PEANUTS WILL PROVE GOOD CROP THIS YEAR

The following letter was received from Benthall Machine Company of Suffolk, Va., by the Rural Development Committee of the Nacogdoches Chamber of Commerce:

Dear Sirs:

I take it that you are interested in the farmers of your section, and in order to put before you the proper information with reference to peanuts I have placed your names on a list handed to the publishers of the Peanut Journal, and they will mail you the April number. In addition to this I will mail you, from time to time, while my direct-by-mail advertising campaign is on, some literature which I believe will interest you.

From the present outlook I do not know of any crop that has the earmarks of being as profitable as peanuts, for the reason that the 1922 crop has practically been used up at high prices, and the conclusion to arrive at is that the 1923 crop is going to be in good demand at profitable prices. This condition is likely to continue, as the tariff on peanuts prevents importation from foreign countries, and there is a constantly increasing demand from year to year. Several live advertising campaigns are being put on to put peanuts and peanut products on the shelves of every grocery store in the country; so there seems to be no immediate danger of over-production.

The continually increasing demand for extra large shelled peanuts has caused the growers of Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee to plant the large variety almost exclusively. They are planting practically no Spanish. A man who is familiar with the peanut market told me the other day that he believed Spanish will go to 15c a pound another year.

Yours very truly,

C. A. SHOOP,
Secretary & Treasurer.

SAYS TEXTBOOK BILL VIOLATES CONSTITUTION

Austin, Texas, April 4.—Governor Neff late yesterday afternoon announced his veto of six bills passed by the regular session of the Thirty-eighth legislature. The most important of these measures was the bill known as the Pope textbook bill. In vetoing this measure the governor advanced his reasons for placing his stamp of disapproval on it. The governor gave out the following statement:

"House bill No. 168, which seeks to cancel and hold for naught the contracts heretofore made by the textbook commission for the purchase of free textbooks for the children of Texas, is hereby vetoed for the following good and sufficient reasons:

"1. Because the bill is in violation of Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution of the United States, which provides that no state shall pass any ex post facto law or law impairing the obligation of contracts."

Violates Constitution
"2. Because the bill is in violation of Article 1, Section 16, of the constitution of the state of Texas, which provides that no ex post facto law, or any other law impairing the obligation of contracts, shall be made."

"In violation of each of the above quoted constitutional provisions, this bill operates backward in an effort to cancel a contract made in good faith and previous to its enactment. In other words, a legislative act, this bill, passed in 1923, purports to impair the obligation of a valid and binding contract made for the purchase of school books for the children of Texas, made in 1922, which the constitution of both the nation and the state unquestionably will not permit.

"Court decisions, both state and federal, are numerous, holding that the legislature has no authority to pass a law impairing the obligation of a contract made by and between a duly authorized agent of the state and another contracting party."

KU KLUX KLAN HEADS IN FIGHT FOR CONTROL

Atlanta, Ga., April 4.—Sheriff Lowery of Fulton county, with a force of deputies, early today took charge of the imperial palace and headquarters of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan under an order signed by Judge Thomas dispossessing W. J. Simmons, imperial emperor, who took charge of the headquarters yesterday under a temporary injunction secured against Imperial Wizard H. W. Evans. The order today directed Simmons and other plaintiffs to appear for a hearing before Judge Thomas this afternoon to show cause why the temporary injunction against Evans and other officials of the Klan should not be dissolved. This court action follows a break between Klan officials over the organization of a women's order on the lines of the Ku Klux Klan.

OIL PROMOTERS ARRESTED

Fort Worth, Texas, April 4.—Twenty-two men, alleged to have used the mails to defraud in promoting projects, have been arrested or have surrendered at the federal building. Each was arraigned before the United States Commissioners and placed under bond to await the next move of the federal government. Two who gave bond today were L. G. Reynolds, trustee of the Hog Creek Company, and Porter Oakes, listed as an official in the Reverse Oil Company. Reynolds was placed under $20,000 bond and Oakes under $5,000.

DISPOSED OF BILLS

Austin, Texas, April 4.—Governor Neff has vetoed two of the remaining legislative measures before him, approved four and filed 12 others to become laws without his signature. Those approved included the nurses' licensing bill, an act amending the employees' liability law, the sheriff's fee bill and the county commissioners' salary bill. All the measures were acted upon before midnight last night, the latest time in which he could act.

Cecil Thomas, who for about a year has been day clerk at the Redland Hotel in this city, severed his connection therewith on Monday and will seek other employment. Cecil made himself very popular with the traveling public, and his absence from the desk will be noted and regretted. Good luck to him wherever he goes.

THE GOVERNOR'S TWELFTH VETO

Houston Post.

Governor Neff's veto of the bill creating the eleventh court of civil appeals is his twelfth veto of this character, and the only one that is effective. This is effective for the simple reason that it comes when the legislature is not in session to override it, which the "court bloc" would have done had the veto been returned to the legislature.

The governor describes the court program in the legislature as "a seeming legislative mania for creating new courts that are not needed." In the view of The Post, this is hardly an accurate description of the legislative mind.

If each of the court bills had been compelled to stand alone before the legislature on its merits, it is doubtful that one of them would have passed. Certainly not one would have passed over an executive veto. Instead of a "legislative mania," which in some cases conceivably might be accredited with good and patriotic intentions, it was the "court bloc" system that achieved the absurd and unnecessary additions to the judicial system that were put over.

The members who had court bills, realizing the impossibility of getting the bills through on their respective merits, made common cause and thus mustered enough strength to control the situation, executive disapproval to the contrary notwithstanding.

This form of logrolling is deficient both in wisdom and morals, and if it is to become a permanent feature in legislation in congress and state legislatures, there will be no limit to the extravagance and corruption it will lead to. The public service everywhere is being loaded with unnecessary officers and sinecures, and the danger is that we are building up a ruling class in this country that is not of the common people. Experience has shown that the abolition of useless offices is next to impossible, for the simple reason that politicians naturally dislike to diminish the chances of preferment.

It is peculiarly unfortunate that this new evil of legislation, the "bloc" system, should have been introduced in Texas in connection with the judiciary, the department of the government which should always be shielded by the people's respect and confidence.

What is needed in Texas is a measure of judicial reform that would abolish unnecessary courts and reorganize the system upon a basis that might exact of each court a reasonable amount of work. Then the statutes should be cleared of a multitude of vicious litigation-breeding laws, that were enacted for no higher purpose than to encourage litigation.

The leaders of the Texas bar ought to array themselves strongly against some of the present tendencies in our judicial system. If courts are to be created to supply places for aspiring lawyers and laws are to be enacted to breed litigation for the benefit of a profession now numbering six or seven thousand in Texas, government is not headed in the right direction.

The Post knows that the great majority of the Texas lawyers are high-minded and patriotic men, and that the abuses which are creeping into our judicial system are not of their making. But The Post is not sure they are as active as they ought to be in protecting the judiciary and their profession against the activities of mercenaries, political and otherwise.

TROUBLE IN KLAN

Atlanta, Ga., April 3.—An injunction temporarily placing William Joseph Simmons in complete authority over the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan was signed late yesterday by Judge Thomas of the Fulton Superior Court, it was learned today. This prevents the disbursement of any money except on his order.

TEXAS BOY ADVANCING

Austin, Texas, April 3.—News has just been received of the appointment of W. H. Mayes, Jr., son of Prof. W. H. Mayes, of the department of journalism of the University of Texas, as advertising and publicity manager for the National City Bank of New York. He is a former student of the University of Texas, and has been in the publicity department of the National City Bank of New York continually since 1919, when he was discharged from the navy, after serving as yeoman during the World War.

ADDITIONAL KILLINGS CHARGED TO NEGRO

Waco, Texas, April 4.—The McLennan County grand jury late Monday afternoon returned three more indictments against Roy Mitchell, negro, convicted and given the death sentence in five different murder cases in the past two weeks.

The indictments charge Mitchell with the murder of W. H. Barker, his wife, Mrs. Lala Barker, and 13-year-old Homer Turk at Concord, in February of last year. Barker was shot and his wife and the Turk boy had their heads split open with an ax.

Two other negroes had made alleged confessions regarding the triple killing and were convicted. One is serving a life sentence and the other was sentenced to death, his case affirmed by the higher courts.

The present grand jury has returned a total of 16 indictments against Mitchell, eight of which charged murder.

BUSINESS SUSPENDED FOR EX-GOVERNOR'S FUNERAL

Palestine, Texas, April 4.—Business here will be suspended between 3 and 4 o'clock this afternoon for the funeral of former Governor Thomas M. Campbell. The services will be conducted by Dr. J. C. Oehler of the First Presbyterian church. Scores of men prominent in all walks of Texas life are expected to attend.

State Departments Close
Austin, Texas, April 4.—All state departments closed at 3 o'clock out of respect for former Governor Campbell. Governor Neff was unable to leave Austin for the funeral.

EASTERN TEXAS PRESBYTERIAL

The sixtieth annual session of the Eastern Texas Presbyterial Auxiliary will be held in the First Presbyterian Church at Trinity, Texas, on April 4-6. Representatives are expected from all the local auxiliaries of the Presbyterial churches in the eighteen counties included in the Eastern Texas Presbyterial.

The theme of the meeting will be "Our Responsibility," based on the Scripture passage, "We are laborers together with God," 1 Corinthians 3:9.

The address of welcome will be given by the Trinity auxiliary, with a response by the Nacogdoches auxiliary. Reports showing the progress made during the past year will be made by officers and by the secretaries of the causes which represent the objectives of the women's work. A demonstration of the different phases of the auxiliary organization will be presented in a Model Executive Board Meeting, a Model Circle Meeting, a Model Business Meeting, and a Model Inspirational Meeting.

Other special features of the program will be the addresses made by prominent visiting speakers. Dr. Brooks I. Dickey of Dallas will make an address on the Presbyterian Progressive Program is a relates to the work in Texas. Miss Stella Hovey of Fort Worth, who has recently completed a course in the Assembly Training School at Richmond, Va., will give the devotional talks on "Our Responsibility—What It Is, and How Fulfilled." Miss Charlotte Jackson of Louisville, Ky., who is a Life Work Secretary of the committee of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief will discuss the work among young people. Miss Margaret Angus will tell of her experience of a Sunday-school missionary in the needy fields of East Texas. Mrs. C. W. Chambers will bring a message from the Alabama Indians of Polk County, among whom she and her husband have labored for twenty years. Rev. W. F. Junkin of Sutsien, China, will tell of the needs on the other side of the world, and the appeal of the orphans in our own state will be presented by Mr. J. E. Watts, president of the Orphans' Home at Files Valley, Texas. The annual message from the president of the Synodical Auxiliary will be given by Mrs. J. L. Brock of Bryan.

REMARKABLE FLIGHT ENDED

Washington, April 3.—Six army airplanes arrived at Bolling Field here today, concluding a circuit of more than 6,000 miles from San Antonio to Porto Rico and return to Washington. It was officially recorded by the War Department as one of the most remarkable pioneer flights in the history of aviation.

DIED AT APPLEBY

Childress, at Appleby, and was buried there on Friday.

CHURCHMAN IS EXECUTED

Moscow, April 3.—Vicar General Butchkayevich of the Roman Catholic Church of Russia has been executed. The newspaper Pravda says the execution occurred on March 31. He met his death before a firing squad, the time and place not given. He was sentenced to death on March 26th after having been found guilty of opposing the soviet government.

PREPARE FOR COMING LEGISLATIVE SESSION

Austin, Texas, April 3.—Messages notifying members of legislative committees of the calling of a special session on April 16th were sent by the governor to the chairmen of the appropriations, finance and other committees scheduled to come here and begin work immediately on the preparation of measures to be submitted. The formal proclamation has not yet been issued.

NOTED OUTLAW DEAD

Coffeyville, Kas., April 3.—Albert Conner, noted Kansas and Oklahoma outlaw, died in jail here this morning. He was shot by Robert Spriggs, a former service man, when he attempted to hold up a grocery store on March 24th.

LAW FOR AUTOMOBILISTS

Effectual statutory regulations of motor vehicle traffic is admittedly a difficult problem. But as it engages the attention of lawmakers and the public in virtually all states it may be assumed that in time a satisfactory solution will be found. One recent suggestion is that the federal government take over the general control of automobile operation, paying to the several states their due proportion of fees collected based on the number of machines owned within their respective borders.

It is argued that touring and the reciprocal recognition of one state's license by other states makes the automobile an interstate vehicle and that congress therefore reasonably may assume jurisdiction over them all. Whatever merit there may be in this, it is outweighed by other considerations. Further extension of federal jurisdiction over matters that are peculiarly within the police powers of the states is undesirable. But the most serious objection is that there is no ground for belief that congress is capable of making more satisfactory regulations for the country as a whole than the states can make each one for itself.

Many of the state legislatures now in session are wrestling with bills designed to afford additional protection to the public against dangers flowing from reckless driving. Some are meritorious while others are of doubtful utility. One before the Massachusetts house is wholly commendable on general principles. It provides that every automobile owner in Massachusetts shall take out liability insurance in the sum of $5,000 or file a bond for $5,000 with the registrar of motor vehicles as security to the public for personal injuries and property damage caused by such vehicle.

A Pennsylvania senator has introduced a bill to prohibit the sale of automobiles in his state that are geared for a speed faster than 35 miles an hour. The purpose is laudable but it is by no means certain the results would be all that the author imagines. It might make for more recklessness than it curbed. The law that will be truly protective must have for its object preventing unqualified persons from operating automobiles. Is it impossible to draft such a measure?

Every Day in Every Way

We are making it worse and worse for hard times

Nacogdoches State Bank

NORTH AND SOUTH AMERICA

One of the most striking things about the Pan-American conference is that it has virtually, no past. True, there is a record of four previous conferences, but each of these looked to the future, planning to the same large goal; there was nothing to be undone and everything to be accomplished.

This condition is the foundation of the important program planned for the delegates of the American republics when they meet soon in Santiago. It is possible to take almost any section of that program and read into it a great chapter of future history. Section V deals with transportation, ocean, railroad and motor; with aircraft; and with wireless communication. Considering only one of these, the promised discussion of policy, laws, and regulations concerning commercial aircraft; the advisability of an international technical commission on the location of standard landing places; the determination of aerial routes and the formulation of special customs procedure for aircraft, who can deny that in the assumption of neighborliness inseparable from such suggestions lies the great secret of future Pan-American relations?

Already there has been discussions of a New York-Buenos Aires aircraft line and without question this and others will annihilate time and distance so quickly that the next generation will view with amazement the apparent separation of the two continents of this day through natural obstacles and distance. Americans and Canadians, through geographical proximity, have become very good neighbors, with an understanding whose greatest symbol is that long, unguarded boundary line. Latin Americans in the future will be as close, through the development of aircraft and through radio progress, as are the Canadians today.

Truly it is fitting that the delegates should address themselves to the task of regulating this traffic with the confidence that tomorrow it will exist. But most significant of all is the spirit behind the discussion, a spirit that takes for granted a continuing state of friendliness, without which all such preparations would be futile.

RANK EXTRAVAGANCE

In setting forth his reasons for vetoing the bill creating the Eleventh Court of Civil Appeals at Abilene, Governor Neff said:

"I file herewith, together with my veto, senate bill No. 244, against a seeming legislative mania for creating new courts, that are not needed. I enter this, my twelfth veto, and disapproval. We have had for years in Texas too many courts. Instead of creating new courts a considerable number of those we now have should be abolished. The new courts created by the last legislature will cost the taxpayers of Texas approximately a quarter of a million dollars annually. While our new courts, with their attendant officers, are spending this money, a majority of the old courts, if we judge the future by the past, will be idle half the time. This large annual cost will be a constant burden to the people because when a court or an office of any kind has once been created it seems almost impossible to ever get rid of it.

"The bill herewith vetoed provides for the eleventh court of civil appeals, the legislature having recently passed over my veto, as it did many other court bills, a bill creating the tenth court of civil appeals. We have had for years in Texas nine courts of civil appeals, composed of three judges each. As long as those twenty-seven judges work only nine months in the years, as they do now, and as long as they render decisions on less than one case per week per judge, as they do now, according to records furnished me, I shall not add my name in approval to a bill creating another similar court. There is no excuse, viewed from many angles, for all of the courts created by the last legislature. I, therefore, again, and for the twelfth time, herewith file my protest against such a foolish and fruitless expenditure of the people's money. You will, therefore, file this bill, together with this, my veto, in your office as provided by law."

The Sentinel adds its hearty endorsement to the above statement from Governor Neff.

The great body of plain, sensible people are unquestionably with the governor in his courageous stand against further or increased judicial extravagance in the form of court idleness.

The sentiment voiced in our columns yesterday by W. H. Gray of Chireno, indicates clearly how our best informed and straight-thinking people feel about this whole issue.

As an example of the inexcusable extravagance of the courts, take the case of the negro murderer, Roy Mitchell, at Waco. He has already been given four death sentences, and probably deserves death for his hideous crimes. What was the use of more than one capital sentence? He can be hanged but once, and it is reasonable to suppose he will be as dead after one hanging as if the other sentences had not been passed upon him. At least the editor of the Sentinel, if he were present, probably would lose all interest in the affair after the first hanging. The additional unnecessary trials will pile up huge court costs, which may be good for the court officials, but rather bad for the already overburdened taxpayers.

HUMILIATING

While there may be sympathy for Secretary of State Hughes and Acting Secretary Roosevelt of the navy because of their having been misinformed, it nevertheless is humiliating to the country that officers of such high rank were put in the position before the world of having to confess to loose talking.

In an address at New Haven in December of last year Secretary Hughes stated that substantial alterations had been effected in British capital ships, these being of a nature to increase their range and defensive armament. Later Acting Secretary Roosevelt made a similar statement at a hearing before a committee of Congress. As the British ships in question are included in the navy treaty growing out of the Washington arms conference, the preceding statements obviously were of a serious character, giving the impression that Great Britain was not playing fair. It was inevitable that the British would be heard from.

The rest of the story is told by the issuance of statements by Secretary Hughes and Acting Secretary Roosevelt "correcting" their previous statements, to the end that there should be no public misapprehension. Each accepts the statement by Great Britain that no changes have been made in her capital ships since the signing of the Washington treaty.

This should have its effects on those given to loose talking.

DR. VINSON RESIGNS

Rusk County News.

Dr. Vinson should be commended for giving up the presidency of the University in order to accept the same office in another institution in another state. He goes to a well established institution, free from political control, and one that is very handsomely endowed. Dr. Vinson, by birth, training and education, is a high type of man. He is absolutely free of cant and hypocrisy, and is too big a man to resort to political log-rolling. Nothing as often goes on about Austin. Nothing was more distasteful to him than playing on the appropriation strings that entwine about the legislature. It never entered his mind that it should be the duty of the president of a great university to lobby around the state capitol for funds to support the state's own creature. Dr. Vinson is a gentleman. He is a man of dignity, a fine scholar and a profound thinker. He possesses all the attributes that go to make up a great man. No one can associate with him and come in close contact with him without feeling the influence of his noble character. No one has sat in the president's chair of the University previous to Dr. Vinson who has measured up to his standard of a man. He has left an enduring impress upon his state in the minds and hearts of thousands of Texas boys and girls. His going away is a signal loss to the University and his place will be hard to fill.

LIVING COSTS HIGHER

It cost 11 percent more to live in February, 1923, than in the same month a year ago, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor. Foods, drugs, medicines and chemicals, and furnishings for the home showed considerable gains, and cloths and clothing increased 14-14 percent. Fuel and lighting were 11 percent higher in February this year than in February, 1922.

Metals and metal products were 26 1-4 percent and building materials 23 percent above the levels they attained in February, 1922. These are commodities on which the Fordney-McCumber profiteers' tariff law imposed rather heavy duties.

Farmers have to buy cloths and clothing, which are up 14 1-4 percent; tools, wire, hardware, implements, and vehicles, which reflect some 26 1-4 percent of the new tariff; drugs, chemicals, paints and oils, which have risen all the way from 5 to 20 percent, and lumber, fence posts, shingles and furniture, which have jumped 23 percent.

While the farmer is paying these large increases for what he consumes; that is, for commodities which take about two-thirds of his outlay for his family and his farm, the products which he has for sale have increased in price only about 8 percent.

The Bank of England has its own well, which is 400 feet deep.

BERNHARDT PASSES

From the Houston Chronicle.

A child once more, curled in her bed; not with that posed elegance she knew so well how to assume, but according to the dictates of pain; crying to the omnipotent for relief with the same pitiful helplessness that a babe implores its mother; playing a more pathetic part in the real than ever on the stage; the Divine Sarah makes her final exit.

Let us forget this picture, for, after all, it is but an incident, and turn to the beautiful, stirring memories she leaves. Game to the last, she fought to make one final picture for the world-wide audience she had learned, first to entertain and then to love. Her courage was that of the true artist, her pride that of the pure genius.

For sixty years she has been the favorite of dramatists and drama lovers, but not without earning the right to such distinction. A long, long reign, equalled by few who were born to greatness, and by fewer still who had to achieve it.

What has she given the world in recompense for her fame?

She has made millions weep and other millions laugh. She has taken millions out of themselves, albeit for a moment, and helped them to think in those larger terms of humanity. She has helped draw the veil aside which separates the individual from society. She has contributed something in the breaking up of that provincialism, both of place and time, which is still the barrier to peace.

She has let the peasant behold the strutting king and the king behold the crushed peasant. She has opened up the channels of history for the minds of those who would accept their challenge. An imitator of the genuine, she has brought the genuine to our attention in ways that would have been impossible but for her art. She has laid human character bare in all its dominant phases—human character that never changes, but that remains the most perplexing problem of us benighted humans.

She was one of those figures who lifted the stage beyond the realm of amusement and made it a vehicle of education, of culture, of refinement, of wisdom.

She was one of those rare beings, who, by virtue of their personality, can lift any art, any trade, any profession out of its specialized sphere and make it serve all needs. She belongs among the great poets, great sculptors, great painters, great discoverers, great inventors, of all ages.

Her triumph was such as to break down the ramparts of a nationality and language and command the respect of the civilized world. Leaving, a common heritage for all peoples, she has done her part in persuading all peoples to visualize their common interests.

From such characters, no matter what their calling, the world gradually learns that it is one family, with one problem—to live, to grow, to improve, to surmount the obstacles of ignorance and selfish emotion.

THE FARMER AND RADIO

The United States Department of Agriculture has just completed a survey to determine the use that is made of the radio. Nearly 50 per cent of the returns to an inquiry sent out by the radio were from farmers. The radio seems to have developed more rapidly in the Middle West than in other farm sections of the country; for many farmers in that section own radio equipment. At other sections farmers concentrate at central points to get the radio reports, but an increasing disposition towards the installation of sets for private use is indicated. The survey shows that there are few places in rural districts where people congregate in even small groups that are without the benefit of radio. There is no doubt but the radio is doing much to develop the true community spirit, which has a decided influence on agricultural prosperity.—Progressive Farmer.

DEMOCRACY DEFINED.

The following is a seventy-word summary up on Democracy by Hon. Cordell Hull, chairman of the Democratic National Committee:

"Rule by the people; liberty and justice to every individual; equality of opportunity; no special privileges; social and industrial justice; espousal of liberal progressive thought; sound constructive domestic and world policies—political, economic and social; rigid economy and taxation according to ability; local self government; meeting responsibilities in world affairs; political honesty; efficient public service free from corruption; honest civil service; constant regard for welfare of masses—for the human as well as the material side."

EASTER

Easter! What a happy circumstance that the anniversary of the resurrection should come in the springtime of the year, when all nature joins in proclaiming that "Life is ever lord of death."

Wise were they who ordained that the observance should take the place of the old-time festivals of the spring season, adding the hope of life eternal to popular rejoicing in the warm warmth of the sun, the beauty of the reborn earth and the promise of another season of bountiful crops, creature comforts and outdoor pleasures.

Even as Christ arose from the tomb on Easter morning, so did the plants break through their wintry graves and the blossoms throw off their shrouds and shine forth in beauty. The whole earth breathes energy afresh and rejoices in the promise of new life after the dark, cold, death-like months of the winter season. Even man beds himself with new clothing and surrounds himself with flowers symbolic of the occasion and of the season.

It is the happiest, brightest, best day of the year—is Easter—not even excepting Christmas.

EAST IS EAST

The average Occidental is content to regard the Orient as an interesting but oddly peopled place. The language alone, it is suggested, requires an art training to be able to set it down, and the 40,000 symbols of the Chinese alphabet virtually forbid any but the most enthusiastic of students from attempting to master it.

This is all very true. The Chinese alphabet was a life-time study. Observe the past tense. Today the 40,000 symbols are reduced to 40, which is less than twice the number of symbols used in English speech.

This revolution has been accomplished simply by an industrious American typesetting machine manufacturer who succeeded in reducing the symbols to the number convenient for modern type-setting equipment to handle. The next step is a typewriter. And the next the elimination from the Chinese mind of the 39,960 symbols. And that probably will be as difficult to do as it was for the foreigners to learn them.

As spring approaches each year, we always wonder how Noah refrained from using the two fish worms.

Center Champion, 28th.

Reports reaching this office this morning state that the streams of the county are "rising". Jim Patrick of Nacogdoches is water bound here, being in a car. He could not cross the river Sunday and cannot now get back to Nacogdoches in his car on account of the crossing on the Attoyac. A telephone message from that crossing at Grigsby at 11 o'clock today states that the temporary bridge is still holding but that both ends are floating and the river rising. It is not expected that any material damage on account of the overflows will result.

ATHLETIC COACH FOUND DEAD

Alto Herald, 29th.

Lying face downward in mud and water, the body of A. V. Vice, athletic coach of the Alexander College at Jacksonville, was found dead Tuesday night about 6 o'clock on the college campus. Mr. Vice had just left the girls' dormitory, where he had eaten supper, and was on his way to the boys' dormitory, where he and his wife had rooms. Some of the boys had walked over from the girls' dormitory with Mr. Vice, but he had stopped to gather some kindling, the boys going on in, and it was about fifteen minutes later that some other boys were returning from supper and these found the body of Mr. Vice.

This was Mr. Vice's first year at Jacksonville College, he going from Lufkin there, and during the short time he had been with the A. C. College he had built up a very successful football and basketball team, and was preparing a baseball team for the school, several successful games having already been played.

Mr. Vice had visited Alto several times, and his quiet and gentlemanly manner had made him many friends during his brief stay in our city. He was married, Mrs. Vice being a teacher in one of the Jacksonville schools. The remains were shipped to Lone Oak, it being his former home.

The Governor, the legislature and a number of private gentlemen have been trying to figure out why the penitentiary farms will not pay. If they would consult half a dozen sensible farmers of this state they could find out in two or three minutes.—Rusk County News.

SOME TELEPHONE RULES

Here are some telephone rules that might be posted in any business, office or home:

- 1 Answer the telephone immediately and if you are not the person wanted, get the right party at once. If he is out of the office, offer to take the message.
- 2 Eliminate waste words by saying "..... speaking" and then further announce the name of your department or company.
- 3 Always have a pad and pencil ready.
- 4 Speak politely. Put a smile in your tones; don't try to impress the caller with your importance or attempt to make him think you are fearfully busy.
- 5 Keep your lips one-half inch from the mouthpiece of the instrument. If cut off, don't jiggle the hook to recall the operator, but move it up and down slowly.
- 6 It is aggravating to the average individual to be called to the telephone and then to be told to "hold the wire". If there is any waiting to be done, it is the caller's obligation to do it.
- 7 Do not use the telephone longer than necessary; other people may want to reach you.
- 8 Report any of your telephone troubles to your local company, because every company wants you to have the best service it can provide.

START MOSQUITO CAMPAIGN

Dr. R. C. Hollingsworth of Coleman, connected with the State Board of Health, and Mr. Carl Martin of Jacksonville, sanitary engineer working under the jurisdiction of the health department, were in the city Thursday for the purpose of launching a campaign for the elimination of the mosquito menace from this city. They began with locating the breeding places of the insect as shown by a blueprint made some time ago from a survey of the city and its environs, and are making preliminary plans for the regular campaign which will begin early next week. The visitors are being ably assisted by Dr. C. D. Atwell of the local Red Cross, which organization will supply a considerable portion of the funds necessary to prosecute the campaign. The city will also bear part of the expense. Every citizen who shares the health of the community should lend his hand to the campaign.

A MILLION LINE ROUTE AT BERNHARDT FUNERAL

Paris March 29.—Paris paused today to pay a final tribute to Sarah Bernhardt. Crowds gathered at the church of St. Francois de Sales for the services. The body rested in the rosewood casket she ordered made 80 years ago. The ceremony at the church was simple, in accordance with her wishes, and there were no eulogies. After the ceremony at the church the coffin was placed in a hearse, covered with flowers and conveyed to the tomb, followed by five floats, each bearing flowers ten to a dozen feet high. The police estimated that at least a million people gathered along the route of the funeral procession.

S. W. BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY REPORTS GROWTH

Dallas, Texas, March 29.—A review of the financial operations of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company for the year ending December 31, 1922, shows progress along lines considered constructive by directors of the company, according to the recent annual report made to the stockholders by the directors. The company operates toll lines and 673,202 exchange telephones in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas, serving a territory with a population of 13,617,000 people. The area served covers 17 percent of the area of the United States, is a growing territory, rich in basic necessities of wheat, cotton, corn, oil, lead and zinc, as stated in the annual report. "During the past year $11,759,699 was spent for plant extensions, and plans are being made for an expenditure of $13,700,000 for the year 1923." The report shows that during 1922, there were added 42,930 stations and the estimated gain in stations for 1923 has been set at 45,000. A marked increase in efficiency of the operating force is also noted by the report.

FORMER DISTRICT ATTORNEY ASSASSINATED FROM AMBUSH

Fort Worth, Tex., March 29.—Joe C. Randall, 42, former district attorney at Hamlin, died this morning, according to word received here. He was shot from ambush late yesterday while passing through a cedar brake returning to Hamlin north of Hamlin. He had been attending court at Aspermont and was returning to Hamlin with Virgil Clark, C. T. Clark and S. P. Rudder. Posses are seeking the person who fired the shots.

Randall was an innocent victim, according to officers who believe that a bootlegger's bullet was intended for a state witness in a liquor suit. He died in a hospital at Stamford without regaining consciousness. Two of his companions were state witnesses in a liquor case. The fatal shooting occurred in the Brazos bottoms, known to be infested with bootleggers and the scene of many whiskey raids. Search for the assassin continued today. Randall is survived by his wife and two children.

ABSENTEE VOTING BILL IN SENATE

Austin, Texas, March 29.—The McMillin absentee voting bill passed by the recent legislature was signed by Governor Neff yesterday. The bill extends absentee voting privileges to Texans living outside of the state and to general and special elections, as well as primary elections. The bill excludes foreigners from voting even though they may have declared intention of becoming citizens. Among other measures approved was the Dunn bill exempting veterans of the world war from paying fees, dues and other charges except clothing and board at state educational institutions. It is estimated that it will save to Texas former service men several thousand dollars annually. Other bills signed were: Protecting hotels from fraud by checks. Authorizing district judges to hold special terms of court. Requiring notice of change of state bank from guaranty fund.

NEGRO'S FIFTH TRIAL ON CAPITAL CHARGE

Waco, Texas, March 30.—Roy Mitchell, negro, went to trial today for the fifth time in two weeks, charged with killing Harrell Bolton, a prominent young man of Waco, on a road east of here on May 25th, last. After Bolton was slain, his young woman companion was mistreated. Another negro, identified by Bolton's companion as her assailant, was shot dead by her father and his body burned by a mob. Mitchell is under death sentence in connection with four other cases for which he was tried. Mitchell pleaded not guilty and a jury was selected in an hour and thirty-five minutes. A Waco jeweler identified a watch as the one he sold Bolton. The watch was obtained from a negro in Detroit, Mitchell having stated that he sold it to a Detroit negro, according to officers.

POPULATION OF TEXAS SEVENTY-THREE YEARS AGO

The following story is full of interest and historic value. It came to our attention as a reprint, credited to that very versatile and yet unknown writer, "Selected." We congratulate him on his enterprise and commend the story to a reading and a pasting in the scrapbook:

The first census record for the State of Texas was the enumeration of 1850, the republic having been accepted as a State in 1845, at which time its total population was 212,592, or more than one square mile for each person enumerated. The city of New York that year had a few more than 50,000.

When Texas was admitted as a state in 1845 it claimed considerable territory not now within its confines. In 1850 it sold to the federal government for $10,000,000 all claimed outlying area which reduced it to the size shown by the present-day maps. The enumeration of 1850 (the first) was by no means complete. The country was thinly settled and the government facilities of seventy-three years ago were not as complete nor as carefully employed as today. Only twenty-three cities and their population were separately listed in the first census. They were Austin, 629; Bonham, 211; Castroville (Medina County), 366; Comalton, 286; Corpus Christi, 533; Crockett, 156; Eagle Pass (then in Bexar County), 383; Fredericksburg, 754; Galveston, 4,177; Hortontown (Comal County), 139; Houston, 2,396; Indianola, 379; Lavaca, 315; Marshall, 1,180; McKinney, 192; Nacogdoches 468; New Braunfels, 1,298; Palestine, 212; Richmond, 323; Rusk, 355; San Antonio, 3,488; Victoria, 806; and Zodiaca (Gillespie county), 160. Only eleven counties were listed, the largest being Harrison, with a population of 11,822, of whom 6,213 were slaves.

Only 15,034 of the people in 1850 were white. There were 397 free negroes and 58,161 slaves. The population for cities and towns include persons of all classes. Galveston had 678 slaves, Houston 527, Marshall 421, and San Antonio 220. Of the white population throughout the state 84,869 were males and 69,165 females. The persons of foreign birth were shown to be 17,620, of which 4,459 were Mexicans, 8,191 Germans, 1,403 Irish and 1,002 English. The greatest proportion of the native population came from Tennessee, Virginia, Georgia, North Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi and Kentucky.

The state had only two members of congress. The northern, or first district, embraced all of the territory north of a line running from a short distance above the southwest corner of Oklahoma in a semi-circle, including Tarrant and Dallas counties, and down the Trinity to the coast—some distance west of Galveston. The second district reached from the upper Panhandle to Brownsville including everything west of El Paso. The first members were David S. Kaufman of Sabintown and Timothy Pillsbury of Brazoria. Kaufman died January 31, 1851, and was succeeded by Richardson Scurry, of Clarksville, and Pillsbury was succeeded by Volney E. Howard of San Antonio.

The enumeration revealed there were only two schools listed as colleges with seven teachers and 105 pupils. The public schools numbered 349 with 360 teachers and 7,946 pupils, and the annual income of the schools was $44,088. There were 97 academies (and other schools) with 137 teachers and 3,389 pupils. There were 10,538 persons, including free negroes, who could not read and write. Under the classification of professions, 701 persons were listed as "blacksmiths and whitesmiths," 1,361 carpenters, 25,054 farmers, 107 boatmen, 8 fishermen, 44 hat and cap manufacturers, 155 innkeepers, 152 "rangers," and 11 sailmakers.

MANY FROM HERE AT THE RAMBIN-SIMPSON TRIAL

Attorneys A. A. Seale, Culbertson C. Denman, S. M. Adams, V. E. Middlebrook and County Judge A. T. Russell, together with more than one hundred witnesses from Nacogdoches county, went to Carthage Sunday where the trial of Alfred Simpson and Jesse Ramin was expected to begin Monday in Judge Charles Brannfield's court. District Attorney F. P. Marshall was unable to be present to assist in the prosecution, owing to the opening of District Court at Lufkin. Simpson and Ramin are under indictment for the murder of Dr. A. L. Parrish of Garrison, whose decomposed body was found in a lake on the Tom Peterson farm three miles south of Garrison early last summer. Dr. Parrish had been missing from his home for six weeks. Ramin and Dr. Parrish had been partners in a number of road-building contracts prior to the doctor's disappearance.

The pocketbook masher arrested for being too frisky was at least consistent. He frisked the cop.

OFFICIAL FIGURES SHOW CATTLE-DIPPING ACTIVITIES

Fort Worth, Texas, April 2.—Operations of tick eradication in Texas who declared in some of their arguments that tick eradication results in cattle loss were proved wrong late Wednesday by statistics received from the Bureau of Animal Industry at Washington by Dr. Harry Grafke. The report includes all individual reports sent in by field employees and shows that an average of less than four head of cattle lost each year for each million head of cattle dipped. Covering the calendar year of 1922, it is brought out that 72,129,958 dippings in the United States and that 282 head of cattle died as the result through the dipping vats.

Carried further, it is shown that 122 head of cattle were injured, that is two to 1,000,000 head of cattle dipped. The importance of Texas in the tick eradication campaign carried on by the Bureau of Animal Industry and the work of the Live Stock Sanitary Commission of Texas is indicated by the fact that during 1922 of the more than 72,000,000 dippings recorded more than 51,000,000 of these were in Texas. In exact figures 51,243,000 head of cattle were dipped or inspected in Texas during the year.

Of the total number of dippings in Texas, 114 head of cattle were killed by being dipped in the dipping vats and twelve head of cattle were injured.

Cattle dipped in Texas shows a curve of increase from January 1 to August 31, when the line begins to decline until December. The records for 1922 show 374,669 head of cattle dipped or inspected during January and increased each month until August, when 7,013,373 head of cattle passed through Texas dipping vats. This number represents the largest dipping activity in the history of tick eradication and shows a greater number of cattle dipping in Texas than in all other states in the fever tick area.

From month to month the cattle dipping records of Texas for 1922 are as follows: January 3,864,108; February, 3,785,537; March 890,856; April 3,864,108; May 6,293,964; June 6,523,344; July 6,783,503; August 7,013,373; September 6,132,743; October 6,125,962; November 4,978,516; December 2,068,586.

INGROWN TOE NAIL

Turns Out Itself

A noted authority says that a few drops of "Outgro" upon the skin surrounding the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so softens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless, antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

ROBBERS LOOT MAIL TRUCK ON BUSY ST. LOUIS STREET

St. Louis, Mo., April 2.—Five or six men, with saved-off shotguns, today held up a mail truck in the business section. They took a quantity of mail, including nine pouches of registered mail, locked the driver and messenger in the cage of the truck and made their escape. The truck was en route from the main postoffice to a substation. The mail was for delivery to large business firms, including banks, and brokerage houses, postal officials explained. The amount of money and valuables obtained by the robbers could not be ascertained until the registry records were checked. Postal inspectors stated that a reward of $2,000 would be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of each of the robbers.

GETS LONG SENTENCE

Hunt and Knott were employees of a chain-store system. They were held up about noon in the residence section on November 15th and about $3,000 taken.

After all, the best thing about the good old days is that they don't respond to an encore.

THOMAS MITCHELL CAMPBELL

Houston Chronicle.
The tidings of the passing of ex-Governor Campbell will carry sincere sorrow to many hearts in Texas.

He was a man who deserved, who made and who kept friends. Had not that been true he could not in 1906, when he had never held nor sought office, have won the nomination for governor over three opponents, all of whom had held high official positions, and two of whom, at least, were astute and resourceful politicians.

He discharged the duties of governor with conceded efficiency. He was a lawyer of ability and practical business man, a combination which admirably fitted him for the office of governor, and he left a record of service behind him which reflected great credit.

He was essentially an East Texan, and he well sustained the record of achievement set by many who like himself had come out of that realm so prolific of capable men.

He never forsook his native heath, but there abode till death called him.

The historic county of Cherokee enjoys the unique distinction of having furnished two native governors of Texas, the first having been James Stephen Hogg, between whom and "Tom" Campbell there existed an unbroken friendship, dating from their childhood days. Both left their impress upon the history and statutes of Texas, and the memories of both will be proudly cherished when their bones are dust.

The departed son and servant of Texas will "sleep the sleep that knows no breaking" amid the red hills of his native East Texas. The sod that rests above his pulseless breast will be bedewed by the tears of many who loved him, and the winds stealing through the swaying pines that sentinel his resting place will chant for him a ceaseless requiem.

HEADED TOWARD TEXAS

The "Textile World," a magazine devoted very largely to the cotton mill industry, says in its March 17 issue that out of nine new cotton mills recently established, seven of them are in Texas. This same magazine also states that out of 21 mills undergoing enlargement and improvement, two are in Texas.

Probably the most interesting bit of information concerning the textile mill industry that has come to light recently is contained in the report of a committee of business men named by Governor Thomas G. McLeod of South Carolina. This committee was created to study industrial conditions in South Carolina particularly to find out if that state was unfair to industrial enterprises. To get the real facts this committee was obliged to make a similar study of some other Southern states. The committee included Georgia, Alabama, and North Carolina in its studies.

In their investigations of North Carolina industrial conditions this committee found that the cotton mills in that state are largely owned by small stockholders, living in the communities where the mills are located.

A paragraph from the report follows:

"The small mill, locally owned, is an outstanding feature in the mill development of North Carolina and as these profits being locally owned have been reinvesting in new local mills," says the report. "We believe that this has been a material factor in the greater textile mill developments in North Carolina. The official reports and reports from the owners indicated that these smaller units have proven more uniformly profitable than the larger mill units in this state."

Why not a cotton mill for Nacogdoches?

It would mean employment for many people who are now idle, not from preference, but simply because there is no work offered them. Every idle man or woman in a community represents just so much economic loss. Conversely, every wage earner is a positive economic asset.

A cotton mill in Nacogdoches would pay a good dividend to the stockholders, and would spell opportunity for many people who have nothing more than the desire to work.

A cotton mill in Nacogdoches would pay in every way.

SOMETHING SAYS HE WON'T

When President Harding was fighting so determinedly for the unpopular ship subsidy project, there were regrets that such zeal and energy did not have a better cause. His proposition that the United States join the Permanent Court of International Justice is a cause worthy of his best, and there are indications that his mettle presently will be tested in connection with it.

Gossip from Washington has it that the smaller politicians, who party, concerned only for expediency, are urging him to abandon the project in the face of opposition from the isolationists. Such politicians would treat the proposal on no higher plane than ward politics. If all the "boys" are not for it, why risk a fight? The idea of fighting for principle is, of course, beyond them. It means nothing to them that the president has pointed out that his party is on record for a world court and that he believes it to be the duty of the United States to uphold the one now in existence. They think the executive could abandon such an issue with no more feeling than he might be expected to show in changing his mind on an applicant for a fourth-class postmastership.

Now is the time for the president to show some of that determination he exhibited in his fight for ship subsidy.

HONKING FOR HIS GIRL

Ohio State Journal.

A young man sat in his automobile in front of a young woman's home the other evening and honked loudly to announce his arrival. She did not appear at once and he honked and honked, keeping up the raucous solo until after what seemed like 15 minutes, the girl came out and got into the car with him and they drove away to the movie of wherever they were going.

Now, of course, this young man did not know it, but in the house just across the street was a woman desperately sick. Quiet and freedom from nerve irritation meant a great deal to her, perhaps her life. These nightly honkers, and their name is legion, are at best a good deal of nuisance to people who feel they have a right to reasonable quiet and sometimes, probably rather often, they are more than a nuisance, a positive peril. The interests of the outside public aside, it would be more courteous for a young man who is calling for a young woman to go to the door and ring the bell, like a civilized human being, than it is to sit in his automobile honking for her, like a bull calf standing at the bars and bawling for company. Some day, when we have space, we are going to write a succinct article of about a column and a half, entitled "Automobile Discourtesies."

JOE TAYLOR OFFERS INTERESTING COMMENT

The other day the Waco Times-Herald contained the following statistical matter about the telephone:

"The magnitude of the Bell Telephone System can perhaps be visualized by the statement that the Bell-owned companies alone, with 5,800 offices, serve some 9,000,000 stations, which make more than 11,000,000,000 calls a year. It is estimated that in 1940 there will probably be 25,000,000 telephones in the United States. The telephone buildings and land alone represent an investment of over $150,000,000."

This was reproduced in the State Press column of the Dallas News and the following comment appended:

"Something of the telephone company's magnitude may also be guessed from the fact that it is owned by more than 210,000 individuals. The telephone has been called the supreme invention. No other machine gives the world so much indispensable service. It annihilates distance in the twinkling of an eye and a child can use the annihilator. Distance has ever been the most stubborn of all impediments, and only the telephone has overcome it with a domesticated instrument. How modern is this immense utility may be proved by citing the recent death of the man who invented it: Alexander Graham Bell was not a very old man at the time of his death, and he was a mature scientist when he made the first successful experiment with his astonishing device. Such development as the telephone has had could have been possible only with the assisting sympathy and courage of the people it served. No ordinary corporation with a close-mouthed and restricted ownership, could have found the means to erect the gigantic organization with which all the American people are so familiar. It was only by taking the public into partnership, on the individual basis, that progress was found for this vast enterprise. In short the financial policy of the great telephone company appears to have been as enlightened as its product is essential."

The home of Mr. W. M. Byrne had a narrow escape from destruction when lightning struck during the storm Tuesday night. His telephone was put out of joint, his Delco light plan badly damaged and the house fired. Mrs. Byrne was thrown from her bed by the violence of the lightning, though not seriously injured. All the fuses of the light plant were burned out, three jars of battery broken and about 16 feet of copper wire melted. The dwelling was saved from total destruction by the fire originating from the electrical charge only by the hard kind of work.

LUMBER HAULERS WANTED—600,000 feet dry lumber, $4 per 1,000, nine-mile haul. Cash payday every two weeks. Would let contract for year to man having as many as 12 teams. W. C. Spurlin, Rt. 4, Nacogdoches, Texas. 2-3dwlp

COL. WORTHAM TALKS ON PAVING MATTERS

Col. Louis J. Wortham of Fort Worth is spending a few days here visiting the family of his son, William E. Wortham, and mingling with him Nacogdoches friends, who are legion. Col. Wortham is an editor by profession, a friend of Nacogdoches of preference and a true Southern gentleman by birth and training.

Few Texans of our day have enjoyed a broader acquaintance or a wider personal popularity than Colonel Wortham. His paper, the Fort Worth Star Telegram, has the largest circulation of any Texas newspaper. It is noted for its splendid news service and for its exceptionally strong editorial policy. In discussing the paving problem, Colonel Wortham said:

"My attention was first called to the excellence of bitulithic as a paving material when I spent almost a year in St. Louis, 1903 and 1904, in charge of the Texas exhibit at the centennial exposition. Every day I drove from the planter's Hotel to the exposition grounds over Lindell boulevard, which had just been paved with bitulithic. I have had occasion to drive over this particular street many times during the past 20 years, and I have noted its permanent wearing surface.

"You might be interested to know that, when the state of Texas provided for paving the grounds about the state capitol some years ago, that the appropriation for that purpose specified 'bitulithic'. The test of time and hard usage has justified the specification.

"While I was living at the Planter's in St. Louis a committee of business men from El Paso called on me, and explained that their mission was to inspect paving in a number of the larger cities. They visited Cleveland, Omaha, Kansas City and other places, and after returning home, reported in favor of bitulithic. El Paso has many miles of streets paved with this material. If you have traveled over this big country of ours very much you know that El Paso is counted one of the best paved cities anywhere.

"Fort Worth has profited by the experience of other cities where bitulithic has been used. The street in front of our plant in Fort Worth is paved with this material.

"In figuring on any pavement, remember that the pavement that does not stand up under heavy traffic is not worth its cost, however cheap that may be, and that the pavement that does stand up under severe traffic is worth more than its cost, however high that may be.

"I'm a property owner of your city. I am a firm believer in your future. I am a friend to every legitimate business and to every other worthy enterprise in your town.

"I believe in paved cities. They are better in every way and I'm making these observations purely for the good of the cause."

BIG GAIN MADE BY MRS. BOWERS

Reduced to 90 Pounds by Dengue Fever, She goes to 130 Upon Taking Tanlac.

Mrs. Cora E. Bowers, 3001 North St., Houston.

Houston St., Fort Worth, is another highly esteemed Texas woman to speak out in praise of Tanlac treatment. While discussing Tanlac which has been so beneficial to her, Mrs. Bowers said:

"Tanlac is such a grand, good medicine and has done so much for me that I am glad to make a statement to be used in letting others know about it.

"Last October I had a spell of dengue fever, which left me in such an awful nervous, weakened condition I couldn't walk without staggering. What little I would eat made me miserable with indigestion and sleep was almost out of the question with me.

"After taking three or four bottles of Tanlac, my appetite was better than it ever had been. My troubles all left me and I went up from ninety pounds to one hundred and thirty. In fact, Tanlac restored me to the best of health and my gratitude is unbounded."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 75 million bottles sold.

BRIBES AND SUBSIDIES

We heard a public speaker not long ago, refer darkly to the "subsidized press" and "corruption in high places" at Washington, and we wonder if there is any truth whatever in these frequent charges.

We have been in the service of the press since our boyhood days and we have never personally known of a reporter, editorial writer or publisher accepting money from a private individual or a corporation as the price of suppressing or falsifying the news. Such things have occurred, doubtless, but we think the general charge of a "subsidized press" is without foundation.

As to the bribery of government officials in Washington that, too, is probably a tradition not founded upon the truth.

Of course men are influenced by personal friendships, by party obligations and, perhaps, even by business associations, in Washington as well as elsewhere—in journalism as well as in agriculture. But when you hear some windy speaker back-biting the press and the government, you just ask him how he gets that way.—Farm Life.

BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION LAUNCHED

At a meeting of business men in the chamber of commerce rooms Monday afternoon final steps were taken in the organization of the Nacogdoches Building & Loan Association.

Those present were D. K. Cason, W. U. Perkins, W. F. Gintz, T. E. Baker, Robert Lindsey, L. B. Mast, Sam Stripling, Frank Sharp, John Schmidt, Dr. A. A. Nelson, Ben T. Wilson, Guy Blount and J. H. Buchanan.

D. K. Cason, who has been active in the movement to perfect this enterprise, was elected chairman.

The chair then called for a report from the committee named at a prior meeting to solicit stock subscriptions to the enterprise. This committee was composed of D. K. Cason, L. B. Mast, and Robert Lindsey. Mr. Lindsey reported that stock to the amount of $42,500 had been signed up. After some discussion, $2,000 was added to the list, making the total stock placed at $44,500.

The soliciting committee was asked to place the remaining $8,500 of stock at once. A number of the stockholders present stated they would increase their subscriptions if necessary to secure the $50,000 capital.

On motion of Robert Lindsey, the chair was authorized to name a committee of two stockholders present to nominate seven men for directors. Chairman Cason named John Schmidt and Sam Stripling on this committee. The committee retired and after careful consideration submitted the following nominations: D. K. Cason, T. E. Baker, L. B. Mast, F. S. Alkman, H. W. Whited, S. B. Hayter and J. Roy Gray.

The above-named stockholders were therefore unanimously elected to serve as a board of directors for the first year.

It is the intention of the board to meet at an early date to elect from the membership the necessary officers and to formulate a definite working plan of operation.

It is the expressed policy of this organization to give preference to those seeking loans for student boarding houses. With a capital of $50,000, it is believed that enough student homes can be built within the next six months to meet the requirements of the college on the opening date, September 18th.

The Nacogdoches Building & Loan Association will fill a real need in the development of the town. Those who have been active in its promotion and those who are subscribers to its stock have rendered and are rendering a genuine service to the community.

CANTATA AT METHODIST CHURCH

Apart from the religious appeal, which was inescapable, the Easter cantata at the Methodist church Sunday night was the greatest musical event in church circles that this city has seen in a long while. The audience which faced the singers was overwhelming, and entirely representative of every phase of the life of our beautiful and growing city. "The Resurrection Story," an Easter cantata, was the subject of this musical tour de force, and no better selection could have been made by Mr. Holland Smith that would set forth more perfectly the great story, and express the spirit of Easter when Jesus Christ, robed with victory, appeared to his wondering disciples.

After the brief opening prayer by the pastor of the church, the Rev. E. Gerard Cooke, the choir buried its opening chorus to the world, "Rejoice, the Lord is Risen." If there was the least hesitation with the audience in making up its mind about the merits of the choir, its confidence was at once established as the sweet notes poured forth from those eager lips, "Rejoice aloud ye people!" Miss Woolsey, who was chosen as Corypheus for the evening and led in most of the solos, rendered with fine feeling the first solo, "There is a Green Hill Far Away," the soft repetition at the close of "O dearly, dearly has He loved, and we must love Him too," was inimitable, being a little bit of her own gracious self. As the evening wore on her nerve and poise improved yet more and more until it seemed we were listening to a heart rather than a voice, and that voice was as glad as the spring. A quartette, "Late on the Sabbath Day," in which the well-known and truly appreciated voices of Mesdames Stegall and Sturdevant were more than ably sustained by those of Messrs. Beeson and Crawford, was a number that will be memorable. "Thou Sore Oppressed," a musical series with contralto, tenor solos and chorus by the choir, was a triumph. It is hard to say which was the more haunting melody—the recitativo of Miss Woolsey in this number, "Thou sore oppressed, the Sabbath rest in you still grave are keeping, All thy labor now is done, And past is all thy weeping," or the application of the lesson which the choir gave in its noble legato, "How calm and blest the dead now rest. Who in the Lord departed: All their works do follow them; They sleep, they sleep glad-hearted."

At this stage of the program the collection was taken and the pastor expressed his own and the church's regrets at the sickness of Mrs. Ambrose, another queen of song, a circumstance which kept her from being with her admiring companions.

Dr. Brown (both M. D. and D. D.) of New Orleans, a Presbyterian minister, gave by special request a fine gospel song.

The second half of the program now began with the bass of John Crawford, rich in itself, and giving strength to the sweet voices of Mesdames Sturdevant and Stegall, as the number "Awake, Glad Soul, Awake" reminded the audience that more precious things awaited. Mr. Beeson, as always, achieved much as he sang, with his fine tenor voice, the solo, "Christ, the Lord, is Risen Again." Mrs. Buchanan, Mrs. Ellis Gaston and Mrs. Sturdevant and Miss Woolsey, in "Morning's Rosy Hues," led the thought from the promise of the dawn to the pearly gates and golden floor of heaven, and the triumph of the Risen Christ.

Everyone will recall the manly, perfect tones and rich quality of John Crawford's voice when he led the recitativo, "Whosoever Believeth Shall Live," and was answered by Mrs. Greer Orton's soprano solo, both parts of the same musical complex and exquisitely lovely.

Messrs. Muller, Sturdevant, Beeson, and Crawford gave a beautiful interpretation to Edward Perronet's world famous "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name." The exact and melodious blending of the voices and the stately measures of the air suggested the surroundings of some vast cathedral, where, amid the "long drawn aisles and fretted court," the pealing anthem sounds the note of praise.

The programme, which was happily selected and excellently rendered, fittingly ended with the anthem, "Come, Ye Faithful," with its soprano solo led by Mrs. Forrest Gee in her dainty and lovely manner, and its tenor solo by Mr. Beeson, the whole choir joining in at proper intervals.

Much praise is due to Mrs. Millard for her offices of help at the organ and to Mr. Holland Smith for his similar service at the pianoforte. The major part of the praise is due to him, too, for training and directing the voices for this particular occasion. The help that Jim Summers gave on the violin was effective and beautiful.

The world needs its Easters as well as its Passion tides, its springtime as truly as its winters. That philosophy which sneers at joy and holds back with angry hand the natural course of pure gladness was shattered Sunday night when the people of the city of all faiths and of no formal profession kept high jubilee. Fully five or six hundred listened from start to finish, enthralled and delighted. There was real pomp in the service.

AVOIDABLE ACCIDENTS

Most automobile accidents can be avoided. Only a small proportion are caused by mechanical troubles, the rest by conditions over which the motorists and pedestrians have control. One phase of the problem calls for the licensing of all drivers of motor vehicles under strict requirements covering a definite code of driving and traffic rules. The other phase calls for the assumption of the proper share of responsibility on the part of the pedestrian.

City streets and country roads have filled with the engines of modern now come to be veritable railways traffic. If for no other reason than this, the pedestrian cannot safely ignore warning signals on city streets. Busy streets can now be crossed safely by the pedestrian at street intersections only, and with the traffic. The streets must be kept clear for movement of vehicles. In preventing the play of children on the streets, the responsibility of parents is apparent.

NOW FREE FROM DIZZY SPELLS

MRS. JACKSON SAYS SHE IS NOT AFRAID OF FALLING DOWN ANY MORE

STELLA VITAE RELIEVED HER

Abilene Woman Has Gained in Strength and Weight Since Taking Treatment.

"Oh, what a wonderful relief it is to be free from those awful spells of dizziness that I used to suffer from; and I am not a bit afraid of falling now," recently said Mrs. L. E. Jackson of 317 Sycamore street, Abilene, Texas, in telling of her experience with Stella Vitae.

"Unless a person has been through what I have they just don't know what suffering is. Those raging headaches nearly drove me distracted and my back would ache and pain me so I could hardly stoop over to pick up anything from the floor. I didn't have a bit of appetite and had to force down what little I did eat. I was badly constipated and got as thin as a slat from worry and lack of nourishment.

"Dizzy spells that came on suddenly kept me scared for fear I would fall and hurt myself, and I became so nervous I would almost scream right out at any little noise. All this interfered with my rest at night and I would get up in the morning feeling worse than when I went to bed.

"Stella Vitae has done away completely with those dizzy spells and my other troubles and I have gained some in weight. I am much stronger now than I have been in a long time and can do my house work now without any trouble or feeling tired. Stella Vitae is certainly wonderful for weak and run-down women."

Note—Stella Vitae may be obtained from any druggist and is sold upon the positive guarantee that the purchase price will be refunded if it fails to bring relief.

APPLEBY NEWS

We regret very much that our school is drawing to a close, although we believe this school term has been a period of progress and a period of gaining new knowledge. Most of our teachers will go to their homes when school is out, and some are going to take more work in college courses. We hope that good fortune will be theirs.

The eighth, fourth and fifth grades entertained Tuesday morning with a very interesting program.

Miss Pounds and her primary pupils spent a delightful afternoon Friday with her pupils on a picnic. They carried their lunch and some eggs to hide. Some high school pupils accompanied her and while the tots ate their lunches the larger folks hid the eggs.

A number of young folks of this community went on a "hike" Saturday night to Garrison. The ones were: Misses Pounds, Tindall and Case; also Glyn Slay. They reported a real nice time, although some sore feet the next morning causing moans.

Miss Sitton carried her pupils on a picnic Tuesday. They took some kodaks along and made pictures. They certainly enjoyed the farewell event for this year.

Several pupils of this school intend to enroll in some other school and finish their grades this year.

John Prince and Vernon Wilkinson were absent Tuesday.

Mrs. J. P. Barr returned from San Antonio Sunday morning where she has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Weatherly.

Mrs. J. B. Tillery has moved to Smackover, Ark.

Mary Tillery, Jeffie Boyett, Lorraine Sullivan and Ruth Tillery and Vera Boyett spent Saturday night and Sunday with Miss Bessie Strode of Holly Springs.

Miss Broadbeck will leave for Austin next week. We all love Miss Broadbeck and we regret to see her leave us. She will always be remembered by her pupils as a good sport as well as a good teacher of mathematics.

Miss Charlie Blake was called to Nacogdoches to be with her friend, Miss Thelma Watson, on account of her grandmother's death.

William—"Say, Jim, I bet I can make an uglier face than you can."

Jim—"Well, I reckon so, look what a start you have."

Mr. Stalling was talking to the eighth grade last week about electricity.

Charlie Stoddard—"Speaking of electricity makes me think..."

Mr. Stalling—"It's wonderful what electricity can do!"

COURTS COST TOO MUCH

Mr. James Elliott, a leading farmer from the Prairie Grove community, six miles east of town, was here on business Monday.

In conversation with a Sentinel reporter, Mr. Elliott said:

"I'm mighty glad to see the Sentinel making an intelligent effort to record public sentiment in favor of certain court reforms. From my experience as a grand juror, and also from frequent observations made about the court room, I'm firmly convinced that our courts are costing the tax payers a lot of unnecessary money. I have frequently discussed this matter with my neighbors. They feel about as I do. And if you will take the trouble to get the honest opinion of our people today, you will find a vast majority of them holding the same views.

"There ought to be a remedy for all such evils. I'm not offering a remedy, understand, I merely say I believe one can be found."

Deputy Sheriffs R. E. Booth and A. J. Spradley returned about 8 o'clock from Etoile, where they went to investigate the reported robbery of the postoffice Monday night. Postmaster Loeb Jacobs stated the loss of the postoffice funds amounted to $78, which had been placed in a cigar box. Some valuable papers also were taken. Mr. Booth reports that shoe tracks were found at a window through which the thief made his ingress to the building, but when he left he was barefooted. His tracks were followed east down the railroad tracks for a distance of five or six miles to a point where he again donned his shoes, and there all trace was lost. The officers think they developed a clue. The first report of the robbery was that the building had been damaged, but Deputy Booth stated the only thing broken was the window pane where the burglar entered.

Yuba Oil & Refining Co., City:

Gentlemen—I want to add my endorsement for the Nacogdoches County produced and refined oil. When the refinery first started I used some of the oil but it did not give satisfaction, but since the changes have been made, I have been using the oil and find it the best and most satisfactory oil I have ever used. I would recommend the heavy oil for worn Fords and the medium grade for new Fords.

PROLOGUE—Seeking gold in the desert, Cameron, solitary prospector, forms a partnership with an unknown man whom he later learns is Jonas Warren, father of a girl whom Cameron wronged, but later married, back in Illinois. Cameron's explanations appease Warren, and the two proceed together. Taking refuge from a sandstorm in a cave, Cameron discovers gold, but too late; both men are dying. Cameron leaves evidence, in the cave, of their discovery of gold, and personal documents.

CHAPTER I

Old Friends.

Richard Gale reflected that his sojourn in the West had been what his disgrusted father had predicted—idling here and dreaming there, with no objective point or purpose. It was reflection such as this, only more serious and perhaps somewhat desperate, that had brought Gale down to the border. For some time the newspapers had been printing news of the Mexican revolution, guerrilla warfare, United States cavalry patrolling the international line, American cowboys fighting with the rebels, and wild stories of bold raiders and bandits. Regarding these rumors Gale was skeptical. But as opportunity, and adventure, too, had apparently given him a wide berth in Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, he had struck southwest for the Arizona border, where he hoped to see some stirring life.

It was after dark one evening in early October when Richard arrived in Casita. There was a jostling, jabbering, sombreroed crowd of Mexicans around the railroad station. He felt as if he were in a foreign country. After a while he saw several men of his nationality, one of whom he engaged to carry his luggage to a hotel. Of the many people encountered by Gale most were Mexicans. His guide explained that the smaller half of Casita lay in Arizona, the other half in Mexico, and of several thousand inhabitants the majority belonged on the southern side of the street, which was the boundary line. He also said that rebels had entered the town that day, causing a good deal of excitement.

Gale was almost at the end of his financial resources, which fact occasioned him to turn away from a pretensions hotel and ask his guide for a cheaper lodging house. When this was found, a sight of the loungers in the office, and also a desire for comfort, persuaded Gale to change his traveling clothes for rough outing garb and boots.

"Well, I'm almost broke," he soliloquized, thoughtfully. "The governor said I wouldn't make any money. He's right—so far. And he said I'd be coming home beaten. There he's wrong. I've got a hunch that something'll happen to me in this Greaser town."

He went into the wide, white-washed, high-ceiled corridor, and from that into an immense room which, but for pool tables, bar and benches, would have been like a courtyard. Bare-legged, sandal-footed Mexicans in white rubbed shoulders with Mexicans mantled in black and red. There were black-bearded, coarse-visaged Americans, some gambling round the little tables, others drinking. There were khaki-clad cavalrymen strutting in and out.

At one end of the room, somewhat apart from the general melee, was a group of six men round a little table, four of whom were seated, the other two standing. These last two drew a second glance from Gale. The sharp-featured, bronzed faces and glancing eyes, the tall, slender, loosely jointed bodies, the quiet, easy, reckless air that seemed to be a part of the men—these things would plainly have stamped them as cowboys without the buckled sombreros, the colored scarfs the high-topped, high-heeled boots with great silver-roweled spurs.

He satisfied his hunger in a restaurant adjoining, and as he stepped back into the saloon a man wearing a military cape jostled him. Apologies from both were instant. Gale was moving on when the other stopped short as if startled, and, leaning forward, exclaimed:

"Dick Gale? If this isn't great! Don't you know me?"

"I've heard your voice somewhere," replied Gale. "Maybe I'll recognize you if you came out from under that bonnet."

For answer the man, suddenly manifesting thought of himself, hurriedly drew Gale into the restaurant, where he thrust back his hat to disclose a handsome, sunburned face.

"George Thorne! So help me—" "S-s-sh. You needn't yell," interrupted the other, as he met Gale's outstretched hand. There was a close, hard, straining grip. "I must not be recognized here. There are reasons. I'll explain in a minute. Say, but it's fine to see you! Five years, Dick, five years since I saw you run down University field and spread-eagle the whole Wisconsin football team."

"Don't recollect that," replied Dick, laughing. "George, I'll bet you're gladder to see you than you are to see me. It seems so long. You went into the army, didn't you?"

"I did. I'm here now with the Ninth cavalry. But—never mind me. What're you doing way down here?"

"On the square, George. I don't know any more why I'm here than—than you know."

"Well, that beats me!" ejaculated Thorne, sitting back in his chair, amaze and concern in his expression. "What the devil's wrong? Your old man's got too much money for you ever to be up against it. Dick, you couldn't have gone to the bad?"

A tide of emotion surged over Gale. How good it was to meet a friend—someone to whom to talk! He had never appreciated his loneliness until that moment.

"George, how I ever drifted down here I don't know. I didn't exactly quarrel with the governor. But—d-n it, Dad hurt me—shamed me, and I dug out for the West. It was this way. After leaving college I tried to please him by tackling one thing after another that he set me to do. On the square, I had no head for business. I made a mess of everything. The governor got sore. When I quit—when I told him straight out that I was going west to fare for myself, why, it wouldn't have been so tough if he hadn't laughed at me. He said I couldn't earn a dollar—that I'd starve out west, and couldn't get back home unless I sent to him for money. He said he didn't believe I could fight—could really make a fight for anything under the sun—Oh—he shot it into me all right."

Dick dropped his head upon his hands, somewhat ashamed of the smarting dimness in his eyes.

"Fight!" cried Thorne, hotly. "What's ailing him? Didn't they call you Biff Gale in college? Dick, you were one of the best men Stag ever developed."

"The governor didn't count football," said Dick. "He didn't mean that kind of a fight. When I left home I don't think I had an idea what was wrong of me. But, George, I think I know now. I was a rich man's son—spoiled, dependent, absolutely ignorant of the value of money. I haven't yet discovered any earning capacity in me. I seem to be unable to do anything with my hands. That's the trouble. But I'm at the end of my tether now. And I'm going to punch cattle or be a miner, or do some real stunt—like joining the rebels."

"Aha! I thought you'd spring that last one on me," declared Thorne, wagging his head. "Well, you just forget it. Say, old boy, there's something doing in Mexico. The United States in general doesn't realize it. But across that line there are crazy revolutionists, ill-paid soldiers, guerrilla leaders, raiders, robbers, outlaws, bandits galore, starving peons by the thousand, girls and women in terror. Mexico is like some of her volcanoes—ready to erupt fire and hell! Don't make the awful mistake of joining the rebel forces. If you didn't starve or get shot in ambush, or die of thirst, some Greaser would knife you in the back for your belt buckle or boots. There are a good many Americans with the rebels eastward toward Agua Prieta and Juarez. Orozco is operating in Chihuahua, and I guess he has some idea of warfare. But this is Sonora, a mountainous desert, the home of the slave and the Yaqui. There's unorganized revolt everywhere. We're patrolling the boundary line. We're making a grand bluff. I could tell you of a dozen instances where cavalry should have pursued raiders on the other side of the line. But we won't do it. The officers are a grouchy lot these days. You see, of course, what significance would attach to United States cavalry going into Mexican territory. There would simply be hell. My own colonel is the sorest man on the job. We're all sore. It's like sitting on a powder magazine. We can't keep the rebels and raiders from crossing the line. Yet we don't fight. My commission expires soon. I'll be discharged in three months. You can bet I'm glad for more reasons than I've mentioned."

Thorne was evidently laboring under strong, suppressed excitement. His face showed pale under the tan, and his eyes glowed with a dark fire. He had seated himself at a table near one of the doorlike windows leading into the street, and every little while he would glance sharply out. Also he kept consulting his watch.

These details gradually grew upon Gale as Thorne talked.

"George, it strikes me that you're upset," said Dick, presently. "I seem to remember you as a cool-headed fellow whom nothing could disturb. Has the army changed you?"

Thorne laughed. It was a laugh with a strange, high note. It was reckless—it hinted of exaltation. He peered out one window, then another. His actions were rapid. Returning to the table, he put his hands upon it and leaned over to look closely into Gale's face.

"I'm away from camp without leave," he said.

"Isn't that a serious offense?" asked Dick.

"Serious? For me, if I'm discovered, it means ruin. There are rebels sort of thing happen less than a stone's throw from the United States line?" asked Gale, incredulously.

"It can happen, and don't you forget it. You don't seem to realize the power these guerrilla leaders, these rebel captains, and particularly these bandits, exercise over the mass of Mexicans. I've seen Rojas. He's a handsome, bold, sneering devil, valier than any peacock. He decks himself in gold lace and silver trappings, in all the finery he can steal. He spends gold like he spills blood. But he is chiefly famous for abducting women. The peon girls consider it an honor to be ridden off with. Rojas has shown a penchant for girls of the better class."

Thorne wiped the perspiration from his pale face and bent a dark gaze out of the window before he resumed his talk.

"Consider what the position of Mercedes really is. Rojas can turn all the hidden underground influences to his ends. Unless I thwart him he'll get Mercedes as easily as he can light a cigarette. But I'll kill him or some of his gang or her before I let him get her. . . . This is the situation, old friend. I've little time to spare. I face arrest for desertion. Rojas is in town. I think I was followed to this hotel. The priest has betrayed me or has been stopped. Mercedes is here alone, waiting, absolutely dependent upon me to save her from— from . . . She's the sweetest, loveliest girl! . . . In a few moments—sooner or later there'll be hell here! Dick, are you with me?"

Dick Gale drew a long, deep breath. A coldness, a lethargy, and indifference that had weighed upon him for months had passed out of his being. On the instant he could not speak, but his hand closed powerfully upon his friend's. Thorne's face changed wonderfully, the distress, the fear, the appeal all vanishing in a smile of passionate gratefulness.

Then Dick's gaze attracted by some slight sound, shot over his friend's shoulder to see a face at the window—a handsome, bold, sneering face, with glittering dark eyes that flashed in sinister intensity.

Dick stiffened in his seat. Thorne, with sudden clenching of hands, wheeled toward the window.

"Rojas!" he whispered.

"Serious? For Me, If I'm Discovered, It Means Ruin—"

In town. Any moment we might have trouble. I ought to be ready for duty—within call. If I'm discovered it means arrest. That means delay—the failure of my plans—ruin."

Thorne bent over closer with his dark eyes searchingly bright.

"What would you say, Dick Gale, if I told you that you're the one man I'd rather have come along than any other at this crisis of my life?"

The earnest gaze, the passionate voice with its deep tremor drew Dick upright, thrilling and eager, conscious of strange, unfamiliar impetuosity.

"Thorne, I should say I was glad to be the fellow," replied Dick.

Their hands locked for the moment, and they sat down again with heads close over the table.

"Listen," began Thorne, in low, swift whisper, "a few days, a week ago—it seems like a year!—I was of some assistance to refugees fleeing from Mexico into the States. They were all women, and one of them was dressed as a nun. Quite by accident I saw her face. It was that of a beautiful girl. I observed she kept aloof from the others. I suspected a disguise, and when opportunity afforded, spoke to her, offered my services. She replied to my poor efforts at Spanish in fluent English. She had fled in terror from her home, some place down in Sinaloa. Rebels are active there. Her father was captured and held for ransom. When the ransom was paid the rebels killed him. The leader of these rebels was a bandit named Rojas. Rojas saw the daughter, made off with her. But she contrived to bribe her guards, and escaped almost immediately before any harm befell her. She hid among friends. Rojas nearly tore down the town in his efforts to find her. Then she disguised herself and traveled by horseback, stage and train to Casita."

"She had no friends here, no money. She knew Rojas was trailing her. This talk I had with her was at the railroad station, where all was bustle and confusion. No one noticed us, so I thought I advised her to remove the disguise of a nun before she left the waiting-room. And I got a boy to guide her. But he fetched her to this house. I had promised to come in the evening to talk over the situation with her."

"I found her, Dick, and when I saw her—I went stark, staring, raving mad over her. She is the most beautiful, wonderful girl I ever saw. Her name is Mercedes Castaneda, and she belongs to one of the old wealthy Spanish families. She has lived abroad and in Havana. She speaks French as well as English. She is—but I must be brief."

"Dick, think, think! With Mercedes also it was love at first sight. My plan is to marry her and get her farther to the interior, away from the border. It may not be easy. She's watched. So am I. Rojas must have got word to his friends here; yesterday his gang of cutthroat rebels arrived, and today he came. When I learned that, I took my chance and left camp; I hunted up a priest. He promised to come here. It's time he's due. But I'm afraid he'll be stopped. You see, we're over the line—"

"Are we in Mexican territory now?" queried Gale, sharply.

"I guess you, old boy. That's what complicates it. Rojas and his rebels have Casita in their hands. If Mercedes is really watched—if her identity is known, which I am sure is the case—we couldn't get far from this house before I'd be knifed and she seized."

"Good heavens! Thorne, can't that sort of thing happen less than a stone's throw from the United States line?" asked Gale, incredulously.

"It can happen, and don't you forget it. You don't seem to realize the power these guerrilla leaders, these rebel captains, and particularly these bandits, exercise over the mass of Mexicans. I've seen Rojas. He's a handsome, bold, sneering devil, valier than any peacock. He decks himself in gold lace and silver trappings, in all the finery he can steal. NOT MONEY ENOUGH

Austin, Texas, March 29.—The balance in the general revenue fund is not sufficient to meet both the $3,000,000 emergency school appropriation and the $600,000 emergency prison appropriation, State Superintendent of Schools Marrs stated today after an inquiry into the status of the general fund. This makes probable that one of the funds will not be available immediately, or only a portion of the school fund will be available.

GOVERNOR SIGNS BILL INCREASING SPEED LIMIT

Austin, Texas, March 30.—Measures increasing the speed limit on public highways from 25 to 35 miles an hour and extending the life of the State Commission of Appeals until June, 1925, were approved by the governor today. The speed limit bill is effective 90 days after the end of the session. He also approved a resolution authorizing the committee investigating the recent awards of the Textbook Commission to continue its deliberations during the recess between the regular and special sessions.

IF SICK, BILIOUS! START YOUR LIVER

Don't Take Calomel! "Dodson's Liver Tone" Acts Better and Doesn't Gripe, Salivate or Make You Sick—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Read Guarantee

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out", if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated, or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous, I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is a real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

APPRECIATE VISIT OF NACOGDOCHES' POETESS

Denton, Texas, March 30.—Mrs. Karle Wilson Baker, noted Texas poetess, was the guest of honor this week for one day on the campus of the College of Industrial Arts. Mrs. Baker who came here at the invitation of the Karle Wilson Baker Club, a newly formed literary organization at the college, was much in demand by the various literary groups of girls during her brief stay here.

The poetess conducted numerous informal receptions in rooms and hallways of the buildings, and in the houses where the girls live. Previous to her visit, Mrs. Baker presented the club named in her honor with a beautiful volume of her poems.

SCHOOLS GET MONEY

Austin, Texas, March 30.—The state general revenue fund went on a deficiency basis following the transfer to the school fund the $3,000,000 emergency appropriation and $140,000 to the Fire Insurance Commission fund, State Treasurer Terrell announced today. He stated there will not be sufficient funds to transfer the $600,000 emergency prison appropriation, although the attorney general should hold it available.

Six Dollars Per Capita Austin, Texas, March 30.—A $6 per capita apportionment to the public schools will be made by the Board of Education Monday, Superintendent Marrs announced today.

GIRLS' DORMITORY

Austin, Texas, March 29.—Plans are well under way to secure a Methodist girls' dormitory at the University of Texas, according to Rev. K. P. Barton, pastor of the University Methodist church. The plan that has been formulated by Texas Methodists, working in conjunction with the officials of the Methodist Centenary Fund, provides that a $100,000 dormitory will be built at Austin, under certain conditions. An appropriation of $66,000 has been made from the Centenary Fund, on the condition that Texas Methodists provide a building site and contribute in addition $34,000 for the building. Money for the proposed site, which will cost $15,000, is being raised in Austin; while the $34,000 is being subscribed by Methodists all over the state. Unless the Methodists of Texas meet these stipulations the dormitory will be located at some other State university in the South. It is hoped that the entire fund will have been subscribed by April 1, so that a report to that effect may be submitted to the annual meeting of the Southern Conference at that time.

MORE BILLS SIGNED

Austin, Texas, March 29.—The bill increasing the terms of state highway commissioners to six years and increasing their salaries to $2,500 annually was signed by the governor today. He also signed the bill prohibiting the exercise of the right of eminent domain over certain riparian water rights adjacent to the streams of the state.

A TYPICAL CASE OF WASTEFUL COURT PRACTICE

Mr. W. H. Gray, one of the leading citizens and farmers of the Chireno community, was in the city Thursday, summoned here as a witness in district court.

When asked about farming conditions in this section, Mr. Gray said: "While the rain and cold weather have interfered somewhat with farming operations, we are by no means disheartened. Our people are bending every energy toward a successful year and it's my belief we will have it."

Speaking of our courts and the enormous expense to which they're putting our people, Mr. Gray said:

"I'm here as a witness in a certain case. The only thing in the world I know about it is that I heard a crime had been committed. 'Hearsay' evidence is not admissible in our courts. Why, then, should a man who can give no other kind of evidence be brought to court? This sort of thing ought to stop. It is adding a useless burden to the taxpayers. No wonder the first big appropriation the legislature usually makes is for the judiciary. If the judicial machinery of our state could be operated in the interest of justice and economy, it is my frank opinion that the state's expense bill for courts could be cut in half."

AFTER STOCK SWINDLERS

Washington, March 30.—As part of the Department of Justice campaign against stock swindlers, Acting Attorney General Sycamore has sent Assistant Attorney General Crim to Fort Worth to prepare for the trial of a large number of cases charging mail frauds in selling oil stocks. Crim reported to the department that the amount mulcted from the public at Fort Worth is not less than $100,000 a day. About 78 cases are pending in the Northern Texas district. Seymour said they will be pressed.

POSTAL WORKERS MEET

Dallas, Texas, March 30.—Six postal conventions opened here today. Officials of the Postoffice Department at Washington and first and second-class postmasters from many Texas points are attending. The organizations include the Postmasters League of Texas, the Texas Federation of Postoffice Clerks of Texas Branches, the National Association of Supervisors of Employees, the United National Association of Postoffice Clerks and the National Association of Letter Carriers.

AGREEMENT CANCELLED

Washington, March 30.—The celebrated Lansing-Ishii agreement, by which the United States in 1917 recognized Japan's special interests in China, has been cancelled by mutual agreement between the Washington and Tokio governments. Diplomatic negotiations between the two governments resulted in an understanding based on the provisions of the nine-power pact at the Washington armament conference, which are regarded as applying more effectively the principles of the open door or equality of opportunity in China.

LADY WAS IN A BAD FIX FROM NERVOUS INDIGESTION

Biloxi, Miss.—"I had, for a year or more, nervous indigestion, or some form of stomach trouble," says Mrs. Alonzo Ford, 1117 Clay Street, this city. "The water I drank at that time seemed to constipate me. I would suffer until I got so nervous I wanted to get down on the floor and roll. I felt like I could tear my clothes.

"Every night, and night after night, I had to take something for a laxative, and it had to be kept up nightly. My skin would pain. I looked awful. My skin was sallow and seemed spotted. I would look at my hands and arms, and the flesh looked lifeless.

"I happened to get a Birthday Almanac, so I told my husband I would try the Black-Draught, which I did. I took a few big doses. I felt much better. My liver acted well. I made a good, warm tea and drank it that way. Soon I found that nervous, tight feeling was going, as was the pain in my side. I found I did not have to take it every night. Soon, after a few weeks, I could leave it off for a week or so, and I did not suffer with constipation. . . I gained flesh. I have a good color, and believe it was a stubborn liver, and that Black-Draught did the work.

"I went to my mother's (Mrs. Deeters) one day, and she wasn't well at all. . . I told her we'd try Black-Draught. We did, and now she keeps it to take after eating. It certainly helped her, and we neither will be without it in our homes. It is so simple, and the dose can be regulated as the case may be. We use small doses after meals for indigestion, and larger doses for headache or bad liver."

Theford's Black-Draught liver medicine is for sale everywhere. 184

GOOD CITIZEN VISITS HERE

Mr. James W. Curl of Chireno, best known among his friends as "Uncle Jim," was among those attending district court here Thursday.

"Uncle Jim" admits he is 80, looks like he might possibly be 65, and gets about like he was only 45. With the exception of poor eyesight, he has all the energy and push of a man of middle-life.

"Uncle Jim" is one of the alcaldes of the Republic of Chireno. He has lived in that splendid little village practically all his life, and now, in his declining years, is happy in the love and esteem of his friends. It was from a life like Uncle Jim's that the poet got the inspiration to sing "Grow old with Me, The best is yet to be."

Uncle Jim has only two children, Mrs. W. I. M. Smith of this city, and T. J. Curl, cashier of the Chireno State Bank.

"A MIGHTY GOOD TOWN"

Charles Jacques, one of the most popular traveling men in Texas, was calling on his trade here Monday. "Jacks" has been singing the merits of Hibbard, Spencer, Bartell & Company goods for eight years in Southeast Texas. Many of our dealers have come to know him very favorably and to like him right well. A native of the Crescent City, therefore a Pelican by birth, "Jacks" is the very embodiment of refined business courtesy. His genial smile is always welcomed in our stores and on our streets. In conversation with a Sentinel reporter he said: "Son, you've got a mighty good town here. I ought to know, I've been coming here eight years. Your town can truthfully boast of a set of merchants whose credit is 'A-1.' Why, I can walk down your streets, drop in a place of business and with an order knowing that it will be filled without even an inquiry as to credit rating. And that is something to make any city proud. If you ask me for an opinion of the future of Nacogdoches I'll merely say that it's size depends on the vision of your own people. You've got the resources, the credit, the history, and if to these you add push and vision—well, the sky is the limit."

"Jacks" lives in Houston. He ought to live in Nacogdoches.

CHIRENO ROAD ACCEPTED

The Chireno highway, which had been released by Engineer Lamar Acker and accepted by the federal government, was on Thursday accepted by the county commissioners, and will be released by the state to the federal department. This road was inspected and conditionally accepted with the provision that certain additional work should be done, and this additional work has cost the county about $20,000 since its acceptance from the contractors. The late action of the commissioners will result in the refunding to the county of about $14,000 through the operation of state and federal aid.

A RANK INJUSTICE

Mr. Henry Pittman of Cushing was here Saturday en route to Carthage, where he is summoned as a witness in court.

To a Sentinel reporter Mr. Pittman said: "It looks very much like rank injustice to take a man who knows absolutely nothing about the facts in the case away from his farming operations at a time like this. In my judgment this policy on the part of our courts is working a very serious hardship on many good people."

Prof. Ocie Orum, one of the substantial rural teachers of our county, was here Monday on business with the county superintendent. Prof. Orum has been active in school work in this county for more than thirty years. During these years he has come in direct personal contact with hundreds of boys and girls whose lives have been enriched thereby. Many of these are now our very best citizens and they are glad to testify to the practical help and the benign influence of this faithful man of the school room. Small wonder it is that a great historian, discussing the growth and development of the old Germany, said: "Not Not Von Moltke, with his bayonets, but the German schoolmaster, with his primer, is the secret of it all."

ROAD COMMITTEE MEETS

The Good Roads Committee of the Chamber of Commerce held a very interesting meeting in the chamber of commerce rooms Friday night.

Those present were Ben T. Wilson, chairman; Marvin Echols, Link Summers, A. H. Smith, John Constock, Horace Wilson and H. L. McKnight. The member of the committee not present was L. V. Jacobi, who was kept away by sickness in his family.

The committee discussed at length the difficulties under which the county authorities are laboring in their efforts to keep the road in good condition, and also plans whereby the citizens in general and the committee in particular might be of practical assistance to the several commissioners.

The committee will undertake to keep in close touch with conditions on all roads, with the hope that impassable places may be fixed quickly and with the least possible inconvenience to the traveling public.

WICKER-ALDERS

Elmer Wickers and Miss Willie Mae Alders were married at 8 o'clock Saturday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Lang of this city, Rev. E. G. Cooke of the First Methodist church officiating.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Alders of Oil Springs, and is a young woman whom any man might be proud to win.

The groom is a painter and paper-hanger of this city and an active and efficient member of the Nacogdoches Volunteer Fire Company for the past four years. He is a young man who has made many friends during his residence here.

The Sentinel joins in hearty congratulations and felicitations.

BURGESS-LESTER

Timothy D. Burgess and Miss Alma Lester of the Fairview neighborhood were married Saturday evening at the Methodist parsonage in this city, Rev. E. G. Cooke, the pastor, officiating.

The lovely young bride is the daughter of one of the best farmer families of the county, and "Timmie" is the lucky boy to win her.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Burgess, who are among the best known and highly esteemed of the county's residents. He is a splendid young gentleman, and his many friends, among whom the Sentinel wishes to be counted, extend the very sincerest wishes for his and his bride's happiness and prosperity.

HAMILTON-SCHENKS

Mr. Claud Hamilton and Miss Lillie Schenks were married at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Schenks, at the Frost-Johnson mill, Rev. Geo. L. Parks of the First Christian church officiating.

The young people have the best wishes of all their many friends for a long, prosperous and happy life.

A bullet from an unknown source punctured the wind shield of Mr. Jesse Petty's car as he was driving on Main street at a point in front of the Guaranty State Bank about 12 o'clock Friday night. Constable Stone, who was at the courthouse when the incident occurred, was informed of the matter and, in company with others, made a diligent search of the upstairs rooms in the block for a clue to the perpetrator, but no trace of him could be found. Mr. Petty, who was returning from a radio concert at Dr. C. C. Pierce's, heard no sound of a shot, and the occurrence is wrapped in mystery. Mr. Petty has no enemies that he knows of who would resort to assassination. He had a close call, as the bullet must have missed him by only a few inches. The shot struck directly in front of the steering wheel and must have passed out through the door opening at the left of the driver. It left no mark except the shattered glass of the wind shield.

Take Care of Your Eyes

About the most common of all the forms of human neglect is abuse of the eyes. It stands head and shoulders above all the other foolish things done by men, women and children to damage their bodies.

The motion pictures have not produced poor vision for those who patronize them, but the pictures do have a way of searching out imperfect vision and making the owners of bad eyes aware of their defects, which may lead to the remedying of these defects and so prove big advantage after all.

Lots of people refrain from reading, sewing, from going to the theater, from church and many times children have to stay out of school "to save" their eyes. If you think there is need of saving your eyes, there probably is something wrong with them and 99 times out of every 100 the wrongs can be found and removed.

The most common things productive of painful vision, burning and smarting of the eyes and blurring of vision, redness of the lids and sticking together in the morning is the need of glasses.

Most folks think they must have less than normal vision to need glasses. It is a common thing for a patient to say to the eye doctor: "Why, I can see the time on a clock a mile away, I can read the finest of type."

These tests mean nothing. If your vision is very defective that it is impossible to see well, then you make no efforts to see at all. If you can see everything clearly and plainly by making an effort, of course you are going to make the effort, and there is where the harm comes, it is the effort that causes the trouble.

Many times eyestrain exists and even to a high degree without our consciousness of its existence.

There is constant eyestrain without knowledge of it. These are the ones where the trouble is greatest.

If you have frequent headaches, or any of the above symptoms I have mentioned, you should have your eyes tested to see if glasses are necessary.

Now, you may say: "Oh, I wouldn't wear glasses." How foolish! If glasses are needed it isn't a question of your prejudice or preference. The welfare of your eyes and health is at stake. To go without the correcting lenses may result in discomfort, nervousness, indigestion and the general symptoms, but also long-standing and uncorrected eyestrain is fundamental to many diseases of the eye, some of them of a very serious nature.

Have your eyes examined thoroughly, once in a while, to make sure they are normal in every respect. You have only two eyes, and think what they mean to you. It pays to heed the necessities and demands of these precious organs.

WE NOW HAVE OUR OPTICAL PARLOR WITH THE VERY BEST OF EQUIPMENT OPEN TO GIVE YOU THE VERY BEST OF SERVICE IN EXAMINING EYES AND FITTING GLASSES WITH A GRADUATE AND REGISTERED OPTICAL DOCTOR.

THE CITY ELECTION

The election Tuesday in Nacogdoches for three aldermen and a city marshal passed off very quietly, although a larger number of votes were cast than in any other previous contest.

Messrs. Ford Simpson, R. C. Monk and Sam Stripling had no opposition for re-election as aldermen.

The vote was tabulated by the election officers as follows:

For City Marshal
Dock Watson ..... 390
H. I. Chandler ..... 61
Wade Walters ..... 10

For Alderman
Ford Simpson ..... 445
R. C. Monk ..... 446
Sam Stripling ..... 442
Robert Lindsey ..... 1

The only office around which interest centered was that of city marshal, and the endorsement of Dock Watson, the incumbent, was overwhelming. A very important factor in the election was the women's votes. Most of the ladies cast their ballots for Watson.

Another incident, which for a time was considered important, was the unfortunate injection of the Klan issue into the campaign. This movement was alleged to have been sprung by the thoughtless, hot-headed members of the organization, who gave it out strong that they were going to elect their man and run things. Fortunately there were a number of conservative members who refused to be led by the "irreconcilables" and cast their votes for Watson despite the avowed preference for another. They realized that Mr. Watson had made an unusually efficient and desirable officer, so they relegated their Klan affiliations to the background and gave him their support. Notwithstanding Mr. Watson's outspoken opposition to the Ku Klux Klan as an organization, a strong personal friendship obtains between him and a number of the members and in this case friendship prevailed over lodge connections and they voted for the man who had been tried and not found wanting. Of course, some of the klansmen are disgruntled, but there is no doubt that the result of the election for marshal has brought about a more friendly and kindly feeling between the Klan and anti-Klan people of the community, and intolerance on either side has received a pretty hard jolt.

The sheriff's office here was notified early Tuesday morning that the postoffice at Etolle, a village about 25 miles southeast of the city, in Nacogdoches county, was burglarized and badly wrecked by robbers Monday night. Details are lacking, as the telephone line was in bad order and conversation was difficult. Deputies Booth and Spradley left early Tuesday morning for the scene and had not returned in time for us to obtain their report.

Dr. A. Oscar Browne, for ten years secretary of the Y. M. C. A. work in New Orleans, has been called to the pastorate of the Main street Presbyterian church here. This church has been without a pastor since Dr. M. C. Johnson resigned on December 1st to accept the pastorate of the Presbyterian church of Hillsboro. Dr. Browne filled the pulpit here Sunday. He returned to New Orleans Monday, and will let his decision in the matter be known shortly.

Mr. A. B. Tumlin, in charge of tick eradication work in Nacogdoches county, left for Fort Worth Monday in response to a wire from Chairman J. E. Boog-Scott. From the wording of the message, Mr. Tumlin assumes he is to be transferred to other fields of activity. During his stay here Mr. Tumlin has made an enviable record and lots of good personal friends who will regret to see him leave.

A storm of unusual severity swept over the city Tuesday night, causing considerable anxiety by its violence, and causing some damage. Lightning struck the electric light wire near the home of Mr. Ed Blount, entered the bath room, blew out the fuses of the switch and set the wallpaper on fire. Mr. Blount considers himself lucky that his home was not destroyed. A number of telephones were put out of commission and lights extinguished in several houses. The storm appeared first about 10:45, died away, reappeared about 11:30, again died down and again appeared about 1 o'clock. The disturbance seemed to circle around the city and was in all three instances accompanied by unusually brilliant electrical display and loud crashes of thunder. No personal injuries have been reported, though it was said several people were slightly shocked by lightning.

Safety of traffic is not a case of pedestrians against motorists or vice versa. Each has certain well-defined rights and each is here to stay. All that is required is the exercise of common sense and good judgment on the part of both.

On the Mountain Top

CLIMB the mountain—stand on the peak—and before you there unfolds a panorama extending as far as your eyes can reach. Stay in the valley, and your view is restricted by the surrounding hills.

This newspaper—properly used—will guide you to the mountain top. Read it and your vision is enlarged. You get a bird's-eye view of world events. You glimpse the doings of the day.

Fail to use it, and your view is limited—you remain in ignorance not only of events at home and abroad, but of much that concerns you even vitally—news of the very things that have to do with your personal, everyday life.

Some one might be selling a new, better and more economical food; or a utensil that would add immeasurably to your comfort and well being; or some better material for shoes or clothing—but you would never know, because of your restricted view.

You may read every line of the news columns, but if you overlook the advertising, you are still living in the valley. You remain uninformed about many things you ought to know in order to live happy, useful, profitable life in this age of progress.

Arrangements for the luncheon were under the direction of Mrs. Geo. T. McNeess, Mrs. Albert Brewer, Mrs. V. L. Perry, Ms. C. C. Pierce, Mrs. George Fewell and others.

Not the least of the attractive features of this service was the splendid music of the Episcopal choir, under the leadership of Rev. Mr. Atwell, Miss Louise Baker presided at the organ with her usual skill and easy grace.

MRS. J. T. WATSON

After an illness covering a period of years, Mrs. J. T. Watson, aged 80, died at her home in this city at 6:45 o'clock Friday morning. Her husband preceded her to the beyond on November 30th, 1922, since which time she has been gradually sinking more rapidly.

She is survived by two children, Mrs. W. G. Hillencamp and City Marshal Dock Watson, and these have the sincere sympathy of a wide circle of friends in their bereavement.

Thus is marked the passing of one of the city's best women. Devout, kindly, charitable, her daily walk was worthy of all emulation. The hearts of her family will ache for her, her friends will mourn for her and many there will be who will miss her kindly ministrations.

May she rest in peace.

MRS. WATSON BURIED

It was a sorrowful procession which wended its way from the city to North Church at 9 o'clock Saturday afternoon, accompanying the remains of

Mrs. J. T. Watson to her last resting place beside her husband.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. E. G. Cooke, pastor of the First Methodist church of this city, and Rev. Mr. Fore, pastor of the Garrison Baptist church.

Many beautiful floral offerings were laid on the grave, and all present mourned the death of this good woman.

The pallbearers were V. E. Middlebrook, T. E. Baker, Robert Lindsey, Ben T. Wilson, Tom Summers and W. F. Gintz.

WE THANK YOU

We wish through the Sentinel to express our thanks for the loving sympathy extended us by our Nacogdoches friends during the sad hours while we were there, when our dear mother, Mrs. T. J. Carraway, was laid to rest. We can never forget them—their kind words of sympathy and expressions of love will ever remain in our minds, and in sweet and sacred memory they shall be held. Their precious words of comfort poured the oil of healing into our wounded hearts. May God bless and comfort them in their hour of sorrow.
