BY GILES M. HALTOM

HERE, ALSO, IS NEWS

It is a safe venture that 80 per cent of the readers of news read the advertisements also cheerfully because of the general interest to be found in them. There is news value in a well-written advertisement, which is a thought for the consideration of those who think an advertising contract is something of a speculation, or who are careless in the preparation of their "copy."

An attractive advertisement compels the reader's attention. Everyone knows how at times, even in the midst of an interesting news item, his eye has been deflected by some outstanding sentence in a nearby "ad", and how he has read the "ad" before returning to the news story. Advertisements narrate the romance of business, they represent an individual art and they are instructive.

For instance, the classified advertisement page. The persons are innumerable who read it, not because they are searching for something definite, but because each little "ad" tells of something of interest to the active mind. Many are those who, reading the classified page because of this general interest only, find something there that interests them individually and directly, prompts a reply, and performs a concrete service both for the advertiser and the reader.

SPEAK A GOOD WORD

Speak a good word for your town and country whenever an opportunity presents itself. More towns die for want of confidence on the part of business men and public spirit than from rivalry of neighboring towns or adverse surroundings. When a man is in search of a home or business location, and goes to a town and finds everything brimful of hope and enthusiasm over the prospects of the place and earnestly at work to build up the town, he soon becomes imbued with the same spirit and as a result he drives down his stakes and goes to work with the same interest. When, however, he goes into a town and everyone expresses doubt and apprehension in the future prospects of the town, he naturally feels that it is not the place for him and at once shakes the dust from his feet while he pulls with all possible speed for some other town. Consequently try to make a live, enterprising progressive town out of the one in which you live, and remember that when you are working or saying a good word for your town, you are accomplishing all the more for yourself. Then speak a good word for your town.—Whitewright Sun.

A CONGRESS THAT FAILS

Substantial bankers and other financiers recognize in Moody's publication an unquestioned authority. The Moody Manual is the financial Bible of many a counting house. And it is of some import to the financial world as well as to the public generally to learn what Moody thinks of the present situation.

In Number 4484 of Moody's Investors' Service there is a review of 1921 and a forecast of 1922. Under the head of "Fundamental Factors" it has this striking statement:

"We have had the blundering and incompetence of congress to face once more. Instead of tax relief, a new law has been enacted which places a heavier burden than ever before on the actual producer of wealth and simply invites bankruptcy to many a business man as being the only way out of an utterly intolerable situation. The congress which was elected in 1920 for the purpose of restoring good times has thus far only succeeded in making a business revival more difficult."

Had these words been spoken from the political stump, they would have been discounted at once as partisan. But no such charge can lie against them in this instance, though forsooth, their effect cannot help but influence the political judgment of those who read them.

For has it not been preached from the hustings for generations that the only party that can rule this country efficiently, restore good times and maintain them is the republican party? What sort of hearsay is this then which says that "the congress which was elected in 1920 for the purpose of restoring good times to the people has thus far only succeeded in making a business revival more difficult?"

As a matter of fact the present situation is but another exposure of the fallacy that republican rule in the nation and prosperity are synonymous. It was never so. For years through subtle propaganda the republican leaders sought to create this impression. They had an exclusive patent for the full dinner pail, high protective tariff for the American workingman and all that piffle, but the present, as also the past, has demonstrated that there is no more direct connection between republican rule and industrial prosperity than between apple butter and pig iron.

The republican party in the nation has fallen down on its job. Its leaders recognize and tremble at what is ahead. And the collapse has come because the party chiefs sold the ideals of Lincoln for a mess of porridge and mortgaged their organization to Mammon. A party that casts aside its ideals is at best an impostor. Its posing is no longer effective. It stands today as it is naked, scrawny, helpless and shorn of every human ideal it ever possessed.

FORD'S OFFER ON FERTILIZER

The so-called fertilizer trust is fighting the Henry Ford proposal to take over the projected government nitrate plant at Muscle Shoals. It is not necessary to go into its reasons especially in order to get a new slant on the situation which to many persons has been obscured by the very size of the figures involved.

This opposition from the crowd which is said to control the fertilizer output of the nation would indicate, if anything, that they feel their control is threatened if the Ford project goes through. That in itself is interesting. Ford's proposal may be a bad one for the government or it may not, when a group which is said to control an industry snorts when somebody else seeks to share it, then the time has arrived for the public to become thoroughly interested in what is transpiring.

Farmers for years have been complaining about the high prices they must pay for fertilizer. On most farms these days fertilizer is as essential as water and sunlight. If the farmer is being held up or gouged for this commodity and there is a way to free him and give him his soil leaven at lower prices without injury to the government, then that thing would seem desirable not only for the farmer but for the consumer of farm products as well.

Opposition to the Ford offer is making the offer all the more interesting.

THE NEWSPAPER REPORTER

What would life be without the newspaper reporter? Could there be civilization?

Don't laugh—this isn't a Hearst editorial.

Everybody isn't in the newspaper business, but every individual knows that he could run the newspaper he reads daily better than the present editor is doing the job. But now here comes W. C. Stouffer, who is a reporter for the World-News, of Roanoke, Va. In 12 months just ended Stouffer wrote 5,328 news "stories" which were printed in the World-News, a total of 643 columns which, placed end to end, would measure almost 1,200 feet. Not everybody, not even every newspaper reporter could do that. It is believed to be a newspaper record.

Taking three persons to a news story as an average—and all editors will agree that this is too conservative—approximately 16,000 persons were directly concerned in the events this reporter wrote about in one year. An important happening in the life of each one of these 16,000 was chronicled to thousands of other human beings whom it interested.

News interests man because it concerns mankind. Find a news item in this paper if you can, which does not tell of an occurrence with which a human being was directly connected.

This civilization of ours is steadily becoming more complex. Without the newspaper reporter to keep members of the alleged human family, even in the most remote places, in touch with other members of the same alleged family, it could not survive.

SAME KIND HERE

Never mind what the weather man says about the weather; if that's all he has to talk about he is liable to say anything. One thing is certain, the sun shone in Lufkin this morning briefly. There is no question about it being the sun, for fully a hundred people saw it, recognized it, and even commented upon it. So far as known, the entire day was one of bleakness and despair in that far-off Nacogdoches.—Lufkin News, 26th.

Now the public is being reproached for expecting too little from the Washington conference.

"Woman Hangs Jury," which only goes to show what women know about legal amenities.

FARM WOMEN NOT "DOWNTRODDEN"

It is a healthy sign that farm women of the country, now being formed into a national organization by the American Farm Bureau Federation, are protesting against the continuous circulation of the legend that as a class they are overworked and downtrodden folk, for whom life is mostly drudgery. They are protesting because they say it is untrue and prejudices people against country life who ought to be interested in it. And the protest indicates that existence does hold a good deal for them besides work and dejection.

Everybody who has had any experience with farm life knows that, while there is much work for the women as well as for the men, they are not all drudges. They have time for church and social activities as well as for other diversions. The isolation of the farm did at one time, it is true, prevent the farm woman from sharing in many of the pleasures to which her city cousin is accustomed, but the automobile, the telephone and the wireless have to a large extent overcome that loneliness.

Moreover, the community spirit has been aroused in the rural regions. Farm women, as well as those of the urban communities, have their clubs and societies at which they make plans for the betterment of the neighborhood and the promotion of culture.

They object to the depreciation of country life. They want the city folk to know that they are not to be pitied, but on the contrary have much over which to be cheerful.

That farm women are not "downtrodden" is proved by the intelligent, ambitious girls, well able to establish themselves comfortably elsewhere if they desire, who marry farmers.

WOOD DEALERS WARNED

If there are any unscrupulous wood dealers in Texas, and there may be a few who are not any too careful about giving full measure, they might profit by reading a few remarks from Austin by the Department of Markets and Warehouses as follows:

Wood dealers selling firewood by the "rick" or load, often deliver the purchaser only 50 to 75 percent of a cord, where a cord is really expected, according to the report of a recent investigation by Charles E. Baughman, Commissioner of Markets and Warehouses. Commissioner Baughman calls attention to the law providing that "when ever any commodity is sold in this state by the cord it shall mean 128 cubic feet, or the contents of a space eight feet long, four feet high and four feet wide."

Violations of this law are punishable upon complaint in courts having jurisdiction, such as mayor's courts and justice of the peace courts.

In a statement issued today by the Department of Markets and Warehouses, it was said that a "rick" of wood had no definite meaning, and may be used as a subterfuge to cover up short delivery. Why do not consumers order their wood in cords and practice of cards and require full measure. They would be then in position to punish violators.

"Our department will undertake to enforce laws where violations are called to our attention. We also suggest that the public buy their supplies such as food and feed in standard measures and demand full measure from their retailers. If they will do so they will save thousands of dollars to themselves in Texas."

A telephone girl won a prize of 500 francs in a courtesy contest—in Paris.

It's mileage books on which the senate is now divided. It takes little to divide that body these days.

Many believe that to leave the fighting aircraft up there would be the height of inconsistency.

The strange thing is that ambitious nations always are "menaced" by weaker nations—where picking is good.

Wouldn't there be some fine jujitsu if the Siberians sent a military force into Japan to guard their interests?

The thing we can't seem to get straight on is, just who is Pennsylvania's governor taking orders from these days.

There is a well-defined opinion that it might be just as well to wait a bit before recognizing any alleged form of government in Russia.

There is a hint to the G. O. P. to keep its elephant out of deep water in the fate of the whale struck by the liner President Wilson, which cut it in two.

"Nobody to Play With"

FOLKS are naturally companionable. When your heart overflows with happiness you like someone to rejoice with you. Even "misery loves company." The most forlorn urchin in the world is the one who has nobody to play with. He can't be happy.

All of us are continually surrounded by better thoughts and things. When we consistently overlook them we are as badly off as the youngster who has to play alone.

The business of bringing these thoughts and things to you is the service of advertising. It is the voice of the loom, the shop, the foundry—all the places where minds turn pleasant thoughts into worthwhile things for you.

Do you read the advertisements in the paper?

Do it. It's a paying habit

THE ERA OF HATE

Whatever agreement may be reached in Europe, either by consent or coercion, will not become guarantees against wars as long as the present feeling of suspicion, if not actual hate exists among the peoples. No agreements will prevent conflicts if national and individual hatreds persist.

Isaac F. Marcossin, well-known war correspondent, magazine writer and lecturer, expresses a conviction that must be shared by persons who have given even casual consideration to conditions in Europe, when he declares that little pacts will never abolish war.

"The principal business in Europe is hate," Mr. Marcossin said. "All the high purposes of war are forgotten, and the reward for four years of war is disillusion. Every ration hates every other. It was the greatest drama in history, and also the tragedy is not that its moral purposes are forgotten, but that the men who fought it are forgotten."

That developments in Europe since the signing of the armistice bear out much of the pessimism expressed by Mr. Marcossin must be admitted by students of conditions, much as they would like to be convinced to the contrary. Continental Europe indicates that the nations are for peace for what they can get out of it for themselves, not for what peace will bring to mankind in general.

The remedy for existing conditions seems simple enough, and it is approved by leaders in religious as well as commercial thought. The hearts of the people must be turned into the pursuits of peace, and this can only be done by education—just as Germans in a single generation turned the hearts of the German people from peace to the bloodiest war in history. Peace will never come through agreements that are not backed by the spirit of the golden rule expressed by individuals toward each other individually and internationally.

ONLY NATURAL

A correspondent asks the editor of one of the financial journals why the "labor unions are so unreasonable about readjusting wages and working conditions to meet the new circumstances which business faces."

With all due respect to this correspondent, the union are no more unreasonable than many manufacturers and merchants have been.

No man likes to relinquish advantages he has gained.

During the war manufacturers and business men made exceptionally large profits. During the same period the workingman earned phenomenally wages and wrung agreements of great advantage to himself from his employer.

Manufacturers and merchants tried to stave off price reductions as long as possible—some of them are still holding out for more than their market is willing to pay.

Workmen, through their unions and individually are doing the same thing. They want to retain as many of the war benefits as possible, and they are making every effort to save something from the wreck the depression has brought to everybody.

Of course the manufacturer and the merchant lost needlessly and heavily by holding on too long. Very likely the unions, in many cases, will do the same. Nevertheless, they are doing the natural thing, and disagreeable to business as the process is, and as hurtful to workmen as it may become, they are but pursuing the natural course. They are doing what everybody else did and would do again were the circumstances repeated. Human nature is very much the same whether in management, salesmanship or labor.

Many a man has a past he would like to have the neighbors forget.

The Easter millinery will soon be casting its shadow before—on the pocketbook of the mere male.

HE CAN'T UNDERSTAND

There is a fellow in the federal penitentiary sentenced for ten years, for printing and circulating an exact copy of an article from Tom Watson's paper. It was during the war and before Watson's paper was suppressed. The fellow up at Leavenworth can't understand why he should go to the pen and the man who wrote the article should go to the United States Senate. There are others who can't understand.—Ex.

General Ludendorf is to visit South America. Seeing the American eulogist of the kaiser, John T. Adams, in such high esteem with the Harding administration, being chairman of the republican national committee, Hindenburg's chief of staff may also try to visit the United States. In fact, the kaiser himself, who was glorified by the republican chieftain as Woodrow Wilson was made a target of abuse, may seek to meet heart to heart with some of his republican admirers in America.

It is stated the average blonde has 140,000 hairs on her head. She can afford to shed a few of them on a man's coat.

When it comes to paying their bills, the United States knows some members of the Genoa economic conference who have practiced the most rigid kind of economy.

When last seen Filmmaster Hays was hurrying across the street with one of those new electrically-operated typewriters under his arm. His press agent, it is rumored, will use it.

A New York girl, it is reported, broke her neck combing her hair, but then it may be only bobbed hair propaganda.

Scrapping the land and sea forces does not justify those who believe air fighting craft will serve to keep war up.

Tennessee murderer has been given a respite of 30 days because he is "not ready to die." But suppose he isn't ready 30 days hence?

In having had a credit balance of $100,000 with a bankrupt brokerage firm, Charlie Chaplin seems to have been pie for them.

Mr. Harding used to treat the isolation bloc of the senate as it were the acme of patriotism. Now that it is trying its hands in foreign affairs he probably has some reservations on it.

Saturday was the Chinese New Year's Day. Oh, well; even in the matter of swearing off it is better late than never.

Japan has attended a great many kinds of conferences, but she seems to be finding the one at Washington the kindest.

CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

HER AFTERNOON QUITE BUSY

Violet Grace, However, Had Intervals of Leisure, and Took Advantage of All of Them.

Violet Grace dressed to go shopping. Last of all she powdered her nose. She went first to a certain store, for it was having a sale, but she didn't see a bargain in the whole store, so she left. She paused a moment at the ribbon counter and powdered her nose. She stopped at the blouse shop. She simply had to have a blouse soon. But they had nothing that appealed to her, so after powdering her nose she went out.

She visited the baby shop to see if she could find a little gift for Camille's baby, but everything was so frightfully expensive that she decided to make something to give. She powdered her nose at the doorway. There was such a good mirror there.

Feeling weary, she had a cup of chocolate and some wafers. The chocolate was not very hot and the whipped cream looked mussy. She resolved she would go somewhere else next time. Those tea shops deteriorated so after they had established a reputation. She powdered her nose before leaving the table.

It was early to go home, so she thought she might as well see a picture. She was disappointed in it, however, and she went out before it was altogether finished. She powdered her nose again in the rest room.

She boarded a street car for home. She wished she did not have to walk two blocks when she got off, but there was no help for it. She powdered her nose and alighted.

The afternoon was over.—Katherine Negley, in Judge.

WELL, IT LOOKED SUSPICIOUS

But What Prohibition Officers Thought Was a "Still" Was Really Something Quite Different.

State and federal prohibition officers were silent concerning a recent experience, when they swooped down on the shack of John Finn of Sherbourne mountain to raid what was supposed to be a giant still.

Finn, a Russian, was nowhere to be seen, but at the rear of his clearing was a rough, conical stone structure, about six feet high, its chinks filled with clay. Under it crackled a log fire, while from its top issued smoke and steam.

One still hunter pried open the small iron door, thrust a hand into the steam-filled interior and emitted a shriek.

"A big 'un," he cried. "A human laig! And it's alive!"

From the doorway emerged first the foot, next the "laig," and then body of John Finn, clad only in the muddy mantle of innocence.

"What 'y doin'?" was fired at him. "Tak'n' a bath," he answered in broken English.

Finn explained he had built himself a Russian bath, obtaining the steam by letting cold water drip on heated stones.—Rutland (Vt.) Dispatch in the New York World.

May Get Treasure From Ocean.

A ship's treasure buried for 139 years has now, it is thought, been located. Anyway, the East India company's ship Grosvenor, which foundered off the coast of Pondoland, South Africa, in 1782, with $8,573,650 in specie, numerous gold and silver ingots, and precious stones, including an almost priceless parcel of emeralds on board, has now been located. The Grosvenor Bullion syndicate has been organized and survey work is already proceeding. The consulting engineer in the operation confirms the report that the ship, which is said to lie in from 18 to 25 feet of water only, is intact from keel to deck. A 90-foot tunnel from shore to ship is proposed. A large silver Spanish coin bearing a worn date that appears to be 1722, a lighter silver coin which appears to be Indian and a small gold piece on which an image may be fairly discerned have been obtained from persons living on the Pondoland coast, and are believed to have come from the sunken Grosvenor.

Improvements in Palestine.

Assistant Trade Commissioner Julian E. Gillespie, who has just completed a visit to Egypt, Syria, Palestine, and Smyrna, states that the government of Palestine has projected an enlargement of the ports of Jaffa and Haifa, the erection of a large waterpower plant sufficient to meet the needs of all Palestine, the irrigation of the Jordan valley, and the construction of a railroad from the Sea of Galilee directly east to connect with the Bagdad railway. However, it is probable that only the port improvements at Jaffa will see accomplishment in the near future. This project is being urged by the orange growers and shippers of Jaffa.—Scientific American.

Use for Surplus Water Supply.

Having a water supply far exceeding the requirement of its present population, the authorities of the small town of Port Alberni, B. C., decided to utilize this surplus for generating electricity for lighting purposes. The source of the water supply is a creek seven miles distant, with a head of 610 feet, and allowing for friction and all losses in transmission, there was an effective head at the power house of 355 feet, which at ordinary rates of efficiency made available a force of 120 horse power, being all that was required to generate enough current for lighting the town for some time to come.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

TOO STARVED TO BE HUNGRY?

There Comes a Final Stage in the Horror, When Taste for Food is Lacking.

I cannot quite bring myself to tell tales of famine horrors—the monkey-faced, pop-eyed babies tugging hungrily at the cold breasts of dead mothers lying on the frozen ground; the piteous old women and the stoical men; the incredibly deformed starving wail whom I picked up outside of the city of Chinkiang; the boy on the wall of Chinkiang who was carrying home a starved cat for food, and in response to a query, tried so hard to sell it to me as a delicate morsel, and such general concomitants as the incidence of smallpox plague with the famine.

One of the unexpected aspects of work in the famine camps came when I was accompanying Mrs. Paxton of Chinkiang as she made rounds to distribute medicine to the sick among the hungry. As a matter of fact, relatively few persons ever die in a famine directly from actual hunger, but rather from diseases induced by malnutrition.

Obligingly, Mrs. Paxton freely translated for me as we went along, and we found, in pathetic paradox, that the commonest request of these starving creatures was for medicine to give them an appetite! Even when they succeeded in getting a bowl of food from the relief station, ran the repeated tale, they could not eat it, having no taste for food.

To us this meant, obviously, that the sufferers had reached the final stages, where craving for food had passed away. They were not hungry, because they were starving!—William T. Ellis in the Outlook.

NEW TOY FINDS MUCH FAVOR

Parisian Children Hail With Joy Idea Which Has Been Imported From Central Borneo.

The latest toy which Parisian children are buying, and which threatens to displace the scooter in popular favor, is a modern form of the old "jumping stick."

The new "jumping stick," which is called a "pogo," is more scientific than its predecessor, which was nothing more elaborate than a single stick with two rests for the feet.

It is made with an India rubber pad and with a strong spring, which enables its possessor to take a series of leaps without jar.

The pogo was first found in use, in a primitive form, among the Dyak natives of central Borneo, who gave it that name. It was a stick with a cross-piece, on which certain favored young men used to perform a kind of dance at sacrificial ceremonies.

As the chiefs took charge of the pogos after the ceremony, hiding them until the next occasion for their use, it was very difficult to obtain them, but a French traveler who saw the dance in progress, described them on his return to Paris. From his rough sketch the new Paris toy has been made.

"Mounties" In With Dominion Police

Under an act of parliament the Royal Northwest mounted police of Canada was merged with the Dominion police May 1, 1920, with jurisdiction throughout Canada, and known as the Royal Canadian mounted police.

The Dominion police was a small body of men, the uniformed members of which were employed largely in guarding the parliament buildings, the mint and other government structures in Ottawa. To it was attached a number of highly trained experts, skilled in dealing with international criminals and their schemes, and having knowledge of the finger print system. These are now all members of the Royal Canadian mounted police, under the command of Col. A. Bowen Perry.

The force is now recruited to its prewar average of 1,200. Canadian government officials hope soon to be able to increase it far beyond that number, but the dominion's war debt has to date made that impossible.

Facts Concerning Eels.

Whence the eel comes and whither it goes is the text for an erudite piece of which American Consul Dennis at London claims authorship in a cablegram to Secretary Hoover.

Quaint belief that the eels were miraculously born of horsehairs dropped into ponds from horses' tails is entirely dispelled by Mr. Dennis, who comments upon research work by Doctor Smith, Danish scientist.

The eel's life history, an unfathomable mystery twenty years ago, thus for the first time is made a wide open book, and Mr. Dennis warrants these facts:

The eel lives up to eight years in fresh waters. Adult eels, living their life span, go down to tidewater, where they spawn and die. Newly hatched eels live in a cold and gloomy depth of 500 fathoms. They reappear in late winter.

Bear Island's History.

Midway between Norway and Spitzbergen, Bear Island thrusts its head, known as Mount Misery, above the cold waters. The whole island, save for moss and lichens, is almost destitute of vegetation. Long ago it was joined with the Spitzbergen archipelago; the continental shelf upon which the island sits shows a drowned valley deepening to 200 fathoms; this marks the course of an ancient river system that must have drained an area larger than the present basin of the Veiga.—Scientific American.

THE TYLER COMMERCIAL COLLEGE GIVES AWAY A FREE SCHOLARSHIP

Mr. Ralph Reynold of Bryan, Texas, won the $65.00 scholarship offered by the Tyler Commercial College to one interested in taking the commercial course who would guess the nearest number of enrollments the school would have in 1921. This young man is very fortunate in getting this scholarship for it entitles him to a business course in the largest commercial school in the United States and gives him independence for life at absolutely no cost to him for his tuition.

The Tyler Commercial College is offering the same prize for this year to the one guessing the nearest number of enrollments for 1922. Only those who wish to attend are eligible to the contest. If you are to enroll in a commercial school or would like to do so, be sure to write the Tyler Commercial College at Tyler, Texas, for a Guess Blank and your guess number will be recorded at once. You will also be given any information you desire concerning the school. Fill in your name and address and mail to the Tyler Commercial School and a Guess Blank will be mailed to you at once so you can record your guess number. You will be told the average enrollment for the last five years so you will have an idea about the number who will enroll with the Tyler Commercial College in 1922.

CALOMEL SALIVATES EVEN WHEN CAREFUL

Treacherous Drug Can Not be Trusted and Next Dose may Start Trouble

Calomel is dangerous. It may salivate you and make you suffer fearfully from soreness of gums, tenderness of jaws and teeth, swollen tongue and excessive saliva dribbling from the mouth. Don't trust calomel, it is mercury; quicksilver.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate.

SOLDIER LAID TO REST

The body of Clyde Chapman, a Nacogdoches county soldier boy who died in France, arrived Saturday night and was interred in Fairview cemetery Monday under direction of Baxter Duncan Post, American Legion, Rev. E. G. Cooke of the Methodist church conducting the religious service.

Deceased was a son of Mr. C. H. Chapman, a well-known resident of this county, and was the second among the volunteers from Nacogdoches county for service in the war. He was a young man of high character, and among the boys who sprang to the defense of their country there was none more worthy than he. If there be consolation in the surrender of a loved one upon the altar of patriotism, it is found in the reflection that he did his whole duty heroically, uncomplainingly. Whatever hardships he met he endured with fortitude, and he placed the welfare of his country above his life. His death was not a sacrifice; it was a free-will offering gladly made that we might enjoy the liberty bequeathed us by our forefathers. And to boys like him we owe a debt of eternal gratitude. The glory of sacrifice was his and in the sanctuary of our hearts he will have an everlasting place. God rest him.

C. OF C. DIRECTORS

The Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce had their regular weekly meeting at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday.

Those present were Oscar Matthews, president; Carl Monk, Vice President; J. N. Thomas, A. H. Smith, A. T. Mast, W. C. Fouts, J. J. Baker, W. D. Ambrose, Link Summers, R. L. Perry, H. P. Schmidt, C. B. Brewer, Guy Stripling, Holloway Muller, Robert Muckleroy.

On motion, Elbert Reese, Guy Stripling and W. D. Burk were added to the board of directors.

After thorough discussion of the need for regular meeting days, a motion was made and carried to meet each Friday at 10 o'clock a. m.

By vote it was determined that 9 directors should constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

F. R. Penman was unanimously elected treasurer for the new year.

President Matthews reported 23 memberships from the faculty of the public schools, with others to join later.

Committees to serve during the year are to be named at the next regular meeting to be held Friday, February the 3rd.

DYED HER STOCKINGS AND SKIRT TO MATCH

Every "Diamond Dyes" package tells how to dye or tint any worn, faded garment or drapery to a new rich color that will not streak, spot, fade or run. Perfect home-dyeing is guaranteed with Diamond Dyes even if you have never dyed before. Just tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton or mixed goods. For fifty-one years millions of women have been using "Diamond Dyes" to add years of wear to their old, shabby waists, skirts, dresses, coats, sweaters, stockings, draperies, hangings, everything!

ENTERTAINS FOR BRIDE

Mrs. C. B. Brewer was hostess at a charming informal affair Thursday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock honoring Mrs. Neal Smith, a recent bride of Atlanta Ga. The rose and green color scheme was displayed in every detail, the decorations were bright red roses and sweet peas in ivory and crystal baskets. All enjoyed the diversion of serving, and in an interesting contest which was "A Trip Thru Texas" Mrs. French Murphey was presented with a bunch of American Beauty roses and the honoree with a piece of handpainted china and a corsage of sweet peas. A two course luncheon was served consisting of wafers, tea, olives, sandwiches, chicken salad, ice cream, angel food cake and mints. Sweet peas tied with green maline were the chosen blossoms adorning each plate. Those enjoying this hospitality were from the Cox Apartments, where the bride is to live soon, and a few additional friends. Out of town guests were Mrs. Lawrence Clark and Mrs. Fred Ryan of Bisbee, Ariz., Mrs. Allan Kaufman of Detroit, Mich. The hostess was assisted during the afternoon by Mrs. Ben McElroy.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS

The members of the Christian Endeavor of the First Christian church held their first monthly missionary meeting Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. G. Higgins.

Following the consecration and devotional services, pamphlets were read and illustrative pictures shown that pertained to the need of social service at home and abroad. The lesson was very impressive and inspiring.

After the adjournment, Mrs. Higgins became the hostess and was a most charming one, as she always proves to be, and produced the prevalence of geniality and happiness during the entire afternoon. Delicious refreshments were served.

When all departed at 5 o'clock they felt that they indeed profited by their work in this service.

Senator Willis, of Newberry resolution fame, says business is delayed in the senate due to a group of "gentlemen intoxicated by the exuberance of their own verbosity." Calm yourself, senator; we know some who have a better opinion of themselves than that.

CARD FROM MR. ROBERTS

We wish to thank our friends for the many kindly words of gratulation and expressions of interest in our narrow escape from loss by fire when our shop and store so nearly went up in smoke Friday night. We also thank the Volunteer Fire Company for their prompt response to the alarm, and especially do we thank Mr. Julius Eichel for his suppressing the conflagration with his fire extinguisher.
