HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Secret of the Tides"

HELLO everybody! Here's a yarn that can be told now, for a long time it was a secret. Frederick V. Fell of Bronx, N. Y., is spinning the yarn for us and he's letting it out of the bag now because—well—I guess it's because Fred has grown too old to be spanked by this time, so it doesn't make much difference who knows it.

Fred says he can't trot out any adventure story laid in some glamorous place like India, or North Africa, but he sure had a honey of a thrill once out at Rockaway beach. And as a matter of fact, I'd just as soon have a yarn from Rockaway as I would from Rio or Rhodesia. For as Fred says, it isn't where it happens, but what happens, that counts. So here she comes—and hold onto your hats.

It was about that time that a strong blow set in from seaward and the ocean began to kick up and get rough. Fred's parents, playing safe, took to bathing in Jamaica bay, about twenty blocks inland from the ocean, and Fred and his brother Harvey did the same. It was shortly after that that Fred's cousins from the city came down one Sunday morning, and they hadn't been there ten minutes before all four of those kids were in their bathing suits and on their way to the bay.

Caught in a Death-Dealing Riptide! Near the point where Fred and Harvey always went in swimming was a long pier with a diving board on the end of it. They had never used that pier before, because mother and dad had forbidden them to swim around it. But this Sunday Fred wanted to show off his newly acquired proficiency at swimming before his city cousins, and with a yell of, "Last man in is a monkey's uncle," he ran down the pier, onto the diving board and out into the water, with Harvey right behind him.

The pier kept getting farther away every second.

"We both came up nicely about a yard apart," Fred says, "and turned around to swim back to the pier. And then my heart stopped beating! That pier was about a hundred yards away and it kept getting farther away every second. In that same moment we both knew what had happened. We had jumped into a racing, surging rip-tide that was sweeping us out into the deepest part of the bay and toward Broad channel."

The tide was carrying them out at express-train speed and only a man who has been caught in one can realize how powerful a rip-tide can be. For a few seconds the kids drifted, and then they began trying to swim back. "But bucking that tide was like trying to dam a flood with a matchstick," Fred says. "Harvey and I tried to join hands and hold each other up, but in another minute we were torn apart and drifting away from each other. Harvey shouted to me to turn over on my back and float, but I didn't know how to float. Treading water madly, I started shouting for help."

Lucky Fred Encounters Real Hero.

Away off in the distance, Fred could see people dashing about excitedly. One man ran swiftly along the pier Fred had just left, and jumped off the end. Swimming strongly and swept along by the tide he slowly caught up to Fred, and as he came up, Fred was almost in hysterics, crying, "Save me, mister—save me!"

That fellow was a good swimmer and a resourceful man. He told Fred to put his hands on his back and kick the water. "I did this," Fred says, "and he set off diagonally toward shore, fighting the tide with tremendous effort. Meanwhile, my cousins on shore had not been idle. Yelling like mad they ran down the beach until they came to a rowboat with two girls sitting in it. The girls launched the boat and, rowing with the tide, soon picked up my brother. My rescuer changed his course and made for the boat, and soon we too were pulled in. The three of us who had been in the water lay on the boat bottom, breathless and exhausted, but apparently safe. The girls started to row back."

But do you notice how Fred says APPARENTLY safe? The truth was that they weren't out of trouble yet, by a long shot. The girls started to row, but anybody who has rowed a boat against any kind of a tide at all knows it is no easy job. And here was one of those express-train tides carrying along a boat loaded down with five people. The girls made no headway at all. In fact, for every two feet they went forward they drifted back five. And ahead of them was the channel—and the ocean. "It began to look," says Fred, "as if that tide would be the winner after all—and this time with five victims instead of two."

Safe!—Six Miles From Starting Point.

But the man who had saved Fred wasn't the sort to give up easily. He was just about all in, but he pulled himself together. He grabbed one oar, while the two girls worked the other. Then all three of them started rowing frantically to beat that tide—to get the boat to shore before it could be swept out into the ocean and foundered by the roaring breakers.

Bit by bit they approached the shore, but at the same time they were approaching the channel too. They were practically in the shadow of the Broad Channel bridge, and not very far from the ocean when at last they got to shore. "And the spot where we landed," says Fred, "was a good six miles from Sixty-fourth street where Harvey and I had jumped into the bay."

And then came the solemn and secret oath. Fred says if his folks had ever found out what happened they'd have quit the seashore that same night. And I've got a sneakin' hunch that maybe Fred and Harvey might have got a good licking for going off the end of that pier in defiance of parental orders. Anyway, everybody in the crowd, including the two city cousins, promised they'd never tell a word, and if Fred's ma and dad ever learn about it, it's because—well—because they read the Adventurers' club column, too.

Body Must Have Salt

Perspiration is chiefly water, but it contains a fair amount of salt which is discharged from the body. The body is constantly absorbing salt and getting rid of it again, but the operation of absorption and discharge must be so balanced as to insure a regular quantity of salt in the body at all times. Salt is necessary for the body and lack of it may be serious. Human blood contains exactly the same amount of salt as sea water—unquestionable evidence that man originally came out of the sea, says a writer in Pearson's London Weekly.

About Noses

The nose that is squat or flat, or negro type, indicates an animal mind devoid of finer feelings. The nose that sags in the middle shows a similar nature, cruel and treacherous. Pointed noses are "sticky beaks," says a writer in Pearson's London Weekly. This applies to all sharp features. Like knives and spears, they penetrate. These subjects are objectionably inquisitive and are liable to read your letters and are leave them about. If the nose is long and thin as well it shows a narrow mind—sometimes found in the "religious hypocrite."

Three Former Apache War Chiefs Find Peace In Their Waning Years May Divide Legion Into Ten Districts

TUSCON, Ariz.—What has become of the fierce Apache war chieftains of half a century ago who followed the renegade Geronimo into battle and subsequently into captivity? Dr. Frank C. Lockwood of the University of Arizona, set out to learn.

On the Jicarilla Reservation in New Mexico he obtained this answer: Three of the old warriors, who have found peace to their taste in waning years, are still alive. Sons and grandsons of others of the savage renegades, including Geronimo, are industrious and respected members of their tribes, leading a peaceful, pastoral life.

ALBUQUERQUE—H. C. Neuffer, commander of the New Mexico department of the American Legion, said Saturday a proposal to divide the state into ten districts would be offered at the state convention in Las Vegas the second week in August. The proposed districts by counties are: Rio Arriba, Taos, Mora, Santa Fe and San Miguel. Colfax, Union and Harding. Torrance and Guadalupe. Quay, De Baca, Roosevelt and Curry. Lincoln and Otero. Chavez, Lea and Eddy. Dona Ana, Luna, Hidalgo and Grant. Sierra, Catron and Socorro. Valencia, Bernalillo and Sandoval. McKinley and San Juan. The plan calls for five "areas" each divided into two districts for jurisdictional purposes. Mrs. Lizzie Rice left for her home Sunday after several weeks visit with her brothers Dub and Perry Andrus. Mrs. O. J. Andrus and Mrs. Oscar Thompson of Lovington, who have also been visiting here, returned home with her.

In the early days of Arizona, the white settlers were filled with terror at the atrocious deeds of Geronimo, Chihuahua, Cochise, Victoria, Juh and Nachez, leaders of the massaging Apaches. Subdued by Federal troops, Geronimo and his followers were imprisoned in Florida and later at Fort Sill, Okla., where many of the warriors died.

Of the chiefs who went into captivity with Geronimo, only Jokhani, Martini and Charlie Itsee remain alive. "Istee, son of the renowned Victoria, was sent to Carlisle University soon after he reached Florida. He remembers his father and his amazing exploits as a warrior. Istee is a successful farmer, coming seldom to the agency, and unwilling to be pointed out and marveled at as Victoria's son."

Children of the old warriors apparently have inherited none of their fierceness, Dr. Lockwood said, but in most instances are leaders in tribal affairs. "Two remarkable children of Chihuahua, now in their sixties, Ramona and Eugene, reside at White Tail on the Mescalero Reservation," Dr. Lockwood related. "They were nearly grown when taken to Florida, and were sent to Carlisle to school. Ramona is a fine, intelligent Christian woman. Eugene is an industrious and successful farmer. "Uncas, son of the famed Noche, born in Florida captivity, is a man of fine intelligence and character. "The husband of Ramona is Asa son of Juh, war chief of the Chiricahua, after the death of Cochise, the superior and associate of Geronimo. "Nachez' son, Christian, Coch-

Berbet Ice Cream: (Serves 6). In the still freezer of the new ice refrigerator this delicious ice cream is velvety-smooth and crystal-free. And it freezes in 1 hour. Recipe: Scald 1 cup cream and to it add 1/4 cup sugar and 2 tablespoons colored honey. Chill. Then add 1/2 cup grape juice and 1/2 cup pineapple juice. Beat well. Fold in 1 cup whipping cream (whipped) and store in freezing container of still stream freezer. Cover and surround with mixture of 3 parts ice cream to 1 part rock salt. Place in modern refrigerator and freeze for 1 hour, stirring once.

AC Program 1938 1938 Considered

A meeting of the State ACP committee and farm and ranch representatives of every type of agriculture in the state was held at State College, July 12-14. H. E. Schwartz, AAA representative of the western region, and L. E. Kindt of the AAA program planning division were also present and contributed much to the success of the meeting.

The conference went on record as recommending that a program be adopted for 1938 similar to the 1937 program and that the 1937 program be simplified.

Definite goals and objectives in connection with the ACP were established, chief of which is the soil conservation. Of almost equal importance was the reestablishment and maintenance of farm income on an equality basis. In order to reach these objectives, the following principles were adopted: Economic use of land by conserving fertility of soil, by curtailment of surplus production and by permitting and assisting in changes and shifts that will develop economic units of production best adapted to the production of given crops.

It was recommended that payments should be made for performance leading to the actual accomplishment of the national objectives of the program. It was decided that this program was definitely a soil conservation program and was in no way intended as a relief measure. Parity income and parity price should be the principle used in measuring the relative purchasing power of the farmer and ranchman.

The discussion in connection with range practices stressed the need of the re-establishment of forage plants and it was emphasized that practices of deferred grazing and control of rodents were particularly important. In addition, the practice of limited grazing was also recommended as valuable practices in the reestablishing of range plants.

Hollis Martin Given Life In Hondo Slaying

SANTA FE—Acting Governor Hiram Dow spared the life of Hollis Martin, 19-year old convicted slayer late Friday, commuting the death sentence hanging over the Altus, Okla., youth to life imprisonment.

The unexpected intervention, six days before Martin's scheduled electrocution July 23, for the death of his nine-year old cousin, Tommie Shaffer, came as a complete surprise to the capital. No comment accompanied the announcement.

Gov. Clyde Tingley, now in Missouri, consistently declined to comment on his attitude in the case.

Martin was convicted of first degree murder charges in the boy's death at Carrizozo in May, 1936. Previously he had stood trial for the fatal shooting of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Shaffer, Tommie's parents and the jury failed to reach a verdict.

The three victims were found dead at their Hondo farm home in November, 1935. Mr. and Mrs. Shaffer were shot to death and the boy was found dead in his bed, his head crushed.

Young Martin, then 17, had been visiting at the Shaffer home and was captured in Oklahoma City several days later driving the Shaffer automobile.

While refraining from any comment on his action, the acting Governor opened the executive file on the case that contained clemency pleas from relatives of the slain Mrs. Shaffer and a number of others.

"He was much pleased and very thankful his life had been spared," was the warden's only comment.

RUSSELL-BIVENS

A surprise wedding of interest to friends in the Artesia, Cottonwood and Lake Arthur communities was solemnized Friday evening at the home of Rev. and Mrs. W. M. Bowden of Lake Arthur, when Miss Fern Russell of Pasadena, California, became the bride of Dennis Bivens of the Cottonwood community. The Rev. Bowden, pastor of the Lake Arthur Methodist church, officiated. Present to witness the ceremony were Mrs. Fern Russell of Pasadena, mother of the bride, Mrs. K. A. Bivens, Melvin Bivens and Hollis Bivens, mother and brothers of the groom.

The bride was dressed in a powder blue crepe suit. Immediately after the wedding ceremony the bride and groom and wedding guests repaired to the home of the bride's uncle, John Lane and Mrs. Lane where a wedding supper was served.

Saturday morning the young couple left for an unannounced honeymoon trip to eastern points. They plan to return after a ten day trip and will be at home at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. A. Bivens.

The bride, a former resident of Lake Arthur, is the daughter of Mrs. Fern Russell. She lived at Lake Arthur for a number of years and graduated from the Lake Arthur high school with the class of 1934. Later she graduated from the Pasadena Business College at Pasadena, California.

The groom graduated from the Artesia high school with the class of 1933 and later attended Hardin Simmons University at Abilene, Texas for two years, where he took a prominent part in the university athletics.

POISON FOR FLIES

The following recipe clipped from an El Paso paper, is said to be an effective poison for flies, especially in and around outbuildings and barns, where ordinary spray may not be effective.

Two tablespoons of sodium arsenite, (be sure to get arsenite not arsenate), add one cup of molasses and one quart of water. Put the poison where flies can get to it but keep it out of the reach of children and small animals. Valley farmers who are using the mixture say it is best to put in sheds, garages and shady places.

Miss Lucy Thomas of Roswell visited last week end with Mrs. Stella B. Palmer and other friends, and transacted business while here. She is offering (as will be found elsewhere in the Messenger), for sale, her little place in west Hagerman.
