AROUND THE SQUARE

While it did its very best to rain here Sunday afternoon, it came very near failing. San Angelo and vicinity had good rains, and a good rain fell just west of Weatherford, although it did not come this far west.

However, we are happy, for we do have a lake full of water, and many good growing crops in this county. We figure we will get a good rain before it is too late.

A few weeks ago we gave our nephew, Wallace DeShazo, a lug wrench and bumper jack. We did this because we had two sets and didn't particularly need them. However, when we made the gift we did not realize that the gift was to aid an Eastland citizen, but it did. James Reid and Harold Justice had been seeing sights in New Mexico last week, but on their return trip they managed to have a blow-out right out in the middle of the desert, and about 40 miles from town. They learned, and to their sorrow, that they did not have a lug wrench.

There they sat trying to flag down some passer-by, but luck failed them—nobody stopped to render aid. A couple of hours passed by, and they were growing hungry and impatient, when all of a sudden a big black Buick pulled over the hill. They waved, and to their surprise they heard the squeaking of brakes—the car was stopping.

Out came our old lug wrench, and the boys were saved. They became acquainted and Wallace learned that he had aided an Eastland man who lives in less than two blocks from our home.

It's a good thing we gave that thing away—it wouldn't have done James and Harold any good had it been piled over in the corner of our garage. It's a small world after all.

The action of the Senate Finance Committee in refusing, by a vote of 11 to 14, to approve the raising of the federal debt limit, in spite of urgent requests by the president and other top administration leaders, indicates the present temper of national thinking. It is very obvious that the people of America want and are demanding rigorous economy in government, and Congress has begun to reflect that attitude. The era when taxpayers would accept unbridled spending with hardly a complaint has come to an end.

"The new administration's Commissioner of Internal Revenue is planning a simplified form of tax return for persons with an income less than $10,000. This is wonderful. The man who can make income tax paying as simple and effortless as the paying of state, county and municipal taxes, will be listed with the immortals."—Greenville, Ill., Advocate.

The Bellingham Washington Herald states: "In the opinion of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Prentiss M. Terry may have made history. The story of Mr. Terry is the story of a federal servant, who welcomed his own dismissal by remarking: 'I'm for economy. If it hits me, that's alright.'"

"Every tax payer in the United States has a vested interest in the overhaul of the federal government," says a California paper. "For twenty years the New Deal has encouraged lavish spending at a federal level thus indirectly furthering its socialistic revolution. If government is ever again to be brought back to size, many money spending bureaus and agencies must be abolished entirely, while others must be consolidated."

Many Eastland Women See New Beauty Salon

Open house was observed at the Marjane Beauty Salon Sunday afternoon, and a representative group of women from this area were present. Miniature bottles of perfume were given as favors.

Mrs. Margaret Cox, owner of the new salon, and also an operator of considerable note, and Josephine Brister, operator, welcomed the guests. Both of these ladies explained to visitors that they might expect the very best service when patronizing Marjane's. "We strive to give each individual just what she wants," Mrs. Cox stated.

Josephine Brister has been in Eastland for many years, and is known far and wide for the good service she renders. Mrs. Cox is also a highly experienced operator, and a graduate of Isabel's University of Beauty Culture. She completed her course in 1945, but has taken post-graduate work each summer since that time. She pioneered the Four-Way hair cut in Eastland.

Vivian Jones, a licensed beautician, will specialize in pedicuring, and serve as assistant to operators. She is well known by the women of Eastland.

If you have not visited the new Salon you are urged to do so at your earliest convenience.

Jim Patterson Now Aboard Navy Carrier

FAR EAST (FHTNC)—Aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Boxer off the coast of North Korea is Jim D. Patterson, airman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Patterson of Route 3, Ranger.

The Boxer holds the record for the most landings of aircraft on her flight deck. Recently, she recovered the 58,000th plane, and expects to land her 62,000th plane before the end of the present cruise.

She is making her fifth tour since the outbreak of Korean hostilities.

Manned by over 3,000, the size of many an American town, the Boxer has many of a town's facilities. It has a complete supply system, more intricate than the corner grocery, drug and clothing store combined. It has its own cobbler and tailor shop and evaporators for converting thousands of gallons of fresh water from surrounding ocean. There are doctors too, three dentists and a Catholic and Protestant Chaplain aboard.

Boxer aircraft, sweeping northward to the Yalu River with its famous Suhoi Reservoir, westward to such targets as Pyongyang, and southward to provide close air support of UN troops along the 155-mile front line, have sprayed thousands of tons of explosives on enemy Korean soil.

During the first month of present operations off the coast of Korea, aircraft from the Boxer dumped well over 787 tons of high explosives on the enemy while firing 186,191 rounds of ammunition from their wing cannons. Nearly 1,800 rockets fired from Boxer planes have scathed the battle torn earth of Korea.

The size of the bombs ranged from the 2,000-pound block-busters to the fearsome 250-pound anti-personnel bombs.

Operating with the ships of Task Force 77, the Boxer is under the command of Navy Capt. Marshall B. Gurney.

A shallow test in the vicinity of Ranger highlighted oil news developments over the weekend.

M. O. Johnston Jr. of Abilene announced that he'll put down a wildcat—the No. 1 R. W. Fox—six miles south of Ranger.

The venture is scheduled for a depth of 1,250 feet with cable tools.

Location is 1050 feet from south and 150 feet from west lines of Section 30, McLennan CSL Survey League 2.

Other weekend oil notes include:

F. Kirk Johnson, Fort Worth, Saturday scheduled a 2,600-foot wildcat in Palo Pinto County, one mile north of Graford.

Planned is the No. 1 T. H. Hart, 330 feet from north and east lines of an 80-acre lease in TE&L survey 1714.

Grakia Gas Corp., Wichita Falls, No. 4 Robert Jackson is a Jackson Strawn Field project 9 miles south of Caddo in Stephens County.

Site for the 1,850-foot rotary project is 330 feet from the north and west lines of the southwest quarter in Section 77, Block 4, T&P Survey.

A wildcat was plugged at 1,669 feet in the area three miles northeast of Weatherford in Parker County. It was Rowan Oil Co. & Texas Gulf Producing Co. No. 2 J. E. Carter, D. de la Cruz Survey A-223.

Meat Output Up 41 Percent During Month

More cattle, calves, sheep and lambs were slaughtered in June than in the same month last year, but fewer hogs were butchered.

The 148,000 head of cattle slaughtered was 61,000 head more than a year ago. Calf slaughter totaled 127,000 head, compared with 67,000 in June 1952.

Sheep and lambs slaughtered in June were estimated at 90,000 head, compared with 64,000 a year ago.

June hog slaughter totaled 91,000 down 37,000 head from June 1952.

Water Flooding Quite Popular Says P. S. Ervin

Jim Kuykendall had the Rotary program Monday, though he brought P. S. Ervin along to do the talking. Mr. Ervin is no stranger in Eastland, and is closely connected with the water flooding program near Gorman.

He gave a brief resume of the field's history which proved to be quite interesting to his hearers.

The field in question was never a great field, yet in the second recovery program much oil has been brought to the surface. Original wells are still producing, and new wells have been drilled, and the field extended.

Water for the project is obtained from wells drilled by the producers. At this time the water is being used in the raw state, but a plan is now being made to treat it. Once this is done operations will be more speedy and satisfactory.

Water flooding in this county has been quite profitable, and even greater developments may be expected in the future, it is thought. Mr. Ervin's remarks were well received.

Cloudy, overcast skies over Eastland County today gave residents of the vicinity a welcome respite from a torrid August heat wave.

Massacre Mountains by Frank C. Robertson

It seemed to Pete that he had no more than closed his eyes when Walter was shaking him urgently by the shoulder. He sat up with a start.

"What is it? What's the matter?" he mumbled.

"Indian just ride up the trail in big hurry," Walter said. "I no see him in time to shoot."

"Much. He is Juan Chee." Pete's brain was suddenly cleared of sleep. He sprang to his feet. "Where is he?" he demanded.

Walter pointed. "He go that way up the river."

Pete rushed out to the edge of the brush just in time to see the tall, slender Navajo, a poor buckskin pony disappearing over the crest of a small ridge. Juan Chee seemed to be getting all the speed out of his animal as he could.

"Come on, Walter," Pete said. "We've got to follow that Indian until we see him."

"How do you know?" Walter asked wonderingly.

Pete had nothing to bolster his belief except the casual remark of the Navajo. He knew where the girl was being held and he was sure of it.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Hazard and Don from Eastland, were visiting in the R. A. Parker and M. O. Hazard homes Sunday afternoon. Warren Graham and family and Mrs. Anson Little from Lubbock, Allen Crosby and wife were visitors in Eastland Saturday evening.

the night, but the condition of the still-smoking embers of the camp indicated that the party must have pulled out soon after daybreak. From the direction of the tracks it was evident they were going south—and in a hurry.

"Let me get backsmores," Walter pleaded. "I'm Indian. I not wake anybody."

Pete allowed himself to be persuaded. He impressed upon Walter that getting backsmores was the one thing to be done and that Walter must not do anything to wake up the camp.

Pete waited in a cold sweat for half an hour before Walter bobbed up in front of him. The boy was laden with ropes and backsmores.

"I think," said Walter, "there are four men. They all sleep sound."

Pete gathered that the Indian boy had had an inner struggle to keep from trying to snide them in their sleep.

"You didn't see Betty?" "No, I think she sleep in tent."

Walter was on lead and it looked a little of midnight when he turned and signaled a halt.

The fire itself indicated that the Navajo party was not expecting pursuit. Likely no one was standing guard.

Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Hazard attended the Methodist revival in Olden Sunday evening. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Mounce, Wednesday night. Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Hazard attended the Methodist revival in Olden Sunday evening.

They had just gained that point when one of the men got up and threw more dead juniper branches on the fire. The flame leaped high, almost reaching them in its circle of light. Pete saw a dark Mexican face.

Walter, apparently, had been disturbed by the "H" on his face directly across it. Pete man, assured that the fire would burn until morning, returned to his blankets.

It was a powerful temptation for Pete to try to get inside the tent and awaken Betty. There was no doubt that she would be found hand and foot. If he tried to awaken her she might cry out, and that could be fatal to his plans.

Both Pete and Walter were armed with revolvers and knives. He would have no compunction about killing the men if they resisted, and he knew that Walter would be anxious to kill whether these men resisted or not.

Waiting was hard, but he could take his chances on a delicate because of premature action. It seemed darker out by the diminishing light of the fire he could see the men stirring restlessly. It would have been impossible to have tried to take them in their sleep for they were sleeping too lightly.

Then, as the stars began to fade a grayish light began to creep over the world. The time was near. Suddenly one of the men sat up, stretched, and spoke a word of Spanish to the other.

They rolled out of their blankets and approached the fire. They were all Mexicans—but Juan Chee was not there!

FOR one awful moment Pete wondered if they had been in pursuit of the wrong party. But it wasn't possible. Juan Chee might have turned off someplace, but Betty had to be inside that tent.

Walter was not quite up to it anyway, and there was too much danger of arousing someone. The right time, he believed, was just before dawn. The men probably would wake up then, and could be caught while still sluggish with sleep.

The J. C. Foreman family from Olden, were visitors in the Allen Crosby home Sunday afternoon. R. A. Parker was the dinner guest Sunday of his daughter, Mrs. Maurice Hazard and Mr. Hazard, in Eastland. Mr. and Mrs. Wayne White were visitors of his parents, the W. H. Whites in Eastland, Saturday evening. Mrs. W. E. Tankersley left Monday for Hobbs, N. M., where she will visit in the home of her son, Paul Tankersley, and family.

Massacre Mountains by Frank C. Robertson

Anyway, the time had come to act. He arose from behind the shelter of the tent and stepped to one side. Walter stepped to the other side.

"Hands up!" he ordered tersely. The Mexicans were caught completely by surprise. They wrined, saw only two men, and went for their weapons. In their trade they knew they could expect no mercy, and they were men of courage.

In this battle no quarter would be asked, or given. Pete really hadn't expected them to surrender. At their first hostile move he fired, and the man who had replenished the fire fell directly across it. Pete again before one of the desperadoes could fire a shot, and a second man crumpled. He knew that Walter was firing wildly, and probably missing every shot.

Fortunately, it seemed the remaining Mexicans were as excited as Walter, and at least Walter was drawing the fire of one of them away from Pete. Pete took two steps forward, firing as rapidly as he could cock the hammer and pull trigger, and he didn't mean to miss.

HIS next shot sent the man who was shooting at Walter reeling. A shot exploded in his own face, so close that the powder struck into his skin with the smart of not grease, but the bullet missed. He heard a yell from Walter, but was too intent on the man facing him to turn. His shot caught the man in the chest and the fellow spun around on his heels.

Pete whirled to see if Walter was hit, and saw the boy clinging to the back of a man like a scratcher. Then on a dog. The man was Juan Chee.

The Navajo had been sleeping inside the tent! Now he was holding Walter's knife hand, by the wrist across his shoulder. Walter having dropped his gun and reported to the more familiar weapon, but without a chance to use it, while Juan Chee was reaching backward with his free hand and apparently cutting Walter's flying legs to ribbons. The tall Navajo had drawn the boy clear off his feet.

PERSONALS Mrs. W. E. Tankersley left Monday for Hobbs, N. M., where she will visit in the home of her son, Paul Tankersley, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Tankersley and family accompanied by Doris Ann Juniper visited with relatives in Comanche and Hico last Sunday. Miss Guyrene Robinson accompanied by her sister, Miss Betty Robinson left this morning for Gilmer, where they will visit with Guyrene's college roommate, Miss Connie Pickens in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Pickens.

Record Shows Gambling In Texas Heavy

Gambling may be illegal in Texas, but gamblers in the Lone Star State are taking in at least $513,000 per month, figures released by the Internal Revenue Service showed recently.

If the agency's record books are a true indication, the lion's share of the gambling goes on in the southern portion of the state. Gambling operators are required to pay a 10 per cent excise tax on earnings.

According to the Internal Revenue Service, the director of revenue at Austin collected $611,876 from gamblers in the past year—compared with only $4,432 collected by the Dallas office. The two collectors' offices served the entire state. The figures were not broken down by cities.

There are at least 19,764 gamblers in the United States who hold federal wagering stamps that cost $50 per year. They reported a total income of $95,704,853 in the fiscal year which ended June 30.

Col. Garland Williams, director of intelligence for the Internal Revenue Service, has intimated a lot more might be collected if more tax investigations were available.

The Austin office was third in the nation with gambling tax collections of $74,223 in June, the last month for which figures are available. Indianapolis led with $118,099. Chicago was second with $75,975, and New Orleans came in fourth with $63,709 collected during the month.

Not a single gambling stamp was sold at Dallas during June and only 12 were sold in the past year. By comparison there are 1,644 stamp holders in the Austin district. Twenty were sold in June.

The law making purchase of the tax stamps mandatory for gambling operators was passed by Congress in the wake of the Kefauver crime investigations. The purpose of the law was to force gambling into the open, where they could be prosecuted by local officials, observers recalled.

The Internal Revenue Service had no explanation of why gambling should be more prevalent in South Texas than in the northern portion of the state.

Massacre Mountains

by Frank C. Robertson

PETE MORRISON couldn't use his gun without danger of killing Walter. He thrust the gun back into the holster and drew his own knife as he rushed to the boy's rescue, but Juan Chee was already back inside the tent, and Pete saw lying helpless inside the tent he intended to destroy, or use a knife at the throat to bargain for his own life.

Pete yelled. It was something he had never done in a fight, but it was torn out of him; half in warning, half in dismay. He lunged frantically, driving his shoulder into Walter's back, but knocking the Navajo off balance. Juan Chee sprang wide sideways against the wall of the tent and went down, but Pete and Walter fell with him.

Juan Chee twisted like a lithe snake until Walter was pinned by an inch. Then, striking cross-handed over his own arm he drove his knife deep, deep into the Navajo's breast. Juan Chee relaxed with a hissing gasp.

Pete scrambled up and rolled the Navajo off of Walter. His anxiety lest the boy be terribly hurt subsided when he saw Walter's grin.

He turned then to give his attention to Betty, and what he saw gave him the start of his life. She was there all right, but tied back to back to Cass Dean!

Neither girl could move, so tightly were they trussed, but they were not gagged. Cass was first to speak. She said, "I had a feeling you'd be along."

Pete couldn't doubt now that

Nate had come on with his men to make an attack on Two Rivers. That accounted for the shooting which he had been unable to understand. But not knowing what it was he had had no choice except to travel on and try to overtake Juan Chee. He certainly couldn't regret having done so.

He told them then how he and Walter had tried to dispose of Zad Barnes and now they had seen before cutting the girls loose and stepped outside the tent to make sure none of the Mexicans were still dangerous. Only one remained alive, and he would not be that way long.

He returned then and cut the girls loose, and assisted them to rise. "I like Betty," Cass said. "I never want to be that close to her again."

It was characteristic of Betty that her first act was to bend over Walter to see how badly he was hurt. He had several slashes down his right leg, but Juan Chee had not been able to cripple him when he came to it.

WHAT worried him now was rolling the four bodies together, covered them with a blanket. The girls, once they had got the cramps out of their muscles, proceeded to bandage up Walter's wounds. Cass was adept at that kind of business.

"You'll be all right now," she smiled at the boy.

Pete was trying to figure things out. If Cass had betrayed him, she wouldn't be here now.

Betty asked, "Where is my father's knife deep, deep into the Navajo's breast. Juan Chee relaxed with a hissing gasp.

Pete scrambled up and rolled the Navajo off of Walter. His anxiety lest the boy be terribly hurt subsided when he saw Walter's grin.

He turned then to give his attention to Betty, and what he saw gave him the start of his life. She was there all right, but tied back to back to Cass Dean!

Eastland Man and His New York Bride Honeymoon At Niagara Falls

S-Sgt. and Mrs. Roy Louis Lane Jr. are making their home in Freeport, N. Y., at No. 8 Rose Street, following their wedding trip to Austin, Mexico and Niagara Falls. Mrs. Lane, the former Miss Lois May McCormick, and Sergeant Lane were married at 4 p.m. Saturday August 8th in the First Baptist Church in Eastland. Mr. and Mrs. A. J. McCormick, 1456 Chapin Ave., N. Merrick, N. Y., are the parents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Lane, 811

Commerce Street, are the parents of the groom. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. A large bouquet of white chrysanthemums, gladioli and greenery flanked by candles decorated the chancel rail and formed a background for the tall white baskets of gladioli and Marconia daisies, white candelabra, holding lighted tapers, before which, the wedding party assembled.

The Rev. C. Melvin Rathaal, pastor, officiated at the formal double ring service. Mrs. D. L. Kinaird, organist, played the traditional wedding music and accompanied Mrs. Pierre Kendrick, soloist, who sang, "Always" and "Because."

Miss Margie Lane, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor and Misses Barbara Stephens, and Polly Ricks of Brady were bridesmaids. Wanda Lou and Ernie May Lane, also sisters of the bridegroom served as flower girls. Charles Lane, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Richard and Bobby Lane were ushers for their brother's wedding.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown, fashioned of white Chantilly lace and slipper satin. It was made with a fitted bodice, long sleeves and was finished with a small Peter Pan collar, edged with dainty lace. The long full skirt was gathered and flared out in the back in a chapel length train. Her fingertip veil of French illusion was held in place by a circlet, completely covered with tiny seed pearls.

She carried a white orchid on a White Bible.

The maid of honor wore a dress of pink net, over matching taffeta made similar to that of the bride, with the exception of the bodice, which was sleeveless, and worn with matching stole. The bridesmaids wore dresses of aqua lace and net, with matching stoles. Each of the girls had a garland of rosebuds in their hair and carried Colonial bouquets.

The flowergirls wore formal dresses of yellow organdy and carried dainty white baskets filled with rose petals.

An honor guard formed an arch of chivalry at the door of the church as the wedding party departed following the ceremony. Members of the guard were James Wright, Wayne Brock, Clifford Rusc, Albert Tuggle, Evan Mitchell and Karl K. White.

A reception was held in the fellowship room of the church. The parents of the honored couple joined the wedding party to receive the guests.

The bride's table was laid with a Madera type linen cloth and was decorated with an arrangement of white gladioli. The beautifully decorated three tiered white wedding cake was topped with a miniature bridal couple. Table appointments were of crystal and silver.

Mrs. Lane, an employee of the Meadowbrook National Bank of Merrick, N. Y., is a graduate of the high school of her home town and attended W. C. Mephane in Bellmore, N. Y.

The bridegroom is a native of Eastland County, a graduate of Eastland high school and has served for the past three years with the United States Air Force. He is stationed at Mitchell Air Force Base, Hempstead, N. Y.

How To Launder Modern Fabrics

by PEGGY POWELL

I guess I am just an old-fashioned housewife. I learned to cook and sew well enough to feed a family of four without any evidence of malnutrition or indications of coming-out-at-the-seams. I learned to wash the family clothes so that we all looked neat and clean and Tom never had to go to the office with a dirty shirt.

Actually, I only knew how to wash the "old-fashioned" fabrics such as woolen, cotton, linen, flannel, silk—even nylon, and rayon. Then, almost overnight it seems, I found myself surrounded by a whole new vocabulary of wonder fabrics—Dacron, Orlon, Acrilan, Dynel, just to mention a few. And the new fabrics seemed to offer so many tempting advantages that with each new garment I was eager to see what science had done for us.

As we acquired more clothing made of these new fabrics I began to acquire a library of washing instructions for all the new fabrics, and the best laundering recommendations I have ever heard for "old-fashioned" fabrics.

It's too good to keep to myself, and besides it's free. Just drop a card to Whirlpool Corporation, Dept. C. S. Joseph, Michigan and ask for a copy of "Modern Fabrics and How to Launder Them." In a few days your new fabric problems will be over, I know.

Engagement of Former Eastland Girl Announced

Miss Harvey attended Eastland high school here, before moving with her family to Colorado City. She will receive her degree from Hardin-Simmons University Aug. 23rd.

Howard Martin Brock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Brock, 301 North Ammerman, has accepted a position with the Montano Chemical Co., of Anniston, Ala.

government's program went into "high gear" now.

The council, at a two-day meeting, praised Secretary Benson's acceptance of an industry proposal several months ago involving drought relief, purchase of beef for foreign aid, school lunches and the military.

The council termed the overall government program an important phase in what the cattlemen call their "self-help" efforts which have resulted in price improvements or at least a "brake" to the downsliding cattle prices of this spring and summer.

57 Texans Get Hunt Priority

AUSTIN — Surprise letters have been sent 57 Texas hunters who missed out on the last regular antelope season two years ago.

They are the gunners allotted permits for the 1951 shoot and then turned in their licenses for personal reasons. Alternates were assigned and the 57 hunters automatically got the hold over priority.

Chief Clerk Vernon Skaggs of the Game and Fish Commission has advised the 57 of their priority rating for the 1953 drawing for the October antelope seasons in both the Panhandle and Big Bend County.

He said upwards of six hundred buck antelope, almost evenly divided between the two areas, will be allocated for the fall harvest at the rate of one male antelope per hunter.

Persons interested in the seasons should write the Game and Fish Commission in Austin and request a formal application. This application must be received by the Commission with a postmark of not later than midnight, August 31, 1953.

Invitation to Cool, Clean, Modern Cooking

Your kitchen will stay cool and you'll enjoy greater comfort while preparing meals when you cook electrically. Heat from your electric range goes directly into the pan and into the food. There's little heat given off into the kitchen to make you more uncomfortable on hot summer days. You'll enjoy more leisure time, too, when you cook electrically, because the automatic controls on your electric range do your "pot watching" for you. You'll find electric cooking a new adventure in better living... better meals... and summer comfort.

Visit your favorite electric range dealer now. He'll be glad to show you an electric range to fit your cooking needs and your budget. Enjoy kitchen comfort during these hot days.
