First 1973 Wheat Delivered to Local Elevator Monday

The first load of 1973 wheat for Foard County was brought to the Farmers Co-Op. Elevator in Crowell Monday morning by Thomas L. Tاملen. The wheat had been damaged by hail, then swathed and combined. It was grown on the farm owned by Mrs. Mildred Speer, and located south of Crowell.

This first load contained 500 bushels, weighed 58 pounds per bushel and had a 12.42 moisture content.

Tاملen received a $25 premium from the elevator for this first load.

Foard County is on the verge of starting the harvest of the 1973 grain crop, as the first load of new wheat was brought in on Monday morning. Except for areas which have been hit by hail, prospects are good for the County to harvest an unusually large crop of wheat this year. If the price holds like it has been for the last few weeks, the county's farmers will probably be getting a better price than received in many years. The first load in the Wichita Falls area last week brought $2.60 per bushel, the Record-News reported.

Tom Ellis, local Santa Fe agent, said last week that although the railroad is not stockpiling freight grain cars here as in past years, he anticipates that the railroad will be moving cars in as soon as harvest begins and they will be able to handle the crop.

The fuel shortage is looming as a threat to harvest and farming operations in Foard County, as well as elsewhere in this section.

At least two local wholesalers of fuel said Monday their allocation had been cut 10 per cent since February, and it is a day-to-day guess as to whether or not sufficient fuel will be available.

One independent dealer here was closed for several days due to his inability to secure supplies.

One wholesaler said he had been receiving the same amount of fuel as he received last year, and he expressed the opinion that his company possibly could supply him with extra fuel during the harvest season.

Both local butane dealers reported an adequate supply of that fuel.

Most of the dealers expressed the opinion that they will be able to take care of their regular customers, but will probably have to turn down any new business.

Vacant lots around Crowell are covered with combines and trucks which have moved in during the past few days, and all trailer parking facilities are rapidly filling up as out-of-town and out-of-state combine crews prepare to harvest wheat in Foard County.

Three Days of High Winds Damage Crops

High northwesterly winds blowing in gusts up to 50 and 60 miles an hour for three days, did extensive damage in Foard County.

Some farmers who had cotton already up saw the wind violently cut it down as the sand piled up, blocking at least one road in the Margaret area.

The wind blew almost constantly Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Sunday afternoon the skies got very dark as dust filled the air.

After all the wind—and in spite of heavy winter and early spring rains—most fields will need some moisture before cotton and feed grains can be planted.

First Barley Is Cut Saturday

The Farmers Co-Op. Elevator in Crowell Saturday received the first load of 1973 barley when Roland Taylor, who farms west of Thalia brought in a load.

The load contained 485 bushels and weighed 39 pounds to the bushel. Ordinarily, barley weighs 48 pounds per bushel.

Hail Last Thursday Damages Wheat South of Town

Some damage to fields of wheat by hail was reported following a buildup of thunderstorms Thursday afternoon of last week.

Hubert Brown said he was in his car on highway 283 south of Crowell about where John Odell lives when the hail struck, and the pea-sized ice nearly covered the ground there. He said the hail extended south to the Foard City farm to market road and went a few miles to the east.

Early last Tuesday, May 22, a shower measuring .19 inch fell, and later in the day, .33 inch was reported. This brought the May total up to 1.60 inches for the month.

Jeff Bell Named Conservation Farmer of Year

Jeff Bell, who farms in the southeast part of the county in a section known as the Four Corners area, has been named conservation farmer of the year by the Foard County Soil & Water Conservation District. The presentation of a plaque to Mr. Bell was made at a recent meeting of the Lions Club by John McAlister, of the Foard County SCS work unit.

In presenting this year's conservation farmer of the year award to Mr. Bell, John McAlister, head of the local work unit of the Soil Conservation Service, paid tribute to the American farmer whose efficiency per man hour of work has increased greatly and fewer farmers are now feeding more people. Soil conservation is helping preserve the nation's soil but still, Mrs. McAlister said, over four billion tons of silt are deposited each year into the nation's streams and rivers. He added that one million acre feet of water storage facilities in the nation are filled with silt each year.

McAlister predicted that land use laws are coming, and when that happens, erosion will be illegal and the landowner will be held responsible.

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

Austin, Tex.—The 63rd Legislature wound down at midnight Monday (May 28) with opinions sharply divided as to how much or how little it accomplished. While new reform rules slowed down consideration of bills, much major legislation was passed, some of which had failed previously. Both houses completed work on a record $9.7 billion, tax-free budget four days before adjournment then with money left over, began to fashion an emergency aid bill for "poor" school districts.

The big job of revising school finance formulas, as anticipated, was left for a future session following additional studies and careful weighing of property values. Legislative redistricting was another job left for the future—possibly under court direction. Lawmakers did manage to agree on a competitive auto insurance rate bill—something they couldn't do in a special session devoted to that purpose alone last September-October. They also came to terms on far-reaching revision of the penal code—first in 117 years—although the House bogged down on a court reform constitutional amendment.

House Speaker Price Daniel, Jr. managed to get some of his reform measures, including open meetings law strengthening and better access to public records, finally passed. Agreement on a tough code of ethics was difficult.

While they were at it, legislators asked again for a pay raise—to $15,000 a year—and a constitutional amendment permitting them to meet in annual sessions to better handle an ever-increasing workload.

Whether or not they are called into special session this year, they will be back next January—to have a try at revising the state constitution.

Two Minutes with the Bible

God is Central

Paul's Epistle to the Romans is the foundation book of Christian theology. It brings us face to face with facts we ought to know and must know to be saved.

In the 18th and 17th verses of the first chapter, the apostle declares that he is proud of the gospel because therein the "righteousness," or rightness of God is revealed.

God had to deal righteously with sin before He could offer salvation to sinners. Sin is not merely an affliction; it is a moral wrong and kindles the wrath of a just and holy God.

The wrath of God is too little discussed by modern evangelists and preachers. They like to talk about the love and mercy of God, as though He were a Grand Old Man with a tolerant attitude toward sin. But they never fully appreciate His love and mercy because they do not understand His infinite wrath against sin.

Much evangelism today has become a sort of a "try God" gimmick. The pleasures of the world don't satisfy? Try God. You can't shake off some terrible bondage? Try God. When all else fails, Try God!

But this humanistic approach is foreign to Scripture. God, His holiness, His wrath against sin and His love in providing salvation—these are central in Scripture, not man and his condition and his needs.

We are not to look upon God as our servant, who will help us in time of need, but as the Holy One whose justice we have offended but who, in infinite grace, paid for our sins Himself so that we might be redeemed. This is why the Epistle to the Romans begins its mighty argument with almost three chapters on the subject of sin. Then follows the Good News of God's grace in settling the sin question so that we might be "justified freely by His grace, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus" (Rom. 3:24).

And thus the same inspired writer declares in Eph. 2:2-4 that we were "the children of disobedience" and therefore "the children of wrath," but then goes on to show how "God, who is rich in mercy" and "great" in "love," saves believers by grace, giving them eternal life in Christ, who died for our sins.

FOARD COUNTY SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT'S

Conservation Farmer of the Year

Jeff Bell is this year's Outstanding Conservation Farmer of the Year in the Foard County Soil and Water Conservation District. This award is presented each year to the individual who has done the best job of conserving his soil and water resources. On April 3, 1973, Jeff was presented a plaque by the Crowell Lions Club in recognition of his soil and water conservation work.

Jeff owns and operates a 1,264-acre farm southeast of Crowell. He is rightfully proud of his efforts to conserve his soil and water resources. Jeff's operation consists of farming small grain, cotton and raising cattle.

SCS District Conservationist John McAlister says, "Jeff has done an excellent job of using his soil, water and plant resources wisely. He makes his farming and livestock operations work smoothly together. All of his conservation work is being well maintained. It is evident that Jeff is aware of his responsibilities as a steward of the land. He does his best to fulfill these responsibilities."

Jeff has a Great Plains Conservation Program contract on his farm. He gives the Great Plains program credit for helping him carry out a sound soil and water conservation plan on his farm. Jeff is generous in his praise of the Soil Conservation Service for providing valuable technical help to him in his effort to be a good steward of the land.

Jeff, his wife Jean, and their four children, Darla, Phillip, David and Jill, are all active members of the First Baptist Church in Crowell. The children have all been active in school functions. Jeff is presently serving on the school board for the Crowell school system.

A total of 11 acres of grassed waterways were established to provide suitable outlets for parallel terraces. Over 72,000 feet of parallel terraces have been constructed. Other conservation practices applied include 488 acres of brush control and 87 acres of range seeding.

The board of directors of the Foard County Soil and Water Conservation District is proud to name Jeff Bell our Outstanding Conservation Farmer for 1973.

Jeff Bell and SCS Technician Woodrow Fielder are shown examining an excellent field of fertilized wheat.

Managing crop residue helps Jeff to conserve available moisture for crop production.

Even though this area has had brush control, scattered trees were left for cattle to use as shade and clumps of brush were left undisturbed to serve as cover for wildlife.

Why the good neighbor made instant grandchildren.

In our time, in our world, the old get hidden away and forgotten much too often. In a Connecticut city, The American Red Cross—America's Good Neighbor—did something about it. There, Red Cross Youth each "adopted a grandparent." Strictly one to one. The purpose: regular visits—to make life just a little more worth living for older folks. A small matter, you may think—especially if there just don't happen to be any older people in your neighborhood, or your life. But it represents just what Red Cross is all about. Because The American Red Cross is a home town affair. That's why you find us doing different things in different home towns. We're what you need us to be. Whoever you are. Wherever you are. And isn't that what a Good Neighbor is all about? Be a good neighbor. Help The Good Neighbor.

The mission's troubles compounded. Although the Indians seemed enthusiastic about the mission, they had the un-Christian habit of stealing anything in the mission which wasn't nailed down.

Other problem arose from the three soldiers left behind to assist the padres.

De Leon had wanted to leave 50, but Massanet felt sure the Indians would offer them no trouble, so he convinced De Leon to leave only the three. As it turned out, three were too many since these soldiers became offensive in their relations with the natives. They served as a bad example for the Indians and undid the work which the missionaries had accomplished.

This along with the crop failure and disease which the Indians blamed on the friars made giving up the mission inevitable. The

Mission Tejas Marks Failure

CROCKETT — The friars at the newly established Mission San Francisco de los Tejas thought the baptismal water was all right.

But the Indians had their doubts about the holy water. Many of their brothers and cattle had died of the plague, and the water the friars insisted on sprinkling on everything was suspected as the cause.

So, with the formerly friendly Indians becoming more hostile, the three friars at the mission took it upon themselves to clear out while they could.

They buried the mission bells and cannon and fled south of the Rio Grande.

Thus ended one of the first efforts of the Spanish to strengthen their hold on the area which is now Texas. It took only three years for the mission to fail, and the "bad" baptismal water was just one of the reasons for its failure.

The Spanish sought to establish missions in Texas because they believed this was the way to keep the French out. Rumors of the French aggressiveness in this area filtered down to Mexico City, and the viceroy figured some action was in order.

The groundwork for this strategy was actually laid down by General Francisco Vasques de Coronado during his famous quests for the cities of gold in the 1500s. He did not find these rich cities, but he did report back on the number of heathen souls ripe for salvation as Christians.

Figuring they could form an alliance with the Indians by saving their souls, the Spanish decided to establish missions.

The first expeditions toward this end came in 1689 when Damian Massanet, one of the padres residing at the Mission Caldera, heard rumors of strange white men with the Indians. Upon investigation, Captain De Leon, commander of the Presidio of Monclova, found an intruder named Jean Henrique, an old Frenchman and probably an early deserter from the expedition of Frenchman Sieur de la Salle.

The viceroy sent De Leon and Massanet to ferret out the rest of the Frenchmen, and in their travels the expedition came in contact with the Tejas Indians of East Texas.

Padre Massanet struck up a friendship with the Indian chief, and eventually the Indian agreed to accept the services of the missionaries. The next year, in 1690, the Mission Tejas was established with Padres Miguel Fontcuberta, Francisco de Jesus Maria and Antonio Bardey in charge.

To encourage the enterprise and guarantee its success the viceroy sent 20 mules laden with wine, wax and other necessities for saying Mass as well as clothing, tobacco and the like for distribution among the natives.

As it turned out, these 20 mules were the few supplies they would see from Mexico in the three years. Provisioning a mission so far from home base turned out to be more of an expense than the viceroy wanted to be saddled with. And just after the mission was established, the viceroy became convinced that Spain had little to fear from the French, so his interest in the missions waned.

The mission's troubles compounded. Although the Indians seemed enthusiastic about the mission, they had the un-Christian habit of stealing anything in the mission which wasn't nailed down.

Other problem arose from the three soldiers left behind to assist the padres.

De Leon had wanted to leave 50, but Massanet felt sure the Indians would offer them no trouble, so he convinced De Leon to leave only the three. As it turned out, three were too many since these soldiers became offensive in their relations with the natives. They served as a bad example for the Indians and undid the work which the missionaries had accomplished.

This along with the crop failure and disease which the Indians blamed on the friars made giving up the mission inevitable. The

"I see where every time somebody gets held up or murdered with a pistol, we hear loud screams for legislation to outlaw firearms. After which, of course, we would need laws to outlaw autos, germs, rich food, etc., which kill more people than guns. But all of this would be futile. We already have laws which outlaw killing, but nobody wishing to kill pays much attention to them because the only sensible penalty for violation of same has been outlawed." — Macon, Miss., Beacon.

Texas Number One But Barely... Wheat Harvest Begins... Milk Production Up and Down... A Fourth More Citrus.

Texas continues to be the number one cattle feeding state in the nation, but Iowa is rapidly closing the gap. As of May 1, there were 2,163,000 head of cattle and calves on feed in Texas. Iowa had 2,003,000 head of cattle and calves on feed.

Nationwide, there were 9,391,000 head on feed in the seven major cattle feeding states. This is a decrease of three per cent from a month ago, but still six per cent above those of a year ago.

The number on feed in Texas is 17 per cent above a year ago, but four per cent below the number on feed a month ago.

Marketings of fat cattle during April totaled 353,000 head which is one per cent below marketings for March.

WHEAT harvest is now underway in Texas with a projected yield of 26 bushels per acre, a record high. Economists are predicting that wheat prices should remain at profitable levels.

The Texas' 1973 wheat production is estimated by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service at 83,000,000 bushels. This would be almost double the production of last year.

Planted acres, estimated at 4,400,000, compared with 4,050,000 a year ago. Acres for harvest as grain are estimated at 3,200,000-60 per cent more than the 2,000,000 acres harvested last year.

Meanwhile, oats have also been making excellent progress. Grain crop prospects are excellent and harvest is underway in southern areas.

Texas farmers are catching up rapidly with planting plans. Cotton still lags behind schedule but with dry weather producers can and will speed up in their plantings of the crop.

Range conditions are described as good to excellent throughout the state with only a few exceptions. As of May 1, range and non-irrigated pasture conditions averaged 88 per cent; this is five percentage points above April 1 and 26 points better than a year ago.

PRODUCTION of milk in Texas shows only a one per cent variation. Production during April totaled 307,000,000 pounds. This is one per cent above April of 1972 but one per cent below the previous month's production.

Milk production per cow averaged 855 pounds, which is 55 pounds under the nationwide average. Nationwide, milk production is estimated to be 1.4 per cent less than April a year ago. Production during the first four months of this year is almost two per cent less than last year.

Problems plaguing producers are noted in a special report citing that even though milk prices are 53 cents more than last year the ration value increased 83 cents.

A FOURTH more citrus production for Texas is now indicated. As of May 1, the Texas citrus crop is forecast at 18,900,000 boxes, which is 26 per cent above last year.

Grapefruit production is now expected to total 11,500,000 boxes, up 25 per cent from last year.

Most citrus trees had a good bloom for the 1973-74 crop with some fruit already starting to size. Irrigation water is ample and should provide adequate supplies during May.

Illegal Catfishers Netted in Raid
Exceeding the bag limit on catfish cost three men $7,000 in fines May 18 at Mathis near Lake Corpus Christi.
The three were arrested at 2:15 a. m. Friday with 1,580 channel and flathead (yellow) catfish from three ounces to 27 pounds in their boat on the lake.
Pleas of guilty on charges of exceeding the catfish limit of 25 per person were entered by the three in JP court.
The arrests came after a week of surveillance by game wardens of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. During that time, according to P&WD, the men were observed removing a reported 2,700 pounds of fish from Lake Corpus Christi and had more than 1,000 pounds of catfish at the time of arrest by a team of 20 wardens.
Fourteen nylon fish traps each capable of containing 1,000 pounds of fish were confiscated. Wardens continued dragging for traps and expected to retrieve a total of some 20 observed during the surveillance period.

Now Is the Time to Spray Pecan Trees, County Agent Says

Time to spray for the pecan nut casebearer in Foard County is rapidly approaching, according to Joe Burkett, county agent, who added that insecticides should be applied during the period of May 31-June 4. Insecticides that might be used for casebearer control are Guthion, Zolone, Sevin, Malathion and Toxaphene. Follow instructions on the label for mixing and applying these insecticides. For best results apply insecticides to the point of run-off.

A second insecticidal application 7 to 10 days after the first will give maximum protection from the pecan nut casebearer.

AT L. D. BARBECUE—Pictured above is a small group of the more than 150 young people and adults who attended the Little Dribbler barbecue at the community center Thursday afternoon of last week.

The Facts Are Missing . . .

The hazards of cigarette smoking are well-documented. But how about the hazards of other kinds of smoking?

The latest government survey concluded that about 30 per cent of university students in this country are marijuana smokers. Other surveys have found higher percentages and also indicated increasing rates among high school students and even preteens.

Because marijuana is illegal, research has been severely restricted. Few studies have explored the effects on the lungs and body. But some experiments have suggested a direct correlation between smoking hashish, which is a stronger substance than marijuana, and chronic bronchitis.

A recent study of 31 American soldiers found that most of the men developed symptoms of lung trouble after smoking hashish regularly for three to four months. Nine men developed severe shortness of breath and coughed up mucus, which indicated distress in the lower respiratory tract. Another 12 men had recurring infections in the upper respiratory tract.

According to Dr. Albert Haas at the New York University Medical Center, these findings may have important implications for the long-term effects of marijuana smoking. In his own pilot studies with people smoking pot, Dr. Haas found that some subjects developed similar symptoms as hashish smokers: sore throats, hoarseness, and trouble in the upper respira-

Which 50 Million Will We Starve?

"Earl Butz, the U. S. Secretary of Agriculture in talking about the ban on pesticides, antibiotics and other chemicals in farming said, 'Now we can go back to organic agriculture if we must, and there are those in this country who would like to drive us back. But, before we do that, somebody must decide which 50 million Americans we'll starve.'"—Lambertville, N. J., Beacon.

Drug Problem

"Did you notice a story in a recent issue of the daily newspapers? It was the young man, I forget exactly where, that a few months ago had asked a judge to put him in jail so he could kick the drug habit. Now he's on record as asking the same judge to let him out of jail because drugs are easier to get and more plentiful inside the lockup than out. So what's the answer? I for one sure don't know, but I do believe as long as there's a lot of money being made in drugs the traffic will never be stopped. If somehow the profits can be taken from drugs, the problem will just go away in a short time."—Chaska, Minn., Herald.

Thank You . . .

"We didn't receive a thank you ad like this after the election but it is a sample of one that could cause a little comment, and it gave us a chuckle. It's about the candidate who takes out an ad in the paper to thank his supporters after an election. 'I want to thank the 300 voters of this precinct who endorsed me for office. A special thanks to the 600 friends who promised to vote for me. Thanks also the 400 who have assured me that they did vote for me. And finally, a real vote of thanks to the 92 who actually did cast a ballot for me in the election.'"—Webster, S. D., Reporter and Farmer.

File folders—3x5, 4x6, 5x8, 6x9, letter and legal sizes.—News office.

It will take years to amass the facts about smoking marijuana. But the facts about cigarette smoking are available right now. Get them from the North Texas Lung Association.
