Houston Leads State In Crime Report Of FBI

Houston was the fourth-ranking city in the United States for the number of murders and non-negligent man slaughter cases during the first six months of 1952, the Federal Bureau of Investigation reported in Washington.

The FBI said 51 murders and cases of non-negligent manslaughter were committed in Houston, compared to 136 in Chicago, 128 in New York, and 119 in Baltimore.

Other Texas cities which had large numbers of murders included Fort Worth, 30; Dallas, 29, and San Antonio, 21. No other Texas city on the FBI list had more than four.

BARBER'S DESPAIR — Sgt. Robert Proct, of Algier, French North Africa, sports the finest beard of all the men in the French Battalion in Korea. The luxuriant growth saves him many minutes otherwise wasted shaving, and helps him present a fierce face to the enemy.

NICE CATCH — Whether you believe in mermaids or not, comely Chips De Winter would be a pleasant catch for any fisherman. The "mermaid" helped the Miami, Fla., Fashion Council launch its annual resort style week.

"JEEP" HELICOPTER MAKES ITS BOW—This is the American Helicopter Company's radically new HX-26 helicopter, making its first public appearance at Torrance, Calif. The tiny aluminum craft, weighing less than 300 pounds, is powered by pulse-jet engines at the ends of its rotor blade. Designed for one-man military reconnaissance, the collapsible 'copter can carry more than its own weight at 80 miles per hour.

Froggies Labor To Sharpen Play Next Saturday

Sharp improvement in all departments of play will be devoutly sought on the TCU practice...

plot at Fort Worth this week. Coach L. R. (Dutch) Meyer could find little in last week's opening performance that gave him any comfort.

In losing to the Kansas Jayhawkers, 0-13, the Purple failed to score for the first time in 43 games—or since late in the 1947 season. That failure seemed to hurt the offense-minded Meyer the most.

"Granting that Kansas has a very fine team, which they certainly have, and that the slippery field wasn't to our best liking, we still looked miserable," Meyer said. "The defense wasn't too bad since you don't figure to hold a good team like Kansas to less than two tallies. But our offense was

'way below par. We've got to work hard here."

Some Bright Spots If there was any bright spot in the picture, it was the adequate punting of Ray McKown who averaged 39.2 yards with a soggy ball and the fact that the Frogs sustained no serious injuries.

In addition, the Christians should have two first stringers back for this week's battle with the UCLA Bruins in Los Angeles. Neither Marshall Harris, the top right tackle on offense, nor Wayne Martin, the crack defensive end, played at Lawrence because of wounds. But they should go this week. The absence of Martin was especially felt in the Kansas loss.

Better blocking by the offensive guards has been listed as a "must" by Meyer. The Kansas defense against the Frogs spread had been anticipated but the inability of the Christian guards to clear their ball carriers was a major factor in the poor offensive showing.

Passing Good "Our run game has simply got to improve," Meyer pointed out. "I thought our passing was very good when we finally did open up in the last half. But we've simply got to hold the ball longer than we did in Lawrence to have any chance of victory. We had two fine scoring opportunities, but messed them both up. We'll work hard in that department."

Actually, the team will have limited time to get ready for their invasion of California. The team is due to leave by plane early Friday morning and will work out that afternoon in Memorial Coliseum in

Alias Basil Willing By Helen McCloy

THE STORY: Jack Duggan, a private detective, is murdered after he posed as Psychiatrist Basil Willing. Agnes and blind Katherine show signs under mysterious circumstances the same night. Both deaths follow a dinner at the home of Dr. Zimmer, also a psychiatrist, who had been studying some of his patients at the gathering. Dr. Zimmer later resumes his gatherings and Basil asks Miss Shaw's secretary Charlotte Dean to attend and report what occurs. Late the same night Basil is called to the home of the poet Stephen Lawrence, who is near death from a cocaine overdose. Basil revives Lawrence by telling the man he must live for his daughter's sake.

amusing when he is in the mood. I felt it such a privilege to sit next to him at table. I don't know him very well, but I've always admired his verse."

"Did his high spirits go on to the end?" "Oh, yes. He and Perdita were among the first to leave and I heard him laughing as he went out the front door. Such a light, musical laugh for a man!"

Gisela shivered. As he left that house, Stephen Lawrence had laughed. With poison already in his blood stream? Or the set will to suicide already in his heart? "And Perdita?" Basil was saying. "Was she gay, too?"

"She seemed rather tired, but Zimmer did his best to cheer her up. They had quite a little tete-a-tete when she first got there, but that was the only time Perdita showed any animation at all."

"You don't know what they were discussing?" "No. They were at the other end of the room."

"I'm sure Rosamund Yorke was the loveliest woman there," remarked Gisela. "Mrs. Yorke was a little bit..." Charlotte paused for a word. "Distrait, I thought. Once she even stammered."

"How was that?" Basil's question came swiftly. "Let me see... Mr. Yorke was making plans for next summer. He said something about going to Europe and asked Mrs. Yorke if she could go with him on a certain date. She started to say something like 'Why, of course, We'll go by air on the first of July...'

But, half-way through the sentence, her voice caught and her words stumbled. She stopped speaking for a moment and then went on in a less natural tone of voice. No doubt it was the memory of the last time that we were all at Dr. Zimmer's together that upset her nerves. Now I come to think of it, there were several others who seemed to feel the same way in the beginning. "And who were these others?" "Isolda Canning and her husband. You would hardly think either would be sensitive to atmosphere, but they must be. Mr. Canning was talking about the atom bomb—such an unpleasant subject. He said, 'If ever it comes Isolda and I are going to...'" and then he stopped. Mr. Yorke finished the sentence for him. "Run, not walk, to the nearest exit!" Mr. Canning nodded but he didn't say any more.

"And no one mentioned Duggan?" "Of course not." Charlotte's tone gently rebuked the idea that anyone would be guilty of such a breach of decorum. "But I suppose Duggan must have been in everyone's mind at first," she admitted. "I could see when we got there that Mrs. Mann was working hard to put everyone at ease. And Dr. Zimmer, too. He was all things to all men, even discussing metre and inflection with Stephen Lawrence. I heard them when they were standing beside the fireplace just before dinner, and I was quite entranced, ignorant as I am of such things. Dr. Zimmer listened so intently, one hand on the mantel, looking down at the fire. It needed poking, but he didn't touch it until Mr. Lawrence had finished what he was saying. Toward the end of the evening everyone seemed much more comfortable. Resuming these dinners as if nothing had happened is probably the best way to lay the ghost of poor Duggan. Mrs. Mann told me that Dr. Zimmer asked her to point that out to each of his patients in her invitation and he's probably right. Next time we will have forgotten all about Duggan now we've broken the ice."

"So there is to be a next time?" "Of course," Charlotte was mildly disconcerted. "We're all dining there again next Friday."

"Was Mr. Shaw one of the uneasy ones?" Basil asked. "Oh, no. He was in very good form. And seemed really quite attentive to me." (To Be Continued)

Dallas Pal FDR, Truman Is Dead

DALLAS, Sept. 24 (UP)—Funeral services were held at 4 p.m. Tuesday for Currie McCutcheon, 67, Dallas attorney and longtime friend of Franklin D. Roosevelt and President Truman. McCutcheon was found shot to death Monday.

A member of his family found the body in the bathroom of his home. A pistol was in McCutcheon's lap. Homicide Capt. Will Fritz said there was "no doubt in my mind" that the death was suicide, but an official verdict was withheld pending a coroner's inquest. McCutcheon had been in poor health for two years, according to his family.

He was active in Democratic party politics in Texas until two years ago. He entertained President Truman on the President's last visit to Dallas.

Two Gun Judge Tells Them How To Hold Court

DALLAS, (Special) — Texans' political independence is no surprise to historians, says Joseph Leach, professor at Texas Western College in his new book "The Typical Texan" just published by the SMU Press.

As far back as the 1830's when Three Legged Willie Williamson was appointed district judge by Sam Houston he let the community know how things were going to be, after some of the citizens had informed him that they wanted none of Houston's courts there. Williamson placed a rifle at one elbow and a pistol at the other and declared: "Hear ye, hear ye, court for the third district is either now in session or by God somebody's going to get killed."

Leach says, however, the popular conception of a Texan as someone belligerent, independent as a hog on ice, and given to loud and long boasting about his state came more from the East than from Texas. For instance, a New York magazine in 1882 said "the typical Texan is half-alligator, half-human who eats raw buffalo and sleeps out on the prairie; he is peaceable only after he has killed everybody in sight and can find no fresh material to practice on."

According to Professor Leach, the politically recalcitrant Texans are direct descendants of the Kentuckian who saddled his horse, shouldered his gun and set out for Texas to "fight for his rights."
