NUMBER 29

INCOME TAX FACTS

The new requirement of the income tax law that returns shall be of gross income of $5,000 or more, regardless of the amount of net income upon which tax is assessed, requires careful computation on the part of the taxpayer. "Gross income" includes practically every receipt received by the taxpayer during the year 1921 in salaries, wages, commissions, rents, royalties, interest on bank deposits, cash dividends on stock, "or income from any source whatsoever." "Net income" is gross income less certain deductions provided for by the act, including all business expenses incurred in the conduct of a business, trade, profession, or vocation. Certain expenditures, however, are not deductible as a business expense when made for the purchase of a new or less permanent improvement of property. For example, a tenant would not be allowed to deduct the amount expended in the erection of a new store, or a farmer the cost of a new tractor or thrashing machine, since such investments are held to be capital investments. The law expressly prohibits the deduction of family or living expenses, as rent for a dwelling, repairs to a dwelling, cost of food and clothing for the family, education of children, servant's wages, and similar items. Amounts spent during the year 1921 for any of these items are deductible.

HOME PROGRESS CLUB NOTES

Mrs. Claude Locke proved a most faithful hostess to the Home Progress Club Friday afternoon, Feb. 10. There was a good attendance of the club members and several special guests were present. Those at a distance were Mrs. Kincaid Knoxville, Tenn., who is here visiting her sister, Mrs. L. B. Cross, and Miss Chambers of Canadian, a student in the Judge Ewing home. Valentine suggestions of red hearts and cupid were attractively displayed in decorating the reception table. Mrs. Kinney was leader for the afternoon, the topic being, "Fiction of War and Reconstructive Period." Others on the program were Mrs. Cross, Mrs. Craig and Mrs. Boney. The latter was unable to be present so sent a splendidly gotten up paper on "Augusta Evans and her stories" which was read by Mrs. J. L. Seiber. This was followed by a round table discussion dealing with the local element in Northern Fiction. After adjournment Mrs. Clarence Seiber favored the ladies with some thirty sweet music while our hostess assisted by Mrs. Dan Kivlehen served delicious brick ice cream—the first of the season and cake the color of red and white being used. The club was glad to welcome as members, Mrs. Carl Certain and John Hicks. P. R.

ESTABLISH NATIONAL PARK

A movement is on foot, fostered by the Amarillo Board of City Development, to develop plans to transform a considerable portion of Palo Duro Canyon, south of Amarillo, into a state or National Park. All the communities of the Panhandle are asked to help perfect the organization and a meeting is called for Thursday, March 2nd, to take place in the District Court room at Amarillo, at which it is hoped every Panhandle community will have representatives. At this meeting a permanent organization will be perfected and a campaign will be launched.

ASSOCIATION GOES BIG

Record Crowd in Attendance Yesterday.

The third annual sale of the Red Deer Herford Breeders, held here yesterday was successful in every way, and fairly good prices were received for all the animals sold. The top price of the sale was brought by Grove Lad Jr., consigned by R. T. Alexander of Gem, Texas. This bull sold for $310.

PLANNING BIG ENTERTAINMENT

Amarillo, Feb.—The entertainment committee for the Amarillo Auto-Style Show, March 9, 10 and 11, has secured the highest priced entertainment possible to engage for the three days' program, in the form of Orpheum Circuit all-star acts, direct from New York City. In addition to these special acts, which will be put on twice daily in the afternoon and once each evening, there is an orchestra whose repertoire is declared to be one of the most complete ever offered in the Southwest.

Hundreds of inquiries have been received daily during the last week from different sections of this portion of the Southwest, about details of the show and arrangements made for the proper entertainment of the throngs expected. Not only is this true, but interested ones is steadily increasing.

Hundreds of yards of materials for decorating the interior of the building have been bought, and in addition to this array of stuff, there will be pretty little individually offerings at the booths, together with a scheme of illumination that will prove a decided novelty and appeal to all the visitors.

Factory executives will be in Amarillo in connection with their local distributors in the automobile department. The newest models will be shown, to gether with all of the little quirks tending to increase the pleasures and security of the motorist.

Never before have the merchants of Amarillo been so well prepared to exhibit on their living models such an elaborate array of pretty things for the ladies. This will be a real event—one which no lady can afford to miss for all the latest, prettiest, most pleasing and attractive things they desire will be shown there.

BIG FIRE AT WHEELER

Wednesday evening of last week Wheeler suffered a considerable loss by a fire in which the north side of the business street for a whole block was destroyed. The fire was first discovered in the Palace Barber shop, and in a very short time it spread to the other buildings adjoining. Eight business houses were burned, five of them not being insured. The cause of the fire was not yet determined last Thursday.

by Col. I. S. Jamison.

Tuesday evening the Red Deer Breeder's Association gave its members and their ladies a banquet at the Garden Cafe, at which 42 plates were spread. Talks were made by different members of the Association and men prominent in breeder's circles in the Panhandle.

EXCELLENT, AND HAD FINE CROWD.

"Peg O' My Heart," given last Thursday night, by the Legion at the High School Auditorium was fine, and the attendance was even better than hoped for, the auditorium being filled to capacity.

The play was a royalty play, and was given under the direction of Miss Lucille Ewing, who must be complimented for the action of the play showed that she had done some hard work in getting it whipped into shape.

Miss Ewing played the part of Margaret O'Connell, an Irish girl, and her vivacity just fitted the part. Mrs. Fred Cook was her aunt, who took the responsibility of making her over from an ignorant (?) Irish girl into a fine English lady, while Fred Cook, looked on and did his part (?) as the man of the family. Margaret very unselfishly helped her cousin (Ruth Chisum) out of a very serious difficulty, and during the play was also the recipient of several proposals, all of which she refused till her guardian, (Cleve Coffee) decided that she was the one girl for him.

Bob Townes was an excellent butler, and he and the maid, (Ruth Martin), had some mighty big laughs over the antics of the little Irish girl. Flake George, a very dignified gentleman, gave the pretty little lady some mighty good advice, and ended in proposing to her. Naturally he suffered the fate of the others.

The Legion cleared $95.95, after the royalty and all expenses incident to putting on the play were paid.

LYCEUM NUMBER VERY GOOD

The Dixie Trio which gave the Lyceum number at the Auditorium Saturday night was very well liked and those who attended are loud in their praises of the number. The program was a musical nature, interspersed with readings and sketches. The attendance was not as good as was expected, the evening being pleasant, and those who failed to attend the number missed one that was really worth while.

CAN PRODUCE CHEAPER PORK THAN IOWA

It has been demonstrated and conclusively proven by U. S. experts that maize and kaffir corn, especially if crushed, can be fed to hogs and the animals will fatted equally as well, and usually quicker than if fed corn, provided that there is an addition of about 10 per cent of either alfalfa, cotton seed meal or tankage. They also have proven that even including the cost of such additions, the Panhandle farmer can produce pork much cheaper than the Iowa or Kansas corn farmer can.

BEAUCHAMP TRIAL ON

Went to Jury Wednesday Forenoon.

The trial of Mrs. Stella Beauchamp, accused of murdering her husband, Van Beauchamp in November, 1920, on their farm in Hemphill County, began last Thursday, and the whole time till Monday forenoon was taken up in getting a jury, there being 198 jurors examined, before the jury was selected for the case.

The taking of testimony began Monday afternoon with Mrs. Sally Calhoun called to the stand. She testified that Mrs. Beauchamp arrived her sometime after midnight, the night Van Beauchamp was killed, and that she went with her to the Beauchamp home, about a mile from the Calhoun home, finding Mr. Beauchamp lying dead upon the bed, with three gunshot wounds in his body.

Mrs. Laney, daughter of Mrs. Calhoun followed, corroborating her mother's testimony.

The third witness for the State, was Dr. F. D. Keyes, of Canadian who was health officer of Hemphill County, at the time. He described the wounds.

H. H. Stickley, of Canadian, sheriff of Hemphill County at the time, followed Dr. Keyes, and described the scene as it was found by him and District Atty. Pickens, when they arrived the morning following the killing. He also identified the gun and cartridges found near the dugout, occupied by the Beauchamps.

Atty. Pickens then took the stand, and corroborated the testimony of Sheriff Stickley, and described the scene more in detail, as they found it upon arriving.

Several witnesses followed, among them Lee Gunter, at the time Sheriff of Wheeler County, all of them simply corroborating the testimony already given, after which court adjourned for supper.

Monday evening Rowe Hamilton took the stand and testified that he saw Mrs. Beauchamp and her child near the lace where the gun was found concealed, near the dugout. Then Joe Austin testified that he had worked for Van Beauchamp before his marriage to the accused and that Van had told him that his life was in danger, and that he got up one night, taking his gun and went to the window.

L. B. Watson testified that he lived in the same house with Van Beauchamp, and that Beauchamp insulted his wife, while they lived there. Following this Bob Calhoun testified that Mr. Beauchamp told him that he was in danger, this being some two years before Mr. Beauchamp and the accused were married.

Mrs. Sally Calhoun was again called to the stand and testified that the Sunday before the killing, she had visited at the Beauchamp home, and that the couple seemed perfectly happy and contented.

Tuesday forenoon, Mrs. Beauchamp took the stand in her own behalf and described in detail the scene in the dugout the night her husband was killed. She told of having been aroused from her sleep by a revolver shot, and jumped from the bed, with her baby, and saw a man standing between her and the light. She said that it seemed as if it were nearly thirty minutes between the time the first shot and the last two were fired. During this time, she remained still, having been warned to do so by the intruder, on the threat of her life being in danger if she moved. She also told of work-

G. C. Durham from Mobeetie, was here yesterday on business.

AUTO TURNED TURTLE

Saturday night about seven-thirty,

J. C. Bennett, living ten miles west of town, was on his way home, when his car crashed into the railing of a bridge a mile this side of Seiber school house and turned completely over off the bridge. Mr. Bennett was caught under the car. He was found by J. A. Reid and his son, Dick, who were passing in a car. When found Mr. Bennett was unconscious, but soon regained consciousness. The Reids, with the help of some others passing managed to right the car, and then took Mr. Bennett on home with them where his injuries were ascertained. His left shoulder was broken and his left side crushed in, injuring the lung. He was later brought to town and Drs. Kelley and Stein dressed his wounds, afterwards being taken to his home. He is getting along as well as can be expected. The car was new Hupmobile, and was pretty badly smashed up.

ing on some clothing for Mr. Beauchamp and identified the unfinished garments.

Mount Tipsy, a neighbor of the Beauchamps told that the day Mr. Beauchamp was killed he was at his home and Mr. Beauchamp gave him a letter to mail, but that he had not mailed the letter but gave it to the sheriff the following day.

Mrs. Minnie Nylan testified for the defense, that Joe Pryor, the former husband of Mrs. Beauchamp, had told her that if Mr. Beauchamp broke up his home that he would kill him, and that Pryor had asked her to talk to Mr. Beauchamp, and ask her if she was sure what she was doing when she said she loved Mr. Beauchamp.

Mrs. F. E. Durham also testified that Joe Pryor asked her to intercede with his wife for him. She said that Pryor told her that Mr. Beauchamp was the cause of it all and that he would kill him if it was the last thing he ever did. Several other who knew Pryor testified that they knew of his trouble and knew that Pryor was considerably worked up over his wife getting a divorce from him and afterwards marrying Beauchamp.

A great deal of other testimony was introduced regarding the movements of Joe Pryor just before and after the time of the killing. Mr. Pryor himself testifying that he was in Navarro County at the time of the killing, and that he had not hired anyone to kill Van Beauchamp, nor did he kill him himself. During his testimony he intimated that he though Beauchamp had got what was coming to him for he held Beauchamp responsible for the breaking up of his home. He also testified that he had received a letter from Mrs. Beauchamp, in which she intimated that he could come to her indisguise, and that she would tell him something that would make him feel good. This Mrs. Beauchamp denied.

The taking of testimony was concluded Tuesday afternoon, and at the evening session the attorneys began their pleadings, taking the whole evening, and being concluding Wednesday morning, by Atty. Jickens for the State and Atty. Frank Willis, for the defense. The case went to the Jury a short time before noon Wednesday.

The case attracted intense interest throughout, the court room being packed during the whole time of the trial.

TEN-THIRTY, THURSDAY

It is just reported to the Chief that the jury has found the defendant Not Guilty.

Rev. Sparrow Jones Had Ingenious Reasoning With Which to Satisfy Aunt Miranda.

Whenever Rev. Sparrow Jones called on Aunt Miranda, it was her custom to set a plate of gingerbread before him and then ply him with what she called "big questions."

"What fo' does de Lawd send epidemics onto de land?" she asked him one day.

"When folks get so bad dey must be removed, some of 'em, Sister Miranda, den de Lawd permits de comin' of an epidemic," said de preacher; and he took a large bite of gingerbread.

"Uh," said Aunt Miranda. "Ef dat's so, how come de good people gits removed along wid de bad ones?"

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

IN ARMY AT THE AGE OF 14

Stephen S. Tillman of Washington Now Sergeant-at-Arms of George Washington Post.

Stephen S. Tillman, Washington, D. C., served as a private in the army during the World war at the mature age of fourteen years. He was regularly enlisted and sworn in and didn't have to lie about his age.

Just before he went to the recruiting office he cut the numerals "18" out of a calendar and pasted them in the heels of his shoes. When the recruiting officer asked him how old he was, Tillman replied: "I'm over eighteen." They swore him in.

Being a trifle smaller than a regulation army rifle, he was detailed as a bugler. He went to the Mexican border with his company, "B" of the Third D. C. Infantry. Coming back from the border as the United States entered the World war, he did guard duty along Conduit road, Washington, where several hundred attractive young women were taking an intensive training course. But he was only sixteen years old then.

Now he is sergeant-at-arms of George Washington Post No. 1 of the American Legion, Washington; the first Legion post organized. His father is a retired cavalry officer.

THE TRAYLOR FAMILY HELPED

Father, Mother, Four Sons and Two Daughters in Uniform During the World War.

When the old question of "who won the war?" comes up, the Traylor family of Trenton, Mo., may step forward and admit that they helped. The commanding officer of the family that was 100 per cent in active service was the father, W. S. Traylor, rank—private.

Mr. Traylor, his wife, four sons and two daughters were all in uniform. When war was declared, Mr. Traylor closed up his general store, donned the uniform of a buck private in the quartermaster corps and did his bit well, despite his fifty-three years. Mother and the sisters were on active duty with the Red Cross.

Of the four sons, Charles was with the Eighty-ninth division and was wounded. Frank was an aviator. Orville served with the adjutant general's department and Roy was with the Thirty-first railway engineers.

JUMPING BEANS FOR GIRLS

Sick and Wounded Veterans in New Mexico Hospitals Are Hungry for Cheer Letters.

Trained to leap through hoops and stand unhitched, thousands of genuine Mexican jumping beans are awaiting girls of the United States who will write a little letter of cheer to a disabled soldier. The exchange of letters for jumping beans is being made through Herman G. Baca, Santa Fe, N. M., adjutant of the American Legion of the state.

Five thousand sick and wounded veterans of the World war, recuperating in hospitals in New Mexico, have trained, the beans. The young men are terribly lonesome, Mr. Baca writes, and they will send a bean to every girl who will write a letter to them.

The jumping beans are dark brown, somewhat larger than the ordinary bean. The animation of the vegetable is caused by a tiny worm that crawls into the bean and consumes the edible portion. After the worm is dead, the bean keeps on jumping.

Presidents as Military Men. More than half of the presidents of the United States have held some military rank, according to The American Legion Weekly. Of the whole line of twenty-eight presidents sixteen were military men, and of the succession following the Civil war Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Arthur and Harrison were generals; Roosevelt was a colonel and McKinley was a major.

Unto the End. "How's this?" asked the lawyer. "You've named six bankers in your will to be pall-bearers. Of course, it's all right, but wouldn't you rather choose some friends with whom you are on better terms?"

"No, judge, that's all right. Those fellows have carried me for so long they might as well finish the job." —American Legion Weekly.

LEGION WORKER IN CONGRESS

Hamilton Fish, Jr., One of Writers of Preamble to Constitution, Seeks Increase in Compensation.

The preamble to the constitution of the American Legion has been called one of the simplest, most effective and beautiful pronouncements in the English language.

Three men wrote it in St. Louis, Mo., in 1919 and it never has been, nor probably never will be, changed. The men were John Greenwood of Arizona, Judge Davis of Oregon and Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York.

Mr. Fish is now in congress helping to put into effect the policies recited by the preamble he helped write. He has a bill pending to increase the compensation from $20 to $50 for the nurses of blind, legless, armless and totally disabled ex-soldiers. He is an ardent advocate of reclamation of land through irrigation, to encourage ex-service men to take up farming as a vocation.

At Harvard he was captain of the varsity football team. In France he led a company of negro soldiers in the Fifteenth New York Infantry and received the Croix de Guerre for bravery.

GETS FUNDS FOR CLUBHOUSE

Spokane (Wash.) Girl Post Historian, Successful in Procuring Cash for Comrades' Headquarters.

When the Legion post of Spokane, Wash., needed help in raising funds for a new clubhouse for the city, it turned to a girl holding the unique job of post historian, Miss Myrtle Wilson. She thereupon made and wrote post history by securing pledges amounting to $8,000 for the clubhouse.

In addition to writing history, Miss Wilson is advertising manager of the post newspaper, and was a delegate to the Legion national convention. During the war she served in the navy at the government hospital in San Diego, Cal. In a popular contest in the San Diego Legion post she was chosen queen without opposition.

TRIES TO TRACE ARMY SLANG

"Doughboy," "I'll Tell the World" and "Out of Luck," "Old Stuff," New Yorker Says.

If the American "doughboy" who started "I'll tell the world" as a characteristic expression of the A. E. F. took pride in having coined a new expression he was "out of luck," according to Henry Dwight, Yonkers, N. Y., who has been trying to trace army slang to its source.

In relating his uncertain success and asking the assistance of the demobilized world at large, Mr. Dwight declares that each of the three supposed innovations is time-worn.

Referring to the expressions quoted above, he claims that General Custer, the Indian fighter, used "doughboy" in letters to his wife, and that Arthur Young, writer and traveler, announced himself as being "out of luck" when hunting for mail at Dijon, France, in 1789.

"I'll tell the world" remains untraced. It is thought to be very old and verification of this belief is now sought.

Carrying On With the American Legion

Government controlled institutions are schooling 50,000 former service men and are directed by the veterans' bureau.

"Legion Park," named after the local post in Bucyrus, O., contains a tree in memory of the unknown dead in the war.

Abraham Krotoshinsky, the "Lost Battalion" messenger who was cited for his deed, has gone to Palestine to accept an offered farm.

A building worth $25,000 and a pledge for $10,000 for its renovation have been given Lee C. Prentice post of the American Legion by the people of Fairmont, Minn.

Twenty-four lodgers were rescued from the burning Y. M. C. A. at Somerville, Mass., by the American Legion, which clothed and lodged them in the post's club.

The success of the Centrals (Ill.) post of the American Legion last summer in giving outdoor dances has led to a series of indoor dances for the winter. The series is sponsored by the post.

A year elapsed after George Reid, Montevideo, Minn., was discharged before his friends discovered that he had the D. S. C. Reid, an artilleryman of the Rainbow division, continued to fire his piece after being wounded and routed the Germans.

WRIGLEY'S P-K

It "melts in your mouth" and the gum in the center remains to aid digestion, brighten teeth and soothe mouth and throat.

Clear Case.

"I don't take prohibition cases," said the lawyer. "But I'm an innocent man, I tell you. I'm charged with having liquor in my possession, but I'm the person who called up the police department and stated that I had found twenty-four quarts of Scotch buried in my backyard."

"You say you called up the police and let them carry off that Scotch when you might have concealed it in a hundred different places and defied the true owner to get possession of it?"

"Certainly."

"Well, you must be innocent. I'll engage to defend you." —Birmingham Age-Herald.

DON'T FEAR ASPIRIN IF IT IS GENUINE

Look for Name "Bayer" on Tablets, Then You Need Never Worry.

To get genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" you must look for the safety "Bayer Cross" on each package and on each tablet.

The "Bayer Cross" means true, world-famous Aspirin, prescribed by physicians for over twenty-one years, and proved safe by millions for Colds, Headache, Earache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Neuritis, and for Pain in general. Proper and safe directions are in each unbroken "Bayer" package. —Advertisement.

The Reason. At a football game an old gentleman was watching from the grandstand, and at the end of the first half he pulled a bulky cigar case from his pocket and, turning to an enthusiast sitting beside him, asked: "Do you smoke?"

The enthusiast, expecting a nice cigar, promptly replied: "Yes."

"Ah! Then you don't mind my smoking?" smilingly replied the old gentleman.

Remembrance.

I once wrote a verse to my lady's eyebrow. It was beautiful, a charming bit of poetic fancy. Everybody admired it. Now, five years later, this little poem has grown enormously in value. My lady herself treasures it—a sort of memento, I suppose, because— She has no eyebrow to speak of. —Wayside Tales.

Mean Thing! Miss Olde—I fainted dead away last night. Miss Keen—Who proposed?

Much Longer.

Two young women were discussing clothes and styles. The first was talking about a new dress that she had just bought. After she had gone into detail about many features of it the second asked about the length of the skirt.

"Oh, yes, the skirt is longer," she said. "It is down to my knees."

Attack Premature. "Why did you strike this labor-dasher's clerk?"

"Your honor," said the large, mouth person, "he showed me a collar and said it was a 'perfected deer.'"

"Well," snorted the judge, "what did you hit him in the store for? Couldn't you wait until after closing time and catch him in an alley?" —Birmingham Age-Herald.

Acceptable Advice. "You get a great deal of gratuitous advice from your constituents, I daresay."

"Oh, yes," replied Senator Spaulding. "Ever act on any of it?"

"Occasionally. Some of the most enjoyable vacations I ever had were taken at the suggestion of constituents who thought I was overworked." —Birmingham Age-Herald.

Not One of Them.

"There seems to be no practical penalty for the bootlegger."

"Well," replied Senator Sorghum, "he's at least deprived of the privilege of writing pieces for the papers and signing them 'Taxpayer.'"

FEEDING GARBAGE TO SWINE

When Collected Frequently and Well Selected It Will Make Good Quality of Meat.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

More than 40,000,000 pounds of garbage-fed pork is produced annually throughout the United States from the feeding of table scraps and hotel refuse. Heretofore difficulties have been experienced in the economical and satisfactory disposal of city garbage. The United States Department of Agriculture points out that the use of municipal garbage for the production of pork offers a suitable method for disposal of these waste products and has permitted the repletion of our pork supplies at a low cost.

Garbage which is fed to hogs must be collected with reasonable frequency and be free from tin cans, soap, broken glass, and other undesirable or injurious foreign materials. It is desirable always for cities to make garbage collections and then dispose of it to individuals, associations, or corporations on a contract basis, unless the city operates its own hog-feeding farm.

Long-time contracts are likely to be most satisfactory to all concerned; besides they effect the use of a better class of equipment and better sanitary conditions. The pigs or sows to be fed may be bought as feeders or may be raised on the feeding farm. The latter method gives much more satisfactory results. Methods of feeding, handling, housing, and care may differ considerably so long as the essentials of sanitation and hog comfort are observed.

Equipment for feeding should be adapted to the type of garbage available and to local conditions, climate, and transportation. As a rule, raw garbage is preferable to cooked garbage for the use of hogs. In case the weather should be so cold that the garbage freezes, it is advisable to thaw it before feeding. Generally the use of grain as a supplementary feed for the garbage is not an economical practice, but it must be provided when the supply of garbage is temporarily short.

Hogs which are to be fed garbage should be immunized against cholera by the double or simultaneous treatment. Thorough, permanent immunization is very important because of the presence of raw pork scraps from in-

GIVE THOUGHT TO THE BIRDS

New York Authority Urges Prospective Home Builders to Remember Feathered Friends.

Home owners, in planting trees, shrubs and vines, should take into consideration the idea of growing plants that will attract birds, according to Professor Alan F. Arnold of the New York State College of Forestry, who finds that there is a possibility of many of our native birds disappearing altogether for lack of food and shelter.

The list of trees, shrubs and vines attractive to birds includes many of our most ornamental plants. There is no more valuable evergreen tree for ornamental purposes than the native red cedar; it also provides the best shelter and nesting sites for birds, while they find food in the berries and insects commonly found on the tree.

The native flowering dogwood and the Chinese flowering crabapple are two particularly beautiful trees that are favorites with the birds. The gray-stemmed dogwood, honeysuckle, American elder and shepherdy are also serviceable to the birds, and ornamental. The Virginia creeper, one of the most popular vines, furnishes nesting sites for birds and draws the attention of the birds away from grapes, apples and peaches.

"If one has a place where plants of a wilder sort can be introduced," said Professor Arnold, "and wishes to make a special point of attracting birds, there is a great variety of native plants that could not perhaps be used for more finished effects, but here would be just the thing."

Lawyers occasionally make mistakes, but they seldom bring suit against one another.

REASON IN THIS ARGUMENT

Also Miss Katie Might Have Discerned Something Sounding Suspiciously Like a Compliment.

A faithful old servant in a southern family has recently become a grandmother. "What does Libby call her new baby, Mandy?" the old woman was asked.

"She named her 'Gabrielle,' miss—after you."

"Why, the idea, Mandy. You know my name is not Gabrielle. You've called me 'Miss Katie' all your life."

"Yas'm, Miss Katie—dat I does. But when it comes to naming babies after folks, it ain't what dey is called it is what dey is like dat you names 'em foh. You shorely is mo' like 'Miss Gabrielle' dan you is like 'Miss Katie,' jes, like Libby says."

The Unpardonable Sin.

"What's this I hear about the Stuyves planning a divorce? I thought they were wonderful pals—that she took up golf just to be with him; and all that sort of thing?"

"Yes, that's just the trouble; she now plays a better game than he does."—Judge.

With a Reservation.

"Miss Smith—Belinda," sighed the young man passionately, "there's something I want to tell you—something that I—"

"What is it?" asked the girl, as she leaned back in her chair, with a bored expression on her face.

The young man drew a long breath, and his face turned to dull purple. "It is a question which is very near to my heart," he said awkwardly. "Could you—do you think you could ever marry a man like me?"

"Oh, yes," replied Belinda, quite calmly. "that is, if he wasn't too much like you."

Just Making Sure.

Backward and forward Johnny marched before the garden gate. He had a brand-new rifle and was playing at being a soldier on sentry duty.

To him came the lady from next door, her eyes cold and hard.

"Johnny, did you break my window?" she demanded sternly, pointing as she spoke to her damaged property.

Johnny paused in his stride and eyed her thoughtfully.

"Did you see me do it?" he asked cautiously.

"No, I didn't, but—"

"Then I didn't."

And he resumed his marching.

CIVIC DUTY SHARED BY ALL

Cultivation and Spread of Public Spirit and of Patriotism Must Not Be Evaded.

Civic responsibility, when the qualifying age is reached, rests on all alike. Furthermore, the notion of one's public duty has during the last few years broadened considerably. Young and old are learning that voting, though a serious and weighty affair, is but one small part of a citizen's duty. A citizen's business is to mind the law and help to see that others mind it.

A citizen's business is to be a good neighbor, to pay his debts, to collaborate in works of neighborhood benefit, to assist effort for the general social welfare.

He has not done enough when he has made himself rich. He may build himself a home of great costliness and beauty. He may surround himself with the appurtenances of ease and leisure. These things are legitimate rewards of honest, earnest toil.

But if he is a good citizen, he cares not merely to have, but to share.

Children taught to be unselfish in their games and diligent in their studies have had their primary and fundamental lesson in citizenship.

The habits they acquire, of industry and generosity, will make them in maturer years beloved and respected, as examples of public spirit and of patriotism.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Many ambitious men and women live only half a life—and don't know it

No person whose nerves are continually irritated, whose appetite and digestion are disturbed, or who doesn't sleep well has more than half his normal chance for success in life. For weakness, debility, anemia and general lack of tone are a serious handicap to anybody.

Those who drink tea or coffee are often sufferers from these conditions. Tea and coffee contain caffeine, a substance which has a decided stimulant action on the nerves and brain cells.

Each cup of strong coffee contains about as large a dose of caffeine as your doctor would ordinarily give to a very sick person.

You can readily see that the effect of giving this stimulant regularly to a well person might finally have a tendency to make him sick.

If you want to avoid a very common cause of irritation and enjoy restful sleep, good digestion, and all the feeling of vigor and robust endurance that comes to healthy, normal people, quit tea and coffee, and drink Postum, instead. It is a rich, coffee-like cereal beverage—perfectly delicious!

Order Postum from your grocer today. Drink this fragrant, aromatic beverage and see how much better you'll feel—able to do more without becoming fatigued—as thousands have discovered for themselves.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.

Postum for Health
"There's a Reason"

Beauty as Civic Asset.

If we want to draw self-supporting outsiders to the city as a place of residence, beauty attracts more quickly than anything else, asserts the Indianapolis News. A good many hold to the view that this argument applies only to the more wealthy districts. There is nothing more false than this. It applies equally to the working home districts. There are working home districts in this city which, if left alone, will remain beauty spots. The houses are set back from the sidewalk sufficiently to admit of flower beds and lawns, which in summer are most attractive. These districts should be protected by a zoning law that would not permit a grocery store or a garage to get into their midst.

Analysis of the situation will show that by spending a little money the taxable value of certain districts can be raised so it will cost the public nothing and a beauty spot will be added to the city.

Argument for Clean Streets.

We notice in the description of the New Jerusalem, as given us by St. John in Revelation, that there are streets, and it is very certain that these streets are perfectly clean and that it will be required of all who would be a dweller in eternity that they must be of cleanly habits.

We may depend that in the final day of reckoning that it will count heavily against people who make a practice of throwing paper or other refuse in the street or spitting in improper places, for it will be taken for granted that they would in like manner defile and litter up the city of our God and will not be wanted.—Cleveland Plain Dealer Correspondence.

Essentials for Hogs.

Plenty of salt always before the hogs is one of the essentials for thrift. Also ashes, chemicals, dry soil or other mineral.

Best Breeding Hogs.

Exercise and not too much feed is essential to raising the best breeding hogs. Too much feed makes them overfat.

Breakfast for Hens.

Good warm wheat makes a nice breakfast for the biddies.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper. Advertisement.

FATHER

Father, or Daddy, as he is lovingly called is a very important factor, that perhaps has never had the praise that is justly due him. He filling a place in this life that no other can fill. He is and always will be the most willing, self sacrificing, uncompaining and self denying character the world will ever know.

As the whole world only has one Father, so does the home. There can be no real home without the loving care and guidance of a Father, the one who does sacrifice his own desires that his loved ones may enjoy the good things of this life. Without Father's unselfish love and protection Mother could never fulfil the place that the Father above has bestowed on her. The dear noble, self sacrificing Father is always holding out an arm of protection to see that no harm comes to his loved ones that is so tenderly caring for. He is patiently toiling for the betterment of this life, while meeting world with a smile and cheerful words that it may not know how heavy is his burden that he must bear every day. Can you think of a nobler, grander, more unselfish character than Father. Father is always turned to in time of trouble, sorrow or sickness and meets it unflinchingly. He nobly bears the many burdens for the weaker, never to fail you. Through the noble guidance and protection of Father we live. Father today is keeping the home fires burning under greater difficulties than ever before, but with the same loving tenderness that he has always had. He is nobly carrying his burdens. When sad, and your heart is heavy, turn to Father he will so gently soothe and cheer, and is standing with outstretched arms to protect and guide you. If you listen to his teachings you will find yourself doing the noblest of deeds. There is nothing sweeter than to put your head on Daddy's breast and feel his strong protecting arms draw your head closer and feel his warm breath on your brow, praying that God will give him strength to love and protect you. There is nothing dearer than Father.

Strange as it may seem ambition is a lust that is never satisfied, it is a desire within the human breast that is never quenched, and it gets more in flamed and people get madder, wilder and more crazy with the pleasure and enjoyment of attaining it.—Shattuck Monitor.

OLD MAN HEARE ASSAULTED!

On account of some sincere and timely warning to their unmarried members of the N. S. Club in the two weeks ago issue of the Chief, a member of the Medical profession complains that there is no "good picking" in bachelors, male or female, to the Medical man. And that Old Man Heare's warning to young men who contemplate matrimonial relations with a female militates against Doctors.

Hence, the Assault! Now, O. M. H. desires to apologize, but still insists that our young members should not become obsessed with some metaphysical hallucination and become engulfed in conjugal felicity until their President has time to trace the genealogy of the female back to Mother Eve.

Then and in that event if no trace or taint be found, and the young lady stands four square to the world, can cook well, make soap, and is of a domestic turn of mind, why Old Man Heare will consent to a speedy marriage. Provided, the young man has saved up enough cash to pay for several operations and will agree to tote fair with the Medical Man. And will further agree to support a wife and six children more or less, be a good husband, feed, clothes, educate and bring up his family properly and vote the Democratic ticket in.

Otherwise, marriage becomes a failure! Happy homes are the bulwark of a nation! Divorce courts stand at the end of the ugly lane of discontented, unhappiness and wrecked lives.

Apologetically,
Old Man Heare.

Twelve fall gilts from the herd of Jim Ditto, of Arlington, Texas, including some of the choicest fall gilts that will be sold in the Southwest this winter.

Fifteen Spring Gilts from the Ditto Herd

A tried sow by L's Demonstrator-her get, including fall and spring gilts, will be sold in the sale. You can see just what she produces.

To see these wonderful gilts and sows from the Ditto herd is to like them and we invite all who are seeking for real ones for their herds to come to our sale, and we give you our word that you will not be disappointed in the offering.

These gilts are from dams sired by such wonderful boars as Great Pathfinder, Putnam & Tecumseh, Neb.; L's Demonstrator, George P. Lillard & Sons, Arlington; L's Pathfinder, Grand Champion of Texas, 1919; and others.

The spring gilts of our own breeding are the choicest we have ever raised. The offspring is large enough and the quality good enough to attract those whose want bred Duroc Jerseys.

Especially in the fall gilts there are some outstanding animals. These breeders are in the business in a substantial way, and I hope that all the breeders of the Southwest who are not familiar with the herd and have not met the members of the firm will do so sale day, February 24th, 1922. A well known traveling man who visits the drug trade, says he has often heard druggists ask a customer, who wished to buy a cough medicine, whether it was for a child or an adult and if for a child, they almost invariably recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. HAYHOOK RANCH SOLD FOR $425,000.

The American Cattle Company's ranch, known as the "Hayhook" and one of the largest ranches in the Pampa section, has been sold to California parties for $425,000, according to current reports.

The ranch lies almost due north of Pampa in Roberts county, south of the Canadian river and comprises some 100 sections of land, most of which is rough grazing land.

It is said that a $100,000 forfeit has been posted, pending examination of titles and other legal matters, which are to be settled by April 1. At that time the remainder of the purchase price, or $325,000, is to be paid in cash.

John D. McClellan of Pampa has been running the "Hayhook" outfit for the American Cattle Co., which is a Denver concern.

It is the general belief that oil prospects were the cause of the purchase of this large ranch by the California Consolidated company.

Several smaller tracts of land have been acquired near Pampa by oil people in the past few weeks.

This is the largest land sale made in this vicinity for sometime, and will no doubt cause other companies to purchase holdings in this vicinity.

L.G. Thompson, from the Mobeetie neighborhood, came in Wednesday night, from Denver, bringing with him his son, Charles, who has been in the government hospital at Buena Vista, Colo. for the past several months. The young man was not getting along as well as it was thought he ought, in the high altitude and Mr. Thompson hoped that the change back to the Panhandle would be beneficial to him.

Ira Bacon, the Mergenthaler Linotype man in this territory made the Chief office a call Friday, and gave our Linotype the once-over. Mr. Bacon is about as well known to the Panhandle newspaper men, as any one you can name, having been on this territory for several years.

Work on the remodeling of the office of the Panhandle Lumber Company is progressing nicely and soon it will be completed. When finished the new building will be a decided improvement to the lower end of Main Street.

J. E. Jones, of Mobeetie was in Wednesday to attend the Hereford sale and while here gave the Chief office a very pleasant call, and incidentally renewing his subscription to the chief.

Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Duniven are the proud parents of an eight pound baby girl born Feb. 10. Mother and child doing well. The little lady has been named Joyce Olene.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kucaid of Clinton, Tennessee have been visiting their brother and sister Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Cross.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Huselby and daughter, Miss Isabel were in from the ranch Wednesday attending the Herefords sale.

Mrs. Theo Duncan made the Chief office a pleasant call Wednesday, and gave us her subscription for the Chief.

R. L. Morrison and several others from Canadian were here yesterday attending the Hereford Sale.

G. B. Alexander arrived home Wednesday afternoon, from a two weeks trip to California.

Coats Worth Considering; Party Frocks for Children

ENTHUSIASTIC motorists scurry over the country in every direction and at all seasons of the year, some of them following in the wake of snowplows or occasionally doing a little plowing on their own account. Cars are provided with so many contrivances for comfort that few women outfit themselves with especially designed clothes for motoring, but they have learned to choose garments that are passable, or even smart, in or out of the car. Everyone finds a substantial coat of some sort a necessity.

As for coats, whether heavy or light in weight, they must be durable and some things they have been made of and in about the same lively colors. Voile, organdie, figured net, embroidered batiste, crepe de chine, taffeta and silk jersey, tell the story of fabrics, the lovely woven silk jersey being the newcomer among them. Straight-line dresses or those with full skirts set onto straight bodies account for the styles in frocks for children, from four to twelve, and many of those for girls up to seven years have attached bloomers to match.

Enthusiastic saleswomen present one pert little frock after another among those made of organdie or voile well made, simple in design and ample. Among the new ones there are very attractive capes and capecoats, which are made of double-faced cloth, plain on one side and plaid on the other, and they look as if a very good steamer rug had been sacrificed to their making. But light-weight cloths are woven in these patterns. Nearly all of these coats are provided with a scarf collar to match, to be brought up about the neck when needed. This scarf collar appears in the coat shown at the right of the two pictured here or taffeta. A selection shown in the photograph above gives a clear idea of prevalent styles. This, in blue organdie, has a full bodice, plain and short sleeved, with a cape collar. The bouffant skirt is gathered to it, at a low waistline, and has flowers made of the organdie set about it.

Wide tucks with a narrow ribbon at the head of each make a fine decorative feature on skirts and bodices of sheer materials. A voile frock in pink has three-inch tucks in skirt and bodice, with ribbon a half-inch wide at and is one of the several good points about it from the motorist's viewpoint. Its straight lines, big sleeves cut in one with the coat, capacious pockets and neat finish of stitching are others.

Where warmth is the first consideration, the handsome motor-coat shown at the left of the picture is sure to be successful.

A troop of children's gay little party frocks come dancing along with the sheer cottons and light silks for spring—and no mother or aunt can look upon them with cold indifference. They are made of the head of each tuck, and a little sash of several strands of this ribbon. Sleeves are abbreviated, stopping short of the elbow. Nearly all taffeta frocks are finished with narrow ruffles or ruching, with picot edges. They are put on in fanciful ways and sometimes black thread used for the picot is effective.

Not Selling Rare Stamps

Stamp Enthusiasts Do Not Understand New Venture of Post Office Department.

HANDLES ONLY RECENT ISSUES

Victory Stamps, Pilgrim Tercentenary Issues and Airplane Stamps Among Varieties That Are for Sale.

Washington.—Stamp enthusiasts all over the country are expressing with promptness to Postmaster General Hays announcement that the Post Office department has established a stamp agency and has certain stamps for sale.

Nearly 100 letters a day are being received from collectors who wish to buy stamps, but a surprising number indicate that the government's new venture is not altogether understood.

Some think that the government is selling obsolete and rare stamps. They ask casually for such valuable old issues as those of the 1860's. As a matter of fact, the government agency is selling at present only the following: Three-cent Victory stamps, all denominations of the Pilgrim tercentenary issues, airplane stamps, a small quantity of special delivery stamps with a pink back and the ordinary current issues.

The only place from which the government stamp agency can get its stock to sell to collectors is from the post offices of the country. In the past any one who wrote to the Post Office department to buy stamps for a collection was referred to his post office and told that if his local postmaster did not have the particular kind desired perhaps some other postmaster would.

Now the Post Office department is getting stamps, such as the Pilgrim tercentenary issues, from the post offices, and will sell them direct to stamp collectors.

Another point of misunderstanding is that the Post Office department is setting up a commercial stamp agency. One man wrote to know if he could represent the department in Philadelphia to buy and sell stamps for it there.

Does Not Buy Stamps. The fact is the department is not buying stamps at all, and it is selling them only at their face value. It is written into the postal regulations that no employee in the postal service may buy or sell stamps at more than their original sale price.

Other people have thought that the government philatelic agency would be disposing of freak issues, such as the airplane sheet that was printed with the design upside down or the famous issue of 2-cent stamps with several fives on the sheet.

These are great rarities, and bring prices which only a stamp collector can understand. The 24-cent airplane have a border of red and the airplane in the center of blue. By a mistake, which will probably always remain a mystery, on one single sheet of stamps the airplane design was put in upside down.

The bureau of engraving was itself turned upside down in vain attempts to find out how this catastrophe occurred. Philatelists, however, rejoiced. One congressman who has three of these stamps recently refused $1,500 apiece for them.

It is because such accidents are rare—almost unheard of—that the misprinted stamps are so highly valued by collectors. The Post Office department says emphatically that it has none of these rarities for sale.

One collector suggested that the department might render a service if it would get some of the Shanghai overprinted stamps. The conference on limitation of armaments plans to abolish the post offices which the United States and some other countries have in China. The stamps of our office at Shanghai will probably rise in value in the collector's estimation through this move, since no more will be printed when the post office is closed.

The Chinese Stamps. These Shanghai stamps are ordinary United States stamps, except that over each one is printed "Shanghai, China," and the price in local currency, which in each case is double the face value.

The Post Office department has been directing collectors who desired to buy these stamps to send a domestic money order to the United States postal agent, Shanghai. He converts the order into local currency and makes the purchase. To sell these stamps in the United States would need a special order of some sort, and none is contemplated at present.

Considering all the things it is not established to do, people who have never collected stamps might not see how the government stamp agency is doing the collectors a special service by selling them ordinary current stamps and a very few recent issues.

Daring Hunter Fills Museum

California Man Gathers Thousands of Specimens in Two Years.

CLOSE TO DEATH MANY TIMES

Film Story of Adventure Goes With Donation to Oakland Museum—Wife and Two Children Also Share in Hardships.

Oakland, Cal.—One night about three years ago a boosters' meeting was being held in this city. The project under discussion was a public museum for the edification of the local populace and the attraction of tourists. Much oratory had been spilled as to the value of such an institution when up rose H. A. Snow and spoke about as follows:

"By jingo, I'll fill her up," he said.

Mr. Snow Has Just Returned.

Since then Mr. Snow has traveled 30,000 miles—around the world and half again; he has spent $125,000 out of his own pocket; he has grappled with death a hundred times in places where no other white man ever set foot; he has braved every kind of fever and deadly ailment that pesters the globe; he has swum around man-eating sharks; he has lived among cannibals; he has sweated on the equator and frozen on icebergs; he has slain tigers and lions and elephants and giraffes and rhinoceroses and hippopotami and buffaloes and ant-eaters and humming birds and butterflies until the photographs of his slaughter are positively appalling.

Mr. Snow is a ranchman, but for thirty years he had made big game hunting and the fauna of the world his hobby. It has been his dream for a long time to have a great museum in Oakland, and because of his interest in the project he has been made honorary curator of the Oakland Public Museum.

Family Always With Him.

He started out from Oakland in December, 1919, taking with him his wife, Mrs. Daily Snow, his daughter, Nor-

Atlantic City.—Something like $1,000,000 worth of smart gowns, nifty hats and bonnets and wonderful furs were on view on the board walk the other day. A perfect winter day, with the sun tempering the breezes, drew a vast throng out to promenade in the afternoon, and the parading thousands made a striking style picture.

Those vagrant breezes, by the way, brought to light a new wrinkle in hosiery when scant skirts whipped high enough to show that the embroidered knee is the very latest quirk in smart stocking styles.

According to competent observers not afflicted with any trouble of the eye, the new knee embroidery styles range from butterfies with outspread wings to birds and flowers.

The important point is that not all 2-cent stamps look alike to the expert. The stamp with perforations running into the pink design may be all right to put on a letter, but it isn't a collector's ideal stamp beauty.

He wants a stamp that has a neat margin of white around it when it is torn off the sheet.

ma, now nearly seven years old, and his son, Sidney. All of them, even to little Norma went with him through all of his adventures which carried him across the equator half a dozen times, into the South Sea Isles and through thousands of miles of African jungles.

Mr. Snow regards his trip as successful from the point of view of "filling" the Oakland Public Museum, and beyond his dreams as an adventurer and hunter.

He has shipped back to Oakland representatives of practically the entire fauna of Africa and a vast number of specimens from other parts of the world. They include 800 specimens of mammals to be set up in the Mammal hall of the museum; 30,000 butterflies, 500 mounted birds, 1,000 skins, 15,000 bugs, beetles and insects, a complete collection of heads of African bucks, sixty-five complete habitat groups of animals and a complete motion picture of the entire journey and work.

Mr. Snow traveled mostly by automobiles, sending supply wagons ahead of him to leave caches of petrol along trails over which a motor vehicle never before had traveled, and over some of which another probably will never go in a hundred years. He carried with him a crew of motion picture men, although, he said, they were in such tight places at times that the professionals took flight and operation of the camera fell to his son, while he operated a high-power rifle to stop charging beasts.

The adventures told by Mr. Snow are innumerable and Mrs. Snow and little Norma not infrequently figure in dangerous situations in many of them. Once he hauled Mrs. Snow and Norma to the top of a high rock to get them out of the path of a herd of 400 charging wild elephants. Sidney, he said, stood in the path of the herd and ground his camera to the last possible second and got what he thinks is probably the most remarkable elephant picture ever made. The herd was diverted a moment later by the rapid pumping of high-powered rifles into the front ranks.

Through the use of blinds Mr. Snow said he was enabled to obtain a picture of hundreds of buffaloes in a great swamp, conducting themselves in a manner as natural and undisturbed as cattle in a barnyard.

He has photographs, enlarged from motion picture films, of lions and tigers and all manner of wild beasts charging the camera man; of animals dropping from bullets in the midst of enraged efforts to get at members of the party; great shaggy lions hiding in tall grass unaware of the presence of the camera man, and any number of pictures of his gigantic kills.

He and his whole party were laid out once in the swamps of the Tana river, Africa, with fever, which nearly carried him off.

Test to Be Made by Mine Bureau to Discover Danger Mark in Air Pressure.

Pittsburgh.—Weighing the sweat of a man's brow is the task set for the United States bureau of mines station in Pittsburgh, according to A. C. Fieldner, station superintendent and supervising chemist. To obtain material for the test it was said that men lifting weights in an inclosed chamber were to be subjected to various degrees of temperature, humidity and air movements. The work, it was pointed out, has an intensely practical purpose. In the Montana copper mines high temperatures are frequently encountered where it must be known at what temperature the men may work in safety. The same problem arises in the steel mills.

SOMETHING NEW.

Synopsis—Doctor Strickland, reformed, is living in Mill Valley, near San Francisco. His family consists of his daughters, Alix, 21, and Cherry, 18, and Anne, his niece, 20, their closest friend is Peter Joyce, a lovable sort of reclusive. Martin Lloyd, a visiting mining engineer, who Cherry marries her and carries her off to El Nido, a mine town. Peter realizes that he loves Cherry. Justin Little woos Anne. Cherry comes home for Anne's wedding. Cherry realizes her marriage is a failure. Peter tells Cherry of his "grand passion," without naming the girl. Martin comes for Cherry. Martin and Cherry drift apart. Dr. Strickland dies. Peter returns from a long absence. Peter and Alix marry. Cherry comes to visit them.

CHAPTER XI—Continued.

It was here that Peter found Cherry. She came up to him, and he took her hands and, after a second of hesitation, kissed her. She freed one hand and put it on his shoulder and, standing so, she seriously returned his kiss. For a moment his arm embraced her waist; he had forgotten blue her eyes were, with just a touch of corn-colored hair loosened from them, and what husky, exquisite, childish notes were in her voice. Cherry—this is the nicest thing that has happened for a long, long while," he said.

This is the Nicest Thing That Has Happened for a Long While! He Said.

Cherry and Alix are angels to let Cherry answer, as they were, and with laughter and eagerness, interrupted talking went back to the garden.

Peter saw at once, was different in every way. Cherry was full of readiness of response to any word of sympathy and comprehension. She had been misunderstood, neglected; she had developed through suffering a certain timidity that was almost a shrinking, a shy clinging to what was kind and good.

Her happiness here was an hourly thing to both Alix and himself. She seemed to flower softly; every day the simple forest life brought her interest, new energy, new bloom, and Alix washed their hair again, and the creek again, trapped and duets again. Sometimes they would, often they went into the old dress spasms of laughter at nothing almost nothing.

"As much as he stays anywhere!" she answered, drily.

"H'm! Does that mean you?" Alix asked.

"I suppose that's the plan," Cherry said, lifelessly. "He says he'll want me to join him about the middle of August."

"Oh, help!" Alix said, disgustedly. Cherry was silent a few minutes, and Peter smoked with his eyes on the fire.

"If—Cherry said presently, "if I get my money I'll have enough to live on, won't I, Peter?"

"You'll have about forty thousand dollars—yes, at five per cent you could live on that. Especially if you lived here in the valley," Peter answered, after some thought.

"Then I want you to know," Cherry went on quietly, with sudden scintillation in her cheeks, "that I'm going to tell Martin I think we have tried it long enough!"

Peter looked gravely at her, soberly nodded, and resumed his study of the fire. But Alix spoke in brisk protest.

"Tried it! You mean tried marriage! But one doesn't try marriage! It's a fact. It's like the color of your eyes."

"Alix," the little sister pleaded eagerly, "you don't know what it is—you don't know what it is! Always meeting people I don't like; always living in places I hate; always feeling that my own self is being smothered and lost and shrunk; always listening to Mart complaining and criticizing people—"

Peter interrupted seriously: "I'll go this far, Cherry. Lloyd married you too young."

"Oh, far too young!" she agreed quickly. "The thing I—I can't think of," she said, "is how young I was—only a little girl. I knew nothing; I wasn't ready to be anybody's wife!"

Something in the poignant sorrow of her tone went straight to their hearts, and for the first time Peter had an idea of the real suffering she had borne.

"If I had a child, even, or if Martin needed me," Cherry said, "then it might be different! But I'm only a burden to him—"

"His letter doesn't sound as if he thought of you as a burden," Alix suggested mildly.

"Ah, well, the minute I leave him he has a different tone," Cherry explained, and Peter said, with a glance almost of surprise at his wife: "It's an awfully difficult position for a woman of any pride, dear!"

Alix, kneeling to adjust the fire, as she was constantly tempted to do, met his look and laid a soot-streaked hand on his knee.

"Peter, dearest, of course it is! But—" and Alix looked doubtfully from one to the other—"but divorce is a hateful thing!" she added, shaking her head. "It—it never seems to me justifiable!"

"Divorce is an institution," Peter said. "You may not like it any more than you like prisons or madhouses; it has its uses."

"People get divorces every day!" Cherry added. "Isn't divorce better than living along in marriage—without love?"

"Oh, love!" Alix said scornfully. "Love is just another name for passion and selfishness and laziness, half the time!"

"You can say that, because yours is one of the happy marriages," Cherry said. "It might be very different—if Peter weren't Peter!"

As she said his name she sent him her trusting smile; her blue eyes shone with affection, and the exquisite curve of her mouth deepened. Peter smiled back, and looked away in a little confusion.

"I can't imagine the circumstances under which I shouldn't love you and Peter!" Alix summarized it, triumphantly.

"And Martin?" Peter asked.

"Ah, well; I didn't marry Martin!" his wife reminded him quickly. "I didn't promise to love and honor Martin in sickness and health; for richer, for poorer; for better, for worse—by George!" Alix interrupted herself, in her boyish way, "those are terrific words, you know. And a promise is a promise!"

"And even for infidelity you don't believe people ought to separate?" Cherry asked.

"Nonsense!" Peter said.

"But you said—that Martin never—"

"No, I'm not speaking of Martin now!"

"Well, wouldn't that come under 'worse'?" Alix asked.

"But, my child," Peter expostulated kindly. "My dear benighted wife—there is such a thing as a soul—a mind—a personality! To be tied to a—well, to a consensuous influence day after day is living death! It is worse than any bodily discomfort—"

"I don't see it!" Alix persisted. "I think there's a lot of nonsense talked about the fammy unconprezy—but it seems to me that if you have a home and meals and books and friends and the country to walk in, you—"

"Oh, heavens, Alix; you don't know what you're talking about!" Cherry interrupted her impatiently. "Sometimes I think your marriage is as—as queer as my own."

Nothing more was said for several days upon the subject of a possible divorce. One afternoon Peter crossed the porch, tired and hot, and found everything apparently deserted. He dropped into a chair, and was still breathless from the rapid climb uphill, when stray notes from the piano reached his ears; a chord, a carefully played bit of bass; then a chord again. Then slowly, but with dainty accuracy and even feeling, Cherry began to play a strange little study of Schumann.

Peter knew it was Cherry, because Alix's touch was always firm and sure; more than that, he himself had played this same bit no longer ago than last night, and he remembered now that Cherry had asked him just what it was.

He experienced a sudden and pleasing emotion; he did not stop to analyze it. But he had been ruffled in spirit a moment before; Alix had known he was to come on this train and had not met him with the car; and while he really did not mind the walk up, he disliked the feeling that they had entirely forgotten him.

Presently there was silence; then Cherry tried another little study and finished it, and the hot summer stillness reigned again.

With a sense that he had been dozing, if only for a few minutes, Peter opened his eyes. Framed in the cabin doorway, poised like a butterfly against the dark background of the room, stood Cherry. He knew that she had been standing so for some time, for a full minute; perhaps more.

They looked at each other in a silence that grew more and more awkward by great plunges. Peter had time to wish that he had kept his eyes shut; to wish that he had smiled when he first saw her—he could not have forced himself to smile now—to wonder how they were ever to speak—where they were rushing—rushing—rushing—before she turned noiselessly and vanished into the dim room.

Peter lay there, and his heart pounded. A moment ago he had been a tired man, fretted because his wife forgot to meet him; now there was something new in the world. And rapidly all the world became only a background, only a setting, for this extraordinary sensation. The hills beyond still swam in the hot sunlight, the mountain rose into the blue, but the light that changes all life lay over them for Peter.

He said to himself that it was awkward—he did not know how he could enter that door and talk to Cherry. And yet he knew that that meeting of Cherry, that the common exchange of words and glances, that the daily trifling encounters with Cherry were all poignantly significant now.

He felt no impulse toward hurry. He might sit on his porch another hour, might saunter off toward the creek. It mattered nothing; the hour was steadily approaching when she must reappear.

Alix drove in, full of animated apologies. She managed the car far better than he, and no thought of an accident had troubled him.

The evening was warm, one of the two or three warm evenings that marked the height of summer even in the high valley. There was not a breath of air in the garden; roses

Cherry said, "I must go home—I must go back to Mart tomorrow!"

They Looked at Each Other in Silence.

and wallflowers stood erect in a sort of luminous enchantment. Moonlight sank through the low twisted branches of the near-by oaks and fell tangled with black and lacy shade through the porch rose vine.

Alix sat on the porch rail, every line of crisp skirt and braided head revealed as if by daylight, but Cherry's pale striped gown was only a glimmer in the deepest shade of the vine. Peter, smoking, sat where he could not but see her; yet had hardly looked at each other directly since the long, strange look of this afternoon; they had exchanged hardly a word.

"Town tomorrow, Pete?" Alix said, after a silence during which she had looked her arms behind her head, stared straight above her at the path the moon was making through faint stars, and yawned. "I've got to go in to a meeting of the hospital board. Good night, beloveds. I'm dead, don't sit out here mooning with Pete all night, Cerise!"

Peter said to himself that now Cherry would go, too, but as the screen door banged lightly after Alix, and the dull glimmer of Cherry's striped gown did not move in the soft shadow, a sudden reluctance and distaste seized him. He had been subconsciously aware of her all afternoon; he had known a delicious warmth and stir at his heart that he had not analyzed, if indeed it could be analyzed. Now suddenly he did not want the beauty and gloom and charm of that feeling touched.

His heart began to beat heavily again, and he knew that he must stop the unavailing game now. But he had not reckoned on Cherry. She twisted in her chair, and he heard a child's long, happy sigh.

"Oh, so am I tired, too!" she breathed, reluctantly. "I hate to leave it—but I've been almost asleep for half an hour! You can have all the moonlight there is, Peter." Her white figure fluttered toward the door. "Good night!" she said, drooping her little head to choke a yawn. A moment later he heard her laughing with Alix.

"You fool—you fool—you fool!" Peter said to himself, and he felt an emotion like shame, a little real compunction that he could so utterly misread her innocence. He felt it not only wrong in him, but somehow staining and hurtful to her.

CHAPTER XII.

Again Peter reckoned without Cherry. It was only the next day, when he was entering the Palace court for his lunch, that he experienced a sudden and violent emotion. His thoughts were, at the moment, far from Cherry, and he fancied himself in a hurry. But every other feeling but excitement was obliterated at the sight of a slender, girlishly made woman, in a spongy gown, and a limp brown hat covered with poppies, waiting in the lounge.

Peter went toward her, and the color rushed into Cherry's face. It was the first time they had accidentally encountered each other, and it had a special place of its own in the history of their lives.

The surprise of it kept them laughing, hands clasped, for a minute; then Cherry said:

"I was to lunch here with Mary Cameron. But she's full twenty minutes late! You hate her, don't you?" she added, looking up from under the poppies at Peter.

"I don't like her," he admitted, with a boy's grimace.

"Then suppose we don't lunch here?" Cherry suggested, innocently. Peter laughed joyously, and tucking her little gloved hand under his arm, led her away. They went to Solar's, and had a window table, and nodded, as they discussed their lunch, at half a dozen friends who chanced to be lunching there, too.

She had said that she wanted to tell him "all about it," and Peter, with quick knowledge that she meant the unhappiness of her marriage, nodded a grave permission.

"I've made a failure of it!" Cherry said, sadly. "I know I ought to struggle on, but I can't. I have no individuality, Peter, I have no personality! As for my dignity—my privacy—"

Her face was scarlet, and for a moment she stopped speaking.

"Just tell me an alternative!" she said, after a while. "It can't be that there is no other life for me than going back. Peter, I'm only twenty-four!"

"I know you are," he said, with a brief nod.

"Why, every one has some alternative," Cherry pleaded. "It can't be that marriage is the only—the only irrevocable thing! If you had a partner that you couldn't go on with, you could come to some agreement!"

"You don't love him!" Peter said.

"I must go home—I must go back to Mart tomorrow!"

That Word "Strike."

The first use of the word "strike," as applied to labor troubles, occurred in a London newspaper in 1785. In September of that year were numerous references to a great stoppage of labor in the coal fields, and the workers are said to have "struck out" for higher wages.—Indianapolis News.

Highway Improvement

SCIENTIFIC ROAD BUILDING

Test Being Made in Illinois to Determine What Pavement Can Be Used on Highways.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Some time within the next few months a new road 2½ miles long is to be broken up in what is probably the most extensive study of road service ever undertaken in the United States. The road is located in Illinois, about 12 miles southwest of Springfield, and parallels the Wash railroad. In the test road there are no curves. The grades vary from zero to four-tenths of 1 per cent, with an average grade of one-tenth of 1 per cent, the maximum and minimum grades extending over very short distances. The subgrade soil is uniformly a brown silt loam, except for two small stretches where it more nearly approaches gumbo.

There are seven general types of paving in the road, the idea being to have represented the chief materials used in road making, so that engineers may study the effect of known and measured traffic of varying degree upon each kind of road. The seven types are:

Portland cement concrete. Three and four inch lug brick constructed monolithic and with a Portland cement concrete base.

Three and four inch lug brick constructed semimonolithic and with a Portland cement concrete base.

Three and four inch bituminous filled lug and lugless brick on Portland cement concrete base.

Three and four inch bituminous filled lug and lugless brick on macadam base.

Asphaltic concrete with and without binder course on macadam base.

The road, known as the Bates experimental road, was constructed by the division of highways, Illinois department of public works and buildings, in co-operation with the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture. Actual work was begun on the road in June, 1920, and it was finished some time ago. Since its completion the state and federal government engineers, by numerous daily observations, have been measuring the effect of heat, cold, moisture, and other elements upon its surface and on the subgrade. These observations have been taken on 63 sections, and much information has been obtained which will be valuable in building roads in the future.

This information is of the utmost value. Knowing the conditions of traffic which are to be met, it will afford a means by which a proper paving can be selected to meet those conditions. It may lead to the saving of millions of dollars each year by preventing the construction of pavements that are found to be incapable of resisting modern traffic.

Why some types of pavement fail and others hold up will be largely determined by the test. Why a road-way cracks also is being studied. At different times each section is observed and all cracks noted. In addition, a considerable number of cracks have been measured by a micrometer.

PAVE ROADS IN WASHINGTON

Number of Miles to Be Improved Totals 323, at an Expenditure of $6,630,000.

Road paving and improvement contracts have been let in Washington to the number of 60 since March 10, last, according to James Allen, state highway commissioner. The contracts, including an added 10 per cent for engineering and incidentals, total $6,630,000. The number of miles included is 323.58.

Employ Ex-Soldiers on Roads.

Fifty per cent of the men employed on the new highway projects in Minnesota are ex-service men, according to report received by the American Legion employment bureau at Minneapolis.

Road Rules in France.

Motorists in France have been given more liberal use of the roads by a decree issued by President Millerand. Heretofore barnyard stock had the right of way along country roads.

MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS

Read This Letter from Mrs. W. S. Hughes

Greenville, Del.—"I was under the impression that my eldest daughter had some internal trouble as ever since the first time her sickness appeared she had to go to bed and even had to quit school once for a week. I always take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound myself so I gave it to her and she has received great benefit from it. You can use this letter for a testimonial if you wish, as I cannot say too much about what your medicine has done for me and for my daughter."—Mrs. W. S. HUGHES, Greenville, Delaware.

Mothers and oftentimes grandmothers have taken and have learned the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. So they recommend the medicine to others.

The best test of any medicine is what it has done for others. For nearly fifty years we have published letters from mothers, daughters, and women, young and old, recommending the Vegetable Compound. They know what it did for them and are glad to tell others. In your own neighborhood are women who know of its great value.

Mothers—daughters, why not try it?

Garcia's Method.

Mesdames Viardot-Garcia and Mall-bran, the wonderful daughters of Manuel Garcia, who was perhaps the greatest vocal teacher of all time, literally "learned in suffering what they taught in song."

The neighbors, however, did not confuse method with madness, and on such occasions they quietly said: "It is only Monsieur Garcia teaching his girls to sing."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Lost Your Appetite?

Are You Run Down? Here's the Short Road to Strength, Vim, Vitality

Kansas City, Mo.—"About the only medicine I have ever given my little boy is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. He never was very strong, and, being delicate, would become run-down very quickly—would suffer loss of appetite. I would give him the Golden Medical Discovery and it always built him up in good health. I have also given this medicine as a tonic in the spring, and for such Golden Medical Discovery has no equal. I do recommend its use."—Mrs. Geo. Maul, 303 North Chelsea St.

The pupils are more excited over visiting the court room than over any thing that has happened this year.

Messrs Gilley and Crain witnessed a very exciting basket ball game between Higgins and Pampa last Saturday at Pampa. Mr. Crain refereed and Pampa won the game, since Higgins did not have the necessary substitutes to finish the game.

SENIORS NOTES

 In wretched plight,
 For what? Recitations all day,
 And court at night!

Since riches lead to vice,
 And Poverty to theft,
 Outside of Paradise
 Is there any virtue left?

The court house seems to appeal to the young people this week more than does the school room. We all like to go courting.

JUNIORS

At a Junior class meeting Tuesday morning plans for the Junior play were discussed. After other business was attended to, the meeting was adjourned, but not until we had been reminded by the treasure that we have not all paid our class dues.

One day in English class, the teachers asked, "Charley, what is the most commonly used word in the English language."

After some hard thinking, Charley replied, "I don't know."

"Correct," said the teacher.

SOPHOMORES ENTERTAINED

Mrs. Claude Locke entertained the Sophomore class with a "Progressive Rook party." We played Rook for about an hour and a half. Upon Lucy Talley's winning seven games everyone decided that she was the "Champion Rook player," so she received the prize, which was a book entitled, "The Twenty-fourth of June." Mr. Willis had the honor of writing the "Champions," signature in it.

The rooms in which we played Rook was decorated with small red hearts. Our Tally cards were also small red hearts.

There were four of the High school teachers present but if one had not known that they were, he would never have dreamed it.

After our Rook playing was over we were served with dainty refreshments consisting of brick ice-cream and Angel Food cake, which was enjoyed very much by all.

At ten-thirty we bade our hostess good night, telling her that we had had the most enjoyable evening of the season.

 The Sophomores are planning to give their play, which they are giving for the benefit of the Annual, in about two weeks and we hope that everyone will help us to make it a success.
