Health Column

Conducted by Charles M. Cree, Director, Division of Health Education

Observance of Mother's Day on the second Sunday of May each year is more than a token of affection for one's own mother.

Observance of Mother's Day cannot be completed by—for instance—a call on one's mother, a few flowers and a peck on the cheek.

Observance of Mother's Day involves respect and consideration and thought for the mothers of all time—for the mothers of years gone by, for the mothers of today—and for the mothers of tomorrow.

In years gone by the sacrifice of maternal life was appalling, and it says much for the courage of the mothers of the past that our race was perpetuated.

Even today about 30,000 deaths associated with maternity occur each year in the United States and since maternity is a normal process and not a disease it is clear that something is wrong.

Modern medical science, when given a chance, can virtually guarantee safe maternity. It is obvious then that modern medical science is not being given the change it should have. It is obvious too that the mothers of today are not fully informed as to the steps they should take to protect themselves against unnecessary hazards. The answer is concise and clear.

Expectant mothers must realize that both for their own sake and for that of the new life the time to become interested in a successful outcome is the moment the expectancy is realized.

The first and most important step to assure the successful outcome is for the mother to place herself under the guidance of a competent physician at the commencement of her pregnancy and to follow the directions of that physician throughout her waiting period, keeping in close touch with him and keeping him informed as to her condition.

This then is the answer, and for our observance of Mother's Day this year let us work towards the safety of the mothers of the future by spreading the gospel of the necessity for adequate medical care to insure happy motherhood for mothers yet to come.

It's a Party When School Lets Out!

"Last Day" Cause For Rejoicing

The last ding of the school bell (only it's a buzzer now) will soon be heard throughout the land and schools will start giving forth the young ones, age 7, 16 or 22. Starting in May and carrying on through June, the "3 R's" of pedagogy will shift over to the "3 R's" of vacation — set them down as Recreation, Relaxation and Repeating!

The end of the school year and the beginning of vacation is cause for another R—Rejoicing. In rural communities it's often a "last day" celebration with "speaking pieces" a prime entertainment. In other communities it's left to mother to arrange some kind of celebration (with plenty of good food)—and she has never failed Junior yet!

Promoted first-graders will go in for the simple pleasures of ice cream and cookies; fresh out of college (which is very fresh indeed) may prefer a dance with tiny sandwiches and pink punch. But a party is on the horizon and help is proffered here in the form of various suggestions. Take one, take all!

College students like their coffee hot with their inevitable sandwiches and late-hour snacks, but they love its flavor in a peanut butter frosting and they warm up to a chilly coffee punch made like this:

Arctic Punch
Make coffee double strength, using 2 heaping tablespoons of coffee to each measuring cup of water; chill quickly, by placing in bowl of cracked ice. Before serving add to each 4 cups of fresh hot coffee, 6 tablespoons fine powdered sugar and 2 tablespoons vanilla. Stir well until sugar is dissolved. Pour into glasses about 3/4 full of cracked ice.

Quick Peanut Butter Frosting
1/2 teasp. salt; 1/2 teasp. vanilla; 1/2 cup butter; 1/2 cup peanut butter; 1/2 cup cold strong coffee; 2 1/2 cups sifted confectioner's sugar.
Cool freshly made coffee quickly; cream butter, add peanut butter and salt; blend thoroughly. Add sugar, alternately with coffee, a small amount at a time. Cream thoroughly after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. (Store in covered jar, if desired, until ready to use.) Makes enough frosting to cover tops and sides of two 8-inch layers.

May Marguerites
Two eggs; 1 cup brown sugar; 1/2 cup flour; 1/2 teasp. baking powder; 1/2 teasp. salt; 1/2 cup chopped nut meats; 1/2 cup all-bran.
Beat eggs slightly; add remaining ingredients in order given. Fill small buttered pans 2/3 full of mixture. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) about 15 minutes. Cool slightly before removing from pan. Dust with powdered sugar. Yield: 2 1/2 dozen.

Sardine Brownies
Drain smoked Norwegian sardines from oil. Chop and mix with lemon juice and small amount of mayonnaise. Cut Boston brown bread into rounds with cookie cutter. Place slice of cucumber on each round and top chopped sardine mixture on top.

Brazil Nut Ice Box Cookies
Two cups flour; 2 teasp. phosphate baking powder; 1/2 teasp. salt; 1/2 cup butter; 1 1/2 cups brown sugar, firmly packed; 1 egg, well beaten; 1 cup chopped Brazil nuts; 2 1/2 teasp. vanilla.
Sift flour, measure, add baking powder, salt and sift again. Cream butter, add sugar gradually, and cream well. Add egg, Brazil nuts and vanilla. Add flour gradually, mixing well. Shape into rolls 1 1/2 inches in diameter; roll in waxed paper. Chill until firm. Cut in 1/2-inch slices; bake on ungreased sheet in hot oven (425° F.) about 5 minutes. Six dozen cookies.

WHAT'S WHAT In NEW MEXICO

News Briefs of the "Sunshine State," Gleaned from Many Sources

New Mexico Game Department officials estimated there are 15,000 antelope in the state and that the present resettlement and transplanting program would double the figure. Deputy R. B. Combs said the success of the department's preservation program is indicated in that the fleet animals are "making themselves thoroughly at home, and propagating" on favorable ranges in thirteen counties, to which they have been transplanted from Socorro, Catron and Chaves Counties.

A military burial was given Lorenzo Sanchez, Sr., 85-year-old Apache scout at Gallup, whose body was shipped from Portola, Calif., where he died. Sanchez, a resident of Gallup for twenty-five years, was a bugler with the Confederate forces when he was 13, subsequently serving as a government Indian scout and an aide to General Shafter, whose troops chased Chief Nana, wily Apache marauder. He was given a military medal by President Roosevelt last July at the dedication of the Gettysburg monument.

The disease was reported to have entered the state through the northern boundary and to have spread over a wide area, although the degree of infection was not yet severe.

Chairman J. C. Morgan of the Navajo tribal council said meeting of the council of New Mexico and Arizona Indians, first scheduled for last January, would be held at Window Rock, Ariz., May 15-17. He said the meeting will deal primarily with education, health, and home-building among the Indians. It was believed several problems remain to be worked out, although Morgan's election to the head of the council last fall apparently softened reported Indian opposition to the policies of Indian Commissioner John Collier.

The University of New Mexico announced it would offer next autumn a four-year course leading to the degree of bachelor of business administration. "The new degree is being offered in response to a growing demand for work in this field," said Dr. Vernon G. Sorrell, head of the school's department of economics and business administration. "A bachelor of business administration degree will be more indicative of a student's record than the B. A. degree." Dr. Sorrell said the course would be patterned after those used in leading business administration schools. Requirements set up and approved by the faculty and regents conform to the standards of the Association of the American College Schools of Business.

DEPOSITS ARE THE RAINDROPS BANKS ARE THE RESERVOIRS

One raindrop cannot nourish a field of growing crops nor run a mill wheel. Neither can $5.00 in John Smith's pocket meet the credit needs of a community.

But when hundreds of "John Smiths" make deposits in the bank, a "reservoir" is created from which the bank can make loans to the farmer, the merchant, the manufacturer, and others.

In this way, banks and their depositors work together for mutual benefit.

Junior-Senior Banquet, Held Last Friday, Was Gala Social Affair

One of the colorful social events of high school days is the annual Junior-Senior banquet, held a few weeks prior to graduation days. Colorful, because all the feminine hearts may satisfy that desire for lovely, soft, fluffy and somber or brilliantly colored taffetas, crepes, tulles; or perhaps crisp organdie may swish around in gay delight. Each year has an individual memory for that boy or girl who have been "one of them."

This year's banquet was held last Friday night at the lovely home of the home economics department, which still has that new, modern air. The affair from the beginning was outstanding; from the invitations, which bore the likeness of a gay, romantic cowboy; the secret was "out," the banquet was to be "Western and cowboy fashion."

Quartet tables were beautiful with their decorations of pastel-hued roses. Place cards represented horse troughs and names were found written on the side. Programs were given and carried a picture of a saddle on the cover. Favors were minute sombreros and cowboys on horses. Their menu was: Cocktail soup, foder and tomato salad, chicken fried jerky, mashed spuds and soppings, green frijoles, rolls, strawberries with fermented cow, chaser—a cup of mud. Guests were the senior class, the faculty of the school and three junior class members.

Jim Langenegger was toastmaster. He introduced Evan Evans, who welcomed the guests. Miss Bernice Talk responded. The entire group sang "Home on the Range." "The Tally Sheet" was given by Miss Jessie George, the senior sponsor. "Empty Saddles" was sung by the group, and three faculty members, E. A. White, Al Woodburn and Coach Ledbetter made talks. As a closing feature, "The Last Roundup" was sung by all.
