THE CHURCHES

Service in St. Peter's next Sabbath, March 5, at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Elder J. M. Sallee, recently from Kentucky, will preach at the Baptist church next Sabbath, morning and evening. Everybody cordially invited to attend.

The first quarterly conference of the Llano district of the M. E. Church South, will be held in the Methodist church in this city, Saturday and Sunday, March 4th and 5th.

OUR WEEKLY ROUND-UP

Look out for Hell for Screw Worms.

Mr. A. E. Burge came in from the ranch last Tuesday for a rest.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Wilson were visitors here from the ranch this week.

Mrs. L. A. Schreiner came home last Sunday, after a week spent with her parents in San Antonio.

Mrs. Rigby came up from San Antonio Saturday, to spend a week at her old home.

Miss Willie Scott of San Antonio, is visiting her sister, Mrs. A. C. Schreiner. Mrs. Scott is expected to arrive to-day.

Jones & Jolly, the wide-awake contractors, are building a neat cottage for Mr. Bert Parsons.

Mr. and Mrs. McNoye and two children, and Miss Robinson, of Pittsburg, Texas, are guests of the Hutchison house.

The church tea which was to have occurred on Friday at the residence of Mrs. Aime Schreiner has been postponed on account of sickness, until Friday of next week. Same place from four till eight.

Mr. T. H. McFadin and two little boys left to-day for Shreveport, La., on a visit to his children. While away he will attend embalmer's lectures.

Mr. A. M. Morris is making further addition to the residence he lately bought of Mr. W. E. Stewart. He is setting out trees and hedges and otherwise adorning the home.

Contractor Frank Jeffries will soon commence the erection of a home for Judge Burnett on his Goat creek ranch. The building will be handsome and of considerable dimensions. It will front the river road.

For some time past Dan Crider has been "displaying a pistol" in front of his shop, and no officer has placed him under arrest for violating the law in this regard. Maybe the next grand jury will take the case in hand.

Eighth Grade—Fannie Payne, Daisy Bradwell.

We hear a lot these days, especially during election times from candidates for big offices, about "the poor man's friend." In this issue "Reporter" discourses about an institution that is indeed the friend of all men, especially of the man of limited means, and what he says about the Knights of Honor will apply to nearly all kindred institutions, several of which are represented in this city. In these days of cheap life insurance it is a crime in any man of family to live without protection of that kind.

Big Deal in Steers.

Following closely Capt. Schreiner's great sale of his stock of fall wool, comes a big deal in steers in San Antonio last Monday. Speaking of this sale, the Express of Tuesday says:

The second largest transaction in steer cattle that has been made on this market this year was concluded here yesterday.

Capt. Chas. Schreiner, the well known banker and stockman of Kerrville, sold to P. S. Witherspoon, a prominent feeder of Gainesville, 7000 head of three and four year old steers at $23 50 per head, or a total of $164,500. One thousand head will be delivered at once and shipped by the purchaser to his feed lots at Red Rock, L. T., where they will be rough fed until spring; the remaining six thousand head will be delivered about April 1, and shipped to the same place. There were a number of buyers after these cattle and it was "nip and tuck" to determine who should secure them.

Look out for Hell for Screw Worms!

Rudy Allerkamp is again at his post at the Beehive, after a visit to his home on Cypress Creek. During his absence he amused himself with a tussle with the measles.

Judge I. L. Martin has appointed Mr. W. H. Rawson a member of the board of Pharmaceutical Examiners for the 38th Judicial District.

The beauty of the grounds that surround the St. Charles hotel will be heightened next summer by a number of new trees now being set out by Mr. Mason on the lawn and in front of the St. Charles Hotel.

Mr. J. S. Lowrance came in last week from the ranch, bringing his little daughter Mabel to town for treatment by Dr. Palmer. During the prevalence of the strong wind at the ranch a splinter was blown into Mabel's eye, penetrating the eyeball. Dr. Palmer cut into the eye and extracted the splinter. Little Mabel is three years old. It is feared the sight of the injured eye will be impaired.

On Thursday afternoon of last week, Burks, the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Thomas, entertained between twenty and thirty of his friends at a birthday party. Burks, though only three years old, is a manly little fellow and entertained like a prince. He wears trousers now, and entertains a strong aversion to boys' dresses. He smokes cigars—made of candied chocolate. He totes a pistol—of the pop cap variety—and wishes there were other Spains to conquer. In short, Burks is Young America personified. May he become a major-general, governor of Texas, or president of the United States.

LOUIS WELGE

A number of our young people went to Centre Point Wednesday evening and took in the play "Tony, the Convict," presented by the Centre Point Amateur Dramatic Club in the art building at the fair grounds. There was a large and well pleased audience present, and the fund for the improvement of the cemetery considerably augmented by the receipts. The dramatic club scored a success. Possibly the club could be induced to reproduce the play here. We remember the flattering reception given our Kerrville dramatic club in former years by our little sister town down the river.

Mr. Ed Crider and family arrived Thursday, and will make their home here. He is the guest of his brother Dan, but will go to housekeeping shortly.

A birthday party was given on Friday evening of last week at the home of Judge and Mrs. Garrett, complimentary to their young son and daughter, Hal and Hattie. The hours set were from five till eight o'clock, but the young company were having such a good time the festivities were continued till a later hour. There was no foreshadowing of the distress into which the family was soon to be plunged by the painful accident to little Willie. But changes from sunshine to shadow is the lot of us all in this life.

A distressing accident occurred here last Saturday. Willie Garrett, and Scott and Junior Schreiner discovered an ant bed in the yard and determined to destroy it. No doubt there lingered in the minds of the lads memories fresh and strong of the preceding summer, when in bare feet and limbs they were playing in the yard, when those same ants nipped their tender feet and legs. Now was the time to pay off old scores: They taxed their ingenuity for means to be used. Finally they "remembered the Maine." That's a go! They'd blow them up. They swiped a few cartridges out of the house and digging out the powder, proceeded to load the mine. Willie undertook to fire it off. Applying the torch he bent over to blow the flame brighter, when the powder exploded full in his face. The poor lad was burned dreadfully, and at first it was feared he would lose his sight. Dr. Palmer now says Willie's eyes are all right, and that he hopes to save his face from scars.

The attention of the reader is directed to the new card of M. Coenen & Co. Mr. Coenen is no novice in his business, but has had years of experience in merchant tailoring. Read the liberal terms he offers. We are informed that in the laundry branch of the business a delicate piece of work was done successfully. This work had been sent by the owner to a leading laundry in San Antonio, but they refused to do it for fear of the colors "running." Score a triumph for our Kerrville laundry.

Last Monday Mr. W. E. Stewart and family departed for Wharton, where they will hereafter reside. Kerrville has been their home for many years, and the friends they leave here part with them with regret. Mr. Stewart was engaged in the drug business, here and thoroughly identified with many interests. His departure was a surprise to all. Mr. Stewart preceded his family to Wharton, where he has established himself in the drug business. He was recalled when the runaway accident occurred to his little sons Frank and Scott. Mr. Stewart requests the Paper to convey his thanks to friends who rendered such valuable services when his little sons nearly lost their lives, and whose sympathy has been with the parents in their days of anxiety and trial. Such friends will never be forgotten.

Suggestions for Women as to the Care of Delicate Underwear.

It is one thing to have pretty belongings, and another to have them so. Or nothing can be more truly said than of woman's underwear, so generally ruined in washing with strong, impure soap, and by hard rubbing. Silk and woolen underwear should never be washed on a cloudy day. Then ready to do the work, half fill a tub with warm water, which dissolve a fourth of a bar of every washing soap. Wash the bloods through with the hands, rinse in warm water. Care be sure and do not wring. Hang on the line and press with a hot iron while damp.

Beware of Quinines for Catarrh. This contains Mercury, a mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should be used except on prescription from a competent physician. The damage they will do is too great to be good as a possible remedy from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by J. C. Rogers & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure and get the genuine. Catarrh is Not Incurable

But it can not be cured by sprays, washes and inhalant mixtures which reach only the surface. The disease is in the blood, and can only be reached through the blood. S. S. S. is the only remedy which can have any effect upon Catarrh; it cures the disease permanently and forever rid the system of every trace of the vile complaint.

Miss Jennie Green, of Montpelier, Ohio, writes: "I was afflicted from infancy with Catarrh, and no one can know the suffering it produces better than I. The sprays and washes prescribed by the doctors relieved me only temporarily, and though I used them constantly for ten years, the disease had a firmer hold than ever. I tried a number of blood remedies, but their natural ingredients settled in my bones and gave me rheumatism. I was in a lamentable condition, and after exhausting all treatment, was declared incurable. Seeing S. S. S. advertised as a cure for blood disease, I decided to try it. As soon as my system was under the effect of the medicine, I began to improve, and after taking it for two months I was cured completely. The dreadful disease was eradicated from my system, and I have had no return of it."

Many have been taking local treatment for years, and find themselves worse now than ever. A trial of will prove it to be the right remedy for Catarrh. It will cure the most obstinate case.

DIED IN THE SEINE.

PITIFUL STORY OF A FRENCH MODEL.

She Came to Paris With a Praiseworthy Ambition and Soon Became the Vogue-Albert Duncan, the Artist, Deserted Her for Another.

When Madeleine Montarlier plucked from the Parisian in the other evening several passers-by saw her. An instant after, in the red glare that trailed from a passing steamboat's hind lights, something was seen to rise on the water, and a cry rang from it piercingly. Then the thing drifted and sank. Immediately two forms were seen to leap from the bridge, and then another from the boat; the splashes below were heard in quick succession. Three men had dived to the rescue. But the night was dark, the current swift; it was only three hours later that the body was found, somewhat lower down the Seine. Madeleine Montarlier had been such a glorious creature that her smile, her word, the mere rustle of her dress were held precious. In the middle of that night she was carried to the morgue—a cold, wet, limp mass of something.

Next morning, when the newspapers brought the first news of the poor girl's death, all Americans who have been in Paris long enough to be acquainted with the little intimate tangles of the colony immediately thought of Albert Duncan, the Philadelphia artist, who has lived several years in Paris.

He and Mlle. Montarlier had been a great deal to each other. To him she was the most perfect model he had ever been able to find to paint. To her the handsome American painter was the whole world.

Early in October Mr. Dugan surprised everybody by marrying the only daughter of Mr. P. W. Norris, the Detroit capitalist. Those who knew the French girl, those who knew her absolute devotion to the artist, could not temperament; their reserve must or usually does yield to the temptations of mere environment. Madeleine went the way that have traveled thousands of other healthy girls who would have become excellent wives and devoted mothers if they had stayed at home.

At the Bal de l'Opera, two years ago, La Montarlier—since her great vogue had already changed her name to that—met Duncan. He came to her with the semi-respectful, semi-impudent tone that obtains at these revues. She afterward said that his first words to her were: "Madeleine, you are a sombre-queen. Your beauty reveals to me the reasonableness of all the improbable melodramas where people kill each other because of vehement love. I am a painter; I would paint you. Unless I am mistaken I shall soon ask more." Such speeches are common in Paris. She looked at him and thought him good to look upon; his foreign accent also was full of zest. She acquiesced, trying to conceal her earnestness under the same sort of jesting nonchance, and they took supper together to seal the compact. That was the beginning of the end.

TERRIBLE FILIPINO.

The sect is thoroughly organized. They have their priests, known as panditas, and they are regularly drilled and trained to murder when the opportunity comes. In order that they may be active murderers, able to overcome the opposition of any one who resists their attack, they are made to exercise, to fight with blunted weapons, to run, jump, climb, swim, dive, and, in fact, go through all the gymnastic training that will fit them for the work of slaying swiftly, and, if possible, escaping before a hue and cry is raised.

After a course of training, a member of the sect graduates as fit for the work of murder. He is then informed by the priests that the way to Paradise lies for him through the blood of the white men. His imagination is worked upon until he is in a state bordering on frenzy, and then he is told

New Stamps.

The postoffice department is to issue new series of stamps for use in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines. The 1-cent Cuban stamp will bear a representation of the statue of Columbus at Havana; the 2-cent stamp a map of Cuba; the 3-cent stamp a picture of the statue, "La Cubana," an emblematic marble female figure which stands in a Havana park; the 5-cent stamp, a picture of a New York and Cuba mail company steamer, and the 10-cent stamp an agricultural scene in which a Cuban is plowing with oxen. The Porto Rico and Philippine stamps have similar designs.

Remarkable Family.

Cardinal Vaughan is a member of one of the most remarkable families which have helped to make church history. Of nine brothers and three sisters, no fewer than eleven have entered the service of the Roman Catholic church, each brother in turn, from the cardinal down, who is the eldest of the family, forfeiting his claim to the family estates.

Workingman's Home.

Mrs. Sarah Tyson Rorer, the famous expert in cookery, has taken a house in one of Philadelphia's poor quarters, and will make of it a model workingman's home, her design being to demonstrate the possibilities of house-keeping on the average wages of an artisan. Mrs. Rorer's income from lectures and other sources is about $10,000 yearly.

MISSOURI'S WAR GOVERNOR

Restored to Health by Pe-ru-na.

A LETTER FROM THE AUDITOR OF THE INTERIOR.

GOV. T. C. FLETCHER.
Hon. Thomas C. Fletcher, the noted war Governor of the State of Missouri, is a great friend of Pe-ru-na. He writes: "The Pe-ru-na Drug Mfg Co., Columbus, Ohio."

HON. WM. YOUNGBLOOD.
Treasurer Department, Office of Auditor for Interior, Washington, D. C., Dec. 10, 1899. The Pe-ru-na Drug Mfg Co., Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen—I've often heard of your great medicine and have persuaded my wife, who has been much of a sufferer from catarrh, to try Pe-ru-na, and after using one bottle she has wonderfully improved. It has proved all you have claimed for it, and I take pleasure in recommending it to anyone who is afflicted with catarrh. Yours,
Wm. Youngblood,
Auditor for the Interior.

Catarrh in its various forms is rapidly becoming a national curse. An undoubted remedy has been discovered by Dr. Hartman. This remedy has been thoroughly tested during the past forty years. Prominent men have come to know of its virtues and are making public utterances on the subject. To save the country we must save the people. To save the people we must protect them from disease. The disease that is at once the most cruel, to remedy evils and encourage the good.

LA MONTARLIER.

help sympathizing sincerely with her. Many feared trouble at the church. But Madeleine made none. She ran away, painting like a stabbed antelope and lived in hiding. She shunned all her intimate friends and favorite haunts. Meanwhile Mr. Duncan took his dainty bride across the Mediterranean, and under the orange trees of the suburbs of Algiers he was sipping the most perfect bliss. He only returned about two weeks before the suicide. When his friends began to come as in the past, it was his wife now that poured the tea and hovered about gently in the studio and tried to make it agreeable for callers. Nothing else seemed to have changed about the place. Duncan had probably forgotten Madeleine; his friends avoided the mention of her name.

Nevertheless, when it was known that she had committed suicide, everybody knew the reason. She had been driven from the man who had allowed her to worship him so long, and in such security, and then she saw another woman installed and happy in the same studio where her happiest days had passed.

It is useless to say much about her life. Last year her picturesque history was brought conspicuously before the public on the occasion of the princely legacy left to her by Philippe Varennes, the coffee merchant, whom she had repeatedly refused to marry, and who at his death bequeathed to her a sum equivalent to about $200,000 and his palace in Neuilly, together with the priceless furniture, art collections and library it contained. "This," said the will, "in token of sincere and respectful love."

Madeleine turned the house and grounds into an apothecary, retaining for herself nothing but the books and paintings of her admirer. All this and more was fully told at the time.

But precisely because of what has been revealed of her life it is well to recall that when this young woman first came to Paris she was brought by a praiseworthy ambition. She was poor, her family was poor; she came looking for work, and for a time she did work, humbly and cheerfully.

Alas! she came from the South of France, a country of intense maidens, whose dark hair, eager eyes and full red mouths bespeak whole-souled, warm-blooded natures. To such as these, unless they come well gilded, Paris invariably is fatal; the atmosphere appeals irresistibly to their to throw off all his clothes except the breech cloth, a long knife is thrust into his hand, and he is sent forth to murder.

With a deadly grin concealed beneath the folds of his breech cloth, he steals into camp in the dead of night, crawls silently under the flap of the tent, and drives his weapon home before the victim can utter a sound. From tent to tent he goes, leaving the awful trail of blood behind him, until a slip of the knife or a false step enables the victim to cry out or in some way warn the camp. Then the murderer's frenzy reaches its height. Casting off all attempts to hide, he rushes into the thicket of the avengers, stabbing right and left. Sometimes so great is the dread entertained for these fanatics, it is possible for him to open a lane through the living and escape, to continue his murderous work. Oftener a well-directed bullet lays him low, and

TUMOR EXPELLED.

Unqualified Success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. ELIZABETH WHELOCK, Magnolia, Iowa, in the following letter describes her recovery from a very critical condition:

"DEAR MR. PINKHAM—I have been taking your Vegetable Compound, and am now ready to sound its praises. It has done wonders for me in relieving me of a tumor. My health has been poor for three years. Change of life was working upon me. I was very much bloated and was a burden to myself. Was troubled with smothering spells, also palpitation of the heart and that bearing-down feeling, and could not be on my feet much. I was growing worse all the time, until I took your medicine. After taking three boxes of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Lozenges, the tumor passed from me. My health has been better ever since, can now walk quite a distance and am troubled no more with palpitation of the heart or bloating. I recommend your medicine to all sufferers from female troubles."

It is hardly reasonable to suppose that any one can doubt the efficiency of Mrs. Pinkham's methods and medicine in the face of the tremendous volume of testimony.

IN CANADA'S FREE HOMESTEAD LANDS.

Wetaskiwin, Alta., April 6th, 1899.

W. P. McCrea, Govt. Immigration Commissioner, Winnipeg. Dear Sir:—I like the country very much so far; have seen a great number of farmers from the states and every one seen so far says they have done well and like it here far better than where they came from, and all claim it to be the best country for a poor man that they ever in, and with good crops this season I predict a great rush. There are some who claim to be had yet, but will not last the summer through. I do not find it any colder than in Iowa and am feeling much better than when I left there March 1st. I think this a great country for those who are suffering with throat and lung troubles. I have seen men that had as high as 5 1/2 bushels wheat per acre and near 100 bushels oats, but they weigh from 45 to 51 pounds per bushel, but the general run is 25 to 50 wheat, 50 to 75 oats, and stock looking fine; some cattle running out were nearly in market flesh. I expect to return to the states late this fall for stock, etc.; will write you when I want to go. Thanking you all for past favors, I remain, most respectfully yours,
(Signed) Dr. J. E. Streveil.

A Few Words About the Knights of Honor.

Reader, did you ever see a little scrawny, dried up, ready-to-blow-away Knight of Honor?

No, you never did nor you never will. They never blew here nor they won't blow away. They are fit to stay. They are all healthy, robust fine looking men—men who are not for sale; men who are honest, sound from centre to circumference; true to the heart's core; men who will condemn wrong in friend or foe, in themselves as well as others; men whose consciences are as steady as the needle to the pole; men who will stand for the right if the heavens totter and the earth reels; men who can tell the truth and look the truth, and look the world and the devil right in the eye; men that neither brag nor run; men that neither brag nor flinch; men who can have courage without waiting for it and joy without shouting for it; men in whom the current of everlasting life runs still and deep and strong; men too large for sectarian limits, and too strong for sectarian bonds; men who do not strive, nor cry, nor cause their voices to be heard in the streets, but who will not fail nor be discouraged till judgment be set in the earth; men who know their message and tell it; men who know their duty and do it; men who know their place and fill it; men who mind their own business; men who will not lie; men who are not too lazy to work nor too proud to be poor; men who are willing to eat what they have and wear what they have paid for; men who will not stop at saying a few consoling words to a sick or disabled brother or brother's family, but who will run their hands down in their pockets and help with hard earned dollars as long as they are able. In other words, men who will promptly respond to the distress call whenever and wherever heard. They are wholesome men; men with hearts as big as their wealth; men who love their wives and children and whose wives and children love them. They are the kind of men the world likes; the kind of men God-intends them to be.

If you want to enlist with the grandest and noblest brotherhood in the land, you will certainly find it in the grand old Knights of Honor.

The order is now nearly twenty six years old. It has nearly one hundred thousand members, and is in a thrifty condition. Our lodge at Kerrville lost one member, viz: John J. Burks. There are now seven applications for membership, to be acted upon at the next meeting.

Brothers, all of you want to come out Friday night. The goat is in good condition, and you all know what a K. of H. goat can do and live over it. Fraternally Yours, REPORTER.

A bird flew against the headlight of a train on the International road near Austin, breaking the glass covering and rendering it necessary to run slowly to the next station. A short distance on from the point at which the glass was broken the locomotive ran upon a rail securely tied across the track by some miscreant bent on making a horrible wreck. The bird saved the train and possibly many lives. This doesn't look like the age of miracles is past.—Quannah Tribune.

The Bandera Enterprise prints the following sure cure for snake bite. It has been tried with success in many cases: Formula—Iodine of Potassium 4 grains; Corrasine sublimat 2 grains; Bromine 23 grains. Directions—T. n. drops to be taken in a table spoonful of wine or brandy, to be repeated if necessary; that is if the swelling increases after four hours after the first dose. Ten drops is the dose for an adult.

Bile.

Oh, Bile! Thou precursor of nearly all the ills that flesh is heir to! Thou yellower of the eye; thou disturber of the vitreous humors; thou great goggle! thou relentless maker of rivulets in the furrows of the cheeks! thou blinder to all on that should look pleasant! thou parcher of the tongue! thou drier of the lips! thou shriveler of the cookies of the heart! Thou cirrhosis! thou friend of the colds, of chills, of agues! thou aid to indigestion! thou destroyer of the appetite! thou deadener of perceptions! thou foe to sleep! thou weakener of the brain! thou ruin of memory! thou hater-maker of all mankind! Get out!—N. Y. Press.

A Big Snake Story.

For many years past we have prided ourselves on San Marcos having the banner snake story; but Ike Sandifer tells one that discounts ours all to findereens. Here it is in all its simplicity and astonishment:

"Don't suppose I ever told you of a startling adventure which befell me while hunting in the wilds of Indian Territory. It was there I killed the biggest rattlesnake I ever saw. It was during the month of January, and I was out camping. The weather was very cold when we arrived, and I set my nigger cook to clean away the brush, so we could make supper. Well he hadn't been at work more than a minute when he came back with his eyes as big as saucers.

"Boss," he said, "dar's a big lim' in the brush what's live. I dun seen it move when I chopped it." Shau, sah.

"He wouldn't rest until I investigated. When we reached the place he showed me the 'limb'—and sure enough when I struck it with an ax it moved with sinuous motion.

"Bob," I said, "that limb is a snake—'as sure as cotton is worth six cents. Get out of the way." I raised my ax and made a deep cut into the thing, which was about eight inches in diameter, and I started to cut the second time when there was a swish of the brush, and up came the head and neck of the biggest rattler I ever want to see. He made at me, his eyes gleaming fiercely, but his neck caught in a vine. I then made another cut at his head, but missed and the ax buried itself into stump which happened to be there.

dropped it then and the infernal snake struck the handle of the implement and then fell back, writhing in brambles, rattling as well as it could with its back broken. I started to pull the ax out of the stump, but I didn't put my hand on it because I saw the poison was affecting the wood. It was swelling most wonderfully, and directly the swelling extended to the ax, and the tough metal split apart as clean as if done with a cold chisel."—Hays Co. Times.

"The old geographers used to teach that it was owing to the Gulf stream that Great Britain enjoyed its immunity from severe winter weather, while Labrador, in the same latitude, is bleak and inhospitably cold. Modern scientists have demonstrated, however, that it is not the gulf stream in itself as such which works this end. The fact is now well recognized that the Gulf stream disappears off the banks of Newfoundland like a river that loses itself in a swamp. This greatest of all ocean currents rushes northward from the straits of Florida with a depth of 2,000 feet, a width of 40 miles and a velocity of from three to nearly six miles an hour. The force of its current is well known to all navigators who have taken advantage of it to run up their latitude, some headway being certain if only by drift if a vessel is kept in the stream. But it gradually spreads out and thins until, off Newfoundland, it ceases to be recognizable as a distinct current.

The best maps therefore do not now show the Gulf stream as extending clear across the ocean, but beyond Newfoundland depict a movement toward Europe of oceanic water to which has been applied the name of Gulf stream drift. This includes a constant set of warm surface waters in a northeasterly direction. The prevailing west winds carry them toward Europe, and their total influence is to modify the winter climate of that region, and this warmer water comes not only from the Gulf stream, but also from the great current that flows north outside the Bahamas.—Marine Journal.

From the Church to the Stage. Few people are aware of the fact that Albert Chevalier was a great favorite of the late Cardinal Manning. His eminence took a lively interest in the actor, encouraging him in every possible way. Mr. Chevalier will tell you that many a time has he been one of the bearers of the late cardinal's robes and attended upon him when celebrating mass. It says volumes for the broadmindedness of Cardinal Manning that one of the first letters of congratulation which Mr. Chevalier received when he created such a sensation in London some few years ago was from Cardinal Manning.

When a person's brains are on fire a revolver is a good thing to blow them out with.

The Farmer's Tool Chest.

The farmer who does not have a tool chest fitted out with a good supply of the tools most used is at a great disadvantage. Many times a break may be repaired if the tools are at hand that would have required a trip to town, the loss of time and the paying for the repairing, all of which might have been saved. It is not necessary for a farmer to have an elaborate kit of tools for his purpose, but those bought should be good ones. Nothing costs so much as cheap tools. They cannot be depended on and never keep sharp very long at a time.

Tools should be kept where they can be found when wanted. A good many times it is a little trouble to replace a tool that has been used, but the time lost in putting it in place will be regained in being able to find it without stopping to remember where it was left, the next time it is needed.

The farmer's tool chest should contain a square, a try-square, a hand saw, several chisels, a brace and set of bits, a screw-driver, a scratch awl, two or three planes, a level, a hand ax, a draw shave and a good claw hammer.

If to these we add a clamp and a few drills and files of several sizes there is hardly a break that may not be temporarily mended without calling in the help of a mechanic. With tools to work with, gates may be made during rainy days, buildings put up and other odd jobs accomplished at times when no other work calls for attention.

With a set of tools to work with the boys will become skillful in handling them and develop whatever mechanical genius they may possess and be better prepared to save pennies and dimes later in life.

There is no way that $10 can be spent to better advantage than in the purchase of a set of tools for use at home.

A House of Doom. A short time ago a miner, Edward Colley, was killed as a result of an accident in the Wannamie Mine, in the great Pennsylvania coal fields.

Sixteen years ago William Colley was a mine contractor for the Alden Mountain Coal Company. He made money enough to educate his sons, Edward, Francis and Peter. On account of his belief regarding fatality among miners he tried to persuade his boys to take up some other profession, but they fitted themselves for practical miners. He reminded them of the violent deaths of five members of the family within six years, but they went into the mines despite his wishes.

Some weeks later the father was felled by a flying piece of rock. He recovered his physical strength, but his mind had been affected. One day he came home from the mine and informed his wife that he was going to purchase a farm in Sullivan county.

For three years William Colley's mind had been a blank. He sold the farm and returned to Wilkesbarre, where he is now employed by the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company. The three sons, delighted, went back to the coal mines. In rapid succession each has lost his life. Peter was killed by an explosion of gas in the Nottingham Colliery, of which he was inspector. Francis was drowned by the flooding of the Gaylord Mine, of which he was foreman. Edward was crushed to death, leaving William Colley and his wife alone in the world.

Humor of a Prince. The following anecdote illustrates the Prince of Wales' sense of humor as well as his preference for short sermons when at church. A Scotchman went to Balmoral by special command to preach before her majesty. Naturally he was overcome with nervousness. He was waiting for luncheon after service, when, greatly to his surprise, he was informed the prince wished to see him. Shaking hands with him warmly, his royal highness thanked him heartily for his sermon, especially for the brevity of it, adding: "My dear sir, you can't think what a relief it was. I have known sermons so long here that the very collic dogs have gone up the pulpit stairs and yawned in the preacher's face."

Cosily Leather. The leather which is used to tip the hammers of the best pianos is of a remarkably soft quality. It is prepared by a family of tanners in Thuringia, Germany, by means of a process the secret of which they alone possess. The skins are procured in this country from one kind of deer—the gray deer of the northern lake district. Any other buckskin is useless. An agency in Minneapolis supplies the German tanners with the hides, and they are successful customers that they have no other.

Prizes to Farmers.

The publishers of the Galveston News are earnestly endeavoring to bring about a healthy reaction in Texas farming. They did not believe in the one crop idea, and are zealously laboring to effect a change for the better in the farmer's financial condition. The News believes in prosperity, and is convinced that no real prosperity can exist that does not begin at the fountain head of civilized society—the producer.

To encourage prosperity in Texas, the News is offering a series of cash prizes, aggregating $250, for statement of actual operations and results in diversified farming from Oct. 1, 1898, to Sept. 30, 1899. The prizes are so arranged that any intelligent, progressive farmer in Texas can compete with a good chance of winning one.

Four cash prizes of from $5 to $20 will be awarded the coast country of Texas, four in the central, four in the northern portion of the state and four in the western.

Farmers throughout Texas are cordially invited to write their experience based upon this year's crops, specifying total number of acres in cultivation, etc. Send your articles to the News for publication. By so doing you will not only stand a good chance of winning a cash prize of $5, $10, $15 or $20, but you will also be aiding in a great movement for the betterment of the southern farmer's condition.

START THE GIRL RIGHT.

When the girl comes to be a woman—look out. If she starts out in vigorous, womanly health then it is pretty safe to say she will be a healthy, attractive, beautiful woman.

The beginning of womanhood is the real crisis in a woman's life. Nearly always something is wrong then in the distinctly feminine organs. Maybe it isn't very serious—no matter—the time to stop disease is when it starts.

McELREE'S WINE OF CARDUI

will bring girls safely through the crisis. Taken at the first indication of weakness, it never fails. It regulates the monthly periods with perfect precision. Its action is direct upon the feminine organs that above all others, ought to be strong and well.

Start the girl right. Don't expose her to the dangers and tortures of dragging weakness, bearing down pains, nervous prostration and the debilitating drains so common to women.

McElree's Wine of Cardui, is a home treatment. It does away entirely with abortive "local examinations."

Sold at $1.00 a Bottle by Dealers in Medicine.

CITATION.

THE STATE OF TEXAS. To the sheriff or any constable of Kerr county greeting: You are hereby commanded to summon Marie Yamin by making publication of this citation in some newspaper published in Kerr county, once in each week for four consecutive weeks, previous to the return day hereof to be and appear before the honorable district court of Kerr county, Texas, at the next regular term thereof, to be holden at the court house in Kerrville, on the 3rd day of April, A. D. 1899, then and there to answer the plaintiff's petition filed in a suit in said court on the 7th day of February, A. D. 1899, wherein Kaiser Yamin is plaintiff and Marie Yamin is defendant, the number of said suit being No. 545.

The nature of plaintiff's demand is as follows, to wit: Suit for divorce alleging excessive cruel treatment and abandonment by the defendant for more than one year. Prays judgment dissolving the bond of matrimony between himself and defendant, for costs of suit and for such other relief to which he may be entitled in law and equity.

Herein full Not, and have you then and there, before said court, this writ, with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.
