Jimmy Henry, young Crowell businessman, was elected as the new president of the Foard County Development Corporation at a meeting of the organization last Thursday night at the community center. He replaces Guy Todd, Jr., who served as president during the organization's first year of existence.

The other officers are Henry Black, vice president; Mrs. Wilma Cates, secretary; and Jon Lee Black, treasurer.

At the Monday night meeting, Mr. Todd said that approval has been received from the State Department of Health for the construction of a rest home in Crowell, and he expressed hope that within a relatively short time, this county will have a much-needed rest home.

Todd quoted John Truelove, president of the John T. Athletic, Inc. cap factory in Crowell, as saying, "We are completely satisfied with the progress our Crowell facility is making." Todd added that a total of 30 persons are presently employed at the factory.

The need for more new members for the FCDC was stressed, and a membership drive is scheduled in the near future. When the rest home becomes a reality, it will be necessary for local citizens to donate to buy land for the home, paving, moving light poles, sewer work, and other items which it will be necessary to provide and all of which will cost money.

The county has made more forward progress in the last year than in many, many years, and the continued cooperation of all residents will be essential if progress is to be continued.

 Classification
 Talk July 18

Bill Klepper, publisher of The Foard County News and newly-installed president of the Rotary Club of Crowell, made a classification talk at the Wednesday, July 18, meeting of the club. He told of the change in the printing method for the local newspaper, which after having been printed by the letterpress method since its beginning back in 1891, is now being printed by the offset method. He cited several reasons for the change, and expressed the hope that the new method will give News readers a more interesting paper.

It was announced at the meeting that the district governor will be making his official visit to the local club on Wednesday, August 1.

Sooner State Strategy—

Strip-Tease Tactics Being Used On Bugs

In Oklahoma, they're dusting off an old conservation practice and putting it to work in cotton fields to obtain better yields at lower risk to the environment.

The practice being revived is strip-cropping, reports the National Cotton Council, but in the Sooner State it's being given a new twist.

In four years of tests, Oklahoma State University researchers have found that planting strips of sorghum with cotton increases the population of beneficial insects and reduces the need for spraying.

What happens is that harmful insects build up in the sorghum and beneficial predators move in to eat them. Later, the predators follow the remaining insects into the cotton.

Scientists believe strip-cropping can eliminate at least two or more sprayings a season. While they view the practice as a major advance in cotton pest management, they point out that it is not effective in controlling the boll weevil.

Experiments are under way to breed cotton plants with some resistance to the weevil, but researchers say many problems are yet to be resolved in this time-consuming approach.

'Instants'
 Add Up
 On Food Bill

If you can spare some instants, you'll save on your weekly food bill.

Sprinkling sugar over your breakfast cereal instead of letting the manufacturer do it for you saves about one cent per serving.

And cooking your own oatmeal instead of using the instant individually packed variety saves about five cents per serving.

These savings were recently brought out in a comparative cost study of convenience foods by Carolyn A. Raab, University of Wyoming Extension nutritionist.

While partially or fully-prepared food items do save time, they cost more than many consumers realize.

As a matter of fact, the U. S. Department of Agriculture says the cost of this built-in service in convenience foods has gone up more than the food ingredients themselves.

Frozen French fries, for example, cost twice as much per serving as those you make from fresh potatoes. So do frozen hash browns.

Slicing your own cheese is another way to save on food costs. Ready-sliced cheddar costs 17 cents a pound more than unsliced.

Instant pudding—the kind that needs no cooking—is a cent higher per serving than regular pudding. And ready-to-eat pudding that comes in cans costs twice as much as instant.

Pick-Your-Own
 Produce Proves Profitable To All

If you're all thumbs when it comes to do-it-yourself home repair jobs, you might try your hand at picking your own fruits and vegetables.

Pick-your-own operations are growing in popularity with farmers and homemakers all across the country. And with good reason—everyone saves money.

The farmer saves on labor costs, and the homemaker reaps the benefit of paying a lower price directly to the grower for fruits and vegetables.

This type of operation is proving successful even in areas some distance away from urban centers. City dwellers have been known to drive as far as 50 miles to pick their own produce. They find the day in the country is enjoyable as well as profitable.

Weevils' Travel Habits Clocked

Fall is apparently the favorite time of the year for travel by boll weevils.

While this information may not be of much help to travel agencies, the National Cotton Council says it is an important clue to scientists who are working to perfect better control methods for the cotton pests.

The distance covered by the weevils in their fall galling also interests scientists.

By clocking the mileage, they can determine the size of an area that should be included in large control experiments.

Results to date show that control areas should be extensive. More than 100 weevils were caught, marked and released in the study. Some were released two miles away after months, while others were miles in two weeks.

The record traveler ever was one jet-age weevil that turned up 25 miles after only four days.

World Protein In Short Supply

More than half of the world's adult population and about two-thirds of its children consume diets inadequate in protein. By 1975, the projected world protein deficit will be equivalent to 2,157,000 metric tons of 70 per cent protein concentrate, according to current estimates.

Farm Efficiency Climbs

An hour of farm labor today produces seven times as much food and other products as it did 50 years ago. That enables the average farmer to produce enough food for himself and 51 others. A top farmer can produce enough for 200 others.

Everglades Set Stage For Battle

Florida's Everglades may not seem to be a likely spot for waging war on a destructive cotton pest.

But they recently served as a testing ground for science's latest attack on the pesky pink bollworm. While this pest is cotton's No. 1 enemy in western states, so far it has appeared east of the Mississippi only in the wild cotton plants that grow in the Everglades.

In an effort to eliminate the pest and keep it from invading southeastern cotton fields, workers of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Department of the Interior air-dropped millions of sterile pink bollworms on the wild cotton.

Now officials are hoping that Florida bollworms will breed themselves out of existence, reports the National Cotton Council.

Previous to the air-drop, bollworm control in the Everglades consisted of hand removal and destruction of the wild cotton plants.

A similar program is being carried out as part of a continuing research test in California's San Joaquin Valley. Once perfected, the sterile insect technique of suppression and control could provide an effective alternative to chemicals for combating the pink bollworm as well as other destructive plant pests.

History Moves Full Circle

The pages of American history are filled with names of statesmen, inventors, scientists, and industrialists who played important roles in this country's rapid rise from a small, insignificant European colony to a world economic power.

But the men who made it possible will remain nameless for all time. They're the American farmers, and you won't find their names in any history books.

Few people realize that the American success story stemmed from the productivity of its farms. Exports of agricultural products like cotton and tobacco from the southern colonies—and later from the young republic—were important in earning the currency that was used to buy machinery and all kinds of industrial equipment from Europe. Without them, America could not have become the world's most advanced technical economy in so short a time.

History has a way of moving full circle, and now we are beginning to see a dawning realization that agriculture—once again—holds the key to bringing the American economy back into international prominence.

The vast amount of petroleum imports which will be needed to meet this nation's soaring energy demands will add to the already large deficit in our balance of payments. But there are strong indications that the oil trade deficit can be largely offset if we continue to increase our agricultural exports.

In recent years, agricultural exports have been rising steadily—going from $5.7 billion in fiscal 1969 to $8.1 billion in 1972. By the end of this fiscal year, they are expected to top $11 billion. If this estimate is correct, then the cash trade surplus from our agricultural exports will amount to almost $3½ billion.

Behind all of these figures is a remarkable record of increased farming efficiency—a record unmatched anywhere else in the world or at any other time in history.

In the last 20 years, output per man hour on American farms has more than tripled. Where one farmer in 1952 produced enough food and fiber to supply the needs of 16 persons, today he is producing enough for 51.

As world population grows and becomes more affluent, demand for U.S. agricultural products—particularly wheat, feed grains, soybeans, and cotton—will continue to increase. Given the proper incentives and price protection they need and deserve, American farmers will produce the crops to meet these demands. At the same time, they will be making a major contribution to the economic well-being of all Americans.

President Sets Safety Week

WASHINGTON, D.C.—President Richard M. Nixon has declared the week beginning July 25 as National Farm Safety Week.

In his proclamation setting the observance, the President said: "The dollar cost of rural accidents is high, but there is no higher price than the human suffering. This waste of precious human and economic resources must be reduced and can be reduced. The same energies and talents which have made agriculture so highly productive should also be turned to the task of making it safer."

"The unending supply of food and fiber provided by the Nation's largest industry, agriculture, has been the foundation of American prosperity since our country's beginnings," President Nixon observed. "The abundance on the farm, in turn, has been stimulated by constant technological progress. But the blessings of technology have sometimes been mixed, as each advance has also brought a new potential for injury."

The President, in proclaiming National Farm Safety Week, urged all persons engaged in farming and ranching to consider ways in which they can promote safer practices in work, home and recreational activities, and can exercise greater caution when traveling on public roads.

Kids Help Animals Thru 4-H Vet Science

"Kids love animals and they want to make sure that their animals stay normal and healthy," says T. W. Thompson, assistant director, National 4-H Service Committee. And he makes his point by noting that thousands of young people involved in the national 4-H veterinary science program do just that.

With the supervision of the Cooperative Extension Service and the assistance of The Upjohn Company, youths in the program learn to identify normal characteristics of healthy animals. The 4-H'ers are encouraged to observe habits, attitudes and behavior of their pets and other animals and to note changes from normalcy.

The budding young scientists may accompany local veterinarians on their rounds, and, observe how he treats afflicted animals. The 4-H'ers also may assist with rabies clinics and other community service projects allied with the 4-H veterinary science program.

Experience gained in the program increases some 4-H'ers interest in careers as veterinarians and other related veterinary science fields.

Assisting these young people, with incentive and recognition for their work in the 4-H veterinary science program, is The Upjohn Company. The company provides up to four medals of honor to 4-H'ers in each county. A $50 U.S. Savings Bond is awarded to one winner in each state and sixteen of these honorees are named national winners. Chosen by the Cooperative Extension Service they receive expense-paid trips to National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Nov. 25-29, courtesy of Upjohn.

During the National 4-H event, six national winners of $700 scholarships are announced.

Tagging along as her local veterinarian made his rounds gave a 1972 national winner in the 4-H veterinary science program, a first hand view into veterinary science. Cindy Reich, of Boulder, Colo., traveled with her local vet for over five years, helping him worm horses, take X-rays, administer inoculations and conduct animal pregnancy tests. Currently working on an advanced manual for future 4-H'ers in the program, the $700 scholarship winner plans a career in veterinary science.

For more opportunities offered in the 4-H veterinary science program, contact the county extension office.

A 'NUCLEAR' PROSPECTOR HITS NICKEL

Modern day prospectors may someday rely on a radio-isotope to help them in their search for metals below the earth's crust, on the ocean floor, or perhaps, on the surface of other planets.
At the U. S. Geological Survey's laboratories in Washington, D. C., scientists are testing a method of detecting nickel with a technique called prompt neutron activation analysis. These experiments make use of a tiny but intense source of atomic particles called neutrons emitted by a man-made element—californium-252.
The process works this way: a cylinder containing a tiny amount of californium-252, stored in a paraffin-filled barrel, is centered over a test borehole. The californium source is then lowered through the bottom of the barrel into the borehole.

Under bombardment by neutrons from the californium, any atom of nickel existing in the soil around the hole, which is struck by a neutron, gives off a characteristic radiation signal which scientists can identify with their extremely sensitive radiation detectors. Although risk of exposure to harmful radiation is unlikely, the barrel-like shield, filled with paraffin protects the workers.
Survey scientists report that their neutron capture gamma ray method may work with as many as 30 metals, including copper, titanium, aluminum, mercury, and cobalt. The califormium, employed in the work, is produced at the U. S.
Atomic Energy Commission's Savannah River plant in South Carolina.

Egg-Size Tomatoes In Offing

Egg-size tomatoes that provide as many slices as larger varieties — but cost less — may crop up in supermarket egg cartons in the next few years.

A new elongated version of dwarf tomatoes is currently under development at a Gainesville, Fla., agricultural research station.

Because of their compact size, more than six times as many of the new plants can be put on an acre than conventional varieties. This means higher per-acre yields and the possibility of once-over mechanical harvesting and mechanized handling.

Since the smaller fruit is less subject to crushing during handling, researchers believe it could be harvested with less expensive and sophisticated machinery than that now being used.

Research to develop the new species was stimulated by the threat to Florida's $100 million tomato industry from imports originating in countries where workers' daily wages approximate hourly minimums in the United States.

Agriculturists point out that elimination of the Florida tomato business would further increase the nation's balance of payments deficit and put more pressure on the American dollar and the economy as a whole.

New Sounds Coming Out Of Cotton Fields

Newest sounds emerging from cotton fields these days are the flap of chopper blades and the roar of trail bikes. They're part of streamlined techniques being adapted to modern cotton farming.

The National Cotton Council says helicopters are coming into favor for insect spraying in many areas. Some farmers believe they're more proficient than traditional crop-dusters.

Their ability to fly right out of the farmer's backyard eliminates returning to an airport for reloading. This makes it possible to cover more acreage in a day's time.

Helicopters' greater maneuverability allows spraying in hard-to-reach places, and chemical drift is minimized because downwash from the blades pushes spray into the cotton at a rate of 2,000 cubic feet per minute.

Trail bikes are the most recent newcomers to cotton fields. They're being used in some states to speed up work by cotton scouts who count insects.

Better Eating Promised By Current Research

Tomorrow's consumer will probably find his beef more tender and his pork a lot leaner as the result of animal technology now being developed.

Research is currently being centered on crossbreeding and other genetic modifications to improve the cutability and feed conversion in beef cattle.

And breakthroughs already are being made with selective crossbreeding in hogs to produce pork with a lower fat content. In the past 25 years, the amount of fat on a hog carcass has been cut by 15 to 20 pounds. Further reductions are expected between now and 1985 as technological improvements continue to be made in every aspect of American agriculture.

Accidents Kill, 2,200 On The Farm

CHICAGO—In 1972 an estimated 2,200 persons were killed in work accidents in agriculture, according to the National Safety Council.

Using a standardized survey format, the statistical and farm departments conducted one-year studies of agricultural accidents in 10 states. The studies made by extension services and local volunteers show that an estimated 169,000 injuries occur annually to farm residents, workers and visitors in the states studied. Of the total injuries, the report indicates that more accidents occurred in farm structures than at any other location.

The survey area contained approximately 825,000 farms with more than 3 million farm residents. The results indicate that nearly two-thirds of the total injuries were work-related, and much of the remainder occurred during periods of leisure activity.

U.S. Farm Exports Up To Neighboring Countries

U.S. farm exports to Western hemisphere countries hit a new high of $1.59 billion in 1972.

The record was due chiefly to rising sales to Canada and Latin America, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Bigger sales of cotton, fruits, and vegetables were made to Canada, along with increases in wheat and other food products, plus animal and poultry feedstuffs to Latin America.

Additional rises in certain U.S. farm exports are expected in these same areas in 1973, the USDA said.

Early Cotton Plants Were Decorative Shrubs

The first cotton plants were believed to have been tropical shrubs similar to crepe myrtles or lilac bushes. Over the centuries, annual forms evolved that could produce a crop in a single season.

Food Bill Vs. Wages

If wages had risen at the same rate as food prices in the United States during the last 20 years, the average industrial worker today would be earning $2.23 an hour instead of $3.65.

COLLEGE STATION — Beef-hungry consumers can follow seven guidelines to keep meat on the table in spite of the "shrinking buck," a livestock marketing specialist said this week.

Dr. Edward Uvacek Jr. with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, cited careful spending of meat dollars as the key.

— Compare meat cuts on a cost-per-serving basis, rather than price per pound.

"For example, you can get about four servings from a pound of ground beef, but only two and a half servings from a sirloin steak. For them to be equal on a cost-per-serving basis — when sirloin brings $1.49 per pound, ground beef could sell for as much as $2.38 per pound," the specialist explained.

"A brisket at $1.19 a pound will cost as much per serving as a boneless chuck at 99 cents a pound, or short ribs at 79 cents a pound. "Boneless chuck roast at $1.09 a pound and short ribs at 88 cents a pound have exactly the same cost per serving, but a T-bone steak at $1.59 a pound costs twice as much per serving as liver at the same price."

Uvacek also advised homemakers — when substituting other meats such as broiler chickens for beef — to remember that most of them have very low servings per pound.

"For example, a ready-to-cook broiler at 59 cents a pound is slightly more expensive per serving than brisket or rolled rump at $1.29 a pound."

— Don't pay extra for minor conveniences.

"Pre-formed ground beef patties are pretty — but expensive. The amount of work in making a hamburger patty is pretty negligible.

"Similar types of conveniences — at a cost — are built into such items as tenderized or formed steaks, cubed stewing beef, breaded chicken-fried steaks and precooked cuts. Do the work yourself, and save a bundle," he added.

— Carefully compare prices for beef cuts in different stores.

"All retailers don't charge the same price for individual cuts. In fact, it's not unusual to have very substantial variations in retail prices between stores — even in a small town.

"Shop around. Don't always buy your beef in the same old store, simply because that's where the watermelons are cheaper."

— Get your money's worth in quality.

"Unless you're an expert, the easiest way to insure consistent acceptability and quality is to buy only USDA Choice beef. "It's either labeled as such, or has a purple shield with the word 'Choice' inside of it, stamped on the outside of the meat cut.

"Learn some of the basic cuts of beef.

"Several different names are used for the same cut because of regional preferences. Just a little study will show you, for example, that a rib-eye steak is the same and probably cheaper than a Delmonico.

"Similarly, a rib steak and a club steak are basically the same. Sirloin steak is a much more tender piece of meat than round steak.

"Also, take a little time to learn the recommended cooking method for each cut — which

Milk Production Declines As Predicted . . . Broilers, Eggs Also Show Declines . . . Citrus Tree Plantings Increase . . . Cattle Feeding Increases.

Milk Production in Texas as well as the nation is following a year-long pattern of declines, which has been predicted by dairy group spokesmen. Texas milk production for June is 5 per cent below the previous month's production, although it is slightly above June of a year ago.

Nationwide, milk producing is 2.5 per cent less than a year earlier. Production during the first half of this year is running 2 per cent under 1972. The number of milk cows, nationwide, also has declined by 2 per cent.

The cost price squeeze in the dairy industry is also dramatized in the milk-feed price ratio. That ratio is down 27 per cent from a year ago. It is also the lowest June ratio since 1955.

EGG production in Texas during June is down 4 per cent from a year ago and 5 per cent under last month. Nationwide, a decrease of 5 per cent is noted from the same month a year ago.

Broiler chick hatch in Texas during June is down 7 per cent from a year ago and 10 per cent under the preceding month.

The turkey poult hatch for Texas during June is up 19 per cent from a year ago, but is 9 per cent under a month ago.

The June hatch of egg-type chicks in Texas is up 34 per cent from a month ago and 3 per cent above a month earlier.

CITRUS tree plantings are on the increase in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Licensed citrus nurserymen and private citrus nurserymen in the Valley reported 230,000 citrus moved from nurseries to groves during the period July 1, 1972 to June 30, 1973.

This is 12 per cent above the previous year when 206,000 trees were set out; these totals reflect new plantings in commercial groves.

Of the total, about 98 per cent are grapefruit; about 2 per cent oranges; less than 1 per cent lemons, limes, tangerines and tangelos.

The number of grapefruit trees planted was up 15 per cent from the previous year. More than half of the 1972-73 plantings were of the Star Ruby variety.

Movement of orange trees to groves continues to decline. Plantings at 4,000 trees were down 50 per cent from the previous season and far below the planting rate of prior years.

CATTLE on feed in Texas and the nation continues to increase. As of July 1, a total of 2,335,000 head of cattle and calves were on feed in Texas. This is 10 per cent above a year ago, 4 per cent above June 1, and 3 per cent above April 1.

Large feedlots—those with 1,000 plus capacity—numbered 234. Steers accounted for 1,513,000 head of the cattle on feed.

Cattle placements on feed in Texas feedlots from April 1 to July 1 were down 11 per cent compared to a year ago. Cattle marketed out of Texas feedlots is 4 per cent above marketings compared to the same period of a year ago.

Feedlot operators intend to market 1,238,000 cattle between now and September 30. This would be 6 per cent more than marketed during the same quarter last year.

Nationwide, cattle and calves on feed is up 2 per cent from a year ago. Cattle feeders plan to market about 1 per cent more than those actually sold during the July to September period of a year ago.

Farmer Gets Less Than Half of Food Dollar

Ever wonder how much of your food dollar actually goes to the fellow who produced the food?

Latest figures from the Department of Agriculture show that farmers last year received an average of 40 cents from each dollar you spent at the store for farm-produced foods.

If you bought a dollar's worth of canned corn in 1972, the farmer who grew that corn got only 11 cents as his share.

Other food items and the farmer's share of the dollar spent are: white bread—15 cents; frozen peas—16 cents; potatoes—27 cents; dried beans—43 cents; fryers—49 cents—and eggs—57 cents.

The USDA study also showed that the typical household spent $1.31 for farm-produced foods at the store in 1972.

This was 33 per cent more than the same food cost 20 years ago, but farmers' share rose only 13 per cent. Biggest factor in the increase was processing and marketing costs.

Kansas City Life Has Good Year

The first half of 1973 for Kansas City Life was highlighted by an 11 per cent increase in life insurance sales. J. R. Bixby, president, reported, following the company's quarterly board of directors meeting last month. . . Ora Mae Fox is representative in Foard County.

Life insurance sales totaled $356,398,784 during the first half of 1973, compared to $321,679,944 during the same period of 1972.

Also up were premium income and investment income. Premium income amounted to $27,617,630, compared to $25,141,132 last year; a 10 per cent increase.

Net investment income rose $16,841,498 in the first six months of 1973, compared to $15,832,359 in 1972; a 6 per cent increase.

As a result of increased life sales, life insurance in force also increased substantially to $2,810,116,862, a gain of $92,517,647 during the first six months. During the same period last year, in-force increased $75,462,020 to a total of $2,655,064,151.

Net realized capital gains totaled $329,403 for the period. Payments to policyowners increased a total of 9 per cent during the first six months of 1973 to $21,540,195, compared to $19,802,198 during the same period last year.

Baling wire Shortage Is Serious

Waco--(Spl)--Texas Farm Bureau President J. T. (Red) Woodson said that a shortage of baling wire for hay could lead to a livestock feeding crisis this winter.

The farm leader said there are also shortages of fencing wire and cotton bale ties.

Woodson said the Farm Bureau is encouraging steel mills to give high priorities to production and distribution of steel products necessary in the production of food and fiber.

He said steel industry officials give the following reasons for shortages of baling wire, fencing wire and cotton bale ties:

(1) Imports of steel and steel products have been drastically reduced because the U. S. has asked foreign countries to limit their exports to the U. S. This was done in order to reduce the balance of payment deficits. Also, these nations agreed to such arrangements because they are not as anxious to acquire U. S. dollars which are rapidly drooping in value abroad.

(2) Domestic mills cannot take up the slack because they simply do not have the capacity. Some blast furnaces have been shut down by regulations of the Environmental Protective Agency.

(3) There is a world-wide shortage of steel. Available supplies are being used in construction of high-priority such as automobiles.

Ex-Thalia Teacher Is Honored

Mrs. Torjnie F. Thomassen was chosen Outstanding Secondary Educators of America for 1973. Nominated by her principal earlier this year, she was selected for this honor on the basis of her professional and civic achievements.

Gilbert Beers, Director of the Outstanding Secondary Educators of America program stated: "The men and women chosen for this high honor have explored new insights and effectively communicated their knowledge to their students and colleagues. They are exceptional teachers."

Mrs. Thomassen is a cousin of Murl and Wilber Edens, Mrs. John Thompson, Burt Abston, Mrs. Winnie Phillips and Mrs. Raymond Grim of Vernon.

Gallon Blood Donor

David Lee Owens, Knox City businessman, has been made a member of the Gallon Club after donating his eighth pint of blood of Knox City last Thursday.

Mr. Owens is a native and long-time resident of Foard County. He has owned and operated an automotive parts business in Knox City for many years.

WOULD YOU GUESS . . .

"Would you guess," says the Finast Record, published by First National Stores, Inc., "that trees are one of the greatest dangers to drivers? It's because they grow in the middle of roads. At least that's what 514,000 American drivers claimed last year when they hit one."

Growth in Population of Veterans Slows

Growth in the veteran population, from 24 million to 29 million since 1965, will continue for two more years, then start a steady decline, a Veterans Administration projection shows, according to Jack Coker, VA regional director.

In 1975, living veterans of all wars will number 29.2 million, and after that date, deaths will begin to outnumber military discharges. By the year 2,000, the veteran population will be back to the 1965 figure of 24.1 million.

Coker said VA projects veteran population periodically for planning purposes, with special emphasis on assessing future needs for health care facilities. At the present time, for example, World War II veterans number over 14 million with an average age of 53, but by the turn of the century, more than 60 per cent of the remaining veterans will have served during or after the Korean Conflict.

The projection shows the WWII group will be down to 13.5 million by June 1975 with an average age of 68 years. Two older veterans, WWI and Spanish War veterans—represented by the century. The former will be about a third of the veterans (average age 77.4 years). Spanish-American War veterans will still be living 2,000. This group has an average age of 73. 1975 approximately remain, and fewer probably will be living in 1985 when the average will be 102.8. No age made for the few who died recently in China age of 101.

New Program Due for People Over Age 65

The Vernon social security office is now taking applications for supplemental security income payments, a federal program scheduled to start in 1974 that will establish an income floor for people in financial need who are 65 or over, or blind, or disabled, according to Henry Chustz, social security branch manager.

But people already getting state old age assistance, or state aid because they are blind or disabled, don't have to apply, he said. They're getting more information later this year about how the program will help them.

The first monthly payments under the federal program will be made in January 1974. Until then, state and local public assistance offices will continue to make payments in the usual way. People not getting public assistance now who think they may be eligible for the new federal payments should call or write social security to find out if they should apply, according to Chustz.

Federal supplemental security income payments will be made by the Social Security Administration, but the program will be financed by federal general revenues—not by social security contributions from workers and employers. It's not the same as social security.

The aim of the new program is to provide supplemental payments in cases of need so that people 65 or over, or blind, or disabled will have a basic cash income of at least $130 a month for 1 person and $195 a month for a couple. This doesn't mean that every eligible person or couple will be getting that much from the federal government every month. The amount of the federal payment any person gets will depend on how much other income he has. Eligibility for federal payments will depend not only on the amount of income people have but on the value of their assets. If you're single—or married but not living with your husband or wife—you can own things worth up to $15,000 and still get federal payments. A couple can own things worth up to $22,250 and get payments. Not everything you own has to be counted toward your total assets, however. A home of reasonable value will not be counted as an asset. Personal effects and household goods won't count in most cases. Insurance policies or a car may not affect eligibility either, but it will depend on their value.

Certain income also will be disregarded in deciding on an application for supplemental security income. The first $20 a month of income generally won't affect the federal payment at all. In addition, people who are working part time should know that the first $65 a month of earnings won't be included in counting their income and only half of the rest of their additional earnings will be counted.

Apart from earnings, other income above the first $20 a month generally will reduce the federal payment. This includes social security checks, veterans payments, pensions, annuities, and gifts. And if you live in someone else's household, your basic federal payment will be reduced by one-third before other income that may affect your payment is deducted.

People who need more information to decide whether they might be eligible for the federal payments should call social security at 552-9346 in Vernon, or write the office at Box 1417. Or a friend or relative can make the call if the person in need isn't able to do so.

"Even though payments cannot start until January 1974, we're starting to take applications now so we can process them ahead of time and avoid delays that might occur if there is a rush of applications right at the end of the year," Chustz said.

DON'T TEMPT FATE. . . . Don't wait for a long, high-speed trip to find out your tires are unsafe. The Portland, Oregon, Traffic Safety Commission urges all drivers to inspect their tires now. If there's any question, replace worn tires now, before tempting fate by high-speed, long-distance vacation driving.

2 MINUTES With the Bible

Don't Tell Him a Thing

Many years ago the writer's father, then a city missionary, received a telephone call from a prominent clergyman.

"Peter," said the clergyman. "I've got a young man out in the outer office who seems to be in great distress. He says he feels he's so great a sinner that he has overstepped the line and God won't forgive him. Now you've had a lot of experience with such people. What shall I tell him?"

"Don't tell him a thing; I'll be right over," said Dad, and he left immediately to deal with the young man himself.

Dad knew very well what was the matter with this young lad. The Holy Spirit had convicted him of his sin (John 18:8) The lad had come to see himself as he really was—as God saw him and sees any unsaved person, no matter how religious.

No person ever comes to see his need of a Savior until he has first come to see himself as a condemned sinner before God. And it is only when we come to see ourselves as we are in the sight of a holy God that there is hope for salvation.

The self-righteous do not see their need of a Savior. What would He save them from? What have they done that is so wrong? This is the way their reasoning goes.

It is only when we begin to appreciate the holiness and righteousness of God that it dawns upon us that our condition is hopeless without a Savior.

Strange, is it not, so many people have pictures of our Lord crowned with thorns or hanging on a cross, yet do not really know Him as a Savior, their own Savior.

But, when we have been convicted of our sin and our hopeless condition before God, we are ready to take in the words spoken by Paul to the trembling jailer at Philippi: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31).

McAlister To Attend SCS Meeting

Long-range land use planning is the subject of a day-long conference to be held in Abilene August 7.

John McAlister, head of the Foard County Soil Conservation Service work unit, will be attending the meeting.

The conference is co-sponsored by the Texas Council of the Soil Conservation Society of America and the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. The meeting will be held in the McGlothlin Student Center on the campus of Abilene Christian College from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Speakers will include Congressman Omar Burleson, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, Emil Rasmussen, president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, A. B. Linford, president of the Soil Conservation Society of America; Doyle Hutcheson, president of the Texas Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts, and other officials.

Massive urban and industrial growth, coupled with shrinking land resources, is causing many concerned citizens to debate the feasibility of controlling the use of land at some time in the future. They point to the construction of homes in floodplains or factories on prime agricultural land as examples of miss-use of land resources.
