PANHANDLE-PLAINS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Working For What Relief.
October 8, 1919.
Sir:
This is to inform you of an action which is being taken by the Panhandle-Plains Chamber of Commerce in a determined effort to relieve the situation which now exists with reference to the shipment of products from the Panhandle soil to the markets. Without exaggeration, we are facing today the most disastrous condition that has ever presented itself to the people of this region of Texas. We are calling for an emergency hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission to be held in Amarillo in the near future. The following telegram has been sent out in connection with the effort of this organization to make, we entreat your aid in every possible manner that will help us out of the traffic difficulty and return the Panhandle to a prosperous condition. Every emergency effort is being made in the mean time and this constitutes a separate endeavor to correct the condition with which we are confronted.

Yours very truly,
F. R. Jamison,
Secretary-Manager Panhandle-Plains Chamber of Commerce.

TELEGRAM

Amarillo, Texas Oct. 7, 1919
Interstate Commerce Commission,
Washington, D. C.

Please refer to wire sent you September first, setting forth the condition of the Panhandle crops through adequate transportation facilities. Since then the very worst fears have been and are now being realized. It is now estimated that between seven and ten million bushels of threshed wheat is on the bare ground, exposed to the heavy rains already and yet unharvested. Some twenty per cent of the wheat is in the field unthreshed. Elevators and ware houses are overflowing. Crops of maize and sorghum, estimated at thirty million bushels, now maturing, being harvested and thrown on the ground in the same way. Farmers are threatened with eternal ruin, with all allied financial and commercial interests suffering severely. In view of these conditions farmers are unable to do anything toward seeding or arranging another crop. They claim that the most important duty ahead of them now is that of saving the present crop, ready damaged millions of dollars, and that scarcity is worse than ever. The same old story of unfilled promises from the Grain Corporation, Shipping Board and the Railroad Administration. Less than twenty per cent of the Panhandle wheat crop is harvested, meaning big discrimination against this end of the state. Farmers and all business interest in great despair, and wish to know if their complaint could be filled as a basis for a quick emergency hearing at Amarillo before the Examiner from the Interstate Commerce Commission; said complaint to be lodged against the Railroad Administration. Efforts to be made to have in attendance on hearing representatives from the Grain Corporation, Shipping Board and others interwoven with domestic and foreign shipping commerce. In this way it is hoped that the responsibility can be fixed, with the proper remedy found and applied. The situation as set forth is not and could not well be exaggerated, and if not relieved thousands of farmers will have been ruined, and the Panhandle set back many years. Please wire answer stating whether or not it is possible to order such hearing at Amarillo and how soon. Un-

EARLY HISTORY REVIEWED

Some early interesting History of the Panhandle was reviewed last week when Mr. W. M. Camp, a newspaper man of Chicago came down to Canadian with the intention of locating and permanently marking some of the old battle grounds of the early seventies. The beginning of this investigation was started by a correspondence between M. Camp and Mrs. Olive Dixon of Miami, who is the widow of William (Billie) Dixon, one of the white men who fought in the Buffalo Wallow Indian fight of Sept. 13, 1874 and also in the Adobe Walls Indian fight of June 28 of the same year. The Buffalo Wallow fight site is between the Washita and Gageby creeks in Hemphill county, and is known to be in what is now the Charlie Teas pasture, while the Adobe Walls battle ground is in Hutchinson county near the Turkey Track ranch headquarters.

It was Mr. Camp's intention to bring Amos Chapman, who lives at Ceiling, Oklahoma, and is the only known survivor of the Buffalo Wallow fight, with him to Canadian, to locate the spot and come by his place for that purpose, but failed to get him to come. Both of these battle grounds were visited and looked over Sunday and Monday. The foundation of the old Fort at Adobe Walls can be plainly seen, but the party who went out to the Buffalo Wallow site were not satisfied that they located the ground where the fight took place and another effort will be made in the near future. There is nothing left with which to locate the spot where the fight took place, or at least the party failed to find it. Mr. T. D. Hobart of Pampa who owns a ranch on the Washita was interviewed by the party, and told that he had in his possession a pencil sketch taken from William Dixon's description of the place, and stated that he would be glad to use and would at another time help to locate the exact spot. Another effort will be made to get Chapman to come over, and if not, Mr. Hobart's sketch will be considered the next thing to go by.

Mrs. Dixon went down to Canadian Saturday evening in answer to a telephone call to meet Mr. Camp there, and was one of the parties that visited both localities. The Panhandle as a whole will be interested in seeing these old battle grounds marked, and quite a number of the old timers expressed their gratification that it seems now so near accomplished. Mr. Camp was on his way to Denver, Colorado, and is a quiet, unassuming man with no other object in view any he is interested in such matters and has already been instrumental in the North West.

Woman's Missionary Auxiliary met at the Church yesterday afternoon at three o'clock with the President, Mrs. Jackson in the chair. The Secretary being absent, roll call and reading of the minutes were omitted. After a short business session the Bible lesson from the book of John was conducted by Mrs. Jackson. On the third Wednesday Mrs. Severson will give a program from the Missionary Voice. These Voice programs are always interesting. This also is the day for the free will offering, this offering goes to the support of our Javan Bible woman. All members are urged to be present. Press Reporter

NOTICE WITHDRAWAL OF SPECIAL TRAIN

On account of the inability to furnish equipment for the operation of the special train between Amarillo and Dallas as advertised for October 14th returning to Amarillo on the 17th, the Railroad Administration request that the notice of said train be withdrawn.

"Because of the present heavy traffic and general congested conditions together with inadequate equipment" as stated by the railroad administration, "it is our desire that special trains be not asked for and that the travel be distributed as equally as possible throughout the duration of the fair in order that we may conserve the motive power and other equipment for the purpose of carrying on the commerce of the county."

"You are asked in conformity with the above statement to withdraw the order for special train."

The Panhandle Plains Chamber of Commerce regrets to recall the expedition which would have been so pleasurable and so beneficial from a social point of view, but we are willing to conform to any arrangement that will conserve the interests of the Panhandle country.

You are advised that the Fort Worth & Denver Ry will operate extra equipment on their regular trains between Amarillo and Fort Worth and if this organization can assist any one in perfecting arrangements for accommodations we shall be glad to have you forward such request to this office.

Very Respectfully,
F. R. Jamison,
Secretary-Manager, Panhandle-Plains Chamber of Commerce.

The cooperation of the Miami Chapter of the Red Cross is being sought in a "movie" campaign scheduled to be one of the most important features of the forthcoming Red Cross Roll Call, Nov. 2 to 11. Moving picture exhibitors throughout the nation are being offered film scenes of Red Cross activities at home and abroad.

Many of the films were taken overseas during the thick of the fighting. They portray such subjects as "Field Service on the Western Front"; "Our Doughboys in Russia"; "Home-ward Bound"; "The Making of a Nurse"; "New Faces for Old"; "With Pershing's Men"; "Your Boy." Maragett Mayo, well known playwright, author of "Baby Mine," "Twin Beds" and other stage and screen successes, has contributed the scenario of the latest Red Cross film, "Winning Her Way," which tells of the vital work of a Red Cross public health nurse in a sleepy little village persistently behind the times.

Miss Mabel Bardine, of the Essanay and Fox studios Stanley Walpole, and J. W. Johnson, of Paramount and Arcraft, have the leading roles. The work of Miss Bardine and Mr. Johnson is gratuitous to the Red Cross.

Some of the foregoing subjects show the American doughboy in the mud of the trenches at the front; at the breach of the big guns; lying wounded at the first aid station or field hospital; or in immaculate white hospital wards quietly convalescing. Other films detail the remaking of the faces of wounded men through the delicate artifices of modern surgery; illustrate the life of the American soldiers in Russia, showing a Bolshevik camp. The possibilities open for young women who wish to enter the nursing profession is still another subject touched on.

In connection with forthcoming Cross drive, Nov. 2 to 11, advertising slides dealing with campaign matters are being distributed to Red Cross chapters throughout Missouri, Kansas, Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas. They bear such captions as follows, "Membership in the Red Cross which seeks the welfare of America is a symbol of patriotism"; "The American Red Cross serves all America at all times." That Red Cross films and slides are meeting with hearty approval wherever exhibits is shown by appreciative letters constantly being received.

The State Inspector of the Domestic Art Department visited our school Thursday of last week. The Home Progress Club, one of the Trustees, County Supt., and Mr. Gilley, Supt., met with Miss Peek in the Domestic Science room and the inspector went over the work and made some valuable suggestions. Some furniture and some other equipment is needed in the department.

The First Thousand Is Hard To Get

When a man gets $1,000.00 saved up there are always opportunities for a good investment. It is hard to place much less than that. That is why wealthy men who are self-made advise young men to begin early and save the first thousand.

Until we went to war, it was hard to get started toward that $1,000.00 unless at least one dollar could be put away at a time. Small change was restless and acrobatic and kept jumping out of our pockets into somebody else's.

Now, however, there is an easy way to get that first thousand. The answer is Thrift Stamps. They cost only a quarter apiece and can be converted into War Savings Stamps. The Government of the United States backs these War Savings Stamps with a guarantee of 4 per cent interest, compounded quarterly. Save and Succeed.

Who Is Best Man To Do Your Work?

The best way to have anything is—do it yourself. The best way to get ahead in the world is—save regularly and invest wisely. Your children may be buying Thrift Stamps but the nickels and dimes and quarters they are able to save won't buy a home or a new automobile or a new cultivator. The money to do that will not be saved—unless you save it.

It's easy enough to save if you do it the W. S. S. way. Quarters planted in Thrift Stamps grow into War Savings Stamps and the interest makes them grow like rain does a summer weed. Save for that happy opportunity. If you're not in a War Savings Society—get in one. Be with the crowd. Save.

Farmers Find Easy Method of Saving

Farmers who are making a habit of getting a few Thrift Stamps every time they market anything from their farms are finding that they are able to save regularly and that they do not miss the small amounts invested. The average farmer in this section of the country depends largely on his "money" crop, which he harvests once a year. Almost every one of them, however, grows something else which he markets at odd times.

An occasional load of hay may be taken into town and sold. The thrifty farmer also plants peas, beans, okra, lettuce, beets or some of the other vegetables which thrive in the Southwest and for which there is a ready market. Butter and eggs form staple articles to be marketed between seasons. By buying just a few Thrift Stamps each time the farm-wagon makes a haul to town, the farmer or his wife is providing a fund which they will be able to turn to good account later on, for when these Thrift Stamps are exchanged for War Savings Stamps, they increase in value automatically, and may always be turned into cash on ten days, written notice to the postmaster, although the longer they are kept the more they earn.

Lift off Corns!

Doesn't hurt a bit and Freezone costs only a few cents.

With your fingers! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin caluses from bottom of feet.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs little at any drug store; apply a few drops upon the corn or callus. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callus right off, root and all, without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly! No humbug!—Adv.

Father's Little Joke.

I was absent from high school one day. The next day I asked my father, who loves a joke, to write an excuse for me. He did so, and in my hurry I forgot to look at it before handing it to my teacher. She took the note, read it, looked at me, and read it again. I began to feel that something was wrong. Finally she handed me the note. It read: "Please turn Betty over your checked apron. You Do More Work.

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood. The Strength-Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same today, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle.

Home Town Helps

REASONS FOR OWNING HOME

Fourteen Points That Will Not Cause So Much Controversy as Another Famous Set.

1. In the long run the home owner is more prosperous than the renter.
2. The home owner is permanent; the shifter does little good to his city or himself.
3. The home owner is progressive; the renter is not interested in progressive movements.
4. Habits of thrift learned in home buying add to the wealth of the individual and the city.
5. The home owner beautifies the city; the renter does not.
6. Other things being equal, the home owner is a better worker than the renter and keeps his position after the renter is discharged.
7. The owner of a home has an ever present protection against poverty and will not become a charge upon the community.
8. No city of renters can ever succeed. No nation of tenants ever became great.
9. A city that is worth living in is worth owning a home in.
10. Other things being equal, the home owner is a better citizen, a better soldier, a better American than the renter.
11. The prosperity of any city depends upon the prosperity of its individual citizens.
12. The more beautiful our city is the more people will be attracted to it.
13. Home owners add to the buying power of a municipality. Tenants detract.
14. Self-respect and independence are the greatest assets in life. Health and happiness are the children of success.

NURSERY-GROWN TREES BEST

Excellent Reasons Why Wild Varieties Are Not Suitable for Growth in Cities.

Digging wild trees for home planting is not successful as a rule. In the first place wild trees are likely to grow where they are crowded and are drawn out taller than they should be. Others have not had an opportunity to develop evenly and may be well shaped on one side only. Then the roots have been left to spread out at long distances and the trees cannot be removed without breaking off important roots, so the trees will be a long while in recovering and a large percentage will die.

Nursery-grown trees are grown where they develop evenly on all sides, and are frequently transplanted and root pruned, which keeps them from growing too spindling and the roots are thus confined to a small area, so the trees can easily and safely be transplanted.

In making home plantings it is a grave error to attempt to use wild trees.

Urges Value of Beechnut.

A writer in the Chicago Daily News makes a plea for the beechnut. A high-grade quality of this nut might easily be made a delicious article of food. The beech tree, well grown, is an object of great beauty. In Europe extensive avenues of them are found, and the fruit carefully conserved. Many a township could easily handle along its roadsides 10,000 noble beeches and as many hickories, not to speak of a large sprinkling of other nut trees and shrubs, all of them largely taking care of themselves. Each town or county could have its own nursery for fostering a high grade of nut trees and shrubs.

To Get Rid of Ants.

Powdered borax sprinkled around the infested places will exterminate both red and black ants. Powdered cloves are said to drive them away. Another plan is to grease a plate with lard and set it where these insects abound. They prefer lard to anything else, and will forsake sugar for it. Place a few sticks around the plate for the ants to climb up on. Occasionally turn the plate bottom side up over the fire, and the ants will fall in with the melted lard. Or, use a small amount of oil of turpentine, run into the cracks with an ordinary sewing machine oil can.

Home Gardens Pay.

Garden work is health giving, especially for those whose occupations are indoors. To allow land that might grow food to lie idle is almost criminal, in this war-impoorished world. The products of the garden are simply indispensable to a wholesome dietary. When home grown their quality must be better than any that can be bought. Next year should see a further increase, instead of a further decrease, in home gardens.

Life.

Our life is precious to us for the activity that we are capable of, and still more because that activity may be so adjusted as to give us the consciousness of acting in harmony with the divine mind.—Archbishop Thomson.

Economy Corner

Beauty doctoring has become a recognized profession, and the use of lotions, cleansing creams, and many other toilet preparations, is an established habit with thousands of women. There is no getting away from the fact that complexion and hair respond to the care and treatment that counteract the ravages of sun, wind, work and, to a great extent, time. Those who have most successfully combated these enemies of beauty say that it is the little time (say a quarter of an hour) that is given EVERY DAY to the complexion or the hair, the regular biweekly visit to the dentist, whether there is an apparent trouble with the teeth or not, and the ability to avoid worry, that has kept them looking young and fair for many more years than their negligent sisters.

Care of the Hands.
Hands get considerable rough treatment, but some women manage to keep them slightly notwithstanding the household they must do. The homely and inexpensive oils, acids and powders that anyone has will answer as well as any others in the care of the hands.

First of all the hands must be thoroughly cleaned before treatment for any defect is applied to them.

A scouring brush should be used with a mild soap and lukewarm water every night, and apply it vigorously, drying the hands thoroughly; use a teaspoonful of borax to a basin of water.

Any simple soap may be used, but strong kinds should be avoided. A nail brush is necessary, and an inexpensive one will be as cleansing as a costly one.

As soon as the hands are wet they must be lathered, and then the brush rubbed over the soap and the palms and backs scrubbed, brushing so the skin will not be irritated, yet sufficiently brisk to take out the dirt.

To Whiten Hands.
A very good bleaching paste can be used at night, avoiding the nails, with a pair of kid gloves worn over it.

Snowy hands are produced by dipping them in almond oil; let them absorb all the oil, and then dip them in French chalk and wear a pair of loose old gloves that night. Another plan is to wash the hands in peroxide of hydrogen, letting it dry on them, and then rub on cold cream and wear old kid gloves. In the morning wash off with lemon juice, vinegar or cider, hot water, and then a disappearing cream.

Stained Hands.
Cream of tartar will remove dye stains from the hands. Rub with soap and apply the powder thoroughly.

Frocks for Schoolgirls

By twos and threes, with arms entwined, schoolgirls are sauntering through the streets and gladdening their worldworn hearts. It seems that their slender, supple bodies were never so fittingly and becomingly clad as they are this fall. Since mothers have grown discriminating, and specialists have devoted their energies to providing clothes for the young person who goes to school and otherwise occupies her time, we have apparel for the young miss that is a thing of beauty and a joy till she outgrows it.

Any of the plain and substantial dress materials of wool are suited to the very pretty frock for a girl of sixteen (or somewhere near that age) which is so adequately shown in the photograph above. Tricotine or serge and gabardine rank together in point of serviceability.

The frock pictured is of serge, in dark blue, and is brightened up with a vest of tricotine in American Beauty shade that has three groups of three tucks each to embellish it. There is a great vogue for this color combination in schoolgirls' dresses this fall, the red usually showing in pipings and in small insets. In this style of the bodice turns back at each end and in straight revers bound with silk braid, like the frock in color, and there are three snappy little brass buttons set on each revers. The use of braid and buttons in addition to the introduction of a colored trimming for a dress of this kind, but it is well-planned and not overdone, very youthful in character, and it is more than likely to please its wearer.

The length of the skirt in a dress like this varies a little according to the age and figure of the girl it is made for. If she is under sixteen it will be about that of the frock pictured, a neat-looking box plait at the front, with wide plaits at each side and in the back, take care of the fullness about the waist, and a braid binding and three buttons finish off the opening at the side. The bodice and skirt are set together under a wide, plain belt of the goods that buttons at the left side.

Narrow silk braid is considerably used for finishing frocks for girls as well as suits for them and for grown-ups. It appears in neat rows and as a binding with better effects than ever, but it must be faultlessly placed and sewed.

The Linen Frock.

Shown side by side with frocks of batiste, organdie, dotted swiss and chambray, there are the loveliest frocks of linen in white and delicate colors. Both the fine soft linen, almost like the French handkerchief linen, and the heavy coarse weave are liked. The heavier quality makes up beautifully into tailored dresses, suits or smocks.

Hats are also made of this coarse linen. One lovely model was in a delicate shade of pink and was trimmed with a heavy cotton fringe.

Joseph Hergeshelmer was talking at the Authors' club in New York about the copyright law, which deprives a writer and his heirs of any remuneration from his work 58 years after its copyright.

"We authors," said Mr. Hergeshelmer, "have little to fear from the bolsheviks. Our work has always been treated as under bolshevik regime."

"But, then, literary artists," added the talented writer whimsically, "have the consolation that their work lives after them. Look at Rubens! He painted a thousand pictures, yet there are something like four thousand in existence today!"

Found.

Colonel Breckinridge of the Navy League was talking in New York about a stern father.

"He's stern, entirely too stern," he said. "In fact, the old boy's raving now—raving mad against his son."

"He sent his son off to New York last week, you know, and told him to find an opening. Well—"

Colonel Breckinridge chuckled. "The boy telephoned yesterday to wire $200, as he was in a hole."

BAD BREATH

Often Caused by Acid-Stomach

How can anyone with a sour stomach, who is constantly belching, heartburn and suffers from indigestion, anything but a bad breath? All of stomach disorders mean just one thing—Acid-Stomach.

EATONIC, the wonderful new stomach remedy in pleasant tasting tablet form, you eat like a bit of candy, brings relief from these stomach miseries. EATONIC sweetens the breath because it makes stomach sweet, cool and comfortable. For that nasty flat, congested throat "head feeling" after too much smoking, if neglected, Acid-Stomach may cause a lot of serious trouble. It leads to nervousness, headaches, insomnia, melancholia, rheumatism, sciatica, heart trouble, and cancer of the stomach. It makes millions of victims weak and listless, lacking in energy, all tired out. Often brings about chronic invalidism, premature old age, a shortening of life.

You need the help that EATONIC can give you if you are not feeling as strong and well as you should. You will be surprised to see how much better you will feel soon as you begin taking this wonderful stomach remedy. Get a big 50-cent box from your druggist today. He will tell you your money if you are not satisfied.

GOOD ROADS

KEEP ROADS IN GOOD REPAIR

Concrete or Special Road Brick Set in Cement Over Concrete Foundation is Favored.

The war and the consequent railroad congestion imposed heavy traffic burdens upon our highways; burdens, in fact, much greater than the roads were built to sustain. To make matters still worse, labor and repair materials were scarce during the war, and many roads as a result are now in deplorable condition. As the preacher would say, they are "more holy than righteous."

The year 1919 is going to witness an immense road repair movement. And the work should be at least fairly permanent. Merely throwing dirt or loose stones in the holes is a sheer waste of time, because after a few automobiles and trucks go over the roads these loose materials are pushed out again and conditions are as bad as ever.

Broken stones and tar binder are the only satisfactory repair materials for macadam roads, and many improved country roads are of that type.

It is beginning to be realized that concrete or special road brick set in cement over a concrete foundation must be used for truck roads designed to carry heavy truck traffic. Anything cheaper and less stable simply means bad roads and constant repairs.

For laterals or main roads in sparsely settled countries where traffic is not heavy and when the amount available for road construction is not large, tar macadam highways are quite satisfactory.

PLAN HONOR TO ROOSEVELT

Suggestions Have Been Made to Name Transcontinental Highway After Former President.

Memorials to the dead and tributes to the living in the form of highways is a plan which is catching the popular fancy everywhere. Since France christened a street in honor of Wilson, Tientsin, China, has done the same thing, and elsewhere suggestions have been made that a transcontinental highway be named in honor of Roosevelt. Louisiana is planning a Victory oak way and sentiment is reflected by movements to rename streets and highways after heroes of the war in other states.

DURABLE ROAD SAVES MONEY

Saving of Eight Cents Per Ton Mile Can Be Effected in Transportation Costs Alone.

The report of the joint congressional committee which investigated highway economies in 1914 shows that a saving of eight cents per ton mile can be effected in transportation costs when a road is lifted from the dirt to the durable class. This does not take into account increased real estate valuations or social advantages resulting from the improvement.

IMPROVE ROADS FOR TRUCKS

Bureau of Markets Arrives at Conclusion Motor Vehicles Have Passed Experimental Stage.

Inadequate highways are one of the penalties with which the user of highway transportation must contend, says Bulletin No. 770, recently issued by the bureau of markets. The department arrives at the conclusion that the motortruck has passed the experimental stage, but says that before it can attain its fullest usefulness the highways must be improved.

Good Drainage Necessary.

The most necessary requirement of a good road is a solid, bone-dry foundation. This means good drainage first, last and all the time.

Trees Along Highways.

Trees at a distance of 50 or 60 feet apart along the highway add to its comfort and pleasing appearance.

Brands Alienist As Head Hunter

John Armstrong Chaloner Will Try to Reform the "Bogus" Lunacy Laws.

RECONCILED WITH FAMILY

Having Been Declared Legally Sane, He Plans Campaign to Obtain Jury Trial for Those Suspected of Being Insane.

New York.—Branding alienists as "head hunters, who, for a price, will send any man to the madhouse," John Armstrong Chaloner, sage of Virginia and author of "Who's Loony Now?" announced the other day his intention of devoting his life and fortune to fighting "bogus lunacy laws." The campaign which Mr. Chaloner contemplates is designed to bring about national laws which will not only protect lunatics, but also give them a trial by jury before they are committed to institutions.

Mr. Chaloner, who was declared sane by Justice Ford of the supreme court, after being exiled from this state for 25 years, declared that alienists are a menace to society and the instruments of the "lunacy trust" in obtaining the incarceration of wealthy persons so that others may benefit by their being removed. He said his reconciliation with his family was complete.

By the decree of Justice Ford, Mr. Chaloner will have full control of his property here, valued at about $2,000,000. This will give him an income of $110,000, which he will use in his crusade against the present lunacy laws.

Campaign Opens November 9.

Mr. Chaloner will open his campaign at Cooper Union on Sunday, November 9, when he will deliver a lecture which will be part of a series that will continue through the winter. The title of the series is "The Philosophic Aspect of Christianity."

"When you came back here you were delighted with New York and everything in it. Has your stay altered your first impression?" he was asked.

"Not in the least," Mr. Chaloner replied. "New York is wonderful and the people are more polite than anywhere I have ever been. I am delighted with the change in the policemen in the 20 years I have been away. They are fine, and always willing to help strangers in a polite way. There are only two things that I found wrong. The telephone system is about the worst in the world and they do not run enough street cars."

He issues statement. Mr. Chaloner gave out the following statement to the newspaper men: "Gentlemen of the fourth estate, in

Japanese Film Censors Kill Thousands of Kisses

The police of Japan did not like to see kissing in public, and, therefore, film stars are not permitted to osculate on the screen. In six months up to March 1 the police censors removed 2,350 kisses from the films.

Only one kiss was allowed to remain. It was a kiss granted to Columbus by Queen Isabella and was shown in Tokio only, as the censors deleted it before permitting the photoplay "Columbus" to appear in the provinces.

Three hundred and fifty-three embraces were omitted from films, states the Far East. The titles of 2,144 photoplays were altered by the censors and 127 murder scenes were killed. Reels entirely prohibited numbered 57.

Most films shown in Japan are from America and a large proportion of them originally contain a little kiss or so, showing the difference in standard between the East and West.

solemn conclave assembled in my suite at the Hotel Brevoort: Greeting.

"Some seven years ago this summer I called an even larger convocation of the scribes to meet me in conference on the southern bank of the Potomac, at Alexandria, Virginia—in other words, since in those distant days of 1912 the atmosphere of the northern bank of the Potomac was too rich for my blood, my habitat then being strictly confined to the borders of the states of Virginia and North Carolina, in which two states I had been found by judicial process both sane and competent.

"Some twenty newspaper men, representing the greatest papers of the East, West and South, gathered together to hear what I had to say. I said that I was on the war trail of bogus lunacy law throughout the United States and that I was going to hire a hall in Richmond and hammer on it and talk them to death and write them to death. Well, gentlemen, I hired that hall in Richmond, Va.—the Rex picture theater still in full and flourishing operation, and actually talked there twice a month for from one to two years."

He then explained that he was forced to stop the Sunday night lectures by the Virginia blue laws, and continued:

"So you see, gentlemen of the 'Fourth Estate,' nothing but what the French term force majeure—superior force—forced me off of the trail of bogus lunacy law. But, whereas, I may possibly be forced off a trail I am on temporarily I cannot, humanly speaking, be kept off a trail. And you may be surprised to hear that the Rex lectures of Richmond, Va., will reopen in the auditorium of the Cooper union at 8:15 o'clock, the second Sunday night in November next. Doors open at 7:45, free gratis."

Japs Soon Will Crowd California

Their Birth Rate in That State Has Been Increasing Alarmingly.

WHITES BECOME WORRIED

Condition is Most Notable in the Fruit Sections—Yellow Race Now Almost Controls the Placer County Vegetable Industry.

San Francisco, Cal.—The birth records of the bureau of vital statistics of the California state board of health indicate that the Japanese population in the state is increasing at a rapid rate. From 1906, when the Japanese births were 134, while there increased steadily to 4,219 in 1918. While there is no separate record of the Japanese population, the birth record is taken as absolute evidence that the number of Japanese families residing in the state is steadily increasing.

This increase is most notable in the fruit sections, where the Japanese have colonized and are now in competition with the white fruit grower. The greatest increase is in Los Angeles county, where, in 1918, there were 1,329 Japanese births recorded.

In the Fruit Counties.

Alameda, Fresno, Sacramento, San Joaquin and Santa Clara, all extensive fruit counties, show a large number of Japanese births for 1918, but only in San Joaquin and Santa Clara is there any increase over the record of 1917, and in these cases it is only very slight. In San Francisco, where the Japanese population is admitted to be very extensive, the births in 1918 were only 261, as against 263 in 1917, indicating that the Japanese population had not increased to any great extent except during the last two years. This same may be said of the interior, for the total increase of Japanese births in the entire state was only 111 more in 1918 than in 1917.

The Japanese births registered in California from 1906 to 1918 are as follows:

1906.....	134	1912.....	2,215
1907.....	221	1913.....	2,514
1908.....	455	1914.....	2,342
1909.....	682	1915.....	2,721
1910.....	719	1916.....	4,138
1911.....	995	1917.....	4,219
1912.....	1,467

Placer County Folk Alarmed.

The increase in the Japanese population in the state has so alarmed certain sections that public meetings have been held to discuss means of providing against the further encroachment of the orientals. Such a meeting was held recently at Newcastle, in Placer county, where it was found that the Japanese births were nearly twice the number of whites in 1918. In 1917 there were 67 Japanese born in Placer county and 119 whites. In 1918 there were 93 Japanese and 79 whites and in 1918 123 Japanese and 61 whites. Assemblyman Ivan Parker, from that county, who investigated the subject, makes the following statement: "I am told that the Japanese at present control nearly 65 per cent of the vegetable growing industry of the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys. In some of the elementary schools of Placer county class after class contains but one or two white children. In many others Japanese boys old enough to shave sit in classes with the little girls of tender age. Japanese school children in Placer county boast that "some day they will have a Japanese governor in California."

Snake Short Circuits Wires.

Ithaca, N. Y.—At Haughook Gorge near this city, a snake crawled to the roof of a power house, slipped through a hole just above the electrical apparatus, fell across two wires, and short circuited them. Several villages were made dark and the snake was electrocuted.

In the Valley of the Ithen

St. Cross, Winchester.

ON THIS morning of spring, when the sun, at last, after many weeks of retirement, has shown his golden face above the eastward downs, any city—even so fair a city as Winchester—seems for the moment, undesirable. One seeks instinctively a wider sky-space, hills and meadows, and the flow of the new-fallen waters for company. These are in the valley of the Ithen, writes a correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor.

Through the cathedral close the way lies, down the avenue, past the western door and out before the spaces of emerald lawn, above which towers this majestic pile, within whose walls, and around them, are memorized so much of England's history, from great Alfred and Canute, past William of Wykeham and Wolsey, to the modern men of learning and lawn sleeves.

Beautifully harmonious are the surroundings, both in line and color—soft grays of full round Norman arches, vivid greens of cloister-garth, blending with the darker tints of immemorial yews, and the golden sheen of lichens upon gnarled tree-trunks. Here are rich reds and browns, upon the tiled copings of mossy walls, on bargeboards of ancient gabled roofs and in the delicate rose-pink network of interlacing twigs, through which the cathedral town is seen. Thus, among ever-changing charms, you twist and turn, now round a corner, beneath the shadow of an arch, now out again into the full sunlight, before another bend leads you once more through the pleasant gloom of the eastern gate.

Beside Wykeham's college, modestly fronting the road, is a little humble, buff-colored building, with an oriel window, and a legend reminding us that here Jane Austen lived her later days. Her house, among so many surrounding grandees, wears—as I suppose the writer herself wore—an air of shy timidity, not without grace in these, sometimes, too blatant days.

Here are Wykehamists, fresh-faced, in straw hats, symbolizing a coming summer, and here, past the gray ruins of Wolsey castle—where Mary of England, before her marriage, feted her Spanish husband-to-be—are the fresh green water-meadows of the Ithen, and beyond, clear-cut against the skyline, the tree-crowned ridge of St. Catherine's hill, with memories of King Charles II and of the college's "Dulce Domum."

The Waters Splash and Bubble.

On either side the meadow path the waters splash and bubble, swish and eddy with a music most melodious and meaningful, even to those unlearned in fish lore. Gray gulls hover, mirrored in the shining surface, and linger over it, so as to set one wondering what lure it was that led them from their open sea into this inland Hampshire valley. Down below, above a sandy bed, the forest of fern-like water weeds bends to the current, and the minnows—or the minnow-kind—dart and play about its glades. Right ahead there is age-long majesty again—the gabled roofs and towered church of the Hospital of St. Cross, embowered in ancestral elms. Here I sit, upon a white stile, to enjoy a fleeting glimpse of a thatched roof, and watch, across the sliding water-mirror, the fringe of pink feathery grasses nodding and quivering to the breeze.

I am tempted almost to go into the hospital, and demand the "Wayfarer's Dole"—not that I want the dole—which, moreover, is meager during these days—but that it is pleasant to partake of a charity practiced for so many centuries by the brethren in red and black. Some say—I hardly know with what truth—that St. Cross is the hospital in which Anthony Trollope placed "The Warden" of the novel so named, and of "Barchester Towers." Trollope, in his autobiography names Salisbury, not Winton, as the city in which he first conceived the story of that gentle priest; but, Barchester being a county of his own imagining, he may well have conjured a little with English topography. And, thinking of Trollope—while my eyes linger upon the crocus-gemmed lawns of St. Cross, and the orange-budded chestnut twigs shiny with flowing sap—how many others, famous in literature, have trod these velvet paths, and those of the hills on either hand!

A Goody Five.

"Old John of Gaunt, time-honored Lancaster" perhaps, from his place at

King's Lambourn; Alexander Pope, a boy from fair Twyford village, musing already upon the nature of man; John Keble of the "Christian Year," from his vicarage at Hursley; John Keats, from over Hazeley Down, with the "Ode to Autumn" fashioning itself in his mind:

Where are the songs of spring—aye where are they? Think not of them, thou hast thy music, too. While barred clouds bloom the soft-dying day, And touch the stubble-plains with rosy hue—and—matching the best of these in genius and in charm—the gentle author of "Emma" and "Northanger Abbey" from her modest home by the cathedral close. Truly a goody five!

Hereabouts the path mounts awfully from the river bed, beside hedges, that are vocal with the soft flutter of wings, the fluting of hidden birds, and the sudden stir and rustle of small heidgerow life. Drawn by patient brown ponies, slowly mounting the hill, come two gipsy-carts, green-painted, from whose rickety chimneys long wreaths of blue smoke curl upward and vanish. The weather-tanned nomads, each at a horse's head, the cheery, eager-eyed, tangled boys behind them, the momentary glimpses of a "home," caught through half-open doors, leave somehow, a sense of alluring vagabondage.

A moment later I am down in the valley meadows again, where going is not easy over those winter sodden ways. But what matter mud and water, when every copse is bursting into leaf, and the young spring carols in your ears? Even the pink pigs cease from their nosing on the bank, to gaze and grunt acquiescence. Two gray mares cock their ears, and stare; a speckled trout splashes from under my very feet, ankle-deep in the flood that pours joyously through every water-gate. Across bridge after bridge, wading rather than walking, I reach terra firma again, and soon am resting beneath the big yew tree that stands beside Twyford church.

MASS OF WONDROUS COLORS

Beauties of Sea-Gardens Along the Massachusetts Coast Are Almost Beyond Description.

Along the rocky coast of Nahant, Mass., the tide, rising and falling through a distance of nine feet, leaves as it recedes, quiet pools in the holes and crevices at the base of the cliffs, where flourish little worlds of marine plant and animal. Of these tide-pools of Nahant, the "Agassiz cave" contains one of the most beautiful of the sea-gardens of the northern shore. Completely covered at high tide, at low water the mysteries of its recesses are revealed to wondering human eyes.

Many-colored star-fishes and sea anemones, gorgeous sea weeds, fragile, pink-hearted hydroids clustered in flowed-like masses, delicate pink fronds of coralline, iridescent, violet-tipped Irish moss gleaming like jewels in the sunlight, and velvety green clusters of sea-lettuce—these are some of the beauties of the tide-pool. All have been exactly reproduced in the American museum, under the direction of Roy W. Miner, associate curator of the department of invertebrate zoology.

Ended in Smoke.

I was a member of the summer colony in a small New England town. We were ever in search of novelty, and toward the end of the season decided to have a play and give the natives a treat.

The whole town came out, and (we thought) were duly impressed. At the climax the hero stalked in, brandishing a document, and, in a dramatic voice, cried, "I have the papers." Then a voice from the back row bellowed, "I have the makin's!" That, of course, ruined our play.

Needless to say, we attempted no more dramatics.—Chicago Tribune.

Little Pessimist.

For weeks the weather had been beautiful, and the morning of the picnic there was not a cloud in the sky. When everything was packed and all were ready to start, Buddy hurried into the house and came out carrying an umbrella, muttering to himself, "It'll be sure to rain before we gets back."

TO KEEP CLEAR OF "WAR CHESTS"

RED CROSS RULES THAT DRIVE IS EXCLUSIVELY FOR MEMBERSHIPS.

CHAPTERS RECEIVE NOTICE

Objection is Made to the Use of Red Cross Name in Such Connection, is Announcement.

The Red Cross will not become a party to local or community "war chests," according to an announcement issued recently by Alfred Fairbank, Manager of the Southwestern Division of the Red Cross. The decision follows a recent ruling of the Central Committee of the American Red Cross and is based upon the fact that the forthcoming Red Cross drive, November 2 to 11, is to be a campaign for individual, not wholesale, memberships.

Chapter chairmen of the Red Cross Chapters throughout Missouri, Kansas, Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas have been sent the following notification by Manager Fairbank:

"The Central Committee of the American Red Cross has announced that Red Cross Chapters should not become parties to any local war chests or community war chests inasmuch as its Third Roll Call is primarily a call for Red Cross membership.

"As the Red Cross does not plan a wide general campaign for funds this year, the objection to the use of the Red Cross name in connection with such movements is more strongly emphasized than ever. Not only the success of the coming campaign but the future of the Red Cross will be largely dependent upon a full individual membership enrollment.

"Through a direct membership campaign it is possible for the Red Cross to gain the loyal and enthusiastic support of thousands of individuals to whom it must look for its future service. Only insofar as each member feels that the achievements of the Red Cross are made possible through this individual support will it be possible to carry on as comprehensive and far-reaching a program as that upon which the organization now is entering. The acquisition of every loyal member of the Red Cross forms a bulwark of strength far surpassing any possible good that could be gained through general money donations.

"It would, therefore, be detrimental to the spirit and policy of the Red Cross to seek wholesale memberships through war or community chests. The use of the Red Cross name in connection with such movements would tend only to confusion of the public mind and would lessen greatly the force of the individual call to membership."

FIGHTING MEN RESPONDING

SERVICE MEN AID RED CROSS NOVEMBER CAMPAIGN.

Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Are Answering the Call for Volunteer Workers.

Soldiers, sailors and marines, many of whom saw active service overseas, are responding in appreciable numbers to the call of the Red Cross for volunteer workers in the Third Red Cross Roll Call, November 2 to 11.

These service men, who felt the kindly care of the Red Cross from the day they answered the call to arms, are eager to express their gratitude to "the Greatest Mother" by becoming members of the American Red Cross. The Red Cross fed them when they were hungry, made them laugh when they were tired and worn out, cared for their wounds and their diseases, and helped them readjust themselves to civilian life. Is it any wonder they want to show the American people that they have faith in the Red Cross, that they want to see it perpetuated to carry on through its peace program the business of helping America to be healthier and happier?

The boys are backing the Red Cross in its Third Roll Call because they have seen it at work and recognize in it an organization for all Americans.

HERO THANKS RED CROSS

Cardinal Mercier Conveys Gratitude of Belgian People for Part Played by Americans.

According to telegraphic advices received by Alfred Fairbank, Manager of the Southwestern Division of the Red Cross at St. Louis, Cardinal Mercier, distinguished Belgian prelate, expressed the gratitude of that nation toward the American Red Cross for the part the organization played in alleviating the suffering of the Belgian people during the war, in a recent informal visit to Red Cross headquarters at Washington.

"I express to you my deep gratitude," Cardinal Mercier said. "I express it to you personally and also in the name of my people, not only to you here, but also to those who are far away. I thank you also for the great work of the Red Cross. I know your membership has grown from 400,000 to, I think it is, 19,000,000 or 20,000,000. This is a splendid progress in a splendid movement."

Bill says he is getting all the mountain climbing and woodchopping he wants. We imagine it takes very little wood chopping to satisfy Bill.

SMALL CHURCHES DO BIG THINGS FOR CAMPAIGN

Indicating the manner in which small churches are rallying to the support of the Baptist 75 Million Campaign, the church at Lyon, Miss., with forty-eight resident members, assumes $21,000, while the church at Coakeman, Miss., with fourteen members, refused to accept a quota of $3,300 and set their goal at $5,000. Grace Street church, New Orleans, doubled the quota assigned it and three Louisiana associations greatly increased the sums they were asked to raise.

BAPTIST CHURCH

The only Bible that some people read is your life. If you profess to be a follower of Christ and are a member of a church, if you never attend the services of your church, and if you never give of your means for the support of your church and the enlargement of Christ's Kingdom in the world, what kind of an impression are you as some one's Bible making? The greatest tragedy of our day is the fact that our heroic soldiers on their return home have found that the people in general, and oftentimes their own families in particular, are so very careless about religion. These things ought not so to be. You can help to better conditions if you will. If you are a member of our church or if you are not a member, we hereby extend to you a hearty invitation to attend our Sunday School, 10 a. m. Preaching services 11 a. m. and 7:30; B. Y. P. U. 6:45; Prayer Meeting Wednesday evening 7:30 and Choir practice 8 o'clock Friday evening. E. G. Pennington, Pastor.

THE WOMANS STUDY CLUB

The Woman's Study Club met with Mrs. W. A. Dyer Oct. 3, with 10 members present. Roll call was answered with an item on China. Those on the program gave many interesting things on Shantung and showed they had studied their subject and given it careful preparation. Four new members were added to the roll, Mesdames Gray, Gething, Waggoner and Lee Newman. We are glad to have these ladies with us in our Club work, this completes our full membership and our year books will be finished and ready to distribute at the next meeting.

The ladies have been asked to buy an Encyclopaedia for the school Library and we have decided on Nelsons Loose-Leaf.

The Library in the school building is not only for the benefit of the school, but for any one who wishes to read books from there.

The next regular meeting will be with Mrs. Jno. Newman Oct. 17, the subject will be Shantung continued. Press Reporter.

MISS PERVERSITY
By JUNE JOHNSON.

"Huh! Who ever heard of a girl keeping a promise? Break it five minutes after they make it." Thus in scornful tones spoke Johnnie Lewis, with all the wisdom of his seventeen summers.

"Oh, is that so?" With a snap of her blue eyes, Georgina Lewis spoke with the superiority of an older sister. "What about me?"

Johnnie grinned. "Oh, you'd keep a simple one," he taunted, "but a good stiff promise—you'd be like all the rest."

The girl flushed. "Listen, Johnnie," she commanded, "you're going to take that remark back before you sleep a wink tonight. Do you hear? Now give me a good stiff date that I can carry out before tomorrow. Go ahead and talk of something!"

Johnnie stared, then, seeing his sister meant it, racked his brain. Finally a whoop gave assurance of his success. "I've got it," he cried; "but it's a stiff one, sis. You're going to that dance tonight at the White's. While you're there I dare you to contradict everything that's said to you that demands an answer. If you carry that out I'll swallow my words and take you to a matinee next Friday to square it. If you don't—you'll eat humble pie. Do you hear?"

Did she hear? The dance that she had talked about for weeks! The dance which was the big event of the season! The tears came to Georgina's eyes.

Then she sat up straight. Johnnie had "dared" her. It was her own fault. "It's a go, Johnnie," she replied quietly at last.

That evening a disconsolate Georgina, having been forsaken by her faithful brother, settled down in a corner prepared for a lonely evening.

Suddenly Alice Wells, a gushing young miss, came fluttering up. "Oh, Georgina," she beamed, "I've been looking for you. Turner is just back from France, you know, and the poor boy is so bored. He can't dance and, dearie, Johnnie told me you weren't dancing tonight, so I thought it was an ideal chance to introduce you to Turner."

Thus it was that Turner Wells, bored and lonely, saw his sister bearing down upon him leading a pretty girl.

"Pleased to meet you," murmured the lieutenant when Alice introduced the two. He had met many young ladies since he arrived, but they had all forsaken him for the more alluring dances.

And now the lieutenant received the beginning of a series of shocks. For Georgina, a do-or-die expression on her face, was stammering: "No, you aren't pleased to meet me."

The lieutenant was startled, to say the least. He gasped and twisted uneasily in his chair. Was his new acquaintance a mind reader?

To say that Georgina was miserable was only mildly expressing it. She had heard of this young officer, who had distinguished himself more than once "over there." And now that she was so fortunate as to secure an introduction to him she had to contradict everything he said.

Alice, with her brother safely ensconced with Georgina, hurried off to the dance, leaving the two alone.

"Have you met Professor Briggs yet?" inquired Turner by way of starting a conversation. "He's very brilliant, isn't he?"

A deep flush overspread Georgina's face—then, "No, I don't think so."

The lieutenant's eyebrows went up a fraction of an inch. Then hastily changing the subject, "Awfully catchy piece they're playing just now, isn't it?"

Johnnie's suffering sister, looking wildly around for an escape—there was none. "It isn't catchy," plucking nervously at her fan, "it's awfully slow and stupid."

Turner racked his head for a safer topic. This young lady, he mused, had a rather contradictory nature.

Well, he'd try a topic of local interest. "I see by the paper," he ventured, "the Red Cross in this town is going to hold a benefit for blind soldiers. Bully idea, isn't it?"

This time there was no hesitation on Georgina's part. If she had to contradict she had to. "No," was the prompt reply, "it isn't a good idea. Perfectly foolish."

And then the lieutenant concealed his astonishment no longer. He stared, then, without warning, burst into a hearty laugh, and despite herself Georgina followed suit.

"Come, fess up," said the lieutenant finally; "you don't look like a pessimist—let me share in the mystery."

Georgina dropped her eyes before the soldier's steady gaze as she stammered, "I can't explain just now, because—please don't ask me. It's too silly—you wouldn't understand."

But Turner did understand before the evening was over, due to a secret interview with Johnnie.

That night, when the lieutenant bid good-night to Georgina at her own door, he said, with a boyish grin: "You've earned that matinee, Miss Perversity, and earned it well. By the way, would you mind if I happened to be at that matinee next Friday—in the same box with a certain young lady who can stick to a 'dare'?"

And then Georgina showed how feminine she could be as she answered softly: "Yes, I would mind very much—if you weren't there." Then with a bubbling laugh she was gone.

OLD AGE STARTS WITH YOUR KIDNEYS

Science says that old age begins with weakened kidneys and digestive organs. This being true, it is easy to believe that by keeping the kidneys and digestive organs cleansed and in proper working order old age can be deferred and life prolonged far beyond that enjoyed by the average person.

For over 200 years GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has been relieving the weakness and disability due to advancing years. It is a standard old-time home remedy and needs no introduction. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil is enclosed in odorless, tasteless capsules containing about 5 drops each. Take them as you would a pill, with a swallow of water. The oil stimulates the kidney action and enables the organs to throw off the poisons which cause premature old age. New life and strength increase as you continue the treatment. When completely restored continue taking a capsule or two each day. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules will keep you in health and vigor and prevent a return of the disease.

Do not wait until old age or disease have settled down for good. At the first sign that your kidneys are not working properly, go to your druggist and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. Money refunded if they do not help you. Three sizes. But remember to ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand. In sealed packages.

SUCCESS IN SHEEP BUSINESS

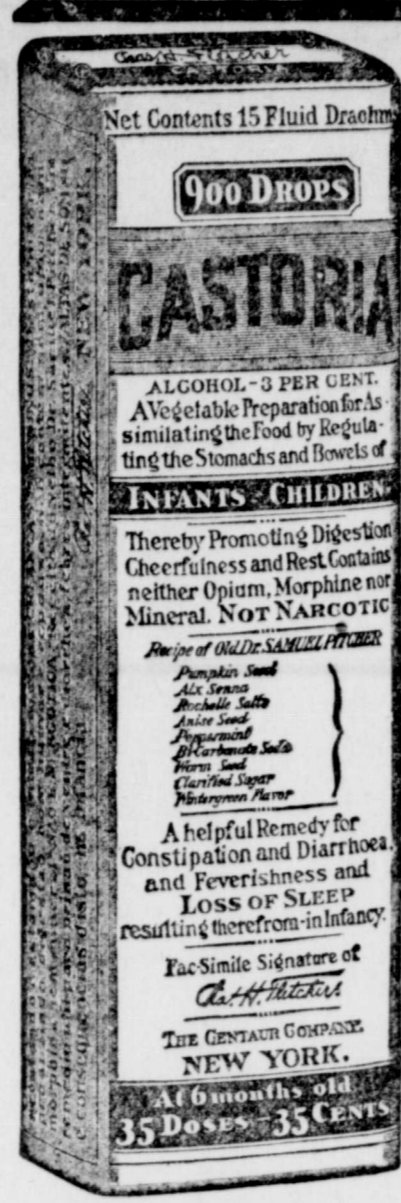

Health Is of Primary Importance and Internal Parasites Should Be Guarded Against.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In any system of continuous farm sheep raising the health question is of primary importance. This question is chiefly one of internal parasites, and of these the stomach worm is the most widely distributed and the most serious. Fortunately, the trouble is entirely susceptible of practical control, and the methods of prevention are exactly in line with the practices that result in most economical production. It is possible, though doubtful, that the permanent farm flock can be maintained in maximum health when grazed entirely on permanent grass pastures. A system of division of grass land into sufficient parts to allow frequent long periods without sheep and use of longer grass for cattle will assist materially. Such a plan, combined with occasional use of medicine to prevent too serious infection, may prove to be practical.

The basis of success in the farm sheep business is in the frequency of changing to pastures which have not had any opportunity to become infested with stomach worms by older sheep. These frequent changes are particularly necessary during the stay of the young lambs upon the farm. The older sheep are less susceptible to the effects of the infection, though danger of their being injured thereby is not to be overlooked. The plan of frequent changes to fresh feed can be adapted advantageously to the most economical systems of using high-priced land in the rotation of crops to produce feed and forage for other kinds of live stock.

INSISTED ON QUICK ACTION

This Father About as Sensible as Many Who Expect Wonders From Correspondence School.

Henry P. Davison was talking about the numerous correspondence courses in five lessons—each lesson to be mastered in one evening over the after-dinner cigar—which teach a man how to become a Napoleon of finance.

"You can't learn to be a Napoleon of finance or anything else so easily," he said. "These courses remind me of the man who brought his son to the school of mines and growled: 'I want you to learn this here boy to be an expert mine engineer, but look a-here—I don't want him to waste his time over a lot of book nonsense about strata and denudations, and don't bother him with mineralogy and crystals, neither. What I want him to learn is how to find gold and silver and copper in payin' quantities—payin' quantities, mind you—and I'll call for him and put him in to work Monday a week.'

An Apology.

Whether the following excerpt from the Williamsville (N. D.) Item is a bona fide apology, or only the work of the office humorist, it has originality:

"We wish to apologize to Mrs. Orville Overholt. In our paper last week we had as a headline 'Mrs. Overholt's Big Feet.' The word we ought to have used is a French word, pronounced the same way, but spelled 'fete.' It means a celebration, and is considered a very tony word."

Two-Masters.

"You cannot serve two masters." "I understand that you cannot serve schooners after now."

The heart of a coquet is like a street car, inasmuch as there is always room for one more.

RECOGNIZED THAT ART WORK

Proffiteer Picked Out Wrong Man to Boast About Picture He Had "Picked Up."

A Kansas City proffiteer moved into his gaudy new home last week, and last night was piloting a salaried friend around through the new rugs and furniture. As they entered the "library," the proffiteer pointed with great pride to a lurid picture 6 by 9, on the wall, and said:

"How d'ye like that for art? I'm ashamed to tell you how cheap I got that down at the art shop the other day. See that torn place in the corner? That was made, the dealer said, by one of them German looters in the Thirty-Year war."

"The dealer was mistaken," observed the salaried friend. "It was another war. It was made by a beer bottle I threw myself. I never could stand that picture, especially when I was lit up. Grogan's bartender kicked me clear across the sidewalk the night I heaved that bottle. So Grogan's selling off his pictures, is he?"—Kansas City Star.

Objected to "Parking."

My laundress' young son brings my laundry home in his little wagon, writes a correspondent. The other evening he had his little baby sister along, and left her sitting in the wagon while he brought the basket in the house.

The baby started to cry and I said: "What's the matter with her?" "Oh, she wants to come with me; she never does stand for being parked," he replied.

She'll Tell About It.

"Can a man have wealth untold, pa?" "Not if he has a wife, my son."—Chicago News.

Burmese Progressing.

Among the successful candidates for a degree in 1918 appears the name of Ina Thein, the first Burmese lady to obtain the distinction.

Sheep Relish Frequent Changes of Fresh Green Forage.

tion to other lines of farm production are illustrated in the following outline of a plan of crop production and feeding:

Under a Three-Year Rotation of Corn, Clover, and Small Grains on 160 Acres.

- 25 acres corn: To finish 20 yearling cattle and 40 hogs.
- 15 a. silage corn..... 80 ewes, and 20 ewe lambs, work stock.
- 40 a. wheat & oats..... Grain for sale or exchange for other feed.
- 20 acres clover pasture: Season's grazing for 20 breeding cows.
- 20 acres permanent grass pasture: Grazing for 20 yearling cattle on feed for December shipment.

In the above, sheep would be grazed as follows:

- Ten acres forage crops.
 1. On winter wheat.
 2. On grass pasture with yearling cattle.
 3. With cows on clover pasture.
 4. On clover meadow after hay cut.
 5. On grain stubble.
 6. In cornfields after silage cut or corn harvested.
 7. On winter wheat.
- At other times on rape, soy beans, or other grazing crops on 10-acre field. Unused forage harvested for winter feed.

Such a plan as this allows sufficient frequent change of pasture without any part of the flock going upon land that has previously carried sheep in the same year. The forage crop land is a safety measure for reliance in case of shortage of other feeds and could regularly be used for carrying the reserved ewe lambs from weaning time until winter.

SALT POISONING OF SWINE

Whenever Used for Pigs It Should Be Mixed With Feed or Used in a Conditioner.

Salt poisoning of hogs is not of rare occurrence, according to an article by H. C. H. Kernkamp, University Farm, St. Paul, reprinted from the Cornell Veterinarian. Pigs, says Mr. Kernkamp, should not be given salt as other farm animals are. Whenever salt is used for pigs it should be mixed with the feed or used as one of the ingredients of a tonic or conditioner. It should never be placed in a container alone where the hogs have free access to it.

Getting Posted.

Lord Noocyte—I say, old dear, what is the usual procedure in catching an American heiress?

Reggie—It's very simple, old chap. You tell the girl how much you love her, and her father how much you owe.

Noncommittal.

"How are they selling things in that bazaar?" "Oh, at a fair price."

It is more important to be going in the right direction than to be going rapidly.

Personal Question.

"Person" in the dictionaries is described as "an individual human being." But it is not so in England from a legal standpoint, as women do not come within the class. This was revealed recently when the Royal Astronomical society of London decided to admit women as fellows of the council. The plan was found to be impossible until the society had its charter altered.

Eligibles for election in the society's by-laws were described as "persons" and when legal opinion was obtained it was decided that a "person" was strictly of the masculine sex. The change was made in the charter and the clever women who had distinguished themselves in star gazing were admitted to the society.

Infalible Sign.

"There goes another married man!" said a girl in charge of a candy counter.

"How do you know?" asked the cashier.

"He used to buy a three-pound box of candy twice a week, and now he buys a half-pound once a month."

Knew Her Letters.

Aunt Grace came into the room where her three-year-old niece was cutting up her grandmother's new magazine. Grandmother was making feeble remonstrances but the small youngster continued placidly with her cutting. Aunt Grace turned to her mother. "It seems to me," she said, "Ruth Marie is getting to be b-a-d (spelling the word)."

But Ruth Marie had not been playing with the school children in the neighborhood for nothing. She knew the word from the sound of its letters and promptly retorted to Aunt Grace, "Well, you aren't so better yourself."

No Worms in a Healthy Child

All children troubled with worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. Green's tasteless chili tonic given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a General Strengthening Tonic to the whole system. Nature will then throw off or digest the worms, and the Child will be in perfect health. Pleasant to take. 60c per bottle.

An Irish Opinion.

During March, 1818, we were camped in northern France. It was the rainy season, and our clothes were always damp. One morning a big Irishman, as he thumped the water from his hobnails, said in a husky voice: "If a guy don't get pneumonia here there is something the matter with his lungs!" —Everybody's Magazine.

It is no crime to be poor unless the word is applied to singers.
