City of Crowell Beginning Work on Training Local Housing Authority

The City of Crowell Council meeting Monday night approved the starting of a series of training courses for the new Housing Authority for the city.

The program for cities is to provide decent and sanitary rental housing for low income people, including the elderly and the disabled. It is set up to be a non-profit organization and to not compete with private rentals. It is a controlled program and for itself over the financing. Financing is achieved by the sale of revenue type bonds by the LHA with the approval of the regional PHA.

After this period the city has a hearing and decides whether to proceed further. If they go on, the authority is appointed and begins to function by requesting a preliminary loan or grant for a survey to determine the need. This is a minor amount of money and is used to defray the cost of a representative from Fort Worth to work with local enumerators to gather statistical data first hand and come up with an answer as to number of units as well as rent levels. Should the need not exist the amount expended becomes a grant and non-repayable, but if it exists and the authority proceeds, it becomes a loan to the project. At the same time this takes place, the city presents its workable program for community improvement to HHFA which is a prerequisite for PHA projects.

From this point the LHA proceeds on into site selection, acquisition, planning, and contract documents. Competitive bids are then taken and contract awarded. The project is constructed complete with landscaping and lawns, and the LHA begins management. In this management phase the LHA has the power to screen tenants and other landlord rights. Generally, they have little vandalism and breakage in well operated projects. Tenants take care of lawns, but should this fail to work the LHA can take it over and make a monthly charge.

Illegible Writing Big Problem for Postal Workers

One of the biggest problems postal employees face is illegible handwriting. At Christmas time, when mail volumes skyrocket, this can become a major problem. Postmaster Ted Reeder said this week.

"The use of ZIP codes by mailers does help speed up the process because often if the city and state are unreadable the ZIP code will direct the mail to the post office from which it will be delivered. Clerks in that post office, being more familiar with local residents, may be able to figure out the person to whom the mail should be delivered."

Another significant problem is the number of parcels delayed or actually undelivered because of poor wrapping or packing. Reeder urged special care be taken to see that each package is tightly stuffed and that nothing rattles around inside.

Parcels are generally shipped in bags and often heavier items rest on top of smaller, lighter packages. The postmaster encouraged mailers to be a bit cautious and insure all packages.

All parcels should be addressed on only one side and should have the address written somewhere on the inside of the package in case the exterior wrapping should come off. It is a good idea to also enclose a list of the contents.

Poor packaging and illegible or incorrect addressing accounts for about half a million undelivered parcels each year.

NOTICE TO COTTON FARMERS

Government regulations in next year's farm bill, cutting out part of the advantage of skip-row farming for cotton, will put farmers in Foard County at a disadvantage.

The Rolling Plains Cotton Growers Ass'n. has written a letter to President Johnson protesting this cut. They have sent copies of this letter to gins and asked that all cotton farmers sign it.

The Board of Directors of the gin at Crowell ask that all cotton farmers come by the gin at their convenience, and read and sign this letter.

The following is a quote of one paragraph of the petition:

The farmers of the Rolling Plains must farm in skip row pattern because of our low rainfall necessary moisture requirements of the cotton plant. Skip row farming on cotton and feed grain is a Historical Practice with this area.

GOLD...represented by Prosperity, Growth, Wealth... abounds in the larger cities today. But it's a sort of non-portable, one-way type of gold—people living in the smaller communities like ours can't just go up into the stone and glass hills and canyons with our burros and bring loads of it home.

As a matter of cold, hard economic fact—this gold—this wealth—in our neighboring metropolises is not for us to enjoy...unless we're ready to move there and live with it. Yet, our Trade, our money...carried to them on our shopping pilgrimages...has importantly helped in their enrichment.

The same money...kept in the trade channels of our own community...will put more gold where we can enjoy it ourselves—the gold of Prosperity and Growth.

Corinthian believers were examples of this. Paul had to write them: "I . . . could not speak unto you as unto carnal, even as unto babes in Christ. I have fed you with milk, and not with meat; for hitherto ye were not able to bear (digest) it, neither yet now are ye able" (I Cor. 3:1,2). Everybody loves a baby, but the joy that fills the hearts of loving parents turns to bitterest sorrow if their babe fails to grow.

4. The spiritual Christian is one who, through prayerful study of the Word of God has grown to spiritual maturity. He is no longer merely a child of God; he is a "man of God." We should all "desire the pure milk of the Word that we may grow thereby"—"that we henceforth be no longer children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine" (Eph. 4:15). Let us then heed St. Peter's inspired exhortation: "But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ" (II Pet. 3:18).

Two Minutes With the Bible

Four Kinds of Men

According to St. Paul's inspired epistles, the human race is divided into four categories.

1. "The natural man," i. e., the fallen son of Adam, as he is, without God. Of him the apostle says: "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolishness unto him; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned" (I Cor. 2:14).

This is not intended as a rebuke. It is a simple statement of fact. Mere intellectual acumen is no guarantee of spiritual understanding.

2. The "babe in Christ." When a person sees himself as a sinner and trusts Christ as his Savior, he is "born again" and becomes a "babe in Christ." But babes can and should grow, so these are exhorted: "As newborn babes desire the pure milk of the Word, that ye may grow thereby" (I Pet. 2:2).

3. The carnal Christian is one who, though perhaps a Christian for years, has not grown, due to indifference and neglect of the Word of God. He still has to be treated as a babe in Christ. The

Tax Man Sam Sez:

During the past few years there have been quite a few taxpayers who went to Internal Revenue and confessed that they owed more tax. These folks felt that the computer would catch up with them so they came in to pay off to try to stay out of jail.

You don't need to worry about the computer if you have been honest in preparing your tax returns and paying your taxes. If you are worried, the sooner you straighten up your tax affairs the better off you are. It's usually better for you to confess tax cheating than to have Internal Revenue accuse you of tax fraud.

know that although we are a continent away our hearts are still in Texas. We hope you have a merry Christmas and wish we could be there to share it.

John and I work as Peace Corps Volunteers in cooperation with the Ecuadorian extension service in Alausi, Ecuador. It's a small agricultural town perched on the side of the Andes at 8,500 feet. On all sides we are enclosed by the towering, treeless mountains cultivated to the very top with wheat, lentils, potatoes and many other crops. At times they look like enormous patchwork quilts as the tiny squares of wheat and potatoes cultivated by each Indian begin to mature. Throughout this area a very common sight is an Indian in his brightly colored poncho plowing the land with a hand plow and two oxen, or a group of Indian women with their babies tied on their backs planting potatoes. The mountain fields are so steep that often an Indian loses his most precious possessions, his oxen, when one stumbles while plowing and both go rolling down the side of the mountain, with nothing to stop them until they reach the narrow valley and river some 1,000 feet below.

Alausi is a clean, neat town with long narrow cobblestone streets that carry us up and down the mountain side. The majority of the houses here, as ours, are made of baked mud bricks usually painted with white wash. Most have very few windows and the electricity is so poor that we live by candle and lamp light. Good electricity and drinkable water are two of the projects of the town council and both are sorely needed. Even the very young children have large, swollen stomachs from amoebas and other parasites due to drinking impure water.

The two most important days of the week here are Thursday and Sunday, market days. Twice a week Alausi is changed from a sleepy little town without a soul in the street to a busy, crowded trading center with the streets so full of people and burros that it is almost impossible to pass. The market plaza is always overflowing with people and products. For less than a dollar we have a large straw basket so full of fruits and vegetables that I can not carry it alone. Bananas are two for a penny, a large pineapple costs a dime, all types of tropical fruits are plentiful and cheap. Along side the little stalls of fruits and vegetables are others selling roasted pigs, spices, rat traps, razor blades, and almost everything else imaginable. Mixed in with the shoppers are the Indians who have come in from the haciendas with their burros of wood to sell or exchange for food and clothing and the medicine men with their snakes and monkeys and powerful tonics that cure everything.

Our work here is somewhat like that of an extension agent in the States. We work with 4-H clubs, give demonstrations on how to make a seed bed or cook a vegetable without losing the vitamins, have projects of chickens and rabbits with individuals to teach them modern methods, and anything else we think might be of help. None of the projects develop as rapidly as we thought they would. First, we had to win the confidence of the people so that they would listen to what we said rather than just stare at us. (I am as tall as any man in town and John is considered a giant.) After we got started we realized that although we were their friends, most people put more faith in beliefs passed down from father to son than what some "gringo" had to say. When John began his chicken projects, everyone wanted to put red pepper in the water to make them strong and a red ribbon around their necks so that no one would give them the "bad eye" and make them die.

These specific things are not mentioned anymore since the farmers have seen that with a balanced feed and scientific methods there is no need for red pepper and ribbons, but other beliefs still are strong.

Many of our projects consist of showing the people how to use products donated by the people in the United States through two organizations, Heifer Inc., which supplies animals and seeds and CARE which brings food, medicines, carpentry kits, and many other things. In the schools John and the local extension agent are showing the children how to plant gardens, care for the vegetables with the free seeds and gardening kits. CARE products are used in the school lunch programs in which I work. Our aim is to give all of the primary school children at least one balanced meal a day.

After our two years here it may be hard to see any change we have caused in Alausi, but the influence and effect of these warm-hearted people on us is and will be very evident. We feel that if it were possible for everyone to have these experiences there would be much more compatibility and understanding between nations. We invite anyone who might be traveling to come by to see our little corner of South America; you are sure to get a very warm welcome.

Sincerely,
Sue and John Wyss,

Ford's quiet ride is the result of built-in quality and overall engineering excellence. After the business meeting, Mrs. Roy Barker, who was in charge, presented the program. Mrs. R. J. Thomas read the Christmas story according to St. Luke 2:1-20. Mrs. Allen Shultz gave the "Real Meaning of Christmas," giving prophecies foretold by Isaiah and how they were fulfilled in Matthew. Mrs. Jack Brown gave the story, "Keeping Christmas," which was humorous and very true to life.

Two guests were present, Mrs. Johnson, mother of Mrs. Halbert, and Mrs. Jack Roberts Jr. of Chicago. Mrs. Roberts told the club about her work with the Indians.

After the meeting, the hostess with the aid of her mother, served attractive and delicious refreshments to the 13 members and guests.

Former Crowell Resident Tells of European Travels in Letter Home

Mrs. O. M. Grimm of Thalia has received the following letter from her granddaughter, Mrs. Jack Huebner, who with her family is living in Germany while her husband is serving with the armed forces. The letter follows:

One baby, five trips, one move and a year have gone by since our last letter, but we certainly haven't forgotten one of you. Actually we find ourselves appreciating our friends and our native country more as the days rush by here in Germany. Even the children talk about "The States" as if they really miss being there. As you probably know, Janice Lee was born Sept. 4 . . .

To bring you up-to-date on our travels, we must start with our dream holiday in Switzerland: plenty of snow; sharing a Texas Christmas dinner with missionary friends, except for the loaf of braided Swiss bread; bundling up for a one-horse open sleigh ride in the Alps stopping at the half-way point for mugs of steaming hot Ovaltine (did you know it's a Swiss drink?) and warming our toes on bags of warm pebbles; sledding but avoiding the bone-breaking skiing; sleeping on feather beds and under down comforts; and preparing and eating what was probably one of the few authentic Mexican meals prepared in the Alps!

In March we drove to Paris, parked the car until we started back and spent several days exploring via the subway. The weather was still too cold to capture the "April in Paris" feeling but it is still a fascinating city. We visited all the usual tourist sights, went out to Versailles, the Folies and my fashion shopping consisted of buying my Easter straw at the 5c and 10c store. Their long, slender loaves of bread were worth the whole trip—really delicious. Much to our surprise the countryside reminded us of Texas as we would drive for miles without seeing a town; here in Germany where 55 million people live in an area 1/3 the size of Texas we are never out of sight of villages.

In April I joined a Wives Club tour to Greece for eight days. We spent a few days in Athens with a side trip to Corinth and then boarded a boat for a cruise to several of the Aegean Islands. Our visions of a calm sea cruise vanished our first night out when we had to hold ourselves in the bunks—the rough weather continued throughout the sailing but we did have pretty weather for our stops on shore at Rhodes, Crete and smaller islands. Fortunately I didn't suffer from seasickness and was able to enjoy the fancy seven-course meals we were served until I tired of the olive oil taste. The islands were very beautiful with the whitewash houses contrasted against the blue sea; but Athens is very dusty and rocky. Jack commented after his trip down there that it did look as if the Greeks could have picked up a few of the rocks to clear the ground through their thousands of years existence.

In May Tracy stayed with friends so as not to miss kindergarten and the rest of us took off for a two week vacation in Italy. We shivered in Switzerland during a snow flurry as we waited for the train to ferry our car through the snowbound St. Gotthard Pass tunnel; when we were through the tunnel about 20 minutes later we drove out into the most beautiful warm sunshine which never left us during our vacation. As a Texan I never thought I would come to thoroughly appreciate warm sunshine but after my first winter in cold, gloomy Germany it was really great. We spent a day in Venice riding the canals on the boat version of a bus (gondolas cost $5 an hour) and then drove down to Naples where we visited Pompeii, the Isle of Capri, ate pizza in its home town (American versions much better) and were amazed that people survived in such filth. The women do their shopping by letting their baskets down from their apartment windows for the vendors to fill; laundry is hanging across the streets from building to building and the traffic defies description.

We had been warned about the Rome traffic but after Naples we found it quite sane. (In case you have never heard, without exception Americans are the best drivers—that's an unprejudiced opinion.) We took advantage of the USO conducted tours, were in St. Paul's when the Pope held a public audience and went down to the Coliseum one moonlit night to try to capture its historic importance. As we stood in the arena and tried to imagine mock sea battles taking place here and Roman gladiators fighting lions, we were brought back to the 20th Century when we spotted a satellite gliding across the sky. We'd saved our shopping for Florence and were not disappointed with our jewelry and leather buys there. We spent our last days on the Riviera where the U. S. Army maintains a beach for the military near Pisa. Mitchell wouldn't climb up in the Leaning Tower with Jack until I assured him I would stand at the bottom and catch him if he fell.

We left the children with a capable babysitter and spent several days in Berlin earlier this month. We drove up through East Germany and I thought you might be interested in that. After filling out several forms for the Air Force, we were granted permission to drive. Jack received a 30-minute briefing at the border from the U. S. Military giving instructions on how to act in all types of emergencies. We were not to deal at all with an East German soldier, to demand a Russian soldier come; were not to wait in any lines but "push" our way to the front in the car (this was fun); were given a certain time in which to drive the 100-mile trip to Berlin and if we hadn't arrived in that time a search by the U. S. Army would be started for us; were not to allow any search or to show a passport. All this is the procedure followed to not recognize East Germany as another country but as the Russian zone. Actually our trip was uneventful through the zone. Most travelers on our access highway were West Germans or Americans as the East Germany economy is so low there are few cars of theirs on the highway. We saw road workers guarded by armed East German soldiers. They are told they are being protected from us Capitalists; of course, they are being guarded against fleeing. As for the wall in Berlin, I'll always be amazed when I hear of a successful escape because it is so thoroughly guarded with several rows of barbed wire fences, soldiers with dogs patrolling by foot and in jeeps. Some windows on the border had been bricked up with the curtains still hanging.

I'd hoped to enlighten you in each letter about our observations of the German way of life but I'm afraid after 1 1/2 years I've lost my objectivity, if I ever had any. We came determined to be open minded and not be "Ugly Americans," but we are deciding that we Americans are the most hard working, adaptable and courteous people. You will find us loyal Americans through and through when we return to the U. S.

While drilling for oil in the Sahara Desert, Oil Facts reports, U. S. oilmen discovered a huge underground lake of fresh water. More than 200 water wells have now been drilled in the area, each capable of irrigating up to 500 acres. With this water supply, the desert can produce three crops of fruits and vegetables a year.

The Crowell-Quanah-Chillicothe area is featured in a now-complete, three-volume, soft-cover collection of Texas' major stories, "Off the Beaten Trail," just completed with release of Volume 3 by Hill Country author-historian-news columnist, Ed Syers.

Texas historian Syers claims it primarily dedicated to the smaller cities and towns, "where too few Texans know how much history was made and what needs be seen."

In volume III of the set, Syers ponders four strange hillocks west of Wichita Falls, Indian Medicine Mounds that are part legend, part history. You climb one with a legendary Indian father to save his daughter with prayer. The other daughter is a white man's—Cynthia Ann Parker—retaken from the Comanches here.

Former Crowell Resident Tells of European Travels in Letter Home

Mrs. O. M. Grimm of Thalia has received the following letter from her granddaughter, Mrs. Jack Huebner, who with her family is living in Germany while her husband is serving with the armed forces. The letter follows:

One baby, five trips, one move and a year have gone by since our last letter, but we certainly haven't forgotten one of you. Actually we find ourselves appreciating our friends and our native country more as the days rush by here in Germany. Even the children talk about "The States" as if they really miss being there.

As you probably know, Janice Lee was born Sept. 4.

To bring you up-to-date on our travels, we must start with our dream holiday in Switzerland: plenty of snow; sharing a Texas Christmas dinner with missionary friends, except for the loaf of braided Swiss bread; bundling up for a one-hour open sleigh ride in the Alps stopping at the halfway point for mugs of steaming hot Ovaltine (did you know it's a Swiss drink?) and warming our toes on bags of warm pebbles; sledding but avoiding the bone-breaking skiing; sleeping on feather beds and under down covers; and preparing and eating what was probably one of the few authentic Mexican meals prepared in the Alps!

In March we drove to Paris, parked the car until we started back and spent several days exploring via the subway. The weather was still too cold to capture the "April in Paris" feeling but it is still a fascinating city. We visited all the usual tourist sights, went out to Versailles, the Folies and my fashion shopping consisted of buying my Easter straw at the 5c and 10c store. Their long, slender loaves of bread were worth the whole trip—really delicious. Much to our surprise the countryside reminded us of Texas as we would drive for miles without seeing a town; here in Germany where 55 million people live in an area 1/3 the size of Texas we are never out of sight of villages.

In April I joined a Wives Club tour to Greece for eight days. We spent a few days in Athens with a side trip to Corinth and then boarded a boat for a cruise to several of the Aegean Islands. Our visions of a calm sea cruise vanished our first night out when we had to hold ourselves in the bunks—the rough weather continued throughout the sailing but we did have pretty weather for our stops on shore at Rhodes, Crete and smaller islands. Fortunately I didn't suffer from seasickness and was able to enjoy the fancy seven-course meals we were served until I tired of the olive oil taste. The islands were very beautiful with the whitewash houses contrasted against the blue sea; but Athens is very dusty and rocky. Jack commented after his trip down there that it did look as if the Greeks could have picked up a few of the rocks to clear the ground through their thousands of years existence.

In May Tracy stayed with friends so as not to miss kindergarten and the rest of us took off for a two week vacation in Italy. We shivered in Switzerland during a snow flurry as we waited for the train to ferry our car through the snowbound St. Gotthard Pass tunnel; when we were through the tunnel about 20 minutes later we drove out into the most beautiful warm sunshine which never left us during our vacation. As a Texan I never thought I would come to thoroughly appreciate warm sunshine but after my first winter in cold, gloomy Germany it was really great. We spent a day in Venice riding the canals in the boat version of a bus (gondolas cost $5 an hour) and then drove down to Naples where we visited Pompeii, the Isle of Capri, ate pizza in its home town (American versions much better) and were amazed that people survived in such filth. The women do their shopping by letting their baskets down from their apartment windows for the vendors to fill; laundry is hanging across the streets from building to building and the traffic defies description.

We had been warned about the Rome traffic but after Naples we found it quite sane. (In case you have never heard, without exception Americans are the best drivers—that's an unprejudiced opinion.) We took advantage of the USO conducted tours, were in St. Paul's when the Pope held a public audience and went down to the Coliseum one moonlit night to try to capture its historic importance. Army maintains a beach for the military near Pisa. Mitchell wouldn't climb up in the Leaning Tower with Jack until I assured him I would stand at the bottom and catch him if he fell.

We left the children with a capable babysitter and spent several days in Berlin earlier this month. We drove up through East Germany and I thought you might be interested in the procedure involved in that. After filling out several forms for the Air Force, we were granted permission to drive. Jack received a 30-minute briefing at the border from the U. S. Military giving instructions on how to act in all types of emergencies. We were not to deal at all with an East German soldier, to demand a Russian soldier come; were not to wait in any lines but "push" our way to the front in the car (this was fun); were given a certain time in which to drive the 100-mile trip to Berlin and if we hadn't arrived in that time a search by the U. Five Accidents in County Investigated During November

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated five accidents on rural highways in Foard County during the month of November, according to Sgt. Floyd Etheridge, Highway Patrol supervisor of this area.

These wrecks accounted for two persons injured and an estimated property damage of $1,370.00.

The rural traffic accident summary for this county from January through November of 1965 shows a total of 28 crashes. As a result of these crashes there were no persons killed and 25 persons injured. The estimated property damage amounted to $28,150.00.

"If you think drinking and driving is not such a big problem as we picture it—you are wrong," the sergeant stated. "Drinking drivers are involved in more than half the fatal Christmas-time accidents, a higher percentage than the one-out-of-three proportion during the rest of the year. The problem is not only the heavy drinker but also the social drinker and even the person who only had a few at the office party or on the way home from work. Just a little alcohol takes a short cut toward a driving accident by reducing judgment, self-control and driving reactions. The best solution is not to drink at all after drinking."

The patrol supervisor offered these suggestions to emphasize holiday traffic safety: restrain impatience, haste, inconsiderateness and preoccupation that may creep into the holiday attitudes. Know the safe winter driving techniques and use them. Obey the regulations and signs. And when you are the pedestrian, don't take chances with the traffic by jay-walking, rushing, obscuring vision with packages, or failing to allow extra alertness for dusk and hazardous weather conditions.
