No. 5.

MARRIED AT CHILDRESS

Mr. Jimmie Kivlehen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Kivlehen of this place and Miss Bess Johnson of Childress were married at Childress on Wednesday morning of last week. The wedding was a private family affair, performed at 8 o'clock a. m., and the happy young couple departed from that city immediately after the ceremony.

We could hardly say too many nice things of this young married couple. The bride was a teacher in our schools for 1919-1920, and won the respect and confidence of everyone she met while in our city, and "Jimmie" was reared in Miami, a real Miami product and a real man. He is at present managing the Cunningham ranch near Woodward, Oklahoma. He completed the course of study of the Miami school and spent two years in the University Law School at Austin.

In order to avoid any delay their friends might cause them in Childress, they were on the road home in a few minutes after the marriage ceremony was performed. Then another precaution was taken when they passed up Miami and went direct from Mobeetie to Canadian on their road to the ranch near Woodward, at which place they will make their home, their postoffice being Mutual, Oklahoma.

Mrs. Dan Kivlehen went down with her son and was present at the wedding.

The Chief joins this happy young couple many Miami and Childress friends in wishing them all the good things of married life. May their troubles be as light as the clouds, and their happiness as bright as the sunshine.

Hail Storm Does Much Damage.

A disastrous hail storm visited part of Carson County Wednesday afternoon. In many cases crops were totally destroyed. Mr. W. L. Lovelady, living five miles northeast of Panhandle brought to this office specimens of corn and garden stuff that had passed through the storm. Mr. Lovelady stated that hail stones as large as hen's eggs fell at his place. Tops of wheat ricks were blown off on the farm of Mr. Harmon. Corn was stripped of all ears and blades, tomatoes of which he had a large field coming on, was totally destroyed. The storm reached for miles each side of Lovelady's. On the farm of Wm. Cain where the hired man was working four horses he unhitched the team and then hurried to shelter. The horses becoming restless crowded upon the fence. Lightning playing along the wires, killed the two center horses and prostrating the others. Mr. Lovelady was away at the Bateman sale and hurried home. His wife says that there was a funnel shape cloud that swept immediately over the house. The loss to those in the path of the storm was complete.—Panhandle Herald.

NEW COUNTY SCALES READY SOON

The New-Public Scales for the county will soon be ready for service. W. F. Patton was recently appointed the county weigher by the county, and the scales are being installed just west of the Gulf Oil station.

A COMPLETE EXPERIENCE

An American doctor is reported to have removed his own appendix. We learn subsequently, from force of habit, he sent himself in a bill, and suffered a serious relapse.—The Passing Show (London.)

DISTRICT COURT NEXT WEEK

The Honorable District Court of Roberts County will meet Monday of next week. Following is a list of the cases to come before the court.

Criminal Docket.

State vs. Vern DeVore, theft of an automobile.

State of Texas vs. Stella Beaucamp, charged with murder of her husband in Hemphill county, transferred to Roberts County.

Civil Docket.

J. A. King vs. W. W. Stoner, et al, suit to cancel lease and for damages, continued from last term.

Walter Bartholomew vs. Advance Rumley Co.

C. C. Dodson vs. Tallehone Oil & Gas Co., suit for wages.

Dallas Cunningham vs. Tallehone Oil & Gas Co., suit for wages.

Roberts County vs. T. A. Perkins, suit on notes.

W. S. Martin vs. Smyers Bros., suit on note.

T. M. Cunningham vs. C. P. Purley, suit on note.

Reece S. Allen vs. Flake George, et al, suit on note.

The above is the complete docket, which appears before the Court this term, except possibly a few minor civil cases which were continued from last term, ending settlement.

HARDING WOULD AID HARD WORKING DAD

Washington, Aug. 30.—President Harding stepped to the front today in behalf of the father of nineteen children—sixteen of them living—who is working as a porter in a New York department store at twenty dollars a week.

In sending his congratulations to the mother, Mrs. Domenico Zaccacchia of New York City, whose family group picture recently was printed in a newspaper, the president went back to tell how his mother who had brought up eight children, had expressed the hope prior to her death, that she might have been the mother of eight more.

After Mrs. Zaccacchia had replied to the president, telling of the great burden on the father in feeding and clothing the big family, Mr. Harding wrote John Wanamaker, the merchant, asking if something could not be done for him, and Mr. Wanamaker promised to help.

ENVOY J. D. ROWLAND AND WIFE

We want to thank the people of Miami for their courtesy and kindness that they always show us every time we are here. May the Dear Lord bless this town. We thank God for the churches that they give us to preach in. We ask the interest in prayer of all christian people.

We are stationed at Canadian and we will thank the people of Miami to give us their old clothes, old shoes and old bedding for the poor that come through. We have a hundred miles all around; also we feed and clothe the poor when they come to us at Canadian. All the people that have clothes write us and we will come down in a car and get them.

PAMPA AND MIAMI SHRINERS WILL PLAY BALL

A challenge was received this morning by the local Shrine Club from the Pampa Shrine Club, challenging them for a game of base ball to be played on the Miami field. The challenge was not long being accepted and the game matched for Friday afternoon of next week.

Cashier H. E. Baird of the First State Bank is one of the "pillars" of the local club and we believe is captain of the base ball club. He stated to a Chief writer this morning that "These Pampa red caps have gone crazy with the summer heat if they think they can beat us playing ball. Why here in Miami the Shrine was organized for our ball club, and no one but professional ball players can join." County Judge McKenzie states: "I was never in better physical condition for a game in my life, and the hard workout through the summer gives me and our team the utmost confidence that Pampa will never be able to score, and I am surprised at their audacity in asking for a ball game with us." Dan Kivlehen is another valued member of the local club and listen to what he said about the game. "When it comes to nerve Pampa Shrine Club have an army mule backed off the bank. Why I knew more about base ball myself, when my hair was auburn brown than that whole bunch, and that was further back than last spring too. These silvery 'locks' are an emblem of the days when I put in some real hard study of the game. Let Pampa Shrine ball team come, we'll show them a 16 to 1 standard."

Shriner D. E. Stribling just laughed at the idea of the game when he read the challenge, and said, "Why I know every one of those doobers, I lived at Pampa and that bunch of Shriners there used to 'shoot craps' and play 'penny ante' poker, and that is all any of them ever done. They don't know there is but the two games in existence. They got this base ball ideas from the funny papers." Judge Ewing says, "Court will be in a very busy session at Miami, but if the local club needs my service, court can be discontinued, and all my energy, enthusiasm and physical training will go into this game."

Dave Lard and Jim Coffee take the matter more serious than others, and are seeing that none but the older and experienced men are put in the team. They don't like the idea of young men like Clarence Locke, Lee Newman and Harry Craig trying to get into this ball game. Messrs. Lard and Coffee say the situation is grave and needs the most serious consideration, but each are now wearing a banner, "Win we must." Sheriff L. A. Coffee promises to have sufficient deputies present to insure Miami the game.

There were other Shriners who called our office this morning early, shouting their enthusiasm, such as Old Man Heare, Judge Woods Coffee and Cashier Thos. J. Boney of the Bank of Miami, but we haven't space to quote them all. Shriner, Rev. J. W. Whately, Justice of the Peace, Ex. P. M. and former citizen of New Mexico and Oklahoma will likely umpire the game, and has already put up an appearance bond. He did not intend for it to be published when he said, "I fought in the Civil war; My blood boiled over for a fight in the World War, but never was I more anxious to go to battle than I am with those Pampa Shriners. I never gambled in my life, but if Pampa will bring some money down they can carry back my bank account and get a deed to my home if they win. We are going to win honest if we can, but we are going to win." Everybody is invited to the game, and a real good time is promised.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE NEXT WEEK

SCHOOL STARTS THE 12TH. Canyon is preparing this week for the big consolidated Teachers Institute which will meet there next Monday. The Institute this year will have 23 counties represented, the largest it has ever had, and all teachers are required to attend.

Teacher salaries start next Monday, and by a ruling of the State Superintendent, they must attend the Institute.

County Superintendent J. K. McKenzie will attend from Roberts county, together with the teachers of our county. Some splendid features are offered in this meeting. Reduced railroad rates are promised for the meeting, and the attendance will be very large.

COW BOY ROUND-UP AT AMARILLO

Amarillo, Texas, Aug. 31.—Just now the Big Cow Boys Round-up and Reunion, which is to be held in Amarillo, September, 5th to 10th inclusive, promises to be the one big event of the season. At least that is the way the boys feel about it now. The Round-up and Reunion is to be held in connection with Amarillo's Labor and Industrial Show, and nothing has been overlooked that would in any way tend to detract from the success of the affair.

J. W. Cummings of the Central Labor Temple, as well as an able corps of assistants, has been busy for a number of weeks arranging the program, and it is safe to say that their efforts will not be fruitless.

Rodgers and Hart are men already on the ground with two hundred and fifty head of livestock, and some of the West's noted outlaws will be found in the number. There will be roping, riding, bull dogging and everything that a bunch of real live western cow punchers can do. The lady steer riders will in all probability attract as much attention as any one thing. Among those who will take part are Newt Gray, Tulia; Chas. Hart, Clovis, N. M.; Lena Flemlister, Fort Worth; Jim Massie of Snyder, and a score of others. Jim Massie, the Panhandle's most famous bull dogger, carried away first money at Clovis, doing the job in just 12 1-2 seconds.

At this time it is thought that there will be at least twenty-five thousand visitors present during the week, and unbounded success is assured. Local business men have been supporting the move in a most loyal manner, and the Industrial Show alone will be worth the money, it will be second to none ever staged in the Panhandle.

Every day there will be races. Motorcycles and cars are beginning to arrive, and some of the best riders and drivers in the west will be here. There will be plenty fun and entertainment for everybody, and the invitation to be present is extended to every man, woman and nchild in the Southwest.

A LONG FACE NEVER EARNED A PENNY!

And a grouch never helped a human being. You can afford a smile even if you do not feel like it. A smile does not cost you anything, yet it has business value. The chap who ducks up smiling when everybody is pulling long faces is the chap you want to do business with.

The grouch only begets grouches and grouchers. Look out you are not infected by the grouch. His pessimism is more dangerous than bolshevism, mosquitos and fake "hootech" combined.

Smile when you mean it, and smile when you don't, and keep right on with a cheerful mug. It is good business. It helps your digestion. And it makes you welcome everywhere, Advises SUGARMANS INDICATOR.

HOBART BOSWORTH A DEEP-SEA DIVER IN "BELOW THE SURFACE"

Rugged Star Has Powerful Role in His New Thos. H. Ince Picture.

Hobart Bosworth is the star in "Below the Surface," coming to the Pastime Theatre next Monday. The picture is declared to be a powerful dramatic and as artistically produced as Mr. Bosworth's previous Thomas H. Ince vehicle, "Behind the Door."

The story centers around Martin Flint, played by the star, and his son, Luther, deep-sea divers living in a small New England village. Martin's rescue of the crew of a navy submarine by means of a record dive brings him to the attention of an unscrupulous promoter, James Arnold, who approaches the diver with a proposition to salvage the treasure in an old wreck. Martin denounces the enterprise as foolhardy, but Luther, lured on by Edna Gordon, an underworld character who accompanies Arnold, agrees to make the dive. As a reward Edna marries Luther, despite Martin's objections.

Luther collapses in his attempt to reach the treasure. Edna deserts him. Martin traces the girl to Boston, bundles her onto the steamer, and starts back with her. Arnold secretly follows on the same boat. The steamer is wrecked and Arnold and Edna are drowned together. Martin escapes. Luther insists upon diving for his wife's body, and, doing so, discovers evidence of her perfidy. The boy's air-line becoming fouled, Martin rescues him from sure death.

A notable cast supports Mr. Bosworth, including Grace Darmond, Lloyd Hughes, Gladys George, and George Webb.

Flubb: "How did Dudley manage to escape jury duty?"

Dubb: "His wife was drawn on the same panel and he convinced the judge they could never agree on anything."

Motor Fuel is Real Problem

Temporary Gasoline Excess Now Does Not Solve the Question for the Future.

UNMINED RESERVE LIMITED

If Oil Was Extracted From Ground at Rate Equal to That of 1920 the Reserve Would Only Last 13 Years.

By E. H. LESLIE, Associate Professor of Chemical Engineering, University of Michigan.

At present petroleum is being produced faster than it is used, and stocks of gasoline are increasing. Crude oil produced in Oklahoma has dropped in price from $1.50 a $1.00 per barrel, and the price of gasoline has been lowered several cents per gallon. But one should not be misled by the present situation, which is only a part of the business cycle through which we are passing. It is a peculiarity of the oil-producing business that the drilling of new wells reaches a maximum at the crest, or even after the crest, of the curve of prosperity. The result is an overproduction of crude oil in the time of depression. Prices drop, profits vanish, and new drilling stops. But within a year or two the pendulum swings the other way, and again there is a scarcity of oil due to the interruption of drilling in the time of depression. This cycle of events would take place even if there were an endless supply of crude oil underground.

Real Fuel Problem. The real motor fuel problem is not concerned with the swings of the business pendulum, although the present abundance of fuel is pointed to by superficial critics as showing how wrong have been the predictions of the scientists that have warned us of a future shortage.

The problem arises in part through the fact that the underground reserve of petroleum is limited. At present the unmined reserve of the United States is only about 5,800,000,000 barrels. Were this oil to be extracted from the ground at a rate equal to that of the year 1920, a feat that is quite out of the question from a practical standpoint, the reserve would only last 13 years. It is thus evident, however, that after a few years we must expect a decline in the domestic production of petroleum.

On the other hand, the use of automobiles, tractors, trucks and gasoline engines is becoming more general. Today the total number of registered motor vehicles is over nine millions, an almost unbelievable increase in the short period of 25 years. What is more, the number is still growing, and will probably exceed 13,000,000 within a few years.

Where are we to get the fuel to run this vast number of cars?

The quality of market gasoline will not change greatly in the next few years, at least not until the automotive engineers perfect devices that will handle heavier and less volatile gasoline satisfactorily.

In spite of the fact that for several years the United States has produced two-thirds of the world's oil, we have recently been dependent upon foreign sources of supply of crude oil. Eighty per cent of the world's oil is consumed in this country. In 1920 our imports were 110,000,000 barrels, or 25 per cent of our domestic production. This oil came largely from Mexico. As the years pass, the United States will become more and more dependent upon imports of petroleum. This will mean higher prices and therefore necessitate more efficient utilization once the oil is in this country.

Other Sources of Fuel.

What other possible sources of fuel are there? Much has been heard of shale oil and of alcohol. Neither of these commodities will be important as motor fuels until many far-reaching developments have taken place. The development of a shale oil industry on a scale sufficient to furnish large quantities of motor fuel is an undertaking

Green Apples Saved Boy Run Over by Automobile

Green apples saved Charles Mabley, twelve years old, of Duncanville, Pa., from serious injury, if not from death, when a good-luck horseshoe led him into danger.

The boy spied the horseshoe in the road, darted out to get it, and was struck by an automobile driven by Harry Bowman, chief of police of Holidaysburg, Pa.

Mabley was dragged some distance and then let go, one wheel passing over his body. He had half a peck of green apples in his shirt which acted as a cushion and saved him from serious harm.

comparable to the creation of the whole coal mining industry of today. And to produce alcohol we must first have available suitable raw material. It is quite out of the question to make large quantities of fuel alcohol from food materials, such as grain and potatoes. Possibly wood may be the future source of alcohol, and reforestation of waste areas the means of supplying the wood.

Lastly, it is probable that necessity will be the mother of invention in methods of utilizing fuels. Present engines and devices for carburetion will be modified in such a way that where we now drive a car 10 to 20 miles on a gallon of gasoline, we shall later be satisfied only with 20 to 40 miles. The chemist will be called upon to study what happens within the engine cylinders and to find means of producing more salutary results.

Next October will be a fateful month for then the names of the villagers who are to have the leading roles in the spectacle will be announced.

To be selected to enact the role of Jesus Christ or one of the apostles is a far greater honor to an Oberammergau man than election to the Presidency of Germany or any other office within the gift of the entire German people.

And any woman of Oberammergau would far rather be chosen to play the role of Mary or Martha or Mary Magdalene than to be in the position of Frau Ebert as mistress of the President's palace in Berlin.

Many of the actors in the Passion Play next year will doubtless be the same as those in the cast when the play was last produced in 1910. Anton Lang, who enacted the role of Jesus Christ in 1900 and 1910, will probably be chosen for the part again, as he is still young enough to undertake the arduous task and looks the part so well that younger aspirants are not likely to displace him.

Candidates for "Mary."

Ottile Zwick, who played the role of Mary in 1910, has married since that time. No married woman can play a role. Consequently all the young women of Oberammergau with ability and experience as actresses are eagerly trying to qualify for the highly important part. Paula Rendl, daughter of Peter Rendl, the sculptor, who was Joseph of Arimathea in the play of 1910 and enacted the role of St. John twenty-one years ago, is one of the most promising candidates for the role of Mary. Fraulein Redl has shown great ability in minor religious plays, which are produced constantly by the Oberammergau folk as a means of training actors for the Passion Play.

Marie Mayr, who played the role of Mary Magdalene in the 1910 production, also has married and is living in Chicago. Marie Schmidt, who was the Veronica in the last production, also has married.

Eighty-two of the Oberammergau men died during the war, and many of the older actors of the last production will be disqualified by age for important roles. Consequently there are scores of places in the cast to which young men with ability as actors may aspire. They have begun to let hair grow. Wigs and makeup are not permitted by the directors of the Passion Play.

Practically all the older men who had important parts in the last production have never cut their hair. Many of them have retained their long beards and pride themselves on their resemblance to the biblical characters they have depicted.

Editors Get Day Off. Rio de Janeiro.—Work in newspaper offices in Rio de Janeiro between eight o'clock Sunday morning and eight o'clock Monday morning is prohibited under the provisions of an act passed by the municipal council.

ADAPTABLE ALL-DAY DRESSES POPULAR WITH BUSY WOMEN

Now enters, with assurance, the trim and handsome all-day, one-piece frock for fall, made of the same cloths as suits, and equal to playing their part. In their company are other daytime dresses, more elaborate, destined to share responsibilities with the formal suit in the winter wardrobe—but they are another story. The all-day dress makes a strong appeal to busy American women, who have no inclination or time for changing often and primping, but are determined, nevertheless, to be well-dressed in their utility clothes.

Nearly all these one-piece dresses are cut in the straight-line style, but there are some very handsome models among them with a picturesque flare in their skirts. In this case we are more than likely to find them handsomely embroidered. The newly arrived frock shown in the picture, strikes a happy medium—with a very slight flare in the

SPORT SUITS ARE IMMENSELY POPULAR FOR COLLEGE WEAR

All wardrobes are more or less permeated with a strong flavor of sports clothes, and in that of the college girl it is decidedly more. They suit her and she suits them, therefore the quiet paths of learning are destined to be brightened up this fall with snappy suits and hats a bit rakish. The style of clothes of this character, at once casual and spirited, strikes the right note for American young women, their endless variation keeps up a lively interest in them and makes them more and more successful.

One of the suits that is sure to please the college girl is among the earliest arrivals for fall and is pictured here. The neat, crossbar skirt, in two colors, makes all sorts of opportunity for color combinations and the coat of jersey cloth is selected to match either of the colors in the skirt, usually the darker and less vivid one. It is worth while to note the small details that distinguish this suit, the patch pockets bordered with pointed straps made of the material of the skirt, the cuffs and notched revers of the same. The vest of net and lace may take the place of a blouse when the coat is worn indoors—it is immensely becoming. The skirt is shoe top length—when the shoes are high of sports clothes, and in that of the college girl it is decidedly more. They suit her and she suits them, therefore the quiet paths of learning are destined to be brightened up this fall with snappy suits and hats a bit rakish. The style of clothes of this character, at once casual and spirited, strikes the right note for American young women, their endless variation keeps up a lively interest in them and makes them more and more successful.

Highway Improvement

GOOD ROADS SAVE MUCH

Trucks Use Twice as Much Fuel on Dirt Highways as on Roads Built of Concrete.

That good roads cut the cost of gasoline more than 50 per cent, as stated by "Freight Transportation Digest," a loaded two-ton truck used in a test and in running miles on an earth road consumed gallons of gasoline, making an average of 5.78 miles a gallon. The same truck was used on a concrete road and traveled the same distance on 8.49 gallons of gasoline, making 11.78 miles per gallon. On this basis, figured on the basis, was $2.12. The net saving cost of gasoline on the improved way was therefore $2.21, or more than 100 per cent.

Statisticians could step in here and conjure a colossal sum to repay the savings in gasoline cost if highways of the United States were paved, remarks the Columbus Dispatch. They could, for instance assume that all of the one-half million trucks in the country were motor trucks, and on this basis work out a saving in gasoline costs equal to a couple of Liberty loan issues.

This enormous reduction in gas costs, coupled with the ability to handle loads with less traction, has become one of the strongest arguments for good roads. The tests cited in this instance show conclusively that poor roads are expensive to the farmer and merchant. The farmer who hauls with a motor truck is getting only one-eighth of the profit he could get and the merchant and inter-city freight truck operator are paying out twice what they should for gasoline and are getting only one-eighth of the profit they could get.

GOOD GUIDE FOR TRAVELERS

Arrows on Signs Mark Detour on Iowa's Highways and Point Out Proper Direction.

All detours around roads closed in Iowa are carefully marked for the guidance and protection of travelers. Signs are erected at intervals so that the proper direction be taken with the slightest deviation from the regular route. The signs, furnished by the state to the counties at cost, have a yellow arrow pointing against a black ground, with the word "detour" above and below the arrow.

The blank sign furnished to the counties is shown in the upper illustration and as used, in the lower. The larger illustration shows how the signs are disposed to guide travelers around a closed road.

When the sign has been placed on the road, the arrow pointing in the proper direction, the "detour" below is painted with black paint. The name of the place the arrow is pointing to is stenciled in the arrow.—Popular Mechanics

MATHEMATICS OF BAD ROAD

Farmer Solves Problem of Hours Wasted in Making Trip Over Road That is Deep in Mud.

If it takes a farmer, making a round trip through the mud one hour and a half longer than when the roads are dry, how many hours are lost in a year never makes a round trip a month? What would be the monetary loss if each 1 1/2 hours were estimated at 75 cents per hour? This proposition gave our old farmer a good deal of trouble, but he finally worked it out thus: One farmer's trip, multiplied by 12 months equals 12 trips, multiplied by 1,000 farms equals 12,000 trips, multiplied by 1,000 hours lost; going a step further, multiplying 12,000 by 75 cents, you have $900,000 per annum lost by the farmers. Our old cat is now pondering how many road bonds he would like to see issued at 5 per cent interest.—Union Times.

Points of Interest Marked. Practically every point of interest within a radius of 75 miles from Philadelphia is distinctly marked on a map of the tourist and the college girl whose opportunities for keeping things neatly pressed are few.

Detroit Best Regulated. Detroit has the reputation of being one of the best regulated traffic centers in the country.

Pays Good Dividends. A good home fruit and vegetable garden is paying good dividends over time and labor invested there.

Stray Baggage Always Has Most Valuables.

New York.—"Every trunk that's lost contains diamonds, neckties and all that," said the baggage man at the Grand Central terminal. "That is, they're supposed to. Anxious passengers whose trunks have been sidetracked tell us of all the wonderful things they contain. But the funny thing is that when the trunks are finally located it's usually found that dresses, shirts and things of that nature were about all that were in them; after all. Many of those who reclaim their stray trunks tell us so themselves. Examination proves it in other cases. It just goes to show that the loser always exaggerates his losses."

Some Who Played Leading Roles in Last Production Are Disqualified by Age or for Other Reasons—Lang to Be Christ.

Oberammergau, Bavaria.—Thirty performances of the Passion Play have been scheduled for 1922 by the committee of twenty-one which is directing the spectacle, but this number will be increased if the attendance demands, as was the case both in 1900 and 1910.

It will require an outlay of 1,500,000 marks to stage the Oberammergau play and the villagers are extremely anxious about the German political situation lest conditions be such that foreigners will not attend.

The 300 burghers, who constitute the descendants of the original peasants who made the vow to produce the play decennially, personally assume the responsibility for this expenditure, and the failure to attract sufficient visitors to meet the cost would result in the bankruptcy of practically the entire

STIRRING ROMANCE OF TWO CONTINENTS

My dear friend: I will not believe that your fate is an evil one, that the law will grind you between the millstones of guilt and dishonor; but if the law should call you guilty, I still will not believe...

Yes, she and I are saying good-by to Ireland. That's why I think she might have let me see you before we went; but since it must not be, well, then, it must not. But we shall meet again. In my soul I know that on the hills somewhere far off, as on the first day we met, we shall meet each other once more. Where are we going? Oh, very far! We are going to my Uncle Bryan—Bryan Lynn, in Virginia...

We shall know your fate only through the letters that will follow us, but I will not believe in your bad luck. Listen to me—why don't you come to America also?...

So keep this matter in your mind, as my mother and I will soon be gone. She would not let me come to you—I think I have never seen her so disturbed as when I asked her—and she forbade me to write to you; but I disobey her. Well, this is a sad business. I know my mother has suffered. I know her married life was unhappy, and that her husband—my father—died many a year ago, leaving a dark trail of regret behind him; but, you see, I never knew my father. That was all long ago, and it is a hundred times best forgotten.

Our ship sails for Virginia in three days, and I must go. I will keep looking back to the prison where I lie, charged with an evil crime, of which he is not guilty, a young man for whom I shall carry the spirit of good friendship.

Do not believe all will not go well. The thing to do is to keep the courage of our hearts and the faith of our souls, and I hope I always shall. I believe in you, and, believing, I say good-by. I say farewell in the great hope that somehow, somewhere, we shall help each other on the way of life. God be with you! I am your friend,

SHEILA LYNN.

So wrote the beautiful Sheila to Dyck Calhoun in prison—the beautiful young Irish girl with her wonderful brown hair and her blue eyes that showed the loyal soul of her and her lovely mouth that had Cupid's bow. Read between the lines of it and see if it is not a letter to put courage and hope into a manly young fellow's heart—even if he is behind bars charged with murder. But though Dyck's heart thrilled over the letter, the words comforted him not at all, for there was more to the killing than Sheila knew. Innocent he was, but the future looked dark to Dyck.

And his foresight was good. He refuses for Sheila's sake to reveal what would have given him freedom. He is sent to prison for eight years. He is released after four years to find his father dead and his estate gone. A letter comes from Sheila; it invites him to Virginia and sends money. Sheila does not know why Dyck cannot go to her. Dyck enlists in the British army. There is mutiny in the West Indies he helps win a victory over the French fleet, is thanked by the admiral—and is put under arrest as a mutineer. The swift march of events finds Dyck and Sheila in Jamaica, still separated by the mystery of the murder, with an added complication in the form of Lord Mallow, the governor, who is Dyck's old enemy and the girl's suitor.

In short, this is one of Sir Gilbert Parker's good romances. There are many British knights and baronets of Canadian birth, but his title is unique because given him for literary accomplishment. Sir Gilbert has written about thirty novels and is as popular in America as in Great Britain and Canada.

CHAPTER I.

The Two Meet.

Well, good-by, Dyck. I'll meet you at the sessions, or before that at the country? Lord knows, we deserve a chance, for it's hard paying the duties these days. What with France in revolution and reaching out her hand to Ireland to coax her into rebellion; what with defeat in America and drink in Scotland; what with poverty, and the cow and children and father and mother living all in one room, with the chickens roosting in the rafters; what with pointing the potato at the fried fish and gulping it down as if it was fish itself; what with the smell and the dirt and the poverty of Dublin and Derry, Limerick and Cork—ah, well! He threw his eyes up again. "Ah, well, my little love, sing on! You're a blessing among a lot of curses; but never mind, it's a fine world, and Ireland's the best part of it. Heaven knows it—and on this hill, how beautiful it is!"

How was now on the top of a hill where he could look out toward the bog and in toward the mellow, waving hills. He could drink in the yellowish green, with here and there in the distance a little house; and about two miles away smoke stealing up from the midst of the plantation where Playmore was—Playmore, his father's house—to be his own one day.

Dyck Calhoun had a soul of character, originality and wayward distinction. He had all the impulses and enthusiasms of a poet, all the thirst for excitement of the adventurer, all the latent patriotism of the true Celt; but his life was undisciplined, and he had not ordered his spirits into compartments of faith and hope. He had gifts. They were gifts only to be borne by those who had ambitions.

Now, as he looked out upon the scene where nature was showing herself at her best, some glimmer of a great future came to him. He did not know which way his feet were destined to travel in the business of life. It was too late to join the navy; but there was still time enough to be a soldier, or to learn to be a lawyer.

Suddenly, as he listened to the lark singing overhead, with his face lifted to the sky, he heard a human voice singing; and presently there ran up a little declivity to his left a girl—an Irish girl of about seventeen years of age.

Her hat was hanging on her arm by a green ribbon. Her head was covered with the most wonderful brown, waving hair. She had a broad, low forehead, Greek in its proportions and lines. The eyes were bluer even than his own, and were shaded by lashes of great length, which slightly modified the firm lines of the face, with its admirable chin, and mouth somewhat large with a cupid's bow.

In spite of its ardent and luscious look, it was the mouth of one who knew her own mind and could sustain her own course. It was open when Dyck first saw it, because she was singing little bits of wild lyrics of the hills, little tragedies of Celtic life—just bursts of the Celtic soul, as it were, cheerful yet sad, buoyant and passionate, eager yet melancholy. She was singing in Irish, too. They were the words of songs taught her by her mother's maid.

She had been tramping over the hills for a couple of hours, virtuous and alone. She wore a gown of dark gold, with little green ribbons here and there. The gown was short, and her ankles showed. In spite of the strong boots she wore they were alert, delicate and shapely, and all her beauty had the slender fullness of a quail.

When she saw Dyck she stopped suddenly, her mouth slightly open. She gave him a sidelong glance of wonder, interest and speculation. Then she threw her head slightly back, and all the curls gathered in a bunch, and shook like bronze flowers. It was a head of grace and power, of charm and allurements—of danger.

Dyck was lost in admiration. He looked at her as one might look at a beautiful thing in a dream. He did not speak; he only smiled as he gazed into her eyes.

She was the first to speak. "Well, who are you?" she asked with a slightly southern accent in her voice, delicate and entrancing.

He was a man of irascible temperament and stern views, given to fits of exasperation. He was small of stature, with a round face, eyes that suddenly went red with feeling, and with none of the handsomeness of his son, who resembled his mother's side of the family.

The mother herself had been a beautiful and remarkable woman. Dyck was, in a sense, a reproduction of her

Down the long road the two young people traveled, gossiping much, both of them touched by something sad and mysterious, neither knowing why; both of them happy, too, for somehow they had come nearer together than years of ordinary life might have made possible. They broke into talk of their own countryside, of the war with France, of the growing rebellious spirit in Ireland, of riots in Dublin town, of trouble at Limerick, Cork and Sligo.

At the gate of the mansion where Sheila was visiting, Dyck put into her hands the wild flowers he had picked as they passed, and said:

"Well, it's been a great day. I've never had a greater. Let's meet again, and soon! I'm almost every day upon the hill with my gun, and it'd be worth a lot to see you soon—very soon."

"Oh, you'll be forgetting me by tomorrow," the girl said with a little wistfulness at her lips, for she had a feeling they would not meet on the morrow. Suddenly she picked from the bunch of wild flowers he had given her a little sprig of heather.

"Well, if we don't meet—wear that," she said, and, laughing over her shoulder, turned and ran into the grounds of Loyland towers.

CHAPTER II.

The Coming of a Messenger.

When Dyck entered the library at Playmore, the first words he heard were these:

"Howe has licked the French at Brest. He's smashed the French fleet and dealt a sharp blow to the revolution. Hurrah!"

The words were used by Miles Calhoun, Dyck's father, as a greeting to him on his return from the day's sport.

Now, if there was a man in Ireland who had a narrow view and kept his toes pointed to the front, it was Miles Calhoun. His people had lived in Conemara for hundreds of years, and he himself had only one passion in life, which was the Protestant passion of prejudice. He had ever been a follower of Burke—a passionate follower, one who believed the French Revolution was a crime against humanity, a danger to the future of civilization, a miserable orgy of unworthy millions.

He had resisted more vigorously than most men the progress of revolutionary sentiments in Ireland. He was aware that his son had far less rigid opinions than himself; that he even defended Wolfe Tone and Thomas Emmet against abuse and damnation. That was why he had delight in slapping his son in the face, whenever possible, with the hot pennant of victory for British power.

He was a man of irascible temperament and stern views, given to fits of exasperation. He was small of stature, with a round face, eyes that suddenly went red with feeling, and with none of the handsomeness of his son, who resembled his mother's side of the family.

answered his host with a little air of ostentation.

"Oh, you're one of the Peep-o-Day Boys, then," remarked Mallow.

"I'm not saying that," answered the old man. "I'm not an Ulsterman, but I celebrate the coming of William to the Boyne. Things were done that day that'll be remembered when Ireland is whisked away into the kingdom of Heaven. So you'll not go to bed till you've had dinner, Mr. Mallow! Dinner at five, to bed at eight, up before daylight, and off to Dublin when the light breaks. That's the course!" He turned to Captain Ivy. "I'm sorry, captain, but there's naught else to do, and you were going tomorrow at noon, anyhow, so it won't make much difference to you."

"It will make no difference whatever," replied the sailorman. "I have to go to Dublin, too, and from there to Queenstown to join my ship, and from Queenstown to the coast of France to do some fighting."

"Please God!" remarked Miles Calhoun.

"So be it!" declared Mallow. "Amen!" said Dyck.

Once again Dyck looked the visitor straight in the eyes, and far back in the horizon of Mallow's life—sky there shone for an instant the light of an evil star.

"There's the call to dinner," remarked Miles Calhoun, as a bell began ringing in the tower outside. "Come with me, Mr. Mallow, and I'll show you your room."

"Sheila—Sheila!" said Dyck Calhoun to himself where he stood.

CHAPTER III.

The Duel.

The journey to Dublin was made by the Calhouns, their two guests, and Michael Clones, without incident of note. Arrived there, Miles Calhoun gave himself to examination by government officials and to assisting the designs of the Peep-o-Day Boys; and indeed he was present at the formation of the first Orange lodge.

His narrow nature, his petty craft and malevolence, were useful in a time of anxiety for the state. Yet he had not enough ability to develop his position by the chances offered him. He had not a touch of genius; he had only bursts of Celtic passion, which he had not mind enough to control.

Indeed, as days, weeks and months went on, his position became less valuable to himself, and his financial affairs suffered from his own and his agent's bad management. In his particular district he was a power; in Dublin he soon showed the weaker side of his nature. He had a bad habit of making foes where he could easily have made friends. In his personal habits he was sober, but erratic.

Dyck had not his father's abstention from the luxuries of life. He drank, he gamed, he went where temptation was, and fell into it. He steadily diminished his powers of resistance to self-indulgence until one day, at a tavern, he met a man who made a great impression upon him.

This man was brilliant, ebullient, full of humor, character and life, knowing apparently all the lower world of Dublin, and moving with an assured step. It was Erris Boyne, the divorced husband of Mrs. Lynn and the father of Sheila Lynn; but this fact was not known to Dyck. There was a chance of its not becoming known, because so many years had passed since Erris Boyne was divorced.

Dyck and Lord Mallow quarrel and settle it with swords.

Van Dyck Supreme.

Van Dyck has been rated the greatest portrait painter of all time with the possible exception of Titian.

Down the Long Road the Two Young People Traveled.

In body and mind, for a more cheerful and impetuous person never made a household happier or more imperfect than she made hers.

As the elder Calhoun made his announcement about the battle of Brest and the English victory, a triumphant smile lighted his flushed face, and under his heavy gray brows his eyes danced with malicious joy.

"Howe's a wonder!" he said. "He'll make those savage, mad, red republicans hunt their holes. Eh, isn't that your view, Ivy?" he asked of a naval captain who had evidently brought the news.

Captain Ivy nodded.

"Yes, it's a heavy blow for the French bloodsuckers. If their ideas creep through Europe and get hold of England, God only knows what the end will be! In their view, to alter everything that exists is the only way to put things right."

At that moment the door opened, and a servant entered the room. In his hand he carried a letter which, with marked excitement, he brought to Miles Calhoun.

"Sure, he's waiting, sir," he said.

"Your obedient servant."

"JOHN M'NOWELL."

"You have confidence in the people's loyalty here?" asked Mallow.

"As great as in my own," answered Dyck cheerily.

"Well, you ought to know what that is. At the same time, I've heard you're a friend of one or two dark spirits in the land."

"I hold no friendships that would do hurt to my country," answered Dyck sharply.

Mallow smiled sardoniously. "As we're starting at daylight, I suppose, I think I'll go to bed, if it may be you can put me up."

"Oh, Lord, yes! We can put you up, Mr. Mallow," remarked the old man. "You shall have as good a bed as you can find outside the viceregal lodge—a four-poster, very wide and very long. But, Mr. Mallow, you haven't announced that you've had dinner, and you'll not be going to bed in this house without your food. This is a day when we celebrate the anniversary of Irish power and life."

"What's that?" asked Mallow.

Over at Memphis recently someone shot several shots from a pistol into the home of the county attorney. Citizens are offering $1000 reward. We hope the offender is caught, given a life sentence and his remains destined to the Devil's care thereafter.

Some people live poor and die rich. Others live rich and die poor. There may be a great satisfaction to lie on your bed and know that you have slaved all your life to save a few thousand dollars, but personally, we would rather spend some of it while we live. It is a pleasure to spend money in this life, but we can't figure just what there is going to be for sale in the next.

One of the good things about Roberts County, is that it has been organized thirty years, and yet there has never been a murder or homicide tried in our courts that was committed in the county. That is truly a splendid record, and shows that the citizenship are law abiding, and that should one of criminal nature come here to live, he is either influenced toward good by the environment around him, or else moves away.

As for us: Every chigger we can find is in danger of his life, provided we can find a big enough rock to beat the brains out of that chigger.

Lee Satterwhite, State Representative from the Amarillo District, who recently sold the Panhandle Herald announced last week that he would move his residence to Amarillo. We heard Lee make some talks at the Panhandle Press Meeting, about the big and wonderful oil and gas field of Panhandle, and how that next year Panhandle might agree to let Amarillo be incorporated as one of her small town additions, and now we are just wondering why Lee will move from Panhandle to a little old Berg like Amarillo.

The Santa Fe has been coming to the aid of the farmers of late regarding cars. We have heard no complaint the past two weeks. There is also reported plenty of cars at other stations on this line, and it looks like this big railroad system will meet most any emergency if given a few days notice.

A RECIPE FOR HOME BREW

A Missouri friend sends us this recipe for making home brew:

Chase a wild bull frog three miles and gather up the hops, to them add ten gallons of tan bark, half pint of shellac, bar of home-made soap, boil thirty-six hours, then strain them through an I. W. W. sock to keep them from working, then bottle and add one grass hopper to each pint to give it a kick.—Author Still at Large.

MIAMI O. E. S. GOES TO MOBEETIE

In response to an invitation from the Mobeetie Chapter Order of the Eastern Star, to the Miami Chapter to come and visit their chapter, and at the same time put on the initiation work for a class of candidates, quite a delegation went over Tuesday evening.

The crowd met promptly at 7 o'clock in front of the Masonic Hall, for the drive to Mobeetie, seven car loads made up of Eastern Star members and Masons making the trip.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Dunn and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Johnson received the degrees of the order.

After the initiation ceremony, which is always beautiful and impressive, an informal reception was held during which every one got acquainted and those who had known each other for years renewed old times.

Including the crowd from Miami and other visiting guests, there was something like seventy-five people present. The refreshment committee who served us so bountifully with ice cream and cake insisted that we eat all that had been prepared, but it was simply beyond us, and when we left there was still one full freezer of cream and numerous cakes still uncut.

Mobeetie is one of the oldest towns in the Panhandle and her people have always been noted for their hospitality. In this instance they lived up to their reputation and the Miami crowd was unanimous in their verdict that it had been a most delightful occasion.

"MORE DEADLY THAN THE MALE" ETHEL CLAYTON'S PICTURE

Pretty Star Featured in Story of Love and Adventure Coming Here Ethel Clayton's new picture, "More Deadly Than the Male," is coming to the Pastime Theatre Saturday. It was adapted from a story that appeared in a popular fiction magazine recently and concerns a high-spirited girl who concocted a clever scheme by which to prevent the man for whom she secretly cared from going to South Africa in search of adventure. Miss Clayton has the role of the heroine, Helen O'Hara. She meets

Richard Carlin, an old friend and a restless adventurer, and urges him to settle down to some useful occupation, telling him there are more thrills to be found in ordinary life than in the African wilds. He refuses to believe her, but gives her an opportunity to prove her words. Adventures in rapid-fire order follow. The ending of the picture is said to provide a startling surprise.

Edward Hoxen appears as Miss Clayton's leading man and others in the cast are Herbert Heyes, Hallam Cooley, and Peggy Pearce. The picture was directed by Robert G. Vignola and is a Paramount-Artercraft.

Ralph Strader of Amarillo is visiting the O'Loughlin boys this week.

Ed Blair went to dinner Monday in the Moon delivery wagon. He did not give the little Ford any dinner, and when he cranked it up to return to town, it just made a run for Ed and dubbed him all over the yard, running over him with two wheels. Ed was not hurt, but acknowledges that he was scared pretty bad.

L. B. Broadus has rented the residence formerly owned by H. T. Gill, and will move to town to school next week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Short of Amarillo visited Miami friends Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Edge left yesterday for Mineral Wells where they expect to spend the winter.

LAST MONTH, on a bet, WITH THE boys up home, I SPENT a night, ALONE IN the old, HAUNTED HOUSE, AND WHEN I heard, MOANS AND groans, I SAID "The wind," AND TRIED to sleep, I HEARD rappings, AND SAID "Rats," AND ROLLED over, THEN I heard steps, AND IN the light, OF A dying moon, A WHITE spook rose, I WASN'T scared—much, BUT DIDN'T feel like, STARTING ANYTHING, BUT THEN I caught, JUST A faint whiff.

OF A familiar, AND DELICIOUS smell, WHICH TIPPED me off, SO I gave the ghost, THE HORSE laugh, AND SAID "Ed, YOU FAT guys, MAKE BUM ghosts, BUT BEFORE you fade, LEAVE WITH me one, OF YOUR cigarettes, THEY SATISFY."

The AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

ACTOR BECOMES LEGION MAN

Frank Tinney, Member of New York City Post Lines Up Many of His Buddies.

The man with the smile is Frank Tinney. Broadway theatre-goers are familiar with the Tinney expanse of countenance and so are various former members of the army and navy, with both of which branches Tinney served in the late lamented guerre. Tinney is herewith snapped in the very act of joining the American Legion. F. W. Galbraith Jr. post, New York City. C. R. Baines, general manager of the American Legion Weekly fastened the button in Tinney's coat.

The actor's war record is an unusual one. He enlisted soon after the outbreak of hostilities in the navy as seaman, third class. After a hitch in the army passport transport service, he was promoted to ensign and then to lieutenant, junior grade. After eleven months in the navy he was transferred by executive order to the army as captain in the intelligence service and assigned as morale officer to various camps in this country. He was discharged three months after the armistice, with commendations from the chief of the Intelligence Bureau and from the White House.

C. R. Baines and Frank Tinney.

Tinney has vigorously subscribed to the Legion motto: "Every member get a member" and has rounded up various members of the actors' colony who are eligible to Legion membership.

LEGION MAN LOST NO TIME

North Carolina Lieutenant Rose From Farmer Boy to Numerous Ranks During War.

From farmer boy to high school teacher and later a lawyer and from buck private to first lieutenant are the records of Cale K. Burgess, the first department commander of the American Legion in North Carolina, who was the pioneer Legionnaire in his state. Burgess is adjutant and finance officer of the North Carolina department.

Born July 15, 1891, at Old Trap, Camden County, N. C., Burgess was reared on a farm. He received his early education at the village public school and later was graduated from Whitsett Institute, from which he entered the University of North Carolina. He received his bachelor of arts degree in 1912 and taught science in the public high school at Raleigh two years, studying law at the same time. In September, 1913, he was granted a license to practice law in North Carolina and pursued the practice of his profession until July, 1917, when he enlisted as a private in the First N. C. F. A. N. G., which regiment was soon afterward mustered into Federal service as the 113th F. A., 30th Division.

During the St. Mihiel offensive he served as artillery liaison officer. In the Argonne offensive and until after the signing of the armistice he served as regimental intelligence officer. He was in service eighteen months and served as private, corporal, sergeant, battalion sergeant-major, regimental sergeant-major, second lieutenant and first lieutenant. With the latter rank he served as adjutant of his regiment during the last months of his service.

No Trespassers Allowed

One of the wings of the plane had broken, and its pilot, after crashing through a mass of planking and plaster, found himself resting on a concrete surface in utter darkness. "Where am I?" he asked feebly. "You're in my cellar," came an ominous voice out of the blackness. "But I'm watching you."—American Legion Weekly.

BOOSTING FOR LEGION MEN

Veteran of Royal Irish Rifles Seeks Recognition of Americans in the Canadian Service.

The German invasion of Belgium in August, 1914, found Mike Sullivan, veteran of the Royal Irish Rifles, managing a hotel on Broadway, New York. He chafed behind the register until a hot day in June, 1915, when he bade farewell to his wife and children, gave them the year's profits and sailed as a steward on a liner bound for Liverpool.

He worked his way to Aberdeen, Scotland, where, by citing his father's long service with the Gordon Highlanders, he persuaded the kilts to enlist him despite his forty-five years. Later he obtained transfer to the Eighty-third Royal Irish Rifles, with whom he had fought three years in South Africa, and sailed for France in August of 1915.

Wounded at Armentieres, he was sent back to the United States in 1916 as "undit for service." He spent a period in Mount Clemens hospital, was discharged and set out for Canada, where he persuaded the Three Hundred and Fifty-fifth Infantry, Canadian Expeditionary Force, to take him on. Overseas his old wound caused trouble, and he was sent back to the United States again, "undit," etc.

Arriving in America in 1918, he toured New York and vicinity for the Third Liberty loan, appearing in his kilts, singing trench songs and telling why the loan should be oversubscribed. With Congressman F. C. Hicks he likewise campaigned for the Fourth Liberty loan, resting up while the Victory loan was carried through to success.

COMMANDS NEW S. S. 'LEGION'

Captain Corkum Soon to Make Trip to South America—Sent Two Subs Down.

Capt. Alex C. Corkum, commander of the new S. S. "American Legion" which is soon to make its first trip to South America, is accredited with having sunk two German submarines while he was commander of the U. S. transport "Amphion" in naval transport service during the war.

Preparations are now under way for a two-day trial trip of the "American Legion" from Camden, N. J., where it was constructed by the New York Ship Building corporation for the United States shipping board. John G. Emery, national commander of the American Legion, together with other officials of the legion and representatives of this and other countries will be on board the ship during the trial trip.

EVERY MEMBER GET ANOTHER

Indications Are That Big Campaign Will Double Membership of American Legion.

The "every-member-get-a-member" campaign of the American Legion has begun, and reports received at the national headquarters at Indianapolis indicate that the purpose of the campaign, to double the membership, will soon be accomplished.

To double the membership of the Legion was the ardent wish of F. W. Galbraith Jr., late national commander, who was killed in an automobile accident at Indianapolis. His successor, John G. Emery of Grand Rapids, Mich., was probably the first member of the Legion to get a member when the present campaign opened.

Mr. Galbraith planned the campaign a short time before his death. He was anxious to have the membership doubled by October. It now appears that the campaign will end before that time.

In his statement setting out plans for the campaign, Mr. Galbraith said: "The Legion has earned the right to do something in a national way primarily in the interests of its organization, and the time has come to exercise that right. I propose to exercise it through a campaign of every-member-get-a-member. A tremendous undertaking you say. Yes, tremendously simple. Just an intensive effort when every Legion member in the world shall go out, lay a firm but friendly hand upon a buddy and sign him up. Every member get a member—and the job is done."

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promise of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parels Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores. Advertisement

Metal and Paper Money

Only gold coins are worth their face value by reason of the gold in them at the world rate of $20.67 an ounce. Silver and other coins do not have metal in them that equals their face value. Their value is depreciated by an over issue of paper currency, as has generally occurred in European countries, and by the demand for American dollars in bills of exchange to pay for American exports which have been greatly in excess of American imports. Under more normal conditions the demand for bills of exchange in America and other countries about balance, and keep most issues of money at a parity.

Busy Bertha

The dear old lady was traveling in a compartment of an English train and, what with her knitting and watching the scenery and her guide book, she was enjoying herself about as much as old ladies usually do. Then a young soldier, carrying a rifle, came in and sat opposite her. Immediately she stiffened up and presently said, in no unmistakable tone: "Sir, will you please put the nozzle of your gun out of the window?"—Harper's Magazine.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE LIFE

A Dangerous Period Through Which Every Woman Must Pass

Practical Suggestions Given by the Women Whose Letters Follow

Afton, Tenn.—"I want other suffering women to know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. During the Change of Life I was in bed for eight months and had two good doctors treating me but they did me no good. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and in a short time I felt better. I had all kinds of bad spells, but they all left me. Now when I feel weak and nervous I take the Vegetable Compound and it always does me good. I wish all women would try it during the Change of Life for I know it will do them good. If you think it will induce some one to try the Vegetable Compound you may publish this letter."—Mrs. A. KELLER, Afton, Tenn.

to carry women safely through the Change of Life. She says:

"It is with pleasure that I write to you thanking you for what your wonderful medicine has done for me. I was passing through the Change of Life and had a displacement and weakness so that I could not stand on my feet and other annoying symptoms. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the first bottle helped me, so I got more. It cured me and I am now doing my housework. Your medicine is certainly woman's friend and you may use this testimonial as you choose."—Mrs. MARY LISTER, 608 Frank Street, Adrian, Mich.

It is said that middle age is the most trying period in a woman's life, and owing to modern methods of living not one woman in a thousand passes through this perfectly natural change without experiencing very annoying symptoms. Those smothering spells, the dreadful hot flashes that send the blood rushing to the head until it seems as though it would burst, and the faint feeling that follows, as if the heart were going to stop, those sinking or dizzy spells are all symptoms of a nervous condition, and indicate the need for a special medicine.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a root and herb medicine especially adapted to act upon the feminine system. It acts in such a manner as to build up the weakened nervous system and enables a woman to pass this trying period with the least possible annoying symptoms.

Women everywhere should remember that most of the commoner ailments of women are not the surgical ones—they are not caused by serious displacements or growths, although the symptoms may be the same, and that is why so many apparently serious ailments readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it acts as a natural restorative and often prevents serious troubles.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent to you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts, This book contains valuable information.

REALLY A BRILLIANT IDEA

School-teacher Saw at Once the Particular Value of a Certain Somewhat Peculiar Toy.

It looked to her like a big idea. She had discovered one of those elusive, seductive, tantalizing little toys, so popular now, in which the mere spinning of it gives one opportunity to take one, take all, pay three, etc. Being an Indianapolis school-teacher, she immediately noted it as a novelty.

"Such a clever little thing," she said to the clerk. "I've never seen a top like it before. What are they for?" "Well, they're a sort of diversion," the saleswoman replied. "Many people use them financially."

"Oh, yes, of course, of course. How many of them have you? I was just teaching the children combinations in numbers—nice for arithmetic, as it were."—Indianapolis News.

Her Close Shave

A circus ticket seller related this incident. They were showing in a small town, and the admission was 50 cents, with children under ten, half-price. At the two o'clock performance a lad of fourteen put down 75 cents and asked for tickets for himself and his sister.

"How old is the little girl?" asked the ticket seller. "Well," said the boy, "to tell the truth today is her tenth birthday, but she wasn't born until five o'clock in the afternoon."—Boston Transcript.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

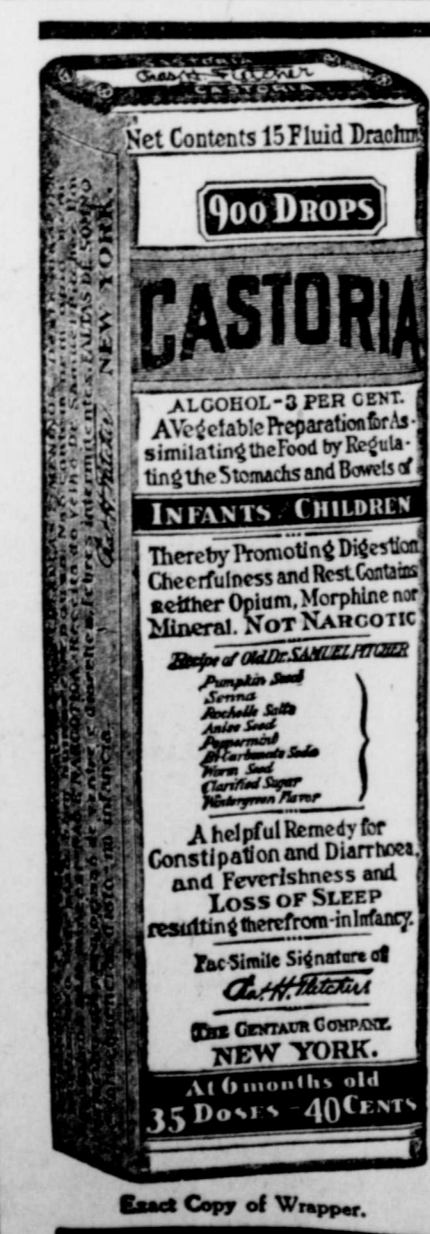

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

HIS OWN AND SOME OTHERS AMUSED HIS NAVAL HOSTS

Scenario Writer Had His Contribution Returned, With More Than Simple Interest.

Rex Beach, who has forsaken the profession of novelist for the more lucrative one of scenario writer, said in a Hollywood tea:

"It is a common enough thing for a good man to dash off a scenario in a week or so and get $10,000 for it, but scenario writing, nevertheless, isn't all beer and skittles."

Mr. Beach chuckled. "There's an English poet in our line, he said, 'who recently decided to make his debut in the film world. At the other day as I was lurching with a pen in the bell rang and the servant brought in a bulky envelope."

"The English poet examined the envelope and said, 'This is what I call rubbing it in.'"

"I snarled. 'I sent the Star Film Corporation four scenarios last week, and you returned them to me with a note that they haven't returned me a word!'"

"Insect Carries Bacteria. It appears that infection-spreading must be added to disastrous voracity our indictment of the striped cucumber beetle. The United States Department of Agriculture finds that the bacteria of cucumber-leaf wilt are carried in the jaws of this beetle, and in the testinal tract may survive the insect's hibernation, prepared to attack the first leaf of spring. This is the time when insects have been known to carry bacteria through the winter."

Taking a Chance. Junior was in the habit of coming to the table with a dirty face and, of course, had to be sent away to wash. One time his mother, nearly losing her patience, said: "Junior, why do you resist in coming to the table without washing? You know I always send you away."

"Well," said Junior, meekly, "once I forgot."—Chicago Tribune.

Lawmaker Eminently Justified His Reputation as a Man of Some Eccentric Doings.

One of the new members of the house of representatives, who is regarded as a somewhat eccentric person, was a continual source of astonishment aboard a transport on her trip to the bomb-dropping experiments off the Virginia capes. Examining an instrument aboard the vessel, and being informed it was a range finder, he inquired how far it would shoot. Being loaned a telescope to make a better examination of the battleship Iowa, he looked through the big end instead of the little one and then complained he could not see anything. He followed this with a denunciation of a naval policy which permitted the purchase of such useless things.

But the thing that interested some of his colleagues most was the fact that he brought no baggage aboard, not even a toothbrush, so far as anybody could find out.

"Why should I bring any baggage?" he asked. "We're only going to be gone four days aren't we?"—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Moneyed Crowd. "Sir," exclaimed the artist who had been engaged to entertain the Wadleigh guests, "my contract he call for two songs this evening. You ask me to sing three. It's one outrage. I sing before your crowned heads of Europe."

"Oh, that's all right," said Mr. Wadleigh, soothingly. "You are not before the crowned heads of Europe now, but real people. Why, there's enough money represented in this little gathering to make the fortune of the average king look like a collection taken up for a children's outing."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

HOME TOWN HELPS

IN FIGHT FOR CIVIC BEAUTY

Commercial Interests of Kansas City Unite for War on Billboards on Boulevards.

The commercial interests of Kansas City have gone on record as enemies of the "uglies."

The city planning and public buildings committee of the chamber of commerce adopted a resolution, taking a definite stand against "the encroachment of either filling stations or billboards on the city's boulevards and homes."

The resolution stated that the chamber members are heartily in accord with and desire to lend their moral support to the joint resolution of the two houses of the council to the effect that filling stations and billboards should not be permitted to destroy the effect of Kansas City's boulevard system.

After a protracted discussion the committee declared in favor of a "local option" on the uglies. By that was meant that each neighborhood be permitted to decide whether billboards or filling stations should be allowed to locate in that vicinity. The residents whose homes are within view, or within close proximity of the ugly, should have a voice in denying or permitting its location, the committee members believed.

Billboards in certain localities are not objectionable if properly constructed and lighted. In the opinion of the committee-men. But their place is not in residence neighborhoods or on boulevards, they agreed.

WAR ON INDUSTRIAL UNREST

"Community Service" Idea Is Spreading, for Many Good and Substantial Reasons.

"Community Service, Incorporated" shortly will take its place as a definite factor in the industrial life of Illinois.

This announcement comes through Maj. A. A. Sprague, chairman of the executive-financial committee for Illinois. Organization has been completed for Illinois and the plans for the establishment of the work are under way.

The aim of Community Service is to improve living and leisure conditions that through their development a peaceful, settled and contented community atmosphere will prevail and industrial unrest to a great degree be removed.

The work of the organization has passed the experimental stage. It has been found to be a very solid and substantial success in the big industrial communities of Bethlehem and Chester, Pa. The main work of Community Service is the solution of the leisure hour problem. A trained organizer will be sent to various communities to study conditions and make a survey of the social and recreational life, determining what is most needed and most desirable for the occupation of the leisure hours of the community, and then assisting them to provide and build up a service system for themselves.

House Painting. When the home owner's thoughts turn to house painting problems Californians, particularly, begin to wonder what color will be best for the movies. A location director for motion pictures in Hollywood, Cal., says that white houses are almost impossible for use in motion pictures and he hopes the people within the area of the picture industry will use neutral or dark shades when they do their house painting.

"Darker shades are more agreeable to the eye than those of dazzling whiteness," so this movie director says, "and they photograph better. In addition to blending with the natural colors of the landscape."

All-white houses are also hard on the eyes.

Beauty Not Matter of Expense. Beautiful grounds need not be expensive. The loveliest flowers and plants that ever grew are found in the woods and along the banks of streams, in fence corners, and in fields and shady nooks. They are yours for the digging. What is rarer or prettier than a bed of wild violets and ferns in a shady spot near the house? Plant generously of perennials, so that they will bloom and grow year after year with little time and attention and give stability to your landscape effects.

Willie Had a Reason. Willie Hopkins is only ten years old, but, strange to tell, he brushes his own hair and washes his ears without parental coercion. It must be admitted that Willie just started this most uncommon practice within the last few days. The young man's mother was dumfounded when she walked into his room and found him plastering down his hair with a brush.

"You're a very good boy," she said. "How did you come to think of brushing your hair and washing your face?"

Willie looked sheepish and then replied: "Mary Brown told me I wuz good lookin'."—New York Sun.

CAMPAIGN FOR BETTER Sires

Department of Agriculture is Aiding Movement by Issuing Number of Publications.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In response to many requests for information to be used in starting better-sires movements in various localities, the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, has prepared a list of available publications and other material in the department. It has also furnished data useful to persons interested in legislation for restricting the use of mongrel sires.

Except when the open range is involved, however, or there is need to control inferior sires from running at large, specialists of the bureau prefer a continuance of educational work to legislation. They place emphasis on the fact that the work, although involving certain records and blanks, is strictly educational. To aid in conducting educational campaigns, the department has issued a number of circulars, posters and newspaper articles, as well as much mimeographed material. A booklet entitled "Better Sires—Better Stock," explaining the movement, can be obtained by addressing the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. Other material on this subject is:

Yearbook Separate 816, Harnessing Heredity to Improve the Nation's Live Stock.

Department Bulletin 906, Principles of Live Stock Breeding (semiscientific). Price, 15 cents.

Farmers' Bulletin 1167, Essentials of Animal Breeding.

Enrollment Blank for Better Sires—Better Stock Crusade (on which live stock owners agree to use good purebred sires).

Specific Facts and Figures on Benefits Following Use of Better Sires. County Live Stock Survey Blank. Poster, Which Way Is Your Live Stock Going?

Poster, Purebred Sires and Herd Improvement.

Several sets of 72 lantern slides each have also been prepared by the department and a motion picture is now in the making.

MILK HELPS YOUNG ANIMALS

Skim Milk and Other Creamery By-Products Are Useful Feeds for Pigs and Calves.

While whole milk is nature's balanced food and is valuable for young animals, skim milk and other creamery by-products, such as buttermilk and whey, are also useful feeds, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Skim milk is fed to young pigs in the proportion of about three pounds to one of concentrates, such as cornmeal or shorts. Buttermilk, which has not been diluted too much with water, has nearly the same feeding value as skim milk. It is a better food for swine than for calves because it is apt to cause digestive disturbances when fed to the latter, unless considerable care is used. Whey is used almost exclusively in feeding swine. It is about two-thirds as valuable as skim milk as a food. Accordingly from ten to twelve pounds of whey are equivalent to one pound of grain. Sweet skim milk, when supplemented with other feed such as corn meal or wheat shorts, is very good for young calves. If beef calves are to be fed skim milk, they should be fed in practically the same manner as dairy calves.

HIGHER PRICES FOR HORSES

Farmers Are Advised to Breed More Heavy Draft Animals Wanted for City Hauling.

Heavy draft horses are in greater demand and commanding higher prices than at any time in the last 20 years, according to the proprietor of a Boston trucking concern which maintains 100 horses and 28 auto trucks. In a letter received at University farm he says: "For the short haul the horse has no competitor. We buy at any time and have paid as high as $600 each, but are not getting as good horses as we would like to use. We believe the peak stage of motortruck sales and use has been reached. Farmers should be encouraged to breed better horses."

After Thorough Trial a Detroit, Mich., Man Endorses Pe-ru-na

The following letter written from Detroit, Michigan is no snap judgment expressed on the merits of Pe-ru-na, the well-known cathartic, but rather a mature, sober opinion formed after a full year's trial.

This is the way Mr. Michael Fako of 906 East Palmer Avenue, in the Michigan Metropolitan, writes: "After using PE-RU-NA for about one year I say I have found it a very good medicine for catarrh. It has helped me a great deal and I am very well satisfied. I have gained in weight, eat and sleep well, my bowels are regular and better color in my face."

"PE-RU-NA has done wonders and to me is worth its weight in gold. I shall continue to use PE-RU-NA as long as I live and recommend to my friends who are troubled with catarrh."

Nothing can be more convincing than an endorsement of this nature from an actual user. There are many people in every community whose experience, in using Pe-ru-na, has been identical with Mr. Fako's. It is the standby for coughs, colds, catarrh, stomach and bowel disorders and all catarrhal conditions. Put up in both tablet and liquid form. SOLD EVERYWHERE.

Miss R. sends us the story of a clergyman who was attending the commencement exercises at a certain college for girls. 80 Years Old—Was Sick

Now Feels Young After Taking Eatonic for Sour Stomach

"I had sour stomach ever since I had the grip and it bothered me badly. Have taken Eatonic only a week and am much better. Am 80 years old," says Mrs. John Hill.

Eatonic quickly relieves sour stomach, indigestion, heartburn, bloating and distress after eating because it takes up and carries on the excess acidity and gases which cause most stomach ailments. If you have "fried everything" and still suffer, do not give up hope. Eatonic has brought relief to tens of thousands like you. A big box costs but a trifle with your druggist's guarantee.

"CLUB NOTES"

On last Friday afternoon the members of the "Soo-Soo Club" met at Mrs. Fultons and motored to the beautiful ranch home of Mrs. Charlie Burnett.

The creek furnished much merriment for the crowd on the way out, as some of the members showed their skill in pushing a car up the hill. Robert Robbins served as chauffeur for three cars in crossing the creek.

Upon reaching the ranch home we were invited into the dining room where ice water was served to a dry bunch. We were then ushered into the living room where one of the most enjoyable afternoons of the year was spent. Victrola music was furnished during the afternoon.

Delicious refreshments consisting of pound cake, pineapple cake, and ice cream were served by the hostess.

At a late hour the crowd bid Mrs. Burnett good-bye wishing we all had such a lovely country home. The Club will meet again Sept. 9th, with Mrs. Brannon.

P. R.

Last Saturday night at 8 o'clock a crowd of young people met at the home of Miss Anna Wells and when each and every one declared themselves ready, we all piled into a big truck and were taken out to the beautiful home of L. B. Cross. Our trip out there was enjoyed by everyone in the crowd as most truck or hay rides always are. After we arrived, a great number of games were played on the lawn and when everyone was good and hungry, "The Baby Boy" alias Bud McCuiston brought many watermelons out from some unknown place which, I think it needless to say, were enjoyed by all. Then at a very late hour, we departed, each one declaring they had had the best time ever. Thanks to you—Mr. and Mrs. Cross, and we hope that you will be kind enough to let us come again. One of the Crowd.

A SLUMBER PARTY

August 23rd, last Tuesday night. Twenty-five girls dressed and took flight:

For Miss Oliver Coffee in all her glee.

Had invited us out on a jolly good spree.

Everyone came, on their face was a smile.

For each one knew that it was worth while.

To go full of fun, the best ever made.

When invited out to a slumber parade.

Of course in every bunch we may find.

There is always some of the sleepy head kind.

So our first and "kindest" tho'ts were for these:

So we built their beds out under the trees.

Then, of course, in every bunch that we meet,

There are some full of fun that is hard to beat.

So as this night was no exception to the game,

The "Terrible Seven" were noted for their fame.

Who was speaking of music, well yes!

That was the most important, I guers;

Some thought it grand while they kept their seat;

While others patted real time with their feet.

The Terrible Seven held Council inside.

While the others for sleep, just tried and tried.

But the mosquitoes were very bad that night.

And we seven well, we were a fright.

The upper covers of the bed disappeared.

While we seven knew nothing, still all feared

That some prowler, a rous-a-bout may be

The covers on the coal house would chance to see.

So the Terrible Seven slipped into the house

Where even mosquitos were still as a mouse.

And finally when the fourth chime rang out,

We were sound asleep, without a doubt;

But just as the sun peeped over the earth.

When sleep—a thousand dollars was worth.

That Terrible Seven was heard to say—

Out for your breakfast, without delay.

Up they came, without a word;

Not even a sound or grumble was heard.

For they all remembered the night just spent,

They had to step lively and be content.

The most enjoyable part of the affair

Was the long yard table with eats to share,

Which meant bacon and eggs for those who work,

But nothing 'cept pickles for those who shirk.

With many regrets and long drawn faces

We each in line took our places.

And when the hour of departure came

We knew that each regret was the same.

And now, dear Oliver, we wish to say,

That whether in work or whether in play,

You are our Pal and we want you to know;

That this is remembered where 'er we go.

(By one of the bunch.)
