WHITE MOUNTAIN DISTRICT.

The Ruidoso, Eagle and Bonito, running streams, head in the White Mountains, flow east and form the Hondo River. The Ruidoso on the south is about ten miles from the Bonito on the north, and six miles from Eagle in the center.

In the early days, prior to 1870, the whole of the mountain range of country, stretching from the Mescalero Indian Reservation, just south of Ruidoso, northward to the Jicarilla Mountains, a distance of about 50 miles, was known as the Sierra Blanca region.

Many old ruins were noticed at the time of the first prospecting, of which but little is known of the former inhabitants. Traditions of the Indians and Mexicans have it that these ancient people worked rich mines of gold and silver somewhere in the Sierra Blanca; the location of which at the present time is unknown. About the year 1867, the Sierra Blanca lode was located.

THE PARSONS DISTRICT

At Parsons, on the head of the Bonito, is a mountain of low grade ore which is now being worked successfully. As a matter of fact, this property consists of a mountain of ore. The mountain side is blasted down and conveyed in trucks to the mill.

THE NOGAL DISTRICT.

North of Parsons, about 7 miles, is what is now called the Nogal District. In 1865 gold was discovered in Dry Gulch, near the village of Nogal. In 1882 the Rockford mine was opened, the ore running $80.00 per ton. In 1883 M. M. Gaylord & Co. erected a Rockford mill with Cornish Rolls, and in sixty days cleaned up $8,000.00; and in eleven months' time thereafter two men working in the mine took out $23,000.00. In 1885 this property was sold for $11,000.00, and shortly afterwards a two-thirds interest was sold for $25,000.00. This mine has yielded up to 1904, $85,000.00.

No mines in the Nogal District are better known than the Helen Rae and Cross Cut. Wm. Rae, the owner, pounded out with mortar and pestle from $100.00 to $300.00 per day, and one pan of dirt yielded $1,000.00 in gold. This property was sold to Rolla Wells, mayor of St. Louis, for $15,000.00. It is now owned by the American Gold Mining Company.

WHITE OAKS.

Some twelve miles north of Nogal, in the Sierra Blanca region, is what is now known as the White Oaks District.

In the fall of 1879 fabulously rich gold ore was discovered in Baxter Mountains. In May, 1880, the town of White Oaks, on the east side and at the foot of Baxter Mountains, was surveyed. The North Homestake was located and sold for $43.00 and a pony. Shortly afterwards Jas. M. Sigafus paid $50,000.00 for it; and in twelve months the mine returned the purchase price and earned a profit of $10,000. It was stated that this mine yielded $35,000.00 from rich pockets in two days. Its total yield to January, 1904, was $525,000.00.

CAPITAN MERCANTILE COMPANY.

The Old Abe, near the Homestake, has yielded $875,000.00 to January 1904 and is now being profitably mined. The main shaft is 1400 feet deep and perfectly dry—It is the deepest dry mine in the world.

The North and South Homestakes, Little Mack, Compromise and Old Abe, all lie in a small circumscribed area on the east slope of Baxter Mountains.

The South Homestake has yielded $600,000.00; the Little Mack $50,000.00. Beautiful specimens of nuggets and wire gold have been taken from the Compromise.

Placer mining has been carried on in the Jicarilla Mountains since 1850.

Reference is made to the foregoing and well known properties to show that the Sierra Blanca region contains rich gold ores, and that the mines of the MONTEZUMA MINING COMPANY are in the heart of this rich gold bearing belt.

The mountains near the head of Eagle and Bonito have never been thoroughly prospected owing to the close proximity of the Mescalero Indians; and it is believed that in the immediate vicinity of the Montezuma Mines is the rich gold section worked by the natives years ago.

Up in the deep, dark canyons of the White Mountains, in the southwestern portion of Lincoln County, N. M., among the graceful forest trees and gushing springs, begins, in the quiet beauty of the shady nooks, the dancing water brook known as Eagle Creek. It starts out so cheerily upon its course; it is so clear and pure, so sparkling with sunshine and spirit. It dashes down mountain valleys; gurgles under boulders; swirls over waterfalls; flashes through ravines and gorges. With its sweep and glide and its silvery laugh it seems to lead a merry life, until it meets oblivion in the Ruidoso.

In times long gone, the Indian hunter sought shelter from the August sun beneath the boughs of the cedar and juniper or the tow-

The Chicago Inter Ocean notes that the modern "sucker" is not exclusive to a rural product. The innocent city man will bite at a bare hook when a farmer is suspicious.

The Boston Globe asserts that "using the typewriter is in many respects a kindergarten exercise." It may be so in Boston, but not all places are so cultured.

It is encouraging to read in a headline in the financial column that the supply of money is steadily increasing, even though your lower right hand vest pocket doesn't look that way.

Fine View from Gibraltar

"It is not a very hard climb to the signal station on the summit of Gibraltar," writes a traveler. "The height is no more than 1,350 feet. I visited the station with a friend on a fine November day. The path zigzags up the precipitous western face of the mighty rock; now and again we passed a sentry and had to show our passport. Once we had gained the summit we felt ourselves more than amply repaid. Whichever way one turns the views are truly superb. Westward, across the bay of Gibraltar, with its magnificent setting of hill and mountain, lay the extreme south of beautiful Andalusia. North and east stretched Malaga and Granada, with the splendid heights of the Sierra Nevada in the far distance. Eastward rolled the blue Mediterranean; the white canvas of a sailing bark showed right beneath us, and steamships plied, like gigantic water beetles, pushing steadily on their course. Southward, close at hand, the nearest point no more than about fifteen miles distant, the wild land of Morocco met our gaze, rugged chains of mountains corrugating its surface; while far away, in dimmest distance, rose a blue range, which was pointed out to us as the mighty Atlas itself. It was a fine, clear day, and the panorama, whichever way we looked, was unspeakably grand. It seemed that one could never tire of feasting one's eyes on so sublime and so historic a prospect.

"No trees exist, but a good deal of bush and shrub clothes the parched surface. There still lingers about the upper portion of the rock the last remnant of the troops of Barbary apes, which once roamed freely about Gibraltar. No more than half a dozen now exist and modern fortifications and other necessary works are, I fear, making Gibraltar much too busy a place to shelter these shy creatures. Still, it is just possible that this feeble remnant of the only wild apes known to Europe may yet survive and increase. At one time, from much persecution, they had sunk to three individuals; yet in 1893 the numbers had risen again to at least thirty.

"These apes are baboonlike creatures exactly similar to the tailless Barbary ape found in Morocco. They are supposed by some to be clear evidences of the fact that Africa and Spain were once joined. It is by no means certain that they are indigenous to the rock. A large number were introduced in 1740 and in 1863 fresh blood was again imported. These apes have been known to scientists for long ages and Galen, the renowned Roman physician, in his day studied and even dissected them."

Actors as Wood Carvers

During the nine tranquil years that intervene between productions of the passion play at Oberammergau most of the actors in that wonderful drama support themselves through their remarkably developed art of wood carving, says the Boston Post. Almost exclusively they devote their skill to the production of sacred figures and objects.

A world-wide reputation is enjoyed by the "Christ carvers" of Oberammergau, as they are called. A popular play bears that name, and specimens of their wonderful handiwork may be found in nearly every city of the globe.

Many of the carvings are sold to such tourists, while others are sent to near-by cities and placed upon the market, drifting eventually all over the world.

Peter Rendl, the curly-haired performer of the part of St. John, is one of Guido Lang's ablest assistants and an enthusiastic as well as devout carver of the figures of Christ.

The entire family of Anton Lang engages in wood carving. It is typical of the home industry that the old people and young children take part in the less difficult tasks.

A carving school is conducted, in which the boys are trained to follow the trade of their fathers. As a rule these pupils perfect themselves in the manufacture of toys before they attempt figures.

Men who take leading parts in the passion play direct the wood-carving industry. It is their pride that the reproductions of the characters they so devoutly represent on the stage shall be true to life.

In the workshop of Anton Lang, who in the passion play assumes the role of Christ, particularly may be seen the earnest artists at work, surrounded by all sorts of carved objects, including, in addition to the well-known figures in the sacred drama, ornaments for churches and altars.

Anton Lang and his brother, Guido, have practically a monopoly of the sale of carvings. They own studios and exhibition rooms and these are visited by hundreds of tourists annually.

He Didn't Know Jefferson

My agent had been a manager in Australia some years before, so he knew everybody, wrote Joseph Jefferson in his autobiography. We went to the theater, where he introduced me to the manager, and as I shall have some little business relations with this gentleman of an interesting sort, perhaps it will be as well to describe him, he being almost a historical character. He was an undersized, round-shouldered little cockney, named Rolamo. Where he got his remarkable Italian appellation I cannot say, but if his ancestors belonged to the land of song they must have strayed into the very heart of Whitechapel just previous to the birth of their son and heir, as his dialect was strongly impregnated with the drawling twang of that locality. It is recorded of him that he never was known to put an h in the right place, and his talent for reversing the w and v almost amounted to genius. He had originally been lamplighter in the theater, but by his industry and intelligence he rose to be its manager, and he was in the zenith of his fame when I arrived in Australia. After my agent had introduced me to Mr. Rolamo as the coming man who was to make his (the manager's) fortune, that worthy cast a patronizing eye over me, but did not seem at all overwhelmed, taking my arrival with provoking coolness. This chilling atmosphere pervaded the office until my agent unrolled some highly inflammable printed matter, the novel character of which seemed to attract the great man's attention, and condescending to address me, he said: "You see, Mr. Jeffries—oh, I beg pardon, Jimmison. I mean—with all due respect to you, there 'as been so many blawsted Yankee comics over 'ere that we are kind o' sick on 'em. You may be a hextra good lot for all I know, but lately the queerest mummies we've 'ad 'ave come from Amerikee. This printed stuff you've got looks spicily—in fact, I don't know as I ever see spicier—but it don't prove nothing, does it?"

Just Discrimination in Railway Rates.

All railroad men qualified to speak on the subject in a responsible way are likely to agree with President Samuel Spencer of the Southern Railway when he says: "There is no division of opinion as to the desirability of stopping all secret or unjustly discriminatory devices and practices of whatsoever character."

Mr. Spencer, in speaking of "unjustly discriminatory" rates and devices, makes a distinction which is at once apparent to common sense. There may be discrimination in freight rates which is just, reasonable and imperatively required by the complex commercial and geographical conditions with which expert rate makers have to deal. To abolish such open and honest discrimination might paralyze the industries of cities, states and whole sections of our national territory.

This distinction between just and unjust discrimination is clearly recognized in the conclusions of the International Railway Congress, published yesterday:

"Tariffs should be based on commercial principles, taking into account the special conditions which bear upon the commercial value of the services rendered. With the reservation that rates shall be charged without arbitrary discrimination to all shippers alike under like conditions, the making of rates should as far as possible have all the elasticity necessary to permit the development of the traffic and to produce the greatest results to the public and to the railroads themselves."

The present proposal is, as Mr. Walker D. Hines of Louisville showed in his remarkable testimony the other day before the Senate Committee at Washington, to crystallize flexible and justly discriminatory rates into fixed government rates which cannot be changed except by the intervention of some government tribunal, and by this very process to increase "the temptation to depart from the published rate and the lawful rate in order to meet some overpowering and urgent commercial condition."—New York Sun.

WASN'T IN HIS LINE.

Janitor's Excellent Reason for Not Moving Piano:

The piano stuck on the landing and there was a blockade, while the other tenants suddenly discovered that it was imperative that they should leave the house at that moment. Most of them accepted the situation with philosophy, but the woman from the top flat was in a hurry.

"Why don't you lift it over the top of the banisters?" she stormed, unmindful of the fact that the corner posts were unusually high. "I think it is an outrage for a mover to send men not strong enough to handle a piano."

"Lady," answered one of the men, "you ain't at no continuous performance now. If we was able to lift that planner as high as that we c'd get all the jobs we wanted on the stage. What we need is another man."

This gave the irate one an idea. "William," she called, leaning over the rail to address the hall boy, "why don't you help these men? Can't you see that we are all being detained because these poor fellows are not strong enough to lift that awkward thing? Come and help them this instant."

"No, m'm," said William, solemnly. "I ain't no piano mover; no indeedy. Las' time I help I got my foot smashed and didn't have no wuk for four weeks. 'Deed I ain't no piano mover, lady."

So she went to the roof and came down through the next house.

Treasures of the Vatican.

The vatican is a city, nay, a little kingdom in itself. Its thousands of rooms are divided up into libraries, art galleries, chapels, monasteries, museums, mausoleums, administrative halls and private suites, says the Four Track News. Within the portals of the vatican the impression wrought up by its disappointing exterior vanishes completely. Here all is one vast silence. No echo from the outside world penetrates to disturb its serene peace. Dignity and decorum pervade the atmosphere and, in the deep stillness, pictures from its tremendous past come and go as in a panorama. Pestilence, fire and war have raged within these old walls. Mailed Saracens camped within its sacred precincts, and vandals from the brutal North bivouacked in its sanctuary and ruthlessly destroyed its finest treasures. Many are the nations the vatican guarded and watched alternately from afar, and many are the dynasties it has seen rise and fall.

HER WEAKNESS GONE

HOT FLASHES AND SINKING SPELLS CONQUERED AT LAST.

Mrs. Murphy Tells Her Fellow-Sufferers How She Got Rid of Serious Troubles by Simple Home Treatment.

"I had been bothered for several years," said Mrs. Murphy, "by stomach disorder, and finally I became very weak and nervous. Flashes of heat would pass over me, and I would feel as if I was sinking down. At such times I could not do any household work, but would have to lie down, and afterwards I would have very trying nervous spells." "Didn't you have a doctor?" she was asked.

"Yes, I consulted several doctors but my health did not improve. One day a friend asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She assured me that they had proved of the greatest benefit in the case of her daughter. In fact, she praised them so enthusiastically that my husband got me a box."

"And what was the result?"

"Before I had taken half of the first box my condition was greatly improved. The quickness with which they reached and relieved all my troubles was really surprising. After I had used only three boxes I had no more heat-flashes or weak spells. Thanks to them, I have become a well woman."

Mrs. Mary D. Murphy lives at No. 1903 Force street, Fort Wayne, Indiana. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the remedy which she found so satisfactory, furnish directly to the blood the elements that give vigor to every tissue of the body. They can be depended on to revive failing strength, and to banish nervousness. Their tonic properties are absolutely unsurpassed.

As soon as there is drag, or dizziness, or pallor, or poor circulation, or disordered digestion, or restlessness, or pains, or irregularities of any kind these famous pills should be used. They have cured the most obstinate cases of anemia, dyspepsia, rheumatism, neuralgia, nervous prostration and even partial paralysis.

If you desire information specially suited to your own case write directly to the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. Every woman should have a copy of Dr. Williams' "Plain Talks to Women," which will be mailed free to any address on request. Any druggist can supply the pills.

I applied the Cuticura and put a thin cap on his head, and before I had used half of the box it was entirely cured, his hair commenced to grow out nicely again, and he has had no return of the trouble. THE QUESTION OF PEACE.

The peace proposals announced some time since and the appointment of commissioners on the part of Russia and Japan seems to be slow in producing results. The commissioners, however, have been appointed, and are to meet at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, and its sittings should begin soon.

Just what the result of the conference will be is only a matter of conjecture, but it is thought that the commissioners may be able to amicably adjust the differences of the two countries, and bring about peace. Yet there is a small element in Russia which insist on the prosecution of the war, notwithstanding the disasters abroad and the riots and mutinies at home; and a still greater number which are opposed to accepting peace at any price. If Japan insists on too much peace negotiations will likely be interrupted, and the war continued.

In the meantime the hostile armies are facing each other on the plains of Manchuria, and as no armistice has been announced, another fierce battle is expected at any day. In fact, skirmishes are almost of a daily occurrence, and some engagements that almost assume the rank of battles are taking place. The Japs have captured Sakhalin island, just south of the sea of Okhotsk, and they expect to be able to invest the fortress of Vladivostok and starve its garrison into submission; provided the end of the war does not come too soon.

General Linevitch has an army of 400,000 men and the Japanese have an equal or greater number, and should they meet in deadly conflict the slaughter necessarily will be appalling. A greater danger seems to threaten the Russian government at home than the reverses in war. These disturbances at home must lead to reform or bitter suppression. Many of the rioters have been killed, but a number of the government officials have also given their last oppressive order.

Russia's Peace Conditions.

St. Petersburg, July 17—The Novoe Vremya today prints the following statement of Russia's position, which may be inspired: "Russia can consent only to such peace as will not effect the dignity or the vigilance of the empire. To act otherwise would be fatal to Russia and would threaten Europe. Europe no longer believes Japan's statement that she will not restrict European interests in the far east. Even in England and America the voices of the moral instigators can be heard in favor of an indirect influence of the powers to moderate Japanese demands. Our plenipotentiaries must remember that they must defend the interests not only of Russia, but also of the Caucasian powers, and will find moral support in Berlin, Paris, Washington and perhaps even London. Our army in the field is much stronger than it was fifteen months ago. The Hamburger Nachrichten proposes that Europe intimate to Japan that any extreme demands will be resisted by Europe, especially Germany. This is a valuable statement. We must ascertain the acceptable maximum of our concessions to Japan from the European point of view and act accordingly."

A small fire occurred at Coalora Tuesday night at the residence of Mrs. M. J. Ripley, which but for prompt work on the part of the people, who immediately responded to the call, might have resulted in a conflagration. As it was, the flames consumed all the household effects. The fire is thought to be of incendiary origin, and a suspect has been arrested and will be given a hearing today.

NEW YORK WORLD

Thrice-A-Week Edition.

Read Wherever the English Language is Spoken
The Thrice-a-Week World has made special arrangements for the year 1905. Its already great news service has been extended and, as heretofore, it will report all important events promptly, accurately and impartially.

An original and striking feature of the Thrice-a-Week World in 1905 will be its serial publication of the strongest and best fiction that has ever appeared in the columns of any newspaper. The novels already arranged for, and which are by writers known throughout the world, are:

In addition to these stories the THIRCE-A-WEEK WORLD is in negotiation for others equally as good.

The THIRCE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and CAPITAN NEWS together one year for $1.75. The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.50.

Methodist Campmeeting.

The Protestant Methodists will begin a campmeeting, near the home of B. Dobbins, 2½ miles northwest of Coalora, Friday night before the second Sunday in August. Rev. S. W. Lane will conduct the services. All are cordially invited.

Wedding Bells.

At Fort Stanton, Sunday, 2 o'clock P. M., Judge Jno. A. Haley officiated, in his best style, to the enlivening cadences of a cake walk, produced by one of Edison's instruments, at a wedding; the contracting parties being Shelby G. Steele, Dr. P. M. Carrington's factotum, and Miss Sallie Richardson, Mrs. Carrington's nurse. The couple marched through the spacious hall at the doctor's residence and out on the front porch, where a large crowd had assembled to witness the ceremony.

The groom was dressed in a silk hat, and the bride wore a smile that wouldn't rub off. The happy pair were sent to their quarters with the best wishes of those present, and there was enough color in the scene to make the old hills of Georgia and Tennessee appear very near.

Telephone Connections.

A new telephone line is under construction between this point and Nogal. The same parties who built the line to Lincoln are building this latter line. When this line is completed, Lincoln county will have systems of telephone connecting many points. Lincoln, Capitan, Fort Stanton, Nogal, Parsons, Carrizozo and White Oaks will be able to converse one with the other.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Robinson had the misfortune to lose their baby, which died and was buried on the Bonito this week.

TEA

It is a most mild delight; but it is a delight—good tea, fine tea.

Metal-Coated Fabrics.

A method has recently been invented of depositing a metal coating electrically on laces and other fine fabrics. The process is still kept a secret, but it turns out the most surprising results, in effect changing the tissues exposed into the daintiest fabrics of gold, silver or bronze. The utility of the metallized laces covers various fields; they serve for table ornamentation and for centerpieces; architects use them in mural decorations; in applications on upholstery and for the hangings of panels in salons, boudoirs and rich dining halls. The makers of fine furniture inlaid wood with them in the manufacture of screens and on surfaces of any kind, plain or carved. They are also used with striking effect in ecclesiastical vestments and in ball and evening dress.

Rich as they are in appearance and unparalleled in delicacy and beauty, they are very cheap. Anybody can afford them, and the extent of their use in costuming bids fair to be very great. France discovered and is developing the industry, and Asmos says that it starts off with all the signs that it is going to become an important business.

FEED YOU MONEY.

Feed Your Brain, and It Will Feed You Money and Fame.

"Ever since boyhood I have been especially fond of meats, and I am convinced I ate too rapidly, and failed to masticate my food properly.

"The result was that I found myself, a few years ago, afflicted with ailments of the stomach and kidneys, which interfered seriously with my business.

"At last I took the advice of friends and began to eat Grape-Nuts instead of the heavy meats, etc., that had constituted my former diet.

"I found that I was at once benefited by the change, that I was soon relieved from the heart-burn and the indigestion that used to follow my meals, that the pains in my back from my kidney affection had ceased, showing that those organs had been healed, and that my nerves, which used to be unsteady, and my brain, which was slow and lethargic from a heavy diet of meats and greasy foods, had, not in a moment, but gradually, and none the less surely, been restored to normal efficiency. Now every nerve is steady and my brain and thinking faculties are quicker and more acute than for years past.

"After my old style breakfasts I used to suffer during the forenoon from a feeling of weakness which hindered me seriously in my work, but since I have begun to use Grape-Nuts food I can work till dinner time with all ease and comfort." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

KNOW NOTHING OF SYMPATHY

That Feeling Beyond Lower Animals, Says John Burrough.

An Iowa correspondent asks me to give him my opinion as to whether or not any of the dumb animals have sympathy, says John Burrough in Outing, and added that a minister at a funeral in their town had said that no animal except man was capable of sympathy. I agree with the minister. Sympathy, I think, is "beyond the lower animals. When we sympathize with a person we put ourselves in his or her place; we feel sorry for him; we pity him; we would gladly alleviate his suffering—all of which implies more or less imagination and disinterested regard. Susceptibility to the sufferings of others is one of many higher attributes. When sympathy was born the race lifted above the purely animal plane.

The next step is taking the sufferings of others upon yourself, which is the highest form of altruism. Pure selfishness rules the lower animals, and necessarily so. Sympathy is not necessary for the continuance of the species, but affection for their young is. Animals certainly have a feeling of comradeship for each other, and experience something like grief at separation, yet a dog or a cat or a horse or a cow will sniff at the dead body of its dead fellow with apparent unconcern. A cry of distress among the birds will bring every bird within hearing to the spot, and cause them to be more or less agitated, but it is only because they are alarmed for their own safety; a common enemy may be about. In the herd and the flock a sick or wounded member is often fallen upon by its fellows and destroyed.

If any animal ever experienced the emotion we call sympathy it is, of course, the dog. The dog has so long been the companion of man that he often shows in his nature a trace of the purely human.

Only Once.

"Did I understand you to say you had played poker out west?" was asked of the man who had been telling about prairies and mountains.

"Yes, I played once for about an hour," was the reply.

"Was the game interrupted by a landslide or something?"

"Oh, no! We had a pot of about $30 on the table when I got four aces in my hand. We bet and raised until there was $100 before us and then I called."

"And raked in the money?"

"Well, no. I was going to, but the other fellow showed me that he held five aces, and so I wouldn't play any more. It was evident that the western way was not my way."

Applied Science.

"Jeems!" bawled Farmer Geehaw on the day after his son returned from college.

"Yes, governor."

"What's this newfangled business called that I hear you braggin' so much about?"

"Jiu jitsu."

"Ju jitsu, eh? Pretty husy thing, is it?"

"That's-what it is."

"Well, Jeems."

"What is it, governor?"

"S'pose ye jest hustle out an' see what ju jitsu'll do fer that air wood pile yander."—Pittsburg Post.

Crystal Palaces for All.

If Germany is right—and several times in the last thousands of years it has been right—we shall all eventually be living in what Boston calls crystal edifices, and consequently must carefully refrain from the projection of promiscuous geological fragments. Glass has been found to be a cheaper and lighter building material than brick. Why not? It is made of sand which is rather more universal and abundant than brick clay. Suitable sand is found all over the United States, and the American sand is said to be better for the purpose than that found in Europe. As a structural material, glass has the advantage over brick, that it can be made in any degree of transparency. It will admit light to see by, and yet can be so treated that it will not reveal the proceedings of those who are behind it. If all the flat houses and tenement houses of this city were made of glass it would at least be possible for landlords and agents to advertise truthfully "all light rooms." And yet such privacy as is possible in any flat would not be interfered with, for the structural material could be sufficiently clouded to obstruct the direct vision. Moreover, the adage about throwing stones would not apply, for structural glass is as tough as a brick, if not tougher. Streets at Grenoble, France, have been paved with "bricks" of pure crystal glass, and our corul at that point declares them to be a success.

Thought She Couldn't Live.

Moravia, N. Y., June 5.—Mr. Benjamin Wilson, a highly respected resident of this place, came very near losing his wife and now that she is cured and restored to good health his gratitude knows no bounds. He says:

"My wife has suffered everything with Sugar Diabetes. She has been sick four years. She doctored with two good doctors but kept growing worse. The doctors said she could not live. She failed from 200 pounds down to 130 pounds. This was her weight when she began to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and now she weighs 190, is well and feeling stronger every day.

"She used to have rheumatism so bad that it would raise great bumps all over her body and this is all gone too.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are a God-send to those who suffer as my wife did. They are all that saved her. We can't praise them enough."

Coins Out of Circulation

One frequently comes across the old jolly-looking big copper cents, particularly in small towns and country places. It was in 1857 that their coinage was discontinued by act of Congress, and late archives in the Treasury department show that at the end of the last fiscal year there were of them outstanding over a million dollars.

Further coinage of the half-cent coins ended at the same time. The total amount of these coined all together was about $40,000,000, speaking in round numbers. The two-cent pieces were of bronze metal. Their enforced retirement from commercial activity began in 1873, since which date the mints have not been busy with their manufacture. The little silver three-cent pieces trouble the marts no longer, though some of them may be hidden away somewhere to serve as relics. Their coinage began in 1857 and continued until February, 1873. The smiling little silver half-dime, the coinage of which began over a century ago, received its quietus, so far as its manufacture was concerned, at the same date as the three-cent silver piece.

Other of these minor coins that have had their day are in honorable retirement in the hoards of collectors, in museums and elsewhere. Among these are the nickel three-cent pieces and the little old gray-faced nickel cents, though it is easy to run across one of these little coins occasionally. Their making at the mints lasted from 1857 to 1864. Then there used to be a silver twenty-cent piece. This is also among the list of "has beens."

Many of course can remember the days of the infants of coinage, the one-dollar piece that was in the habit of losing itself, so little it was, in the vest pocket or in any other part of one's apparel where it was allowed to lie around loose. There were about 19,000,000 of the babies coined. Where are they roaming now? Then there was at one time a three-dollar gold coin. Their manufacture was discontinued by an act of Congress passed Sept. 26, 1880, the same date that marked the beginning of the end of the gold dollar. In all there were over a million and a half dollars of these coined.—Washington Star.

Long Sought Passage Found

According to dispatches from San Francisco Capt. Ronald Amundsen has discovered the northwest passage. If so, he has finished the labors of hardy sailors and other explorers for centuries past. It was the commercial instinct that led to the first great voyages of discovery. This instinct had two phases. One was to extend the limits of the northern fisheries. The prosecution of the whaling industries is estimated to have added over $600,000,000 to the wealth of the world in the 200 years before the middle of the nineteenth century. The other phase of the commercial instinct was the desire to shorten the water route between the ports of western Europe and the rich orient. The era of scientific research in polar exploration did not begin until the last half of the nineteenth century. The humanitarian spirit that led many expeditions to engage in the search for Sir John Franklin resulted in enormous additions to the world's knowledge of those regions.

John Davis in 1588 succeeded in reaching what is now Godthaab, Greenland, and his three voyages gave the first great impulse toward the northwest passage. There followed a succession of brave men, each of whom added something to what was already known, and then in the last century, in the '40s, came the ill-fated expedition of Sir John Franklin. Franklin had two ships and 129 men. Years after his departure a member of McClintock's party found, in 1859, records which showed that the Franklin ships had been abandoned April 22, 1848. Franklin and twenty-three others having previously died. And 105 men had perished in an attempt to reach Fish river. Their route is marked by graves and skeletons and the whole party practically vanished from human knowledge. The last search for news of Franklin was made in 1878-79 by F. Schwatka and W. H. Gilder, who in King William's Land found many skeletons and relics. The northwest passage successfully resisted all attempts at discovery.

Much easier was the northeast passage. As in the case of the northwest passage, men began looking for it soon after the discovery of America. Two of the earliest English explorers were Willoughby and Chancellor who in 1553 opened Archangel bay. Later the Russians took up the matter. It was Adolf Erik Nordenskjold, a Finn, who first solved the problem of the circumnavigation of Asia and Europe. He reached Yokohama in 1879, from Vega, in Russia, having made the northeast passage without disaster.

Gave Him Friendly Warning

The following story is told in connection with Mrs. Mary Livermore, although I am not able to vouch for its truth, says a writer in the Boston Herald:

One Sunday morning as she was on her way to Sabbath school for the purpose of teaching her class of small boys she met a street urchin and accosted him with: "My young friend, wouldn't you like to go down to Sunday school with me?"

"Is it a free show?" asked the lad.

She replied, "Oh, yes."

"Well," he said, "I guess I'll take it in."

Some time after the exercises had begun she requested him to stand up, and asked him what his name was. He replied, "Jim," and commenced to laugh.

"Now," she said, "James, how many gods are there?" The lad laughed and looked around and said: "There are six."

"James," she said, "I did not bring you here to make fun, and I want you to answer my question correctly, and not laugh; if you do not, I shall box your ears. Now," she said, "I will ask you the question once more, and I want you to answer it right. How many gods are there?"

The lad scratched his head, grinned, and said: "There are nine," whereupon she, true to her word, boxed his ears. This treatment did not suit the lad and he cut and ran out of the church and up the street.

He had gone a few rods when he met a nicely dressed little boy with his Sunday school book under his arm, whom he accosted thus: "Say, young feller, where you going?" The boy replied, "To Sunday school." "Well, wait a minute," said he, "I want to ask you a question. How many gods are there?" The boy replied, "Why, only one, to be sure." "Now, look here," said the urchin, "I tell you not to go down there; don't you go. I went down, and I had time, and they licked me. If you go down with only one they will kill you."

INTERESTING LETTER WRITTEN BY A NOTABLE WOMAN

Mrs. Sarah Kellogg of Denver, Color Bearer of the Woman's Relief Corps, Sends Thanks to Mrs. Pinkham.

The following letter was written by Mrs. Kellogg, of 1628 Lincoln Ave., Denver, Colo., to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.: Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

"For five years I was troubled with a tumor, which kept growing, causing me intense agony and great mental depression. I was unable to attend to my house work, and life became a burden to me. I was confined for days to my bed, lost my appetite, my courage and all hope. I could not bear to think of an operation, and in my distress I tried every remedy which I thought would be of any use to me, and reading of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to sick women decided to give it a trial. I felt so discouraged that I had little hope of recovery, and when I began to feel better, after the second week, thought it only meant temporary relief; but to my great surprise I found that I kept gaining, while the tumor lessened in size.

"The Compound continued to build up my general health and the tumor seemed to be absorbed, until, in seven months, the tumor was entirely gone and I a well woman. I am so thankful for my recovery that I ask you to publish my letter in newspapers, so other women may know of the wonderful curative powers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

When women are troubled with irregular or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, flatulence, general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such trouble.

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine:

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Health is too valuable to risk in experiments with unknown and untried medicines or methods of treatment. Remember that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing women, and don't allow any druggist to sell you anything else in its place.

ering pine, fir and balsam trees which so thickly stud the hillsides of Eagle Creek.

Then, as now, the violet blossomed there and the summer flowers grew near the stream whose waters sang as merrily to the dusky maiden of the forest as they since have to the fair daughter of the paleface; and where once the Indian warrior and wild beast held undisputed sway, there, despite all dangers and difficulties, may now be seen along its beautiful valley, fertile orchards, cultivated fields and comfortable homes.

It is in the foothills of these mountains, on the head waters of Eagle Creek, that the seductive yellow metal, indicating the undisputed energy of the geological past, has been effectually hidden for ages and ages.

It is the purpose of THE MONTEZUMA MINING COMPANY, with the magic touch of labor, intelligently directed and aided by improved machinery, to uncover this precious metal, entrapped beneath the bowels of the earth, representing wealth beyond comprehension and subject it to the uses of mankind.
