County set to build emergency building near Lake Alan Henry

Garza County Commissioners at the regular meeting Monday morning approved specs and advertising for bids for a new fire station/EMS facility to be constructed at Lake Alan Henry.

The court gave the green light for advertising for bids on the 30x50x14 project, which is estimated at $20,000 to $30,000.

According to the approved specifications, the building will be constructed on a 6-inch slab reinforced with 6x6 rebar and 2 3/8 rebar at the perimeter. The all-metal building will be primed and will feature steel corner posts and a sculptured gutter with downspout full trim on the roof and corners.

The facility will feature three 12' x 12' insulated overhead doors with chain pull openers, and the top portion of the back wall will be constructed with heavy skylight panels.

According to the specs, the county "will pay in full upon completion and acceptance by the Commissioners Court or a designated representative."

In other matters, the court approved two indigent requests for financial assistance: (1) $30 for utility payment and (2) $125 for rent.

The court also made plans for notice of eviction for non-payment of taxes in a case that has already been extended 90 days to accommodate payment by the occupant. Commissioner Lee Norman is to consult with other taxing authorities to determine final actions on the matter. The property has already been included in foreclosure proceedings.

A bid of $3,250 from Caprock Springs Fellowship was accepted on a city lot. Other taxing authorities will have to approve the sale because the offering price is lower than taxes owed on the property.

Commissioner Mason McClellan was named to represent the county at the Allied Mandatory DOT Supervisor Training in Lubbock.

Three new office holders elected in big vote count

Garza County voters ushered in three new office-holders while retaining a pair of incumbents in last week's general election.

In the race for district attorney, 106th Judicial District, incumbent Ricky B. Smith retained his seat by garnering 932 votes to challenger Brian L. Kingston's 751.

Two candidates, including one write-in, were vying for the unexpired term for district and county clerk. Write-in candidate Jim Plummer won the race, receiving 742 votes to Jay Young's 668.

Kenny Ratke, who has held the office of sheriff since 1992, collected 841 votes, but it was not enough to defeat his challenger, Cliff Laws, who had 953 ballots marked in his favor.

Another longtime Garza County office holder, Precinct 1 Commissioner Lee Norman, lost his bid for re-election. Norman, who has been commissioner for 12 years, received 252 votes, but his challenger, Gary McDaniel, earned 295 votes for the win.

Daniel Yarbro will continue in his role as constable, Precinct 1, after earning 573 votes to Randy Nielsen's 394.

Thanks to the Voters Who Supported the Democratic Candidates in the General Election

We should be proud of the Election Judges, Clerks and others who spent long hours at low pay to see that the General Election was fair and effective.

And special thanks to the inspired and unnamed volunteers who were devoted to get out the vote. A total of 1,949 votes were cast from a registered voter list of less than 3,000 (70 to 75 percent participation!).

The Garza County Democrats thank those who attended the Septembere 25 "Meet-Up" despite bad weather to visit with local Democratic Candidates.

Continue the dialog with the local elected officials toward peace and prosperity in our community.

Letters to the Editor

Letters to the Editor Policy: We require all letters to be signed. Letters may be edited for brevity, grammar and punctuation. Opinions expressed in Letters to the Editor do not necessarily reflect those of The Post Dispatch nor its staff.

Road to nowhere

The proposed county-funded road on the south side of Lake Alan Henry is, in my opinion, one of them roads to nowhere. Of all the county blunders over the years, this will probably top them all.

In my opinion, it is totally foolish for the commissioners to even think about wasting our tax money on such an expensive project. Things of this nature probably had something to do with the Garza County Precinct 1 commissioner losing his seat on the Commissioners Court. I expect more of the ones sitting on the court now will be unseated the next election. In my view, the taxpayers are fed up with heavy liberal spending of our tax dollars.

In only a few short years, the Lake Alan Henry area will be an incorporated town and we will have only done their dirty work for them.

I would be led to believe that since the North Ridge Development Group built its own road into the area, why can't the folks on the other side do the same? If they want a road into the damn place, let 'em build themselves one... period.

In my opinion, once the developers have their roads built and complete it would be fair to say let the county take over maintenance of them (roads).

The county and ISD will receive property taxes from there regardless of who builds the road. I say they (developers) should build their roads and maybe the county does the maintenance.

I suppose if George Bush decided to move the White House to Garza County, the Commissioners Court would volunteer to build of George a new capitol building for free.

Damn, ain't our elected politicians got any consideration for the workingman taxpayer? Looks to me like all our politicians are trying to get their names on a marble cornerstone somewhere so they can tell their grandkids they helped build this or that big blunder.

As long as Lubbock has control over Lake Alan Henry, total chaos is all we can expect out of that part of the county.

At this point in time, I do not believe the commissioners have any business getting too involved with our tax money.

If the commissioners continue wanting to waste money on Lake Alan Henry projects, then I think the taxpayers should band together and invest some money on some "new name" campaign posters for the upcoming elections.

All the politicians brag about being "conservative." I'd like for someone to point out when and where. I still believe a complete turnover in all branches of government must surely be imminent for the taxpayer to ever see any major changes. And even then, changes probably won't be noticeable.

As I see it and my opinion only,
O.L. (Ferg) Ferguson

Brief Review on Speaking in Tongues

During the past few months have been searching the scriptures concerning spiritual matters related to I Corinthians chapter 12, with a specific emphasis on the subject of speaking in tongues. We learned that anybody who believes with the heart that God raised Jesus from the dead unto righteousness, can start speaking in tongues. We learned that it is each person's individual responsibility to start speaking, and it is God's responsibility to give the words. God is faithful to back his word every time. It's up to us to have the confidence and trust that God will give the words as we start speaking.

By rightly dividing God's word in Acts 2:21, we know that to "call upon the name of the Lord" refers to speaking in tongues. For Peter was explaining to the others what they had just seen and heard. By the spirit of God, he taught that they witnessed the beginning of a whole new administration that would end at the "Great and Notable Day of the Lord." Throughout this administration it would be available for anybody to be filled with holy spirit and prophesy. Then in verse 21 he revealed that speaking in tongues was the fulfillment of the following words, "And it shall come to pass that whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be saved." This referred to the beginning of a new and coinciding administration known as the grace of God (see Ephesians 3:2).

Furthermore, we learned that to "call upon the name of the Lord" in the earlier Greek, means to call out for help. To be saved means to be rescued. This is fantastic information. Not only can we be rescued from having to endure the Tribulation period, but even now, when we are experiencing difficult situations that requires deliverance, we now have two ways to pray. One is by our own understanding and the other is by the spirit of God as seen in I Corinthians 14:14-15. Speaking in tongues is perfect, uncorrupted spiritual prayer.

According to Acts 2:11 speaking in tongues is speaking the "wonderful works of God." From I Corinthians 12:7-10 we learn that it is the one of the nine ways to profit from the manifestation of holy spirit. When we speak in tongues we manifest the true existence of holy spirit in us. We manifest that we have the fullness of the authority of Christ in us which is our hope of glory. What is that hope of glory? This is the hope of the return of Christ for God's beloved born-again children. For on that day, they will meet the Lord in the air, and will live in heaven with him forever. On that day, all of God's children will be glorified for the world to see and behold. For more details on this subject see the following, 1 Thessalonians 4:13-18; 5:1-11; and I Corinthians 15:51-54.

According to I Corinthians 13:1 when we speak in tongues, we either speak in the developed languages of angels or of men. When we speak in tongues, we "give thanks well," as seen in I Corinthians 14:17. As seen in the various uses of the earlier Greek word "lambano," when we first begin to speak in tongues, we lay-hold of holy spirit. This word is translated to "receive" in Acts 1:8, 2:38, 8:17, and 19:2. The Epistles are packed with direct and indirect references to speaking in tongues.

Next week we will look at I Peter 1:23 in relation to speaking in tongues.

Memo to Hillary

by Bill O'Reilly

Many readers will not believe this, but I am trying to look out for Sen. Hillary Clinton. She's a fellow American who badly wants to be president, but based upon the vote a few days ago, Britney Spears has a better chance than Hillary of achieving that. Unless, of course, Mrs. Clinton follows my advice.

John Kerry lost the election because he did three major things wrong: First, he refused to allow Americans to get to know him. He was the soundbite king, but who the heck is this guy? Dr. Phil couldn't even get Kerry to open up. The folks couldn't get a handle on the senator.

Secondly, Kerry did not have an alternative plan to counter the chaos in Iraq. You could go to his Website all day long, but there was little he was going to do differently than President Bush. And Americans don't want to go to anybody's Website to get answers to questions. They want you to look them in the eye and tell them what you're going to do. Kerry didn't do that.

And third, John Kerry's progressive pals in the media killed him. Most Americans don't want arrogant movie stars and partisan fanatics ramming stuff down their throats. I understand that talk radio is the epicenter for that, but you choose to dial those programs up. When newspapers and entertainment shows begin unfair attacks on any American, there is always a backlash.

So Hillary Clinton would be wise to think about the above. Right now she is perceived as being even further left than Kerry. She has lots of pals in Hollywood, and the progressive media loves her. She rarely gives interviews to journalists who will ask tough questions, and few know what makes her tick.

That's John Kerry's recipe, and it's a loser. I thought that John Edwards would be competition for Hillary in the 2008 democratic primaries, but the Kerry campaign put him into the witness protection program, and he all but disappeared during the campaign. Edwards has brains and talent, but his luster has been diminished big time. It's Hillary's nomination to lose.

But lose she will if she continues running as a secular progressive. It should be obvious to everyone short of the Dixie Chicks that Americans want to maintain a traditional society based on Judeo-Christian philosophy. This time around, 11 states voted on gay marriage, and 11 states rejected it. And even multiple reruns of "Will and Grace" aren't going to change that situation.

So here's my advice to Hillary Clinton: Morph into a modern version of June Cleaver. You don't have to wear a dress every day and be deferential to your husband, but you do have to show Americans that you could live on their block without Secret Service agents keeping everyone 50 yards away. You have to demonstrate some kind of rapport with the folks. Right now, millions of Americans think you played a primary role in "Rosemary's Baby." You're a devil to those on the right, and in traditional precincts you are distrusted and sometimes loathed. You must change that.

Pandering to your left-wing base is not going to cut it anymore. The progressive left has become detached from working America. Ralph Nader got nine votes, OK? Traditional values and a respect for normalcy is the prevailing wisdom during a time of terrorism.

Frankly, I don't know if Hillary Clinton can pull this off because I simply don't know anything about her, even though I read her book. She remains guarded and remote, a woman of intellect but not of definition. Exactly what does Hilary Clinton stand for besides massive government entitlements? I don't know, and you probably don't either.

So reruns of "Leave It to Beaver" should be on the Clinton TV screen in both Georgetown and Chappaqua. The senator should spend some time at Wal-Mart and Sam's Club. She should dish at Dunkin' Donuts and Wendy's, ride a bike once in a while and maybe even vacation in Florida. Americans generally like their leaders to have something in common with them. John Kerry did not. George W. Bush did. Hillary, I'm looking out for you. Get the "Everybody Loves Raymond" makeover. Right now.

Taxation is evil, it is sinful.
It violates God's commandment delivered to Moses:
Thou Shalt Not Steal
(When you force payment from someone against their will, that's theft)

And thereafter, is politics the way?

by Walter E. Williams

Black politicians and the civil rights establishment take it as an act of faith that progress for black people requires racial politics and government programs. How about examining this vision with a few simple, common-sense questions?

Whether you're black, white or polka dot, in order to take advantage of opportunities, you must be prepared. A large part of that preparation is to get a decent K-12 education. In order for children to do well in school, there are some minimum requirements that must be met. Someone must make them do their homework, see to it that they get a good night's rest, fix a breakfast, and make sure they get to school on time and obey school authorities. This is not rocket science, but here's my question. Can those requirements be satisfied by a president, congressman or mayor?

If those requirements aren't met, there's little hope that a child will get the academic preparation necessary to take advantage of opportunities. Spending more money on education cannot replace poor parenting. If it could, black academic achievement would be much higher than it is.

Numerous studies show that children raised in stable two-parent households do far better than those raised in single-parent households. They are less likely to have out-of-wedlock births, less likely to engage in criminal behavior and more likely to complete high school. Historically, black families have been relatively stable. From 1880 to 1960, the proportion of black children raised in two-parent families held steady at around 70 percent; in 1925 Harlem, it was 85 percent. Today, only 38 percent of black children are raised in two-parent families. In 1940, black illegitimacy was 16 percent; today, it's 70 percent. Stable two-parent families are vital for a child's development. The solution to the problem of unstable families won't be found in the political arena. There's nothing a president, congressman or mayor can do.

In many black neighborhoods, businessmen must install bars and roll-down gates for their storefronts, hire security guards and pay high insurance rates. Security precautions add significantly to the cost of business, and who do you think pays these extra costs? The businessman pays in the form of a lower return, and his customers pay in the form of higher prices and less convenience.

A tiny percentage of the black community is allowed to impose high costs on its overwhelmingly law-abiding residents. Criminals, vandals and thugs have turned once economically viable shopping areas into economic wastelands. Ensuring public safety is a job of politicians, and they fail miserably. The police, courts and jails allow thugs to prey on the black community with near impunity.

Solutions to the most serious problems that black Americans face will not be found in the political arena. Otherwise, the problems would have been long solved with the civil rights legislation, litigation and the more than $8 trillion spent on poverty programs since 1965. Or the problems would have been solved by the two terms of President Clinton, whom some blacks have called the first black president.

Perhaps the biggest roadblock to finding solutions is the widely held vision of the problem black people face, namely racial discrimination. That vision calls for civil rights strategies. The truth of the matter is that the black civil rights struggle is over and it's won. At one time, black Americans did not enjoy the constitutional protections enjoyed by others. Today, there are no constitutional protections not enjoyed by blacks. That's not to say that every vestige of discrimination has been eliminated. It is to say that the devastating problems facing a large proportion of the black community are not civil rights problems and the solution won't be found in the political arena.

Take the Constitution seriously in the second term

by Sheldon Richman

Should President Bush declare a mandate and push ahead with his agenda or extend an olive branch of conciliation to his opponents?

This is a typical false alternative that American politics often presents. He should do neither. Instead, he should do what on January 20 he will declare he is obligated to do.

On Inauguration Day he will swear, as the U.S. Constitutions prescribes, that he will "faithfully execute the Office of President of the United States, and will to the best of [his] Ability, preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States." He should refuse to do anything else. That will keep him busy enough the next four years.

Of course, that would be a major break with what he has been doing the last four years. According to the Constitution the presidency is a modest office. The powers are rather few. Article II begins, "The executive Power shall be vested in a President of the United States," that is, he executes the laws passed by Congress, which is also bound by a small number of powers.

The president can spend money only as appropriated by Congress. Other than that, the president appoints judges and other officials (with the advice and consent of the Senate), makes treaties (which must be ratified by the Senate), and is commander in chief of the armed forces and the state militias when called. Note two things to about this last power: He is not our commander in chief, as people seem to believe, and second, being commander does not include the power to declare war. That power was reserved, exclusively, to the Congress. This will be news to many, especially in Washington.

The president's obligation to uphold by the Constitution applies whether he wins by a squeaker or a landslide. So his agenda for the next four years ought to be plain: terminate all programs and projects that fall outside of constitutional limits.

Bush should get out of Iraq as soon as possible. This was never a defensive war, and it was not declared by Congress. It's unconstitutional. So is trying to remake the Middle East.

He should also restore habeas corpus to the exalted position it occupied before the administration announced that it could forever hold even American citizens on America soil without charge and without judicial review merely by declaring them enemy combatants.

The courts have reined in the administration somewhat, but how heartening it would be to see Bush give up his indefensible position. While he's at it, he should ask that the USA PATRIOT Act be repealed. Secret warrants and promiscuous eavesdropping have no place in America.

Next, he should acknowledge that the federal government has no constitutional authority to have any role in education whatsoever. The No Child Left Behind Act should be repealed, and all federal education appropriations should be rescinded. The Department of Education should be closed.

After that the president should get his Republican colleagues in the House and Senate to end the farm program. Again, there is no power in the Constitution to help farmers. The same goes for all the corporate welfare. Businessmen and farmers should make it on their own or find other lines of work.

Bush should also kill his pet faith-based initiative, that is, handing taxpayer money to religious groups that do social work. The administration's detachment from constitutional reality was made clear Sunday when Bush's chief political advisor, Karl Rove, said on Meet the Press that subsidies are necessary to enable those groups to do their work fully. Is that so? Bush is right when he points out that secular groups get subsidies. End those too.

I could go on. Most cabinet departments are unconstitutional. Government has no constitutional authority to run pension or health-care programs. While the Constitution does grant the power to regulate interstate and foreign commerce, trade restrictions help only special interests at the expense of everyone else and therefore violate the general-welfare clause.

If Bush sets his mind to taking his oath seriously, he will surely keep out of mischief in his second term.

Sheldon Richman is senior fellow at The Future of Freedom Foundation, author of Tethered Citizens: Time to Repeal the Welfare State, and editor of The Freeman magazine. Send him email.

Does democracy make you free?

by Jacob G. Hornberger

In the wake of his reelection, President Bush has announced that he remains committed to bringing democracy to the Middle East, which includes the indefinite military occupation of Iraq. In the president's mind — indeed, in the minds of most public officials in America — democracy is freedom. So, given that I voted in the recent election, that makes me free, right?

Let's see. Government officials have the power to take away my income by simply raising the percentage of tax take to whatever extent they wish. So they have the power to destroy me by the unlimited power to tax me. Just like in North Korea. But I'm free because I voted, right?

Government officials will put me in jail if I ingest substances that harm my health. Okay, not just any harmful substances — such as alcohol and tobacco — but certainly harmful substances that our public officials don't approve of. Just like in North Korea. But I'm free because I voted, right?

Government officials force me to subject my children to a government-approved education. Or they force me to pay for the government-approved schooling of other people's children. Just like in North Korea. But I'm free because I voted, right?

Government officials confiscate my wealth simply by debasing the currency by printing lots of it to finance out-of-control government expenditures. Just like in North Korea. But I'm free because I voted, right?

Government officials regulate my economic activities with other people. Just like in North Korea. But I'm free because I voted, right?

Government officials will punish me for traveling to non-approved countries.

Eagles no match for Bold Gold power

'Lopes claim undisputed District 5AA Trophy

by Wes Burnett

A convincing 43-14 win over the Roosevelt Eagles last Friday night set the stage for the Post Antelope football team's march toward post-season play and presentation of the 2004 District AA Championship trophy.

The 'Lopes advance to play-off competition in the small school division. The will square off at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Lubbock's Lowrey Field for the Bi-District Championship against the Olton Mustangs.

In their domination of the visiting Eagles last Friday, the Bold Gold Antelopes ripped off an opening possession touchdown drive in six plays, featuring Jett Lott hammering the Eagle defense on five runs. Quarterback Sterling Smith lofted a pass to Kenneth Garay for a first down at the 15 and then Lott burst over left guard to the end zone. The extra point was partially blocked, putting the 'Lopes out front 6-0 with 7:05 left in the first quarter.

The touchdown drive was set up by a strong Antelope defense, led by Martin Garcia, Trent McDonald, Chris Reed and Lott, forcing a fourth down punt.

The Eagles and 'Lopes exchanged punts on their next possessions, going into the second quarter with no change in the score. Jerrad Grisham intercepted Eagle quarterback Shayne Trotter's pass on third down, setting up a first down for the 'Lopes at the Roosevelt 49 yard line.

Running behind outstanding blocking, Lott broke through tacklers to the to the eight yard line, then hammered his way to the four, again to the one and then behind Blake Nichols, Zach Witcher, Josh Lee and Janssen Eilenberger to the end zone. Lott got the call for the two point conversion, crashing over right tackle to the end zone and a 14-0 led with 9:30 left in the first half.

Theo Paiz trapped Trotter on the next Roosevelt possession, then on third down Trotter's pass downfield was picked off by McDonald at the Roosevelt 47 yard line.

One play later the 'Lopes led 20-0, as Smith tossed the ball on a lateral to Grisham who threw a pass to Garay, waiting all alone at the 15 yard line, who then raced the distance to the end zone. Zach Sanchez, with Wilson Cash holding, put the extra point kick between the goal posts, lifting the 'Lopes to a 21-0 lead with 7:14 left in the second quarter.

Roosevelt's fleet footed Nathan Stone carried the Eagles for three first downs and then scored on a pass from Trotter to put the visitors on the score board. With 1:54 on the first half clock, the 'Lopes led 21-7.

A determined 'Lope offense took the field, opening up an eight play touchdown drive. The effort featured a memory-making pass completion from Smith to Grisham over the middle. Grisham was running from his right to left, batting the ball up between two defenders, then catching it on his way to the turf. The play electrified fans and set up a first down at the Roosevelt 48.

Cash took the ball to the 46, then Smith found Garay for a completion to the 39 for another first down. Smith was sacked, then spiked the ball to stop the clock at 41 seconds.

Lott rammed over right guard to the 36, then on fourth down Smith found Grisham at the one yard line. With only seven seconds left on the clock, Smith handed the ball to Lott, who jumped over the top of blockers and defenders for the touchdown. Cash handed the ball to Lott, who bolted over right guard for the two point conversion ... with four seconds left in the first half, the 'Lopes led 29-7.

Second Half Action

The 'Lopes took the second half kickoff and left no doubt about their intentions. Five plays put another six points on the board.

The drive featured running by Randon Blacklock and Lott, capped by a brilliant fake to Lott by Smith, who then found Jonathan McGregor undefended at the five yard line and a clear shot to the end zone. The touchdown pass play and Sanchez' extra point put the 'Lopes on top 36-7 with 9:50 left in the third quarter.

The Eagles put up a 13 play drive, using Stone effectively and threatening to score at the Post 22 yard line. Paiz snuffed out the threat with a hard-hitting sack of Trotter at the 29.

The 'Lope offense held onto the ball with a six play drive, running out of steam and set back by penalty, and Grisham punted the ball on fourth down from the 20. The Eagles got one play off, but Stone was hit hard by McDonald, the ball popped loose and Grisham pounced on it for the 'Lopes at the Post 29 yard line.

The final 'Lope touchdown drive ate up a big chunk of the clock in a 10 play drive, including one fourth down conversion. Lott, Reed, Eilenberger and Sanchez shared running chores. Lott broke out to the 35, then Reed blasted to the 48.

Eilenberger got the call into Eagle territory at the 48, Lott carried twice to the 13, Eilenberger ran over defenders to the five and again to the two, then provided the key block for Sanchez, who hit the end zone from the two. His extra point gave the 'Lopes a 43-7 lead.

Late in the game the Eagles put another score on the board, but there was really no contest as the clock wound down and the celebration ensued.

Thursday's game will be broadcast live on Post City Radio at www.postcityradio.com and on Cebridge Connections Channel 12 with Steve Mason calling the play-by-play action.

JV 'Lopes earn 28-8 win over Roosevelt

The Post JV Antelopes earned a 28-8 victory Nov. 4 over Roosevelt, putting their overall record at 7-3 or 5-2 in district play.

D.J. Rivera had a 55-yard touchdown run in the first quarter to make the score 6-0. Roosevelt Brown, on a 20-yard touchdown run, boosted the score in the second quarter, followed by a successful two-point conversion by Steven Hair. Bradley Reed bumped the score up again before the hand on a three-yard touchdown run, followed by a two-point conversion by Brown. The 'Lopes led 22-0 at the half.

In the third quarter, the Roosevelt Eagles scored and completed a two-point conversion to make it a 22-8 game.

In the fourth quarter, Reed logged a 20-yard touchdown jaunt to put the score at 28-8.

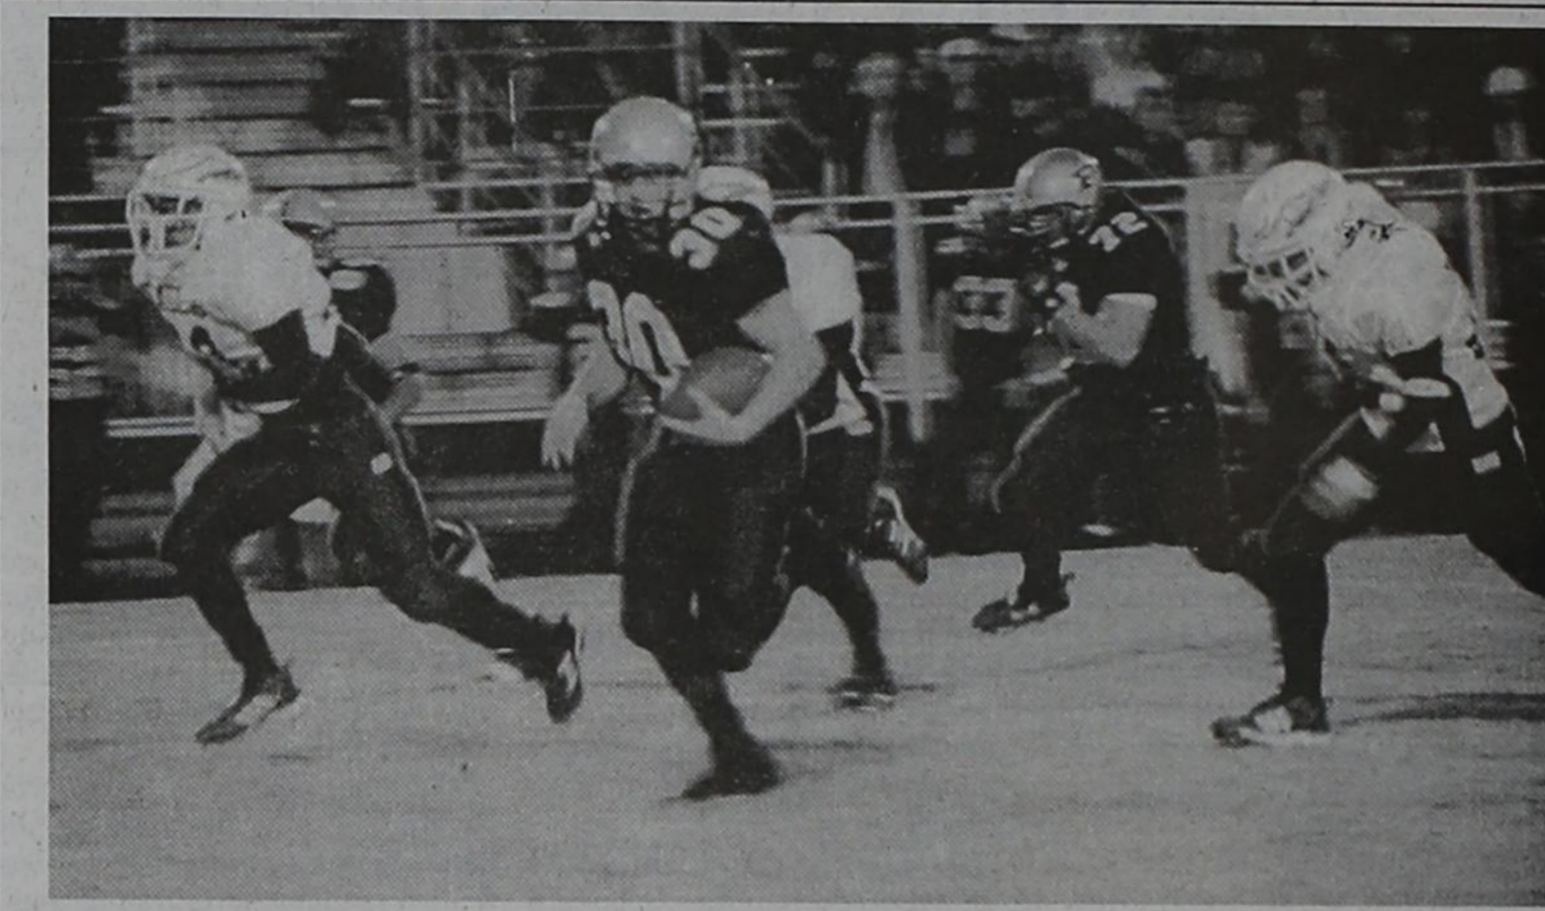

Rushing totals were as follows: Rivera, 7 for 113, one touchdown; Hair, 15 for 111, two points; Reed, 9 for 93, two touchdowns; Brown, 7 for 51, one touchdown and a two-point conversion; Pat Reiter, 12 for 23; and John Vasquez, 1 for 4. The 'Lopes totaled 51 carries for a total of 395 yards on the ground, according to a report from the coach.

The Antelope defense gave up 128 total yards of offense.

On the year, the JV squad has 349 carries for 2,012 yards rushing; passing 20 for 54 for 359 yards; and total offense, 403 plays for 2,371 yards.

Post Middle School girls off to good start in basketball

by Kara Swindell

7th Grade

I was very pleased with the 7th graders coming away with a win on their first game of the season. I felt we could've ran our offenses & press a little better, but I was still pleased with the great effort from everyone. Alex Miller & Branda Stevens did a great job moving the ball up the floor and breaking their press. Toni Wait was high point with 12 and did a great job for us putting points on the board. I look for even better things in our next game Monday, November 15 against Abernathy here in Post.

8th Grade

These girls have improved so much since last year. They look like a totally different team. They played so well Monday night. We moved the ball up the floor real well and really did a great job getting the ball to the open people. I thought our motion offense really worked for us and we really got some good looks at the basket from it. Shyra Perez did an outstanding job for us offensively and came away with 12 points which was high point for us. Whitney Williams did a great job off the bench and played a majority of the game.

City Council praises PHS band, football team

The Post City Council adopted a pair of resolutions last week recognizing two groups of local high school students.

The Post Antelope football team and the Pride of Post Band, both student groups of Post High School, were recognized by the council.

The resolution honoring the football squad designates this week, Nov. 7-14, as Post Antelope Week in the City of Post.

"Whereas the Post Antelopes football team has exemplified the very finest in team spirit and team effort this season, and... the Antelopes have consistently played well from the beginning to the end of every game, having achieved the championship of District 5-2A, and... the team members and the coaching staff have conducted themselves in a sportsmanlike manner in their dealings with others," reads the resolution.

"Now therefore be it resolved by the mayor and city council of the City of Post... that the Post Antelopes... be congratulated and that Nov. 7-14 be declared as Post Antelope Week in the City of Post..."

The resolution drafted in recognition of the band lauds the musical group for its top Division I rating in the recent University Interscholastic League marching competition.

"Whereas, on Oct. 16, 2004, the Post High School Band... entered the University Interscholastic League (UIL) marching contest representing Region 16 at Lowery Field in Lubbock, Texas, and... after completion of the band's marching presentation, the Pride of Post Band was awarded a Division I rating for its extraordinary marching performance, and... the Pride of Post Band is indeed a source of great pride for the community of Post and its citizens," the resolution reads.

"Now therefore be it resolved that the community recognize and congratulate the band members, leaders and parents for their contribution to Post, its community spirit and its pride of accomplishment by its young people."

Both resolutions were signed by the mayor, Archie Gill; Mayor Pro-Tem Bill Pool; and council members Harold Craig, Dick Odum, Juanita Pantoja and Josh Whiteley.

Hunters Take Aim at Hunger in Texas

It is once again that time of year when hunters are "heading to the woods." For more than a decade now, Texas hunters have combined their skill, love of the outdoors, and their generosity to help Hunters for the Hungry (HFTH) feed hundreds of hungry Texans.

Here's something else a lot of Texans probably don't know. Texas currently ranks second out of 50 states in the highest percentage of hungry families. Worse yet, an estimated 1.1 million, or 32%, of all children in Texas are hungry or at risk of hunger, despite various hunger relief efforts.

During the past hunting season, Texas hunters, meat processors and other bighearted program supporters joined forces to donate almost 127,000 pounds of wild game (almost 508,000 servings) to help families struggling to make ends meet. With the help of participating meat processors throughout Texas and local food distribution organizations, the Texas Association of Community Action Agencies (TACAA) administers Hunters for the Hungry on a state-wide level.

Administered with funds from the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs, Hunters for the Hungry makes it possible to provide nutritious, low-fat protein to numerous Texas families needing assistance. In addition to many generous private individuals, financial supporters this past year included the National Rifle Association (South Texas Region and West Texas Region), Arlington Sportsman's Club Inc., and Sewell Lexus of Dallas. HFTH coordinates activities with the Dallas Safari Club. The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has graciously provided assistance over the years.

Hunters for the Hungry offers a mutually beneficial means for preventing malnutrition and other negative effects that plague both human and animal species when their food supply is limited or unbalanced. For example, it has been estimated that between 20 and 40% of the total deer population in the Edwards Plateau region die of malnutrition each year.

In Post, Jackson Brothers Food Locker has generously offered its services to the program again this season. Hunters for the Hungry encourages hunters to call processors before donating in order to verify business hours and to ensure that space is available.
