FEDERAL-AID ROAD PROGRAM

Secretary of Agriculture is Considering Tentative Draft of Rules and Regulations.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) The secretary of agriculture is considering a tentative draft of rules and regulations for the administration of the federal highway act, approved last November, under which $75,000,000 is appropriated for the construction of federal-aid roads, but will not promulgate them until he has conferred with representatives of the state highway departments. ...

Fifty million dollars of the appropriation become available January 1. The remaining $25,000,000 was made immediately available upon approval of the act, November 9, last. WHY SOME MEN LEAVE HOME

This Kind of Thing, Served Up Daily, Would Drive Almost Anyone From His Loved Fireside.

"George, dear," cried wifey from the bedroom, "have you shut the dining room window?" "Yes, love." "Put the plate basket behind the bookcase?" "Um!" "Have you put the dog out?" "Yes." "Sure you bolted the scullery door?" "Sure." "Turned off the gas in the cellar?" "Yes, precious." "Wound the clock?" "Yes, darling." "Brought in the mat from the porch?" "I have, my ownest." "Have you locked up the wine?" "Yes, yes, my sweetheart. I have done even that." "Well, there's no need to get wild about it. Why can't you come to bed at some decent hour? What on earth have you been doing down there all this time?"—London Tit-Bits.

DOGS GIVEN VICTORIA CROSS

Three Have Been Awarded Highest British Decoration for Bravery in Face of the Enemy.

The English in asking that the Victoria Cross be awarded to the cat which so heroically saved her young during the fire of the Printemps only follow an example given by the queen of England herself. To appreciate the value of this reward we must remember that the Victoria Cross is for a soldier, general or private, the highest military order. In the last war at the utmost 50 have been awarded. However, several dogs belonging to the British army have received this honor. These were: Bob of the Royal Berkshire, which in the Afghanistan war saved the life of several soldiers; Jack, which accomplished the same feat at the battle of the Alma, and Jerry, the hero of the Crimean war, which received from the city of Dublin a medal and a dinner. The odds are that the mess made the dog happier than the medal.—New York Tribune.

Wishing for sleep is a poor way to get it

A LITTLE wisdom in the daytime is a better assurance of rest than any amount of anxious wishing when nerves are a-jangle at night.

What you do at noon often has more influence on sleep than what you want and hope for, at midnight.

Coffee's drug element, caffeine, whips up the nerves, and when its use is continued there's usually a penalty which no amount of mental effort can avoid.

The part of wisdom, as so many thousands have found, is to turn away from nerve-stimulation and adopt rich, delicious Postum as the mealtime drink. Postum delights the taste, but brings no disturbance to nerves or digestion. Even the little children can share in the enjoyment of Postum at any meal.

It's better to anticipate warnings than to be driven by them.

It's better to encourage and preserve sound nerves and complete health than to listen to the clock ticks at night and say, "I wish!"

You can get Postum wherever good food or drink is sold and served. An order today may be the beginning, for you, of the great satisfaction and comfort which so many others have found in Postum.

Your grocer has both forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

ADVERTISING!

Here is a convincing proof that local merchants who do live advertising thereby protect their field against inroads from the big mail order houses.

Herman Rosen, advertising manager for Sears, Roebuck & Co., is quoted in the current number of the Fourth Estate as follows:

"There is not a paper of any consequence in our trade territory that our bureau does not get. This bureau looks over these papers and when the merchants are not advertising in the local papers we immediately flood the territory with our literature. It always brings results far in excess of the same effort put forth in territory where the local merchants are using the local papers."

WATCH YOUR STEP

This wireless business has set the world to wondering if, after all, the judgement day may not be more embarrassing than anyone may think. Imagine what will happen if all the conversation of the world now stored in the air is tabulated, checked up and made a matter of public record. Oh, boy! Waves of force once started never cease. Even the whisper in the secret closet makes an imprint lasting perhaps into eternity. In short, we have just learned we cannot keep a conversation really secret, though we may do so a little time. Perhaps the waves of thought are recorded, too. It may be best to watch our step and talk right and think right, after all. The writing already is on the wall for the clander and the mental crook.—Hereford Brand.

"If a fellow tries to kiss a girl and gets away with it, he is a man. If he tries and does not get away with it, he is a brute. If he does not try but would have gotten away with it if he had tried, he is a coward. If he does not try and would not have gotten away with it if he did try, he is a wise man."—Shattuck Monitor.

Whether we like a man or not, he is entitled to a hearing as long as he has something of worth to say. We should get away from the impression that there are two sides to every question—the wrong side, and our side," for this is not only an erroneous position, but is dangerous, often times.—Amarillo News.

Special Easter Dinner—Sunday, at the GARDEN CAFE.

Whether the wheat crop in this portion of the country makes one-fourth, one-half, or a full yield this season, let no one become desperate, for there is the virtue of fertility and adaptability in this marvelous soil. If the wheat fails of the expectancy placed against it, we should remember that the row crops to be planted during the present spring bind up within themselves a wealth not possessed by even the most abundant wheat yields. John Fields, a farm expert has declared that the men who judiciously fed kaffir to hogs in the Amarillo community this winter, sold their grain at one dollar per bushel. This statement was not made loosely, or laxly, but with a full knowledge of the fact that it would be analyzed and investigated as if by the test of acid. Kaffirs will make this country immensely wealthy, if they are roerly handled.—Amarillo News.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES TO THE N. S. CLUB

Dave Stribling, chairman of the committee on "Public Safety," has just returned from a long trip through south west Texas and Old Mexico, and reports that the Panhandle is safe.

He advises that we all sit still in our security and favorable location, and be fully assured that we can not better our condition among the cat-cald desert sands and rocks in S. W. Texas.

Dan Kivlehen, chairman of the committee on "Pleasure," reports that he accompanied Dave Stribling and "Fatty" Locke, and that it is a real pleasure to get back to the Panhandle, after a visit to the land of the Greasers.

Camping out has its pleasures, but not so pleasant in rain and mud. Home Sweet Home in the Texas Panhandle is a great pleasure.

W. H. Patton, chairman of the committee on Ladies Attire, reports that he has just received 150 pounds of literature from the style centers and as soon as he can look over the fashions and learn the names of garments, he will be ready to put out a startling propaganda on up to-date Ladies Attire. Light, fluffy hats will be worn for Easter. Winter garments will not look chic in warm summer months.

Shoes and stockings should be selected with great care so they can be seen. If long skirts are worn ladies can safely go barefooted.

Style is largely a matter of taste and when once started it tastes good to 50 million ladies in the U. S. white and black.

At banquets, ladies should use care so as not to get their sleeves in the molasses.

Mr. Severtson, chairman of the committee on Agriculture, reports that his subject has gotten away from all ordinary reckoning and that the indications one week are covered with mud before he can get his bearings for the next. He is fully satisfied however, that we will make good crops or sorry ones, and perhaps both.

Dave Lard on gardening will be ready to forecast results after Easter, which comes on April 16th, 1922. He warns against planting Pumpkins when the frost is in the ground.

Old Man Heare on Matrimony reports nothing doing before June. He knows of several June weddings but will not tell who in April.

"There is many a slip" etc.

P. S. Dave Lard has enlarged the scope of his duties and now takes in fruit, flowers, lawns and the general beautifying of the home premises in Miami.

He commends his neighbor J. W. Philpott for his zealous efforts to get a perfect stand of grass on his lawn.

Mr. Philpott uses a darning needle to make holes for Blue grass and other small seeds.

Jackson's "Kitchen Cabinet." The kitchen cabinet was a name given to a group of political advisers of President Jackson. They occupied no official positions, but were consulted by the President as private citizens. The principal members of this "cabinet" were Amos Kendall, William B. Lewis, Isaac Hill, Duff Green and Francis P. Blair. It was the custom of these unofficial advisers, whenever they called upon the President, to go in by the back door to avoid observation—hence the sobriquet of "kitchen cabinet," which is said to have originated among the Whigs.

Annual Rainfall. There has been recalculated from cent data the amount of rain falling upon the earth's surface is found that it is equivalent to a whole globe of about 2 1/4 inches amount falling on the land is equivalent to a uniform depth of 29 1/4 inches considering only the land which is drained by rivers flowing into the ocean. It is calculated that only 30 per cent is returned to the ocean, and the rest is removed by evaporation. Washington Post.

Pipe-lay for Mats. Pipe-lay acts as a preservative of rubber and makes one of the best mediums for treating the rubber mats used in automobiles. Oil and grease are rubber solvents and ruin the floor mats if they are allowed to remain on them. The mats should be wiped quite dry and then be pipe-layed. The pipe-lay dries and sucks the oil out of the rubber.

"Wound Up." I had been scolding one evening. The next afternoon my neighbor dropped in to inquire about my sister Jennie, who had been sick. Tribute and Tax.

Tribute is money, commodity of value or service rendered by one ruler or state to another in token of submission, while taxes are financial burdens imposed by a state upon its own subjects. In early times there was not this distinction, for, under the feudal system especially, taxation, tribute and rent were often identical.

It is said that marks on a polished or varnished surface may be removed by first rubbing them with a cut lemon and then with a cloth dipped in water.

PREVENTATIVE MEDICINE

The tendency of medical science is toward preventative measures. It is easier and better to prevent than to cure. Pneumonia, one of the most dangerous diseases that medical men have to contend with, often follows a cold or attack of the grip. The cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the pneumonia germ. The longer the cold hangs on, the greater the danger. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the first indication of a cold appears so as to get rid of it with the least possible delay. It is folly to risk an attack of pneumonia when this remedy may be obtained for a trifle.

Egg-Rolling on the White House Grounds

All roads lead to the White House grounds for the children of Washington on Easter Monday. Last year between 50,000 and 60,000 of the little ones, attired in their Easter best...

Not since April 24, 1916, have Washington children been able to indulge in this annual merrymaking. In 1917, when the Easter egg rolling was suspended, the country had just entered into the war...

Long before 9:30 a. m., when the White House gates were scheduled to be open, a long line of impatient children had gathered in front of them. Promptly on the stroke of the appointed hour they swung open and a wild whoop rent the air...

Happy youngsters.

Easter egg of a thousand hues. The children romped, danced, put their tiny hands in the rainbow-tinted spray from the big fountain in the center of the grounds and ate innumerable eggs.

By 10:30 the grounds were literally jammed. All kinds and conditions of children were there, from babies in arms, wee toddlers to the boys of sixteen or seventeen who simply came to bring 'little sister' from near colored children, staid and serious until they stoned with dizziness, in children of the dimemiate corps and Washington's emissary corps, while the children of the summer watched the scene from the south portion of the mansion...

One small boy boasted that it was a day when parents just had to overlook faults in little ones because they could not leave them home else the mother could not enter the White House grounds. A small child was the only ticket and price of admission. Small boys stood by ready to be borrowed—for a nickel—and one 'chapman' exhibited hands full of coins he had earned by this practice...

The day guests formed a line in front of the south porch shortly before 11 o'clock in the expectation that the President and Mrs. Harding would soon appear. That was to be the big moment of the big day. The first White House occupant to appear on the scene was 'Laddie Boy,' the President's straddle-legged leash by his proud keeper, Jarkson. A cheer of delight went up from the children. 'The President's dog,' they shouted from one to another.

Laddie Boy belated with the decorum due from a dog of such high estate, and proved that in the canine world as in any other, rank does impose obligation. He stood the ordeal of hundreds of pats, but refused all proffers of eggs and other tidbits from the children's baskets.

The children watched for the President, and when he appeared in the window of the executive office with one mad dash they trooped across to the magic spot. It was really he, smiling, he waved his hands boyishly and kindly at the fluttering hands of the children greeting him. It was the big moment.

At 1 o'clock when the Marine band arrived, was another big moment, and then shortly afterward came the 'big moment of the day.' For on the portico appeared the President and Mrs. Harding and Laddie Boy. Cheer after cheer went up and gift eggs from many of the children were sent to the President and his wife, some the worse for the rolling process they had undergone, but all freighted with the love and thanks of the children of Washington for a red letter in their youthful calendars.

From the ranks of cheering children broke a small boy, Paul Mann, ten years old. He bore a small box in his hand and climbed over the low fence between the lawns and executive offices and stood before the President. The President raised the window and smilingly took the box from him. The egg inside was decorated with the shield of the United States, Boy Scout emblems and other insignia. The tray guests were thrilled. He turned away from the window back to the burdens of state, still smiling and carrying the egg with care.

But where was Mrs. Harding? A number of ladies on the portico were identified to turn as she. Finally a little girl shrieked. 'There she is—the lady in brown.' 'No,' answered her feminine neighbor, aged eight, in scorn, 'Don't you know she must wear Harding blue?'

Actors Amuse Children. Striking contrast was brought into the scene by the sight of boys playing in and out of the empty sentry boxes that had sheltered grim sentinels of the President in war days. Overhead came another reminder of the strenuous days now past in airplanes flying from Bolling field, the pilots of which were able to get an excellent panoramic view of the historic scene below.

of stately colonial homes set in beautiful acres that sloped to the river, and down whose lawns the children of that day rolled their gaily hued Easter eggs, following the old English custom that had been brought to the new world by their pioneer ancestors.

The Easter egg rolling at the White House was instituted by President Grant when he discovered that Washington children had no central point where they could celebrate their annual festival. He invited them on the south lawn of the White House and appeared on the south portico with a group of cabinet and other guests to watch the sport. The Presidents that followed him kept up the genial custom and after a while concerts by the Marine band were made a feature of the day.

AUNT CYNTHIA'S EASTER

By F. H. Sweet

A new minister had come to slow-moving, out-of-the-way Spruce Hill, and with his coming had appeared a spirit of change and improvement.

Among other innovations was the Easter sermon and church decoration. The new minister made the announcement one Thursday afternoon after prayer meeting, and added that he hoped all would be present, and that the ladies of the church would arrange for a tasteful and appropriate decoration.

After service the women stood about irresolutely, looking at each other with blank, questioning faces. 'I guess you'll have to excuse me, Mr. Kent,' one of them said at last, bluntly. 'I ain't got any flowers except one geranium, which doesn't bloom; and, besides, I don't know anything about no decoration, an' ain't got no time, either.'

'Nor me,' 'Nor me,' 'Nor me,' came in rapid succession, and with evident relief from the other women. 'Oh, come, come; this will never do!' expostulated the minister. 'Surely each of you can spare a little time from work. And doubtless we can find a few callas and Easter lilies and narcissus, and perhaps some other wife—'

'All the houses in the neighborhood couldn't spare up white posies enough for a button-hole bouquet,' declared a woman aggressively. 'As for Easter lilies, I ain't never seen one, an' narcissus I ain't even heard of. The idea of decoratin' a whole church this time of year!'

'I've heard Mis' Bray speak o' narcissus,' said a woman, reflectively. 'She that was the florist's wife, you know. An' come to think, she's likely a master hand at this decoratin' business. She has spoke o' seein' big city churches filled with flowers.'

'Who is Mrs. Bray, and where is she to be found?' asked the minister quickly. 'Curious, I have not heard of her before.'

'Oh, I don't know,' dryly; 'folks sort o' die away from the world after

'Come, Cynthia, don't talk that way,' remonstrated Mrs. Perry. 'You know farmers' wives are always workin', an'—an' it's a good piece to—'

'The poor farm?' said the old woman, calmly. 'W-e-l-l, yes, poor farm,' deprecatingly. 'But—but I'm callin' today, an' I've brung the minister. Do you know him?'

'No, we haven't met,' said the old woman. 'I generally stay in the kitchen.'

'I must acknowledge this visit is a begging one, for help, Mrs. Bray,' said the minister. 'I am planning to have the church decorated for Easter; but the ladies of my congregation, including Mrs. Perry here, assure me that such a thing is utterly impossible. I have come to you as a last resort. Can you help me?'

"Did You Wish to See Me?"

The old woman, who had not had a caller in five years, looked from one to the other with a sudden yearning in her tender old eyes.

'It isn't easy to decorate without anything to decorate with,' she said. 'In the city we used to have palms and Easter lilies, and no end of ferns and delicate things to bank with.'

'But there are the woods,' suggested the minister desperately. 'Yes, the woods are useful around here in spring. I notice from the kitchen windows; and sometimes, before they get up, I take short walks.' Her hands were still trembling, but into her eyes was coming an expression which Mrs. Perry remembered to have belonged to her old days.

'Do you mean for me to take charge of the decorating?' she asked. 'Yes, but of course with plenty of help. I don't know much about arranging flowers myself.'

He turned hastily and glanced through the window. Something in the rapturous expression on the old woman's face made him lose command of himself for a moment.

'Well, I shall need help in gathering the decorations,' she was saying as he turned back. 'There will be things to cut and bring home, and boxes and boards to build up for the banking. Yes, I think we can do it very nicely. There are some bushes along the creek that I can fix up to look very much like palms at a little distance, and that dark moss below the ledge will make a beautiful bank on which we can arrange the early white flowers which are beginning to bloom. Then there are the pussy willows and early ferns, and lots of other things that can be used with good effect. But there,' breaking into a low, joyous laugh, which apparently frightened her, for she stopped suddenly and looked about in a scared sort of way. 'I was only going to say,' she went on, deprecatingly, 'that I seen the church yet. I ought there first and look around.'

'Of course we will take you this afternoon,' volunteered the minister.

'And you can have my horse wagon every afternoon,' added Mrs. Perry, warmly, 'an' my boy Tom drive and help.'

'It will be beautiful,' Mrs. murmured—'like the world when I was young.' She was thinking of the decoration of the beautiful thing of not been gotten that had come so unexpected to her. The minister gazed at moment, and then again turned window.

'There will be no failure church decoration,' he remarked to Mrs. Perry. 'Nor was there, nor in the belief that had come to the minister. During the decoration was like a different creature, as face came to be scarcely recognized that which had looked so deploringly at them that afternoon poor farm. When it was all minister went to her impulsive grasped both her hands.'

'I cannot tell you how much have helped me,' he said earnestly. 'The decoration has been a success, and it is all owing to you. But there is another thing I want to speak about. My housekeeper is to leave, and I need some one to her place. Will you come and after the parsonage—and me, to that matter?' with one of his boyish smiles. 'My mother's said I wasn't capable of looking my clothes and such things. Try not to tax you too severely.'

So the beautiful thing which came to her was not of a day, but to last through all the remaining her years. Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper

CHINESE IN CELEBRATION

Lines of Chinese, clad in gowns ranging from the frock coat and of western ultra-civilization to gorgeous silks of the Orient, met last Easter Sunday in a great religious procession through San Francisco Chinatown. The pageant and procession were followed by union set Baptist, Methodist, Congregational, Presbyterian and Episcopal missions in Chinatown organized celebration.

A feature of the day was the singing by young Chinese girls.

RESURRECTION

'He is risen! Would you know him? In the early light of morn; As the seals of sin were broken, And grim Death of strength is shorn.'

'He is risen! Would you know him? If you met your risen Lord; Would his loving, gentle accents In your heart find sweet accord.'

'Then, if He to you is risen, On this Holy Easter Day; Over sin, and death and sorrow You will triumph, in His way.' —Selected

To Welcome Easter.

Let us welcome Easter with glad hearts. It is a day of commemoration of redemption from sin and death, which gives assurance of our immortality. Let us bring our tribute of roses and lilies, violets and jonquills and hyacinths, perfect first-fruit of the earth's rarest blossoms of the spring time, and types of the cleansed and perfected perfection which we ourselves show forth when we are 'risen with Him,' who is the Resurrection and Life.

ECHOES from M. I. S.

By Students of
MIAMI INDEPENDENT SCHOOL

Due to a mistake in making out the Honor Roll last week, the name Robert Robbins was omitted from the High School list.

The winners in the spelling contest were:

Muriel Stevens—Senior
Elizabeth Dial—Junior
Margie Graham—Sub-Junior.
This is a great honor and we congratulate the girls. Good spellers are scarce.

Betty: (In Biology class) "I remember the year that cat-tails were so plentiful."

Charles: "Yes, but the cats are nearly all killedout now."

Magie Agnderson, of Pampa, visited M. H. S. Tuesday.

Everything was anything but "calm and peaceful" around the school building Monday.

There must be gravity in the seat in front of Fay's desk, because it draws Sam there so often.

The Biology class has a field trip planned for the 10th.

Thursday afternoon a very important baseball game was played between the "Wild-Cats" and the "Morning Glories." We are sorry to say that the Morning Glories "withed."

Lucy knows the world is round.

The Sophomores are planning a good time for Friday evening when they will go on a picnic. They will leave town at five o'clock, and intend to return about seven.

Note the grand wedding which is to be held on April 17th. "Uncle Bim" and "Mrs. Zander."

Winnie Locke took a pleasure trip to Pampa Tuesday afternoon, and while there saw the Pampa ball team get "walked on" by Amarillo.

The Juniors must be "Planning against the whites." They have so many class meetings.

Everyone is neglecting his lessons to go to church. We think that should come before lessons.

The Expression class is working very hard on their play, which they expect to present Tuesday evening.

HOME ECONOMICS

Miss Joan Hamilton, Supervisor of Vocational Home Economics, at the College of Industrial Arts, visited with our High School Tuesday of this week. She made quite an interesting talk in chapel.

FRESHMEN

The play books, for the Freshman have arrived and we will start working on it soon. We hope that it will not take a very long time to get it up so that we may present the play.

Mr. Gilley: "If I held my arm out this way, it would be right angle."

BUY AN ANNUAL.

SENIOR DOPE

Judge McKenzie visited the High School Tuesday morning.

Miss Mamilton, of C. I. A., and Mr. Rutland, of the State Agricultural Department, visited the school Tuesday, and gave the High School student body two very interesting talks in chapel.

The Senior Class president called a class meeting Monday morning, and during the session we attended to some very important business matters. The Senior play was selected and Mr. Gilley was chosen as director.

The Debating teams are exceedingly busy memorizing their debates. Listen, People! We are going to Canyon to win Are YOU backing us?

JOKES BY SENIOR P. K.

Miss Keevil: "Has anyone Silas Marnier, with a green back?"

Tennie: "I'm nobody's fool."
Betty: "Don't dispair. Maybe someone will adopt you."

Mr. Gilley: "Name the first four books in the New Testament."
Elvira: "January, February, March and April."

Photographers: "Now, Sam, try and look intelligent for a moment please."

Gussie: "I believe I'll get a green sweater!"

Eula Pearl: "Why don't you get a white one, and fade on it?"

Love's a puncture in the heart.
Caused by Cupid's little dart.
Nothing in this world can beat it.
So take care, all ye who feel it.

If you don't like these jokes.
And their dryness makes you groan,
Just stall around occasionally—
And see what you can get of your own.

How Esther Foiled a Holdup

By WILLIAM FALL

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

"You are not afraid, Esther?"
"Not a particle, Nettle. Why should I be? This is not my first time on duty here, you know."

"Yes, but at night and all by yourself! I should think you would die with loneliness."

"What! With your dear brother Paul to think of? Why, Nettle, just imagine it—he may be a passenger on the very train I send speeding to the city at midnight."

Esther Manning mounted the iron ladder leading to the track tower, half a mile from the nearest house of a small scattered settlement.

Her father had been dispatcher at Tower 10 for fifteen years, and before that in other employment with the Central Northern. The night shift, with its chill mists and tiresome treadmill system, had been a hardship to old Mr. Manning. He was particularly indispensed this particular evening, and Esther had insisted on acting as his substitute.

She was engaged to Paul Reynolds, who had been for a year in the West and was expected home daily. His sister had accompanied Esther to the tower. The latter waited till Bruce Vallette, the day operator, was relieved by Esther. Then the two walked away, leaving Esther alone at her post of duty in the gathering dusk.

Esther had only the Night Flyer to take care of, due at 12:03.

She looked to see that the west semaphore was set for clear tracks. Half a mile distant where the big curve began was the east semaphore. She noted that the go-ahead white light showed.

Esther roused from her day dream reverie with something of a shock. Very suddenly the trap door in the floor was given a great push, as if from a man's strong shoulder. Esther had taken the precaution to bolt it. She heard a muffled ejaculation of disappointment. Warned—more, alarmed—Esther sprang up quickly and threw the tin shade over the lamp on the operator's table.

She ran to the window and glanced down. It was just in time to see a lurking form steal from the tower base and sink over behind the cattle pens. Here he was joined by two men. A startled cry escaped Esther's lips. The white clear signal was not visible. It had been changed to the red stop signal. Esther sprang to the semaphore levers.

"The wires are cut!" she gasped, white and trembling and almost overcome.

Within fifteen minutes the Night Flyer was due.

"Train robbers!" breathed Esther, aghast. "What shall I do?"

She imagined the Night Flyer at the mercy of lawless, armed bandits. Esther summoned all her innate bravery and good sense. In one corner of the tower room stood a repeating rifle. She threw up a west window, took aim at the semaphore, and fired.

No result. Again—and there was a crash. She had shot out the white light signal! Surely the Night Flyer would take some heed of this circumstance!

A second rapid suggestion came to her mind, and she ran for a corner where a big bundle of red fire signal fuses lay.

Carrying these to the table, she selected one. Drawing the screen from the lamp, she flared the end of the fuse and gave it a fling. It landed, blazing and sputtering, amid the loose hay near the cattle pens. In an instant the mass burst into flames.

Bang—bang—bang! A hail of bullets from the revolver of the man left on guard rattled across the crashing windows of the tower. Then he darted down the rails in search of his companions.

Up dashed the Night Flyer. Esther was down from the tower, rifle in hand, a figure heroic as the train came to a stop and its crew surrounded her. In an instant an armed party was made up, proceeding to the east semaphore to investigate the situation at that point.

The baffled bandits had fled, but preparations were discovered to hold up the train in true wild western fashion—the train which carried in its express car over half a million in currency.

The leader of the investigating group was a young man from the West—Esther's lover. When the Night Flyer resumed its run, Paul Reynolds came back to the tower to greet the brave girl soon to become his wife. The railroad company did something more than pension old Mr. Manning. They sent Esther a substantial wedding present as a reward for her heroic efforts in saving the Night Flyer.

We're still here—and we'll treat you right. Let us prove it to you.
