Around The Square

With Mack

The Tideland Oil Issue involves much more than the mineral resources of the submerged area off our coast. It involves principle, with far-reaching effects, which can, in the end affect every state in the Union, and many private enterprises within those states. Beyond any question it is designed to further the interests of the growth of central government at the expense of the sovereign states and all of the people.

The people of Texas and Louisiana are fairly alert to the dangers involved in the attempted steal of the tidelands by the Federal Government, but the people of California are asleep at the switch.

The able Attorney General of Texas, Price Daniel, has pointed out that the state of Maine has an income from clams, lobsters, and fish from its submerged lands in excess of $14,000,000 a year, which is more than double the amount that Texas receives from her off-shore mineral leases.

Since the growth of Central government in violation of the concepts of our Constitution is well known, the dangers of the Tideland Oil Bill becomes pronounced, and it is vital that we know the legal views with regard to this bill. Out of 43 reviews in legal periodicals, in 20 states and in England, 40 of them condemn the bill.

Yet, Truman and Stevenson continue to justify this steal, and promise to exert themselves to see that it is crammed down our throats. On the other hand, Dwight D. Eisenhower has condemned the steal, and if elected president, declares that he will favor the return of the Tideland Oil to Texas. An honest, thinking Texan, cannot and will not disagree with the General.

Businessmen, farmers, laborers and others are asking for a change. They are disgusted with New Deals, Fair Deals and Raw Deals. They love their country, and have no idea of "pooing it off" just because some crack pot comes along with some new idea and a mighty bad one at that.

They want to "boot out" the pinks who have wormed their way into our government. They want to sweep out those evil men who

TIME TO RELOAD—Republic of Korea troops take advantage of a lull in battle to replenish their ammunition supply, somewhere along the flaming front lines. Since the Chinese Communist troops launched their largest attack in a year, on the night of October 6, possession of battle-blasted White Horse Mountain alone has changed hands over 20 times.

COLD FRONT SWEEPS IN ON HEELS OF CHILLING WINDS

Eastland Countians shivered this morning as Old Man Winter blew his chilly breath across the area's dry acres.

This morning's forecast—Partly cloudy and cooler today. Thursday, generally fair and a little warmer.

Absentee Voting Begins Today At Office Co. Clerk

The period for absentee voting begins today, and will end three days before the general election on November 4.

If you are a regular, qualified voter, but figure you will not be at home on Election Day, you should go to the office of the county clerk and state the facts, if you meet all the qualifications, you will be provided with a ballot.

If you wish to vote a straight Democratic vote, do not mutilate any portion of the names under the Democratic column. If you wish to do this, all other columns must be marked out. But in case you wish to support Eisenhower and Nixon for president, (and it is legal) strike out the names of Stevenson and Sparkman at the top of the Democratic column, but leave all other names intact. Then move over to the second column under the Republican heading and leave the names of Eisenhower and Nixon, but strike out all names below.

You will notice that the names of democrats also appear in this column, but go right on and strike them out for you have already voted for them under the Democratic heading. Several additional columns also appear on the ballot, but they must all be marked out.

Vote as you wish, but vote, and if you plan to be absent from home on election day, arrange for an absentee ballot right now.

Cross Plains To Meet Maverick Eleven Friday

Mavericks will play their first conference game of the season in Eastland Friday night, when they take on the Cross Plains eleven.

Nobody seems to know just how good or how bad the Cross Plains team is this year, though after the Rising Star hit Mavericks feel that they may be able to hold their own. Additional training has helped the local group, and they are making progress.

The game will be played at Maverick stadium and a large attendance is expected. Local fans are urged to be on hand and give the boys a lift.

Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson Wednesday Accused "Playing Politics" With The Korean War, While The Republican Presidential Nominee Charged The Administration Was "Caught In A Bear Trap Set By The Bear Itself."

Stevenson, in a speech prepared for delivery in Spokane, sharply criticized Eisenhower's recent implication that U. S. troops could be withdrawn from Korea more rapidly if South Koreans were trained to take over. The Democratic candidate, pledging "I will not play politics with war and peace," said "surely as our most distinguished soldier, the general must know that we have been training South Koreans as rapidly as we could for a long time now."

Eisenhower was making a sweep through Texas in a final bid for the Lone Star state's 24 electoral votes. He made his "bear trap" charge in a speech at San Antonio, and listed four basic elements necessary to win a lasting peace: "A strong America, a political leadership that earns respect, free Allies throughout the world, and an active United Nations."

Truman To Star Again

In the capital, veteran campaigner Harry Truman was packing his bags for another three days of whistle-stopping in support of Stevenson. The President will leave Wednesday night for a trip through Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and New Hampshire. He'll follow by a few hours the departure of Vice President (Continued On Page 2)

BOYCE HOUSE

Boyce (I Give You Texas) House, Right, Fort Worth author and after-dinner speaker, visiting Hollywood, is told by Sam Zimbalist (MGM producer of "Oceano Vadio" and "King Solomon's Mines") about his next picture, "Mogambo" spectacular African story starring Clark Gable. House worked with Zimbalist as technical adviser-writing consultant on "Boomer Town" some years ago. House formerly was editor of the Eastland Telegram and the Ranger Times.

Little Items Of Local Interest

Dr. and Mrs. R. C. Ferguson have just returned from Houston, and report a splendid trip. They were in Houston while the city had its "Eisenhower" decorations on display, and Mrs. Ferguson says it was very impressive. She says that Stevenson's name was seldom mentioned.

Avenger Rites Set At Ranger For Thursday

Funeral services for Rufus Hinkney Avinger, 72-year-old Ranger resident who passed away Tuesday afternoon in a Ranger hospital, will be held at the Second Baptist Church Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

The Rev. James Ward, pastor of the church, will officiate during the rites, and interment will be in Brownwood Cemetery. Morris Funeral Home, Ranger, is in charge of arrangements.

Mr. Avinger, born in Louisiana on Feb. 7, 1880, moved to Brownwood with his parents at the age of two and resided in the Brownwood area for 66 years prior to moving to Ranger two years ago.

The retired farmer was a member of Ranger's Second Baptist Church. He had been ill for only a short time prior to his death Monday.

Mr. Avinger is survived by his widow, the former Miss Willie P. Sullivan, whom he married on Jan. 9, 1909; three sons, M. A. Avinger of Washington, D. C., A. R. Avinger of Los Angeles, and A. B. Avinger of Ranger; two daughters, Mrs. O. L. Lee of Cisco, and Mrs. J. H. Marshall of Americana; 12 grand-children; and one brother, Jessie Avinger, of Weslaco, Tex.

Goode's Address At Lions Club Well Received

Attendance was up at the Lions Club luncheon Tuesday, and the program brought by John Goode, was one worth while.

Mr. Goode, fully equipped with charts and maps, gave a panoramic view of Texas. Beginning at the time when Texas was under another flag and the state was composed of the present area, along with half of New Mexico, all of Oklahoma, and portion of Arkansas, Louisiana and Kansas. It was a body of land larger than many European lands.

The only trouble was, it just didn't have enough people. Texas has been under half a dozen flags, but for more than a century has been doing business under the Stars and Stripes. Yet in days gone by it has flown the Spanish flag, the French and Mexican flag, the U. S. Flag and the Lone Star or Texas Flag. And it was a pretty fair nation, so far as acreage is concerned.

When it was finally trimmed down to its present size (still the biggest and best) and turned over to early day pioneers, it began to show signs of prosperity. Of course there was very little money, so land was used to pay all bills. Early day citizens were degraded thousand and even millions of acres of good land for homesteads and when it finally went on the market for a cash consideration, good land could be purchased for as little as 50 cents per acre.

Millions of acres went to railroads as an inducement to get them to extend lines into this state. Schools and colleges were not overlooked, and Texas University today is the richest State School in America, so far as it is known.

Texas still owns the tidelands, and they were earmarked for her schools.

Various counties were given land grants, and even today you will find Eastland County School land, though the land is not in Eastland County, but rather in Crosby and Floyd.

Our State Land office is one of the largest business offices in the world. It controls approximately 40,000,000 acres of land, together with oil, gas, timber, etc., found within its confines.

Last Rites For Jabe E. Pratt Are Held Today

Funeral services for Jabe E. Pratt, 73-year-old Ranger resident since 1919 who died at his home in Ranger Monday morning, were held at the Killingsworth Funeral Home Chapel in Ranger this morning at 10 o'clock.

Interment was in the Elmwood Cemetery, Abilene this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Mr. Pratt, a retired engineer who had been employed by the Wichita Falls & Southern Railway for 30 years prior to his retirement, was born in Malvern, Ark. on Feb. 4, 1879. Following his retirement as a railway engineer, he spent eight years as a salesman for the Bayer Chemical Laboratories, Chicago, Ill.

RJC Machine Battles NTS Eleven Thursday

Coach Boone Yarbrough's high-riding Ranger Junior College Rangers, after their nerve-wracking 12-7 upset over San Angelo Junior College Bobcats last week, take a comparative breather Thursday night at Bulldog Stadium in Ranger when they collide with a squad of North Texas State College reserves.

Coach Yarbrough is hoping his first-stringers will get plenty of rest during the Thursday night fracas, a non-conference affair.

Thus many of his injured lads, banged-up during the initial five starts of the Ranger collegiate eleven, may be able to be healed and mended for their crucial homecoming encounter with the Tarleton State Plowboys of Stephenville here on Saturday, Oct. 25.

Their interest heightened by the RJCers' upset over San Angelo last week, a large number of grid fans in this area are due to be on hand in the stands at Bulldog Stadium Friday night for the opening kick-off of the Ranger-NTS "B" tilt.

After last week's smashing success which saw the Purple & White working terrifically effective off the TCU spread formation (only once did the Rangers spring off the T), it is likely that Coach Yarbrough will continue to exploit play off that line-up in Thursday night's encounter.

PIONEER CONFERENCE TEAMS MEET NON-CON OPPONENTS THIS WEEK

All Pioneer Conference teams this week are scheduled to line up against non-loop opponents in a final round before launching into the thick of the league title race which started last week with a game that provided the most tremendous upset of the junior college season.

San Angelo, conqueror of Del Mar, Wharton, and Victoria, and rated the No. 1 junior college team of the nation lost its first conference game when the Rams were bumped by Ranger 12-7.

The San Angelo Rams will try to reclaim their rating among the nation's best teams by going to Compton, Calif., Saturday for a game with Compton Junior College, an outstanding West Coast eleven.

Other headline attractions featuring conference teams this week match the Tarleton State Plowboys with the Kilgore Junior College Rangers at Kilgore Thursday and the resurgent Schreiner Mountaineers with powerful Del Mar at Corpus Christi Friday.

Tarleton State, with its best team in several seasons, slipped by the strong East Texas Yankers, 21-20, last week with Frank Earney, Guy Hill, Joe Hill Fox, and Tommy Hudspeck using the Plowboys' attack. In this week's game, however, Kilgore, a perennial East Texas powerhouse, will be a slight favorite.

Del Mar, beaten only by San Angelo, rates a nod over Schreiner, but the Mountaineers' sparkling 33-7 victory over a spirited Henderson County Cardinal eleven last week forecasts that the Mountaineers may be troublesome. The Mountaineers have one of the outstanding backs in the

Korean Hill Is Taken By GIs

SEOUL, Korea, Oct. 15 (UP)

American GIs of the 31st regiment stormed and captured bitterly-contested Triangle hill Wednesday in a sharp attack which carried them over the crest and 150 yards down the enemy-held northern slope.

Only a mile to the east, South Koreans of the Second Republic division launched a new assault on Sniper ridge and at last reports were locked in battle with fanatic Chinese defenders.

The UN is pressing its biggest ground assault in a year against the twin peaks on the central front. The South Koreans gained Sniper ridge for a time Tuesday, but a Chinese counter-attack knocked them off.

Later Wednesday, U. S. troops occupied Sandy ridge in the Triangle area without resistance but called off an assault on Jane Russell hill nearby when the Reds unleashed a heavy mortar and artillery barrage. The GI's dug in on Sandy ridge.

Allied planes gave air support to the infantrymen when the weather cleared.

To the west, the battle for White Horse mountain astride the Cheron invasion gateway to Seoul appeared over. South Koreans, unable to push the Chinese off the last three knobs of the mountain, blew them up.

Summer Dream

By Irene Ernhart
Copyright 1952 by NEA Service, Inc.

THE girl who stepped down from the plane at the Capital City Airport was as smoothly beautiful as if she had stepped out of the pages of a fashion magazine instead of flight six from New York. She wore a dove gray suit of sheer woolen and a tiny yellow hat that echoed the tawny golden highlights in her short brown hair and made her dark eyes look even darker. She had a cheerful expectant look on her face, almost eager, and one wouldn't have dreamed that she was, at the moment, running away.

Laurie had a hazy remembrance of going fishing with Steve during that previous summer.

A man standing by the gate hurried to meet her and when she saw him her soft mouth curved into a smile. "Why cousin Bruno? How nice to see you? Where's Dad?"

"His car's in the garage, Laurie, and he phoned and asked if I'd meet you. What a pleasure it is to see you after all this time! You're looking wonderful, and all grown up too, and—sophisticated."

"Am I really?" She hugged his arm as they went toward the car.

As he tucked her into the smart convertible Bruno said, "I thought I read where you were getting married this month, darling. Did something happen?"

Laurie French's face clouded. "I'll tell you all about it, Bruno. While he's busy, I'm going to see that all her luggage is stacked safely into the back of the convertible, she tried to assemble her thoughts. It was awfully hard to like you, Laurie, a social butterfly, always had anything she wanted that money could buy. She had sophisticated tastes, and she tried to make Louis over, well—he wouldn't be made over."

"At least," Laurie mused, "Fletcher and I are the same kind of people. We like the same things, know the same people, and—Fletcher's awfully handsome."

"Sounds like a good deal," Bruno said, intent on his driving. "I trust you are also in love with the guy."

She didn't answer. Bruno turned on the car radio, muttering something about not wanting to miss his regular newscast.

NOT that she didn't love Fletcher. She was terribly fond of him. She liked him better than any other man she had ever known. But the fact that she felt this overwhelming need to spend the summer in Ridgeville with her father and away from Fletcher, plus the fact that she had postponed the wedding, bewildered her as much as it did her mother and stepfather and fiancé.

Her mother had been one of the Markies from Capitol City. They were always spoken of as the "Chemical Markies" because that particular branch—the family that made its millions in the chemical business. Her father was just Louis French who owned a small hardware store in a crossroads town on a river in Indiana. Her mother had divorced him just after Laurie was born. Her stepfather Mark Carr was the only father she had ever known except for those few summers in Ridgeville.

Bruno snapped off the car radio. "There's the river, and the old covered bridge. Things never change down in this part of the country. It's been seven or eight years since I've been down here, but things look exactly the same."

"Yes," Laurie said. "It was four years ago I was down, but things look just the same. I was 16 then. Four years is a long time."

AS Bruno whirled the car down the long road through the valley, Laurie began to think of that summer four years ago that she had spent with her father.

She had felt quite grown up and worldly because she had just graduated from the academy and would go to Smith in the fall. She had fallen in love that summer too, with a fellow name Steve Wysong, who lived in a river cabin down below her father's house on the river. It hadn't been only yesterday." He tipped up his battered old brown hat with the flies on it, and picked up the oars again and pulled the boat out into the stream.

"They smell like they're all dead," Laurie replied.

Laurie was aware of a quick warm feeling of sheer pleasure. She loved the river, the smell and the feel and the sound of it. It must be something she had inherited from her father, she thought.

"Is that the same hat you wore the last time I was here?" she asked Steve, for want of something to say.

"Nope. Lost that one in the big pool by the rock cliffs where we always fished for channel catfish. Remember the place?" "I'd blow it off one day and it sank before I could get to it. I'll probably hook into it and think I've got a good fat channel cat on my line sometime." He stopped rowing and let the boat drift with the current for a second or two while he lit his pipe.

A drift of sweet smelling tobacco smoke floated on the morning air.

Laurie studied the strong lean lines of Steve's face. He was much more handsome than she had remembered. His face was thin, almost angular, but the bone structure was fine. He had a strong mouth with a hint of gentleness about it and there were laughter crinkles at the corners of his eyes.

She was struck all at once by the incongruity of her being here, with a man who was practically a stranger, sitting in a damp smelly old row boat on a river in the mist at 5 o'clock in the morning, when only yesterday she had been in New York.

This seemed like a different world. It was a different world! One that her friends in New York, her mother and Mark and Fletcher did not dream existed, and would never have appreciated even if they had known it. Fletcher and Mark went fishing sometimes, but they flew down to Florida and fished from Mark's big cabin cruiser.

KOREAN HILL—

Korean engineers tunneled beneath the Reds and set off dynamite charges.

"It just about blew the top off the hill," said a colonel in charge of the daring ROK raiders. "It looks like the battle on White Horse is finished."

Task Force Feints at Coast

The Chinese who survived the explosions put up a token fight before surrendering.

On the east coast of North Korea, a huge Allied task force made an amphibious feint. Aircraft carriers, loaded troopships and landing craft approached the Kojo peninsula south of Wonsan and carried out all phases of an amphibious assault except an actual landing.

Planes and warships had "softened" the Kojo area for three days and troops believed they were to make a real landing. But instead, their landing craft merely circled the troopships.

The task force was composed of six aircraft carriers, four cruisers, 30 destroyers, the battleship Iowa, the command ship Mount McKinley and scores of minor combat ships and landing craft. The Navy called the exercise a "full-scale training operation."

The Allies Tuesday captured 2 smaller hills, Jane Russell and Sandy ridge, but withdrew Tuesday night during a Red counter-attack which also swept them from the southern slopes of Triangle and Sniper ridge. The Reds used tall, burly Mongolians.

COLD—

Snow fell in Wyoming, Colorado and Kansas. Denver recorded 1.5 inch, and Cheyenne had .05 inch. The light snow at Goodland, Kans., was the first of the season for the Sunflower state.

In Texas a cold front moved out of the Panhandle, preceded by heavy winds. Gusts of over 40 miles an hour were recorded over Eastland County Tuesday night, as the front struck this section.

Cold air was expected to settle over all of the Lone Star state by Wednesday afternoon.

The weather bureau said the winds would diminish as the cold air mass pushes hot air south toward Mexico and the Gulf.

Sen. Paul H. Douglas criticized Eisenhower for not paying stratified income tax on the proceeds from his book, "Crusade in Europe." The Illinois Democrat told the Chicago Junior Association of Commerce that Eisenhower's capital gains tax arrangement may have been "legal" and "I do not say these measures are evasions, but they are evidences and a failure to perform a man's full duty to his country." Eisenhower revealed that he and his wife received $88,303 during the 10 years ended last Dec. 31, and kept a total of $671,221 after taxes. More than half the Eisenhower's net income came from the sale of his book.

Sen. Richard M. Nixon told a Detroit audience that the "Truman administration has been weak, vacillating and often corrupt" in dealing with communism. The GOP vice presidential candidate said the administration "has no stamina or stomach for dealing with communism." Nixon said he would make "no further

By Irene Ernhart

THE STORY: Laurie's French, engaged to be married to Fletcher, comes to Indiana to visit her father. Her father and mother are brought up in New York City. Four years ago Laurie's father, a young friend of her father's.

Laurie French awakened early that first morning in Ridgeville, despite the fact that she and her father and Bruno had talked until the wee small hours before Bruno started back to Capitol City.

As she opened her eyes the dawn was just beginning to send pink streamers of light into the sky. A soft cool May breeze plucked at the sprigged chintz drapes and bore a flowery fragrance into the room, mingled with the dank wet smell of the river. Somewhere a rooster crowed insistently and a dog began to bark. The dog was probably Steve's hunting dog Cass. Wasn't it silly she should remember a dog's name after all this time?

She began to think about Steve Wysong as she lay there. She had felt an odd stir of excitement when she had seen him yesterday, and she felt it again now. Presently she threw back the covers and got out of the warm bed and padded in her bare feet to the window. The sun would soon be up. She could catch the river smell more strongly now and hear the rush of water over the hill, echoing faintly, the sound of metal striking wood, the clanking of a chain.

That would be Steve getting his boat out to go up the river and run his lines before the mist rose from the river.

On sudden impulse Laurie opened one of her suitcases and rummaged in it, bringing out a pair of pale blue shorts, a white shirt macrammed in blue and some blue rope sandals. Her hands shook as she began to dress. If she didn't hurry she'd never be able to catch him. A splash of icy water on her face from the bathroom tap, a hasty brush or two at her hair and a couple of expert daubs with a lipstick at her mouth and she was off, down the stairs and out the front door, eagerness making her feet fly.

Steve's boat had already left his dock. She trotted along the path at the edge of the water, following the sound of the creaking oarlocks. The mist was so thick it was hard to keep in the path.

"Steve!" she called out, "Wait for me!"

THE creaking of the oarlocks ceased for an instant and then began again as the boat was pulled toward the bank. The dip of the oars sounded rhythmic in the stillness, a dark blur in the mist emerged gradually into first the shape of the boat and then Steve's figure hunched over the oars.

"Laurie!" He peered at her through the mist. "Great guns, what are you doing up this early?"

"You always used to let me help you run your lines that other summer. Remember?"

The boat bumped the sandy bank and Steve stood up, holding out his hand. She felt the warm strength of his grasp as she stepped down. The boat rocked slightly and she settled herself on the wet seat, squirming a little because it felt damp and cold on her bare thighs.

"Lovely morning, isn't it?" she said. She wrinkled her nose and moved a bait bucket full of crawdads out from under her feet.

"Why Laurie, what's the matter?" Steve said grinning. "An old fisherman like you shouldn't mind the smell of dead crawdads. Besides, there couldn't be more than one or two dead ones in that bucket. The rest are nice and lively. Louis and I seized them only yesterday." He tipped up his battered old brown hat with the flies on it, and picked up the oars again and pulled the boat out into the stream.

"They smell like they're all dead," Laurie replied.

Laurie was aware of a quick warm feeling of sheer pleasure. She loved the river, the smell and the feel and the sound of it. It must be something she had inherited from her father, she thought.

"Is that the same hat you wore the last time I was here?" she asked Steve, for want of something to say.

"Nope. Lost that one in the big pool by the rock cliffs where we always fished for channel catfish. Remember the place?" "I'd blow it off one day and it sank before I could get to it. I'll probably hook into it and think I've got a good fat channel cat on my line sometime." He stopped rowing and let the boat drift with the current for a second or two while he lit his pipe.

A drift of sweet smelling tobacco smoke floated on the morning air.

Laurie studied the strong lean lines of Steve's face. He was much more handsome than she had remembered. His face was thin, almost angular, but the bone structure was fine. He had a strong mouth with a hint of gentleness about it and there were laughter crinkles at the corners of his eyes.

She was struck all at once by the incongruity of her being here, with a man who was practically a stranger, sitting in a damp smelly old row boat on a river in the mist at 5 o'clock in the morning, when only yesterday she had been in New York.

This seemed like a different world. It was a different world! One that her friends in New York, her mother and Mark and Fletcher did not dream existed, and would never have appreciated even if they had known it. Fletcher and Mark went fishing sometimes, but they flew down to Florida and fished from Mark's big cabin cruiser.

Conservation Of Water Now Given Thought

Texas is experiencing its worst drought in history, more devastating than those of 1916-18, 1933-34 and even the record breaker of 1885 to 1887 according to U. S. Soil Conservation Service.

On the eve of the eighth annual convention of the Texas Water Conservation Association, which opens a three-day session next Sunday at Mineral Wells, the president sees an even more insidious catastrophe for Texas than the recurring droughts.

"I refer to the 'paramount rights' theory of the United States Supreme Court," Judge Guy C. Jackson of Anahuac, the Association's president, said today. "Texans, generally speaking, are a brave breed of hardy folks who have come up the hard, rough way and can take droughts and floods and other natural disasters in stride. We are making progress in our plans to conserve our water so as to be prepared for recurring droughts."

But "paramount rights," Judge Jackson said, "is the medium the federal government expects to use to get its feet in the door of every property owner and finally to walk right on in and tell us what they expect to do with our property."

"It was these two words 'paramount rights' that a minority of the United States supreme court

Operators Of Trucks Given Heavier Fines

Over 21,000 truck operators were arrested last year on Texas highways and more than a million dollars was paid in fines and additional registration fees.

These startling figures came to light in the annual report of Major Kent Odon, Chief of the License and Weight Division of the Department of Public Safety. The report, released this week, covers the fiscal year ending August 31, 1952.

Overloading, operating faulty equipment and improperly registered trucks accounted for the greater number of arrests.

The law fixes the maximum loads allowable on Texas highways at 58,420 pounds, but according to the reports, loads have been apprehended weighing over 130,000 pounds. An Austin trucking firm was fined $49 in Justice Court at Round Rock last June when caught with a truck and load weighing 130,100 pounds.

The total operating cost during the past year for the License and Weight Division, including equipment, traveling expenses and salaries for the 65 men was less than $456,000 appropriated by the 52nd Legislature for this type of highway protection. As a result of the highway law violation cases filed by the department, the counties and State road funds were enriched to the tune of $1,332,113.

D. C. Greer, State Highway Engineer, said the State was losing approximately seven millions dollars a year because truck owners register their vehicles for smaller loads than they are actually hauling on the highways.

used to kick us in the face with and endeavor to steal our Tidelands. It was the same two words the federal government used when it told 14,000 farmers in California that the government owned the water on their lands.

"Texans can't forever laugh off these threats. Some of them tell us to even go ahead and vote for candidates for president and vice-president who say they are for the paramount right theory. I say in all seriousness we may be running out of time on ever getting another opportunity to vote for candidates who are against this pernicious theory," Jackson said.

County's Castor Bean Crop Ready For Market

Eastland county's first car load of castor beans left Carbon on Monday of this week. The beans, a new crop here, are the first ever to be grown in this county. The crop this year is somewhat short, due to the drought, yet many farmers in the southern portion of the county will harvest a fair crop.

A second car will be shelled and shipped from Carbon this week, according to E. E. Powell, of the Production Marketing Administration. Some 3,500 acres of the beans have been grown this season, and in all probability the percentage will be greatly increased next season.

The county has some 23,000

jectives of that committee. On the panel will be Joe Pickle, Big Spring, secretary of the Colorado River Municipal Water District; Fred Brown, Mineral Wells, a director of the Brazos River Conservation and Reclamation District; Sam W. Cooper, Coleman, manager of the Central Colorado River Authority, and Tom McFarland, Lubbock, manager of High Plains Underground Water District No. 1.

Rangerite Faces Charge Of DWI

After a busy weekend, comparative quiet reigned on the Ranger police front today.

A 54-year-old Ranger man was escorted to Eastland late Tuesday night by Sheriff Frank Tucker and faces a charge of driving while intoxicated. Patrolman Ed Freeman arrested the motorist in a drunken state in Ranger about 9 p.m. Monday.

A resident on Young Street in Ranger called police, complaining that someone was throwing rocks at his house. In addition, the man said, the same parties had left a dead skunk in his yard.

Famous Track Great Visits Ranger Friday

DR. GLENN CUNNINGHAM World-Famous Track Star Will Speak in Ranger on October 17

Dr. Glenn Cunningham, one of the nation's all-time athletic greats, will be in Ranger Friday to speak to student groups at Ranger Junior College and Ranger High School on "Clean Living and the Race of Life." The general public also is cordially invited.

Dr. Cunningham's appearance in Ranger has been arranged under sponsorship of the Ranger Ministerial Alliance, and the Narcotic-Alcohol Education Department of the United States Drys.

The Rev. Ralph E. Perkins, pastor of Ranger's First Baptist Church and president of the Ministerial Alliance, said today that Dr. Cunningham's message has been applauded throughout the nation where he has spoken to hundreds of youth groups.

On his current tour of educational institutions, Dr. Cunningham is visiting 14 colleges and about 25 high schools in Abilene, Ranger, El Paso, Lubbock, Plainview, Wichita Falls, Fort Worth, Denton, McKinney, Dallas, Waco, Houston and Beaumont.

"Ranger and Eastland County is fortunate in being included in this itinerary of Dr. Cunningham, and our youth will be inspired by the message of this great All-American Athlete," Rev. Perkins said this morning.

Dr. Cunningham was burned in an accident in his youth and doctors stated that he would never run again, yet he established the indoor mile record at Dartmouth College in New Hampshire in 1938, with a time of 4:04.4 (the fastest mile either indoor or outdoor to that time). He also established the mile and a half outdoor record in 1937 at Travers Island, N.Y., with the time of 6:34. On a world tour he ran against the best runners of 56 nations and beat them all.

Dr. Cunningham is a scholar as well as an athlete. He holds the B.S. Degree from the University of Kansas, a Masters from the University of Iowa, and a Ph.D. Degree from the University of New York. After winning his Ph.D. Degree he did post-graduate work in the field of Education at Columbia University.

Dr. Cunningham will speak in a number of clubs and churches also, while on the Texas tour, which is in charge of Mr. A. C. Wimpey, director of Narcotic-Alcohol Education.

Ranger Fullback Hurt; Undergoes Surgery Today

James Caton of Wylie, student at Ranger Junior College and member of the 1952 Ranger football squad, underwent surgery at the West Texas Clinic early this morning for a collar bone injury received in grid practice session out at the college yesterday afternoon.

Dr. P. M. Kaykendall performed the minor operation, and it was believed that young Caton, fullback on the Ranger collegiate football squad, would be released from the clinic in two or three days.

During last Saturday night's game at San Angelo Caton played offensive fullback for the Ranger eleven.

Also injured in yesterday afternoon's scrimmage session was Jeff Smith.

Coach Boone Yarbrough reported at noon today that Caton will be sidelined the rest of the season due to the collar bone injury.

Demo Dollars 'Blood-Stained,' Gilmer Says

AUSTIN, Oct. 14 (UP)—Texas Democrats for Eisenhower Tuesday assailed House Speaker Sam Rayburn for talking of "prosperity" based on "blood-stained dollars."

Claude H. Gilmer, chairman of Texas Democrats for Eisenhower, said: "It is sickening to see get-along, go-along Sam Rayburn and his coterie of Trumanites traveling over Texas gloating over the blood-stained dollars that are now in circulation and calling it prosperity."

Gilmer attacked Democratic presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson for "associating" with Alger Hiss.

'Tidelands' Will Title Featured Ranger Oil Talk

R. M. (Bob) Wagstaff, prominent Abilene attorney who has been closely allied with the petroleum industry of West Texas, will deliver a featured address on "The Tidelands" during the special "Oil Progress Week" luncheon to be held at the Gholson Hotel in Ranger Thursday afternoon.

Several years ago, as a member of the Texas Legislature, Wagstaff played a major role in preparation and passage of present oil conservation laws, as well as the marginal well regulation.

Wagstaff, a lifetime member of the Democratic party, has been prominent in recent political activities in this area and is a much-quoted critic of the present administration and an ardent pro-Eisenhower Democrat.

Members of the Ranger Rotary and Lions Clubs will be meeting in joint session for the luncheon, but many visitors also will be present to hear Wagstaff and also to see a special movie film, "Cross Roads U.S.A." You Don't Need Much Advice—

... but it is valuable at least twice in your insurance experience. First is, when you get ready to buy insurance, don't select just any kind of an agent or any kind of policy. There's a big difference. Second is, when you have a loss would you rather have your friend at home with year's of insurance experience or some one living in Dallas, St. Louis or elsewhere, to handle your claim? There's another big difference.

If It's Insurance We Write It.
