County Commissioners Proceedings.

The board of county commissioners of Lincoln county met in regular session October 4th, 1909, at Lincoln, N. M.

Present—R. H. Taylor, chairman; R. A. Duran, member; C. A. Stevens, sheriff; J. G. Riggle, clerk.

The minutes of last meeting were read and approved.

The petition of L. Pacheco and F. Salazar asking for an enumerator for precinct No. 1 is granted by the board and Porfirio Chavez is appointed by the board to take said census, and L. Pacheco and F. Salazar are to bear the expense.

In the matter of the Roswell and Carrizozo road and the county commissioners of Lincoln county, after the report and survey, made by Territorial Engineer Sullivan upon an order of the Good Roads Commission, do hereby declare opened and established a public highway as above surveyed. Furthermore the board hereby agrees to appropriate $2,500 dollars out of the General Road and Bridge Fund towards the construction of this road, and hereby directs the county treasurer to forward such sum to the Territorial Good Roads Commission at Santa Fe, to be used by them for such construction, it being understood that they will expend a similar sum or more towards completing said road.

Board adjourned to one p. m., and met as per adjournment with members as before present.

In the tax matter of Hobbs & Co. for the year 1908, entered in the minutes as follows: Territory of New Mexico, County of Lincoln.

John B. Hobbs of said county and territory, being first duly sworn, says that he is a member of the firm of Hobbs & Co.; that he made return for taxes for the year 1908 of said company's property to the assessor; that in said return there were listed for taxation 1700 head of goats valued at $2,500; that on the night of the 12th day of February, 1909, during a severe cold spell all of the 1700 head perished and the same were a total loss to Hobbs & Co. That in view of said loss affiant now asks this honorable board to recommend to the district attorney, in whose hands delinquent tax matters are placed for collection by suit, to rebate in favor of Hobbs & Co., and credit their tax return for the year 1908, with the value of said goats so lost and destroyed, and that they be only compelled to pay taxes upon the other property listed in said returns for the said year 1908.

JOHN HOBBS.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 18th day of September, 1909.

J. G. Riggle, Probate Clerk.

This affidavit, petition, and the matters therein set forth, coming on to be heard by the board and the board being fully advised in the premises and having reliable knowledge of the facts in this case, doth grant the said petition and recommend that Hobbs & Co. be given a rebate in their tax returns for the year 1908, of a valuation of $1700.

Parsons Correspondence.

The excitement has about subsided over the eight heavy draft horses, harness and wagon that came to our quiet neighborhood and were sold to one of our citizens on time for $700, when they were worth over $1,500. Everybody felt that there certainly was something wrong, and were holding their breath, wondering where they had been stolen. All at once, L. F. Avent, of the New Mexico Mounted Police, appeared upon the scene and siezed the entire outfit, on two telegrams, one from his captain and the other from the sheriff at Trinidad, Colorado. The rooster that brought them in had skipped to parts unknown.

The Colorado sheriff came as fast as steam could bring him and left with them the latter part of last week on his return to Colorado. He said he could never get any trail of the horses after they left Colfax county, this territory, as they left there in the night, and must have traveled in the night, until they got here.

If we could have only a few more mounted police like Mr. Avent, men handling crooked horses would steer clear of New Mexico, and especially Lincoln county. The sheriff paid a high compliment to Mr. Avent for his active service.

The work of the E. P. & S. W. Railroad company is progressing nicely. Some sixteen teams and 20 or 25 men are sinking for the underflow of water at the mouth of South fork.

A large number of our townspeople went down to El Paso today, and more are going in the morning, to see the two chief magistrates of the two chief nations of this continent.

CARRIZOZO NEWS

CARRIZOZO - NEW MEXICO

MONEY, POWER AND WISDOM.

It would hardly be thought necessary for anyone now to advise young men about to leave college to "honor money, honor money-getting and honor power;" yet such was the strongest note of the baccalaureate orator at an eastern college, says the New York World. If there is anything on the earth or under the earth that on-coming Americans do not need to have urged upon them it is love of money and love of power. This may be said without indorsing in any respect the malicious and, for the greater part, insincere attacks upon wealth so often made by demagogues and hypocrites. The passion for money and the obsession of money-getting have become altogether too conspicuous as American traits. They bring little content to those who are thus afflicted and they awaken resentment in the breasts of millions. In spite of new teachings and practices, knowledge still is power. Supplemented by wealth, knowledge becomes power triumphant. Without wisdom the power of money is lawless and destructive—a curse to its possessor and an evil example to the world.

The department of agriculture is conducting an experiment in the cultivation of blueberries in its greenhouses in Washington, and the chief botanist says the outlook is promising. The aim is not to greatly increase the size of the berry, but to improve the flavor, if possible. An important discovery is the fact that the blueberry requires an acid soil, which agriculturists generally seek to mitigate as the first step toward general cultivation. A fungus on the roots of the blueberry enables the plant to assimilate the food which it draws from the acid soil. Success is therefore indicated on nearly worthless areas possessed of the proper soil elements on which the necessary acidity can be retained. In other words, blueberry culture may be profitable on soils which are good for nothing else and for that reason have been practically abandoned. The experiment at Washington hints at something profitable in the future for the owners of cut-over lands in some of the old timber sections of the country.

The whale fisheries "petered out" years ago, when mineral oils and other products took the place of the oil gathered from the cetaceans. To be sure, there are still a number of vessels engaged in the business, and there also is a moderate demand for the oil, whalebone and other products they secure. But the industry has no such proportions as in the days of old. Now it begins to look as though the sealing industry were also doomed to extinction. An experienced captain of a sealing craft who has just returned from Halifax after a ten months' cruise, says the business in the South Atlantic at least is unprofitable and will soon become a thing of the past. In this he is sustained by other veteran seal hunters. The main reliance, apparently, is to be on the Alaskan sealing grounds, and care will have to be taken to prevent their depopulation.

Spring may have been a few weeks late, but summer was on the job on schedule time, and seems determined to work through to the finish without asking half-holidays.

Congress Pages Need Supervision

WASHINGTON.—Being much larger than the senate, with many more members to look out for and more ground to cover, the house is allowed 44 page boys, and in age they are the seniors of the senate pages, while their pay is just the same. House pages must be between the ages of fourteen and 18 years. They go on duty at nine o'clock each day and stay until the house adjourns. They place the copies of the Record on the desks of members, keep the desks in order and are at the beck and call of members whenever wanted. They are under the immediate supervision of a chief page on each side of the house. Some of them are assigned to duty as telegraph pages and others as telephone pages, but most of them are on duty on the floor.

The house pages are appointed on the recommendation of members by the head doorkeeper, who has general supervision of the boys. Generally, the member who has secured the boy's appointment will look after his physical and moral welfare while he is here, and it has happened that a member has sent home a boy who fell into bad ways and could not be brought under discipline. There is not such a large proportion of the district boys in the house as in the senate. They come from many states, but some of the more distant states are not represented.

It is doubtless a fact that the boys in both houses of congress are under closer supervision than was the case at one time. A few examples opened the eyes of the authorities to what dangers might confront boys far from home without the refining influences that are inseparable from a mother's love and care. While the restraint is not irksome, it is designed to be at least wholesome and for the entire good of the youths who may very likely grow up to be themselves makers of laws and rulers of the land.

Washington Women Are Auction Mad

THE loyal legion of congress women, who hung on in Washington during the dog days, encouraging their husbands, found surcease for sultry solitude in auctions. The Washington female is auction mad. There's a greater glamour here over the sale of other people's old rubbish than anywhere else in the country. Power is always changing hands. Nobody stays put in his high estate, and when the dignitaries get their walking papers they sell out all their household goods, as a rule. Hence the avid feminine scramble for foreign and historic relics. The smartest society is always to be found in the fashionable auction rooms in Washington.

"The retiring foreign minister" dodge is worked to a fine financial finish by foxy auctioneers. There are usually more auctions to celebrate their retiring than there are ministers to retire. But who's going to keep tab? Diplomatic debris is always at a premium. Discards from legations whether genuine or apocryphal, are gobbled gluttonously. Most congressional wives go back home laden with sacred relics from auction houses, more or less authenticated.

One of these ardent ladies picked up recently, at a rare bargain, in prime condition apparently, an oriental rug, warranted to have been highly prized by a prominent diplomat, who parted with it reluctantly upon his recall to his own country. The rug, which had never known a foreign footfall, wore beautifully for a month or two, then fell all to pieces at one fell swoop, like the "wonderful one-horse shay." The fabric, which was literally worn in holes, had been strengthened and renewed by a preparation of glue on the back, the threadbare spots filled up to a firm consistency by the use of red egg dye paint. The disenchanted lady had only a shoddy rug to show for her $75 expenditure. Still the thrall of the auction room never diminishes.

National Capital Is a Clean City

HIGH tribute to the cleanliness of the streets of the national capital was paid recently by Joseph A. Gleason, general superintendent of the department of public works of New Orleans.

He called at the district building to find out how it was done, and chatted with Commissioner West and Superintendent James M. Wood of the street-cleaning department.

"Washington is the cleanest and the best city I have been in," he told Commissioner West, after relating experiences in visiting many of the leading cities of the eastern and central states. "I want to find out how you do it."

During his conference with Superintendent Wood of the street-cleaning department, it was discovered that there is about ten times as much street area in the district to be cared for as in New Orleans; but the visiting official told the local heads that the streets of Washington are cleaner than those in New Orleans.

The New Orleans official went carefully into all the details of the system of street cleaning in the national capital, and declared that he found many new ideas which could be used in the southern city.

AT THE MOMENT.

Percy—Aw, are you interested in the "Coming Young Man?"

Kitty (with a yawn)—No; I am more interested in the going young man.

All in Fight Against Tuberculosis.

Prevention of tuberculosis versus dividends is the proposition which some of our largest insurance companies are now trying to establish. The Metropolitan Life recently applied for permission to erect a sanatorium for its policy holders and employees afflicted with tuberculosis, but the application was refused on grounds of illegality by New York State Superintendent of Insurance Hotchkiss. The company is, however, conducting an active educational campaign by distributing 3,500,000 pamphlets among its policy holders. The Provident Savings Life Assurance society has also established a health bureau, where its policy holders may receive free medical advice. Several fraternal orders, notably the Modern Woodmen, Knights of Pythias, Royal League, Royal Arcanum and Workmen's Circle, have already established or are contemplating the erection of sanatoria for their tuberculous members.

Marriage and Meanness.

Some years ago there lived in Atchison a young woman noted for her good works and gentleness. She was always helping the poor and was patient and kind and universally admired. She married a fairly good man and abused him within three months. She had been good and patient for years, but a husband was too much for her; she had never been cross to any one until she was cross to her husband. There is something about marriage that stirs up hidden depths of meanness on both sides.—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

IT WORKS

The Laborer Eats Food That Would Wreck an Office Man.

Men who are actively engaged at hard work can sometimes eat food that would wreck a man who is more closely confined.

This is illustrated in the following story:

"I was for 12 years clerk in a store working actively and drank coffee all the time without much trouble until after I entered the telegraph service.

"There I got very little exercise and drinking strong coffee, my nerves were unsteady and my stomach got weak and I was soon a very sick man. I quit meat and tobacco and in fact I stopped eating everything which I thought might affect me except coffee, but still my condition grew worse, and I was all but a wreck.

"I finally quit coffee and commenced to use Postum a few years ago, and I am speaking the truth when I say, my condition commenced to improve immediately and today I am well and can eat anything I want without any bad effects, all due to shifting from coffee to Postum.

"I told my wife today I believed I could digest a brick if I had a cup of postum to go with it.

"We make it according to directions boiling it full 20 minutes and use good rich cream and it is certainly delicious."

FOR A WARM NIGHT

SOME PETIZING AND SATISFYING DISHES.

Vegetable Salad of Pleasing Appearance and Palatable—Peach Pudding or Ribbon Cake for Dessert—Sponge Cake.

Vegetable Salad.—Boil several beets (the smallest red ones you can obtain). When cold dig a round hole in the center of each (but not clear through). Place each beet on a lettuce leaf, have ready a small new cabbage, chopped fine, and thoroughly mixed with a good salad dressing; fill each beet with this and also place some around the outside on the lettuce leaves, then slice three cold hard-boiled eggs and strew over the cabbage. Add dressing, and you not only have a salad nice to look at, but very palatable.

Peach Pudding.—Sift together two cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Rub into this two table-spoonfuls of butter. Beat one egg to a cream, add to this three-fourths of a cupful of milk. Mix all together, turn out on a floured board, and roll gently. Roll about a quarter of an inch thick. Line the sides of an earthen or agate pudding dish with strip of the paste, invert a teacup in the center of the dish, and place one quart of peeled peaches around it. Sprinkle liberally with sugar and put on the top crust. Bake one-half hour in quite a hot oven. When the pudding is cut the cup will be found filled with a most delicious syrup, which you can use for the sauce.

Ribbon Cake.—One cup of sugar, one-half cup of butter, two eggs, one-half cup of milk, one and one-half cups of flour, one and one-half teaspoons of baking powder and one teaspoon of lemon extract. Mix in the order given, then halve your mixture. Add to one-half the following: One cup of chopped raisins, two table-spoons of molasses, one-half teaspoon each of cinnamon, clove and allspice. Flour the fruit well. Put in greased and floured pan and bake 20 minutes. Draw gently from the oven to the apron and carefully pour the remaining white half over it. Bake until done according to the tests for any cake.

Hot Milk Sponge Cake.—Beat the yolks of two eggs till lemon colored. Add gradually one cup of sugar, beating all the while, then one-half cup of hot milk, and beat. Next add one cup of flour, sifted three times, with one and one-half teaspoons of baking powder, a little at a time. Lastly flavor with one-fourth teaspoon lemon extract. Bake in a moderate oven 30 minutes. It is fine for cream pies.

Zabione, an Italian Dessert.

This is one of the most famous delicacies in Italy, but is seldom made in this country. It is made as follows: Beat together one whole egg and the yolks of two others; beat in half a cup of sugar and put in a saucepan over hot water, stirring constantly. Gradually add half a cup of sherry; continue stirring until the eggs begin to thicken, then little by little pour in a tablespoonful of lemon juice and the whites of the two eggs, beaten to a stiff froth. Do not leave off stirring until the whole is smooth and thick. Serve hot in glasses.

Seasonable Hint.

Where there are small children or pet animals to push against the lower half of the screen doors the screen is either torn or made to bulge. To prevent this cover the lower section of the screen with wire netting of about one-inch mesh, and replace the molding around the edges. If netting is painted the same color of the screen it is scarcely noticeable and will prolong the life of the door indefinitely.

UNSETTLED.

"Ah! And whose little girl are you?"
"I don't know yet, mister. George an' Jimmie is just fightin' a duel over in the lot to settle the question!"

HAD AWFUL WEeping ECZEMA

Face and Neck Were Raw—Terrible Itching, Inflammation and Soreness—All Treatments Failed.

Cuticura Proved a Great Success.

"Eczema began over the top of my ear. It cracked and then began to spread. I had three different doctors and tried several things, but they did me no good. At last one side of my face and my neck were raw. The water ran out of it so that I had to wear medicated cotton, and it was so inflamed and sore that I had to put a piece of cloth over my pillow to keep the water from it, and it would stain the cloth a sort of yellow. The eczema itched so that it seemed as though I could tear my face all to pieces. Then I began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and it was not more than three months before it was all healed up. Miss Ann Pearsons, Northfield, Vt., Dec. 19, 1907."

Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston.

Decidedly Rattled.

Of an Irishman, named Dogherty, a speaker of rare eloquence, the following amusing story is told: After one of his speeches he asked Canning what he thought of it. "The only fault I could find in it," Canning answered, "was that you called the speaker, 'Sir' too often." "My dear friend," said Dogherty, "if you knew the state I was in while speaking, you would not wonder if I had called him 'Ma'am!'"

Afterglow.

"Are you still in the blissful intoxication of love?"

"No, I've reached the headache now."—Exchange.

Lame back and Lumbago make a young man feel old. Hamlin's Wizard Oil makes an old man feel young. Absolutely nothing like it for the relief of all pain.

When you hear one man trying to belittle another, it's safe to bet that the other is his superior.

PERRY DAVIS' PAINKILLER
A feeling of security comes by having this famous remedy on hand. It is a dependable safeguard against colic, diarrhea, cramps. 25c, 35c & 50c bottles.

And occasionally a man throws off trouble by putting on a bold front.

Our idea of a wise man is one who never argues with a woman.

Fame may come to a man suddenly and go just as quickly.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

It is the after effect of experience that counts.

PAINT DURABILITY.

The first thought in painting should, of course, be durability—and durability means simply pure paint properly applied. Pure paint is pure white lead and linseed oil (with or without tinting material).

Some years ago the paint-buyer was likely to get adulterated or counterfeit white lead if he was not familiar with brands. To-day he may buy with perfect safety if he only makes sure that the Dutch Boy Painter trademark is on the packages of white lead that he buys. This trademark was adopted by National Lead Company to distinguish the pure white lead made by them from the worthless adulterated and fake goods. It is a guarantee as valuable to the house-owner as the education of a paint expert could be.

SHALL HISTORY REPEAT ITSELF?

Explorers uncovering the ruins of ancient Babylon, a city that was destroyed five thousand years before Christ, have come upon a number of medals marked with characters, which, being interpreted, mean, "I'm agin it," thus showing that the democratic party was in existence at that day, and stood just where it stands now.—Albuquerque Morning Journal.

That those who were agin the government, to which the above refers, were impotent to stem the tide of ruin and extravagance which history tells us brought destruction and desolation to the proud city of Babylon, and buried it beneath the sands of oblivion for seventy centuries, furnishes food for reflection. Are we any stronger in our day than Babylon was in hers? Shall the historian of the future tell of the existence of a once-fair republic, which, for a time, rose and flourished, but fell into decay from the sordidness and selfishness of its rulers? Opposition is often better than meek submission. One thing stands boldly and clearly above the dumb, and prostrate walls of the Chaldean city—Babylon has fallen, and those who were agin the government were not responsible for its downfall. Shall history repeat itself?

That Lame Back Means Kidney Disease

And to Relieve the Lame and Aching Back, You Must First Relieve the Kidneys

There is no question about that at all—for the lame and aching back is caused by a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder. It is only common sense, any way—that you must cure a condition by removing the cause of the condition. And lame and aching back are not by any means the only symptoms of derangement of the kidneys and bladder. There are a multitude of well-known and unmistakable indications of a more or less dangerous condition. Some of these are, for instance: Extreme and unnatural lassitude and weariness, nervous irritability, heart irregularity, "nerves on edge," sleeplessness and inability to secure rest, scalding sensation and sediment in the urine, inflammation of the bladder and passages, etc.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are an exceptionally meritorious remedy for any and all affections or diseased conditions of these organs. These Pills operate directly and promptly—and their beneficial results are at once felt. They regulate, purify, and effectually heal and restore the kidneys, bladder and liver, to perfect and healthy condition—even in some of the most advanced cases.

E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill., want every man and woman who have the least suspicion that they are afflicted with kidney and bladder diseases to at once write them, and a trial box of these Pills will be sent free by return mail postpaid.

A Painful Accident.

Albert Ziegler, of the firm of Ziegler Bros., met with a painful accident last Friday. He was on the local going north, and while some switching was being done at a way station, the caboose received a bump that precipitated Mr. Ziegler through the car door. He was cut on the face and head and bruised up pretty badly. His face was patched up this week with court plaster to such an extent that many of his friends failed to recognize him—they thought he was some one just out of the ring with Jeff.

RAILROAD NOTES.

Foreman Kimbell, at the shops, has been fighting a cold this week, and was unable for duty until yesterday.

S. L. Squier, fireman of the stationary boiler at the shops, has resigned and has accepted a position as prescriptionist in a drug store at Clovis.

Business has been dull at the shops and roundhouse, on account of light traffic on the road, but a slight improvement is now noticeable.

The following railroad people are going to greet Taft and Diaz in El Paso tomorrow: J. F. Kimbell, who will be accompanied by his wife, E. S. Cluck, Jerry Kelley, S. L. Squier and C. G. Gillespie.

Two No. 1 passenger trains went through this morning, loaded to the guards with people who are going to attend the Taft-Diaz affair in El Paso. Special No. 1 passed at 6, and regular No. 1, four and a half hours late, went through at 7:30.

The El Paso & Southwestern is now furnishing water to the Santa Fe at Vaughn, one hundred miles north of here. The pipe line, which begins at the mouth of South fork, in this county, has been completed to that point. The Santa Fe requires 500,000 gallons at Vaughn every twenty-four hours.

A hunting party, consisting of B. F. Goff, Joe D. Adams, Frank Gray and Harry Little, left yesterday morning to stalk the elusive blacktail. They went towards the Gran Quivera country, north of the mal pais, and do not intend to return without trophies of the chase.

Paul Griffith and wife were in this week from the west mal pais country. Mr. Griffith, in connection with M. S. Crockett, is sinking a well in the dry belt for George Spence. They have sunk to a depth of 200 feet without encountering the life-giving fluid, but, unwearied in well-doing, continue to drift toward China.

Rev. Paul Bentley attempted a feat one night this week which has often been tried before, and yet never more successful than was he on this occasion. He tried to bring in a load of wood, while the tire of his left hind wheel was circling across the prairie. He says he would have succeeded, too, if he had had the right kind of wagon—the one he was using had too great affinity for water, and he crossed no streams on the way.

His Burden of Hatred

BY EDITH BROWNELL

(Copyright, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

Harold Carrington Hopkins, Jr., sat on the front steps of his father's house and darkly brooded over the peculiar hardness of his fate. It was shortly after nine o'clock of a particularly promising Saturday morning, but already years of fruitless inertia seemed to have passed since the blasting hour of breakfast, when the fiat had gone forth which had turned the day into a thing of empty torture.

The quiet, sunny avenue was deserted, but from a neighboring vacant lot came the mighty yells of his fellows, wallowing luxuriously in the biggest football game of the season; while he, the captain of their dauntless Eleven—for you called it an Eleven, just the same, if it did have only eight in it—was condemned to sit here apart or descend to the alternative of playing with his sister in the back yard.

He sank deeper into the rolling collar of his sweater at the mere thought. Play with his sister—the ignominy of it! Even now shrill feminine laughter floated to him around the corner of the house, where she and two or three feeble females who endured her society were having a silly game of mumbly-peg. He scowled contemptuously. The idea of playing a game of mumbly-peg. Of course in mumbly-peg time, a fellow might play a bit, perhaps—but in football time!

No! he would sit here and suffer alone. He leaned limply forward, sunk in gloomy reflections, one hand supporting his chin, while the other absently sought and encouraged a raveled place which had started in his stocking. His melancholy eye followed the long line of white as it crept slowly down his leg.

Things had begun so singularly well for him, too, that crisp October morning. Upon rising he had not only skillfully evaded the customary absurd wetting of his face, but had with deftness inserted upon his person a pair of his father's cast-off suspenders, a forbidden and hitherto unachieved luxury. He felt of them now where, beneath his outer garment, they girt him strongly and helped him to bear his trouble like a man.

It had been a proud moment indeed when he had been chosen captain. To be sure, this was an honor bestowed not entirely because of his prowess, but because he was the only one who possessed a nose-guard—an obsolete one which Uncle Ted had given him, and which transformed him into a being of dread appearance and vast importance—but it was an honor, nevertheless, and one scarcely less envied than the nose-guard itself.

And now he was not to play any more, because—forsooth!—his mother thought it was dangerous! He fumed at the recollection.

"I know the little boys do not mean to be rough, darling," she had said, "but you do play so recklessly, and mother worries so."

Aw, did she think they were babies? Wasn't he eight already, and only 11 months before he would be nine. 'Fraid he'd get hurt! Aw, shucks!

He had pleaded piteously, for the boys were waiting impatiently at the terrace, and she had wavered a little, while he hung poised for flight. Then it was that she had done the most dastardly thing a mother ever thought upon to do. She had leaned down, laid her hand upon his tousled head until his face was lifted up to hers, and said, gently:

"You may, dear, but mother wishes you wouldn't."

Of all phases calculated to drive a boy into speechless, grinding rage, this was the one. He—he just almost hated her for it. He had gone forth from her presence in mute, defeated fury. A flat, emphatic "No" was bad enough, to be sure; but at least there was the palliating satisfaction of loud-voiced protest.

The shouts from the field were growing more strident. The game was indeed on, and he was missing it! Now the shrieks were loud and rent the air musically; anon they became subdued and smothered, and he clutched the steps spasmodically at thought of the tangled pile of arms and legs and squirming bodies beneath which he, too, would now rapturously be buried, were he only there.

Why not go, anyway?
"You may, dear," . . . He started to his feet and gave one leap to the front of the steps.

"But mother wishes you wouldn't."

He sat down again, hard. The helpless rage rose fierce and choking within him.

"I do! I hate her!" he said, aloud.
He sat very still as the words died on the air. Some way they sounded so—so much bigger, or something, spoken than thought. They seemed to settle down upon him and make him feel queer—as if he were all alone in the world.

He had never thought very much about his mother before. She—she had just always been there, and . . . But now that he hated her she loomed before him quite as if she were another person.

She would know, of course. She always did know things, no matter how hard he tried to keep them from her.

He strolled unseemly about the yard. Perhaps, after all, it would be just as well to go and show those girls how to play a real game of mumbly-peg.

As he passed under the library windows, open to let in the warm autumn sunshine, he heard mother's voice at the telephone. It sounded low and distressed, and she gave a little cry as if something had hurt her. What if she knew already and was telephoning father about it. A boy who hated his mother!—it seemed to brand him as something blackly criminal. If he only hadn't said it out loud! It might have been retrievable then . . .

The girls seemed to have no need of him, and he wandered heavily about the garden, the load of hatred which he had so lightly cast upon the air dragging leaden at his heels. Queer how his hatred of mother had grown so much bigger than the thing he hated her for.

When he was called in to luncheon, he crept into the house the back way to avoid her; and—simply for the purpose of postponing the moment for confronting her, of course—he made a rather elaborate toilet, copiously wetting and soaping his face and hands, and wiping the dirt off thoroughly on the towel.

When he went to the table he studiously avoided mother's face for awhile, stealing a glance at it finally over his glass of milk. Then he set the glass down precipitately, for he saw that his worst fears were realized—she knew! She was very pale, sad and silent, and her eyes were heavy with crying. She was apparently unconscious of his presence, not seeming to see him even when she looked at him, and speaking only mechanically. He tried to eat, but even the apple puffs which were the delight of his heart swelled in his throat and refused to go down.

After luncheon things grew steadily worse. He idled about a few minutes, but mother ignored him. Then it was that he went up to his room, and, peeling off his sweater, slowly removed the suspenders. The things were too heavy, anyway, and stuck into him; and, besides, he didn't care for that blue and white stripe in them. When he grew up he was going to wear bright red ones always. Mother was very fond of red. Perhaps by that time he wouldn't hate her any more, and some time in those years to come mother would smile at him again, and blow kisses to him as he started to school . . .

The marbles were playing a regular game down his cheeks now. They fell on the big red "W" and chased each other down to the roll in the bottom of his sweater; but he had lost all interest in them, as he had in everything else in the world. He was so tired of hating mother! How could he ever go through the long, heavy years?

Suddenly a brilliant, an illuminating thought struck him. Suppose he didn't have to wait years to stop! Suppose he didn't hate her any longer at all! Just because he had said he did, he didn't have to . . .

He took the stairs two at a time, his heavy shoes crashing eagerly, forgetfully, on the polished steps. Mother was just turning away from the telephone again, but—oh, wonderful woman!—she knew already that his hatred was a thing of the past; for, though the tears were still hanging upon her lashes, she was smiling through them and holding out her arms to him!

He threw himself at her blindly.
"Oh, mother, I don't, I don't, I don't!" he sobbed.

His mother looked down at him in amazement; then, sitting down in what she called her "mothering chair," she drew him upon her shoulder.

"Don't what, dear?" she asked, tenderly. "What is the matter with my little boy? Don't what?"

"Hate you!" he gulped, wildly.
"Hate mother?" she repeated, softly. "Why, of course you don't. Did you think I thought you did?"

"Bu—but you didn't smile at me, or look at me, and—and you cried. . . ." He clung to her, heaving.

"My poor baby!" Mother laughed low. Then she set him up straight on her lap, and said, gravely:

"Mother has been very anxious and very much troubled all day, dear. Uncle Ted was hurt in a football game this morning, and for hours he—he didn't wake up at all. But now father has telephoned me that he is all right, and is going to be well and strong again. And mother wishes—oh, she wishes so much that he was never, never going to play again!"

"I'm not, mother—not never, never!" cried Harold Carrington Hopkins, Jr., valiantly.

So they rocked and talked and loved together, and presently he grew belatedly hungry, with the blessed relief of not hating mother. He did not tell her that all the long morning he had thought he did hate her, nor how wretchedly he had suffered—but, as usual, mother knew!

Profit in Blue Gum Groves.

In setting out a eucalyptus grove for profit, about 600 trees are planted to the acre. For the first two or three years irrigation is necessary, but after that no further attention is needed. Naturally some of the trees are malformed and stunted, and these are cut for firewood when three or four years old.

The next better class of trees as they attain sufficient size are cut for railroad ties, masts, bridge timbers, piling, telegraph poles and similar purposes. The best and straightest of all are allowed to grow until they are eight years old, or much longer if the production of very large timber is more desired than quick returns. The best quality of large timber sells at from $100 to $140 a thousand feet for use in cabinet work and interior finish.—The World To-Day.

Mrs. Capitola Adams, married, divorced, and remarried, though only twenty-two years old, drank carbonic acid at her summer home at Columbine Lake, a mile and a half west of Grand Lake. She died without explaining the reason for her act. Her husband, Roy Adams, a salesman and former stamp clerk in the Denver postoffice, is said to have nearly lost his mind, and attempted to take his own life, when he saw his young wife of six months die in agony. Mrs. Adams is said to have been in poor health and to have brooded over the death of a relative in Chicago. But this is not supposed to have been the only cause.

BEGINNING OF FORESTRY IN THE UNITED STATES

MAGNOLIAS ON GROUNDS AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT

GREENHOUSE IN AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT, SEED TEST

GIFFORD PINCHOT, U.S. FORESTER

When did the United States begin the practice of forestry? Few persons can answer this question correctly. Most people are of the opinion that the beginning of forestry in this country was of very recent origin, and that the first step in that direction was taken among the mountains of the far west. Neither is correct.

While Washington was serving his first term as president of the United States, a recommendation came to him that the government ought to buy live oak islands on the coast of Georgia to make sure of a supply of ship timber for war vessels. The idea appears to have originated with Joshua Humphreys, whose official title was "Constructor of the United States Navy," although about the only navy then existing was made up of six ships on paper, and not one stick of timber to build them had yet been cut. The vessels were designed to fight the north African pirates.

Five years after the recommendation was made congress appropriated money to buy live oak land. Grover and Blackbeard islands on the coast of Georgia were bought for $22,500. They contained 1,950 acres.

Louisiana was bought soon after, and in 1817 the Six Islands, of 19,000 acres, and containing 37,000 live oak trees, were withdrawn from sale, and set apart as a reserve. In 1825, congress appropriated $10,000 to buy additional live oak land on Santa Rosa sound, western Florida, and subsequently other Florida timberlands, aggregating 200,224 acres, were reserved.

Up to that time nothing more had been done than to buy or reserve land for the timber growing naturally upon it; but the work was to be carried further upon the Santa Rosa purchase. The plan included planting, protecting, cultivating, and cutting live oak for the navy. The timber was then considered indispensable in building war vessels. Much had been said and written of the danger of exhaustion of supply.

Young oaks were planted on the Santa Rosa lands. Difficulty was experienced in inducing young trees to grow. The successful transplanting of the oak is not easy, unless done at the proper time and in the right way. The plantations at Santa Rosa were generally unsuccessful; but large quantities of acorns were planted, and a fair proportion of them grew. But the chief efforts were directed to pruning, training, and caring for the wild trees. Thickets about them were cut away to let in air and light.

What the ultimate success of the forestry work would have been can not be told. The civil war brought a complete change in war vessels by substituting iron for wood. Forestry work stopped. The timber reserves were neglected. Squatters occupied the land. After a number of years all the reserves except some of the Florida land, were opened to settlement. Mr. Gifford Pinchot, United States forester and chairman of the national conservation commission, addressed the National Irrigation congress recently held at Spokane, Wash., in the course of which he said:

"The most valuable citizen of this or any other country is the man who owns the land from which he makes his living. No other man has such a stake in the country. No other man lends such steadiness and stability to our national life. Therefore, no other question concerns us more intimately than the question of homes. Permanent homes for ourselves, our children, and our nation—this is the central problem. The policy of national irrigation is of value to the United States in very many ways, but the greatest of all is this, that national irrigation multiplies the men who own the land from which they make their living. The old saying, 'Who ever heard of a man shouldering his gun to fight for his boarding house,' reflects this great truth, that no man is so ready to defend his country, not only with arms, but with his vote, and his contribution to public opinion as the man with a permanent stake in it, as the man who owns the land from which he makes his living.

"Our country began as a nation of farmers. During the periods that gave it its character, when our independence was won and when our union was preserved, we were preeminently a nation of farmers. We can not, and we ought not, to continue exclusively, or even chiefly, an agricultural country, because one man can raise food enough for many. But the farmer who owns his land is still the backbone of this nation; and one of the things we want most is more of him.

"The nation that will lead the world will be a nation of homes. The object of the great conservation movement is just this, to make our country a permanent and prosperous home for ourselves and for our children, and for our children's children, and it is a task that is worth the best thought and effort of any and all of us.

"To achieve this or any other great result, straight thinking and strong action are necessary, and the straight thinking comes first. To make this country what we need to have it we must think clearly and directly about our problems, and above all we must understand what the real problems are.

"Equality of opportunity, a square deal for every man, the protection of the citizen against the great concentrations of capital, the intelligent use of laws and institutions for the public good, and the conservation of our natural resources, not for the trusts, but for the people; these are real issues and real problems. Upon such things as these the perpetuity of this country as a nation of homes really depends. We are coming to see that the simple things are the things to work for. More than that, we are coming to see that the plain American citizen is the man to work for. The imagination is staggered by the magnitude of the prize for which we work. If we succeed, there will exist upon this continent a sane, strong people, living through the centuries in a land subdued and controlled for the service of the people, its rightful masters, owned by the many and not by the few. If we fail, the great interests, increasing their control of our natural resources, will thereby control the country more and more, and the rights of the people will fade into the privileges of concentrated wealth."

A Professional Clock Winder.

In one of the big jewelry stores in Maiden Lane, New York, there is a man who rents desk room and makes a business of winding clocks for the wealthy New York families. He has wound the clocks in one house in upper Fifth avenue for 15 years, and now, though the family is abroad, he goes regularly every eight days and keeps the timepieces going. He has several families who have as many as a dozen clocks in the house, and every one is attended to personally by him. On his list there are several year clocks, which are wound on the anniversary of the owners' wedding, and he has to keep track of these pieces very carefully. For 25 years this man has been building up his business until he has a very tidy income.

Training Future Hotel Keepers.

An interesting scheme under the patronage of the chamber of commerce of Mentone is afoot for the foundation in the Riviera of a hotel keepers' school for Frenchmen. It is pointed out that the hotel industry on the Riviera alone represents a capital of £75,000,000 sterling, and that most of the hotels belong to Swiss and other foreigners. There is no real reason why Frenchmen should not make excellent hotel keepers, but hotel keeping has to be learned, and the idea is to found a school at which young Frenchmen may be trained in everything pertaining to the hotel, from languages to cooking and hygiene. In Switzerland a number of these schools exist.

Miss Allie Johnson Wins Prize.

A minstrel show visited town this week, and entertained good crowds for three successive nights with music, dancing, jokes, tumbling, trapeze and legerdmain performances. The feature, however, which attracted the most interest was the offer by the company of a beautiful silver set of thirty-seven pieces to the most popular young lady of the town. Cards were furnished all who entered, and the holder cast a vote for his or her choice. Other votes were awarded from the sale of pictures, etc., so that the total cast ran into the thousands. The votes were scattered among a number of contestants at first, but finally narrowed down to two or three of the leading names, and was won by Miss Allie Johnson, she having received more than 10,000 votes.

Owen, of the Corona country, become the owners of the Joe Spence ranch, located on the Mesa del Gallo, below Corona, and about 10,000 head of sheep. The transaction involved $52,000. Joe Spence, the grantor, lives in El Paso, and has been in the sheep business in this county many years. The purchasers are well known and prosperous sheep men of northern Lincoln county, and have one of the best sheep ranges outdoors.
