Sheats Disposes Hance Opposes

"Believe it or not, Kent Hance and Morris Sheats agree on most issues. And the same goes for Republicans Jim Reese, Joe Hickox and George Bush." So begins a review of the positions of candidates in the upcoming Nineteenth Congressional District primaries in the Sunday, March 19, 1978, Avalanche-Journal. Of particular interest to NOW members--both Hance and Sheats, if the newspaper's account is reliable, oppose the ERA. The position of the Republican candidates on the ERA is not reported, but Reese's opposition is well known, while Bush's support is not on record. Hickox is not to all appearances a strong candidate.

Tweedledum Tweedledee

Sheats, as might have been expected, while announcing that he opposed the ERA and would not vote for the proposed extension of the ratification deadline, charged Hance with not taking a "clearcut stand." Hance in reply reaffirmed a position he said he had taken in Levelland with Sheats present (the latter's charge was in Hance's view a "lie"): Hance would not vote for the extension. Rather, he would oppose the ERA in Congress because of "the feeling of the district."

Kent Hance no doubt believes that he can take for granted the vote of those numerous citizens of the district who support human equality. He might even be able to beat Sheats without that vote, but that is at least doubtful. Yet why should

Place 3 candidate W.J. "Bud" Aderton flatly rejected a battered women's center, saying he believes battering to be a "domestic problem."

He added that he did not believe a center is necessary, and said one should not be used as a "referee" on households.

That view was supported by mayoral candidate Leland Kelly, who said he believes spouses "can work out their own problems."

Besides, he added, such a center would cost money.

How to Operate a Wife:

"A wife is a delicate piece of machinery especially designed for the home-loving man, but difficult to operate without the exercise of proper care and consideration....Once a wife has been installed and is in good working order, the thoughtful man will make her home-office as pleasant as possible. Laborsaving devices, like children to take out the garbage or a husband to dry the dishes, are essential. An unlimited phone is a must, and a weekly overhaul at the beauty parlor, where her motor can idle, is indispensable....Properly tended and attended, the average wife is worth double her weight in kilowatts, for her energy output can put an atom-powered machine to shame. As good businessmen, we cannot afford to foul up production through neglect or apathy; remember, a good machine is hard to find."

HOGWASH ANTIDOTE

The job of mother-homemaker does not produce an income, but how much would it take to pay someone to perform these services? Chase Manhattan Bank of New York compiled a list of twelve daily household activities American housewives perform. According to the bank's figures, updated here to take into account increases in the cost of living, the average weekly cost would be $237.81 or $12,366 a year.

More Rape and American Justice

(AP: March 1978) Honolulu-- Local Women's groups are circulating petitions urging an investigation of a judge who dismissed a rape charge against a Marine on grounds that the victim has not sufficiently resisted the attack.

"The response has been overwhelming," said Janice Arnold-Jones, state leader of the group Women Against Rape. "We have collected more than 2,000 signatures in less than 24 hours."

The petitions ask the Hawaii Supreme Court to investigate the fitness of District Judge Robert Richardson to hold office. During a preliminary hearing on February 24, a rape charge against Wilbur Moyd, 21, on Oahu-based Marine, was dismissed by Richardson. But Richardson let stand a sodomy charge against Moyd filed in connection with the same incident.

The case goes to a grand jury, which could return a rape indictment despite Richardson's dismissal of that charge.

The 24-year-old victim told police she was jogging in a rural area when she was struck from behind by a car. She said the driver threatened her with a broken bottle, forced her into the car and assaulted her.

Ms. Arnold-Jones said she will give the petitions to Chief Justice William S. Richardson, brother of the district judge.

Judges in Hawaii are appointed, and state law does not provide for citizen recall.

SHEATS, HANCE

any of us who fall into this category of voters help send Tweedledum Hance to Congress in place of Tweedledee Sheats? Sheats' predictably ridiculous rhetoric might serve to discredit opposition to the ERA; Hance would evidently quietly add his vote to that opposition.

NOW members and other proponents of equality must now feel that they do not have much of a choice. Clearly few of us will be able in good conscience to vote for Hance, and a vote for Sheats would seem impossible. But perhaps the Nineteenth Congressional District deserves Morris Sheats and the public embarrassment that should follow his entry into Congress. Sheats might better serve our cause, the cause Hance has evidently disowned.

THE BOOKSHELF

Nies, Judith. Seven Women: Portraits from the American Radical Tradition. Viking. $8.95. "No matter what you know or don't know about Sarah Grimke, Harriet Tubman, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Mother Jones, Charlotte Perkins Gilman, Anne Louise Strong or Dorothy Day, these well-researched portraits will bring you fresh perspectives. Good reading for all ages." (Review from New Directions for Women, vol 16, #3, Autumn 1977.) Submitted by Pamela Brink.

Langley, Roger and Richard C. Levy. Wife Beating: The Silent Crisis. "The authors. . . describe case histories of wife beating in their book in such a matter-of-fact manner, yet so vividly, that the book neither conceals nor exploits the sheer gruesomeness of the circumstances. The only thing more grotesque than the incidents they describe is that the governmental system permitted the assailants in most cases to walk away unscathed. . . ." Langley and Levy estimate that 40 million wives may be the victim of some form of wife beating and this book is a must for all of us who feel that it is time to force this issue out of the family closet. Submitted by Pamela Brink.

Moers, Ellen. Literary Women. 1976. pbk. $3.95. Anchor. In her preface Moers explains: "The subject of this book is the major women writers, writers we read and shall always read whether interested or not in the fact that they happened to be women. But. . . the open question with which I began was: what did it matter that so many of the great writers of modern times have been women? what did it matter to literature?"

The highest compliment I can pay Moers is to say that she makes me want to read the women writers she talks about (yes, even Uncle Tom's Cabin and Aurora Leigh) and makes me eager to re-read old favorites because she talks about them in such illuminating, fresh, and exciting ways. Submitted by Ellie David, Seattle, Washington.

FBI Statistics

FBI statistics indicate that spouse abuse occurs every 18 seconds. In a sample survey of 95 women, a Milwaukee task force on battered women found that 8 percent reported daily violence in the home; 37 percent reported weekly violence; 20 percent monthly violence, and 20 percent reported violence occurred several times during the marriage relationship.
