Blood center officials were especially encouraged by first-time donors. This Friday, February 4, the Red River Regional Bloodmobile will come to Crowell for its ninth visit. Anyone between the ages of 18 and 60 years is urged to give blood. Minors must have parents' written consent. Each person is checked for temperature, pulse, hemoglobin, and medical history.

Local officials say it is safe for a person to give blood every eight weeks, but not over 5 times a year.

"What's This" Steals Show Over Texas

It's that time of the year again when conclusion of the principal wildlife harvest permits closer scrutiny of creatures, or traces of creatures.

Parts of East Texas, according to reports to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, have seen what were described as "panther tracks."

Another "strange animal" was reported on a ranch in the Wichita Falls area. It turned out to be an ordinary porcupine. The finder forwarded two quills of unneeded supporting evidence since the "rambling pincushion" is frequently seen west of that area, particularly in the Panhandle.

One man saw something even more distinctive. It turned out to be a grebe bearing around its neck, a round plastic bottle cap, through which it apparently had dived on its characteristic underwater explorations.

Now, look, North Texas, the Department requests, if a black bear shows up in that area, just shoot it on back down in the southern Trans-Pecos country where it belongs.

Still more new cars and diesels, too, for Santa Fe.

Our $145-million improvement program for 1966 includes 60 high-horsepower diesels and 5,000 freight cars. That brings our investment—in just 4 years—to more than $360-million for 18,000 modern cars and diesels. All to serve still better our busy Santa Fe Country.

Soon more than 20 per cent of Santa Fe's huge fleet will be less than four years old. But this does not tell the whole story. Many new cars are longer; others have capacities multiplied 2½ times; many haul double the tonnage of cars they replace.

power is in new high-horsepower units—and more keep coming to move our trains on fast, dependable schedules. How can we help you? Just call your local Santa Fe Agent.

Our fleet of giant 100-ton covered hopper cars for grain, and other bulk commodities is being expanded. Soon 5,600 of them will be in service—with the carrying capacity of 11,000 conventional box cars! Half of Santa Fe's diesel freight

The railroad that is always on the move toward a better way.

Hunting Mishaps
 Take Toll of Youths

Grim reminders of the recent hunting season when ten of 21 shooting fatalities were youngsters, came in recent outdoor recreational tragedies.
 Reports correlated by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department in its safety education routine show that:

A 16-year-old Beaumont boy was killed when a 16-year-old companion accidentally discharged a 20 gauge shotgun while they were hunting;

An 11-year-old Lufkin girl was seriously wounded by her 10-year-old brother when he accidentally discharged a .22 rifle while they were squirrel hunting;

A 17-year-old San Antonio boy was wounded by a .22 rifle while hunting with another 17-year-old;

An 18-year-old Groves boy said
 he accidentally shot a 52-year-old man while they were hunting rabbits but he was charged with murder after an investigation;

A 15-year-old Houston boy drowned while ferrying a borrowed outboard motor boat across Lake Houston;

Two 14-year-old Lampasas County boys died of carbon monoxide poisoning while in their car during a hunting trip near Kempner.

In the other recreational fatality reported to the Department,
 a 42-year-old Dallas man fell from a tree while coon hunting and landed on his head.

Game Warden Bill Works of Eldorado reported a belated near-miss about a late season deer
 hunter deep in the remote Val Verde County ranch country. He unloaded his rifle with the muzzle pointed at his pickup motor. One round discharged, blizzing the ignition distributor and requiring the shaken hunter to hike eight miles for help.

Dip in Economy
 Is Forecast

"A deflationary jolt in the nation's economy is expected by some . . . when an increase in Social Security taxes take effect.
 Workers and their employers must pump an additional $5 billion into the Social Security Trust Fund in 1966 . . . Companies with large payrolls and narrow profit margins
 . . . may feel the need to raise prices as a means of offsetting the higher tax bite, a move that could result in harmful buyer resistance to its products. And for smaller companies with narrower margins,
 the choice could be a bleak one,
 indeed." — Harrisonburg, Va., News-Record.

$5.1 Billion Tax Boost

"The Social Security amendments adopted last year add up to a considerable step toward the 'hospital and medical care for all'
 advocated by the administrations of Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman . . . Medicare, and a 7 per cent increase in benefits for 20 million Social Security recipients other than Medicare, amount to a $5.1 billion tax boost on workers and employers, equally shared."—Chico, Calif., Enterprise-Record.

Futuristic innovations in the 1966 Thunderbird include an overhead console, top; fingertip operated Highway Pilot Control, center; and Stereonic tape player, bottom. The overhead console — standard in Town Landau and Town Hardtop models
 — includes warning lights for low fuel, door ajar and fasten seatbelts, as well as an emergency flasher switch. The Highway Pilot speed control permits the driver to set, reduce and resume cruising speed simply by touching buttons located on the steering wheel. Each Stereonic tape player cartridge provides up to 30 minutes of stereo music ranging from Broadway to the concert hall. Four speakers are located strategically to bring the full stereo richness to driver and passengers.

Vital Nature of Rail Transportation

The vital nature of rail transportation in this situation is evident from the figures: The average automobile travels with an average of 1 1/2 statistical passengers.
 The average train carries 1,000.
 From the Devils Lake, North Dakota, Journal: "In the next few years, the U. S. population will pass the 200 million mark,
 and if the present rate of growth persists, it will double in less than half a century. With most of the growth in urban areas already overcrowded, transportation problems can become monumental.

Family Bankruptcies Are Increasing

Over-use of credit is causing greater numbers of American families to file bankruptcy proceedings.

These bankruptcies can usually be blamed on poor management in the family, rather than just a lack of money, says Mrs. Elsie
 P. Short, Texas A&M University
 Extension home management specialist.

"People are impatient to have the same prestige items and status symbols that the Joneses have.
 They are unwilling to wait a few months to accumulate the funds necessary—so credit is used.
 Bankruptcies result from flagrant misuse of credit," Mrs. Short adds.

American families have upped their short-term debts from $8 billion in 1945 to $70 billion in 1964.

Families may avoid the loss of available credit—caused by the abuse of the credit privilege—by establishing a clear plan or purpose for the use of their money.
 This plan should be based on income. A family's security depends on spending within the bounds of income and certain priorities and limitations may need to be set up, the specialist emphasizes.

Nationwide, almost 140,000
 families filed bankruptcy proceedings in 1963, the last year that statistics have been made available.

Additional planning and training in the use of credit and money management could have averted many of these bankruptcies.

Parks Get Quiet
 Set in Winter

Hey, night owls and fun lovers
 generally!

Don't worry about your favorite state park reverting to the Indians and hobgoblins during the peaceful winter time.

That is when the hale-and-hearty trailer trade moves in to live it up in the serene setting.

Fort Park State Park has had weekly trailer rallies, ranging up to 32 trailers and 90 members, representing mainly clubs in Dallas and Fort Worth.

East of Mexia at Tyler State Park, also a wooded retreat, trailer clubs have been meeting every week end since the Labor Day whoopla. Up to 40 trailers gathered there in one week end, with visitors from East Texas and Western Louisiana.

Fish Netted on Schedule—Cold or Not

Those men out there on that 16-foot floating platform, once a boat now stripped down to no windshield, no cabin, no windbreak whatever—those hardy ones probably are Texas Parks and Wildlife Department crews doing a simple job of netting fish.

But doing a vital job for you steam-heat fans, now only interested in when the big ones start biting and where.

At Department headquarters they coldly refer to it as periodic inventories. And the 18 crews now making their mid-winter checks, take the frequently sub-freezing expeditions as the balancing part of the around-the-calendar system that gets them out into the balmy breezes come summer.

Four times each year, these reconnaissance surveys are made. Sometimes seines are used to catch the young-of-the-year to determine their growth and general status. Standard equipment, however, are the deep water nets which trap fish of all kinds and all sizes.

A Department spokesman explained that the population thus is determined as to species, numbers and condition. Of course, follow-up laboratory investigations determine sex, growth rate and the like.

He said the winter inventories now will reflect sexual status and factors leading up to the spring spawning season, adding that the

Two Minutes With the Bible

Will Good Works Save?

"And almost all things are by the law purged with blood; and without shedding of blood is no remission" (Heb. 9:22).

The apostle's argument in the above passage is that since Israel's ceremonial law was typical of things to come, its constant shedding of blood pointed to the necessity of Christ's sacrificial death for the remission of sins. Certainly the Bible teaches that "Christ died for our sins" (I Cor. 15:3).

Those who seek instead to make themselves acceptable to God by good works should consider the following: Our Lord never committed one sin. He always did those things which pleased the Father. His ministry was filled with acts of mercy and kindness. He healed the sick, cleansed the leper, made the blind to see, the deaf to hear and the lame to leap for joy. He preached the gospel to the poor, deliverance to the captives and healed the broken-hearted. Yet all these good works could not avail to cancel one sin or ease the conscience of one guilty sinner. Indeed, had He done all these good works and then gone to heaven without dying in our stead, He would have left us in a deeper condemnation than before, for His holy, spotless life could only emphasize our sin and guilt by contrast.

And if all His good works could not avail to erase even one sin from the black record of human behavior, how utterly preposterous for the sinner to hope to erase or cancel his sins by his own "good works!" Thus, in contrast the Bible presents Christ's death as the price of our redemption: "... we have redemption through His blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of His grace" (Eph. 1:7).

"Being justified freely by (God's) grace, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus" (Rom. 3:24).

Lt. Gov. Preston Smith Seeks Re-Election

Lt. Gov. Preston Smith of Lubbock formally became a candidate for re-election this week by paying his filing fee to the State Democratic Executive Committee.

He said his only campaign pledge at this time was "to continue working for the good of all Texas, impartially and diligently." Smith was elected lieutenant governor in 1962.

Bass Raids on Catfish Face Curbs

It's something like the corney old query—should the whiskers be under the covers or outside the covers for sleeping purposes.

That is, one present fish management puzzle is something like that.

Because, a mystery now being probed by Texas Parks and Wildlife Department fisheries people is designed to determine.

Should voracious young black bass be stocked in farm ponds before or after young catfish are the same comparative waters?

The Department has just a two years' study on the subject to determine if the Federal hatcheries in the State Federal hatcheries is to the best survival of fishes.

Presently, black bass are distributed to farm ponds spring and, in a favorable environment, usually grow a size of up to ten and a inches in length within months.

That's about the time they fall the catfish, which spawners, are released, ranging five to seven inches in size, presumption that prompt research is to discover if the food bass, which feed on the food, devour many of the catfish.

If the study shows that a fish loss is caused by this policy, hereafter farm ponds the like which provide supplemental fishing facilities be stocked with catfish in the and stocked with tiny bass the following spring's hatchery.

It's all part of the effort to obtain the best use of the reared fish, according to the Department.

The reversed fish stocking rule might not necessarily be to lakes and reservoirs since smaller cats released in the would have more space in to outmaneuver the larger

Our Fault as Much as Politicians

"Save your Christmas bonus checks for April 15. You'll need all the extra cash you can get to pay for your 'reduced taxes' . . . Some of these are necessary expenditures, but many others are not. They are so fantastically wasteful as to be idiotic. It's easy to blame the politicians, but much of the fault lies with people who keep demanding things from 'the government'—preferably the federal government—with the naive notion that someone else will pay for the extravagant things they want."—Covington, La., St. Tammany Farmer.

Scientists Develop a New Textile Material

Researchers have developed a new textile material whose uses range from interlinings for apparel and bookbinding materials to leather for rugged automobile tire chafers.

It can best be described as a sheet structure formed by ingenious spinning and bonding of polyester fibers, says Mrs. Lynn Parks Stiles, Texas A&M University Extension consumer education specialist.

"Reemay" (pronounced Reemay) is the trademark given this new material. The generic name "spun-bonded" was coined to differentiate this unique class of products from other textile materials.

"Reemay" can be custom tailored. The fibers can be crimped to form a soft, comfortable material or used straight for a rigid starched-like material. It can be made lightweight or heavy, thin or bulky, white, or if color is desired, it can be dyed.

This new material has high strength. It does not lose its strength when used as it is chemically unaffected by perspiration and moisture. It can be cut in any direction without fraying or raveling. Because of its unique porous structure, "Reemay" offers good breathability and retains away moisture readily. This drying rapidly. The apparel industry is using interlinings of "Reemay" for washable and wash-and-wear garments including blouses, dresses, brassieres and shirts. Spunbonded interlinings are ideally suited for apparel because they resist wrinkling, shrinking, seam puckering and discoloring. They dry quickly after washing and are easy to iron.

"Reemay" is also used principally for the interior of men's, women's and children's shoes. The shoe industry is using it as a backing for leather and vinyl linings.

Teen-Age Marriages Continue to Increase

The number of teen-age marriages continues to rise in Texas, says Mrs. Patsy R. Yates, Texas A&M University Extension specialist in family life education.

A recent study conducted by the West Texas Study Council in high schools across the state indicates that only four of the 208 schools studied require married students to take a course in home and family education.

Sixty-one of these schools had available an elective course in home and family life which either boys or girls might take, Mrs. Yates says.

Some counties in the state report as many divorces granted as marriages performed, the study showed.

"More courses in the art of living are definitely needed," Mrs. Yates emphasizes.

Mrs. Yates, who was on the program at the annual American Home Economics Association convention earlier this year, reports that the national organization has compiled selected papers from the annual meeting which relate to parenting the teen-ager in human relations and management of resources.

The booklet includes "What We Know About Today's Teen-Agers" by Dr. Melvin Heller, associate professor of psychiatry at Temple University, and 17 other papers that relate home economics subject matter to the education of adolescents.

People who work with teen-agers will find this information helpful in developing programs, says Mrs. Yates.

New Stain-Resistant Fabrics Aid Mothers

With children in school, mothers are faced with the problem of removing all kinds of stains from their clothing.

Fabrics that have been treated with special finishes designed to repel stains are proving to be a great help, says Mrs. Lynn Parks

Stiles, Texas A&M University Extension consumer education specialist.

The new stain-resistant finishes are usually fluorine-based compounds which can be applied to the fabric to form links with the fibers. The new finishes thus form an invisible chemical shield against oil and water stains.

Since these stains cannot penetrate the fibers, they bead or roll off the surface. If allowed to dry instead of being wiped off promptly, most of the stains can be removed with laundering or spot cleaning. Exceptions are ball point inks, lipsticks and grass stains.

The stain-repellent finishes are usually applied to the fabrics at the textile mill. However, such a finish is now available in spray cans, so homemakers can apply it after laundering their washables. Factory finishes are expected to last the life of the fabric, but the spray type may need to be re-applied after several washings.

If your child has lead or color pencil marks or smudges from carbon paper on his clothing, Mrs. Stiles suggests that you use a soft eraser to remove them. If this fails, work detergent into the stain and rinse. If the stain is not removed, put a few drops of ammonia on it and repeat the detergent treatment. Rinse well and repeat if necessary.

Equal Rights Bring Shinin' Tag to Femme

The cycle is complete; women have finally conquered all!

One madame, still dominated by the more daring masculine types. And, as must come to all poachers sooner or later, she was caught red-handed by an alert warden.

Doubtless realizing that the fox was now at last enjoys equal status with the men folk, the warden promptly "threw the book" at the unique offender, with a cash fine and rescinding her hunting license for the current state fiscal year. Licenses are forfeited only on the more flagrant infractions at the discretion of the court.

This will keep the lassie and her gun grounded until September 1 when the new licenses are effective which, of course, would be in time for the dove season opener and the Rio Grande Valley whitewing dove hoodown, as-

Boys Bow Out 'Til Next Fall

Scattergunners are sounding the final salute in many Texas areas to the regular hunting season, dating back to the September 1 opening of the north zone mourning dove shoot.

The targets are the fleetest, sportiest game birds of them all—for many outdoorsmen—the quail. The lengthy season ended January 31. It had ended earlier in Foard County and other areas of the state.

It was such a good season, as Texas Parks and Wildlife Department reports indicate, that sportsmen in the Panhandle even got in some pretty fair trips afield after snow covered the region.

Department biologists prefer an adequate harvest since quail are susceptible to so many hazards and yet have such an explosive reproductive ability that habitat and weather, not hold-over numbers, generally are the major factors in future seasonal populations.

So the legal season was an extended one, ranging from October 15 through December 15 in one South Texas county and into mid-January or the end of January in most other areas.

Closing the quail season, leaves squirrels among major game species as the principal prey in more than half of the state where there is no closed season. The shooting period varies so greatly that the Department suggested hunters check their regular hunting guide usually available where licenses are sold. Of course, there also is no closed season on rabbits which are not officially classified as game animal in Texas.

There's bigger and rougher game in the brush country where javelina also have no closed season in a number of counties. This is mostly in Central and South Texas.

Varmint hunters meanwhile have full reign, as well as hunters for unprotected animals which include: wolves, coyotes, prairie dogs, ground squirrels, Russian bear and various wild cats.

Wheat Stocks Are Down for Fourth Consecutive Year

A continued high level of exports, some increase in domestic use and special acreage diversion programs were responsible for other reduction in the U. S. wheat carryover for 1965.

John G. McHaney, Extension economist at Texas A&M University, said the July 1, 1965, wheat carryover was 9 per cent below that of a year ago. He added that the fourth straight year wheat stocks to decline. But said, consumers have nothing to worry about since the July 1 carryover totaled 819 million bushels, enough for more than a year and a half domestic use.

The 1965 wheat crop for nation plus the carryover and allowance for small imports create a total wheat supply of 175 million bushels for the 1966 marketing year, about the same supply as was available year earlier.

McHaney expects domestic use of wheat to increase 4 per cent during the year ahead while exports are expected to remain stable. Wheat used for feed is expected to total around 95 million bushels compared with 100 million bushels for the year earlier. This compares with an average of 42 million bushels fed the 1958-62 period.

The economist said the wheat carryover on July 1, 1966, will be the time the 1966 harvest begins to roll—should be around 780 million bushels. This, he added, would be 39 million bushels below the July 1, '65 carryover and 1 per cent below the 1958-62 year average. Great strides, McHaney said, have been made in reducing the carryover of wheat but we still have plenty.

McHaney said wheat prices are expected to average slightly above the national rate average of $1.25 per bushel for the 1965-66 marketing year. About 84 per cent of the nation's acreage allotments are under 1965 wheat program with all production from this acreage eligible for price support. This, said the economist, should provide an adequate set to the large "free" supply and give strength to prices.

Scientists Develop a New Textile Material

Researchers have developed a new textile material whose uses range from interlinings for apparel and backing materials for leather to rugged automobile tire chafers.

It can best be described as a sheet structure formed by ingenious spinning and blending of polyester fibers, says Mrs. Lynn Parks Stiles, Texas A&M University Extension consumer education specialist.

"Reemay" (pronounced Reemay) is the trademark given this new material. The generic name "spun-bonded" was coined to differentiate this unique class of products from other textile materials.

"Reemay" can be custom tailored. The fibers can be crimped to form a soft, conformable material or used straight for a rigid starched-like material. It can be made lightweight or heavy, thin or bulky, white, or if color is desired, it can be dyed.

This new material has high strength. It does not lose its strength when used, as it is chemically unaffected by perspiration and moisture. It can be cut in any direction without fraying or unraveling. Because of its highly porous structure, "Reemay" offers good breathability and carries away moisture readily, thus drying rapidly.

The apparel industry is using interlinings of "Reemay" for washable and wash-and-wear garments including blouses, dresses, brassieres and shirts. Spunbonded interlinings are ideally suited for apparel because they resist wrinkling, shrinking, seam puckering and discoloring. They dry quickly after washing and are easy to iron.

"Reemay" is also used principally for the interior of men's, women's and children's shoes. The shoe industry is using it as a backing for leather and vinyl linings.

Teen-Age Marriages Continue to Increase

The number of teen-age marriages continues to rise in Texas, says Mrs. Patsy R. Yates, Texas A&M University Extension specialist in family life education.

A recent study conducted by the West Texas Study Council in high schools across the state indicates that only four of the 238 schools studied require married students to take a course in home and family education.

Sixty-one of these schools had available an elective course in home and family life which either boys or girls might take, Mrs. Yates says.

Some counties in the state report as many divorces granted as marriages performed, the study showed.

"More courses in the art of living are definitely needed," Mrs. Yates emphasizes.

Mrs. Yates, who was on the program at the annual American Home Economics Association convention earlier this year, reports that the national organization has compiled selected papers from the annual meeting which relate to scouting the teen-ager in human relations and management of resources.

The booklet includes "What We Know About Today's Teen-Agers" by Dr. Melvin Heller, associate professor of psychiatry at Temple University, and 17 other papers that relate home economics subject matter to the education of adolescents.

People who work with teen-agers will find this information helpful in developing programs, says Mrs. Yates.

The cycle is complete: women have finally conquered all! One mademoiselle, even penetrated the sporty spotlighting deer area, still dominated by the more daring masculine types.

And, as must come to all poachers sooner or later, she was caught red-handed by an alert warden.

Doubtless realizing that the fair sex now at last enjoys equal status with the men folks, the court promptly "threw the book" at the unique offender, with a cash fine and rescinding her hunting license for the current state fiscal year. Licenses are forfeited only on the more flagrant infractions at the discretion of the court.

This will keep the lassie and her gun grounded until September 1 when the new licenses are effective which, of course, would be in time for the dove season opener and the Rio Grande Valley whitewing dove hoodown, as

Bobs Bow Out 'Til Next Fall

Scattergunners are sounding the final salute in many Texas areas to the regular hunting season dating back to the September 1 opening of the north zone mourning dove shoot.

The targets are the fleetest, sportiest game birds of them all—for many outdoorsmen—the quail. The lengthy season ended January 31. It had ended earlier in Foard County and other areas of the state.

It was such a good season, as Texas Parks and Wildlife Department reports indicate, that sportsmen in the Panhandle even got in some pretty fair trips afield after snow covered the region.

Department biologists prefer an adequate harvest since quail are susceptible to so many hazards and yet have such an explosive reproductive ability that habitat and weather, not hold-over numbers, generally are the major factors in future seasonal populations.

So the legal season was an extended one, ranging from October 15 through December 15 in one South Texas county and into mid-January or the end of January in most other areas.

Closing the quail season, leaves squirrels among major game species as the principal prey in more than half of the state where there is no closed season. The shooting period varies so greatly that the Department suggested hunters check their regular hunting guide usually available where licenses are sold. Of course, there also is no closed season on rabbits which are not officially classified as game animal in Texas.

There's bigger and rougher game in the brush country where javelina also have no closed season in a number of counties. This is mostly in Central and South Texas.

Varmint hunters meanwhile have full reign, as well as hunters for unprotected animals which include: wolves, coyotes, prairie dogs, ground squirrels, Russian bear and various wild cats.

Wheat Stocks Are Down for Fourth Consecutive Year

A continued high level of ports, some increase in domestic use and special acreage diversion programs were responsible for other reduction in the U. S. wheat carryover for 1965.

John G. McHaney, Extension economist at Texas A&M University, said the July 1, 1965, wheat carryover was 9 per cent below that of a year ago. He added that was the fourth straight year wheat stocks to decline. But, said, consumers have nothing to worry about since the July 1 carryover totaled 819 million bushels, enough for more than a year and a half domestic use.

The 1965 wheat crop for the nation plus the carryover will allow a total wheat supply of 175 million bushels for the 1966 marketing year, about the same supply as was available year earlier.

McHaney expects domestic use of wheat to increase 4 per cent during the year ahead while exports are expected to remain stable. Wheat used for feed is expected to total around 95 million bushels compared with 90 million bushels for the year earlier. This compares with an average of 42 million bushels fed in the 1958-62 period.

The economist said the wheat carryover on July 1, 1966—about the time the 1966 harvest begins to roll—should be around 780 million bushels. This, he added, would be 39 million bushels below the July 1, '65 carryover and 1 per cent below the 1958-62 year average. Great strides, McHaney said, have been made in reducing the carryover of wheat but we still have plenty.

McHaney said wheat prices are slightly above the national low rate average of $1.25 per bushel for the 1965-66 marketing year. About 84 per cent of the nation's acreage allotments are under the 1965 wheat program with all production from this acreage eligible for price support. This, said the economist, should provide an offset to the large "free" supply and give strength to prices.
