

Clubs to Discuss Exhibits for Fair And New Projects

Reporters for the girls' 4-H and the women's home demonstration clubs will assemble at the Ballinger city hall Saturday for their fall meeting, when they will plan procedure for club reporters another year. In many instances the same persons will be retained in the positions another year. Miss Myra Tankersley, county home demonstration agent, said. The experience obtained the past year will be worth much to them during the next twelve months and leaders believe club work will receive better publicity as a result of keeping the same reporters.

Miss Tankersley announced that she would begin visiting the clubs at their regular meetings next week and would continue this schedule during the fall and winter. The women will start programs on games for the home and entertainment for the entire family at their early fall meetings.

The 4-H girls' clubs will hold programs for several weeks on plans for the Runnels County Fair and also will map their fall gardens. Practically all girls' clubs will participate in the fair this year, showing articles in the special division for them. Individuals will also have entries in the open class and plan to fill all space assigned them in the exhibition hall.

Special assignments will be made at club meetings for arranging exhibits and Miss Tankersley expects to have all displays ready on the Monday before the opening of the fair on Tuesday.

DENTISTS TO ASSIST IN HEALTH PROGRAM IN COUNTY'S SCHOOLS

The program will be launched at the Runnels County Fair when an interesting display will be arranged as a special exhibit. An effort is being made to secure a moving picture which will be screened twice daily in connection with a lecture by some local dentist.

POULTRY AND EGGS SHIPMENTS INCREASE

Poultry shipments totaled 45 cars in July this year, as compared with 32 cars a year ago, a gain of over 40 per cent; and egg shipments for the two comparable months were 40 cars and 31 cars respectively, an increase of nearly 30 per cent.

Only two cars of eggs were brought in from other states, compared with nine cars in July last year.

The 1937 cotton crop is beginning to move and Runnels county farmers will be busy several months gathering one of the biggest yields in many years.

Motorists are requested by city officials to aid in the new parking plan. The pavement and curbs have been painted and drivers are asked to park their cars between the stripes, as near as possible in the center.

Another traffic problem will begin next week when more than 1,000 children begin going between home and school. A large number will ride bicycles and many others will walk.

It is just a little more than one month until the Runnels County Fair begins. It is time every local citizen became interested and started planning what he can do to help make the celebration a success.

WEST TEXAS NOTES

[Clipped from Our Exchanges]

H. G. Lucas, of Brownwood, is being boomed by leaders in Texas and other southern states for appointment by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace as director for the southern region of the agricultural adjustment administration.

The Rising Star Record last week published a three-section special historical edition. The paper contains a wealth of historical data on the Rising Star territory and a number of interesting photographs of early scenes in that town.

The McCulloch County Electric Cooperative, Inc., has applied for a state charter. The rural electrification administration has granted $100,000 to be used in building about 100 miles of power lines to serve 300 rural customers in McCulloch county.

Winners in a county-wide improvement and beautification contest in Coleman county, conducted by the state highway department, were announced last Thursday morning. Frank Hudson, of Novice, was winner of the first prize and Edgar Horne, of Valera, second. The H. E. Delleney service station in Coleman won first prize for company operated filling stations, and the A. G. Owen station in Coleman was top for privately owned stations.

Earl Bowers, head coach at Junction high school for the past nine years, has accepted a position as head coach and physical education teacher in the Del Rio high school. During his stay at Junction Mr. Bowers has consistently produced winning football teams, having won three district championships and bi-district honors two years.

Gano Brooks, farmer, who lives 30 miles below Sheffield, established some sort of a record when he hauled a bale of cotton 103 miles to Fort Stockton, the nearest gin. He has 100 acres in cotton. Brooks is believed to be located farther from a gin than any other cotton farmer in the United States.

Rev. J. L. Wallace, pastor of the Miles Baptist church for the past three years, has accepted a call to the Franklin Baptist church. Rev. Wallace was pastor of the Franklin church for 15 years before going to Miles.

A "March of Time" cameraman was in Menard last week to take pictures of the department of agriculture's screw worm control station, two miles from Menard. The pictures made at Menard will be part of a feature reel depicting prevention methods used to control disease and parasites in plants and animals.

Sonora has been granted $40,000 by the PWA for waterworks purchase and improvement. Since the application for the PWA grant was filed, the city has bought the water plant with revenue bonds. It has been contemplated that remaining bonds be used for the improvement program which will be started soon.

A crowd estimated at 4,000 people attended the two-day rodeo, barbecue and picnic sponsored by the Mason Junior Chamber of Commerce last week. Attorney General William McCraw made the principal talk of the day. Other speakers included former Governor James E. Ferguson and State Senator E. M. Davis.

Actual construction of the new peanut crushing and shelling plant of a Stephenville cotton oil company will be started this week. The new plant will be ready for operation not later than October. When completed and in operation, the new addition will provide labor for about 40 women and 20 men a day, thus increasing the employing power of the mill about fifty per cent. The plant will be operated about six months a year.

Hints for the Farm

Summer gardens are proving their value to West Texas home demonstration club women and 4-H club girls, according to reports of county home demonstration agents in this section.

To protect her 100 foot square garden from sandstorms, Mrs. H. T. Eastridge, of Ward county, put a fence of tin three feet wide around it. For moisture, she irrigates from a windmill. The result is that she has a good crop of okra, squash, blackeyed peas, beets, pumpkins, watermelons, cantaloupes, peanuts, and popcorn even during the hot, dry weather.

Mrs. Eastridge has practiced a live-at-home program this year, having a flock of 200 chickens and a dairy cow in addition to her garden.

Inez Schooley, garden demonstrator of the Vocea 4-H club in McCulloch county, has already gathered two bushels of tomatoes and plans on gathering 15 or 20 more from her seven 30-foot rows of tomatoes. The rows are irrigated with tin cans, and a variety particularly adapted to that section was planted by Inez.

Twenty-three varieties of fresh vegetables were shown and 32 jars of quality products were exhibited at the recent garden achievement day of the Zephyr 4-H club in Brown county. At this time, 22 girls reported that they had made a net profit of $1,474.24 on their gardens and still had vegetables to use fresh and to can.

TERRACING PROVES OF VALUE ON WEST TEXAS FARMS

COLLEGE STATION, Sept. 1.—Terracing has proved its value in West Texas and many terraces are under construction at the present time, according to reports of county agricultural agents in that region.

So urgent is the demand for terracing of stubble land in Brown county that double crews consisting of two rod men and two stake men are being used for each farm level in order to expedite the work. By this method, two days' work can be done in one day. The farmers are pleased with this method because large areas can be covered in a short time. By following this method, 18.3 miles of terrace lines were laid out in three days' time recently.

"I have seen a lot of terraces work for the other fellow; now I'm going to have some work for me," says Jim Mann, McCulloch county farmer and rancher, who has recently had 75 acres of field terraces and 40 acres of pasture terraces run on one of his farms.

McCulloch county farmers plan to terrace some 5,000 acres under the 1937 agricultural conservation program, and ranchers plan to contour, ridge, and put spreader terraces on some 2,500 acres of grazing land.

The real value of terraces and contour farming and their relation to water conservation was demonstrated recently on the farm of Stafford Smith, of Bandera county. Soil moisture was checked in two adjoining fields. One of the fields was terraced and high beds had been thrown up on contour lines while the other field had straight rows. After a 3 1/2 inch rain which fell in less than an hour, practically all the water had run off the unterraced field and it was possible to pick up dry dirt in the tops of beds. In the terraced field, water had penetrated to a good depth and very little water had run off. Smith reported that each row in the terraced field stood level full of water and that no more water ran in terrace water ditches than there was in any of the single rows.

Miss Zemma Street left Sunday for Alamogordo, New Mexico, where she will teach school this year.

Miss Mary Talbot, of Brownwood, spent the week-end in Ballinger, attending to business and getting ready for the school year here. She will teach public school music at the junior high school.

Wild Animals, Fowls New Feature of Fair; Will Hold Baby Show

Runnels County Fair Association officials have announced several special features which were not included in the general catalogue. Other special exhibits are to be announced later and all will provide cash prizes for the winners. The parade committee will post special cash prizes next week for various entries in the parade on opening day of the fall fair. This parade will feature saddle horses with riders and cash prizes will be paid.

Two features for the 1937 fair which have never before been shown will be of interest to girls and boys as well as adults. Three cash prizes of $10, $5 and $2.50 are to be paid for winners in the wild beast exhibit. Any kind of wild animal found in Runnels county, with the exception of skunks, will be accepted in this group. The animals must be in crates so they will be under control and may be entered any time before the official opening at 1 p. m. on October 12.

Awards of $10, $5 and $2.50 will also be paid for prize winning wild fowls. Any kind of a bird that can be classed as a fowl will be accepted in this exhibit and must be in some type of container so it can be seen by spectators. The fowls will be cared for by fair employees while on exhibition.

Another feature, while not new is of great interest, is the baby show scheduled for Friday afternoon of Fair Week. As formerly, babies will be judged on appearance only and babies to 2 years of age can be entered. Cash prizes will be paid for the best two boys, best two girls and best two sets of twins. The awards will be $5 and $2.50 in each class.

The program committee has been considering special attractions for the grandstand and hopes to have a number of splendid acts under contract within a short time. Effort is being made to arrange a baseball tournament between clubs in the Concho Basin League for each afternoon and to present a big hippodrome show each night.

Bedroom Contest Winner Tells How Improvements Made

Miss Myra Tankersley, county home demonstration agent, and Miss Mary Delie Murphy, winner of the county bedroom contest for 4-H club girls, were guest speakers at the meeting of the Ballinger Rotary Club Tuesday.

Miss Tankersley told of the progress of club work in Runnels county and some of the achievements that are planned before the end of the year. She stated that at present there are 236 girls actively engaged in club work with the average age 18 to 17. This is unusual, as in most counties the average age is much lower, and shows that the larger girls are getting instruction from the club program in Runnels county.

Each member is required to help build the food supply for the family both by gardening and in the preservation of food. They also do home and wardrobe improvement and learn some kind of civic service. Miss Tankersley said in many cases the mothers of club girls become interested in home improvement because of the projects undertaken by the daughters and in some instances all members of the family install and build improvements that add convenience and comfort to the home.

Miss Murphy told of the complete remodeling of her bedroom this year for a total cost of $3.72. This included the remodeling and refinishing of furniture, the adding of a study and a dressing center, providing storage for clothing, refinishing the floor, papering the walls, laying floor coverings, and building tables, lamps and small pieces for convenience and beauty.

A number of girls in the county engaged in the bedroom contest and many made worthwhile improvements but these did not rank with that of Miss Murphy when the cost was considered.

Strength During MIDDLE LIFE

Strength is extra-important for women going through the change of life. Then the body needs the very best nourishment to fortify it against the changes that are taking place.

In such cases, Cardui has proved helpful to many women. It increases the appetite and aids digestion, favoring more complete transformation of food into living tissue, resulting in improved nutrition and building up and strengthening of the whole system.

Donkey Baseball Game Here September 27

Above is pictured one of the trained donkeys which will be used in the Ballinger Caddo Club-Winters Fire Department baseball game at Fair Park on September 27. He is called Blue Streak and only three runs have been made on him in the past 400 games. . . he absolutely refuses to run bases for his rider.

The baseball season in Ballinger will not end until at least September 27. On that date members of the Ballinger Caddo Club will engage the Winters fire department in a "fast" game of donkey baseball.

Those who have witnessed games of this kind say that there is absolutely nothing more comical in the world of sport. The game is played entirely from the backs of trained "burros." The string of donkeys to be used has been in over 400 games and all are well trained in cutting capers when the game is in progress.

Two years ago a game of this kind was played here and the response to it was hearty. Ever since that time local sportsmen and fun lovers have been asking for another donkey baseball game. The game September 27 will be played at Fair Park, beginning at 7:30 p. m.

Cotton Contains 'Balances' Hidden in Seed

(This is one of a series of short, authentic articles on livestock production and feeding, published as a service to farmers and stockmen in cooperation with the West Texas Cottonseed Co. mills.)

Cotton, even though it is admittedly the most dependable single cash crop for Southern farmers, has been blamed for many of the evils of the "one crop" system. In its sincere efforts to solve the problem of "one crop" farming, the South often has lost sight of the fact that the cotton plant, itself, contains important aids to diversification and the maintenance of soil fertility.

Livestock production has rightfully been called the key to diversification in the South. There are many reasons for this. Livestock production requires the growing of feed crops to supplement cotton. Pastures are essential for economical livestock production; pastures hold plant food in the soil and supplement harvested crops in the farming system. Livestock manure restores to the soil fertility removed by growing plants. Finally, livestock produces a diversified, year-round revenue to supplement the seasonal revenue from cotton.

To raise livestock, a region or a farm must have an adequate home supply of food. No important livestock industry has ever developed except where feed was available, whether it is in the form of grazing or of harvested crops, or both.

That the South has this essential element for livestock production, in the form of cottonseed meal or cake, and hulls is well known. However, these products have not been utilized as extensively by the South as they could and should be. In fact, the South for many years has shipped to other sections, and formerly to other countries, much of the available supply of its greatest single asset for livestock production.

By feeding cottonseed meal and hulls to livestock on cotton farms, the South will restore to the soil fertility removed by the growing cotton plant, in addition to helping the market for its own cottonseed, and supplying an economical source of protein needed to balance farm grains and roughages.

Because 3,000 to 4,000 pounds of seed are required to equal 2,000 pounds of cottonseed meal or cake as a feed, the money received from the sale of a ton of seed will buy 50 to 100 per cent more food value in meal and hulls. Growers obtain the maximum feeding value from their cottonseed by selling or exchanging it for cottonseed meal and hulls, and the most convenient time to do this is while the seed is being marketed in the fall.

A convenient way to obtain meal and hulls is the practice, followed by many cotton growers, of exchanging the cash value of the cottonseed for the cash equivalent in meal and hulls at the time seed is delivered to the gin or oil mill. By doing this, the grower protects himself against price advances later in the season when supplies of feed are reduced, and assures himself of a supply of meal and hulls when needed.

Properly combined, a system of cotton and livestock production offers the South a permanent, dependable method of profitable farming. Livestock supplements cotton by enabling the cotton grower to use the feeding assets of the cotton plant and, thereby, to obtain the full value from his cotton crop.

In the opinion of agricultural authorities, cotton will have its maximum value to the South only when cotton, feed and livestock production become inseparable parts of the South's farming system.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Truly came in Monday from Louisiana, where she has been teaching B. T. U. courses in various towns. She also spent some time in Mississippi and Tennessee.

Fish Population in U. S. Increased Five Billion
Washington. — The government advises fishermen that it has increased the population of the piscine world by more than 5,000,000,000 in the last fiscal year.

In addition to this mammoth job of incubation, employees of the bureau of fisheries salvaged 47,102,000 fish of various species from the overflow sloughs of the upper Mississippi river and delivered them to stocked ponds and other waters.

In a report by the bureau it was disclosed that while agents with nets were out supervising the eggs and the small fry, other employees sat behind desks with pencils figuring out how many of the fish hatched ended up on the dinner table or trophy wall.

They found that each of the 10,000,000 anglers of 1935 took about 11 fish off their hooks.

Food Prices Remain Bright Spot in Cost of Living

The consumers' council of the department of agriculture in a recent study of the living cost revealed that food prices have remained at a point below that of cost of living as a whole. Farm prices are up substantially from the 1933 level, indicating that in the food field, costs of distribution have not increased proportionally with other costs.

This is a marked accomplishment for the modern method of food distribution.
