A MASS MEETING.

A mass meeting was held in Wetmore Hall Wednesday evening for the purpose of considering the advisability of securing a building in which to hold the coming term of district court for this county, and to take the matter up with Judge Cooley. The next district court for this county will be called on the first Monday in November, and, as it is generally believed that the term will be held in Carrizozo, the new county seat, the citizens of the town felt it proper to secure a suitable place and so notify the Judge.

A good crowd assembled and deep interest was manifested. W. J. Doering called the meeting to order, and John H. Canning was elected chairman. The object of the meeting, as stated by chair, was along the lines mentioned above. In addition, the chairman stated that it had been suggested that the town of Carrizozo, through its citizens and the Chamber of Commerce, should furnish suitable buildings, for the term of court soon to be held, free of cost to the county, and the assemblage gave a hearty endorsement to the suggestion. Jno. A. Haley was elected secretary.

A motion was adopted that a committee of three be appointed, of which the chairman of the meeting, John H. Canning, should be a member and the chairman thereof, to attend to the matter. The chair appointed as the other two members Jno. A. Haley and S. W. Perry.

This committee was instructed to make arrangements for a suitable building and report at next Saturday night's meeting. The committee was also instructed to immediately communicate the action of the meeting to Judge Cooley and respectfully request a consideration of the proposition.

The committee has several locations in view, either of which will make substantial quarters for the court, and, upon receipt of assurances from the Judge that the offer has been accepted, will make all necessary preparations for the court officials and for the accommodation of the juries. We hope by next week to be able to make announcement of definite action in the matter.

COMMISSION SELECTS JURY LIST.

Judge Cooley appointed a jury commission of three members, to select a list of three hundred names from the citizens of this county; and from this list of three hundred names will be drawn the regular venires for the district court of this county. The commission consisted of John H. Canning, of this place, Paul Mayer, of White Oaks, and Manuel Aragon, of Lincoln.

Messrs. Canning and Mayer went to Capitan yesterday, at which point they met Mr. Aragon, and there made up the list which was sent to headquarters at Alamogordo. The regular jury for the coming term of district court for this county will be drawn about the first of October.

Heavy Court Docket.

It has been more than a year since this county had a term of court, and a heavy docket will be the result. The jail is full of prisoners, and many are out on bond; so that if the docket is anything like cleared it will require a rather lengthy term of court.

Another Jail Break at Lincoln.

A prisoner named Edwin Darling who has been confined in the Lincoln county jail for some time on a charge of removing a mortgaged automobile, broke out of jail last Sunday morning about ten o'clock. It appears he had been taken out of his cell for a bath together with some other prisoners, and while the jailer's attention was attracted by some of the other prisoners Darling forced a hole through the south wall, crawled out and got away. The falling adobes attracted the attention of Jailer Brady to the spot, who, after locking the other prisoners in their cells, took up the trail of Darling. Bernardo Salazar, the eight-year-old son of Francisco Salazar, discovered the prisoner in a hog pen close to the jail. On being discovered he ran and took refuge in a large bush, where he was later captured and taken back to jail and one of his feet placed in a 25 lb. iron boot. A reward of $25, offered by Sheriff Stevens, was given to the little boy.

BORN:—At White Oaks on the 4th inst., to Mr. and Mrs. Elbert T. Collier, a fine boy.

SLEEPY GRASS.

Some territorial writers have recently scoffed at the existence of a grass in this country known as "Sleepy Grass," which acts upon animals very much as a narcotic does upon humans. The writers seem to think the man reporting the discovery was under the influence of "dope" himself, and was merely handing some gullible reporter a "bunch."

Residents of Lincoln county, nevertheless, have for years been acquainted with this grass, and, oftentimes to their sorrow, learned its baneful effect upon stock. It is found in abundance in canyons leading out of the Mescalero Indian Reservation, and particularly in Cherokee Bill canyon, which flows into the Ruidoso in the southern part of this county.

The unsophisticated traveler, spending a night in that region, and turning his team out to graze, has been chagrined to find his horses next morning, standing, with heads high in the air, fast asleep. He is lucky, too, if he succeeds in getting his horses ready for the road in forty-eight hours. After the first effects of the narcotic have worn off, the animal does not seem to be much the worse for the experience; but if an animal continues to eat it the result would be pretty much the same as that of a confirmed "dope" fiend.

The Tularosa-Lincoln Road.

At a meeting held in Tularosa Tuesday, it was agreed to build the first five mile of the proposed road through the Mescalero reservation to connect with the Carrizozo-Roswell road near Lincoln. The road through the reservation is a good one to the Wingfield ranch on the Ruidoso, from which point the road will be completed to Lincoln at county expense. The Tularosa people subscribed $350, 21 days labor and 23 days team work, which will be sufficient to build the road to the reservation line. This is a good beginning, and as work will soon begin on the Carrizozo-Lincoln-Roswell road, it will be only a short time until the different districts south and east will be pretty well connected up.

T. W. Henley is in the city today, representing a client in the justice court.

A Visit from an Old Timer.

Edgar A. Walz and wife were in Carrizozo Tuesday night. Mr. Walz now lives in New York and is president of the Hotel Credit Letter Co., and, with his wife, was returning from the Pacific Coast. In the early days Mr. Walz was a part owner of the Carrizozo Cattle ranch, and lived here before a railroad was even thought of, and at a time when this was a wild and woolly country. Two of the Walz children were born at the Carrizozo ranch. Mr. Walz has a brother in El Paso and a sister in Santa Fe, Mrs. T. B. Catron, wife of the distinguished and well-known attorney.

Mrs. Ira O. Wetmore is visiting friends here this week.

THE DIVORCE PROBLEM.

A clergyman college professor strenuously protests against divorce and urges the necessity of a marriage tie that can be broken only by death. No sane person who honestly has at heart the best interests of society in general will differ from the professor, but the difficulty with his proposition is that it begins in the wrong place. If the church and the law paid half the attention to marriage that they do to divorce the divorce problem would be reduced to a mighty small minimum. The blind, halt and foolish are permitted to wed without let or hindrance. The state and the church make no inquiry whatever, says the Chicago Evening Journal. Anyone—even those manifestly unfit to marry—can be wedded on request, a condition which manifestly makes for marital unrest and dissatisfaction, and is largely productive of divorce. Give marriage more safeguards, and the courts will find much less necessity to interfere with family relations. But those who expect to remove the effect without eliminating the cause are attempting a task very near the impossible.

According to an iron trade bulletin devoted to Mexican development, it appears that the iron industry in that country is capable of wonderful expansion, says the New York Financier. The celebrated iron mountain of Durango, the Carro del Mercado, is of world-wide fame and it is claimed to be one of the most valuable iron deposits in the world, both as to quality and quantity. It is estimated to contain 300,000,000 tons of 70 per cent. ore above the level of the plains. There is another mountain near the mouth of the Balsas river which is valuable largely because of its accessibility to the sea and, therefore, to the markets of the world. This mountain is believed to contain over one billion metric tons of ore low in phosphate and averaging more than 60 per cent. of iron. Other deposits in the mineral regions of Mexico indicate possible yields of several hundred million tons of high-grade ore, and along the Pacific coast there are equally valuable deposits.

It is evident that the transatlantic steamers are getting to the limit of achievement as to speed when a matter of 50 seconds clipped from a run is heralded as a shortening of the time between the two continents. This recognition of a mere shaving of time in the running is not reconcilable with the wasting hours after the completion of the rushing voyages, before taking the ships to dock in New York city. This inconsistency is no longer glaring, because the steamers are now taken to the docks at night instead of waiting for the return of daylight; but there is time enough lost at the terminals to make the saving of 50 seconds by a rush across the sea "look like 30 cents."

A Chicago man broke his leg while eating a piece of pie. He shouldn't have made such a vigorous kick against the pastry.

HIS MOTHER, 86, LIVES IN A SHED

MISSOURIAN QUOTES SCRIPTURE IN EXPLAINING ACT TO HUMANE OFFICER.

HER HOME IS A MERE HOVEL

Aged Woman, Sick, Says She Is Too Old to Deserve Much Attention—Son Is Owner of Electric Light Plant.

Kansas City, Mo.—The Humane society of Kansas City will try to bring Mrs. Mary Screechfield from the outhouse in which she lives in Lee's Summit, Mo., to Kansas City and place her in a hospital here at the expense of her son and grandson, M. and L. Screechfield, owners of the electric light plant in Lee's Summit. F. E. McCrary, agent of the society, said:

"The Humane society, acting as the agent of public opinion, will consult the attorneys of the society at once and learn if it is possible to have the case of Mrs. Screechfield taken up by the probate court.

"My Son, Is That You Come to See Me?"

To justify himself for placing his 86-year-old mother in an outhouse in his yard, Screechfield quotes the scriptural text, "Therefore shall a man leave his father and mother and shall cleave unto his wife."

Upon complaint of persons in Lee's Summit, Edgar Warden, officer of the Humane society of Kansas City, went there.

A newspaper man went with the humane officer and with him interviewed the aged woman. Great maple trees shade the white cottage of the Screechfields. Upon the front porch are rocking chairs with soft pillows and in one of these Mrs. Screechfield, wife of the manager of the electric light plant, was sitting.

"Yes," she said, "my mother-in-law lives here, but you can't see her. She is not presentable."

"That's exactly why we wish to see her," said the officer.

Behind the white cottage in the back yard is a shed six feet wide and eight feet long, hardly large enough to be termed a doghouse. It has a narrow door and one window two feet square, beside the door. This window was closed tightly. The officers saw at the back end of the structure a low and narrow bed. Upon it lay a woman with hair white, a wealth of it that stood up from her forehead in a great pompadour

Inside the hut the air was hot and heavy. One garment of calico clung to the body of the aged woman. She held out a thin hand and smiled.

"My son," she asked, shading her eyes with her other hand and peering beneath its palm. "My son, is that come to see me? I can't see well in here."

The officer bent over her. "No, I'm not your son. I came to see how you are getting along. Doesn't your son see you every day?"

"No, not often; he's busy, you know."

"Do they take care of you pretty well?" asked the officer.

"Yes, pretty well. I've got so old it's no use to take much care of me now," she answered.

"Don't you suffer from the heat?" It's awfully hot in here."

"Yes, yes; awful hot."

"Do you suffer any pain?"

"Yes, I suffer all over; my head and all over my body; it's the rheumatism, I guess."

"Don't you ever have a doctor?"

"No, never. I'm so old it ain't much use doctoring for me. I won't be here long, anyway. At my age a doctor couldn't be much help."

STRAY DOG DRIVES MAN AND WIFE OUT OF BED

TERRIFIES MOSKOWITZ FAMILY, Baffles Policeman, BUT YIELDS TO BOY'S NERVE.

New York.—The peaceful dreams of Israel Moskowitz who lives on Glenmore avenue, Brooklyn, were shattered early the other morning. He was asleep in his bed on the first floor of the building when a scratching and a kicking on his ribs woke him up. Mr. Moskowitz was alarmed. So was his wife, and she whispered, "Israel, burglars!"

Moskowitz saw something in the bed. "Sure enough," he whispered to his wife, "it's a burglar." Whereupon he got a handy bedslat and distributed a few whacks to the caller. The intruder poked his head up. It was not a burglar. It was a dog.

The dog growled when he saw Moskowitz, his wife, and their seven children who had gathered to see the supposed thief get a wallop. He had been disturbed and he resented it. "Bow wow," he barked, and rested his head on a pillow again.

"Well, what do you think of that mongrel?" said Moskowitz. "He gets into my bed, scratches my back, kicks me out and then growls because I want to chase him."

They tried to coax the dog away, but he was intent on getting a nap and refused to budge. Occasionally he would growl, as if to warn his disturbers away. Moskowitz became discouraged and went to the Brownsville station.

"Lieutenant," he said to Lieut. John Brady, "a dog got into my bed this morning and chased me and my wife out. He won't let us get in again. He growls at us when we try to. Please send a policeman along with a gun."

Policeman William Seckinger went with Moskowitz. The dog was still in bed, and would not budge when the policeman poked it in the ribs with his club, but showed its teeth and growled. The policeman was perplexed. Moskowitz was distracted.

Finally Abraham Nehemiah, aged 14, whose father keeps a hardware store on the ground floor and who has a fine nerve, said that he would get the dog out of bed.

Then he pulled the cover off the dog, seized it by the tail, and, with a mighty fling, hurled the animal out of the door. Then came a blood curdling yell and bark, a bang when the body struck the stairs outside, and finally the yelping dog was seen breaking all records down Glenmore avenue.

Always a Way. "The cook has furnished rather small portions," said the hostess. "The woman guests won't eat much, but how about the men?" "I'll circulate around and nominate each of 'em to make an after-dinner speech," responded the host. "That will effectually kill off their appetites."

ITCHED FOR TWELVE YEARS.

Eczema Made Hands and Feet Swell, Peel and Get Raw—Arms Affected, Too—Gave Up All Hope of Cure.

Quickly Cured by Cuticura.

"I suffered from eczema on my hands, arms and feet for about twelve years, my hands and feet would swell, sweat and itch, then would become callous and get very dry, then peel off and get raw. I tried most every kind of salve and ointment without success. I tried several doctors, but at last gave up thinking there was a cure for eczema. A friend of mine insisted on my trying the Cuticura Remedies, but I did not give them a trial until I got so bad that I had to do something. I secured a set and by the time they were used I could see a vast improvement and my hands and feet were healed up in no time. I have had no trouble since. Charles T. Bauer, Volant, Pa., Mar. 11, 1908."

Trouble with the kidney secretions is a certain sign that your kidneys are deranged and that you should use Doan's Kidney Pills. They cure all irregularities and annoyances, remove backache and side pains and restore the kidneys to health. Charles Cole, 204 N. Buckeye St., Iola, Kans., says: "The kidney secretions were irregular, scanty and painful and contained sediment. My back was stiff and lame and my limbs swelled. I grew weak and discouraged. Doan's Kidney Pills removed these troubles entirely. I have been well for two years."

Crop Growing on Small Scale.

A small holder in East Lexham is making an interesting experiment in barley growing upon his land to test the possibility of raising corn on a small scale. In 1907 he sowed 78 specially selected grains of barley, which yielded 400 ears. The resulting kernels he sowed in 1908 and harvested in 14 weeks, with the result that he got a bushel of threshed barley, which he has sown this year, his object being to show what can be done in cereal cultivation from very small beginnings.—London Standard.

"Yes."

"What? Lose your nerve again? Why don't you brace up and talk like a man?—a subject of a king on whose domain the sun never sets!"
"Can't," moaned the duke. "All the time I was in your father's office he kept grinning at a big painting."
"What painting?"
"The battle of Bunker Hill."

Widow to Widowers.

Mr. Robert Marshall, a well-known London police court missionary, recently received the following letter:
"Dear Sir: Reading of you sometimes in newspapers, I take the liberty of asking if you know off a very respectable man wishen to get married again. I have been a widow for years now and am all alone in the world. Trusting to your honor and remaining yours respectable, Mrs. —, middle age."

USING THE LEFT-OVER MEATS

Potpourri Roast, Prepared According to Following Directions, Will Be Found Excellent.

Chop fine with mincing knife any left-over meats (beef, veal, poultry or game). To about four pounds of meat take about six eggs, one nutmeg (grated), one cup of good butter, piece of beef suet chopped fine, about two cupfuls of bread crumbs, one quart of milk, salt and pepper to taste; mix all well together. Now take about three-fourths of a cupful of good butter, rub to a cream, stir into this four eggs, beat in one at a time for a minute, add a little finely chopped parsley, about two cupfuls of bread crumbs, mix this all lightly and well together, wet the hands, and take a teaspoonful of this at a time, roll lightly into a round ball. You then take half of the prepared meat and lay about two inches thickness in a medium-sized roasting pan, but put pieces of butter and half suet in pan before putting in meat; now place a layer of dumplings on the meat at least an inch apart, as they swell in cooking, then another layer of meat on this, dust with a little flour, place pieces of butter on top, bake in a well-heated oven until dark brown, but baste often with its own drippings. Serve with crisp lettuce leaves (dipped in salted water) on platter around roast. Add a cupful of cream or milk to gravy, boil a few minutes.

MUST BE KEPT IN DRY PLACE

Important Point to Remember When Putting Away Pickles—Also Be Generous with Vinegar.

Pickles should be kept in glass bottles or earthen jars, and be closely corked. They must be kept in a dry place. It is important that pickles should be covered at least two inches above the surface with pure cider vinegar. All vinegar left after making pickles can be spiced and bottled to put in sauces. Remember boiled vinegar decreases in strength. Alum will harden home-made pickles. A small lump of alum and a root of horseradish are often put among them. In making small pickles, select cucumbers of uniform size. Any fruit can be pickled. Prunes and cherries are nice when made into pickles. If cherries are chosen, they should be firm, whole and the sour variety. Few remove the stems. They should not be overripe when used. Put them into a jar and cover with cold vinegar. Leave three weeks in vinegar. Then pour off two-thirds the vinegar, sweeten and add a bag of spices. Add more fresh vinegar to the cherries. After draining off the vinegar boil it and make a sirup to pour over the pickles. Seal the bottles.

Filet of Beef.

Have some filet cut into slices about an inch thick; melt a piece of butter the size of an egg in a saucepan and put in flat the meat sprinkled with salt and pepper. Let it stand in the butter one hour, then put the saucepan over a quick fire and burn the meat on each side. Take the meat out and keep it warm, meanwhile add to the butter a tablespoonful of flour; stir it smooth; put in half a pint of bouillon, half a pound of mushrooms already peeled, washed and cut up if too large, and lastly the meat. Cook until the mushrooms are done. Add the juice of half a lemon and serve with the meat in the center of the dish, the mushrooms around it and the gravy poured over.

Spanish Pickle.

One and a half dozen large cucumbers put in brine three or four days, two large heads of cabbage, two dozen small onions, ten green peppers; chop all fine; salt well and let stand over night; wash and drain well and put in a kettle with two ounces white mustard seed, one ounce celery seed, one ounce turmeric, 1½ pounds dry ground mustard, 1½ pounds brown sugar; cover with vinegar and boil till well heated; bottle airtight.

Carrizozo Again Wins.

In every step taken in the county seat question Carrizozo has won, and the question naturally arises: "How long is the will of the people to be thwarted?" If the consensus of opinion is of any value it would seem that the end is in sight, and all that the town of Lincoln can hope to accomplish is to delay matters and attempt to throw a cloud over the ultimate result.

A law was passed by the last legislature authorizing the calling of an election by the county commissioners on the question of the removal of county seats. In compliance with the provisions of that law, a petition was presented to the board of county commissioners asking them to call an election to decide whether the county seat should remain at Lincoln or be removed to Carrizozo. This petition was presented at the regular July meeting of the board, and contained 1,200 names, when, as a matter of fact, only 742 signatures were required under the law in order to secure an election proclamation.

An election was ordered, even though a protest was filed, and the matter went before the people. This was the first round, and Carrizozo won.

On the 17th of August the contest took place, and of 1513 votes cast Carrizozo received an even 900, a majority of 287. This was round number 2, and the referee, in this case the people, gave the decision to Carrizozo.

In the meantime, the people of Lincoln had filed an action against the board, or, to be exact, against Wingfield and Taylor, in their capacity as commissioners. When the result of the election became known, however, an article was sent to the News for publication, signed by the president and secretary of the Lincoln Taxpayers Association, which contained a statement, in effect, that the majority for the removal was so pronounced that they bowed to the will of the people, and had given instructions to their attorney to withdraw the suit which had been filed. This not only seemed good judgment, but was an exemplification of a loyal spirit, which was a commendable recognition of the mandate of the highest court in our form of government—the voice of the people.

Notwithstanding this signed statement, with which our readers are acquainted, and before the ink had scarcely dried on their notice announcing the withdrawal of the suit, a new action was instituted, based upon the allegations of the old suit. In this second complaint the court was asked to restrain the commissioners from moving the records and prisoners, forgetting, apparently, that the law was all-sufficient in controlling the action of the commissioners in the matter. Nevertheless, a temporary injunction was issued, and the date for the hearing set at Alamogordo on the 13th inst.

The attorneys for the commissioners, Hewitt & Hudspeth, of White Oaks, filed a demurrer, and the arguments were made at Alamogordo last Monday before Judge Cooley, Attorney Geo. B. Barber, of Lincoln, appearing for the plaintiffs. The court sustained the demurrer on every point, and Mr. Barber, for the plaintiffs, gave notice of appeal. This was round number 3, and, like the two former rounds, Carrizozo won the decision.

Let us, then, sum up and see where we are:

1st. The law authorized the board of county commissioners to call an election, under certain conditions. Those conditions were fulfilled and the election was called.

2nd. The election was held and by a most decisive vote the people selected Carrizozo as their choice for a county seat.

3rd. The court upholds the action of the legislature in the enactment of the law, the board of county commissioners in ordering the election and the people in the rendition of their verdict.

And still the people of Lincoln, if they endorse the action of their attorney in appealing, say they are not satisfied. What do they hope to gain? Time, and, perhaps, a little revenge? They certainly can't expect to have another court in Lincoln. There are not two county seats: there is only one, made so by law, by the expressed will of the people and sustained by the court; and the law further states that, as soon as suitable buildings can be procured, and they will be furnished, all courts shall be held in the new county seat. Does it appear that Lincoln has anything to gain by continuing the fight?

Another proof, if proof were needed, that the old pile of adobes at Lincoln called a jail, is past its usefulness as a bastille, was given last Sunday when a prisoner, tiring of captivity, pushed a hole through the adobe wall and disappeared, while a deputy stood guard over him.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

Miss Ruby, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Perry, is visiting in Alamogordo this week. While there she is having an optician fit her eyes with glasses.

George A. Chamberlain, formerly of Capitan, but for the past three years consul at Pernambuco, Brazil, has been promoted, and is now consul at Lorenzo Marquez, Portuguese East Africa. A card containing the picture of a beautiful thick-lipped Zanzibar damsel, bedecked principally in beads, reached us this week. The card bears the date of August 9.

As the trout-fishing season is drawing to a close and the hunting season is approaching, the nimrods are getting their shooting irons in shape in anticipation of the sport of hunting the wild deer and trailing the brown bear. It might, however, be well to remember that the new game law makes it imperative for hunters to take out a license. Attorney-General Clancy has given his opinion that all gunners in the territory must have license—even to shoot over their own land.

NOTICE.

It appearing that a certified copy of the order of this board, made on the 7th day of July 1909 calling an election to be held on the 17th day of August 1909, on the proposition to remove the county seat to Carrizozo in said county has been published for four consecutive weeks immediately prior to such election in the CARRIZOZO NEWS, a newspaper of general circulation published in said county, and by grand bills posted up at three of the most public places in each precinct at least four weeks prior to said election, held on the 17th day of August 1909.

And it further appearing that the returns of said election held in said Lincoln county, pursuant to said order aforesaid, on the 17th day of August 1909.

The Board, acting as a board of canvassers, duly proceeded to fully examine the poll books and certificates of each precinct in said county, and continued in session for the purpose of such examination, canvass and ascertainment continuously.

That said board having duly passed and ascertained the results of said election as shown on the face of said returns from the voting precincts of the county, the question whether the county seat should be removed from Lincoln to Carrizozo in said county, do find as the result of said canvass and ascertainment that 200 votes were cast for Carrizozo and 613 for Lincoln, and that the total number of votes upon the proposition was 813—a majority of 287 of the cast being for the removal of the county seat to Carrizozo. Therefore considered, ordered and declared by the Board of County Commissioners that Carrizozo is the county seat of the county of Lincoln, territory of New Mexico.

Eat What

You want of the food you need
Kodol will digest it.

You need a sufficient amount of good wholesome food and more than this you need to fully digest it.

Else you can't gain strength, nor can you strengthen your stomach if it is weak.

You must eat in order to live and maintain strength.

You must not diet, because the body requires that you eat a sufficient amount of food regularly.

But this food must be digested, and it must be digested thoroughly.

When the stomach can't do it, you must take something that will help the stomach.

The proper way to do is to eat what you want, and let Kodol digest the food.

Nothing else can do this. When the stomach is weak it needs help; you must help it by giving it rest, and Kodol will do that.

A City Clerk's Garden.

A city clerk never misses a chance of expatiating on his garden to his colleagues, who, however, were never taken home to see it, but were under the impression it was of enormous size. Five of them resolved to have a look at it, discovered his address, and called one Saturday afternoon to see the hundreds of roses all a-growing and a-blooming. On being taken to the rear of the house, judge of their surprise on seeing a back yard about 12 feet by ten feet. One bold spirit ventured that it was not very big.

"Big!" replied the proud owner, pointing to the sky. "Why, man, alive, look at the height of it!"—Chicago Daily Socialist.

The Force of Habit.

One of the campers had done something peculiarly idiotic, and the dean said: "Dick reminds me of Thomas' colt."

"What about Thomas' colt?" asked Dick, cheerfully.

"Why," the dean responded, readily, "where I lived in Maine when I was a boy an old man named Thomas raised horses. He once put out to pasture a colt, which had been fed from its birth in a box stall and watered at the trough in the yard.

"The pasture lay across a small river, and in the middle of the day the colt swam the stream to go up to the barn-yard for a drink of water."—Youth's Companion.

The Clothesline Test.

"Let me see her clothes on the line," said an old-fashioned woman recently, "and I can tell you if she is a good housekeeper." The test lies in the way the garments are hung. If the skirts are scattered around promiscuously the woman lets garbage stand on her kitchen table over night. The skirts, like we men, should always hang together, shoulder to shoulder, and everything of its kind should hang in a row.—Atchison Globe.

THE NEW WOMAN Made Over by Quitting Coffee.

Coffee probably wrecks a greater percentage of Southerners than of Northern people for Southerners use it more freely.

The work it does is distressing enough in some instances; as an illustration, a woman of Richmond, Va., writes:

"I was a coffee drinker for years and for about six years my health was completely shattered. I suffered fearfully with headache and nervousness, also palpitation of the heart and loss of appetite.

"My sight gradually began to fail and finally I lost the sight of one eye altogether. The eye was operated upon and the sight partially restored, then I became totally blind in the other eye.

"My doctor used to urge me to give up coffee, but I was willful and continued to drink it until finally in a case of severe illness the doctor insisted that I must give up the coffee, so I began using Postum, and in a month I felt like a new creature.

"I steadily gained in health and strength. About a month ago I began using Grape-Nuts food and the effect has been wonderful. I really feel like a new woman and have gained about 25 pounds.

"I am quite an elderly lady and before using Postum and Grape-nuts I could not walk a square without exceeding fatigue, now I walk ten or twelve without feeling it. Formerly in reading I could remember but little but now my memory holds fast what I read.

Several friends who have seen the remarkable effects of Postum and Grape-Nuts on me have urged that I give the facts to the public for the sake of suffering humanity, so, although I dislike publicity, you can publish this letter if you like."

BEST FOR SUMMER

DIETETIC VALUE OF RHUBARB TOO OFTEN OVERLOOKED.

Plant Has Ideal Qualities for Toning Up the System and Keeping It in Condition—Some Methods of Cooking.

During the hot months of summer we must eschew the frequent use of meats and heavy made dishes if we wish to be in condition to bear the heat.

At this time the appetite craves cooling vegetables and fruits which the wise provision of nature so bountifully supplies. Juicy fruits and vegetables supply the salts, water and organic acids which are so valuable in toning up the system, cooling and thinning the blood.

Rhubarb, or pieplant, is so common that we are apt to slight and forget its value. Now it is at its best and cheapest. The acid contained in the plant is most agreeable and acts as a laxative. Such qualities make it wholesome both for food and medicine. The root is extremely bitter, when dried it is a valuable drug and used in many medicines.

Rhubarb combined with pineapple in cooking gives variety when fresh or sealed for winter use.

A tried and successful method of canning rhubarb uncooked is to fill the can with the plant cut in one-inch pieces. Pack in a jar and put under the cold water faucet, let the water run into the jar until the plant is well chilled and all the air bubbles expelled; then, with the water overflowing the can, screw on the top.

When preparing rhubarb for sauce, if the peeling or skin is left on, the rosy pink coloring which lies in it will tint the sauce. Later in the season, when the peeling becomes stringy, this cannot be done. As a conserve, combined with oranges and lemons, it is a great favorite.

Rhubarb Conserve.—Take three and one-half pounds of rhubarb, cut in half-inch lengths, cook with two pounds of sugar for half an hour, add the juice of three lemons, and the grated rind of one. Cook another pound of blanched and chopped almonds. Put in glasses for winter use.

Orange and Rhubarb Marmalade.—Remove the peel in quarters from eight oranges. Cook the peel until soft in enough boiling water to cover. When tender drain and remove the white part by scraping with a spoon. Cut the rind in strips, using a pair of scissors or a very sharp penknife. Divide the oranges in sections, removing the seeds and membrane. Add to the orange pulp five pounds of rhubarb cut in one-inch pieces. Boil half an hour, then add four pounds of sugar and the rind, simmer slowly for two hours. Turn into glass and when cool cover with melted paraffine.

NELLIE MAXWELL.

Use a Rocker at the Sewing Machine.

At this time of the year when we are spending long hours at the machine, trying to finish our summer sewing, it is well to know that if you will sit in an armless rocker while using the machine you will be able to sew for hours at a time without the aches which generally accompany such machine work. The rocker gives to and relieves the body of the motion while running. Of course it is necessary to put a cushion on the chair so you will be higher, but even with hand sewing many backaches will be avoided by using a low chair.—Housekeeper.

Short Notice Dessert.

Beat two eggs together until light; add slowly one cup of brown sugar, beating all the while, then add a pinch of salt. Mix into this two tablespoonfuls of flour and also one cupful of walnuts chopped fine. Drop by spoonfuls into greased tins and bake until brown in a moderately hot oven.

A CHEERFUL GIVER

By Lucy Copinger

(Copyright, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

It was recreation period of Friday afternoon and Frederick William sat eating a ginger snap. Across the aisle Marie Schaefer of a goodness and neatness rivaling Frederick William's own was eating a bun. Anna Karenina sat beside her. Anna did not have any lunch, and she was wishing it was an apple as then she would get the core. She had not had any dinner either, for when she had gotten home that dinner time it was to find the door locked and her mother out for the day. She had spent the time till the afternoon session in following the dog-catcher's wagon. She had also gotten in three fights, and therefore she may be excused if she sat very close to Marie and looked hungrily and rudely down into her mouth as she ate.

Miss Lucy was writing at her desk and Bum O'Reilly was rubbing off the board. Bum O'Reilly, being the biggest boy in the class, often "did things" for Miss Lucy. There was always a glamor about "doing things" for Miss Lucy that "doing things" for one's mother somehow lacked, and Frederick William thought regretfully of the only thing he had ever done for her. It was one noon when she had asked him to get her a basin of water. Although trembling with excitement, he had carried it safely up to her desk, where he had turned it over into her lap.

Frederick William liked recreation period a great deal better than recess, which came in the morning and during which you were pitched violently into the yard, where you stood timidly squeezed up against the fence and shivered while the other boys ran around and "hollered." If you got a foot away from the fence, you were at once knocked down and stepped on and your nose was made to bleed. Then the bell rang, and you were thrown violently into the hall again unless you did not have a partner, in which case you were "pulled out." The horrible possibilities of getting "pulled out" caused Frederick William and Josef to stand together hand in hand during the whole of recess. But recreation period, which came in the afternoon, was quite different, for then you sat with dignity in your seat and ate your lunch while the other children looked at you enviously.

That afternoon Frederick William had come to school with a great resolve and two ginger snaps. He was going to give one of the ginger snaps to Miss Lucy. He knew just how he would do this, for it was only yesterday that Bum O'Reilly had brought a whole three-cent cream puff and, in the openness of his Irish heart, had given it all to Miss Lucy—all, that is, except the sugar, which he had licked off the top. Frederick William thought with pleasure of how he would bestow his ginger snap. He would walk boldly up to the desk without even raising his hand for permission. True, there was an explicit rule concerning the reckless one who was guilty of this act, but when you had something for Miss Lucy that was the exception. One then walked grandly from his seat, and she only smiled sweetly and said: "Thank you, dear." Later she might even let you rub the board off.

Frederick William thought of all this as he ate his ginger snap. He ate it slowly, leaning over the desk so that the crumbs would not be lost. Then he reached into the bag and drew out Miss Lucy's ginger snap. He looked at the cake. It was so nice and round and smooth on the edges. He remembered that his had had a tiny piece chipped out of it. An insistent element of equity in his nature demanded that he should take a bite off of Miss Lucy's cake just the size of what had been broken from his. He did so. Then he took another little bite right beside the first one. Then, to make it look even all around, he thought he would bite once more around the edge in a circle. But he lost track of where he had started from, and it was not until the ginger snap was reduced to a damp, sticky object about the size of a quarter that he stopped suddenly, for it had occurred to him that if he ate it all he lost all chance of rubbing off the boards. So, after a fearful struggle with his frugal little German soul, he dropped the remains of the cake into the bag and went up to Miss Lucy's desk. She looked up with a displeased frown, which, when she saw the bag, delightfully changed into a nice smile. "Thank you, Frederick," she said sweetly. Frederick William laid the bag on her desk and returned to his seat, glowing with the satisfied blessedness of the cheerful giver.

A few minutes later Miss Lucy stood up and called for order. "Children," she said, "you know it is Friday afternoon, and I think, since you have been very good, I am going to let you have a little entertainment."

An entertainment! A real entertainment, consisting, it is true, mainly of speaking, but not at all to be confounded with the awful memory gems that one was obliged to recite every morning. Miss Lucy taught these memory gems of the "be-good-little-ones-and-you-will-be-happy" kind, and Frederick William did not understand them at all. He thought of the one that he had recited that morning with the usual accompaniment of swallows and gurgles. It was

"Willie Hands and Willie Feet
Lead us straight to Sunshine Street."

Frederick William had not yet come to the age of criticism that one acquires in the third grade, and he still accepted absolutely all statements made by Miss Lucy. But he could not help wondering who Willie Hands was and who Willie Feet was, and whether after they got him to Sunshine street they would leave him there lost or take him back to Heneman avenue and his mother. But an entertainment—that was quite different from memory gems. Miss Lucy, quoting, called it "the spontaneous and free utterance of thought concept." To the children it meant that one might say or sing anything he wished in the way that best suited him. Therefore the heart of Frederick William was glad when, the action lesson being finished, Miss Lucy put on her entertainment smile. This smile of Miss Lucy's was one of a great many. It was much nicer than her "try again, dear" smile which she had when Anna did not know her sums and which Frederick William did not like at all, but it was not nearly so nice as her "Now my little boys and girls" smile, which she smiled when the principal came in the room, and it could never for a moment be compared to her "getting things" smile, which was the loveliest of all.

Miss Lucy having acquired her entertainment smile, "Now children," she said, "who knows something to say?" A dozen hands waved wildly, Anna Karenina's among them like a brown flag. "Marie," selected Miss Lucy.

The hypocritical Marie stepped out and recited a hypocritical little piece in which she earnestly declared her love for her teacher.

"Very good," said the flattered Miss Lucy. "Who else? Josef?" Josef was a foolish little boy who always raised his hand and never knew anything. He stood beside Miss Lucy grinning in sheepish silence until at last she had to send him to his seat still grinning. Can a thought concept be formed in a vacuum? thought Miss Lucy psychologically.

Next Bum O'Reilly sang in a dreadful monotone one of the organ-grinder songs, consisting mainly of the statement that he would be waiting among the roses for a vague young person of the feminine gender. He further insisted upon an encore—"The Holy City," coming out with a fortissimo upon the "Je" in "Jerusalem" in a way that made it sound irreverently slangy.

This classic being finished, Miss Lucy, with a sigh of relief that it was no worse, asked for some one to play "Jack and Jill," a dramatization of the nursery rhyme that she had taught them. She selected Frederick William to be Jack, causing him at once to get a queer trembling of the knees. Anna was the only one of the girls who would be Jill. The two were given a large tin cup to be held between them, and they were to march up from the door while the children recited the rhyme. At first all went well. At the proper time the self-conscious Frederick William dropped gently and neatly to the floor, ever mindful of his clean waist, and put his hand to his head with the freedom of gesture of an automaton. But at the words "Jill came trumbling after," the excitable Anna, with the abandon of a Bernhardt, threw herself headlong upon Frederick William, knocking the tin cup at Miss Lucy, stepping upon Frederick's finger, and hitting her head violently against his. At which Frederick William at once burst into tears and was sent sobbing out to bathe his finger. Anna was sent to her seat, and, with the ringing of the bell, the entertainment concluded.

When Frederick William returned, all the children had gone. He got his things and was just going out when Miss Lucy called to him. "Frederick," she said, "would you mind emptying the basket?"

Frederick William grew red with pleasure. This, then, was to be the fruit of generosity, the reward of the ginger snap. He managed to carry the basket down the steps without putting his foot into it. When he emptied it his natural methodical neatness caused him to take out each piece of paper and lay it carefully in the bin. Near the bottom he found two captured horn agates of Bum O'Reilly's. He had often admired them and he unhesitatingly put them into his pocket. Some gloomy vivisector of child nature might prophecy from this act a criminal career for little Frederick William, but it would have been too premature a prophecy. His mind was chockfull of precepts from his mother, his Sunday school, and Miss Lucy. But he had as yet no moral sense at all, and it never occurred to him that these maxims were intended for any practical use. Having disposed of the horn agates, Frederick William finished emptying the basket, and it was when he had come to the last piece of paper that he saw something sticking to it. It was a small, brown, moist object. Fitting climax to an almost perfect day!

The tears had quite dried upon his little shiny pink cheeks, and he sat down comfortably beside the bin as with slow and happy content he ate the despised remnant of Miss Lucy's ginger snap.

To What Use?

What use do I put my soul? It is a serviceable question this, and should frequently be put to one's self. How does my ruling part stand affected? And whose soul have I now? That of a child, or a young man, or a feeble woman, or a tyrant, of cattle, or wild beasts?—Marcus Aurelius.

Behavior.

When should we begin to teach children good behavior? We should teach it to them by inheritance. We should ourselves behave so well that our children should learn it by following our example.

Kindness is a safe rule for gentle manners—kindness, combined with thoughtfulness. The person who is kind and thoughtful is never very rude.

Children should be thought to respect other children's feelings at school. Here we find some times a fine display of selfishness. They should be taught to respect their teachers. If he or she is so ill-behaved that you think they cannot, just stop them from school. No parent should speak of the faults of a teacher in the presence of a pupil if they intend to continue their child at school. Remember that no one is perfect save the Great Teacher of teachers, Christ.

It is not merely the the lifting of the hat, the graceful bow, or the soft-toned "thank you," that is true politeness. We can do all that and yet totally disregard the sensitiveness of other people. We should teach our children to behave in all places of worship, let it be that of the Jew or Gentile. And he who misbehaves in church breaks one of our great commandments—namely, "Honor thy father and thy mother." Old or young (if they are old enough to know better) dishonor their parents in mishaving in church.

FOREST RANGER EXAMINATION.

Albuquerque, N. M.—An examination to fill vacancies in the ranger force on all National Forests in District 3 will be held October 25 and 26. From this examination it is expected that 75 appointments will be made on National Forests in this District.

The examination will be held at the headquarters of each National Forest in the District, at the following places: Douglas, Flagstaff, Nogales, Prescott, Safford, Snowflake, Roosevelt, Springerville and Tucson, Arizona; Harrison and Mena, Arkansas; Defuniak Springs, Florida; Alamogordo, Albuquerque, Capitan, Gallup, Magdalena, Santa Fe and Silver City, New Mexico, and Cache, Oklahoma.

While the examination is entirely along practical lines and knowledge of field conditions rather than book learning is considered essential, the opportunities for those applicants with educational advantages are considerably increased. The rapid development of the National Forests is making continually increasing demands upon those engaged in their management, and men with ability to assume responsibility and serve in supervisory capacities are in demand. These more responsible positions on the National Forests are filled by promotion from lower grades, so that anyone entering as a ranger is eligible for promotion to any of the more responsible and higher paid places, including that of Forest Supervisor.

Only those men who are at least 21 years of age, and not more than 40, of good character, temperate, and in good physical condition are eligible to take this examination. The salary paid to beginners is $900 a year.

Applicants can secure information concerning the examination from the District Forester at Albuquerque, New Mexico, Forest Supervisors, or the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.
