TO THE FELLOW WHO'LL TAKE MY PLACE.

"Here is a toast that I want to drink To a fellow I'll never know-To the fellow who's going to take my place

When it's time for me to go. I've wondered what kind of a chap he'll be, And I've wished I could take his hand. Just to whisper, 'I wish you well, old man,' In a way that he'd understand.

I'd like to give him the cheering word That I've longed at times to hear; I'd like to give him the warm-hand clasp When never a friend seemed near.

I've learned my knowledge by sheer hard work, And I wish I could pass it on To the fellow who'll come to take my place Some day when I am gone.

Will he see all the sad mistakes I've made, And note all the battles lost? Will he ever guess the tears they caused Or the heartaches which they cost?

Will he gaze through the failures and fruitless toil To the underlying plan, And catch a glimpse of the real intent, And the heart of the vanquished man?

I dare to hope he may pause some day, As he toils as I have wrought, And gain some strength for hi weary task From the battles I have fought.

But I've only the task itself to leave, With the cares for him to face, And never a cheering word to speak To the fellow who'll take my place.

Then here's to your good health, old chap. I drink as a bridegroom to his bride; I leave unfinished a task for you, But God knows how I've tried.

I've dreamed my dreams as all men do, But never a one came true, And my prayer today is that all my dreams May be realized in you.

And we'll meet some day in the great unknown-Far out in the realms of space; You'll know my clasp when I take your hand

And gaze in your tired face. Then all failures will be success In the light of the new-found dawn-So today I'm drinking your health, old chap, Who'll take my place when I'm gone."-

COASTS OVER 100-FOOT CLIFF

Postmaster Swears Off Short Cuts After He Is Dug Out of 15-Foot Drift.

Pine Brook, N. J .- Postmaster Joseph Liebeskind, of Pine Brook, N. J., took a far shorter short cut than he intended recently and vows that he'll never take another. The last few seconds of his short cut over Hook mountain were the longest he ever lived through.

He was on his way to visit a relative on the other side of the mountain and decided to climb over it instead of following the road around. He found the summit of the ridge bare of snow, however, and glazed with ice. Moreover, there was a gradually increasing slope toward the 100-foot cliff on the far side.

Down this slope the postmaster coasted with increasing speed until he shot over the edge of the cliff with a velocity which carried him fifteen or twenty feet past the brink. This enabled him to clear a heap of rock debris at the foot of the precipice, and he landed in a fifteen-foot snow drift, which engulfed him completely.

Wilbur Colyer saw the postmaster's spectacular dive and went to the drift with a shovel. After the postmaster had been dug out and examined by a physician he went on to his relative's by the road.

"Oh, my God, what shall I do!" she sobbed, with her bright head dropped on her arm.

"Don't cry. Cherry. Cherry!" Alix said, her own tears brimming over. She came to kneel beside her sister, and they locked their arms about each other, and their wet cheeks touched, 'Don't cry, dear!' she said, tenderly. "It'll all come straight, somehow, and we'll wonder why we took it so hard! Cherry had somewhat regained her composure. "We'll ascertain about this letter; that's only fair. If Martin denies it-"

"Of course he'll deny it!" Cherry interrupted, from the bitter knowledge she had of him.

Alix again felt daunted for a second by the sheer ugliness and sordidness of the matter, but she returned to the charge bravely. "Suppose we get Peter to ask him," she suggested suddenly. "Peter has a wonderful way of getting the truth out of people!" Poor Cherry, the very mention of his name makes her wince, Alix thought, watching her sister sorrowfully. "If Martin can convince Peter that it is not true, then that makes all the difference in the world," she added, aloud. "Then you tell Martin frankly that you have the old house ready to live in, and you want to live there. He-

"He'll never agree to that!" Cherry said, shaking her head. "But if this is true?" she asked, again indicating the letter.

"Then tell him that unless he agrees absolutely to a separation," Allx said, 'that you will get a divorce!"

"And live here, alone, under that sort of a cloud?" Cherry sald, with watering eyes. "Oh, well!" she said, rising, and going toward the door. "It's horrible - horrible - horrible whatever I do! What is your ideathat we should dine, and go to the Orpheum tonight as if nothing had happened, and let all this wait until you can ask Peter to cross-examine

"I wonder if Martin would tell me? Why couldn't I pretend that I opened that letter by mistake and frighten him into admitting it, if it's true?"

Alix said. "You could," Cherry admitted, lifelessly. "But you may be sure it is true enough!" she added. "Then leave it to me!" Alix said.

'And don't feel too sad, Cherry. You're young, and life may take a turn that changes everything for you. You always have Peter-Peter and me, back of you!"

"Alix, you're the best sister a girl ever had!" Cherry sald, passionately, putting her hand on Alix's shoulder. "I wish I were as big as you are! And he's made me so wretched," whispered Cherry, with trembling lips, "that sometimes I've been sick of life! But I will investigate this letter, and if it's not true, I'll try again, Alix! You Have Constant Backache? Feel Old and lame and Suffer Sharp, Rheumatic Pains? Then Look to Your Kidneys!

or severy cold, chill or attack of grip leave you worn-out and utterly miserable? Do you feel old lame, stiff and rheumatic? Does your back ache th a dull, unceasing throb, until it seems you just stand it any longer?

Then look to your kidneys! Grip, colds and chills mighty hard on the kidneys. They fill the blood poisons and impurities that the kidneys must off. The kidneys weaken under this rush of new k; become congested and inflamed.

It's little wonder, then, that every cold leaves you torturing backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, iness and annoying bladder irregularities.

Gaudy Advertising Sign Boards Along The Highways Are Well Called a Menace to the Traveler.

The order of the state highway comnission, requiring the removal of all advertising sign boards from state dghways by July 1, 1922, will meet with general approval. As a rule, hese signs are placed with conspicuous disregard for the safety of motorists. Most of them defeat their own purpose. So placed as to compel the attention of a motorist, they lraw his interest, not to the merits of the commodity advertised, but to the folly of obstructing the view at

As part of a war display there was shown a large picture of a French peasant girl with a background of a typical poppy field, all of which had been worked on a motor sewing machine. The picture represented some 2,500,000 stitches; 13,200 yards of sewing silk were used and 315 hours' time were required to make the "poppy field" picture.
