Ever forward, but slowly

By Connie Slagle

This Father's Day marked the demolition of the house my dad built for my mom with his own hands in the mid 1940's. Recently, all parties involved decided that demolition was the only solution to the problem of vandalism and thievery. My biggest regret was not saving my mom's piano. Its legs were amputated, followed by evisceration of its guts, and the slow and painful removal of its soul - for someone's entertainment, I suppose.

The year I retired, we cleaned out my grandma's house on 6th and Woodland. It was a lot of work cleaning out two school rooms and an entire house in a month's time. That house was also demolished. In both instances, locked doors and boarded windows just posed a dare . . . I suppose. As my sister and I examined one vandalism incident, we spied several names graffitied on the walls. I recognized one of the names and handwriting. (A student of mine.) Although I could contact the parents, I haven't, knowing they already suffer a broken heart. My sister, who is from another part of the world, was outraged that someone would write "Jesus" on the walls, but I'm pretty sure he wasn't expressing his religious preference!

Such a contrast to my mom's family, who owned three small houses in town. When the owners died, they sold each house, also built by family members. Those three houses still stand today. Good sturdy homes, embellished by the new owners to create memories of their own.

I'm not sharing this to gain sympathy, to place or accept blame . . . or shame. If you know me, you know there's a purpose for this message. Not just a true confession or a little TMI. Doing my best with my dad's house all these years has given me comfort, teaching me that there are borders in our lives, borders between what we can handle and what we can't, and we can find peace in that, even if we are the only ones who understand where those boundaries lie.

How sad, folks, when we hold on to reminders of the past so long that they deteriorate and lose their value. Until those memories no longer seem sweet, but leave us with sadness and bitterness and regret. How much better to save a few temporal objects along with the beautiful memories they represent, then pass the rest along to someone else?

Memories are things from the past. They should be honored, but not relived. Teach your daughter to make your mom's favorite cobbler; plant sunflowers, which your mother-in-law adored. Take the kids fishing at your dad's favorite lake. Speak respectfully to your children about their father, even though you have parted ways. Have a good laugh about some mischief you and your ex-best friend enjoyed. But don't expect to relive those days.

Fairly often, I hear someone say, "I just want to remember him the way he was." That's a luxury not everyone can afford. Someone has to tend to the elderly, dying parent, to deal with the messiness of the present. Not everyone can pause their memories at the prettiest scene.

Hopefully, I'm through cleaning out old houses. But I can use this lesson when I remember lost loved ones, lost relationships, or even precious times gone by. Expecting those experiences to remain unchanged or trying to replicate them drains the good out of them. Keep the best parts, demolish the worst, and move forward. Ever forward, but slowly. And Happy Father's Day to all the good dads and granddads out there, wherever you may be.

Gary Brown celebrates 55 years

In May 1963, a young man graduated from Oklahoma State University in Stillwater, Oklahoma. This young man applied for a job at Friona State Bank, now Friona Interbank, and was hired. 55 years ago has gone by and we are celebrating Gary Brown's anniversary, June 17, 2018.

When Gary started working at the bank, it was located on 7th and Main Street, where the City offices are now located. In fact, in the Friona Star dated July 16, 1970, the headline said "Bank Gives Building to City of Friona." (The building of the new and existing bank building was started in April 9 1970).

The officers of Friona State Bank in June 1963 who welcomed Gary, and wife, Barbara to Friona and to the bank, were: Frank Spring, President, Charles Allen, Vice President, Jerry Hinkle, Cashier, and Dale Smith, Assistant Vice President. Other employees were: Lola Goodwine, Jane Williams, Lois Strickland, Will Osborn, Iola Nelson, Vernell Cunningham, Jane Kent, Hazel Ruffins, Gayle Knight Greeson, Nelda Douglas Ellis, Adabeth Smith and Paula O'Brian.

- Gary was promoted to:
- Assistant Vice President and Agriculturist in January 1964
 - Vice President and Agriculturist in January 1967
 - Senior Vice President in January 1972
 - Elected to the Bank's Board of Directors May 13, 1975
 - Executive Vice President Jan 1996
 - President August 2002

As involved as Gary was and is, in the running of the bank, he still makes time for community activities. He has been President of the Lions Club several times, Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors for 2 terms, Chairman of the Friona United Way and has been active in the Parmer County Junior Livestock Show.

And Gary Brown farms!!! And he has a family!! His wife is Barbara. They have two children, son Jeff and his wife Tonia, and their children Zach, Josh, and Noah and daughter Julie and husband Jon and children, Jaden, Jaycee and Jolee. Gary works from dawn to dusk and still always has an easy-going smile for everyone.

The employees of Friona Interbank would like to invite you to join us in celebrating Gary's 55th anniversary with us. Stop in anytime and congratulate him. He is a friend to all and we love him!

Parmer Paws Answers Your Questions

by Pam Kendrick

After visiting with both Bovina and Friona city councils, we realize people have many questions about animal rescue and issues regarding animal ownership. Here are a few.

Where do we get all the animals? Most are strays that have been picked up by the city. Don Spring, a volunteer from Bovina, says that many country folks dump off their unwanted critters in town, while town folks take theirs out to the country. It's a revolving door. Other animals are surrendered by people who cannot take care of them, and I used to believe that was cruel until I had to take care of emaciated, neglected, and injured animals whose owners felt too judged to surrender or didn't know they could. If you have animals that you do not want or cannot care for, the city would prefer you call for help instead of dumping them or opening your gate to let them escape.

Everybody's animals get out sometimes. We call those our little Houdinis. If you have a digging dog, lay chain link or fence panels down under and inside your fence about three feet on each side. Most dogs won't know to back up three feet and tunnel under the obstruction. You can even plant grass on top of these. Storms can frighten pets and blow open gates. Fireworks are also scary for animals. Be sure your gates fasten securely and provide safe shelter during storms and fireworks season. If your animal goes missing, contact the city office, check the city website, look on our Facebook page, or contact us at parmerpaws1@gmail.com. You will need to provide a description of the animal and proof of vaccination. You have seven days after your pet is picked up to claim, after which the animal is transferred or rehomed. ALWAYS make sure your pet has ID tags and even write your phone number on the collar in case the tag is lost.

Tragically, there are people who steal animals out of your fenced yard, remove the tags, and dump them in someone else's yard, sometimes in another town. We have seen puppies thrown in dumpsters, locked in suitcases, abandoned on highways, and left chained at Walmart. It is unconscionable, but it happens. Two suggestions: First, be sure your gates lock down low on the inside of your fence, and even padlock if needed. Second, chip your animal. Most vets can do this for you, but if yours doesn't, call the city and Parmer Paws can help. The cost is usually about $10 for the chip, and then you go online and activate the chip for about $20 per year or about $65 for the life of the pet. Most shelters, pounds, and vets have electronic chip readers that will identify the pet as yours and you will be contacted if your animal is found. Several years ago a dog in Friona was identified as belonging to a family in Tennessee!

Another way to keep your dog from wandering is to have it spayed or neutered. This can be expensive, but Parmer Paws can help. There are $50 vouchers available through Amarillo SPCA and the Humane Society of Amarillo to have your dog fixed at Lonestar Veterinary Clinic or Hope Veterinary Clinic in Amarillo. Contact your city office, Parmer Paws, or the places mentioned above for more information. Additionally, Parmer Paws and Dr. Gary Cash will be hosting low-cost vaccination clinics soon. We will also offer chipping. Take advantage of these opportunities to save some money and protect your animals.

Parmer Paws is dedicated to making sure all good animals have good homes and all good homes have good animals! Your membership helps. Fill out the form here or go by your city office to pick up a form. Our goal is to eradicate euthanizing in Parmer County. Join us and experience the fulfillment of saving lives. Our next meeting is scheduled for June 26 at 5:00 at the Friona City Council chambers. Come and see what we're about!

Parmer Paws is a non-profit corporation whose primary mission is the prevention of cruelty to animals, the relief of suffering among animals, and the extension of humane education.
