Pan-Americans Seeing Boston.

Boston, Oct. 6 .- The delegates to the international American congress after a comfortable night's rest and a hearty breakfast were ready for another day's sight-seeing. Carriages bearing the party were driven through the city and down to the docks where they were met by the mayor and a committee of the board of aldermen and escorted aboard a steamboat which landed them at Deer Island. At the close of the exercises luncheon was served in the dining room. When coffee was reached, a few brief remarks were made by several of the delegates and officials. When the speeches were concluded the party returned to Boston. In the afternoon a procession of landaus, stretching half a mile in length, carried the excursionists out of Boston and about Cambridge and past all the buildings of the Harvard University. The drive was out through clustered villages that constitute Boston suburbs, past Longfellow's home with Brookline district as the objective point. At dusk the party alighted at the home of John L. At that time Mr. Cooper was supplying iron for a suspension bridge which General Serrill was building in Canada. Both gentlemen agreed that the bridge at affair would be entirely feasible. Mr. Cooper did not carry the matter to any definite result but as he let the matter drop he said :

FORTY LIVES LOST.

A Dreadful Accident on the Lower Mississippi.

NEW ORLEANS. La., Oct. 4 .- The steamer Corona, of the Ouachita Consolidated line, left here last evening for Ouachita River with a full cargo of freight and a good list of passengers.

She exploded her boilers at False River, nearly opposite Port Hudson, at 11:45 this morning, causing the loss of the steamer and about forty lives.

The Anchor Line steamer City of St. Louis, Captain James O'Neill, was near, and with his crew and boats saved many

The surviving passengers and crew were taken on board by Captain O'Neill and kindly cared for.

The Corona was on her first trip of the season and had but recently come out of the dry dock, where she received repairs amounting to nearly $12,000. She was built at Wheeling, West Virginia by Sweeny Bros. of that city, about seven years ago, and had a carrying capacity of about 2,700 bales of cotton. At the time of the accident she was valued at $20,000.

Ten of the saved are wounded, but not dangerously.

The captain, T. C. Sweeney, one of the officers of the line, who assumed command on the death of Captain Blanks, says that the explosion was not due to a too high pressure of steam. He had just had occasion to examine the gauge and he is positive that there was not a pressure of more than 135 pounds. The boat had a moderate cargo. She was in the middle of the stream, just below the landing at Arbroth, and had just whistled to pass the City of St. Louis, fortunately coming down the

The explosion had a downward tendency and blew out the bottom of the boat, caus ing her to sink immediately. The cabin was torn into, the rear portion floating down stream and bearing a number of the saved. Captain Sweeney says the boat would undoubtedly have burned had she not gone down immediately. None of the books, papers, or other valuables were

The City of St. Louis, which was about 500 yards above, at once put out her boats, and she did noble work in saving lives. The Anchor Liner staid there several hours rendering all assistance possible and taking on board the rescued passengers and crew. When nothing more could be done she came on down to Baton Rouge, where hysicians were summoned and all possible done for the injured.

GRANGERS IN POLITICS.

Secretary Trimble Says They Have Already Stayed out Too Long.

The twenty-third session of the National Grange, which will be held in Sacramento, California, on November 13, promises to be the most important held for years. John Trimble secretary of the Grange, thinks the Grangers were snubbed when President Harrison appointed Governor Rusk Secretary of Agriculture. In an interview in the Post Mr. Trimble

"We do not hesitate to say that the administration ignored the rights of the farmer and did the farming community a greatinjustice in placing a politician who was never a farmer at the head of the Department of Agriculture. That department was made a Cabinet office principally through the efforts of the Grange and when the new administration came in we felt that we had the right to suggest the name of a proper person to fill it. Colonel J. H. Brigham, our master, ex-Governor Robey of Maine and Hon. J. J. Woodman of Michigan were suggested by the order and the appointment urged. President Harrison deliberately ignored the entire order. Snubbed

"Formerly," continued Mr. Trimple, "it was a rule of the order that members should not participate in politics. There is where we made a great mistake, but we have seen the error of our ways and repented, and now it is an implied prerequisite that a member shall put aside his political faith when the interests of the Grange demand it. We do not seek to run separate candidates, but between the two great parties our members are obliged to to vote for the candidate who favors Granging interests, whether he belongs to the same political party or not.

"We have organized 25,000 Granges in the various States and Territories, and we take thirteen as the minimum number of each Grange, and that will give you an idea of our strength."

Parade of the Knights.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8 .- The morning broke cloudy, threatening rain or snow. For some time the air was very chilly, but as the hours wore on the sky cleared, making a beautiful day for the great Knights Templar parade.

The city was in gala dress: public and private buildings were covered with bunting. The various insignia of the order were used in the decorations, furnishing a pleasing variety. Everywhere was bustle, animation and brilliant coloring.

The Templars formed early in their various headquarters and, with bands playing marched through the crowded streets to the place of starting. Pennsylvania Avenue was roped off to give full room for the knightly maneuvers. The crowd present was not nearly so large as when President Harrison was inaugurated. Moderate estimates place the number of visitors at 50,000. These were nearly all friends of the various commanderies. The number of Knights in the city has been estimated at 15,000 to 20,000, composing over 200 commanderies from all sections of the country.

It was nearly noon when the twelve divisions of the procession formed in the streets adjacent to the capitol, debouching from the side streets at the signal, filed into line and began their long march up Pennsylvania Avenue.

A few moments after the President's arrival at the reviewing stand, the head of the procession filed around the corner of Fifteenth Street and marched with measured tread in front of where President Harrison stood doffing his hat in response to the salutes with which he was constantly Eminent Sir Myron M. Parker with forty-five aides on horseback, six or eight. abreast, followed by the Washington commanderies headed the procession. They were accompanied by the Marine band which was the recipient of many cheers as it passed the stand.

Secretary Blaine who entered the stand at this moment and courteously bowed to the assembled multitude, was enthusiastically welcomed.

The last commandery passed the presidential reviewing stand at 3:30 o'clock. The procession fulfilled the remainder of its long line of march and was finally dishanded about an hour later. About 15,000 Wir Knights were in line.

CONGRESS OF THE AMERICAS. Formal Address of Welcome by Secretary of State Blaine. Washington, Oct. 2 .- The delegates to the International American congress assembled at the State Department at noon and proceeded in a body to the diplomatic reception room, where they were presented to Secretary Blaine, who delivered a felicitous address of welcome. Mr.

Gentlemen of the International American Conference; - Speaking for the Government of the United States, I bid you welcome to this capital. Speaking for the people of the United States, I bid you welcome to every section and to every State of the Union. You come in response to an invitation extended by the President on the special authorization of Congress. Your presence here is no ordinary event. It signifies much to the people of all America to-day. It may signify far more in days to come. No conference of nations days to come. No conference of nations ever assembled to consider the welfare of great and so inspiring.

Those now sitting within these walls are empowered to speak for nations whose borders are on both the great oceans, whose northern limits are touched by Arctic waters for thousands of miles beyond the Straits of Behring, and whose southern extension furnishes human habitations farther below the equator than is elsewhere possible on the globe. While consideraions of this character must inspire Amerauticipation of future granduer and power, they must also impress them with a sense of great responsibility touching the char-acter and development of their respective nationalities.

The delegates whom I am addressing can do much to establish permanent relations of confidence, respect and friendship between the nations which they represent. They can show to the world an honorable, peaceful conference of seventeen independent American powers, in which all shall meet together on terms of absolute equality, and confidence, in which there can be no attempt to coerce a single delegate against his conception of the interest of his nation; a conference which will permit no secret understanding on any subject, but will frankly publish to the world all its conclusions; a conference which will erate no spirit of conquest, but will aim to cultivate American sympathy, broad as orm no selfish alliance against older nations from which we are proud to claim in-heritance; a conference, in fine, which will seek nothing, propose nothing, endure no-thing that is not, in the general sense of all the delegates, timely and wise and peaceful.

And yet we cannot be expected to forget that our common fate has made us inhabi-ants of two continents, which at the close of four centuries are still regarded beyond the seas as the New World.

Like situations beget like sympathies and impose like duties. We meet in the firm beilef that the nations of America ought to and can be more helpful to each other than they now are, and that each will find advantage and profit from an enlarged intercourse with the others. We believe we should be drawn together more closely by the highways of the sea, and that at no the sea, and that at no distant day the rallway systems of the North and the South will meet upon the cal and commercial capitals of all Amerca. We believe that a hearty reception, based on a hearty confidence, will save all American States from the burdens and evils which have long and cruelly afficted he older nations of the world. We believe he spirit of justice and common equal interest between the American States will leave no room for an artificial balance of power like unto that which has led to wars abroad and drenched Europe in blood. We believe friendship avowed with candor and maintained with good faith shall remove from the American ates the necessity of guarding boundary lines between themselves with fortifica-tions and military force. We believe that standing armies beyond those which are needful for public order and safety of in-ternational administration should be un-dministration between American nations and in American nations.

To these objects and those which are cognate thereto, the attention to this conference is earnestly and cordially invited by the the Government of the United States. It will be a great gain when we shall acquire that common confidence on which all international friendship must American nations into a closer aquaintance with each other—an end to beffacilitated by more frequent and more rapid inter-communication. It will be the greatest ain when the personal and commercial re-tions of the American States, South and North, shall be so developed and so regulated that each shall acquire the highest possible adventage from the enlightened and enlarged intercourse of all.

Before the conference, shall formally enter upon the discussion of the subjects to be submitten to it, I am instructed by the President to invite all delegates to be the uests of the Government during the pro-losed visit to various sections of the connry with the double view of showing to the United States and of giving to our peoure of extending a warm welcome to sister Americans.
The address was received with an amount of enthusiasm somewhat remarkable in a body of this character. At the conclusion of Secretary Blaine's speech he withdrew, and a resolution was adopted naming Secretary Blaine as president of the congress.

On motions of the South American delegates the following resolution was Resolved, That the members of the International American Congress accept with pleasure the invitation of the Presilent of the United States of America to be the guests of this Government in cursion through the territory of the United States, and that we express our thanks for that invitation.

A number of committees were appointed and the Congress adjourned until Monday, Nov. 16. Mr. Blaine then escorted the members to the White House. The President gave a special reception to the delegates at 1:30 p. m., one of the features of which was an informal lunch served in the State dining-room at 2. The reception took place in the blue parlor. The members were presented by Socretary Blaine, first to President Harrison, and then to Mrs. Harrison, then to members of the Cabinet.

Artesian Wells.

From the Denver Field and Farm.

We are no raw tenderfoot, nor were we reared in Ambrosia. But we saw a remarkable thing in San Luis valley the other day. An artesian well was sunk to the depth of 130 feet in the streets of La Jara in less than six hours. Struck a fine flow of water too. Four men and Apropos, artesian wells have become very numerous over in the San Luis "park," as we use to call it years ago. They hit a flow anywhere below eighty feet and the force never dwindles down, as it does here in Denver. Every farmer nearly has an artesian and some of them are not considered extravagant when they have three or four. Contractors take the job of finding a flow at the normal cost of $33, and we heard of six contracts being signed the other day at $25 each. This guarantees that the contractor will strike flowing water if he has to go as far as Robin Hood's barn for it. But those contractors are clever and they usually hold the whip hand.

The directors of the company with increased confidence in their large enterprises, are putting more capital every day into the development of new schemes. Within a week there has been an amicable change in the officers, so that men of large experience in the southwest are now at the head of the management, to which the Chicago capitalists have yielded the direction of their investment. Mr. J. J. Hagerman, of Colorado Springs, long the efficient president of the Midland railroad, of Colorado, has been elected president of the Pecos Irrigation company. His confidence is indicated by having already invested since its organization $275,000 in the company's works. Hon. Charles B. Eddy remains the soul of the enterprise as vice-president and manager. L. H. Jackson, Esq., of Colorado Springs, late president of the Denver and Rio Grande railroad system, is made a director in the company, and R. W. Tansill, of Chicago, treasurer.

The irrigation ditch has been completed for twenty-two miles. In its progress the largest earthwork, it is believed, in the United States was built up at one place, and the ditch then carried through it. Several reservoirs have been constructed. One, including the river bed, is seven and a half miles long, and an average of two miles wide. An embankment of rock forty-five feet high and about 150 feet wide and 1,100 feet long has been thrown across the Pecos from one rocky bluff to the other. It is made of the rock taken from a wide cut through the bluff at one end, at nearly the same height as the dam, for the escape of the surplus water. The same large escapes for water have been provided at two a very simple rigging did all the work. other points on the banks of the dam, so that the water will flow off through great draws and never overflow the dam itself. The water of the river will be entirely turned into the ditches which are con structed on both sides of the river. The largest reservoir is four or five miles above the town of Eddy. The improvements going on in this town are indeed a wonder in this long deserted country. It has already grown to an American community, with neatly painted houses and fences. Saloons and liquor selling are prohibited in the conditions attached to the titles of the town lots.

The company has contracted for the erection of a hotel of the most tasteful design and specially suited to the climate and country, to be finished within six months. A new stage line is to be made scheme to fund the indebtedness of the from the Texas Pacific railroad station. company at a lower rate of interest than Toyah, Texas making relay stations every it now bears. The task of straightening fifteen miles, so that rapid transit will Paso from northern Texas, passing through the town of Eddy.

Two hundred thousand acres of land have been putunder irrigation canals by the construction of these great ditches. The country is filling up with settlers. One thousand men with teams are constantly employed on the ditches and works. To freight material, food and supplies 300 teams are kept on the road back and forth from Pecos City. Emigrant wagons are constantly arriving from various directions. The people who compose this population show the enterprise, taste and spirit of Mr. Eddy, the projector and manager of this great movement, which is settling and developing without question the finest and richest agricultural region in the southwest.

Nowhere can be raised superior fruit of every kind than on the lands which this company will open for settlement. The apple and pear grow to large size, of perfect form and color, and of delicious flavor. The peach attains its greatest perfection in size, color and desirable quality. The plum, apricot, prune and nectarine find a congenial home there and produce every year full crops of beautiful fruit. It is the home of the grape—the tender varieties, the Muscat and the Hamburgs, mature there in the open vineyard, and will yield almost fabulous returns to the cultivator. When it is considered that the distance from the great markets is only one-half as great as from California, with most direct rail communication, both to the north and south, the certainty of large profits for those who engage in horticul-ture in the Pecos valley becomes apparent. Raisin growing and wine making are industries which will thrive there.

Doctor M. M. Milligan and Chris Sellman are branching out in the mining business at Las Vegas, but it seems that one of them, at least, has yet to have his eye teeth cut. Two White Oaks prospectors the other day sold them for $250 a one-fourth interest in a claim they had located some twenty-three miles from the meadow city. Dr. Milligan examined the prospect, a ledge cropping out of the ground, and took their test for the presence of mineral, together with an assay of some rock which they sent to Trinidad and which assayed $400 to the ton in silver. After the money was paid before. It is one of the results of the rock. The fellows were arrested and tried for fraud, but the prosecution could not make the charge stick. However, Milligan and Sellman are wiser but sad-

Hardening Plaster.

A new process for hardening plaster of paris making that substance suitable for flooring purposes, has been communicated to the French Academy of Sciences by M. Julte. The plaster is mixed with one-sixth of its weight of fine, freshly slacked lime and used with as little water as possible. After it is thoroughly dry it is treated with a saturated solution of either zinc or iron sulphate. With the first the hardened plaster re- LINCOLN, mains white while the second by gradual oxidation yields the color iron rust, which gives a fine imitation of mahogany under an application of linseed oil.—E. and M. Journal.

The above would make a good roofing material for this country.

Because the people over there are anxious to be captured, and the anxiety being mutual there is a chance for that kind of a trade. The return of our party being too late for an account in this paper of what was seen and heard that the Roswell and Pecos people are a clever and an enterprising lot. Because that is just what it is, and that is just what they are.-Amarillo Northwest.

Upson's Reminiscences.

In an interesting letter to the Lincoln County Leader, M. A. Upson says the following: "In 1877, and 8, and 9, I was postmaster at Roswell. Much of the time I was literally alone, except on mail days, when settlers rode up in squads of 3 to 8, with rifles across their saddles, pistols in belt vice-president; A. H. Whetstone, secreand belts of cartridges about their bodies and across their shoulders. This was during the bloody Lincoln county war. There was but one house within sight of Trotter, Andy Robertson, C. C. To the patrons of the school taught in District 18:

There having been quite a number of pupils during the last two weeks who have been irregular in their attendence at school, and not having the time to visit the patrons in person, I avail myself of the kind offer of the editor of the REGISTER, (to use the paper in matters pertaining to school affairs,) and shall briefly try and impress you how essential it is to the promotion and advancement of the children not to miss a day from their studies. Each pupil is marked for every recitation; on Friday even ing the sum of the marks is taken and merits awarded the one having the great est number. If a child be absent one or two days during the week, though they may have perfect lessons every day they attend, some pupil who has been regular in his or her attendance will receive, in all probability the greatest number of marks. In this case you see it is an injustice to the child, as the one receiving the greatest number of marks during the term will get the prize. And again, pupil, which should be given to the ento start his artesian well plant on his I wish to call your attention to are, the er naturally wishes to know what a child has learned and retained at the close of each week, and a weekly review is the most accurate way of ascertaining. excused from any recitation.

The Roswell Hotel Company.

The new hotel company is organized and a large amount of the stock is subscribed, the building of a good brick hotel and bank is assured. The stockholders met for the purpose of organizing this week, at which time Capt. J. C. Lea was elected president; P. F. Garrett tary and N. Jaffa, treasurer. A building committee of the following gentlemen were appointed: L. M. Long, J. B. and Geo. Ovard. They are all good praccomposed of G. A. Richardson, A. D. Wright, J. P. White, Walter Booth and other meeting will be held to-night, (Thursday,) at the office of the secretary, A. H. Whetstone, at which, the above to be present. The finance committee requests those who have not as yet submake themselves known, and an opportunity will be given them to take stock. We heartily recommend the investment as a good one. There is not a property will, and the money invested in it is absolutely secure.

The lots in Ovards's addition have advanced in price 50 per cent. in the last two weeks, and another advance will be made in a short time. Now is the time to buy cheap, desirable residence lots. Inside lots $35, corner lots $65 and $75. The cheapest in town. See Erwin.

every day missed necessitates double study the day following, as it is absolutely necessary that a pupil should thoroughly understand every lesson as they go. Teachers time do not belong to themselves, or to any one patron, but to the patrons collectively; taking for granted they are so disposed, they have not the right to devote that time to one tire class. To advance children in their studies, it is not only essential but necessary that they should be regular in their attendance, and unless they are, a teacher should not be censured for their lack of advancement. I maintain that there is nothing that can give one selfconfidence and power to express themselves fluently and grammatically, more than the early knowledge and participancy in declaiming and composition writing. The exercises of Friday evening are the most important of the week, for they are composed of composition reading, declaiming and a general review of the lessons of the week. A teach-

There must be system and order about everything, and in school more than any thing else. AN EXCITING CAPTURE.

Fifty-One Elephants Taken in an Indian Jungle. Success has again attended Mr. Sanderson's exertions, says a letter from India in the Manchester Guardan, and a fine herd of elephants, fiftyone in number, which were driven into a large seventy-acre inclosure Monday, July 8, have been brought out and first supposed that from eighty to a but the big herd apparently separated into two portions during the early part of the drive. The main body headed straight for the 'Dodday Gowden Parlia" gorge, in which the Khedda is situated, while the other turned off to the south down a valley leading to a forest called "Shubur Malay." This was not found out until afterward, though the track of the escaped portion has been noticed by R. H. Morris, a planter, who is opening out land on the Billigarungan hills, and who acted as Mr. Sanderson's assistant during the whole of the operations. Taking all things into consideration it was just as well that all were not inclosed, as there would not have been enough tame elephants to deal with them, and even as it was many of the had to be shot. A sketch of the proceedings which have terminated so satisfactorily is given by the Madras Mail, which says that by the 3rd inst. all the strengthening of the fortifications, preparation of the gates, etc., had been completed and all was in readiness. On the 7th the welcome news was brought by the vigilant trackers that a large herd was quietly browsing in "Killiarro Combe," a favorite cover in close proximity to the Khedda gorge, so that little time was lost. By the same evening 400 into camp from Chamrajnaggur. Early the next morning all were assembled at the foot of a commanding little hill known as Munegooday, where Mr. Sanderson proposed to take up his post and direct the drive by means of flags and signals; the men had just been mustered and told off to their various stations, a few minor preliminaries were being discussed, when Mr. Morris noticed the elephants quietly filing the Khedda. To dispatch the parties was never heard to pronounce in her of a very few moments. Mr. Morris, about thirty years ago for $20. She with 150 beaters, ran across the valley to deploy the men and bring them up | continued to improve until she became in line on the southern side. Mr. Sanderson himself, with one or two of the start and bring up the northern state. side.

Soon the continuous tapping of sticks in one long, semicircular line over a mile in length proclaimed that the exciting performance had commenced. The elephants came forward quietly and gave but little trouble until close to the main entrance of the surround. Here an unlucky contretemps occurred. Some lunatics more willing than wise got in front of them and the herd broke back a few hundred yards and ensconced itself in very thick bamboo cover on the banks of the river. By judiciously giving them an hour's rest, closing in the line of beaters to within short range of them, with their little fires, they were subsequently forced forward and driven into the inclosure, not, however, through the gates. A bright piece of forethought on the part of Mr. Sanderson had caused the barricades across the river to be removed so as to give the elephants a choice of paths. The wisdom of this was fully exemplified when the animals dashed into and up the river; the signal rocket was fired, while the thuds of the falling gates and the cheers and shouts of the beaters announced the successful issue of the drive. Haff the coolies were told off to watch with a hut and a watch-fire at every twenty yards. Next all available hands were set to work to construct the inner stockade.

Wednesday, the 10th, the resident the maharajah with his party, Maj. Martin, the private secretary, Dr. Benson, Mr. Ricketts, the inspectorgeneral of forests, Mrs. and the two Misses Ricketts, with one or two others, arrived on the scene. Thursday most of the elephants were driven into the smaller stockade, a few, however, remaining outside, headed by a determined female, who charged repeatedly, her career being finally ended by Mr. Morris when in the act of making a very home charge. After the death of this troublesome one, which had got nicknamed the "Budmash," the rest were quietly forced into the stockade by the "Kunkias," where they settled down peaceably with their companions. During the next two days all were tied up without accident, with the exception of one half-grown mimal, that through its excitement and obstreperousness got strangled in the river. With the removal of the wild elephants from the Khedda to the open country the more exciting and interesting part of this sporting under-

every day with an iron on a large anvi-After being ten days in pure water it | Three Fellnes Taught the Nicetles was left for another ten days in water with about 4 per cent. of salt. Then it was replaced in pure water again for twenty days. During those forty days it was constantly in soak. The head and feet, weighing about 300 pounds, were then removed, and the skin hung on spikes in the drying room. After picketed in the open jungle three hanging one day it was put in a vat miles west of the Khedda. It was at containing potash and a small quantity of sulphur of sodium in the following hundred animals had been captured, proportions: Water, 1,000 parts; slacked lime, twenty-five parts; potash, three parts; sulphur of sodium, two parts. After being two days in this bath it was rinsed in pure water of a temperature of twenty degrees, when it was again placed in the drying room. After this double operation was repeated three times the skin was ready to have the hair taken off. This operation occupied about one day's time, and gave about 75 pounds of hair. Another day was spent in cleaning and scraping. By this time it lost 30 per cent. of its weight. The operation of its preparation lasted two months, and it went through the same course as cowhide, with the difference that each phase of the work took three times as much time. The skin should be stretched in the pit, and placed in the older and consequently useless animals | middle of cowhides. Six layers of powder are then thrown in; two first, two second, and two third layers. Altogether the tanning takes three years. The partition of time is thus: Becoming green, 40 days; worked, 16 days; preparation, 50 days; repitition, 60 days; first pit (double), 200 days; second pit (double), 300 days; third pit (double), 400 days.

Gum Chewing for Prizes.

The Gum Chewing Club of York ville held its annual reception and grand chewing match last night, says the N. Y. Sun.

This club is an organization whose only object is to encourage the art of chewing gum. To further this object they hold a match every now and then, in which the person who can chew the biggest quid of gum gets a prize. The prize for yesterday's contest was a gold watch. Fifteen thousand tickets had been distributed during the week, and about 2,000 men and their "gals" came to witness the contest. As they passed through the door each received a little pasteboard box containing a bar of tutti frutti. About 9 o'clock nearly 2,000 jaws mechanically worked up and down through a bit of gum, keeping time to the waltz of "Razzle Dazzle," which a band was grinding out. At the end of each beat of time 2,000 pairs of teeth clicked.

The young women and their "fellers" did nothing but sit around and chew gum. At 10½ o'clock five young women with very muscular jaws mounted a platform at the end of the room, and everybody applauded. These were the champion gum chewers. The master of ceremonies made a short speech, after which he handed each of the chewers a bar of gum. Each assumed a different graceful attitude as shstuck the first chew in her mouth, and the audience applauded again. When the bar was thoroughly chewed, another bar was handed around which had to be "chewed in" with the first. Gradually the jaws of the young women began to swell, until they looked very much like the jaws of the late Mr. Crowley of Central Park. One by one the contestants dropped out. When the reporter left the contest had narrowed down to two, with a score of 51 bars each, and jaws that looked like an attack of the mumps. The best record so far was 91 bars, made last year by a young woman, who is now said to be in the insane asylum on Ward's Island.

The Custer Battle-Ground.

Gen. Dandy, on a tour of inspection of the national cemeteries, has recently visited the Custer battle-ground and finds the spot in good condition. As the battle was fought on a high ridge, it has been cut into gullies by storms and many bodies have been exhumed. The monument is standing, but has been a good deal chipped off by tourists who annually overrun the ground. Gen. Dandy will recommend a $15,000 the St. James Gazette, speaking of tan- appropriation for the purpose of putning an elephants hide, and was about ting an iron fence about the memorable an inch and a third thick. REMARKABLE CATS.

of Table Etiquet.

A very pretty little story concerning a trie of Sing Sing (N. I.) cats has been going the rounds lately. I the respective owners of the cats are telling the truth the felines are truly wonderful beasts.

The first is a white Angora tabby, who sits at the table with the family and eats very daintily with a fork by doubling her paw around the handle. And she would rather die than be seen putting a knife into her mouth. Cat number two is a wise he feline named Pete, who never thinks of coming to the table without making his toilet. But instead of licking his paw in the usual way he has a little wash-basin into which he dips his paws and scrubs himself. The last is also a Thomas cat, who has acquired fame by his appetite for green corn on the cob. He sits at the table, where he will put butter and salt on the dainty, and then grasping the ear in both paws he bites the kernels off just like a human.

The above is what the Sing Sing cats can do, but Chicago has produced a still more remarkable tabby. Most any cat can be taught to eat with a of a cat to live without eating at all. Luther Mills a Franklin street shoemaker, owns the cat, which he now calls Doc Tanner. Mr. Mills, his wife, and the cat were all living together in the rear of his shoe shop until the 1st of September, when it was decided to dispense with the services of the cat. Business was poor and the cobbler had hard work to feed himself and family without buying meat for the cat. How to dispose of the animal in the most humane manner was a question that bothered Mr. Mills for several days, and after some discussion they decided to drown Doc.

On the first of September, just fifteen days ago. Mr. Mills put the cat into a gunny-sack and tied the mouth shut. Then he removed the cover from an old, unused well in the back yard, dropped the bag in, and replaced the cover. Four days later another cat came purring into the house, and, as the old folks felt lonely, they took it in. But it proved itself a nuisance, so yesterday morning Mr. Mills got another gunny-bag and approached the fatal well. As he lifted the cover he heard a faint cry, and peering down into the depths, he discovered the bag which he had thrown in over two weeks ago hanging to a projecting stone about eight feet below the surface of the ground. Mr. Mills got a clothes-pole and soon let the cat out of the bag. Fifteen days' solitary confinement in the bag without food or water had told terribly on the poor creature. It was so weak that it could hardly stand and in attempting to walk it merely staggered around itself with its hind-

A Din of Big Yarns. Increasing numbers of braggarts parade with better men at each recurring camp-fire of the soldiers who saved the union. Whether arrogance and invective thrive with years and rheumatism, or ardent spirits embitter continued human garrulity, the officers of the day swell to larger size with braggadocio. The boasting grows louder as death reaps among the men who were real fighters. It is a phenomenon of warfare meriting study, that after Appomattox the blow-hard was still as a bullhead deep in the mud. Men who had been in the thick of battles marched silently all day before the national capitol. To-day, with graves made all over the restored union, where sleep the brave, the noise and crash of reminiscence -- the red eve-ball of dauntless recital-the back brow of awful menance-these visions frighten both the old-time civilian and the generation of innocents who must join the militia to even know the scent of burnng gunpowder .- Chicago Herald.
