to an orchestra. At the close of the demonstration the papers may be passed among the seniors for inspection, and if they prove to be letters to let senior boys they will be most interesting.

Then it will remain for the Home Economics class to prepare, or at least to serve the banquet—the most important event of the evening. Junior girls in white caps and aprons, tied with the senior class colors, and trays also painted with these colors will make most attractive waitresses. If the class treasury has undergone a period of depression, and if the class boasts talented cooks, they may prepare as well as serve the banquet. The following menu is simple enough for students—the recipes are all tested and each designed to serve fifty persons—and elaborate enough to do honor to the class of '21.

Banquet Menu

Melon, Banana and Apricot Cup
Tomato Bouillon
Bread Sticks
Spiced Salmon with Russian Sauce
Broiled Half Chicken
Parsley Potatoes
New Apples with Dressed Butter
Hot Rolls
Green Salad with Roquefort Dressing
Fresh Strawberry Ice Cream
Small Cakes
Melon, Banana and Apricot Cup: Cut two No. 2 1/2 cans of apricots in dice and add to eight cups melon balls and eight cups banana cubes. Add the apricot syrup from the can of apricots, four cups of orange juice and one cup lemon juice. Sweeten to taste. Chill well and serve in cocktail cups.

Tomato Bouillon: Add to one and one-half No. 10 cans of tomatoes, four quarts water, eight bay leaves, one teaspoon peppercorns, one sliced onion, two teaspoons celery seed, one teaspoon allspice berries, and one-half teaspoon whole cloves. Simmer twenty minutes, then press through a sieve. Add two bouillon cubes and one-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Reheat and strain again, through cheesecloth, and serve in cups.

Spiced Salmon with Russian Sauce: Remove skin from four No. 1 cans of salmon, leaving it in large pieces. Place in a shallow pan. Simmer four cups vinegar, one teaspoon peppercorns, four teaspoons whole cloves and one teaspoon grated nutmeg for three minutes. Pour over the salmon and let stand for two hours. Chill. Drain and serve in small pieces masked with the following:

Russian Sauce: Chop eight hard-cooked eggs and add one-half cup chopped sweet pickle, one-half cup chopped green pepper, four teaspoons grated onion, and all to four cups of mayonnaise. Then add one cup chili sauce and serve on the Spiced Salmon.

A $1 Dinner for 4

IN these days of cut prices—hats within reach, shoes within reason, stockings at par and two frocks for the former price of one—the budget wears an exceedingly cheerful face. But don't eat up all the money you save. Stick to your weekly "dollar dinner for four" habit. And now that a dollar goes much farther than it did last year, you'll find that for the small sum of twenty-five cents per person, you can plan other dinners quite as tempting as this one. A dietitian has put her seal of approval on the menu and tested the recipes for you.

MENU

Hamburger, Mexican Style, 5c
Washed Potatoes, 6c
French Salad and Butter, 12c
Pear and Orange Salad, 11c
Cheese Sticks, 5c
Demi-tasse, 3c

Hamburger, Mexican Style: To one pound of hamburger steak add one teaspoon salt, a few grains of pepper, and form into eight little cakes; then pan-fry in drippings until brown and tender. Remove to baking dish, sauté one tablespoon chopped onion, in one tablespoon butter, add the contents of one 11-ounce can of corn, one 10-ounce can tomatoes, three-fourths teaspoon salt, three-fourths teaspoon chili powder; bring to boiling point and pour over the meat cakes. Bake in a moderate oven—350 degrees—for thirty minutes.

Pear and Orange Salad: Have very cold one 8-ounce can of pears, one orange, four lettuce leaves, and four tablespoons French dressing. Arrange 6 drained pear-2 in each lettuce leaf, lay on slices of orange and pour over the French dressing.
