

Churches Back Battle Against Polio Crippler

For the third successive year, churches and synagogues throughout the nation are holding special services this week end dedicated to the March of Dimes and the fight against polio.

Among clergymen of Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths who urged observance of the special services was Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver of Cleveland who said:

"The March of Dimes is a vital and urgent service which should recommend itself to the compassion and intelligence of the American people."

Rabbi Silver was joined by the Rev. Shirley Greene, Agricultural Relations Secretary of the Congressional Christian Church and by Roman Catholic Bishops William Gilmore of the Diocese of Helena and William J. Condon of the Diocese of Great Falls, Mont.

Observance of this occasion, Rabbi Silver said, "will offer us again this year an opportunity to turn our thoughts and the thoughts of our fellow-citizens to the blessed work of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, in marshalling all the forces of scientific research . . . to protect our people against the scourge of polio. This disease, whose victims are particularly children, has unfortunately increased in recent years, bringing tragedy into many lives and many homes."

Mr. Greene, an outstanding Christian leader among the nation's farm families, said, "The March of Dimes is a practical illustration of a central Christian teaching: 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.'"

"Infantile Paralysis is one of life's tragedies for which the victim is never prepared. This is especially true of low-income rural families of which America still has millions. March of Dimes contributions reflect our Christian understanding that every suffering human being is my neighbor. I regard it a privilege to endorse both the March of Dimes and Infantile Paralysis Sunday."

In a joint statement, their Excellencies, Bishops Gilmore and Condon pointed out that infantile paralysis "during the past five years has attacked more Americans than the number stricken during previous decades. As a consequence, the 1953 March of Dimes will seek redoubled contributions to match the redoubled efforts on behalf of our boys and girls."

"May I urge each and every one of you . . . to give with unstinting generosity to this fine cause. All may rest assured that God will indeed not with benign satisfaction whatever you may do to assist polio patients and to help speed the conquest of a cruel disease."

Inauguration Be Televised; Motor Co. Is Sponsor

Packard Motor Car company and Packard dealers will join in an energetic campaign centered around the presidential inauguration January 20, Fred J. Walters, vice president and general sales manager, said today. Packard will sponsor the inauguration on CBS television and radio, with Packard dealers from coast to coast holding open house and inviting the public to see and hear history in the making in their showrooms.

Dealers report elaborate plans for bringing the international broadcast and telecast to a local level. They have been sending inquiries to customers and prospects, running special advertising in local newspapers and on radio and television, and are outfitting their showrooms with special window trim in a patriotic motif for the occasion. Many of them are offering door prizes, ranging from new Packard Clippers to radio and television sets, and there will be flowers for ladies and balloons for children.

EASTLAND, TEXAS, SUNDAY, JANUARY 18, 1953

PRICE FIVE CENTS

Cost of Living Moves Down During Month

Eastland County's budget-stretching families were heartened Saturday with the report from Washington that the cost of living, as measured by the government eased off two-tenths of one per cent during the month ended in mid-December.

It wasn't much of a decrease. But—it will help.

Reporting the drop, the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) said that a 1 per cent decline in the retail price of food was chiefly responsible.

Rises in some other items held the drop in overall living costs to two-tenths of 1 per cent.

BLS said that on Dec. 15 its index of the retail price of food, clothing, rent and a score of other items bought by moderate income city families stood at 190.7 per cent of the 1935-1939 base period.

This index figure was 8-10 per cent higher than a year ago and 12 per cent higher than in the period just before fighting began in Korea.

T. E. Braniff Is Honored By Jews And Christians

The highest honor ever bestowed upon an American citizen by the National Conference of Christians and Jews and World Brotherhood, a World Brotherhood Citation, will be awarded Thomas E. Braniff, president of Braniff International Airways, Thursday night at Salina, Kans.

The World Brotherhood award will be presented at a dinner in Salina, Braniff's birthplace, by Leo K. Bishop, Chicago, vice president and a director of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Signed by Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, president of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, the Citation terms Braniff "a constant source of strength and leadership in the work of building better relations among men everywhere, regardless of national, racial and religious affiliations."

"Braniff is a tireless ambassador of good will," the Citation continued, "who has traveled thousands of miles in this country and abroad and has visited all the capitals of the free world to advance the acceptance and the practice of the brotherhood of man under the Fatherhood of God—our best hope for peace and freedom throughout the world."

The National Conference of Christians and Jews and World Brotherhood are civic organizations of religiously motivated persons who are promoting justice, amity, understanding and cooperation among Protestants, Catholics and Jews. The organizations do not aim at union or amalgamation of religious bodies or at modifying any of the distant beliefs of members.

Braniff has been active for years in the work of the organization in this country. In July of 1950, he helped to establish World Brotherhood in Europe in which eighteen countries are now represented.

Wind Erosion Is Feared As Dry Weather Prevails

The Soil Conservation Service reported today that the lands subject to blowing in western Texas and Oklahoma have entered the most serious condition since the end of the blow years of the 1930's.

Regional Director Louis P. Merrill of SCS disclosed that reports from area headquarters in the wind erosion sections of the two states show 6,275,500 acres are not sufficiently protected by growing plant cover or crop residues to prevent destructive blowing in strong winter and spring winds. This total is nearly 2,000,000 acres more than were in this category at this time during the last twelve years.

The dry weather following wheat plantings and the large acreages in cotton, failure of sorghum crops, and overuse of sorghum stubble and range lands, account for the big increase in unprotected acreages, Merrill explained.

Good growing weather to permit new wheat and other winter growing crops could reduce the unprotected acreage greatly, the regional SCS director said.

The Panhandle section of Texas was added to the trouble areas of the Southern High Plains of Texas as a threatened area, Merrill reported. Area Conservationist Myles A. Kelly at Perryton, reporting for the uppermost 10 counties of the Panhandle section, and George W. Taylor at Amarillo, whose area included 11 counties, said in their reports that winter wheat seedings are in poor condition and offer little or no protection for the soil.

Taylor said only 20 per cent of the wheat planted in his area has sprouted. Sorghum stubble in the Amarillo area at present is furnishing protection, but much of it is being over-grazed, Taylor reported. Cotton lands in that area are in poor condition. SCS Area Conservationist Homer A. Taff at Lubbock reported 1,680,000 acres in his 12-county area without sufficient blow protection. Most of this is cotton land which was mechanically stripped and sorghum land on which the crop was cut for bundle feed.

"Many farmers in the areas of Oklahoma and Texas threatened by wind erosion are awake to the danger and are doing their best to get ready," Merrill said. "They already are busy with emergency tillage operations on the exposed land."

"However, our goal in this fight against wind erosion is the kind of farming being done by soil conservation district cooperators R. J. Purcell of near Brownfield; Steve Brockman at Dimmitt; O. M. Guilty of near Spur, and J. J. Loftis of near Frederick, Okla. These men are keeping their land protected and making it more productive at the same time. There will be no blowing on their farms this season and on thousands of other farms whose owners are water soil conservation district methods."

POTPOURRI AND WORSE

(By Major Hoople McCorkle)
Telegram Philosopher

Most anything may happen between now and next Tuesday, and unless we miss our guess many things will happen. Harry Truman is hot under the collar. He has been scorned, defeated and doomed to the rubbish pile. He doesn't love anybody but Harry, but he has a very special kind of hate for Texas and Texans.

He has been trying to "steal" our tidelands for a number of years, but Texas opposition to the plan has in a way kept the deal from going through. The property is apparently so hot that normal men will not consider it. Harry doesn't want it—just wanted to show Texas that he is boss.

But unfortunately Harry has only two more days to serve as "head wrangler." After that General Eisenhower will appear on the scene, and Harry will be as powerless as a one-legged man at a kicking contest. Harry knows this, and he is heart-broken because he has not inflicted more punishment on Texas Democrats, who helped kick him out of politics, by voting for the Republican nominee. Texas still holds on to her tidelands, for the simple reason that Harry has not been able to dispose of them. Now at the eleventh hour, and at a time when all his schemes have failed, he plans to give them away. Yes, Harry will deed them to the Navy (if the Navy will take them) and give Texas the thumb and nose salute as he walks down the White House steps for the last time.

Undoubtedly he is the world's worst loser. He accidentally got into this high office, and has been trying every since to "ruin" America. Needless to say, he certainly has not ruled it. About the other, your guess is as good as ours.

He does not need or want the tidelands, but rather than see Texas hold on to them (their own property), Harry would give the tidelands to Joe Stalin with full instructions on "how to operate a swimming pool." But after Tuesday Harry will be no more influential than a soured sardine, only in smell. May the Good Lord have mercy on his soul. We hope he does not take a notion to retire on a South Texas citrus farm—he might give the Rio Grande river to somebody, and turn all of Mexico loose on us. Good-bye, Harry.

Benjamin Franklin was never president of the United States, but he was a far greater man than many men who have held that high office, according to our views. He was born on January 17, 1706, in Boston, Mass. Few of our leaders in the past have been so versatile and wise as that drab-coated Quaker who was an inventor, a printer, an author, a scientist, a diplomat, a philosopher and most important, an American Patriot.

When the American Revolution began, Franklin was already a well known man of seventy. It is not often that a man becomes a revolutionary leader in his seventieth year, yet there are often men of his calibre produced. His calmness and wisdom were valuable during the war for independence, and after freedom was won.

In Europe Franklin was considered the most able American, and he laid the groundwork for our first diplomatic ventures.

Generations of Americans have quoted Franklin's maxims and proverbs, which he first printed in "Poor Richard's Almanac." In countless country stores groups gathered around Franklin stoves and discussed politics. Schoolboys learn the story of Ben and his kite in his early experiments with electrical properties and lightning.

Benjamin Franklin combined genius with homely virtues, courage with gentleness, and wisdom with wit. It is well to remember his birthday and to draw inspiration from his greatness.

At this time we are too prone to take everything for granted. Rather than to be involved in deep study, where we might ferret out new truths, and by so doing bless the world, we accept what we have and appear to be satisfied. Ben Franklin didn't do this. He would delve into mysteries and then master the unknown. He was a natural inventor.

As we look around today we see so many things that were not here 50 or a 100 years ago. What about the radio, the telegraph, and the television? Equally as startling inventions may be expected in the future.

It would not be right to close this column without referring to the higher and nobler things of life. Man's first duty is to God, and if this duty is properly cared for, most everything else will fade into insignificance.

Just like those inventions mentioned above, God made plans for them when time began, but He planned to reveal them at the proper day and age.

CHICAGO—The National Association of Housing Officials reports that 32 states now have enabling legislation for urban re-development.

Generally, three types of local agencies are authorized to do the job — local housing authorities, separate re-development agencies, and the cities themselves.

Legislation in Delaware, Kentucky, Missouri and West Virginia permits all three types of agency.

In Illinois and New Jersey, re-development power may be granted either to local housing authorities or special re-development agencies.

During the last two years Delaware, Maine, Nebraska, North Carolina, West Virginia, Alaska and the Virgin Islands have passed enabling legislation for urban re-development.

States without such laws are Arizona, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Mississippi, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Washington and Wyoming.

LARAMIE, Wyo.—The United States government spent more money fighting the Sioux Indian campaigns of the 1860s and 1870s than it did for the Louisiana Purchase, a study of University of Wyoming archives and western library information showed.

our Edisons, Franklins and a n d other geniuses, might find our position more comfortable, if we would only walk and talk to God. When the Lord told Solomon that he would grant his wish, Solomon asked for wisdom. He knew that with wisdom he could arrange for such little things as wealth, position and power, himself.

We will never have the wisdom of Solomon, but our wisdom will be increased with a greater knowledge of God.

Apply Common Sense Rules
 When Making Contracts

Since contracts may be entered into quite informally, many people fall into serious difficulties by binding themselves to agreements which they do not fully understand. It is very easy for the unwary individual to obligate himself beyond his intent or ability to perform, and thereby invite litigation and a consequent judgment of forced performance or damages in favor of the other party to the contract.

Contracts are absolutely essential to the functioning of modern business. In order to plan for the future—to set up a business, insure a steady supply of necessary materials and goods, set a price and a delivery date on what we have to sell, etc.—we must know that the courts will, if necessary, enforce the contracts we make with others.

Only a minute percentage of the millions of contracts annually made find their way to the courts. But by seeing that the exceptional case which reaches litigation is settled justly, the courts make it possible for the remaining multitude of transactions to be conducted with a minimum of friction.

How can we minimize the possibilities of litigation over our contracts? How can we protect ourselves in event we should later wind up in court? A clear understanding of all terms of every agreement entered into may prove the best answer to both these questions. Justice demands that we be held to the letter of our lawful contracts, lest the other party be damaged by our failure. Knowing this, we should apply a few common sense rules in our dealings with others.

First, let's take a look at the ordinary verbal agreement. Any terms about which you do not reach a specific agreement will probably be supplied by the customs of the particular business, or by a pattern set up by your

YOUNG MAYOR NAMED STATE ASS'N. HEAD

Mayor Jim Wright of Weatherford, one of Texas' youngest mayors (29), has assumed his duties as president of the League of Texas Municipalities, which represents 563 member cities and towns with 64 per cent of the State's population. Some of the achievements during the three years Wright has been Weatherford's mayor include:

Lake purchased and capacity almost doubled, to 800,000,000 gallons; first extension of city limits in Weatherford's history, taking in 2,000 new citizens; extension of paving, "white way," sewer and water lines; renovation of city hall; creation of four small playground parks (one for colored) and establishment of a city employees' retirement plan — all this without raising the tax rate or the rates of the city-owned water and light systems.

Wright, a business man, gives half his day to the city's business (mayor's salary is $75 a month), and finds time to serve as Chamber of Commerce president. He is a native Texan, attended Weatherford College and University of Texas, served in the legislature, saw plenty of action as a bombardier in the South Pacific, has a wife and three children.

previous dealings with the other party. Do you understand those customs? Do you want this contract to be carried out just like last time? If not, talk it over. Have a clear conception of your obligations and the other party's duties. And be sure that he, too, understands fully.

If you have doubts concerning the integrity of the other party, why deal with him at all? If you feel compelled to deal with him in spite of doubts, try to complete your oral agreement in the presence of other, disinterested persons. Their version of the terms may be helpful later.

One of the greatest difficulties with verbal contracts is that of proving exactly what agreement was reached when an argument over terms later winds up in the courthouse. Human memories are faulty, and we have difficulty recalling the exact words spoken six months, or even six days, ago. A written memorandum signed by both parties at the time, or even a simple exchange of letters assenting to the material terms, may prevent trouble.

When executing a written contract without benefit of legal counsel, take time to read and understand every word, even at the risk of being considered dull. Read especially any fine print, or

Auto Age Changes Property Values

CHICAGO — The automotive age has revolutionized urban property values, James C. Downs, Jr., president of the Real Estate Research Corporation of Chicago, told the American Life convention. "The automobile has almost killed off commercial property in the smallest towns by making it possible for residents to travel greater distances in order to reach more dominant centers," Downs said. "In the hotel field, motor transport has contributed to the almost complete lack of new hotel construction during the past 20 years. Motels and highways hotels now bulk formidably in the total transient accommodations available."

Downs also credited the automobile with the mass movement to suburban areas, the lowered density of residential areas, the increased size of building lots and the trend toward one-story ranch houses.

regulations printed on the back, forming a part of the contract. Be wary when the other party offers a verbal explanation which seems at variance with the printed terms. When you get to court, you will probably find that the printed word means just what it says, and that the contradictory oral explanation will not be admitted in evidence.

Mrs. West says her husband was always joking about how they were going to raise a baseball team. "As it turned out, it wasn't a joke," she said. "We did."

Mr. and Mrs. West, who were married in 1901, are the parents of nine sons, young men. When the boys phone, they use the number identification method based on the order of their birth, to simplify things for their mother.

The "boys" range in age from 26 to 47, and all but two, Raymond, and Howard, live near the West home here.

Mrs. West said it would have been nice if there had been a girl or two in the bunch to keep her and her husband company in their later years.

"But then, seems that girls nowadays are as bad about wanting to go 'adding off across the country as boys were then," she added.

Party Doughnuts

It is such a comfort to know that the simple foods your family likes can be quickly and easily dressed up for party refreshments, to use as needed. Two such foods to keep in mind for winter parties (and all year round), are doughnuts and pretzel sticks.

The sweet cake type cook book doughnuts your grocer carries in his ready-to-eat cake department, and salty pretzel sticks go together flavorwise into delicious, munchy party sticks.

To make doughnut party sticks, cut doughnuts into quarters. Push three of the doughnut quarters onto a long pretzel stick. One windowed box of eight doughnuts makes 10 such sticks.

Another attractive way of serving doughnuts and pretzel sticks is to put doughnut quarters into a bowl, and pretzel sticks into another bowl. Let guests spear doughnuts with the pretzel sticks.

Janelle Patterson Is Receiving Recognition

A write up recently in the Houston Chronicle featured Miss Janelle Patterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Patterson, and her boss or co-worker, Chaplain Joe Luck, both of the Memorial Hospital in Houston.

The Chronicle had a two column picture of the chaplain and Janelle, who is his secretary. They are the engineer, program director and talent of the broadcast to the big 10 floor hospital.

Miss Patterson has a beautiful soprano voice and when she is at the mike, the chaplain mans the controls. She operates the controls while Chaplain Luck talks to the patients. Every Sunday the student nurses provide trios and quartets for the morning worship.

Miss Patterson is a graduate of Eastland high school and attended North Texas State College in Denton.

She is now studying voice with professor Edward Acton in Houston and doing solo work with the choir of St. Luke's Methodist Church.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICE

The rules for right living are found in the Bible. Some of them are discussed in the Lesson-Sermon to be read next Sunday in Christian Science churches. This is the Golden Text for the subject on "Life": "The Lord is the portion of mine inheritance and of my cup: thou maintainest my lot... Thou wilt shew me the path of life" (Psalms 16:5,11).

Christian Science agrees with the Bible when it says in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 496): "We all must learn that Life is God." Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer of Christian Science, gives a further explanation of this statement in the textbook: "When being is understood, Life will be recognized as neither material nor finite, but as infinite,—as God, universal good; and the belief that life or mind, was ever in a finite form, or good in evil, will be destroyed" (p. 76).

Trusting this to be so, it can be joyously said with the Psalmist, "With thee is the fountain of life: in thy light shall we see light" (36:9).
