Place Additional Restrictions On Bracero Use

WITH THE COUNTY AGENT

DERYL COKER

I will be out of the office Jan. 15 through Jan. 20 so I won't be able to attend the Hereford Stock Show. Even though I won't be there, several adult leaders have agreed to help with the livestock that 4-H members will have entered.

Best of luck to you all.

As would be expected in these changing times, new products for agricultural use appear on the market in a steady stream. Many of these have real merit; they do a job for you and help you make a profit. They have contributed much to recent important advances in agriculture.

But other products may be of questionable value. Or they may be grossly overpriced. Or both. These are often sold by honestly enthusiastic persons who use scientific sounding sales talk, promising great benefits hitherto not available. They promise benefits based on "knowledge" which is often the product of pure fancy.

Just about everybody would like to get something for little or nothing, and it is human to hope that science will provide an easier or cheaper way of solving our farming problems. Maybe some new truth not yet fully appreciated has just been brought into use and we can "get in on the ground floor." Promoters capitalize on these hopes.

How do we go about determining which products we should be wary of buying? What clues should we look for? The promotional pattern is likely to include several, if not all, of the following selling angles.

1. The product is said to contain a secret or unknown ingredient, very potent, almost magical in its benefits.
2. It produces such remarkable results because it operates on a "newly discovered secret."
3. The discovery is so new that most scientists haven't heard about it yet.
4. Tests under controlled conditions in laboratory or field are generally played down as not showing the benefits obtained in "practical" agriculture.
5. Use of the product gives numerous beneficial side effects - extra dividends, all highly desirable but well clothed in words of mystery.

TRAVEL MONEY. Area farmers and bracero association leaders crowd around the table to give their donations to help pay travel expenses for three men to represent their interests at a labor hearing in Washington. A list of 105 names and $910 was given to the delegates at the meeting in Muleshoe Friday night. A total of 147 persons attended the meeting. Shown here are Bruce Parr, (holding coat) and W. T. Millen from Parmer County.

Feelings Run High At Friday Meeting

Bracero Association leaders and farmers from five counties met in Muleshoe Friday night to hear Labor department and Texas Employment Commission officials discuss the Bracero program. Instead, they were informed of a new and restricting bulletin issued by the Labor Department.

The officials didn't attend the meeting. The reason for the absence of the officials was credited to orders from the Dallas office of the Labor Department which forbade their attendance because the new bulletin, which was supposed to be in the mail last weekend, struck some spots on three major topics.

Lettuce producers in Texas, Arizona, and California were instructed to raise the prevailing wage of $1 per hour to $2 per hour for Mexican harvest hands or relinquish the use of bracero laborers.

All farmers are allowed to use bracero labor for a period of not more than 180 calendar days out of the year. This period becomes effective Feb. 1.

Bracero laborers are not to be used to operate, maintain or service any mechanized equipment which is used in farm production. He is also not allowed to fulfill any function which is necessary for the proper operation of the farm machine.

Loud grumblings from the 147-strong audience drowned out the words of Skipper Smith, Littlefield, and Preston Hatley, Olton, as they attempted to discuss the contents of the bulletin.

At the close of the meeting, $910 was contributed to help furnish travel expense for Elvin DeVaney, Muleshoe; Melvin Jones, Farwell; and W. A. Hardin, Lamb County, to represent area people at a labor hearing in Washington Tuesday at 10 a.m.

The hearing was called as a result of the stipulations placed upon the lettuce growers as they are starting harvesting. More time was needed to locate the men to go to the hearing than was needed to raise the travel funds. Bruce Parr from Black stated that whoever should be chosen to go will have to be able to hold his tongue in the face of "hard truths."

"I profess to be a Christian and believe in the Christian way of life, but at a similar meeting up there (in Washington) in 1958, I heard the representatives of the Council of Churches, or whatever it is called, testify that we were making the Mexicans hoe with the short handled hoes (Pony hoes) so that they would be bowing in humble submission to their employers," he said. "And Bill (W. T. Millen) will say the same thing," he added.

It was explained that the 180-day restriction on the use of bracero labor was not a restriction on the number of Mexicans used. The farmer also can choose the period in which he is to employ the braceros. This decision was credited to the position that temporary or seasonal labor could only be applied to a term of six months or less. (Braceros are supposed to be classed as seasonal or temporary laborers).

The question was raised of what farmers who have braceros contracted for three or six months at present could do in order to be allowed to use the Mexican help during the irrigation and harvesting seasons. Two avenues seemed to be open to farmers and associations. They could cancel the contract of the braceros and pay them for three-quarters of the contracted time or they could honor the contracts and hope that the time limit would be removed or the area declared an undue hardship area before the 180 days expired.

A member of the audience suggested a third out which brought a round of laughter from the crowd:

"Well, Hell! I'll just shoot mine," was the comment. "I think I'll just move down there. Nobody will be left here that will work," another commented disgustedly.

Further stipulations concerning the use of braceros to operate machinery indicated that the bracero could not move any machine which is used for farm production even though it was not being used at the time. For example, a bracero could not move a combine from the field to the barn in the middle of February when the ground was covered with snow.

Further, the bracero will not be allowed to fulfill any function which is necessary for the proper operation of the machine. This could mean that no bracero will be allowed to work in cotton trailers next fall and winter. It could be that pitching cotton could be considered as a necessary function for the proper operation of the cotton stripper.

"Will the bracero be allowed to bring the farmer water while he is in the field plowing?" a man in the audience asked.

"He can if it is for the farmer to drink, but not if it is to put in the tractor," snorted a man across the room.

Near the end of the meeting, Millen made a few remarks to the effect that Senator Ralph Yarborough was not the friend of any farmer in this area and that he was not doing anything for the farmer.

The meeting ended with almost everyone present promising to write their representatives and work individually and together to try to get a workable bracero program re-established.

The HAPPY HOMEMAKER

BY JUNE FLOYD

It has been said by many authorities that beginning cooks have much better success with mixes than do those of us who have been cooking a long time. Could it be possible that those who haven't been cooking so long, follow the given instructions more closely?

Perhaps too many of us decide that our knowledge of how cake, cookie or other batter ought to look is so great that we add more flour or more liquid than the manufacturer specifies. If your teen age daughter makes better cakes with prepared mixes than you do, it would probably be wise for you to follow her example by following directions as printed on the cartons.

Most homemakers derive a great deal of enjoyment from giving home made articles as gifts. Regardless of the cost of the article, no one can give a more appreciated gift than one that has been made by the giver.

If you don't have a gift box, why not start one. Then in your odd moments when you get an

Ralph Shelton, Friona, and Carl Rea, RFD, Bovina, were chosen as committeemen for Parmer County in the annual election of officials for the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District Jan. 9.

Residents of the district elected two area men to serve as directors on the water district board and two committeemen in each of the thirteen counties in the district.

Henry "Chick" Schmidly of Leveland was elected as director of Precinct No. 2, consisting of Cochran, Hockley and Lamb Counties. He defeated Roy Hickman of Morton, the incumbent, and Henry Gilbert of Sudan.

Jelly, jam and preserve making is another aspect of home-making that can be shared with loved ones. Collect pretty odd sized and shaped glass jars and fill as you fill jars for your own pantry. These can be added to your gift collection as they are needed.

BY MISS ETTIE MUSIL

For years we have been told that to save energy you should sit down to work. Now laboratory tests show homemakers actually use 4 percent more energy when sitting, than when standing. These tests were made for washing dishes and ironing.

The added energy is needed in getting on and off a kitchen stool while sitting. Of course, we still say that sitting is good especially to take off the strain on your legs and feet.

To roll out dough it takes 9 percent more energy when you are sitting on a kitchen stool than it does when you are standing. This is counting the energy used in getting on and off a kitchen stool plus the extra energy used to do the kitchen work.

These latest research decisions are important in planning kitchens and other work areas in your home. Storage space in the home seems to be the big concern in planning new and remodeled homes.

Come by the office some time and we will discuss better arrangement of your kitchen storage. We have two very helpful bulletins showing how you can arrange your kitchen for comfort as well as convenience. If you have wasted space in your kitchen cabinets you may want to see how you could add step-up shelves to store more items closer to your reach.

Are you planning to buy one or more major home appliances in the next few months? We have received word from our home management specialists advising that, if you can find what you want, it may pay you to buy now.

Prices are expected to increase substantially within the next few months. This is due partly to higher materials and labor costs. New improvements and added features also add to the cost of newness.

For the new automatic washers, watch for increased capacity as an added feature. In ranges, color will receive a big

Meeting Unites Group

NEWS FROM THE FARM BUREAU

BY RAYMOND EULER

It is our sincere hope that most of the people of the Golden Spread saw or heard "Hollywood's Answer to Communism" Friday night.

It was presented locally by competitive business organizations, and supported initially by loyal American producers and actors who find themselves in the midst of proponents of a switch from the from the American way. We believe most American citizens appreciate both of these facts that bring hope for a reversal of a trend. Farm Bureau, locally, statewide and nation-wide, openly opposes Communism whenever and wherever it is found.

Members of the Gas User's Association have been, and are, actively working for legislation in Texas enabling farmers to get irrigation fuel at a reasonable cost. Farm Bureau supports this organization in its efforts.

Some of you may never know how much some of your neighbors and fellow farmers are spending and working for your benefit in this endeavor. If you knew, we know you would lend your support voluntarily and vigorously. We hope you will.

Vernon Symcox, a member of the board of the above mentioned organization reported to the Farm Bureau Board on activities of the organization last week.

President Harry Hamilton reported to your board on a meeting he attended in Amarillo last week where Congressman Walter Rogers was guest of District 1 Farm Bureau. He was questioned regarding his views on Farm Bureau recommendations on national policies. Of particular interest was the Bracero program which appears to be on the way out, regardless of Farm Bureau and other farm group efforts to save it.

Farm Bureau is for long range improvement in farm and other business and individual income. Generally speaking, Farm Bureau people believe this can only be accomplished by a return to individual freedom, individual opportunity, and individual initiative without undue interference from the government. We hope you share these basic beliefs enough to volunteer your membership if you are not already a member.

CONSIDER THIS: Remove not the ancient landmark, which thy fathers have set. (Proverbs 22:28)

At a special meeting held in the courthouse in Farwell, Thursday it was decided to unite the boys and girls 4-H into one group.

Ettie Musil explained how the new unit would work. Leaders will be Mrs. R. W. Anderson and Mrs. U. L. Lesly. They are in need of project leaders to help with the work.

Officers were elected for the group: Reba Lesly, president; Doyle Johnson, vice-president; Bruce Billingsley, council delegate; Edith Ann Walling, council alternate delegate; Janis Billingsley, secretary - treasurer; Peggy Lesly, reporter, Tina Rundell, recreation chairman.

The group will meet at the city hall in Farwell on the third Thursday of each month at 7 p.m. The next meeting date will be February 15.

Members present were Doyle Johnson, Larry Gregory, Charles Norton, Edith Ann Walling, Viane Lesly, Janis Billingsley, Tina Rundell, Peggy Lesly, Charles Morton, Edith Carter, Keith Thomas, Milton Lea Walling, Roger Patrick, Reba Lesly, Sharon William, Camille Hobbs, Vicky Kaltwasser and Meredith Anderson.

How Would Fallout Affect Livestock?

This is the fourth of a series of articles on Civil Defense, compiled by Deryl Coker and Ettie Musil.

If that nuclear attack should come, people will go on living, or that is, the ones that are adequately protected from the blast, heat and radiation. To do this we must know how fallout will affect livestock, and what we must do to make livestock products safe for human consumption. This is very important for it would be impossible to survive without some of the livestock products.

Following is a list of questions and answers that should be of help to you in determining what you could do in case of nuclear attack.

QUESTION: How will fallout affect unprotected livestock—that is, animals in fields, pastures, and other open areas? ANSWER: Fallout may be dangerous to cattle, sheep, horses, pigs, and other livestock as well as to human beings. Animals can suffer skin burns if fallout settles in the coat. If animals drink fallout in their water or eat it in their feed, the radiation may cause serious internal injury or death. Radioactive materials that contaminate the skin or the immediate environment give off rays that can penetrate deep into the body. This is the major source of danger for livestock.

Q: How will fallout affect sheltered livestock? A: Livestock housed in barns and other farm buildings during fallout stand a better chance of surviving the effects of radiation than those that are not sheltered. Areas on well-built shelter prevents fallout from settling on the animals' bodies and may reduce the intensity of external radiation; it also keeps the animals from eating contaminated feed.

Q: What is the best way to protect livestock from fallout? A: Move them indoors as soon as possible, and keep them off contaminated feed and water. If you do not have adequate facilities to house livestock, put them near farm buildings or in a small drylot. Once fallout occurs, you should not attempt to protect livestock unless local civil defense authorities tell you that it is safe to do so.

Q: What water and feed can I give livestock after fallout? A: Water from a covered well, tank, or cistern, or from a freely running spring, should be safe. If possible, use water from a covered well.

River water is more likely to be contaminated. However, most of the fallout will be removed if it is filtered through sand or if it was muddy and the mud is settled out. Pond water is less safe, but if necessary, it can be used a few days after fallout has occurred.

To prevent contamination from fallout, do not add water to covered tanks, except water from a properly protected well or spring, until the water originally present is used.

Give your livestock feed that has not been exposed to fallout. If the particles settle on hay, silage, or a stack of feedbags, they will contaminate only the outer portions. You can remove the outer layers or bags, and use the inside feed that is unaffected. However, do not handle contaminated feed until told by authorities that it is safe to do so, and be sure to follow the precautions they may recommend.

Farmers will be notified if local civil defense authorities measuring concentrations of fallout consider forage that is growing in an area to be harmful, but this advice might come too late in the more heavily contaminated areas. As a precautionary measure, it is best to house the livestock without giving them access to forage.

You may have to give cows contaminated feed if no other feed is available. Although the milk from these cows may not be usable, once the cows are back on clean feed the amount of radioactive in their milk will progressively diminish. Authorities will measure fallout in affected areas and warn farmers when milk is unsafe. But again such warning likely will come latest in the areas where contamination is heaviest.

Q: What can I do with contaminated feed? A: You may be able to feed it to livestock eventually. Because of radioactive decay, contaminated feed may become safe to use after a period of storage. How long feed should be stored depends on the type and concentration of the radioactive materials. Farmers will be notified by local defense authorities.

Q: Should dairy cows receive special treatment? A: Yes, because radioactive materials can accumulate in milk, which will be a very critical product during an emergency, you should make a special effort to protect cows from fallout.

Give cows preferred shelter and clean feed and water. If you can, milk them before fallout occurs. You may not be able to do so for several days afterward. Reduce amounts of water and concentrated feed to maintenance levels. If practicable, put cows and suckling calves together; the calves can suckle and reduce the discomfort of full udders.

Q: Is it possible to decontaminate livestock and farm buildings that have been exposed to fallout? A: If there is fallout on the animals' skins, some of the radioactive material can be washed off with water. Civil defense authorities may advise you to hose down animals and to clean stables, barns, and other farm buildings. They will also tell you when it is safe to do these things. In handling animals, wear coveralls, gloves and boots to prevent contaminating yourself. Cleaning or disinfecting buildings will not destroy radioactivity. However, cleaning can be useful in moving radioactive materials to a place where radiation will be less harmful. In cleaning be careful to avoid contaminating yourself.

CAUTION: Before animals are hosed down or buildings cleaned, a thorough check should be made of possible radiation hazards to the person performing the task.

(Cont.) Shift your position as often as you can

If you're forced to stand for a long time, Push one hip out slightly, and throw your weight on the outside of that foot. Then repeat with the other hip and foot. You'll find this can be done inconspicuously. Don't wear the same shoes every day. Alternate between two pairs (at least). If your feet are inclined to perspire excessively, dust on special absorbent foot powder before pulling on your stockings, or spray foot spray or cologne right through your hose. Shop especially carefully for dancing slippers. Since these will probably be your highest-heeled shoes, it's particularly important that they fit perfectly. Good trick: Schedule your visit to the shoe department for the afternoon, when most feet tend to swell a little. Then there will be room for expansion on the dance floor. When trying on shoes, step down hard, and check the width and toe space with your full weight. Be sure the back is shaped so that it neither presses nor lets your heel slip.

Mapping out a campaign and carrying it out before the May 5 primary is something that's yet before him.

In an interview, Hinkson looked straight at the reporter and said unblinkingly, "Now, I'm not going to tell you what to write. That would be telling you how to mind your own business and that's what I'm against. But don't picture me as a fence straddler."
