Bollweevils and Bollworms Build Up in Cotton

Bollweevils are beginning to build up in parts of Foard County, and bollworms continue to pose a threat. Joe Burkett, County Agent, urges farmers to watch their fields closely and apply control measures if needed.

Bollworm and bollweevil populations can be expected to increase due to wet weather and the lush green growth of cotton plants caused by the increase in moisture.

Burkett said that in order to determine weevil infestation, farmers should pull at random 100 squares about one-third grown, taking a few squares at several representative places in the field. He said if 20 to 25 percent or more have weevil punctures, control measures should be applied.

Bollworms should be controlled when 4-6 small worms and eggs are found per 100 cotton terminals.

Burkett added that a farmer should consider the cost before starting a control program, as it usually takes at least 3 applications or more at three to five day intervals to control bollworms and bollweevils.

Leaf worms can usually be controlled with one application made when worms are small.

Rep. Purcell Praises Administration's Farm Policies in Talk Here Saturday

County Receives More Moisture Last Thursday

The rains which have soaked up Foard County land for the past few weeks, continued through the latter part of last week. Thursday morning, heavy clouds dumped up to 4 inches in the Margaret community, washing out roads, sending creeks out of their banks and inundating fields. To the southeast of Thalia, over 4 inches was reported, while here in Crowell, .55 inch was recorded.

All day Friday was cloudy here with Crowell receiving a light rain early that morning.

After the long, dry summer just ended, Foard County has been transformed to lush green growth. It hardly seems possible that in so short a time, the county would be needing some dry, warm weather, but that is the situation now. Reports are that insects have been building up rapidly in the cotton since the rains, and with wheat planting time nearing, farmers need to get in their fields and plow the weeds.

Congressman Was Speaker at Farmers Union Meeting

Several hundred persons attended the annual meeting of the Foard County Farmers Union last Saturday night, and heard Congressman Graham Purcell say there is a "strong feeling of optimism" concerning the future of agriculture prevailing in Washington.

Preceding the program which was held in the Crowell School's auditorium, a barbecue dinner was served in the school cafeteria.

President of the local Farmers Union, Warren Haynie, presided at the meeting and introduced the Congressman as well as Dwight Hamilton of Olney, president of the Rolling Plains Wheat Growers Association; Norbert Schlagel of Shamrock, Farmers Union field man; and Kenneth Moss of Paducah, Farmers Union organizational fieldman. Delegations from a number of neighboring counties also attended.

In his speech, Congressman Purcell said "The realistic farm programs of this Administration are now in their fifth year. In that time we have seen farm income increase—although it should go higher—while the farmers have provided a more balanced abundance for our consumers.

"The present farm programs have consistent objectives. They have made use of a wide variety of methods which are aimed at meeting a wide variety of problems. The last five years have resulted in the reduction of surpluses without a corresponding reduction in prices, and a record-setting rate of international trade expansion."

He named the consumer and the farmer as beneficiaries of these steps. He added however that the benefits of the farmer have not kept pace with those received by the consumer. He said that the wheat acreage allotment for Texas will increase from the present 3.7 million acres to 4.9 million acres due to recent increases announced.

In answering what this means to farmers, the Congressman said "It means that you will at least have the opportunity to plant more land to wheat where production is probable—and at the same time still maintain your eligibility for program benefits. It means that contrary to the past few years you will have to make a management decision on whether it will be good business to plant the second allotment or not."

He traced this great improvement in the wheat situation directly to present farm policies. Purcell predicted that the Food for Freedom bill presently pending in Congress will have a far-reaching effect on all American farmers in its provision for food and fiber for developing nations, as they are encouraged to develop their own agriculture to meet a pending population explosion that promises world shortages rather than surpluses.

"This legislation will result in continuing increases for many years of our agricultural exports. You will be asked to grow more so that we can sell more throughout the world."

Wildcats Win 22-8 over Chillicothe Here; Go to Matador This Week

Crowell High School Wildcat football team, in its initial game of the new season, took a 22-8 win over the Chillicothe Eagles in a non-conference game played here last Friday.

Scoring on the field was due to heavy rains and Friday.

Quarterback Steve Wildcats racked up 13 touchdowns as ground gainers by Wildcat backs racked up 234 rushing.

Line could not contain stop Crowell's power and off-tackle plays, which were tackled by Tommy Carter and Steve Bell.

Frank Mike Payne scored the touchdown for the Wildcats with a 10-yard run. The scoring play was set up when the Wildcats recovered a Chillicothe fumble on the Eagle 30 yard line. Payne also ran for the two points following the touchdown.

Fullback Lee Looney scored for Crowell in the second quarter on four-yard run. Try for extra points failed.

The Eagles got into the scoring column late in the second quarter when quarterback Sammy Bivins lunged over from two yards out. The scoring play was set by a 30-yard pass play from Bivins to halfback Dick Senter. The same passer-receiver combinations proved good for the two points after touchdown.

The final Crowell tally came on a 22-yard scamper by left halfback Ronnie Eavenson.

The Eagles saw two chances to score slip out of their grasp in the first half, once when they were on Crowell's two-yard line.

The entire Crowell line looked good as they held the Eagle backs to a total of 42 yards rushing.

Statistics for the contest are:

Mrs. Sue Wyss Returns from Peace Corps Duty

by Virginia Shirley

As she stood on her parent's front porch in Crowell, Sue Wyss exclaimed about the quietness and serenity of the evening, comparing it to the burro braying and train whistles that were always prevalent near her home in Alausi, Ecuador, during the last two years.

She and her husband were Peace Corps volunteers and in Ecuador were just a block from the railroad.

She arrived home last week and she hopes her husband, John, will get to leave Ecuador about October 1.

She will remain here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Moody Bursley, until her husband arrives back in the state.

For Mrs. Wyss, the plane trip from Quito, the country's capital, was uneventful; but a train ride of 180 miles from Alausi to Quito along winding mountain tracks took thirteen hours rather than the normal eight because of the derailment of a steam car. They had to switch to a bus and then a self-propelled train car.

Mrs. Wyss said transportation was the most frustrating inconvenience of the country discouraging the desire to travel extensively within Ecuador. In their mountain city, there are only five automobiles.

Although not the first Peace Corps volunteers to go to Alausi, John and Sue were the first married couple to be sent there. They were the only English speaking inhabitants of the city of 10,000; fifty per cent of whom were Indians, forty per cent Spanish and Indian mixed, and ten per cent Spanish. Alausi is located at an altitude of 8,500 feet on the side of a mountain.

Although full-time maids could be hired for $5 per month, Peace Corps volunteers were not permitted to have one.

Mrs. Wyss used wash tubs two large communal concrete tanks with cold running water. One tank had a slanting granite rock which was used as a washboard with a bar of soap. Attempting to get John's Levis clean this way when she first arrived convinced her that she should have the laundry done. The irons use charcoal and are very heavy.

Salaries in Alausi are very low. School teachers received $50 a month; the director of the hospital, $100; and the president of the bank makes $150. John and Sue made $100 a month each as Peace Corps volunteers, and were able to save enough to make a six-weeks tour of South America. They did it on the "know how" information supplied by other Peace Corps volunteers who had hunted out and found the clean, reasonably-priced lodgings and eating places.

John and Sue were roughly the equivalent of County and Home Demonstration Agents as under the U. S. agricultural extension programs. Sue taught cooking, nutrition, hygiene, and worked with the 4-H clubs her husband organized in Alausi.

Sue feels her most interesting project was teaching the nuns and two cooks in the government hospital how to make jellies and apple sauce. As the majority of illnesses there are caused by parasites and affect the liver, the hospital feeds the patients sweets. CARE furnished the hospital fifteen dozen jars. There is ample supply of tropical fruit in Ecuador, but apples, peaches and pears are grown only two months out of the year, so Sue taught the hospital help how to can these fruits, make jellies and apple sauce.

In order to eat vegetables raw without fear of illness, the people boil the water for twenty minutes, put chlorine tablets in it, and soak the vegetables for at least an hour in this solution. This is to kill parasites bred by human fertilizer, etc. As a result, not many raw vegetables are consumed. Sue introduced raw cabbage in cole slaw—no one had ever eaten raw cabbage.

The daily diet for the natives of Alausi consists of potatoes, noodles, rice, a little meat, and cheese poured over all. This meal is finished with a hot drink made from oats or corn starch and water.

On the evening before she left, the landlord's maid prepared a traditional Indian fiesta meal for them which was roasted guinea pig, boiled potatoes served with a sauce made with ground peanuts, and Chica, a drink made from fermented corn.

Sue feels John's main project with poultry will definitely continue and has already proved worthwhile economically.

When they arrived in October, 1964, fresh eggs were almost unheard of. Indians from the mountains brought in eggs, but they were ones that hadn't hatched after about sixteen days. They were marketed at 4 cents each. John started the chicken project, and this fall there are over 5,000 laying chickens being raised scientifically. The price of daily fresh eggs is 2½ cents each, and egg cooperatives have been formed to market the surplus eggs even to the coast.

Sue missed most at first electric lights—they used gasoline lanterns; then, purified tap water—they hauled their's from outside and had to boil it twenty minutes.

Sometimes she longed for something ice cold, for though the high altitude kept everything cool, there was no refrigeration, so nothing was cold. Mail was slow and somewhat irregular, and they had to go for packages to Riobamba where the customs offices were located. And, everything imported was about three times what one paid for it in the States.

Although she managed to get by on the shoes she took, Sue said the cobblestone and rock streets played havoc with shoes and none were to be bought. She found her clothes were washed spotless, but often where there had been a spot, there would be a hole, as the laundress scrubbed until the spot was "removed."

When she bought meat, she said she got a "machette" cut of whatever was on the hanging quarter and she always got one-half pound of bones with every pound of meat whether she wanted them or not. Meat was 20 cents a pound; chicken was 35 cents a pound on foot.

Sue's and John's original contract with the Peace Corps ended in June, but they requested to extend it to wait on the new Peace Corps volunteers, so that there will be a continuation of technical help for the projects. Sue's was extended until Sept. 1. She expects a baby in December. John's extension is until Oct. 1.

Sue and John love Ecuador, and if their hopes and plans materialize, they will return to Quito in four or five years. They definitely want to visit; but even have hopes of residing there again.

When John returns, they plan to live in Denton where his parents, Dr. and Mrs. A. E. Wyss, reside.

John's tentative plans are to return to North Texas State University in January to work on an advanced degree. Both have their bachelor's degrees.

Big Vote Urged
in Wool Promotion Referendum
All eligible wool growers are urged to cast ballots in the referendum on the wool and lamb market-development program. Ray Hysinger, chairman, Foard Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee, said he hopes for the most representative vote possible. Growers eligible to vote are those who have owned sheep or lambs 6 months of age or older for at least 30 consecutive days since last January. The vote will be held at the ASCS office through Sept. 23. Voting may be in person or by mail as soon as the ballots are received.
The vote will determine whether or not deductions will continue to be made from payments to producers under the wool program. These deductions finance a program of advertising, promotion and related activities to enlarge or improve the market for wool and lamb. The promotion program is carried out under an agreement made between the Secretary of Agriculture and the American Sheep Producers Council, a producer organization, as authorized by the National Wool Act. A similar agreement has been in effect since the 1955 marketing year, following approval by growers voting in referendums. For the agreement to be extended through 1969, as authorized by law, the September referendum must show approval by at least two-thirds of the volume of production represented by the total vote. If a new agreement is not approved by producers, no deductions will be withheld from payments on 1966 marketing, and ASPC programs will be continued only as long as the present reserve fund permits or until some other agreement may be approved by producers.
By approving the proposed new agreement, producers would authorize deductions from payments of up to 1 1/2 cents a pound on shorn wool and 7 1/2 cents a hun-dredweight on unshorn lambs, compared with 1 cent and 5 cents in the past.
The higher deductions would finance moderately expanded promotion programs.
The chairman said that ballots are being mailed to all known wool and lamb producers by the ASCS office. Ballots may be mailed or delivered in person and should reach the local office no later than the close of business on Sept. 23 in order to be counted.

More Farmers Will Be Planting Wheat
The recent increase in wheat allotments means more farmers will be planting wheat this fall, says County Agent Joe Burkett.
Not only will you be planting it for grain purposes—but in many cases for a winter temporary pasture. Wheat makes excellent winter pasture when grazed while it's still young. Wheat ranks second only to oats in palatability, and is more drought resistant and cold hardy than oats.
When should you apply fertilizer to wheat? There are three main choices: (1) applying all fertilizer before planting, (2) applying half before planting and the other half top dressed in early spring, or (3) all top dressed in early spring.
If you plan to graze the wheat, it's a good plan to apply all or at least a good part of the nitrogen before planting. But note: excessive fall applications of nitrogen can stimulate early growth in some seasons and increase winter injury, particularly if plants are not grazed. Also, some nitrogen may leach out during heavy rains—particularly in sandy soils.
Texas A&M University research shows phosphorus should be applied at, or before wheat is planted. Phosphorus aids early growth and makes more grazing. It increases seedling vigor and provides a better root system on the plant.

A. S. C. Chairman
Reviews 1967
Wheat Program

With planting time at hand, operation of the 1967 wheat program was discussed by Ray Hysinger, chairman of the Foard County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

"With the national allotment raised to 68.2 million acres, most farmers can plant as much wheat as they want and still participate in the program," Mr. Hysinger said. "They can help provide the food needed to fight the world wide war on hunger and still have income protection through price-support loans and domestic marketing certificates."

Mr. Hysinger pointed out the 1967 program has no provision for diversion or for diversion payment. He said the diversion features of the program were eliminated because farmers no longer need to produce less than will be consumed in order to reduce the surplus.

Farmers may elect any of several options when they participate in the program.

They can plant all of their allotment acres and be eligible for price-support and domestic certificates.

They can plant up to 50 per cent more than their allotment acres, store the excess production, and be eligible for certificates plus loans on the wheat not stored.

They can plant as little as 35 per cent of their allotments and be eligible for the maximum number of domestic certificates in addition to a loan on their production.

The program still offers the opportunity to substitute wheat and feed grains to allow farmers the maximum opportunity to decide what combination of crops will be best for their operations. Two feed grains, corn and grain sorghum, will be included in the 1967 feed grain program, Mr. Hysinger said.

Farmers who participate in both the wheat and feed grain programs can elect to substitute wheat for corn or grain sorghum or may substitute corn or grain sorghum for wheat.

Barley will not be included in the feed grain program in 1967, he said, but farmers who request a special barley base, which will be identical with the barley base established for the farm in 1966, may elect to substitute wheat on any or all of their barley base. There will be no diversion from the barley base and no barley diversion payments.

The 1967 program continues the option to substitute wheat for oats and rye on an approved oat-rye base. There will also be no diversion from the oat-rye base and no oat-rye diversion payment. The base will be adjusted on a state-by-state basis to allow for the difference in feed units produced per acre.

Farmers who wish to participate in the wheat program should elect the option they wish to use, plant this fall to fit their intentions and sign up in the program during the enrollment period which will be announced later, he said.

Jerry Setliff Takes Summer Training
at T. I. in Dallas

Jerry L. Setliff of Crowell is among 236 students from 69 colleges in the United States and England receiving technical and managerial experience in the annual Summer Development Program at Texas Instruments Incorporated in Dallas.

A diversified, science-based company, Texas Instruments is headquartered in Dallas. TI operates electronic and metallurgical product plants in 11 countries, and its sales offices and geophysical exploration services extend throughout the free world.

During their stay, the Summer Development students work with TI engineers, scientists and business administrators in areas related to their college fields of study.

When they return to college classrooms this month, more than half of the students will be studying toward advanced degrees in fields including mathematics, physics, geology, chemistry, engineering and business administration.

More than 600 students have participated in the program since it began in the summer of 1959.

The participants are chosen for the program by Texas Instruments acting on the recommendations of university faculties throughout the country. Considered in the recommendations are the students' leadership abilities, job experience, special achievements, creativity and extra-curricular activities.

To be eligible, students must have completed three years of college, be majoring in a field of interest to TI, and have an academic grade average of "B" or better.

Setliff, son of Mr. and Mrs.
Ennis Setliff, is a senior at the University of Texas.

Hightower and Purcell Speak at Water Hearing

State Senator Jack Hightower of Vernon and U. S. Rep. Graham Purcell of Wichita Falls last Friday at Lubbock called for more attention to development of water resources in West Texas during a public hearing before the Texas Water Development Board on the board's state-wide plan for water resources development in Texas.

Rep. Purcell said he felt the plan should give equal consideration to all parts of Texas, and that it fails to give sufficient attention to West Texas.

Mr. Purcell, in an obvious reference to plans to provide irrigation for some 800,000 acres of land in South Texas not presently under cultivation, said that he didn't feel irrigation needs of South Texas are of more importance than the needs of West Texas.

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce, in a presentation by George W. McCleskey, called for a delay of the adoption of the Texas water plan until a plan for "all of the State of Texas" can be adopted.

The WTCC called for studies on the availability of additional water from the Red, Arkansas, and Colorado Rivers, availability of additional water by high elevation diversion from Northeast Texas. It also called for out-of-state importation of water.

tion grazing systems now being lunch tickets given to the first 100 non-residents of Baylor and Throckmorton counties—a report on current research will be given by Dr. W. J. Waldrip, range scientist at the A&M experiment station.

Dr. R. E. Patterson, dean of the College of Agriculture at A.
& M., will report on the recently proposed brush control research program for Texas. Also on the afternoon program is a report on agricultural programs in Congress by Congressman Graham B.
Purcell.

cated 10 miles north of Throckmorton and 20 miles south of Sey-

Masons Entertained
by Eastern Star

An estimated 65 Foard County Masons, their wives and guests attended a dinner at the community center last Thursday night hosted by the local Eastern Star chapter.

W. R. Moore, past patron, gave the invocation. Mrs. Lona Pittman, worthy matron, welcomed the visitors and read a tribute entitled "I Had a Man in My Life."

During the program hour, Mr. and Mrs. Elton Carroll and son, Kenneth, showed slides of a tour they had taken earlier this past summer with a group from Central State College at Edmond, Okla. The five-week trip included Canada and Alaska. Members were able to earn college hours at the University of Alaska as well as en route. Kenneth gave an interesting commentary of the colorful pictures.

were prepared by Cecil Carroll, Mrs. Vera Thomas, Mrs. D. Estes and Robert Taylor.

Farmers Should Watch for Armyworms

With the cool, wet weather we have had, farmers should be on the alert for fall armyworm build-ups, warns County Agent Joe Burkett.

Fall armyworms attack cotton, small grains, native and some lawn grasses, and some legumes.
Cold weather is unfavorable to the production of many insect enemies of the worm and the abundant moisture provides conditions for luxuriant plant growth upon which the larvae thrive.

The main problem in control is detection, says Burkett. If detection is early when the larvae are small, control is easier and less expensive than when the larvae become more mature.

Cultural controls include a shallow cultivation of the soil after the larvae have entered it, and keeping the fields free of grass, says Burkett.

AAUW to Open Year with Dinner Sept. 19

The Vernon Branch of the American Association of University Women will open its year of fellowship and study with a dinner meeting to be held in the Forum Room of the Wilbarger Memorial auditorium at 6:30 p. m. on Sept. 19. The change from the regular meeting date of the first Thursday evening in each month was made to accommodate the schedule of the state president of the association, who will be the guest speaker at the meeting.

Mrs. John J. Oaslam of Orange is Texas president of the AAUW. Mrs. Frank Brothers of Vernon is president of the Vernon branch.

The American Association of University Women was founded in 1882 to open the doors of education to women, and to unite alumnae of different institutions for practical educational work. Through its programs, AAUW enables members to continue their intellectual growth, to further the advancement of women, and to discharge their special responsibility to society.

The AAUW program is strong, flexible, and responsive to a variety of approaches. It is closely related to the responsibilities of college-trained women in a world of change, and to their continued intellectual growth. The association's study-in-depth program now centers on topics that have developed from the "emerging issues" which members in communities throughout the nation have recognized, discussed, and referred to program planners at the national level. Those chosen for study and action are timely, they have importance to our society, they are worthy of the attention of educated women. Among these timely questions are "Education: An Antidote for Poverty," and "Revolution in Modern China."

All women who hold baccalaureate or higher degrees from colleges and universities that are on the AAUW qualified list may join the association. The qualified list includes more than 900 American colleges and universities. Participation in such an organization offers a woman opportunity to associate with others like herself, the stimulus to broaden the scope of her everyday living, and great possibilities to engage in a program which emphasizes the influence of women in the community, state, nation, and the world.

Individuals who would like to make application for membership should contact Mrs. George M. White, LI2-5122, Vernon. Persons who would like to attend the September meeting, call Mrs. White or Mrs. Frank Brothers, LI2-777, to make dinner reservations which are $1.50.

Rural Carriers to Distribute 1966 Acreage Survey Cards

Postmaster Ted Reeder announced this week that rural mail carriers will begin distributing 1966 acreage survey cards to patrons on their routes about Sept. 14.

The Post Office department assists USDA in making this survey this year. These reports, directly from farmers, are the basis for official estimates for Texas acreage of all crops harvested in 1966.

To be sure this community is well represented in the survey, Postmaster Reeder urges each patron receiving a card to fill it out and return it to his mailbox.

Rural mail carriers working on this project are B. F. Gray, Merle B. Holland and S. H. Ross.

First premium payments for the doctor bill insurance part of medicare are being received on schedule, Robert M. Ball, Commissioner of Social Security, announced this week.

"It is encouraging," he noted, "that of the 2.5 million persons who were sent premium notices, more than 9 out of 10 have already sent in their payments." Ball explained that most of the 17.3 million elderly people who have signed up for the voluntary medical insurance part of medicare are having their premium payments deducted from their monthly social security, railroad, or civil service retirement cash benefits. Timely premium payments are therefore made automatically for them. State public assistance programs are paying the premiums for an additional 610,000 older people. The remaining 2 1/2 million elderly people are billed directly by the Social Security Administration.

The response to the first premium notices has been gratifying, Ball said, but pointed out that those who have not yet sent in their premiums will lose their doctor bill insurance protection if they delay beyond September 30. Premium reminder notices that time is running out were mailed out last week notifying those who have not yet sent in their payments.

Practically everyone 65 or over is eligible for basic hospital insurance under medicare, Ball said, financed out of social security tax contributions. The doctor bill insurance is financed out of the $3 monthly premiums of those who are enrolled for this supplementary protection, and a matching $3 for each person enrolled, paid out of general federal revenues. First premium notices were mailed out in June, the Social Security Commissioner said, requesting a $9 payment for the months of July, August and September.

Premium payments are due on the first day of each month of coverage. The protection is terminated if no payment has been made for three consecutive months and the elderly person may not sign up again until the next open period, October 1 to December 31, 1967, with the protection not starting until July 1, 1968—and at a 10 per cent higher premium rate.

The Social Security Commissioner urged any older people who are having difficulty making their doctor bill insurance premium payments, or who have questions, to get in touch with their social security offices without delay.

"Arrangements can be made to pay premiums in monthly installments of $3 each, instead of $9 quarterly," Ball said. "The people in our social security offices located in communities all over the country will be glad to help them get their premium payments on record so that they will retain their protection."

The returns are not all in yet, but the outdoor-conscious folks seemingly escaped with a minimum of disaster during the best patronized summer. Mother Nature ever provided Texas. More pronounced at the moment are some intelligence items about the journalistic geniuses specializing in reporting what the common people vacationers do.

Saddest personalized story of all involved Harry Boughton, outdoor editor for the Houston Post. He successfully maneuvered a camper-trailer rig 4,000 miles through 15 states in a swing to New York and back. Yet when he returned home he found some helpful friend, designated to "look after" his home, had inadvertently turned off a master switch linked to the family deep freezer. It required three inches of two-column type to list the loss in choice wild game cuts, dressed wild fowl, fish filets and hoarded shrimp. Plus the condition of freezer and surrounding area.

Boughton noted dolefully he would open the new harvest season with an empty freezer. George Kellam described what he called his last "survival test" before shifting from outdoor editor to sports editor of the Fort Worth Star Telegram. It rained all the way and back to the Sangre de Cristo mountain in north-eastern New Mexico. The portable tent leaked over both beds. On the way back, they sought to limp near-logged muscles in Palo Duro Canyon State Park. Kellam said his teen-aged sons climbed the famed precipices "like goats" and he climbed "like an old goat."

Dan Klepper, outdoor editor of the San Antonio Express-News, had a near miss when his wife generously invited some camping acquaintances to a "fish supper" when he had yet to catch the fish.

But it remained for a Texas Parks and Wildlife Department headquarters staffer to conquer the mightiest challenge. On a camping trip to Yellowstone National Park, his modest 18-year-old daughter was routed by a mouse from her private pup tent quarters. Thereafter she condescended to link her own tent with the family shelter despite the presence of a gizzling 13-year-old cousin. A boy, of course.

Hopeful of impressing Texans of the need to help young people enjoy the out of doors, the Department reported the sordid details of last fall's casualties when 17 or under and that only one fatal wound was self-inflicted. Here is how tragedy struck then:

11-year-old shot in head with .410 shotgun at close range by a young bird hunting companion;

15-year-old shot in head with .12 gauge single barrel, with "tricky trigger" by 17-year-old companion;

14-year-old killed with shotgun held by a 12-year-old companion;

17-year-old killed when young hunting companion dropped a loaded shotgun causing it to fire;

Adult Aid Needed in Gun Usage Gun safety training for young hunters was urged by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department after noting the first wild game harvest fatality, actually occurring before the regular season opened, involved youngsters. A 16-year-old Hill Country boy was shot by another lad while rabbit hunting. He walked in front of a .22 rifle as a boy tried to dislodge a spent hull. The weapon was discharged, striking the victim in the back. The Department observed that the tragedy pointed up need for adult guidance when youngsters go afield with guns. Responsibility in such instances rests strictly with the older persons, it added.

Farm for Profit with Arcadian Products Some farmers—you may be one of them—still shy away from fertilizer because "they won't pay if you run short of water." But the fellows who use fertilizer don't see it that way. Sure they worry about their moisture, but they worry more about using enough fertilizer to get the most out of the water. This is new thinking, and it's sound. We now have a wealth of proof which shows that fertilized crops make more efficient use of what moisture there is. A fertilized plant usually tolerates drouth better because it puts out more roots and sends them deeper into the subsoil.
