RED CROSS CAMPAIGN TO START MONDAY

The drive to raise Foard County's 1971 Red Cross quota will get underway Monday, March 22, according to Mrs. Cornelia McDaniel, fund drive chairman.

Date of the drive was set at a meeting held in the court house last Friday afternoon.

Total collections during last year's drive were $1,124.62, and the quota set for the county for this year is $971.00, and workers are hoping and expecting to top the goal again this year.

In addition to the many services rendered worldwide by the Red Cross, it is imperative that the drive be successful in Foard County, so local residents can continue to benefit from the Red Cross Regional Blood Bank in Wichita Falls.

Foard Residents Invited to Visit SCS Plants Materials Center at Knox City

The beauty and utility of plants is one of the topics being stressed during National Lawn and Garden Week March 20-26.

John McAlister, district conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service here at Crowell, said the event is being sponsored by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the national officers of garden clubs.

This year's theme "Country Green for City Living" stresses the special values of rural plants which enhance outdoor beauty and improve the environment for rural and urban residents.

"Conservation farmers who plant grasses on depleted rangeland or idle cropland in the Crowell area do a lot for outdoor beauty," McAlister said. "In fact, sound soil and water conservation on the landscape is the key to a beautiful countryside. Any well managed grassland or farmland adds to the country green concept."

McAlister said Soil Conservation Service officials are using the occasion to invite the public to visit the SCS plant materials center at Knox City. Hundreds of plant selections are being evaluated at the center to try to find improved strains that will solve several conservation problems. He said the best time to see the plants is in late summer when most are in bloom or producing seed.

"Several new grass strains are now in use across the country because of our plant materials work," McAlister said. "Some of the ones being used in Texas include King Ranch bluestem, Grenville switchgrass, El Reno, Uvalde and Vaughn sideoats grama, and selection 75 Kleingrass."

The kleingrass selection was released two years ago and has proven so popular that more than a million dollars' worth of seed was planted last year.

"However, some of the most fascinating work underway at Knox City is our work with plants for wildlife," McAlister said. "Since wildlife and livestock co-exist in the same land, they use many of the same plants. We are trying to select plants valuable to livestock and wildlife which can be grown profitably for seed."

McAlister said that his office gets questions nearly every week from people wanting to know what plants to include in grass plantings that will have special value for wildlife. Unfortunately, the number of plants he can recommend for seeding is limited. It's not because there is a shortage of plants that wildlife like—the problem is buying seed for these plants.

He explained that 53 selections of forbs and shrubs thought to have value for wildlife are being evaluated at Knox City. This is in addition to more than 400 strains of grasses, many of which are also useful to wildlife, which are being grown. Several legumes are also being evaluated.

He pointed out that many forbs (broad leaved, herbaceous plants) are not only good wildlife food but are equally useful to cattle, horses, sheep and goats. If ways can be developed to grow these plants profitably for seed production, it will make it more feasible to plant them.

Selections from two such forbs—englemannidaisy and Maximilian sunflower—have shown up especially well at Knox City, McAlister said.

Englemannidaisy is especially desirable as a wildlife food because it is a cool season plant. A selection made in the Texas Hill Country has done so well that it is now being grown for seed increase at Knox City. Field plantings at several Texas locations will be made this year.

"Another plant we have admired a long time is Maximilian sunflower," the district conservationist said. "We call this forb a climax plant, meaning it was present in the natural environment when the grasslands were settled. It is so well liked by deer and livestock that it's hard to find except in well managed pastures. If given a chance, it thrives in mixtures with other choice plants and produces a lot of forage."

The plant is native to a wide section of the state, it is a warm season perennial, and it spreads from both seed and rhizomes.

McAlister named three other forbs that are showing up favorably at Knox City: bushsunflower, western indigo and halfshrub sundrop.

Legumes being evaluated include trailing wildbean, least snoutbean, and prairieclover. Work with legumes is aimed at finding selections that can be grown commercially for seed so they can be used in range seeding mixtures.

Shrubs or woody plants being grown at the center include selections of wild plum, littleleaf leadtree, pistache, sawtooth oak,

Texas kidney-wood, little flowered peachbush, russianolive, autumnolive and black walnut. If ways can be developed so commercial seed producers can grow these profitably, they have great promise for use in grass plantings, wildlife travel lanes, border plantings, beautification and other uses.

Seed or rootstock are collected from promising plants, then are grown and evaluated at Knox City, McAlister explained. Those that show the most promise for solving certain problems are grown for seed increase. They are then grown under field conditions on farms and ranches of soil and water conservation district cooperators. Selections that prove they can solve a specific problem while being superior to other strains available are then released by conservation districts to commercial seed growers. These producers then grow seed and sell it to the public.

This insecticide is described by Dr. R. L. Ridgway, leader of the USDA's cotton insect research at Texas A&M University, as the best soil-applied systemic chemical available for cotton insect control. It can be used in the furrow at planting time for control of early season pests, or as a side-dress application for mid-season insects. It is particularly effective against fleahoppers, lygus bugs, leaf perforators and boll weevils, he said.

Plant the Seed

where you expect to Reap

IT'S what you might call a commonly recognized agricultural principle that if you want to do your harvesting on a particular piece of ground, that's the place to sow your seed.

Using the same general type of reasoning, it is obvious that if you want to harvest a nice crop of prosperity . . . in the form of better business, a better job, a better community in which to live . . . it's advisable to plant your trade dollars where they will produce growth for you, rather than for somebody else.

The homes we live in . . . the jobs and businesses which support us . . . the schools and churches that teach our children and enrich our lives . . . the convenient stores and service establishments that supply our everyday and emergency needs . . . none of these were built, nor are they supported by the dollars that are spent in some other community or city.

Jerry Logan of Baltimore Colts Is Speaker
CHS ALL-SPORTS BANQUET HELD HERE LAST FRIDAY NIGHT

A capacity crowd was on hand at the school cafeteria last Friday night to pay tribute to the athletes of Crowell High School at the annual All-Sports banquet sponsored by the Crowell Lions Club.

In addition to honoring the athletes, the group heard Jerry Logan, defensive back for the world champion Baltimore Colts, who was the principal speaker for the banquet. Mr. Logan, a graduate of West Texas State University in Canyon, was drafted fourth by the Colts in 1963. Mr. Logan was an impressive speaker and told the group something of the life of a professional football player in pre-season camp and during the regular season. He briefly told of the ups and downs of the Colts during the time he has been a member of the team which culminated in January of this year when the Colts defeated the Dallas Cowboys in the Super Bowl to become the champions of professional football.

In addition to telling something of the professional football player's life, he pointed out the need for love in the world today. He said that love was certainly a big part in the success of the Colts. He pointed out that the team had no great individual stars but worked as a unit with love being a factor in the well-knit unit all the way from the front office to team members. He said that there had been no racial conflict on the team since he had been a Colt. During the season, the players are taught three loves which he thinks are the basis for the success of the Colts: love of family, religion and the Colts.

Mr. Logan, a resident of Graham, was accompanied to Crowell by his wife, who was a college roommate of Mrs. Butch Tabor of Goodlett, the former Miss Roxie Adkins of Crowell.

John McAlister, president of the Lions Club, served as master of ceremonies and the invocation

Paul the Pattern

No conversion in sacred history is given so much attention as that of St. Paul. Besides the many references to it, we find three detailed accounts of it in the book of Acts. As Saul of Tarsus, the learned Pharisee, he had led his nation and the world in rebellion against God and the Lord Jesus Christ.

St. Luke says: "As for Saul, he made havoc of the church" (Acts 8:3). The believers at Damascus feared Saul's presence among them, saying: "Is not this he that destroyed them which called on this name at Jerusalem?" (Acts 9:21). Paul himself later testified: "Many of the saints did I shut up in prison . . . and when they were put to death I gave my voice (vote) against them" (Acts 26:10). ". . . beyond measure I persecuted the church of God and wasted it (laid it waste)" (Gal. 1:13).

There must have been an important reason why God saved this rebel leader. Clearly it was that He might make Paul, not only the herald, but the living example of "the exceeding riches of His grace" to sinners. Paul himself said:

"And I thank Christ Jesus our Lord . . . for . . . putting me into the ministry; who was before a blasphemer, and a persecutor, and injurious; but I obtained mercy, because I did it ignorantly and in unbelief. And the grace of our Lord was exceeding abundant . . . This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am chief. Howbeit for this cause I obtained mercy, that in me first Jesus Christ might show forth all longsuffering, for a pattern to those who should hereafter believe on Him to life everlasting" (1 Tim. 1:12,16).

Bruce McRae of Arlington visited over the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Foy McRae, the Marion Gentry family; also the Danny McRae family at Lockett.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Stephens of Quanah and Sgt. Albert Miller of Altus AFB visited Mrs. Stephens' brother, Earl Love, in the Crowell hospital Saturday afternoon. Sgt. Miller was a roommate of Sgt. Mark H. Harris while Sgt. Harris was stationed at Altus AFB before going to Alaska.

Local Woman Receives State Recognition on Teaching Tactics

The Brownfield School System has received notification that information and procedures used by Miss Marilyn Hays in her class for Exceptional Teenagers has been accepted to be utilized on a state-wide basis.

Miss Hays is a native of Crowell. She is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Hays. Miss Hays holds a B. S. degree from McMurry and a master of education from Hardin-Simmons. Last fall, she and her twin, Marian, received their professional life certificates in mental retardation through Angelo State University. They have also done post-graduate work at Midwestern.

Both of the Misses Hays hold life administrative certificates in all areas and are life members of the Texas State Teachers' Association.

Ken Abrams, assistant director of administrative services, Region KIX Education Service Center in El Paso, made the commendatory announcement about Miss Hays.

The VIEW Program is a pilot project involving vital information for education and work for handicapped individuals. Occupational information written at one's reading level is presented to the handicapped student. In the VIEW program designed by Miss Hays for educable mentally retarded students in her vocational adjustment and academics class in Brownfield High School, vocational training, interests, experience and wages are the chief categories being expanded this year.

Additional ideas that fitted into the program were taken from her idea book, Academic Techniques for Teaching Students with Language Disorders, the detailed daily schedule and a curriculum guide containing long-range planning and definite goals or objectives for teaching special education. These outstanding contributions to the State Development Center for Career Information in El Paso have been gratefully accepted. STATE Capital NEWS

Austin, Tex. — A blue-ribbon committee has been formed to lead the fight against income taxation.

Midland attorney Tom Sealy resigned from the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System to devote full time to directing the work of the statewide group.

Texas Association of Taxpayers started with an advisory committee of 300 prominent citizens. Sealy announced that a membership drive is getting under way.

"Our purpose is not obstruction, but rather an honest and open effort to help the Legislature develop a reasonable tax program and undertake whatever economies are possible in order to resolve this situation in the regular session," Sealy said.

"We are united on one broad principle—that this should be done within the present tax structure and without enactment of either a personal income tax or a corporate income tax."

Needed to Keep It

The farmer was digging ditches when his shovel handle broke, so he drove to a nearby general store to get a replacement. The owner listened to his needs and then spent twenty minutes rummaging through his storeroom. At last he found a handle that matched the broken one.

"How much," asked the man.

"It's $2.98 but I can't sell it," replied the storekeeper.

"Why not?"

"Well, this is the only one I have in stock and I have to keep it in case someone needs one."
