Vehicle Numbers Gain

SANTA FE. — Diego Salazar, vehicle commissioner, reported Tuesday that total registration of the state for the first five months of this year were 100,180 vehicles an increase of 12,718 over the same period in 1936. The increase in revenue to the state for the first five months of this year was $1,484,419.00, an increase of $1,190,000.00 over the same period. The increase in revenue was one and one third per cent, Salazar reported.

Conservancy Dist. To Get the Hondo Flood Waters

The way was cleared for a long planned project for recharging the artesian basin and preventing Rowland floods by a decision of Judge James B. McGhee in the Chaves county district court last Thursday granting the Pecos Valley Conservancy District the unappropriated flood waters of the Hondo river.

The proposed project which has been held up by protests, calls for the construction of diversion structures from the Hondo river at a point some 12 miles southwest of Roswell, to conduct flood waters into the Hondo reservoir, built by the United States reclamation service after the Roswell flood of 1904 and then abandoned because the bottom of the reservoir would not hold water.

The purpose of the project is two-fold—to protect Roswell from the floods and to recharge the artesian basin. It is declared by those with a knowledge of the artesian condition that water which sinks into the ground from the floor of the reservoir goes into the artesian basin.

Judge McGhee upheld the decision made by the state engineer, Tom McClure, on July 13th, 1936, granting the conservancy district the unappropriated Hondo flood waters. The state engineer's decision had been protested by the Hondo Irrigation Association and by individual members of the association.

Miss Martel Graham from Roswell spent last Friday night with home folks.

150 CCC Enrollees Fighting Erosion

SANTA FE. — One hundred fifty CCC workers were fighting ravages of Pecos river flood waters in the Fort Sumner area Monday, with the possibility that more would be sent in "immediately" to begin work on a permanent erosion control project.

State Engineer Thomas M. McClure, directing the work, informed Gov. Clyde Tingley the 150 men would be "sufficient" for the present. Emergency measures will be required because of the release of waters from the Alamogordo reservoir, he said, while "permanent construction will be absolutely essential" to prevent a recurrence of the damage.

Sen. Carl A. Hatch advised Tingley the department of agriculture was considering sending soil conservation service CCC workers to begin work on a permanent project of flood prevention.

MEN'S CLUB MEET

The men's club held their meeting, which had been postponed on account of inclement weather, on Tuesday evening at the basement of the church. The supper was served by members of the Presbyterian ladies aid society.

About fourteen were present. A committee was appointed to confer and cooperate with the town board in securing a right-of-way for the main street road project, the committee is as follows: Robt. Compstern, Jack Sweatt, Frank McCarthy, John Duke Garner, E. A. White.

Discussions were in order relative to the community fair in the autumn, a committee was appointed to begin work on necessary questions, this committee is: J. E. Vemberly and Parker Woodall. Woodull. Farmers are requested to preserve any farm products that are suitable for display.

The club decided to continue meeting during the summer months at the regular dates.

Rowland Resigns State WPA Head

Asks to Be Relieved of The Responsibilities of Office on June 30th

LETTER OF RESIGNATION DATED AT HOUSTON, TEXAS

Lea Rowland, state works progress administrator, in a letter of resignation to Harry L. Hopkins, national relief head made public at Santa Fe Tuesday night, asked to be "relieved" of his "responsibilities effective June 30" to return to "my home in Roswell and my personal affairs."

The letter, released at Rowland's direction from Houston, Texas where he is vacationing, was dated June 4. His office has not received a reply from Hopkins.

Rowland expressed his "deepest appreciation" to Governor and Mrs. Clyde Tingley "for the splendid cooperation received in behalf of the state of New Mexico."

"You and Mr. Robert Hinckley and representatives in this section have given me every support for which I am deeply grateful; and I know that will continue to be the case with my successor."

SABLEIN SAYS STOCK MEN TO GET RANGES

ALBUQUERQUE. — Almost all of the 600 stockmen in southeastern New Mexico who applied for license under the Taylor Grazing Act will receive them, J. E. Stablein, regional grazer, said Tuesday. LINCOLN COUNTY COURT HOUSE REQUESTED TO BE NATIONAL MONUMENT

In the last New Mexico legislative session, Senator Perry Sears of Lincoln County requested that the old Lincoln County Court House be declared a national monument.

From the office of U. S. Senator David Chavez comes a favorable report that the request of Sears is being listed for study and investigation by the National Park Service with a view of making it a national monument.

The Lincoln County Court House, well known to old timers, is rich in history of the old west, as familiar scenes of Billy the Kid's activities and other western characters.

Assembly Opens Monday—Ground Broken for Bldg.

The attendance at the intermediate assembly, which started at the assembly grounds of the Sacramento Methodist assembly is beyond all expectations according to the Rev. H. W. Jordan of Carlsbad, assembly manager. The enrollment is the greatest in the history of the assembly, the Rev. Jordan said Monday.

At 1:30 P. M. Monday, in an impressive ceremony, the ground was broken for the Young People's building, which the Young People of the New Mexico conference are erecting at the Methodist assembly grounds.

The Rev. H. W. Jordan, president of the Conference Board of Christian Education, was in charge of the service, and removed the first shovel of dirt. Assisting in the breaking of the ground were Mrs. I. J. Ayers of El Paso, representing the adults of the conference, the Rev. John Rice of Artesia, representing the young people, Charles Nelson of Clovis, representing the intermediates, and Mrs. J. F. Wason of Sacramento, representing the local church on the assembly grounds.

Dr. George W. Shearer, presiding elder of the Clovis district, delivered the address. Brief talks were made by Mrs. T. W. Guthrie of Wink, Texas, representing the adults, Miss Sammie Ruth Johnson, representing the young people, and Miss Georgia Hill of Marfa, Texas, representing the intermediates.

Nearly 150 people were gathered at the spot where the new building will be erected. The Young People of the New Mexico Conference have raised more than $500.00 in cash to date for this new building, which is to contain a recreation hall and a chapel for the assembly. Work will begin at once on the building, and the foundation and the floor will be ready for the Young People's Assembly, which opens next Monday, June 14. More than 300 young people are expected to come together at Sacramento from the states of Colorado, New Mexico and Texas.

WOLVES OF MEXICO CROSS INTO STATE

ALBUQUERQUE. — District Agent John C. Gatlin of the Biological Survey said yesterday the greatest number of wolves in more than ten years is crossing the Mexican border and menacing livestock of this state.

Five were killed in Hidalgo county in May, the greatest number since 1924. Gatlin attributed the increase to Mexican restrictions which have driven ranchers out of Northern Mexico, consequently lessening the attack on the predators.

A partial eclipse was seen briefly in New Mexico.

REA Project To Be Ready by Fall

Farmers in southern Chaves county and northern Eddy county will have electricity by next fall under a rural electrification administration project if the REA normal progress schedule is followed, according to a bulletin to The Advocate from the REA.

The project (4 and 4G) is sponsored by the Central Valley Rural Cooperative Electric company of Lake Arthur. The project calls for 84 miles of electric lines, from the Cottonwood community south to Artesia, serving 134 customers, and for the construction of a generating plant.

The REA has made a partial allotment of $164,000 for this project. Of this amount, $60,000 will be used to build a generating plant to supply wholesale energy and $104,000 to build electric lines.

Nominations for the project superintendent, lawyer and engineer should be sent to the REA for approval in the very near future. The loan contract will be sent to the project sponsors by the REA about the middle of June. This should be executed and returned promptly.

The bulletin makes the following explanation: "The normal progress schedule for REA projects has been established on the basis of normal conditions. Local conditions beyond the control of anyone often cause delays."

Riveter Killed In Fall From A Tank

M. A. Love Loses Life in a Thirty Foot Fall From Tank

BODY HELD AT HOBBS PENDING FUNERAL

M. A. Love, aged about 43, employee of the Panhandle Tank Co., sub-contractors for Folkner and Folkner of Artesia, met death last Thursday in a fall from a 55,000 barrel tank at Lea in Lea county last week. Love, employed as a riveter was working on a scaffold and attempted to pull a heavy riveting machine up when a plank on the scaffold broke, hurling him thirty feet to the ground. In falling Love cut off his leg just above the knee when he hit a jagged plank. The broken limb stuck in the ground and in the fall Love broke his spine just below the neck. He was rushed to a Hobbs hospital and lived until about midnight Thursday.

The unfortunate worker was employed on the last 55,000 barrel tanks to be erected on the Texas Lynch lease near Lea for the Trans-Pecos Pipe Line Co., Love was a native of Southern Louisiana and at the last word received here his body was being held at Hobbs pending word from relatives.

Injunction Suit On Water Rights to be Heard 24th

On June 24th in the Chaves county district court, at Roswell, Judge Thomas J. Mabry of Albuquerque will hear injunction suits against five Pecos valley farmers who allegedly appropriated shallow ground water without a permit from the state engineer, Lake K. Frazier, assistant district attorney, announced at Roswell Saturday.

The five defendants were among a large number whose applications for permits to appropriate shallow ground water was protested by six artesian well owners on the grounds the allowance of the applications would be detrimental to their prior rights.

The defendants allegedly drilled shallow wells and appropriated shallow water without permit from the state engineer and court action was instituted by the district attorney's office, at the request of the state engineer, seeking to enjoin them from making further appropriations without permits.

There is contention on whether the state engineer has a right to control the shallow ground water under the state law by which he is given power to regulate the appropriation of water from the artesian basin.

O. B. Berry, one of the farmers whose application for drilling shallow wells was protested, has filed a ten thousand dollar damage suit against the six protestants, claiming their protest resulted in the withholding of the permit for this crop season and the subsequent loss of crops. This case has not yet been tried.

Flood Sufferers May Get Loans

Flood sufferers may obtain emergency rehabilitation loans, it was announced at Roswell late Saturday following a telegram received by Lieutenant Governor Hiram Dow, in charge of flood relief work from Senator Carl Hatch. Rehabilitation funds may be obtained from the disastored loan corporation on personal notes or chattel mortgages.

The telegram from Hatch was in response to an inquiry by Dow on how loans for flood sufferers might be obtained. Dow met with committees in Roswell Saturday from the various flood areas. Estimates on the damages done by the floods includes: public property damage, $100,000; 10,000 acres of farm land and crops; damage to Chaves county roads and bridges $30,000. Damage to Roswell streets and bridges $50,000 to $75,000.

Estimate of the damages were sent to Governor Tingley with request that a representative of the disaster loan corporation be sent to the Roswell area for an investigation.

PEERLESS PUMPS FIRST IN FLOOD EMERGENCY

When the recent series of floods hit Roswell on the morning of May 29th, Clifford Smith of the Smith-Minton Machinery Co., Peerless distributor, was first to realize that basements in both the business and residential sections much be quickly dewatered.

Mr. Smith immediately contacted J. E. Durston, Peerless sales engineer who was at the Nickson hotel and secured permission to convert a portable demonstrator pump into a de-watering unit.

Arrangements were then made with the Roswell radio station KGEL to make announcements of this service with the result that some fifty basements have been dewatered to date.

FREE CEMETERY GETS A RUSHING BUSINESS

ORANGE, Texas. — Citizens of Williamson community complain they are being crowded out of their free cemetery, given to the community several years ago by a lumber company.

Jasper Williamson, protesting to county commissioners on behalf of the community's residents, said that because the space was free and digging easy, persons from all over East Texas were using the cemetery. One woman told commissioners that someone had been buried in the space beside her husband which she expected to occupy.

Mrs. Martin Brannon visited in Roswell last Saturday afternoon.

Flood Danger Passes - River Flow in Banks

Estimate of Damages is Yet Undetermined — CCC Enrollees Save Lake McMillian Dam — Re-Open Rail Service.

Pecos valley residents breathed easier Monday as the second flood danger passed. Torrential rains in the vicinity of Santa Rosa late Thursday afternoon sent the Pecos river on its second rampage and washed out the Santa Fe bridge at Fort Sumner. In the meantime leaks developed at Lake McMillian dam and threatened to carry the flood waters down the Pecos unchecked.

Two hundred and fifty CCC camp enrollees were rushed to the scene of the impending disaster and the men began sand bagging a big leak in the dam about midway between the spillway and head gates. A total of 12,000 sacks of sand and several truck loads of loose dirt were used in stopping the leak. The CCC camp at Carlsbad and at Queen supplied the manpower for the emergency that saved Carlsbad from the greatest flood danger in history. Roswell was flooded for the third time Thursday afternoon with a heavy rain and hail storm, which fell south and west of that city. Some hail fell in the Atoka community Thursday afternoon, but despite the enormous size of the hail stones, little damage was done. One farmer said the hail appeared to just "float down."

On highway 83, flood waters almost reached the height attained on May 30th, however water did not reach as high on farmers along the river. The Lawrence ranch was practically all inundated in the first flood, but only about ninety acres was covered the second flood. Practically all crops underwater were lost and farmers have been busy replanting cotton and feed. On the Lawrence ranch cotton was the principal crop planted, but in other areas, particularly when the hail struck, most of the land was replanted to feed. The kind of crop replanted depended on the character of the soil.

Rail connection has been established both north and south on the Santa Fe railway system. C. O. Brown, agent said yesterday. Repairs on the Carlsbad Pecos line were completed Tuesday afternoon and yesterday the bridge over the Pecos north of Roswell was finished so that north traffic could be resumed. Three freights left three Pecos valley points, Artesia, Carlsbad and Roswell yesterday afternoon about 4:00 o'clock, cleaning up the accumulated freight in the yards of the three places, which had accumulated for the past two weeks.

Monday a highway truck crossed the Pecos river bridge on highway 83. Traffic to the oil field has been crossing over the bridge east of Lake Arthur and the bridge east of Carlsbad.

Seventy five families in the flooded area have been supplied with relief funds through the cooperation of the New Mexico department of public welfare and the national Red Cross, district officials said at Roswell yesterday. Relief work has been done in the vicinity of the Berrendo, Dexter, Hagerman and Lake Arthur.

Supplemental resettlement loans have been made to fourteen farmers in the flood area also, resettlement officials announced yesterday.

Collection State Taxes Increasing

SANTA FE. — State Revenue Commissioner John D. Bingham reported Monday collections of $685,762 from the sales, gasoline and liquor stamp taxes, and a total of $107,220 from the new severance tax on natural resources up to June 1.

This, the first report on the severance tax, indicates an annual collection from that source of about $750,000, Bingham said. All the money thus obtained goes toward relief.

Sales tax collections in May were $288,672, against $16,579 in May 1936; gasoline tax, $354,556, against $300,026, liquor stamp tax, $42,534, against $32,459.

Miss Lois Jenkins has returned from Eastern New Mexico Junior College to spend the summer at home.

SYNOPSIS

Warren Lovett, thirty-three, junior partner in the powerful Wellington, Parkes & Lovett, Incorporated Mines of Chicago, which engages in questionable transactions, plans to make a secret coup in the Canadian Arctic, where a few years before a rich but inaccessible mining field has been discovered on Resurrection river, which flows into Dynamite Bay. Patricia, high spirited and beautiful daughter of crusty old Jasper Wellington, who is engaged to Warren, decides to accompany him. They go by plane. Pat meets "Poleon," a French-Canadian prospector, who tells her there are only 300 prospectors in the field and that because of the difficulties, they are hanging on by a thread. Pat is disturbed when Warren will not disclose what his secret mission is. She meets Sam Honeywell, a friend of Poleon's. Moved by the plight of Bill Fornier, a prospector who, though fatally ill, struggles to hold his claim, Pat decides to help him. Informed by Lupe Chiuwaughimi, half-breed retainer of the company, about Pat's befriending of the prospectors, Warren tries to dissuade her. He tells her that Craig Tarlton, with whom she had once been in love, is now deputy mining inspector for the Resurrection river area. A brilliant geologist, he had resigned in disgust from her father's company because of its devious methods. Later she meets Craig, but he is cold, inferring that she is merely feigning interest in the prospectors. Her compassion for the hapless prospectors grows, Pat decides to build a huge community house of Den. When the job nears completion, Warren tells her to abandon it. She refuses after a stormy scene. Craig leaves on a three-month inspection trip to the north. Pat learns that her father has withdrawn her allowance. Warren tells her now she will have to go home. He refuses to advance her a loan to aid the prospectors. She moves her tent across the river near the Den. She learns now of Warren's plan. He hopes to starve the prospectors out and make them sell their claims for a song. Pat tells the prospectors of Warren's plan. Still attentive to Pat, Warren wages a subtle campaign to get the claims. Just before Christmas, Craig returns suddenly and Pat is overjoyed at his changed attitude. He brings her a present of furs and apologizes for his former suspicions. Concluding that she cannot ever marry Warren, Pat returns her engagement ring.

"Of course not! But why are you asking this?"

"Dear, have you ever paused to reflect that my business here at Dynamite Bay is to make money for the firm, for the Wellington and Parkes families, and so, ultimately, for you, since you intend to go back home? What I'm doing here is done in part for you. Yet you've fought me every step of the way, and now—now you've broken your engagement to me. Don't you think that you're a little unjust and inconsistent?"

Patricia did not answer him. There was no answer to his charge. In the past few months she herself had been torn by the inconsistency which he was pointing out now. If Warren's business here at the Bay was dishonest, then she had been living all her life on dishonest money.

Warren went on: "I think the time may come, Patricia, when you will wish to resume our engagement. You feel now that such an event is a remote possibility, but maybe you don't see this whole situation as clearly as I do." He moved around behind the desk, opened a little drawer and laid the ring in a small plush box. "I'm putting our ring in here, dear. It will always be here, waiting for you. Will you remember that it's waiting for you, and that I'm always asking you to wear it again?"

"Yes," Patricia promised, to assuage his hurt. "But, Warren, please don't build up hope. It'll only be the harder on you."

"I won't hope, dear. I'll only wait."

The word jarred on Patricia. It seemed tinged with prophecy, as though Warren was confident that she would ultimately come back to him, under the pressure of inexorable forces.

Moving around the desk, he confronted her again.

"Tell me, Patricia—how much did Tarlton's return to the Bay have to do with your decision to break our engagement?"

"Nothing!" she denied.

"Tarlton likes you, doesn't he?"

"He does not! He brought me these clothes because—well, as an atonement for some unjust things that he said to me last fall."

"I'm glad to hear this. I'd be even gladder if I could feel sure that he is not going to show you any attentions at all."

His mysterious tone alarmed Patricia. "Why shouldn't he show me attentions?" she demanded.

"What're you driving at?"

"Did it ever occur to you, dear, that there's a dark place in the two years that Tarlton spent on the West coast? I mean, in his private life out there?"

Patricia drew back in sudden fright.

"What is it you know?" she cried.

"You've been probing around in his past! You're afraid of him; you've been trying to dig up something against him. What'd you dig up? What'd he do there at Vancouver?"

"If I probed into his past, it was only to protect you. I don't like the duty of telling you this, but I'm compelled to. Tarlton is married."

Patricia went white of face.

"Married?" she gasped, brokenly.

"Craig—married—?"

Warren nodded. "He is There in Vancouver he was married. I don't care to go into the details of it. Let him do that—if he will." He paused, watched the devastating effect of his news upon Patricia. Then he added: "Take a friend's advice, dear—don't associate too much with Tarlton."

CHAPTER VII

On his lone vigil with Bill Fornier, Craig wearily stirred the fire in the stove, put in fresh wood, and came back to the bunk where Bill was lying.

Moving restlessly, Fornier was on the point of waking out of his drugged doze. As Craig anxiously watched, he thought it would be merciful if Bill did not come back to consciousness at all. Consciousness only meant a feverish worry about his claims, and a hopeless longing to see his wife and little girl before he died.

Bill moved, and his eyes opened, heavy and slow.

"What place—is this?" he asked, gropingly.

"You're in my cabin, Bill; my cabin at the Bay."

Bill did not seem to realize who was beside him. He struggled with the blankets and tried to sit up.

"Where's Lea? Why ain't she around?" he demanded. He shook his head, as though to clear the fog out of it. "Uh, I keep forgetting; this is the Bay, ain't it?—and she's over on the Mackenzie, at home." He pushed away Craig's restraining hand. "I got to get back there. Got to!"

Craig held a candle so that Bill could see him distinctly. "Bill, look at me. Everything's all right, old man. But you must lie quiet, mustn't struggle like that."

Bill recognized him then. "Craig!" he said. "After a moment he lay back.

Presently, more rational, he begged: "Can't you send for 'em somehow, Craig? Can't Miss Pat get one of them big red ships to go? It's been two whole year since I saw 'em. I promised Lea I'd come home. That was the last thing I told her." He grew excited, gripped Craig's wrist. "I'm gonna go back—"

Craig reached for the hypo which he kept ready on a chair. In a few minutes Fornier was lying quiet again, oblivious to his silver claims and his home over west on the Mackenzie.

As he sat there beside the bunk, hour upon hour, Craig was thinking of this Dynamite Bay situation and debating the righteous course for himself to take. Except for the quiet word which he had passed around to the prospectors last fall, "Hang on to your claims; don't sell out to Lovett," he had kept aloof from the struggle. Four years of disillusioned thinking had made him dubious about espousing causes. Where Patricia had plunged headlong into the fight, he had maintained a scientific detachment, from which he could study and judge without partisan bias. Broader of outlook than Patricia, he thought in terms of social forces where she thought in terms of individual people. This battle was her whole horizon; but he saw it as just one isolated instance—there were many Lovetts, many Dynamite Bays.

The injustice of the situation had aroused a slow deep anger in him. He had begun to ask himself whether it was right of him to sit back, take no hand, see these men get ironed out flat by the steamroller of Wellington, Parkes & Lovett. He went further and asked whether his four years of detachment should not be brought to an end. Those years of thoughtful study had been an invaluable phase, but it seemed to him that this phase was drawing to its inevitable close and that he would have to chart a new path for himself. There was a time for thought, and a time for action.

On one of his trips to the stove, to thrust in fresh wood and pour himself a cup of coffee, he scraped the rime from a window pane and looked out into the storm. It had reached its worst at last; had settled to the steady, full-lunged roar that marked its peak. In the blind seething swirl he could see nothing except the nearest pines—a drove of huge black animals tossing, pawing and rearing.

He thought it fitting that Bill Fornier, Arctic born and bred, should be passing in this storm—riding away in the fury of the worst that the Arctic could unleash.

When he went back to the bunk, Bill was awake. More clear-headed than at any previous time, he was also weaker, so weak that his voice was gone and he had to whisper.

"Those claims of mine, Craig—I didn't git the work done on 'em. Lea will be left without—"

"Bill, now listen to me. I'm taking care of those claims. I spotted 'em for you in the first place, and I'll see that you—that Lea gets 'em in the end. That's a promise."

Bill's lips moved. "If you promise, then everything's—all right."

His eyes closed and he lay still. The expression that came over his face, the unwanted peace and quietude, startled Craig. He leaned down, felt for a pulse beat, found none.

"Bill!" He shook Fornier's shoulder. "Bill!"

After several minutes he gently straightened out Bill's arms and drew a blanket up over the bunk.

On New Year's day, Craig started across the river to see Warren.

For an entire week—since Christmas—he had kept to his cabin, secluded from everybody, thinking, mapping a new course for himself. The slowly gathering forces which had been at work in him for many months had at last won out. The death of Bill Fornier merely marked the end of the old epoch and the beginning of a radically different one.

Warren received him courteously, drew a chair near the desk, held a match for his cigarette.

"Warren"—Craig went straight to the point—"I've been thinking about this deadlocked fight between your company and these men. I'm wondering why you and I can't work out some agreement whereby they'll get substantial justice and the company will make a good profit on its undertaking in this field."

Warren tapped the ashes from his cigarette. "You have some specific agreement in mind?" he inquired.

"Yes. Instead of buying these claims outright, your company would buy a part interest. Two thirds, let's say. That way the men wouldn't be left out entirely, later on, when the actual mining begins; and still your company would be getting the big cut."

"Your suggestion," Warren said dryly, "is a fine one—for these men. But from the company's viewpoint it isn't so fetching. Let me correct you about one thing: This fight is not deadlocked. In the last week I've bought 60 claims. The stampede that I've been waiting for has begun. Within a month I'll own this field. Why, then, should I stop short of my complete program?"

"I'd Like to Have a Talk With You Treeshia."

"You mean, why should you be content with two thirds when you can get it all?"

"If you wish to put it that way, yes."

"Why, damn it, Warren, because of the human justice involved! Doesn't the welfare of 300 men count for something? Most of them are married, have families—"

"The company," Warren cut him short, "has no responsibility toward them or their families."

Craig was little disappointed by Warren's cold refusal to arbitrate, for he had expected it. He had come across the river merely because he did not wish to throw away any hope, however faint, of settling this struggle peacefully.

"So you don't recognize any responsibility," he mused. "Well, that's hardly a surprise. The house of Wellington, Parkes & Lovett wasn't founded on consideration of others, as I well know. The history of their deals with prospectors and operating mine companies would read like a slaughter-house story."

Warren drummed impatiently on his desk. "I've heard that same line before, Tarlton—from people who haven't got any money themselves."

"If you're aiming that remark at me, why, I made and threw away two fortunes, friend, while you were grubbing around after your first one!" He paused, to let that fact sink in; and then he went on: "Old Jasper Wellington belonged to a generation whose ideal was to capture the timber and land and mines and oil and finances of a nation, and wield a power as tyrannical as any old feudal baron ever wielded. But men like him won't be tolerated in the boat any longer, to scuttle the welfare of whole large groups and play havoc with honest business companies. It's your good luck and mine, Warren, that we belong to a generation which has thrown out that old plunder-lust philosophy and is groping toward something nobler—"

Warren shoved back his chair. "Listen, Tarlton—I don't care to hear a lecture on political economy of the prophetic sort. And I'm not interested in your proposition about these claims. Did you have anything else to say?"

Craig got up. "Only this: I offered you a deal, Warren, and you wouldn't take it. We could settle this fight peacefully, but you refuse. Now we'll have to settle it on the basis of might. We'll battle it out."

"That suits me very well," Warren returned. He came around from behind the desk. "By the way, Tarlton, there's a private matter I'd like to mention to you before you go. Now that you too have declared war, you'll likely be joining with Patricia. I can't stop that, but Under the circumstances I must ask you not to associate with her personally in any way whatsoever."

"What circumstances are you referring to?"

"The fact that you have a wife."

"Hmhmhm! So you dug that up. You've told Patricia, I suppose?"

"Don't you think she ought to know?"

"I don't consider it of much importance."

"Good heavens!"

"Yes, good heavens. It's a sheer technicality. Besides, if the occasion ever arises, I myself will tell her about that misadventure."

"The whole story?"

"Quite. Far more, in fact, than you've followed him to the door. I think you're treating this Rosalie matter too lightly, Tarlton. It may turn out to be more important than you think. If you won't take my warning, you'll take the consequences."

"Don't be so mysterious, Warren. What's up your sleeve?"

Warren started to say something, but checked himself and nodded a curt good-bye.

As Craig went back across Resurrection, he wondered whether that ugly word "consequences" was a poker-faced bluff or a genuine warning. He didn't know, didn't much care. For he was looking ahead to his battle against Warren and the company; and an exultation was pulsing in his veins. It felt good to be on the warpath again, gunning for powerful enemies; good to be back in action, in the thick of a fight once more. A surge of unlocked energy ran strong in him, like a river at break-up.

At Patricia's cabin no one answered his knock; and he went over to the community house.

It was the first time that he had entered the Den. With curious eyes he looked around at Patricia's handiwork as he passed through the gear-cluttered entrance-way and stepped inside the main room.

Although the Den was comfortable and cheery, it was a rough and rowdy place, truly the den of 75 rock-hogs. As Craig looked around the big room, he thought of the Wellington North Shore mansion, where he first had met Patricia; and he wondered how on earth she, a girl and a blue-blood besides, could endure the uncouth manners and ways of these heavy-booted miners. It took something more than sympathy. It took courage, took a fighting heart and a deep conviction of righteousness.

Not glimpsing her anywhere in the room, he asked a prospector, "Where's Miss Wellington, Dave?"

"Over in the office," the man informed, pointing at a niche beside the huge fireplace on the west side.

Craig stepped over. The "office" proved to be a little six-by-eight cubbyhole, fitted into the fireplace angle and boarded off so as to shut out the bedlam of the main room.

At his knock a girl's voice demanded: "Who is it? I'm busy. What do you want?"

"It's Tarlton. I'm sorry to've disturbed you. I'll come back some other—"

"Craig! Wait!" He heard her chair slide back hastily. The door flung open and she stood before him. "Please don't go. I'm not busy, really; it's just that these men come trooping to me all day long with all sorts of troubles. I'm getting to growl and bark like a sergeant-major."

In her belted corduroy suit she looked so winsome and girlish that Craig smiled at the idea of her growling and barking.

He stepped into the office. "I'd like to have a talk with you, Treeshia."

Her cheeks colored. He wondered why.

"I was just glancing about at 'the house that Pat built,'" he remarked. "It's really fine, Treeshia. You can be proud of it."

"Blue Dan" Webster

When Daniel Webster left his country home for college and then on to fame as orator-statesman, he was clad in a suit of all homespun cloth and rode to the college town on horseback. On the way rain drenched him to the skin, the sun, deeply, darkly and beautifully blue, transferred its blue to his shirt and skin, dyeing him blue from head to foot.

President Still Insists on Supreme Court Bill, Which Raymond Moley Scores—Disturbing Developments in the Field of Organized Labor.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

VALIDATION of the social security act by the Supreme Court most pleasing to President Hoover, but he did not agree with the general opinion that this would put a stop to his program for enlargement of the highest tribunal. He more than intimated in a press conference that the fight for his court bill would be fought to a finish and that he was not satisfied with the apparently slender "liberal" majority since a number of important administration policies are to be passed upon by the Supreme Court. He cited four issues, namely, child labor, minimum wages, maximum hours, and the question whether goods produced under unfair practices can be regulated by the government. He also mentioned TVA, the problems of flood control on the Ohio watershed, the question of municipalities to borrow money to construct electric plants, and whether the government can condemn property for housing program.

One of those who believe the president's court plan is doomed is Raymond Moley, former head of the "brain trust." Addressing the Illinois Bankers' convention in Chicago, Dr. Moley sharply attacked the scheme. "The President," he said, "has taken the dangers of a government of men. Well, there is something worse than a government of men, it is a government by a man. That law and all constitutional limitations down the ages are real barriers and check-reins upon this tendency in rulers to lose their heads in the intoxication of power."

There are incidental factors that have contributed to the defeat of the president's proposal to violate in any way the spirit of the constitution. The change in the philosophy dominating the majority opinion of the court has helped. The scattering of the attorney general's insubstantial statistics by the chief justice is another. The retirement of Justice Van Devanter has helped, too.

"But behind all this has been a new and powerful surge of public opinion. The people prefer the ability of constitutional institutions against the unpredictable will of leaders, even very popular leaders."

FINAL passage of the $1,500,000,000 work relief bill by the house was delayed by rebellion against the practice of "writing blank checks" which give the President Harry Hopkins power to spend relief funds as they deem fit. The opponents of this policy found in the revolt a chance to obtain a lot of "pork" by the earmarking of more than half a billion from the bill appropriation for projects that would get votes. In a day of wild debate these major changes in the bill were voted:

$35,000,000 to be set aside for flood control and water conservation work.
$300,000,000 to be "earmarked" for PWA projects.
$150,000,000 to be spent on highway and grade crossing elimination projects.

Authority to use work-relief money for construction of power lines into rural sections for non-profit and co-operative utility projects.
Unskilled and agricultural workers who refuse private jobs will be eligible for work-relief as long as private job is available.

CONTINUING its vigorous campaign to organize the steel industry, the C. I. O. called out on strike the employees of the independent companies that refused to bargain. These companies were Inland Steel, Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube. More than 20 plants were involved about 85,000 men were employed. Philip Murray, chairman of the organizing committee, said it was the purpose of the committee to conduct the strike peacefully. In the Chicago district police arrested a number of strikers for violating the rule against mass picketing and for other offenses, and there was some trouble in Buffalo.

Employees of the Sharon Steel corporation followed the example of those of the Jones & Laughlin concern and voted in favor of the S. I. O. C. by a large majority, so the S. I. O. gets contracts from those companies.
Operations in the huge Pittsburgh plant of the H. J. Heinz company were interrupted by a strike of the canning and Pickle Workers' union. The strikers demanded a 10 per cent wage increase and recognition of the union, an A. F. of L. affiliate, as sole bargaining agency.

FORD employees at the Rouge plant, Detroit, took matters into their own hands and severely pummeled a number of U. A. W. A. men who undertook to distribute at the plant gates handbills designed to offset the "Fordisms" card that had been given Henry's workers. Among the union men beaten up were Walter Reuther, R. T. Frankenstein, J. J. Kennedy and Robert Canter. Frankenstein telegraphed John Brophy, director of the Committee for Industrial Organization, at Washington, asking:

"Will the C. I. O. co-operate in simultaneous nationwide demonstration before Ford salesrooms to protest brutality at Ford's today and establish the right to organize?"

At the same time a strike of C. I. O. men closed the Ford assembly plant at Richmond, Calif., forcing 1,800 workers into idleness. The local union head there predicted strikes might spread rapidly from that beginning, possibly to all the Ford plants.

HEADS of unions affiliated with the A. F. of L., meeting in Cincinnati with President William Green and the executive council, went ahead with the plans to combat Lewis and the C. I. O. One of their first steps, it was indicated, is to be an invasion of Lewis' own union, the United Mine Workers of America, through the granting of a charter to its rival, the Progressive Miners' union in Illinois. Drives are expected in the anthracite fields of Pennsylvania and the soft coal fields of Virginia, where there is considerable opposition to Lewis.

The United Garment Workers also declared war on the Amalgamated Clothing Workers whose chief is Sidney Hillman, first lieutenant of Lewis in the C. I. O.

In the Cincinnati conference John P. Frey, veteran president of the federation's metal trades department, accused the C. I. O. and the communist party of "sleeping in the same bed and under the same tent." Communists had obtained such a grip on the Lewis movement that C. I. O. leaders could not shake them off if they wanted to, Frey said. He contended the C. I. O. had sixty Communist organizers on its payroll and that C. I. O. tactics were discussed in Moscow long before they were discussed in Lewis' office.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT in a special message asked congress to enact a new law for the benefit of workers in interstate industries, regulating the hours of work, the wages and the employment of children. Immediately after it was read, Chairman Hugo L. Black of the senate labor committee and Chairman William R. Connery of the house labor committee introduced identical bills designed to carry out the proposals of the President. The measure had been agreed upon in conferences at the White House and was promptly referred to committees with prospect of quick action. It had been approved by John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O., but since laws setting minimum wages for men have always been opposed by leaders of the American Federation of Labor, it was considered probable that organization would not like the bill.

The twin bills originally had proposed a forty hour maximum week and a 40 cents an hour minimum wage. But, at the last moment, these limits were eliminated and spaces in the measures left blank for congress to fill.

STANLEY BALDWIN, prime minister of Great Britain, entertained the king and queen at dinner and then retired from his high office. He is succeeded as head of the government by Neville Chamberlain, who has been chancellor of the exchequer, and a few other changes in the cabinet were made.

If another war comes, the British empire will not be caught unprepared. The imperial conference in London turned its attention to this matter and a special committee was formed to organize all the empire's resources for an instant shift to war footing if that becomes necessary. A subcommittee studied the problem of American competition with British shipping in the Pacific. British ship owners charge that the Americans are driving them out of business there because the latter are heavily subsidized.

Improved Uniform SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for June 13 THE BROTHERLY LOVE OF JUDAH

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 44:18-34. GOLDEN TEXT—Let brotherly love continue Hebrews 13:1. PRIMARY TOPIC—Benjamin's Big Brother. JUNIOR TOPIC—Big Brothers. INTERMEDIATE TOPIC—Loving as a Brother. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Self-Sacrifice in the Family.

The fundamental unit of society is the family. It is of more importance than the state, the church, and the social order of which it is a part. The breakdown of the home and the sacred relationships sustained between parents and children, or brothers and sisters, point to the destruction of society itself. God established the family in the Garden of Eden. His plan and purpose have never been changed, nor have his laws for the protection of the home, for the sanctity of marriage, for brotherly love, been set aside. Men and nations may devise other plans and follow the dictates of the flesh, but that road always leads to ruin.

The continuation of our story of the life of Joseph and his brethren brings before us today the filial and paternal love of Judah, and affords us an opportunity to stress true brotherly devotion. No one should fail to review the connection between the chapter before us and the lesson of last week. Joseph had been dealing with his brethren who had failed to recognize him as the one they had sold into captivity. He was bringing them kindly but definitely to that point of repentance at which he could show himself gracious to them. In doing so he had brought disaster upon them. Being with a new supply of food, they were overtaken and Benjamin, the beloved of Jacob, stands accused as a thief, and by their own words condemned to die.

In this crisis the mouths of the ten others are closed, but Judah, who had really saved the life of Joseph (Gen. 37:26; 27), stands forth to make an eloquent and pathetic appeal to Joseph. It presents him as a brother who is I. Courageous Easy rests the yoke of family life as long as all is joyful and prosperous. But when adversity strikes, when sorrow comes, or sickness, or sin, then the true test of devotion is at hand. It was a brave and manly thing for Judah to stand before the one whom he knew only as the man who was "even as Pharaoh." The circumstances were all against him. He expected the flaming anger of the offended ruler. His brethren had collapsed in despair. It was one of those dark hours which come to every family when someone must demonstrate true love by being strong-hearted and steady.

II. Intelligent. Crises call for more than a cheerful smile or an encouraging word, much as they do mean in such an hour. But we must be prepared by our close contact with our loved ones to speak and act with vigor and assurance.

The plea of Judah is a masterpiece of logic, argumentation, and appeal, demonstrating that Judah was not only well-informed about his family and its problems, but ready to use his knowledge skillfully and effectively. III. Sacrificial. One step deeper goes the devotion of this man to his father and his brother. He has done no wrong that merits punishment, but evidently his brother has been guilty. Had he said "Am I my brother's keeper?" and let him answer for himself. Why should he suffer for another? Why should he allow himself to be imprisoned in a strange land to save his father from sorrow and his brother from what seemed to be the just reward for his deeds?

Thus reasons the man of the world, but such is not the language of love. "Let thy servant abide instead of the lad as a bondsman"—so speaks the true brother. And this is but a faint prefiguring of the One "who sticketh closer than a brother," who "though he was rich, yet for your sakes became poor that ye through his poverty might be rich" (Prov. 18:24; II Cor. 8:9).

Let us improve the opportunity to review our relations with our own family, to determine whether there is aught that we in intelligent and courageous self-sacrifice should do for our own.

Never Despair. Let no man despair of himself. We may be sepulchres full of dead powers; but Christ is the resurrection and the life, to make us shrines full of living, seeing, soaring, rejoicing thoughts and passions.—Dr. W. L. Watkinson.

Faults Showing Up. The good often sigh more over little faults than the wicked over great. Hence an old proverb, that the stain appears greater according to the brilliancy of what it touches.—Palmieri.

Wide Use of Prints for Sports Togs

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHEN the world takes a holiday at the beach, tennis court, golf course, aboard ship or wherever vacation lures the playful, watch prints. We promise you that you will see prints this summer such as you have never seen before, armies of them, droves of them, processions of them!

It would seem as if style creators are just discovering that if there is one place more than another where riotously gay prints lend themselves dramatically to the picture, it is at the beach and its environs. The vibrant blue and green hues of the sea, the vast dome of a glamorous opalescent sky, the bright glare of the sun, the stretches of golden sand call to the colors, and to more color and more in the fashion parade.

So it is that prints for beach and for swim wear have become a hobby with designers this summer. Needless to say, for the most part it's linens and cottons that "steal the show" when it comes to rollicking, frolicking beach and sea-going costumes. The grand thing about the spectacular printed linens and cottons that are so thrillingly enlivening the pageantry of fashion where sea-breezes blow is that you can wear them with all confidence, knowing that they have been scientifically processed so that they won't shrink and they won't lose their high color no matter how wet the water, no matter how many duckings they get, no matter how relentlessly scorching sun rays attack. This assurance of non-shrinkage and of color endurance that goes with modern wash materials has, as a matter of fact, proved persuasive in encouraging the movement that is now on of featuring tub prints in a big way for beach fashions and also for swim suits.

As to whether you don linen or cotton in the existent orgy of prints that is being staged on land or sea is entirely a matter of choice since one is declared as good style as the other. A truly amphibian suit done in the modern spirit is worn by the exultant water nymph centered in the accompanying picture. A swim suit of this type, made of print, the patterning of which is as smart and distinctive as is this patterning and which is guaranteed sanforized shrunk as is this print, will do honor to even the most ultra-ultra-cruise wardrobes.

Any girl would look pert and modern in the clever sport pajamas here shown. It is one of the newer prints that have so much swank and at the same time so many practical advantages not only for beach wear but for house wear as well. This gaily patterned linen washes like a hankie.

And do for fashion's sake see the cunning play suit to the right in the group. Yes, you can have a costume exactly like it, buy it already made or get the material and sew your own. The new Hungarian cotton prints such as have been used for the making of this fetching outfit are selling as fast as they can be measured off on the yard-stick. The colors are rich and glowing and the prints faithfully reproduce original old-world fabrics. The trick is to make them up in keeping with their quaint design, in just some such peasant manner as here shown. Full skirt of course and rather short is according to the prescribed formula. Tune it to practical active sports wear by choosing a divided-skirt pattern. Let the bodice be backless for comfort and for "style" on a hot summer day. And to the entire add a smart bolero to give it that picturesque peasant flavor which fashion thinks so well of this season.

TIPLESS GLOVES

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Here it is, the latest step toward chic and toward greater freedom—the tipless glove, cut to show brightly polished nails. The open-air fever, starting with toothless shoes and crownless hats, has gone to the fingers. If your gloves are copper red as gloves and accessories are apt to be these days it's robin-red nail polish you'll be wanting. The suit is of horizon blue, softest feather-weight woolen. The wide revers, the modified umbrella skirt, the squared shoulders and the boxy jacket with its jaunty swing make this smart street-and-travel costume as modish as it is practical.

PASTEL LACES FOR WEDDING DRESSES

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Pastel laces for the wedding gown, as well as the bridal party's dresses are a new note this season, and one that bids fair to gain in popularity through the season. Very pale pastel are used, so pale that they are almost white, and yet have a special shimmer that would not be attained of plain white. One of the latest of these pastel wedding gowns that we have seen is of palest blue linen thread, and the edge of the train, and the edge of the slit skirt, are scalloped with the scalloping accented by tiny-pleated net in the same blue. The neckline, too, is edged with the fine net pleating.

Net, as well as lace, ranks highly for bridal gowns this season. Silk net, particularly, is adapted to molding the figure, and when cut on a princess line, accenting the slender figure, it makes a truly beautiful bridal gown. And whereas net veils are prevalent over lace bridal gowns, a net wedding dress is best set off by a lovely lace wedding veil. One veil that we have seen, over a net gown, was of lace, and very short. A bertha collar of lace was attached to the net train, the lace forming borders on the sides of the train.

Summer Velvet. Summer velvet is taking its place in the sun. The sheer quality of the fabric with its rich velvet pattern adapts itself particularly well to summer wedding clothes.

Gloves. Gloves deserve a whole chapter in themselves. They mirror fashion trends as clearly as clothes. Femininity is uppermost.

Flowers Everywhere. Flowers are everywhere. It is newest to wear two boutonnières, one on each lapel of your suit.

Correct Vacation Toggery

VACATIONING they will go—Vera, Mom and Flo. And they will enjoy themselves the more because their wardrobes after Sew-Your-Own are just exactly right.

Mother in this model will be mistaken for daughter many a time because her design and dots are so very youthful. She will have various frocks in various materials developed on this theme.

Dates for Dancing. Vera, to the right, has a date for dancing and when her escort admiringly effuses some such nonsense as, "That gown must have come on the last boat from Paris" she will toss her dark head and say, "No foreign frocks for me. I Sew-My-Own." Her dress of soft flowing material with demure braid at the neck and hem almost makes a sweet old-fashioned girl of her, but the tailored collar and trim cut label her the sophisticated young thing that she really is.

Collegiate. Only a snappy sophomore can fully appreciate just how smart are those buttons down the back of the model to the left. Her yoke and neckline are "Oh, so new."

The Patterns. Pattern 1297 is designed in sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 requires 2 1/2 yards of 35-inch material plus 1/2 yard contrasting.

Pattern 1998 is designed in sizes 34 to 46. Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35-inch material. With long sleeves 4 3/4 yards of 35 inch material is required.

Pattern 1307 is designed in sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 40 bust). Size 16 requires 3 3/4 yards of 39-inch material. For trimming 7 1/2 yards of braid or ribbon is required.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

HARNESS WIND TO STORE ELECTRICITY IN RURAL HOMES

Radio batteries have a way of running down at the wrong time. When the battery went dead in the middle of a favorite program there used to be only one thing to do; turn off the radio and take the battery to town to be recharged.

Aviation is responsible for the newest device, commonly called a wind-charger, which uses an airplane type propeller to utilize wind power to turn an electric generator which keeps the battery charged.

Airplane propellers seen dotting the countryside atop farm buildings and on steel masts are not toys but are wind-chargers spinning power generators that are storing electric current in batteries for use when needed. Specially designed electric generators have been developed to keep pace with the improvement in propeller design resulting from scientific research in aerodynamics.

Originally developed to deliver a charge for six volt radio and car batteries and now widely used for that purpose, manufacturers have designed larger and more powerful wind-chargers capable of keeping 32 volt batteries charged. This voltage is commonly used in home-operated electric plants of one kind or another for all-purpose use in the rural home dependent on its own power supply.

With this type unit most farm power needs are satisfied. It can be used to run the separator, washing machine, milker, feed grinder, vacuum cleaner, and other equipment in addition to lighting. It is not entirely practical for cooking on an electric range or heating water in an automatic electric heater, but for most other uses electric current stored by free wind power can be used, thanks to research work on aviation.—Adv.

Don't Irritate Gas Bloating

If you want to really GET RID OF GAS and terrible bloating, don't expect to do it by just doctoring your stomach with harsh, irritating alkalis and "gas tablets." Most GAS is lodged in the stomach and upper intestine and is due to rid poisonous matter in the constipated bowels that are loaded with ill-causing bacteria. If your constipation is of long standing, enormous quantities of dangerous bacteria accumulate. Then your digestion is upset. GAS often presses heart and lungs, making life miserable. You can't eat or sleep. Your head aches. Your back aches. Your complexion is sallow and pimply. Your breath is foul. You are a sick, grouchy, wretched, unhappy person. YOUR SYSTEM IS POISONED. Thousands of sufferers have found in Adierka the quick, scientific way to rid their systems of harmful bacteria. Adierka rids you of gas and cleanses foul poisons out of BCTM upper and lower bowels. Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierka. Get rid of GAS. Adierka does not gripe—is not habit forming. At all Leading Druggists.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste. Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

LEST WE FORGET

The days through which the Pecos Valley has so recently passed, have been harried and full of worry, and we are certain that no one would want to live them over again.

It seems such a shame, that because of carelessness and thoughtlessness, that so much suffering and anxiety must be laid on so many victims.

Strange too, the workings of human nature, that people can so quickly and readily forget unpleasant experiences to the extent, that they carelessly procrastinate in preparing for the future.

Old timers, those who have lived here many years, say the recent floods, were the worst in this valley, that they had ever seen. Back in 1904 and again in 1915, and a few minor rises of the rivers since, did considerable damage. The only difference in them all, is that increase in population, and the increase in farming and business concerns, apparently seems to have magnified the recent losses over former losses.

The loss to the valley in investment and income; the loss to the individuals concerned is stupendous, and it will take a long while to recover from the depressing morale left in the flood's wake.

We must awaken, and become seriously concerned about future floods, and endeavor to find some way to prevent their disastrous results.

We are fortunate in having citizens, who have made a study of similar situations, and are cheerfully willing to give of their store of knowledge to help prevent future occurrence, such as we have just experienced. And it is our duty to be as cheerful and willing to aid whenever possible.

Think about this, give it careful consideration, for floods are known to repeat over and over again.

Scout News

Arrangements are under way for holding the annual summer camp of the eastern New Mexico area council, Boy Scouts of America at Camp Wehinahpny in the Sacramento mountains, July 15th to 24th. Between 100 and 150 Scouts are expected to enroll. The cost will be $1.00 per day exclusive of transportation. More interest is being shown in the annual summer camp than has been manifested for several years. The camp will be under the direction of Mark Guy King, new field executive for the eastern New Mexico area.

Mark Guy King, new field executive for the eastern New Mexico area council, Boy Scouts of America has arrived to assume his duties in that capacity. Mr. King is a graduate of the National Training course conducted by the National Council, Boy Scouts of America and has a wide and varied experience in scouting.

Roswell will be host to Boy Scouts from all parts of eastern New Mexico June 16 to 19, inclusive, when scouts and their leaders will meet here for three days of intensive training in preparation for the National Boy Scout Jamboree.

The camp, which will be attended by about 70 scouts and their leaders, will be held in the city park on North Missouri street, between Eighth and Ninth streets. Headquarters will be the scout hut on North Missouri street.

Somebody wishes to know the qualifications of an ideal newspaper man. An exchange obliges:

There isn't any such individual, but if there were he would be as fast in action as an electric fan and as patient as Job.

He would have the endurance of 20 and the wisdom of 70.

He would have the memory of an encyclopedia and the infallibility of an adding machine.

He would have an eye like an eagle and the nose of a blood hound.

He would be as tactful as an expectant heir before a rich uncle died, and as firm as granite.

He would be as discerning as a shaft of light and have the analytical of a supreme court jurist.

He would be able to, at one and the same time, answer two telephones, place a call of his own, check a proof sheet and add the middle name of the third assistant secretary of the navy, and remember whatever it was he was told to bring home from the corner drug store.

Hints to Gardeners

Care in Planting

PLANTING and the immediate preliminaries to planting demand care as the first step toward a successful garden.

Though soil may be rich, a gardener will have indifferent success if he does not prepare it thoroughly. The ground should be worked deeply and the top three or four inches should be made as fine and loose as possible. And the best time to whip the weed enemy is while the soil is being prepared, using rake and hoe.

A primary consideration in planting is to have the soil favorably moist, that is, damp but not wet. If circumstances demand that you plant when the ground is dry, moisten trenches or drills before dropping the seed, using enough water to wet the soil, but not enough to cause caking.

To retain moisture after planting, cover seeds with fine earth and press down firmly. In small gardens, the firming may be done by laying a board over the row and walking on it. Some have found it a back-saving practice to cover medium-sized seed by drawing a broom over the top of the rows, pulling the dirt onto the seed.

Consider temperature at the time of planting. Too high a temperature is often as detrimental to seed germination as one too low. Generally, a temperature between 65 and 75 degrees is most favorable.

Depth of planting is important and it varies, of course, with different seeds. Generally, seeds approximately the size of turnip seed should be covered not more than half an inch. Larger seeds, such as peas, beans and corn may be planted one to two and one-half inches deep.

Soil must be loose so that stems of seedlings can push through and roots will be able to find plant food. Fine seed must not be planted when the ground is wet. Where a heavy crust does form, however, it may sometimes be broken sufficiently to let seedlings through by gently pricking the soil with a rake.

There are times when weather conditions render it impossible for seedlings to survive. In such cases replanting is the only recourse.

AMARILLO, Texas, June 8th.—Materials for the construction of houses and other buildings on the twenty three units of the Fort Sumner unit of the New Mexico Farms Resettlement project were ordered last week, according to L. H. Hauter, regional director of the Resettlement Administration, with headquarters in Amarillo.

With the purchase of 1200 acres of land completed and with materials ordered, construction work is expected to begin early in June. Ralph R. Will, head of the resettlement division, said most of the construction work will be performed by local relief labor.

The infiltration type project lies southeast of Fort Sumner. Seven of the farm homes now standing on the Resettlement Administration's land will be remodeled. The administration will construct seven new homes. All new construction and remodeling work will be in line with the secretary of agriculture's low cost housing program.

Approximately one-half of the 1200 acres of land on the project is developed. The remainder is raw land and will immediately be cleared for cultivation. There are now seven farm families living on units leased from the administration. Selection of occupants for the completed units will be made after a careful study of all applicants. The study will include character, ability as irrigation type farmers and stability.

Flushing bar warns birds nests also may be saved. Because farm operations like harvesting grain and mowing hay often destroy nests of quail and other game birds, many farmers are using a flushing bar, reports the United States Department of Agriculture. The bar usually is a bamboo pole fastened to the neck yoke and extending in front of the sickle.

Strips of lightly weighted burlap attached to the pole drag through the grass or grain, flush the birds and locate the nests, over which the farmer can lift the sickle bar. Binders cutting high usually leave the nest undisturbed. Many farmers furnish food and cover to birds by leaving corners and odd spots in a field uncut.

Descriptions of flushing bars and other means of favoring wildlife are included in Farmers' Bulletin No. 1718, "Improving the Farm Environment for Wildlife", prepared in the Bureau of Biological Survey and available on request from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

The hogs that ranged the wooded hills surrounding Aunt Jerusalem Grimm's wildcat still back in old Quadhole township had fed on so much sour mash around that stillhouse they all had the liquor habit. When a fresh batch of mash was dumped out somewhere they'd smell it and come running, cleaning it all up so there wasn't a telltale speck of it left. But after they developed that nose for liquor it made a little trouble. Customers making their way home from Aunt Jerusy's stillhouse had to look out for the hogs. Once a prissy sort of gent from the county seat, a man who did his drinking on the sly, visited the stillhouse. He'd sneak out from town afoot to do a little drinking. He tried to sneak back into town, but when he crossed the city limits he was followed by 18 or 20 hogs, all squealing.—Jay B. Iden in (Topeka) Pink Rag.

New Game Refuges Created Recently

SANTA FE. — The New Mexico game and fish commission authorized state game warden Elliott Barker Friday to allow Indians of Taos Pueblo "reasonable" out-of-season bagging of game for religious purposes, if the Indians comply satisfactorily with other state game laws.

The governor and council of Taos Pueblo, Barker reported to the commission, have signified their willingness to abide by state game laws on and off their reservation and, he said, prospects are favorable for an amicable agreement.

Among the game animals needed in fulfillment of some of the Taos religious rite in winter, when taking of game is taboo, are deer. Barker would be authorized to give the permit, if the Taos requests are reasonable, under the regulation allowing game to be taken for scientific purposes.

The commission voted to continue restrictions and bag limits on El Vado lake and the Chama river below the dam as they are at present. It voted, however, the employment of a special deputy to patrol those waters for the next two months.

If a careful study shows that fishermen "won't be reasonable and won't listen to argument," action will be taken later, Barker said.

The commission created five new game refuges and authorized additions to the Fort Sumner, Claudell and Bitter Lake (near Roswell) refuges.

It set July 1 to Sept. 30 for the open season on bullfrogs, the daily possession and bag limit to be 12. Hours of takings conform to those for fishing.

New game refuges created: Little Ox Yoke, Chaves county; seven sections for deer.

Acme, twelve miles northeast of Roswell; seven sections for quail.

East of Las Cruces; 22,000 acres. (Located on soil conservation area, under fence, and is intended chiefly as an experiment in quail propagation).

Mimbres, on the Mimbres river, Grand county two sections, stock-exclusion area fenced by the forest service, for quail experiment.

Goldhill, Grant county; four sections.

Poultry Flocks Show Increase

Some interesting facts about the poultry industry in New Mexico are revealed in a special report just released by the bureau of census, says W. M. Ginn of the New Mexico State College. Of particular importance is an eleven percent increase in the number of farms reporting chickens in the mountain states, with New Mexico showing the largest increase of any state, or about thirty six percent. The number of small flocks, numbering less than fifty chickens, increased fifty two percent in New Mexico.

These figures indicate that New Mexico farmers recognize the importance of the farm flock, not only because of the improved nutrition of the farm family from including poultry and poultry products in the diet, but also on account of the regular income obtained from the sale of both eggs and chickens. This income, though often only a small amount, usually appears when other sources of income fail. A few hens act as job and weather insurance by supplying that extra money needed for necessities, when other farm enterprises fail.

A decided increase in the number of chickens on the larger poultry farms in New Mexico is also indicated. In 1930 there were thirteen flocks which contained more than 1,000 chickens; in 1935 there were sixteen such flocks.

Flocks showing the least increase or none at all, are the intermediate flocks, those containing from seventy five to two hundred chickens. Records gathered by the Extension Service have repeatedly shown that these middle sized flocks were the least profitable. Indications are that farmers are also observing this condition. The average poultryman can profitably produce from a small flock eggs for home use with a few to sell. However, if he expects to derive a large part of his income from his chickens, he should have a flock large enough that he will devote sufficient time and care to it. Flocks which are not given sufficient care are not apt to yield a profit; one good phase of poultry management is not effective if some poor practice makes the good one inoperative.

When Edward married Wally last Thursday he said "I do" so loud during the ceremony that his eagerness startled the thirty four guests. Wally was more composed and answered in a modulated tone, which shows what experience will do as this was Wally's third adventure.

Conchas Dam to Form Lake Twenty Six Square Miles

CONCHAS, N. M.—The $12,000,000 Conchas Dam, New Mexico's largest project of the recovery program, will be completed in 1939. It will flood the river to herald the day when the twenty six square miles and 100,000 acres of irrigated fields will be an oasis in the dust-ravaged section.

The concrete main dam, 220 feet high and 220 feet long, will be the hub, and a spillway, wing-dams, saddle dams and dikes stretching north and south, the complete structure will have an overall length of approximately 10 miles. It will hold back and control the waters of the Conchas and Rio Grande to a capacity of 100,000 acre feet.

More than a thousand men work daily at the damsite, but more than a million dollars worth of machinery speeds the project at its present rapid pace.

There is a suction tank at New Kirk, nearest rail point, into which carloads of bulk cement are unloaded. A fleet of trucks carry the cement to a huge concrete mixing machine on the brink of the foundation for the main dam.

A 1,600-foot cableway shoots the mixed concrete in buckets to the foundation where it is dumped and spread at the rate of four cubic yards every 2 minutes. A 2 mile tramway supplies sand and gravel from the source of supply.

Right of way for the dam and reservoir were obtained mostly from the owners of the Bell ranch at a cost of $165,000. Title will be in the name of the state of New Mexico.

Until the huge project started the site provided pasture for numerous herds of Bell ranch cattle. A range rider who has kept a keen eye on Bell ranch stock for the last 20 years dropped into the Conchas Drug Store recently to opine:

"Darned if I ever thought I'd get a malted milk in the middle of the south pasture."

is stressed on the project but already two lives have been lost. A billiard room, movie house, and 9-hole golf course provide recreation. The town has its little theatre organization and baseball team. Teas, sewing circles and women's club meetings occupy the matron.

An electrical plant provides current for lighting and residents pay a flat rate. There is natural gas for cooking and heating. Telephone and telegraph service is reasonable.

Living costs with the exception of rents are about on a par with those in larger New Mexico cities. Dormitories provide quarters for single men and they obtain meals at a mess hall.

Beer is the strongest refreshment to be obtained in the town. Nearest source of anything stronger is 26 miles away at Newkirk where workers may go Saturday night or "payday" whoopee.

"Strange Visitor"
By FLOYD GIBBONS

YOU know, they say troubles never come singly—which is just another way of saying that Old Lady Adventure is never content with giving you just one sock in the jaw. I don't know how true that is, but it certainly worked out that way in the case of Hattie Rohr of Chicago.

Hattie's big bout with Old Lady Adventure came in the Winter of 1917. There was trouble enough in the world then, without having the old girl with the thrill bag on your neck. The war was on and the influenza epidemic was sweeping the country. Hattie, in those days, was just an eleven-year-old girl, living with her mother and dad and three sisters on a farm between Clare and Dodge City, Iowa. Her name then was Hattie McLaughlin.

The flu epidemic struck the McLaughlin family in January. It brought down Hattie's dad and her three sisters, and that left Hattie and her mother to do all the chores around that big farm.

It was one of those days when everything seemed to go wrong. Mother had just come from upstairs to call the doctor. Dad and the three sick girls were worse. While they were waiting for the doctor the party-line phone rang. It was the school teacher, down with the flu herself, who wanted Hattie to go to the schoolhouse and post a notice saying there would be no school that day.

Strange Man Came to the Door.

Already tired from her morning's work, Hattie struggled more than a mile through the snow to post that notice. She found two small children shivering in the cold, waiting for the school to open, and took them to her home and phoned their father to come and get them. And no sooner had he come and gone with his pair of kids than Hattie heard another knock on the door.

A strange man was out front. He said he was a telephone lineman from Clare, and wanted to know if he could come in and get warm. Hattie and her mother asked him in and gave him a cup of tea.

While he was drinking his tea and eating a piece of corn bread, Hattie and her mother went on with their work. Nothing unusual happened until he had finished eating and drinking. Then the stranger got up and walked over to the stove.

It was such an unusual movement that Hattie stopped to watch him. He backed up against the stove as if to warm himself, but Hattie saw one of his hands slide into his pocket and come out holding a tiny bottle.

He Poured Something Into the Beans.

There was a pot of beans boiling on the stove. Slowly, shielded by his body, the stranger's hand crept up and emptied the contents of the bottle into the pot of beans!

Her mother hadn't seen it, but Hattie was standing in such a position that she could see every move he made. She was startled—frightened. An older person might have said nothing, for fear of precipitating trouble. That mother and child were defenseless, with dad ill in bed upstairs. But kids of Hattie's age don't stop to think of those things. She let out a scream and then, impulsively, she darted across the room and knocked the bottle from the man's hand.

Her mother turned to see what was the matter. At the same time, the stranger reached inside his coat, pulled out a long, thin-bladed knife, and slashed Hattie across the legs. Blood began to flow from a long deep cut. Dazed at the turn affairs had taken, Hattie backed away, staring at the man. The man stood, knife in hand, staring back at Hattie. Her mother was standing at both of them. For a minute there was a deathly silence.

Hattie Fought to Save Her Mother.

The man made no other move—said nothing. Hattie and her mother were too frightened to speak. They began to realize the fellow was stark mad. Hattie sat down, took off a stocking and tied it about her wound.

The man stood looking, first at her, then at her mother. He waited until she was finished tying up her bleeding leg, and then he walked across the room to where her mother was standing, breathless and paralyzed with fright, AND RAISED THE KNIFE.

And again Hattie acted impulsively. In an instant she was out of her chair and darting across the room. Reaching out quickly she grabbed the knife!

The man gave the knife a quick pull. It came out of Hattie's hand, cutting it clear to the bone at the base of the thumb. Crying out in pain, she grabbed at her wrist with her other hand. The madman shoved her away, and knocked her mother down.

For another moment Hattie stood dazed. The man fell on her mother, sat on her chest and began choking her. And at that, a sudden change came over Hattie. Before, she had been frightened—trembling. Now she became furious. A red mist seemed to drop before her eyes. She grabbed up a piece of wood from the pile beside the stove, raised it over her head and brought it down, as hard as she could, on the madman's head.

The Beans Were Poisoned.

The man rolled over and lay still. Hattie's wrist was still bleeding and her mother tied it up tightly to stop the flow. They got ropes and tied the man's hands behind his back and then—then Hattie keeled over in a dead faint.

When she came to, the doctor had been to the house. He had sewed up Hattie's wounds and she had never known a thing about it. The doctor also took the madman back to town and turned him over to the police. They found out later that he had escaped from an institution down in the South, where he had been put for murder.

And when they analyzed that pot of beans into which he had emptied that bottle, it was found that they were poisoned!

Annie Laurie Home Held by the Family Since 1611

The home of the famous Annie Laurie, the heroine of the Scottish ballad sung in every corner of the world, is known as the estate of Maxwellton, Dumfriesshire, Scotland. The ownership of this property goes back more than 300 years, says a writer in the New York Herald Tribune.

Maxwellton House, originally a fortress of the Earls of Glencairn and known as Glencairn castle, has been in the hands of the Laurie family since 1611.

Seventy-one years later, in 1682, Anna was born, the daughter of Sir Robert Laurie. The first Baronet Douglas of Fingland, the author of the original words of the ballad, was her first sweetheart, but the engagement was broken off, and in 1709 she married Alexander Fergusson, of Craigdarroch, a neighboring estate. Her picture and that of her husband hang in the dining room at Maxwellton.

There are 4,000 acres in the property, which overlooks the Cairn river. In the house there are four reception rooms, two boudoirs, fifteen bed or dressing rooms, two bathrooms and servants' accommodation.

Brides of Granna Island Wear Queen's Headdress

Not orange blossoms but a crown intended for a queen is the wedding headdress of brides at Granna, Sweden, on the island of Visingso in Lake Vattern, one of Sweden's largest and finest lakes. Now over 300 years old, the crown was originally made for a daughter of the Brahe family, which built the Castle of Visingsborg and the Brahe church on the island.

The girl, Ebba Brahe, was loved by Gustavus Adolphus and the crown was made for her wedding to him, but for reasons of state he was forced to give her up and marry a princess instead. The crown was placed in the Brahe church, where visitors to the island sometimes see it worn by a bride of the parish.

The castle built by the Brahe family was destroyed by fire in 1718 and became an imposing ruin over-run by vines. The family is also credited with founding Granna, called by travelers one of the loveliest towns in Sweden. Besides being famous for its beauty, Granna has a great reputation as the "Pear Town" of Sweden. The original pear tree was planted more than 300 years ago in a hillside orchard near the one street of the town, and long was known as a national monument.

Chooses to Run

Give them $716 a month. They will spend it in the shops. Then make the shopkeepers give it back to the government.

By JOHN LARDNER

AN OPEN letter to Party Chairmen, Presidential Delegates, and also to Whom It May Concern (address unknown):

I will come to the point at once. My hat is in the ring for the next Presidential nomination. The sooner I have your endorsement, the better for this great, stricken republic of ours, which I trust you love as much as I do, even though election is four years away.

I will match my love of my country with any man's, at catchweights. I love her rocks and rills, her woods and templed hills, her Constitution, her history, her climate, her employed, her unemployed, her tax-payers, and also her tax-exempt.

I love the people of America—black, white, yellow, and red (Note to HQ: Check size and distribution of Indian vote, if any).

But our great nation is tottering on the brink of destruction, into which she will certainly fall if you elect any of the present Democratic and Republican candidates.

I do not say for certain that I can save her, for I am fundamentally modest. But I can have a darn good try. (Note to voters: Believe use of strong word like "dark" justified in circumstances. I am a man's man.)

"On the Record."

My program is not a New Deal, or an Old Deal, or a Deal Off the Bottom. It is the SQUARE DEAL.

I know about the Square Deal. I learned about it in the greatest school in the world, the School of Hard Knocks. (Note to heirs and bankers: But I appreciate the importance of having a little capital to work with. Don't misunderstand me, fellows.)

The voters are familiar with my record. It might be a good idea, however, to mention some of my personal beliefs and characteristics.

My smile is quiet but steady—one of the best all-around smiles in public life. It has been with me almost as long as my faithful cook (23½ years) and my wife (30 years without a spat). Friends say that my quiet but steady smile hides a lot of deep thinking and homely philosophy. They are too kind. I have been lucky in my friends.

I love to fish—boy, how I love to fish!

Football is a grand game, too, and baseball builds character. I follow baseball. Jimmy Foxx hit 35 home runs last year.

I am dry personally, but I do not mind people taking a drop now and then, in moderation. I am no prig. Still, the dry movement was a lovely movement. Lovely people in it, too.

That will be enough about myself. It's not a favorite topic with me, and my friends say that they practically have to burn the soles of my feet to make me talk in the first person. I have been lucky in my friends.

Now for the ISSUES. A great deal is at stake in this campaign. The man who dodges ISSUES is guilty of bad faith. The public deserves the truth.

First, there is the matter of TAXES.

Greed an Ugly Thing.

I do not propose to soak the thrifty, who have toiled so long to put away a few dollars vs. a rainy day. Nor do I propose to soak the laborer who lives from hand to mouth. God bless him.

The rich should not be soaked. Many of my best friends are rich people. I am not in the pay of Red Russia.

On the other hand, there is a lot to be said for Russia (in the right places), and I guess some people are too rich. Only it's not richness so much as greed. Entrenched greed—that's the phrase I want. Entrenched greed is an ugly thing, any way you look at it.

And "soak" is an ugly word. I do not plan to soak the rich or the thrifty or even the poor. My tax program might be called the SOAK NOBODY program.

It is eminently practical. A glance at my record will show that I balanced the budget of the Osco County dog-pound in three successive terms as a dog-catcher. Incidentally, I love dogs. I only caught them through a sense of public duty.

There is just one way to balance a budget. Take your mean norm of income over a period of seven years, divide it by the net profit quotient (N. P. Q.), and subtract your dividend. In this way you get 1,034 times the nation's taxable wealth, and it is a simple matter to divide by 1,034. My Secretary of the Treasury will be a man who can not only divide but also recite the multiplication tables without a peek at the back of the book.

In short, COMMON SENSE will balance the budget.

I soak nobody.

Old Age Security.

As for power, I say CONSERVE. Conserve it and use it. Properly controlled, natural power in this country is quite a thing.

Next to power and taxes, there is one great issue in this campaign. That is the issue of the OLD FOLKS. By OLD FOLKS I mean people over forty-one. They have struggled and sweated for us until their bones are weary and their hair is sparse and gray. Are they not entitled to $716 a month for the rest of their lives? Why, certainly.

And I can show you how to give it to them. I am not going to have any starving old folks on my conscience. Or any high school kiddies, either.

Every high school kiddie under the age of 17 is entitled to $20 a week or its equivalent in tobacco. Every venerable, toil-worn oldster over the age of forty-one is entitled to $716 a month, unless he or she is a convicted murderer.

I have no patience with MURDERERS and HORSE-BEATERS.

But I have all the sympathy in the world for old folks and high-school kiddies. And here is my PLAN.

Give them $716 a month. They will spend it in the shops. Then make the shopkeepers give it back to the government.

This will necessitate a DOLE for the shopkeepers. And no dole is too good for the shopkeepers, either, because they are the backbone of this country. They and the farmers.

Farm Problem Overlooked.

The farm problem has been completely misunderstood by the Administration and by the Republican party. The farmer is an honest and human fellow. All he wants is a fair shake. I will suspend all mortgages on farms and pay the mortgage-holders out of the Federal Treasury. The Treasury will be steadily replenished by the C. I. F. (Constant Increase in Funds). The interest on the C. I. F. alone will take care of the national debt.

As for FOREIGN RELATIONS, I favor a wise and thoughtful blend of the Monroe Doctrine and the League of Nations. The great Jefferson expressed my feelings in a nutshell when he said ("pick up any 2 pp. of any Jefferson speech.)

Above everything else, let me assure you of my staunch disapproval of war, amounting almost to a prejudice. In the words of the great Sherman, War is H—L. Let us avoid it.

And to this end, let us develop our Army, Navy, Air Force, etc. If anybody threatens our peace, let us hammer the tar out of him. War is H—L.

Spots in America That Resist the Melting Pot

Festivals of Various Kinds Call Attention to "Bits of Europe" Here.

"It takes celebrations like a tulip festival to call one's attention to the many 'bits of Europe' scattered throughout the United States," says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society.

"Recently thousands of flower-loving Americans descended on Holland, Michigan, to witness the town's annual tulip festival. The gay blooms stretching for eight miles, lure visitors each spring to this largely Dutch community sprinkled with Dutch names and, for the festival period, with residents in Dutch costumes.

A "Little Greece" in Florida.
"Holland is one of the largest Dutch communities in the United States. Until recently, many of its factory workers spoke only Dutch, and neighboring farmers wore wooden shoes.

"Tarpon Springs, about half way down the west coast of the Florida peninsula, is the home of many swarthy, mustachioed Greek sponge divers and their families. They came to the warm blue waters of Florida fisheries from the sponge fishing grounds of the Mediterranean, and have made Tarpon Springs famous as a 'sponge city.' Their brightly painted diving boats are patterned after those used in Greek waters. The town supports a Greek Orthodox church, and on January 6 annually celebrates Greek Cross day, a religious fete brought from the homeland.

"Northwestern Pennsylvania has its Russians. Nearly half a century ago, some 'Old Believers,' descendants of seceders from the Russian church in the Seventeenth century, settled in Erie. The Russian colony now numbers about 2,000 inhabitants. Folk songs are sung to balalaika accompaniment by bearded men and long-haired women.

Finns Settled in Forest Lands.
"Although Finns dwell in small numbers in every state in the Union, they have not found the South appealing, and have settled chiefly in Michigan, Minnesota, Massachusetts, and Washington. From Finland, 'the Land of a Thousand Lakes,' they have been especially drawn to Minnesota. Their physical stamina and experience as lumberjacks in Finland's vast forests have fitted many of them particularly well to take part in America's lumber industry.

"The Finns retain their love of education, flocking to schools and night classes. As in their home land, they build log bathhouses in which to take steam baths, and carve from birchwood skis which carry them over the fields in rigorous winters. Finland, Suomi,

Somehow the Proverb Sounded a Bit Off
He had only recently joined the ranks of politicians, and he was anxious that his first speech to his prospective constituents should be a great success, says London Answers.

He spoke for a long time, warning his hearers of the dangers of war and the importance of keeping a large army. Wishing to finish with some quotation, he thought of the proverb about locking the stable door. But he wanted to be a bit more original.

Suddenly he had a brain-wave. "Ladies and gentlemen," he cried, "don't, I beg of you—don't wait till your house catches fire before calling the fire brigade."

Firestone TIRES
GIVE YOU GREATER PROTECTION AGAINST SKIDDING AND BLOWOUTS

YOU will know the minute you see this tire why car owners everywhere call it the greatest tire ever made to sell at these low prices. The deeper, wider, flatter non-skid tread made of tough, long wearing rubber will give you protection against dangerous skidding.

But tires cannot be judged on tread alone. Under the tread of Firestone Standard Tires are two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords. This Firestone patented construction feature binds the tread and cord body into one inseparable unit. Every cotton fiber in every cord in every ply is saturated and coated with pure liquid rubber which counteracts the internal friction and heat that ordinarily destroy tire life. This Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping gives greater protection against blowouts and is used only in Firestone Tires.

See your nearby Firestone Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store and join the Firestone Save a Life Campaign today by equipping your car with a set of new Firestone Standard Tires.

GAMBLING ODDS ARE AGAINST YOU

Get the Short End When You Woo Lady Luck, Whether You Play Poker, Bridge, Roulette, Dice or Horses.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

"HEADS or tails, what'll you take?" There can't be a man or woman in America who hasn't been asked that question at least once. And there are plenty of people who will refuse to choose one or the other, in an attempt to decide whether to go to the movies or the theatre, or to determine who gets the extra pork chop.

Probably the simplest manifestation of the inclination to gamble that seems to be born in most of us is the toss of a coin.

The toss of a coin looks simple enough, but even on a "fifty-fifty" break such as that you can't say that in a given number of tosses, say 100, half the tosses will be "heads" and half "tails."

All games of chance the probability of winning is against the player, even if he can be sure the coin is "on the level." Yet man gambles from time immemorial, and makes little difference whether the purpose is to relieve the monotony of everyday existence or something for nothing; he has always been willing to take a chance.

Gambling was popular, even favored, in ancient Babylonia, China and India many centuries before the birth of Christ. History tells us that the Greeks and Romans gambled in the first century of the Christian era.

St. Carlo "Wide Open." Hundreds of years ago gambling was recognized as a menace to society. In England the first law against it was enacted in 1661. In later years it was further curtailed by the Parliament in 1845, 1853 and 1875.

In 1838 France suppressed gambling tables, and in 1872 Germany closed her gambling resorts, even the famous ones at Baden-Baden and Hamburg. Belgium clamped an embargo on gambling in 1902, and the only spot in Europe where "run wide open" is at Carlo, in the tiny principality of Monaco.

Wheels, gaming houses, "policy" rackets, bookmaking, and wheels of fortune are generally forbidden in civilized countries today. The laws of different countries vary, however, as do even the laws among states of the United States.

Another type is the seeker after thrills. Usually this is a person of some means. It is largely this type which frequents the fashionable gambling houses of Palm Beach, or those in the large cities where the turnover may be half a million dollars a week for a single "club."

The third classification embraces the professionals. They make their living at gambling, and they know the ropes. Usually they are figures on the fringe of the underworld, and not infrequently they become mixed up in scrapes which have only a minor relation to their gambling activities.

The professional, more likely than not, is fully capable of cheating with marked cards, loaded dice and other implements beyond the pale, and will do so if he thinks it profitable.

Outside the Law. It is impossible to say exactly or approximately how big the gambling industry is in the United States. For the most of it is conducted in the law, just as saloons were during the prohibition.

But a few representative figures are at hand to show that the industry is an enormous one. In the twenty-two states where it is legal, there are approximately 100,000 gaming tables, and the turnover is estimated at $1,000,000,000 a year.

The illustration shows the outfit you receive it and to operate it. It is supplied with one set of each rod, which allow it to be used in full view of customer's eyes. The batteries are arranged in any convenient location.

ing on the races is conducted the use of pari-mutuel machines. There has been $224,000,000 bet in a single year; this does include the five tracks in New York state, where the "take" is $10,000,000.

The Irish Sweepstakes drew $19,500,000 in American money for which the Yanks received $11,500,000 in prize money. In England the wagering on sweepstakes, horses, greyhounds, and the like totals more than $100,000,000 a year; Scotland Yard and the British Home Office are busy fighting them.

Types of Gamblers. Probably the most wide-open town in the United States is Reno, Nevada, where state, city and county receive a sizeable revenue in taxes from the gambling houses. The late hours of the idle hours and loose money to live for a few weeks that many obtain divorces; most of them are pretty well to do.

Banking games—faro, roulette, craps—are taxed $165 a quarter in Nevada; slot machines, no matter whether they operate on pennies, nickels, dimes, quarters or half-dollars, are licensed for $30 a quarter. Last year Reno gambling houses paid taxes of $94,245.12. Of this city received $38,424.08, the state and county $52,232.76, and the municipality of Sparks, three miles distant, $3,588.30.

Gamblers fall into three main types. There is, first of all, the superstitious gambler. He believes implicitly that luck is a sort of supernatural power, a god that can decide his fate. He woos luck by talking to his dice, or by carrying a rabbit's foot in his pocket. He seldom thinks about the mathematical possibilities of winning or losing; if he wins, Lady Luck is with him; if he loses, he is suffering a "jinx."

Another type is the seeker after thrills. Usually this is a person of some means. It is largely this type which frequents the fashionable gambling houses of Palm Beach, or those in the large cities where the turnover may be half a million dollars a week for a single "club."

The third classification embraces the professionals. They make their living at gambling, and they know the ropes. Usually they are figures on the fringe of the underworld, and not infrequently they become mixed up in scrapes which have only a minor relation to their gambling activities.

the first throw. But if "seven-eleven" is missed, repetition of the first throw is unlikely, and the seven is now working against the player and the net effect is against him.

Even chess, generally accepted as the most intellectual of all games, depends upon chance, says Prof. Von Neumann. He points out that "white," which has the first move, can always win, although if "black" is wise to the theory, he can play defensively and tie "white."

In poker the chances are one in 300,000 to obtain any certain combination of five cards. Chance is also introduced in this type of game by the action of the opponent, and intellectual reasoning is sometimes needed. There is little chance of improving the original hand in poker, so the most logical place for the exercise of skill are in making the discards, and in deciding whether or not opponents are "bluffing" in their bets.

Poker and Bridge Chances. Here are some of the most sought-after hands in poker, and the possibilities of their being obtained.

One pair	1-1
Two pairs	1-21
Three of a kind	1-47
Flush	1-509
Full house	1-694
Four of a kind	1-4,165
Straight flush	1-72,193
Royal flush	1-649,739

In a game of bridge there are 635,013,559,600 possible combinations of hands. You have four chances out of that many of getting a "perfect" hand—thirteen of one suit. Here are the chances on some other distributions:

12-1	2,028 hands
11-2	73,008 hands
11-1-1	158,184 hands

After your cards have been obtained there is still the element of chance that those your partner holds will not "go well" with them.

In gambling houses it is healthy to remember that the odds are always in favor of the house. If it is stay in business very long. As it is, they make a profit and pay enormous taxes or, if they are forced to "kick in" handsomely to the "syndicate" or gang which usually operates them as units in a chain, or to politicians and police for "protection."

Roulette furnishes a good example of the manner in which the bank always enjoys an advantage over the player. Suppose a wager is made on any part of the board, except on a given number, and the zero appears. The player is required to give up half his stake or let the wager stand for the next play. The zero pays everything for the house at Monte Carlo, if all the wheels are in operation.

4,000,000 Sweepstakes Tickets. Authorities consider lotteries or sweepstakes, if they are conducted honestly, as the fairest of all forms of gambling. The losing player need part with no more than the original sum he invested. But the chances of winning are mighty slim, because there are usually millions of tickets sold in the big lotteries.

In the Irish Sweepstakes, for instance, more than 4,000,000 tickets are usually sold. For each ticket held, the purchaser has one chance in 133,333 to win one of the grand prizes—$150,000, $75,000, or $50,000; one chance in 6,667 to win a secondary prize of $3,500, and one chance in 4,000 to win a small prize of $500.

The most vicious of all gambling rackets is the "numbers" game which flourishes in many of the big cities, despite the honest efforts of the law to stamp it out. In some of these games the chance of winning is as small as one in 1 billion.

Slot machines may actually be set so that the house takes in 80 per cent of all the money played, and they frequently are. Few slot machines pay the house as little as 60 per cent.

In addition, the games in gambling houses are not always honest, as has been proved in raid after raid. It's well to keep in mind that the gambler's rule since gambling was invented has been: "Never give a sucker an even break."

Dictator Once Dependent on Charity

YOU may not agree with the principles advanced by Adolf Hitler, or you may be an enthusiastic admirer of his. In either case you will be interested in looking at the man and his life to see what lesson we may learn. Perhaps the greatest inspiration to be drawn from the German dictator's life is a word of encouragement for those whose early lives may seem failures.

Adolf Hitler was born on the Bavarian frontier of Germany in 1889, the son of a customs official who had political ambitions for him. The boy developed a desire to be an artist. His father opposed him, so Adolf refused to study in school. He was the despair of his father and mother. When he was eight, he went to Vienna and applied for admission to the Academy of Art. His art was too poor to qualify and they directed him to the architectural school, but his loafing in early grades made it impossible for him to pass entrance requirements there. At nineteen, his mother died, and as his father had died five years before, he was left alone.

For three years he slept in a cheap men's hotel in Vienna, getting his meals at a monastery and occasional begging from passers-by. In the winter he shoveled snow to make a living. Whenever he earned a few kronen, he stopped work and went to some cheap cafe to deliver political speeches. He painted poor water colors which a friend peddled for him, he painted picture postcards, and when hungry enough was a house painter. During the war he was a corporal.

Here was a man in his thirties who had never shown any real promise in anything he did. Then, Adolf Hitler formed an ideal of government.

FATHER DIVINE WAS A HEDGE TRIMMER

WHAT are the limits of human credulity? To what heights may not the spell-binding orator rise? For thousands of simple blacks in that section of upper New York city known as Harlem, the answer to those questions is "God! Only God is the Limit!"

For George Baker, once a Baltimore hedge trimmer and dock worker, who is reported to have served 60 days on a chain gang, is the negro who claims to be God.

Early records of his life have not been found and George Baker, who now calls himself Father Divine or God, will not talk. It is known that he came from the South, and that he worked at odd jobs in Baltimore in 1899. Starting as a Sunday School teacher, he established a new cult, and moved to New York with a few followers who believed him to be God. New disciples joined him and were provided with food and lodging, while he found jobs for them and collected all their earnings. In 1919, he changed his name to Father Divine (God) and conferred the title of Angels on all who turned their possessions over to him. Thousands of dollars became his in return for new, more glamorous names, such as Ruth Rachel, Hozanna Love, and Frank Incense. Today Father Divine's Angels number about 1,000 and there are 3,000 "Children" or followers who retain some of their possessions, living in apartment houses and flats of Harlem. Heaven is his headquarters, where meals are served and where about 75 Angels sleep. He has established Extension Heavens now in Bridgeport, Jersey City, Newark, and Baltimore; and he owns profit-making stores and shops throughout Harlem. Items of Interest to the Housewife

When Food Is Scorched.—Place the pan containing the scorched food into a large pan of water and the food will lose its burned flavor.

To Clean Varnished Floor.—Clean off well with steel wool and benzine and, when thoroughly dry, re-varnish.

Swedish Eggs.—Make a rich white sauce with milk butter, very little flour or cornflour, mustard, salt and finely chopped parsley. Boil the required number of eggs for four minutes; they must be allowed to get hard. Shell them, cover with the sauce and serve at once.

When Meat Appears Tough.—Add a tablespoonful of vinegar to the stock or water in which it is cooked, and simmer slowly.

To Remove Lettering.—When making tea towels or the like from cotton sacks, soak the sacks for several hours in kerosene before washing, to remove lettering.

Cleaning Unvarnished Wood.—A solution of soda and warm water will remove grease from unvarnished wood.

Salmon Wiggle.—One small can peas or fresh peas in season; one pound can salmon, flaked; one pimiento chopped fine, two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, two cups milk. Seasoning. Melt butter, add flour and seasonings. Stir in milk slowly and cook until thick and smooth. Add salmon, peas and pimiento. Serve hot on toast or in puff paste shells.

When Cleaning Mirrors.—Be very careful about using so much water that it trickles under the frame. A semi-dry method of cleaning is preferable.

Advertising Speaks for Industry

WE ARE all members of a privileged class today. We don't have to wait months for news, travelling by word of mouth, to reach us. If a manufacturer in a distant city produces a labor saving device, or an application to conceal birthmarks, these boons are brought to our attention at once through advertising. Advertising is the great voice of industry which we are all privileged to hear.

JOYS OF GLOOMS

IF YOU WOULD CUT OUT COFFEE FOR 30 DAYS AND DRINK POSTUM INSTEAD AS THE DOCTOR TOLD YOU TO, YOU WOULDN'T FEEL SO BAD ALL THE TIME!

BEAT IT, GLOOMS... POSTUM LICKS US AGAIN!

WELL... IT'S HARD TO FEEL SORRY FOR YOU! THE DOCTOR TOLD YOU COFFEE-NERVES CAUSED YOUR SLEEPLESSNESS... BUT YOU WON'T PAY ANY ATTENTION!

YES, SIR! HIS DISPOSITION IS SURE SUNNY SINCE HE GOT RID OF HIS HEADACHES AND SLEEPLESSNESS!

YOUR MONEY BACK... IF SWITCHING TO POSTUM DOESN'T HELP YOU!

If you cannot safely drink coffee... try Postum's 30-day test. Buy a can of Postum and drink it instead of coffee for a full month. If... after 30 days... you do not feel better, return the top of the Postum container to General Foods, Battle Creek, Michigan, and we will cheerfully refund the full purchase price, plus postage! (If you live in Canada, address General Foods, Ltd., Cobourg, Ont.) Postum contains no caffeine. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. Postum comes in two forms... Postum Cereal, the kind you boil or percolate... and Instant Postum, made instantly in the cup. It is economical, easy to make and delicious. You may miss coffee at first, but after 30 days, you'll love Postum for its own rich, full-bodied flavor. A General Foods Product. (This offer expires Dec. 31, 1937.)

GOODWIN-RIEGER

A wedding that is the culmination of college day romance was solemnized last Sunday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock in the First Baptist church of Roswell, when Miss Vera Goodwin of Hagerman and Dwares Rieger of Las Vegas were united in matrimony.

With Mrs. Charles Stillwell at the pipe organ, the soft strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march marked the beginning. The bride entered upon the arm of her father, W. R. Goodwin, who gave her away in marriage. She was dressed in soft heavy ivory satin, sweeping floor length. Her veil of soft ivory net was held in place with tiny rosebuds and she carried a bouquet of rosebuds and baby breath. Following her came the matron of honor, Mrs. Bob Conley, dressed in pastel peachnet with peach organdie picture hat. Her dress was floor length and she carried pastel colored snapdragons.

The wedding party met at the altar, banked high with graceful palms, beathery ferns and snapdragons. Rev. W. C. Garrett, the officiating minister, and an old pastor of the Goodwin family, preceded the groom, who entered with the best man, Virgil Henry of Dexter. The groom and best man were dressed in white flannel and wore boutonnières of rosebuds. Mrs. Evelyn Kyle sang "I love you truly" and Rev. Garrett read the lovely old double ring ceremony that united these two very popular young people.

Immediately following the wedding the party and guests went to the Hilltop, where an informal reception was held, in the receiving line were the bride party and the parents of the couple.

Centering the table covered with a beautiful yellow lace cloth was the three tiered bride's cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. The bride cut the cake which was served with iced punch. Guests at the wedding and reception were only close friends and relatives. Among them were the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Goodwin, George Goodwin, and Miss Helen Goodwin, of Hagerman, the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Rieger of Las Vegas; Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Nave of Albuquerque, Miss Dorothy Jones and Messrs. Smith and Hurst of Las Vegas; Mrs. L. L. Chatten, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Chatten, Miss Elizabeth Chatten, Mrs. Roscoe Graves, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Graves, Miss Nannie Mae Haines and Mrs. R. B. Faircloth of Elkins; Mr. and Mrs. E. A. White, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Sadler, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund McKinstry, Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Ford, Mrs. Harrison McKinstry and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Keeth and family of Hagerman; Messrs. Howard and Harold Malone of Olive; Miss Velma Lee Senn and Virgil Henry of Dexter; Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Conley, Mrs. Charles Stillwell and Mrs. Evelyn Kyle of Roswell.

The bride's going away dress was a tan wool ensemble. The couple left immediately on a honeymoon trip via the white sands to the grand canyon. They plan to attend the University of Arizona this summer, where Mr. Rieger will complete his master's degree and Mrs. Rieger will study music.

Mrs. Reiger, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Goodwin is a graduate of Hagerman high school. She graduated from the West Texas Teacher's college at Canyon, Texas, attended summer school at Las Vegas and has been teaching for three years.

Mr. Reiger is a graduate of the Normal University at Las Vegas. He has been teaching at Belen, where he is head of the mathematics department in the high school.

They will make their home in Belen in the autumn when Mr. Rieger will return to his position.

The community's good wishes go with this happy couple.

PERRY CRISLER, ONE OF TOWN'S OLDEST CITIZENS IS HONORED

Perry Crisler, one of Hagerman's old timers was eighty five last Monday, and to honor this occasion a large group of his friends gathered at the basement of the Presbyterian church for an all day visit and covered dish luncheon.

Rev. Emery Fritz of the Presbyterian church made a short address, telling of Mr. Crisler's long time residence in Hagerman, and of his faithfulness in all Christian work. Rev. J. H. Walker gave a prayer of thanks preceding lunch.

Sponsoring this occasion were Mrs. Louie Burck and Miss Esther James and other close friends of the honoree.

A delicious covered dish luncheon was served and a large package of gifts was presented Mr. Crisler.

The Perry Crislers came to Hagerman in 1906 and have been members of the Presbyterian church and affiliated with all Christian work during their residence here. Mr. Crisler first came to the valley in 1905, locating at Artesia. In 1906 Mrs. Crisler and two daughters, Misses Mae and Della joined him, and they decided to make Hagerman their home. Mrs. Crisler and Mae are deceased.

Perry Crisler has for one-half century been in the blacksmith trade, for several years he and Frank Bauslin were partners in Hagerman. Health reasons forced Mr. Crisler to retire from business activities about seven years ago.

L. C. CLUB MEETING

The L. C. Club met Thursday, June 3rd, at the home of Mrs. Fred Evans. Business was attended to with the president, Mrs. Earl Stine, in charge. They made plans for the annual picnic which is to be held at the home of Mrs. Stine on August 7th, with dinner at 7:30 P. M. The hostess introduced several very interesting games, which were played throughout the meeting.

GIFTS for Fathers DAY

Don't neglect the neglected member of your family. While father pays the bills, he gets very few of the gifts and lots of times a "dern" sight less appreciation. Don't tell father... show him that you appreciate him with a practical, lasting gift.
