TEXAS O. & R. CO. DRILLING AGAIN--PRAIRIE SPUDS IN NEW TEST

BUT 3 SEASONS IN FRANCE - JULY AUGUST, WINTER

There are but three seasons in France—July, August and Winter—says Joe T. Ogden, who returned last Saturday from overseas. Although Joe was undoubtedly the youngest Brady boy in service, yet very few saw more or longer service than he; in fact, he arrived in France before there were enough American soldiers there to make up an army corps.

Joe is the son of Mrs. B. Ogden of this city, and is known by practically everyone in Brady, having made his home here all his life. Most of our citizens, however, will think of him only as a boy, as Joe was but 17 years old when he enlisted, and had left high school to learn telegraphy at the local Western Union office. But Joe has returned a man, with more experience and more extensive travels to his credit than falls to the lot of most of our citizens.

Joe volunteered in the signal corps at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, on August 23, 1917, but was later transferred to the air service, going overseas with the 105th Squadron, from which he was transferred to the 12th Squadron. His squadron helped to make up the 1st American army corps.

Joe saw service as wireless operator on the Champagne-Marne defensive, July 15th to 18th, 1918—the only defensive the Americans took part in; the Aisne-Marne offensive July 18th to August 6th, 1918; St. Mihiel offensive September 12th to 16th, 1918, and the Meuse-Argonne offensive September 26th to November 11th. The St. Mihiel offensive was the shortest of the war. This was the drive towards Metz and the Americans concluded it in three days, having reached their objective. He sailed from the U. S. November 23rd, 1917, and returning reached the U. S. June 16th, 1919. The three stripes on his service chevron indicates 19 months' overseas service in England, France and Germany.

Joe talks most interestingly of his overseas experiences. While his duties did not take him in the firing line, yet he voluntarily made several trips over the enemy's lines in observation airplanes. He found his work so intensely interesting that he had no time to think of being homesick, and often would get so wrapped up in his duties that a couple months would pass before he would think to write home. If a wireless was strong enough, it could pick up messages from any other wireless, including those of the Germans. Of course the messages were sent in code, but as a rule no difficulty was experienced in decoding them, as the Intelligence department of the army made it their business to learn the German code—and the Germans likewise endeavored to learn the allies' secrets. The principal method employed was for an officer of the Intelligence department to be carried by airplane over into the enemy's territory and landed there at night. Of course he would wear an enemy uniform, and so escape detection. After remaining there spying on enemy movements and secrets for some three or four days, the airplane would return to the appointed place and pick him up again. One Frenchman made 52 successful visits into enemy territory in this manner. In fact, it was the same Frenchman who, a few months ago, made the sensational landing on the department store roof in Paris. During the war, of course, no official mention was made of his record in order to protect him from capture by the Germans.

The Germans used this same method very successfully, and one intelligence officer, who was shot down and captured by the Germans, told a remarkable story when he returned to the American lines after the signing of the armistice. Following his capture, he was carried before the German commander and questioned regarding the disposition of American troops. When he refused to reply, he was shown pictures and information in the hands of the Germans, which gave the exact location of every unit, the number of men at each point, the names of their officers—in fact, information to the minutest detail.

Joe has a most interesting collection of photos as souvenirs. One of these shows the body of Lieutenant Quentin Roosevelt lying beside his wrecked plane. This photo was used extensively throughout Germany as propaganda, being distributed in circulars, souvenir cards and other forms, with the wording that the U. S. was so short on aviators, they had to call into service the ex-President's son. The German aviator who shot down Roosevelt was a young fellow, aged about 22 years, and named Hausmann. He was an expert aviator and had 30 victories to his credit. Some claimed he was an Englishman—at any rate Joe heard him in conversation and said he spoke perfect English. Following the signing of the armistice, and the delivery by Germany of her airplanes to the victors, about 100 airplanes fell to the U. S. Before these planes were accepted they had to be tested out by German aviators, and Hausmann was one of the pilots selected to make the test. While at Coblenz trying out a new kind of airplane, only a few of which had been used by the Germans in the war, and which were copied after the French Nieuport, Hausmann attempted some fancy stunts on New Year's day, and

"Boil Water--Use Precaution" Warns City Health Department

"Boil your water, use lime where needed and don't spare your weeding hoe," is the advice given by Dr. J. B. Granville of the City Health department.

Owing to the continuous rises in Brady creek this year and the resultant muddy water, the filter bed at the filtering plant has all but ceased to function. This is no surprise to anyone conversant with the facts. As a result the water now furnished the citizens has been polluted to some extent, and as a precautionary measure, it is well to boil the water until such a time as the creek settles down to normal and the filter plant is again given its usual 100 percent service.

The health department reports there is no occasion for alarmist reports about an epidemic of typhoid fever. Every year there are a few cases of typhoid, and this year is no exception. The remarkable part is that so few cases have been had this year, under conditions that were so extraordinary.

Warning is issued against bathing in the creeks, as several cases of typhoid have been traced directly to this source.

There is no occasion for hysteria—but there is occasion for the use of practical, common sense.

fell, splattering himself and his airplane over the ground. His arm, a leg and three or four ribs were broken by the fall.

On the Champagne-Marne front, where Roosevelt was shot down, the Germans and Americans were pretty evenly matched on airplanes, but on the Meuse-Argonne, where the famous aviator, Richthofen, pilot of the German Flying Circus, operated, the Germans were much superior in force.

Joe said when the news of the signing of the armistice was had, the boys put on a show the like of which was never seen before. He says there is no question but what everyone was tickled to hear of it, and the folks who cried for the fight to go on to a "knockout" must have been the stay-at-homes who had no friends or relatives in the war. When Joe got the wireless announcing the armistice, he stamped to where the boys were sleeping and woke them all up to tell them the good news. No one at first believed him, and he was met with a volley of shoes. When they realized it was true, however, they turned loose more fire-arms than had ever before been shot in one day. The doughboys would throw their guns over at the Germans and the German soldiers would reply in the same manner. The machine guns for airplanes come in pairs, and there were about 100 pairs of these machine guns there at the time. The boys shot these until they almost melted from the heat. The 26th Division, which started an attack early in the morning of November 11th, did not learn of the armistice until 20 minutes to 11 o'clock.

After the armistice, Joe visited the German wireless station at Trier, where he found a dandy wireless receiver and transmitter. He hoped to bring this home as a souvenir, but he was unable to do so. From Trier he moved to Coblenz, and in all was with the Army of Occupation in Germany for six months.

He says he saw but three home boys from the time he left the U. S. until his return. Leslie Sansom of Mercury sailed across with him; he saw Chas. Fuller while on a visit to Paris, and while riding on a radio truck at Trier after the armistice, he saw Capt. Thos. P. Grant. He wasn't sure it was Grant, at first, since he knew him only as a lieutenant, but finally mustered up courage to ask him, and was delighted to find it was the Parson himself.

The cities of Germany are modern in comparison with those of France, where the tallest building he saw was but seven stories high. The French live for today only, and seem to think only of having a good time. Paris has some beautiful buildings, but is not a business city.

Going over, the ship on which Joe sailed, like all British ships carrying U. S. troops, coaled at Halifax. It had been out of Halifax harbor but three days, when the great explosion that wrecked a great part of the town, and sunk several ships in the harbor, occurred.

Joe thinks as soon as the government raises the restrictions on wireless, there will be opened a wonderful new field, and that the wireless will play an important part in the commercial world. At present the government still controls all the wireless plants and equipment turned over to it by Marconi.

Joe expects to remain in Brady for the present, but will again take up radio as his life's work.

GERMAN FLYERS LIKED TO STRAFE ALLIED LINES

The German aviators delighted in "strafing" the allied trenches, says Fred Spiller. They were very daring, and would take any sort of a chance, flying low over the lines and peppering them with their machine guns. One lieutenant reported that at one time a German aviator flew down and killed a machine gunner at the foot of a tree. He failed, however, to notice a machine gun hidden up in the branches of the tree, and as he flew past the man "up a tree" let fly at the aviator and downed him.

Fred returned Sunday from a ten months' overseas service. He arrived in the U. S. at Brooklyn, N. Y., on June 22nd, was demobilized at Camp Mills, N. Y., and received his discharge at Camp Bowie. Overseas he was a member of the Ammunition Train of the 7th Division. The artillery of the 7th failed to qualify, and so he did not get to go to the front. During the latter part of his stay, he was in a camouflage school, and he says this work was one of the most important and carefully studied out of all games of the war. There was not a day but what enemy aviators were flying over the lines and taking pictures. As they flew at a height of about 5,000 feet, the French 75's could not reach them, and it would take an airplane about an hour to fly from the ground up to the attack. Consequently they were comparatively safe in their maneuvers. The pictures taken from airplanes were surprisingly clear, showing every path and mark. In fact, if a man walked out of a beaten path and left his foot prints showing, the fact would be discovered in the pictures, and would result in the enemy throwing over a barrage of shell fire. For this reason, whenever any move was contemplated, the camouflage artists were "Johnny on the Spot," concealing the moves with coverings of green, and burlap made to resemble beaten paths.

Fred was stationed at Camp Beaucomp, near Vannes. Following the armistice he moved up into the Verdun sector, and later moved to within 15 miles of Metz, where the 7th relieved the 28th Division. He never got nearer than this to Germany. However he was enabled to visit Tours, Toul and other large cities of France, and also enjoyed a vacation trip to the Swiss border. He says the scenery was undeniably beautiful—snow 12 to 15 feet deep and the Alps so high that after half a day's

SCHOOL BOARD RAISING ASSESSMENTS—INCREASE IS FROM 60 TO 80 PER CENT

Notices are being received by Brady residents and property owners from W. L. Hughes, as secretary of the Board of Trustees of the Brady Independent school district, of the raising of appraisements on Brady property. Inasmuch as the board has found it necessary to raise the renditions from 60 per cent to 80 per cent valuation, every Brady tax payer is affected.

The increase was made necessary by reason of increased costs, and the need of raising more funds in order to keep the Brady schools up to their present standard.

SAN ANGELO TO FURNISH MEAT, BREAD AND COFFEE EX-CONFEDERATE REUNION

An erroneous impression has, in some way become prevalent that the citizens of San Angelo would not furnish the Confederate Veterans with meat during their Annual Reunion, August 6-7-8th, to be held there. A letter from their chairman to me, requests this mistake corrected. Meat, bread and coffee will be plenty.

There were many beautiful places in France as well, and some of the cities were very beautiful.

Going over, the trip was made on the George Washington under convoy, and with 7,000 soldiers on board, besides about 600 sailors. The voyage was made in nine days, and the big ship rode so smoothly that Fred did not even get homesick. On the return, however, the steamship Mallory, accommodating but 2200 soldiers, did not prove as gentle a steed, and Fred, in common with most of the returning soldiers, helped feed the fishes on numbers of occasions. One of the sports on the return was to shoot at fish which followed in the wake of the steamer. They would come up in pairs and leap out of the water like a couple of horses jumping a hurdle.

AUTREY BUM- GUARDNER SAW BRADY BOY FALL

When the roll is called after a desperate charge, and you hear name after name of your pals called without an answer, that's when you begin to feel blue and downcast, says Autrey Bumgardner. At the end of the fighting, but 64 men out of his company in his machine gun squad to respond to the roll call, and the boys surely felt bad. As an example of the good fortune that seemed to attend Brady and McCulloch county boys, Autrey was the only one out of 16 men in his machine gun squad to escape without a wound.

However, during the heavy fighting on the Meuse-Argonne and Champagne fronts, he was an eye-witness to the death of Harris B. Halford, one of Brady's boys who made the supreme sacrifice. The opposing enemies were here engaged in open warfare, the Hindenburg line having been broken and the enemy having retreated six miles before being overtaken. Autrey was manning one of three machine guns in an emplacement or nest, as a member of Co. C, 132nd Machine Gun Battery of the 36th Division. The machine gunners would open the fight with several rounds of fire, following which the infantry would begin their advance. After they had passed, the machine guns would follow and support their drive. As the infantry swept by Autrey thought he recognized Halford, and then, to his horror, he saw him struck full in the forehead by a piece of shrapnel. As the machine gunners advanced on the heels of the infantry, Autrey stopped long enough to make sure it was the Brady boy he had seen killed—the top of his head had been torn off. When Autrey returned to the spot the next day, the body had already been removed. The boys went over the top at 3:57 p. m., and Halford was killed at about 4:30 p. m.

Autrey says the machine gun practice was as pretty a drill as could be seen. There were eight men with each machine gun—the 1st carried the tripod, the second the gun, the third a box of water and ammunition, and the remaining 4 carried ammunition. Two others remained in the rear and cared for the mules.

Autrey landed in the States on June 4th, was mustered out at Camp Bowie on June 18th, and returned home June 19th. He says he wouldn't have minded if the war had gone on to a knockout, as they knew they had the Germans whipped, and the Germans knew it too. He says he talked with one German prisoner of more than ordinary intelligence, who said if the U. S. had been three weeks later getting into the war, the Germans would have had it won. However, they at once saw defeat staring them in the face when the fresh American troops faced them and began their fight with such grim determination and persistence as the Germans had never encountered.

FAIRVIEW-LIVE OAK NEWS.

Checking Thin Cotton Saves Labor and Cleans Out Grass.

Brady, Texas, July 7.
Editor Brady Standard:

Will try to give my bit of news; will help to fill the columns and hope it will interest a few.

First, let's all join Mr. Carl Schmidt and vote out the cocklebur and sunflowers as well; just such happens often.

Omer Pence came very near getting snake bitten. A snake struck at him and hit his pants, and being so near it had no force to throw its fangs. It was a 10-rattler and a diamond. It scared him just as badly at first as if it had bitten, but of course didn't last long.

Uncle Billie Benson has been on the sick list. Something uncommon for Uncle Billie and we surely hope he soon will be up and about again.

Those who attended Little Margie Crew's 4th birthday anniversary Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Kid Jeffers and children, W. R. (Grandpa) Pence, and Miss Gladys Taylor.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Pence visited at Fife Sunday and fate seems against Mrs. Pence. She came near walking in. We hope that the next time luck won't be so hard on Mrs. Pence.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Huffman visited at Pear Valley Sunday.

At last most of the oats are out and ready for the thrasher. Can't shock them as they fall out so badly. We are surely glad to state the fact that maize is not blasted as thought for a while.

Misses Willie Benson and Bernice Howard visited Miss Gladys Taylor Wednesday evening.

J. E. Campbell has an idea that is worth passing on. He is planting across his cotton, or checking. I guess it would be called. His first planted stand being thin and grassy, as everyone's is and can't obtain hands and by planting across he gets the grass and insures him, or gives him a double chance of a cotton crop.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Benson of Brady visited his parents Sunday. Also Mr. and Mrs. Ricks of Brady visited at the J. H. Benson home Sunday. They gathered plums and the ladies had the sport of bathing and getting sprinkled all in one.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Campbell visited her brother, Burley Lively at Lohn last week.

A crowd of young people visited Miss Willie Benson Saturday from Brady and had a delightful time, as Miss Benson is a royal entertainer.

Our road has been condemned and in bad weather we get no mail at all. So if our items are late, just say it's rained out here.

Mrs. Bert Pence and children and brother, Kenny Hanes and Miss Ruby Wilbanks visited at the Hanes home at Lohn Sunday. Grandpa Hanes is in rather feeble health.

The weeds are growing, so I must go.

A Tractor That Does More Than Plow

The Cleveland Tractor

Plowing is only the beginning of what a tractor should be able to do.

It should be able to do everything else in the preparation of the seed bed—the discing and harrowing, the planting. And it should do these things in a way that it will not injure the coming crop.

After the ground is broken, The Cleveland Tractor goes over it with the disc and the harrow, then goes over it with the seeder.

The Cleveland rides on top of the seed bed; it does not sink into it and it does not pack the soil.

The Cleveland goes over soft ground because it travels on its own endless track which it picks up and lays down as it goes along.

These tracks have about 600 square inches of traction surface, so the pressure on the ground is only about five pounds to the square inch—therefore there is not enough weight at any one point to inflict damage.

We repeat, The Cleveland Tractor rides on top of the seed bed. It does not sink into it; therefore it does not have to wade or wallow through it. And because it does not sink in, it does not have to push the dirt in front of it and pack it down in order to navigate.

And because it is not obliged to push the earth from in front of it and pack it down, the greatest possible amount of The Cleveland's power is available for accomplishing the work it has to do.

The 36th in the Great War--History of the Texas and Oklahoma National Guard

To Tom B. Brown, late of C Co., 141st Infantry, 36th Division, The Standard is indebted for the following brief history of the famous Thirty-Sixth Division. This memento of the Great War was published by "The Arrowhead," the divisional newspaper of the A. E. F., in France, and was issued in pamphlet form, the work including numerous pictures showing various scenes in the territory fought over by the 36th.

"To the Memory of our Fallen Comrades, Who Paid the Price for the Peace We now Enjoy, this Book is Reverently Dedicated."

Summary of Activities.

The 36th Division was organized during August and September of 1917, from National Guard organizations of Texas and Oklahoma. The old National Guard, recruited to war strength, was used as a nucleus for the Division, and 8,500 drafted men were assigned to the Division at various times.

The Division was trained at Camp Bowie, Fort Worth, Texas, until July 1918, when the overseas movement began. During this training period the Division was under the command of Major General E. St. John Greble, who was reduced because of physical disability to the rank of Brigadier General, and was succeeded upon the commencement of overseas movement by Major General William R. Smith. The 36th Division was composed of the following units: 71st Infantry Brigade under command of Brigadier General Henry Hitchings, formerly Adjutant General, State of Texas. 72nd Infantry Brigade under command of Brigadier General John A. Hulien, also an officer of the Texas National Guard. General Hutchins was succeeded by Brigadier General Pegram Whitworth, shortly after the Division arrived overseas. Brigadier General George Blakeley, of the Coast Artillery was in command of the 61st Field Artillery Brigade.

The overseas movement was begun July 5th, 1918, and completed about August 15th.

The 36th Division consists of the following organizations:

- 36th Division Headquarters.
- 36th Division Headquarters Troop.
- 36th Military Police Company.
- 111th Field Signal Battalion.
- 131st Machine Gun Battalion.
- 71st Infantry Brigade:—
- 141st Infantry.
- 142nd Infantry.
- 132nd Machine Gun Battalion.
- 71st Infantry Brigade:—
- 143rd Infantry.
- 144th Infantry.
- 133rd Machine Gun Battalion.
- 61st Field Artillery Brigade:—
- 131st Field Artillery — 3-inch Guns.
- 132nd Field Artillery — 3-inch Guns.
- 133rd Field Artillery — 6-inch Guns.
- 111th Trench Mortar Battery.
- 111th Ammunition Train.
- 111th Engineers and Engineer Train.
- 111th Sanitary Train.
- Ambulance Companies 141, 142, 143, 144.
- 111th Supply Train.

Major General William R. Smith assumed command of the Division at the Port of Embarkation. On arrival in France the Infantry sections of the Division were sent to the Bar-Sur-Aube (13th) Training Area, where they remained until September 26th. The Artillery Brigade trained at Coetquidan, but never rejoined the Division after their arrival in France, and, though the Division had its fling at the front, the 61st Artillery never saw action.

On September 11th, 1918, the 111th Engineers were detached from the Division and assigned to the American First Army as Corps Engineers of the 1st A. C., with which organization they remained until after the signing of the Armistice. They participated in the St. Mihiel drive and operated through the Meuse-Argonne Offensive.

The Division, minus the Engineers and Artillery Brigade, left the Bar-sur-Aube Area September 26th, 1918, moving to the Pocy Area as part of the Armies Reserve of the French Group of Armies of the center — General Meistre. On October 3rd, 1918, the Division was transferred to the Fourth French Army under General Gouraud. It was with this French Army that the Division fought in the Champagne, and thereby won its right to a place in the history of the Combat Units of the A. E. F.

Activities at the Front.

Oct. 4th.—The 71st Brigade moved to the Suippes-Somme-Suippes Area. Oct. 5th.—The 71st Brigade was transferred to the 21st Corps French Army, with the Second Division, American. During the night of the 6th the Brigade relieved the front line of the Second Division southeast of St. Etienne, the remainder of the Division beginning its movement to the Suippes-Somme-Suippes Area. Oct. 8th.—The 71st Brigade, with the 141st Inf. on the right and the 142nd on the left, launched its first attack between St. Etienne-a Arnes and Medeah Farm, capturing approximately 600 prisoners and breaking the backbone of the German resistance north of Blanc Mont.

Oct. 10th.—The 36th Division established its Post of Command in old German dug-outs in Somme-Py, completing the relief of the Second Division, except for the Artillery, Engineers, and certain supply elements. In all its operation the 36th Division was ably supported by the 12th, 15th and 17th Art. Regiments of the Second Division.

Oct. 10-11.—The Boche was given no pause for breath. The 72nd Brigade, passing through the 71st, took up the fight and advanced to the Aisne River, hard on the heels of the retreating Germans.

Oct. 12-27.—The Division took up a line of resistance of the hills just south of the Aisne River, and remained here until the 27th, making preparations for the crossing of the river and Ardennes Canal.

Oct. 27th.—The 71st Brigade, after shifting its front slightly carried out a brilliant local operation at Forest Farm, bringing in 194 prisoners of the Prussian Guard. Four officers were included in the haul. The American casualties totaled fifty; fourteen killed and thirty-six wounded.

Oct. 27-28.—After twenty-one days of fighting the Division was relieved by the 22nd French Division. Moving from the front the Division reached the Conde-en-Barrois Area on Nov. 3rd, as a part of the Armies Reserve of the First American Army.

Nov. 4-8.—During these days the Division remained in the Conde-en-Barrois area, taking replacements and re-equipping for the future fighting on another front. At the time of the signing of the Armistice it was the intention of the high Command to use the 36th on the left flank of the Second American Army in the drive toward Metz.

Nov. 18-22.—The Division at this time was on the march from the Conde-en-Barrois area to the 16th Training Area, Tonnerre, Yonne.

The 36th Division, U. Although being under fire for the first time, the young soldiers of Gen. Smith rivaling in push and tenacity, with the older and valiant regiments of Gen. Lejume, accomplished their mission fully. All can be proud of the work done. To all the General commanding the Army Corps, is happy to express his cordial appreciation, gratitude and best wishes for future successes. The past is an assurance of the future.

ROOMS FOR WORKING GIRLS IN S. A. HOME

Oklahoma City to Get $60,000 Building.

A women's and children's rest room will be one of the features of the new Salvation Army building which it is planned to erect in Oklahoma City with the proceeds of the Home Service Campaign.

C. G. Fencil, who is in charge of the plans for the drive, says, "The experience of local officers emphasized the necessity for the provision of women's and children's rest rooms and a day nursery as a very practical and much needed feature."

It is expected that mothers who are in the city on shopping trips will leave their small children under the care of the trained Salvation Army nurses.

It is also planned to provide some 18 or 20 moderate sized bed rooms to be rented to working girls at a minimum price. It is hoped that this feature will afford clean and wholesome living conditions on a cost basis at a reasonable rate compatible with the girls' wages.

Lieut. Col. George Wood, who is in charge of Salvation Army activities in the Southwestern Division, has announced that similar institutions for working girls will be established after the campaign for Home Service work in many of the larger cities of this division.

THE OUT-OF-LOVE CLUB

The New York Sun describes the work of this Salvation Army club in New York City:

"No, the Out of Love Club is not made up of jilted girls. Many of the members have been jilted—nay, cruelly used by conscienceless men in the past—but that isn't what the name means. It just means that what is done by it is done out of love and affection and good-will for all those who suffer and need a helping hand."

"It is a plain, but prettily furnished house at 318 East Fifteenth street, where the Out of Lovers gather for their meetings and teas and various good times, or are welcome to stay, when they need the shelter and strength of this home. There is the Salvation Army Hospital, too, next door, at 316—the Booth Memorial Hospital it is called, after the old General who founded and started the Salvation Army. And many a desolate girl, some country girl, perhaps, who had come to the city and gone upon the rocks, has found shelter and comfort and the restoration to health in one of the white beds of this hospital."

"Commander Evangeline Booth stated recently that 85 per cent of the unfortunate girls they had taken in for reclamation had turned out well. Hundreds of them have been placed in service, and it is the rule of the Salvation Army to follow up the girls who leave the home, to keep track of them for three years at least and see how they turn out. Sometimes the girls are only too glad to report frequently."

"There was the girl who set out to starve herself to death on a park bench. It was one cold autumn night when a man's voice called up the matron at this home and told her that he was much concerned over a girl who had sat for several days on a bench in the little park opposite his house. He watched her in the early morning and at night, he said, and he was convinced that she hadn't moved; he thought she seemed in great trouble. So the Adjutant of the home, which faces the same park, ran out and hunted up the bench where the girl sat."

"Come! Come with me and I will take you to a place where you will be more comfortable," she told the poor creature, who was a pitiable object indeed, her hair matted, her face thin and drawn, her eyes vacant and glazed, her clothes torn and wet. The girl shook her head.

"It's no use talking to me—I'm going to starve till I starve to death," she said in a dull monotone. For an hour the Salvation Army matron pleaded, argued, tried every wile to induce the half-crazed creature to go with her. Finally, not daring to leave her there, she told the girl that if she didn't come a policeman would be called. At this she gave in and went.

"It took weeks of nursing and care to win from the girl her story. It was one of misunderstanding and trouble at home and harsh treatment that had driven her out into the world, where lack of training made it impossible for her to get work, and she was soon without money. Now that girl is an assistant in the Out of Love Club, where she is busy and happy all day, and the matron says she has saved many another girl who was tottering on the brink of despair."

CIVILIAN CLOTHES FOR DISCHARGED SOLDIERS

The Salvation Army is spending about $200 per day in Chicago on civilian clothing for discharged soldiers. Commissioner Estill has placed Ensign J. A. Ryan in charge of this bureau. His office is always crowded. Every applicant is carefully interviewed and registered to prevent fraud and duplication. No clothing is given to men who have not yet secured jobs as they can seek employment in soldiers uniform as well as in civilian's clothing.

NEW SALVATION ARMY HOTEL.

A new Salvation Army Hostel has just been opened in San Antonio. The Hotel Williams with its furnishings has been leased for a Red Shield Club and Hostel. It is a fine three-story brick building, 45x90, with a forty-foot grass plot at the side. On the first floor will be a parlor, writing room, library, social hall, kitchen and lunch room, with two bed-rooms for officers in charge. The two upper floors are all bedrooms, which will accommodate at least forty men.

DOUGHNUTS AND COFFEE AT VERDUN

Salvation Army Lassies On The Job At End of Long March.

Harry A. Williams writing in the Los Angeles Times, tells a story of what the doughnut meant to the boys in France.

The boys were stopping along through a muggy night typical of northern France. A constant drizzle was turning into a rain, and the water was forming in pools on a landscape already so sodden that it could absorb no more. When there was not the slushy sound of the soldier's feet slipping in the mud, there would be the splash of their hoofs in these puddles. Our brogans were full, and all of us could feel the "squash" of the water up between our toes with the pressure of each step. Altogether it was a miserable night—one of those unexpected moves—and our packs grew heavier each step with water and weariness.

The column had lost its way in the interminable darkness of this forest, and was forced to march sixteen kilometers instead of the scheduled ten. And every man in that column knew that at the end of that march comfort and cover did not await us, for in that section there were no barracks. In their utter fatigue they would throw themselves down in the mud at the end of the march, some of them not even waiting to unroll their blankets. It was not altogether a rosy prospect. Visions of food or something hot to drink before morning they could not conjure up in their wildest forays of imagination.

About midnight a little flivver creaked by the column. It was loaded to the mudguards with people and a lot of paraphernalia, but details could not be visualized in the dense darkness. The fellows were too tired to even chirp their customary greeting to "Henry." The Ford campette painfully picked its way ahead through the night, and nobody gave it another thought.

But when they finally slipped and half staggered up the incline where they were to sleep under the scraggly trees, because the incline offered a bit of drainage, a delicious aroma on the heavy air made them sniff. Were they dreaming on their feet, or was it the partial delirium that sometimes comes mercifully to over-wrought men. Unmistakably that was the combined aroma of boiling coffee and frying doughnuts. Verily, it was more than a fantasy.

Into the hands of the men at the head of the column was slipped a warm doughnut and a steaming cup of coffee. And as the line passed each soldier was served. After all, it was more like a fairy tale than reality—doughnuts and coffee in this black wilderness back of Verdun.

The Salvation Army was on the job. It was their flivver which had hounded past us in the dark. They had a way of never announcing what they were going to do.

DOUGHNUTS AND DANGER

(Editorial in Dallas (Tex.) News.)

The Salvation Army specialized in coffee and doughnuts—and danger. The devoted women of the Salvation Army carried their diminutive cooking apparatus to the front-line trenches when they were permitted. They braved death and wounds, and they fried doughnuts, wherever there were hungry doughboys, within the limits of the Salvationists' means. This service was performed freely; it was performed faithfully. The lassies knew how to make coffee and doughnuts, and knowing how, they made them. That is the substance of the whole thing—they knew how to do something useful, and did it. They didn't preach about it, or gesticulate, or write pieces to the papers, or sob in public, or moralize over the wickedness of war, or argue Scripture, or chant beatitudes—they simply moved their funny little stores up to where the boys were and worked all day or all night at making coffee and doughnuts. Also they smiled while they worked, but (bless their deep maternal common sense) they didn't try to pretend like it was all a joke or a picnic. Again, let us repeat, the women of the Salvation Army knew how to do something and did it. How greatly simplified would all our problems be if we would but agree, each with himself, to learn to do something that needs to be done, and then do it! The world—particularly America—is jam full of "smart alecks" who know all about everything or something about nothing, yet who are unable or unwilling to make a decent living in practical employment. There are sermons in doughnuts and entire theologies in a cup of good coffee.

A Simple Home Wedding as Written by a Circus Publicity Man

Last night, at the glittering and gorgeous home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Hicks, 999 Ninth Place Miss Mary Gladys Hicks and Mr. Adelbert Smithers, were united in the sensational, awe-inspiring bonds of matrimony. The wedding service was pronounced in a peerless and peppy manner by the Spiritually Rich and Right Reverend Doctor Morton S. Duds, rector of the exceptionally expensive and exceedingly exclusive Saint Croesus-in-the-Fields.

The bride entered upon the massive, muscular and marvelously moulded arm of her father, passing through and avenue of the largest, longest an latudines tropic palms in captivity, while the air about was heavy with the shimmering, seething scent of precious and overpowering petals of spring, ranged in racy and rollicking array about the handsome and harmonious Hicks home. An orchestra of four—count them!—clever, comic and delightfully daring musicians supplied the mushy and melodious music to which the bridal party modestly and morally marched. The grand, gigantic and brobdignagian groom, accompanied by his bald, brave and best man, Mr. W. Percy Smithers, awaited them at the improvised, but otherwise faultless, altar.

See the solemnly spectacular meeting of the Bride and Groom! See the merry and meritorious Maid of Honor! See the four—count them!—beauteous, beaming and brilliant Bridesmaids? See the innocent, infantile, infinitesimal Flower Girl, Miss Teenie Hicks, in her fearless, fascinating, but foolish act of scattering fair, freakish and fragrant flowers in the path of her sister, the Bride! See them A L L! They are ALL INCLUDED, all under one roof! One invitation, remember, admits to them all, including the concert after the wedding.

The Bride was attired in a silvery and silken something of simplicity surmounted by a vaporous veil, fastened to her polished and perfumed hair with the bursting, emblazoning blossoms of the orange. Elsewhere upon her proud but in no sense ponderous person was a slick, showy and scintillating diamond and bedazzling sunburst, the graceful gift of the generous and godlike groom. And remember — EVERYTHING ABSOLUTELY NEW!

After the affecting and effective ceremony, a real, roaring reception was held, fun furiously fast taking the place of rigid and rigorous restraint, in the precious and palatial Hicks parlors. See the sinuous smiles tripping through the torrents of tears! Witness the cute, cunning and comedy kisses! Hear the conglomerate and contradictory congratulations! Hear the silly and simian simpers! See the flippant and frumpish friends of the family! Listen to the glorious gurgle of the able and absolutely alcoholic punch! And REMEMBER—ONE INVITATION ADMITS TO ALL!

The bride was the radiant, enraptured recipient of a superbly great and indescribably glorious, glittering and gorgeous galaxy of gifts, the presents being under the shrewd, sharp and singularly all-seeing eye of a pompous and private detective. A supper, the most stupendous, sensational and superlatively complete ever served in any land, was spread in the draped and dainty dining room by a cool, keen and calculating caterer.

THE GRAND EXIT! At eleven o'clock amid scenes of astounding and unparalleled impertinence, and a hellish, inhuman hail of ancient and antiquated shoes, mixed and mingled with ribald rice, the young couple left on a desperately dangerous and delightfully demonstrative bridal tour. They will be gone three—count them!—weeks.—Cartoons Magazine.

LOCAL BRIEFS

Sidney Meers writes from Abilene that he can't enjoy going to business college unless he has The Standard for a guide and comforter. Accordingly The Standard goes to his address.

T. L. Allen reports the other night someone forgot their hat in his peach orchard on the London road, one mile from town. The owner may recover the hat by making himself known and paying for this notice.

Mrs. M. A. Bumgardner and son, Will, left Wednesday for Marfa, where they will join Mrs. Bumgardner's daughter, Mrs. Jess Lindsay, in making their home. Mrs. Lindsay has recently purchased a drug store at Marfa, and Will will help her run the store.

Mrs. G. A. Robertson and mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Holmes, arrived the past week from Dallas to join Mr. Robertson, the genial local manager for Waples-Platter Grocer Co., in making their home here. Mr. Robertson and family have occupied the R. A. King residence.

E. B. Scarborough, who last year bought the Tom Jordan place a mile from town on the Coleman road, reports his oats threshing out in a highly satisfactory manner. Some have threshed as high as 30 bushels to the acre, and the average will run about 22 1-2 bushels to the acre.

F. Y. Jackson is packing his household effects for removal to Houston, where the family are now making their home, and where Firman is in the employ of the Houston Cotton Oil Co. Mrs. Jackson and little son will remain here for some weeks yet, or until the lad recovers from a slight indisposition.

J. P. Horne was in from the Lohn community Wednesday and reported his section as promising to make a fine weed crop, unless the weather remained pretty long enough for them to get in some mighty heavy licks. Nevertheless he was wearing a mighty cheerful smile, and we rather think the outlook is far from gloomy to him.

A party of Temple folks, including Supt. K. S. Hull, of the Santa Fe, and wife, Dr. Longmire and Dr. O. F. Gøber, wife and son, accompanied by Dr. J. M. Campbell, wife and baby of Lampasas, passed through Brady Monday enroute to Peg Leg on a fishing trip. The party was joined here by Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Anderson, daughter, Carmen, and Miss Mary Freeman of Brownwood. They report an abundance of fish caught, and a good time had.

A party composed of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Spiller and W. W. Spiller and children, enjoyed a camp on the North Llano near Junction on July 3rd to 5th, where they enjoyed fish and barbecued goat, and had a good time in general. The goat was from Will Spiller's goat ranch at this place. Bob Spiller and family of Menard joined the party for the camp. They report the Junction country in a most prosperous condition, and say the town is improving right along.

D. E. Weaver was here yesterday from Wichita Falls on a brief business trip. D. E. says they are keeping him so busy superintending operations for the Record Oil & Refining Co. in the Burk Burnett field that it will be this fall or winter before he will get back to Brady and be enabled to resume operations in the Lohn field. He says there are something like 600 cases of small pox and typhoid fever at Burk Burnett, and even the undertakers share in the rush of business.

Popular Dry Goods Co. is remodeling and rearranging the interior of their store this week to provide for the convenience and accommodation of their customers. Mrs. Simpson's millinery department will occupy the rear of the store downstairs, while the office and men's department is being moved to the deck upstairs. This is but the beginning of a series of improvements to be inaugurated at once, and which will include new show-windows, repapering of the interior and otherwise changing and adding to the attractiveness of the store. S. J. Strieler says they are getting ready for a busy and prosperous fall and winter season.

F. M. Butler was here from Lohn Wednesday. F. M. says he was damaged fully $250 by the big water spout which fell out his way a few weeks back. He had as fine a garden as he ever saw, and now the cabbage and other vegetables are splitting open and are rotten to the core. The flood also washed away considerable oats, cotton and maize seed, and the flood of waters swept through his house almost up to the windows. Mr. Horne lives on a little branch, that is usually dry. However the growth of sunflowers and cockleburs served to bank the water up and force it thru his place. He was at Lohn when the waterspout gathered, and phoned his folks to get out of the house for safety. John Hester also phoned Mr. Butler's family that the water was nearly up to the floor of his porch, and that a big head of water was coming down their way. Mrs. Butler and children accordingly left the house, wading through the rising waters, and as they made their way up the road, the flood water followed almost in their tracks. Mr. Butler says the loss his folks were most concerned over was the damage to a large number of fine quilts, which they had stored in a quilt chest and which were soaked through and through by the water.

F. R. Peres is a Mexican farmer on the A. J. Johnson place, five miles northeast of Brady on the Brownwood road. Frank has farmed this place for six years now, and is known and appreciated for his honesty and industry. His crops this year promise to be the best he has ever raised, and, in fact, as good as the best in the county. He has a splendid garden in which he is raising every variety of vegetables; he also has an orchard in which the peach trees are loaded with fruit to the breaking point. He has corn that has stalks grown to a height of ten to twelve feet, and which are heavily loaded; his cane likewise ranges up as high as twelve feet. Also he has maize—in fact, he has a diversified crop. His pride, though, is his cotton of which he has 20 acres in one patch and 60 acres in another. This cotton is nearly knee high and is heavily laden with blossoms, squares and embryo bolls. In another few weeks he expects to see this cotton begin to pop open. And, by the way, his cotton is clean and well cared for. Strange as it may seem, all the farmers in that community started to plant their cotton April 4th, yet Frank's is the only one that escaped destruction by the boll worms. A neighbor's crop, with just a fence dividing, was destroyed, but Frank's was not touched; he can give no reason why. This is written just to show what an industrious citizen, even though he be foreign-born, can accomplish in this country.

CORROBORATION Of Interest to Brady Readers.

For many months Brady citizens have seen in these columns enthusiastic praise of Doan's Kidney Pills by Brady residents. Would these prominent people recommend a remedy that had not proven reliable? Would they confirm their statements after years had elapsed if personal experience had not shown the remedy to be worthy of endorsement? The following statement should carry conviction to the mind of every Brady reader.

B. Strickland, Brady, gave the following statement April 30, 1915: "About the only indication of kidney complaint I endured was getting down with my back. This came on every so often and I suffered badly with it. I have found Doan's Kidney Pills to relieve me of this trouble. I always keep them on hand and use them if needed."

On May 15, 1919, Mr. Strickland said: "The recommendation I gave in 1915 holds good for I think Doan's Kidney Pills are just the thing for kidney trouble. Occasionally I take a few doses with good results." Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Strickland had. Jibson Glinders.
 Jibson Glinders was a Bolshevik. He believed in direct action for everything. So when he resolved to learn to swim, he reasoned to himself, "The only way to do anything is to make up your mind how to do it and go ahead without wasting time allowing slow-witted conservatives to try to show you the way. Practice means nothing where there is intelligence."
 And he walked firmly out on the dock and balanced himself on the end of the spring board.

"Now, all I have to do," he thought, "is to dive at an angle of approximately 45 degrees and twist sharply upward as I enter the water, thus bringing me to the surface. Then, breathing slowly and deeply, I must move my hands beneath the water in a rotary sort of motion, while with my legs execute a scissors stroke which will serve to force me rapidly ahead."
 With that he jumped.
 He was pulled out as he was going down for the sixteenth and last time.
 "A fig for direct action!" he thought as he recovered consciousness. And he handed in his Bolshevik badge and became a good Quaker.

TELLS HOW TO CARE FOR FRUIT TREES BY SPRAYING AND TREATING ROOTS

Dallas, Texas, June 28.—The trying period of ripening the fruit crop is on now in earnest for your fruit trees, and unless carefully watched the mortality in fruit trees is going to be great in this vicinity.

If your peach or plum trees are heavily loaded with fruit and show a yellowing or shriveling foliage, it would be well for you to sacrifice at least one-half of the fruit by picking at once and spraying with summer spray or lime or sulphur. Instructions for preparing will be found on container. Then dig carefully around the trunk until you get to where the heart roots diverge from the tap root; if you find a watery, pithy growth, or, on making an incision and removing some of the bark from the roots, discover a sulphur yellow color, cut away until you get to healthy tissue, removing all shavings from the soil. Cauterize the exposed portions by painting the wood with a solution made by dissolving a seven-grain tablet of corrosive sublimate in a pint of water; when this is thoroughly dry, paint the wounds with pruning compound.

In exposing the roots you may expose ulcerations of a limpid, waxy or mucous nature. Should this condition appear, cut away all bark until you get past the exudation, then scrape the wood until a clear surface is exposed, after which cauterize and paint as above. Should so much cambium or bark be removed by this effort as to impede the flow of sap, it would be well to bridge-graft across the breach to furnish a sufficient flow of sap to maintain circulation.

After the dressings are completed replace the soil, being careful to re-all shavings and wax; then work the soil thoroughly, pulverizing same out to a point beneath outer spread of foliage. Lime the soil by spreading a thin coating of snowdrift lime, just sufficient to whiten the surface and no more.

The cedars and conifers generally are due for a ravaging by bag worms, much worse than last year's invasion. Examine the tips at lower points and you will probably discover small ones in quantity, about the size of a hat-pin head or smaller. Pick them off and destroy by burning, after which spray thoroughly with insecto or lead arsenate.

RULES AND DIRECTIONS FOR THE CARE AND DISTRIBUTION OF FREE TEXTBOOKS

The subject of free text books is, without doubt, of interest to many of our readers, and the following letter giving complete information upon the subject, has been furnished by County Superintendent W. M. Deans. The rules and directions should be carefully noted.

1. District boards of trustees may designate a superintendent, principal, teacher or other employe as the proper person to enter into bond in the sum of fifty per cent in excess of the value of the books consigned to them by the State. The bond may be an individual bond, and need not be executed by a surety company.
2. The distribution of text books to the pupils may not be placed in the hands of any merchant or mercantile establishment dealing in any kind of school supplies. Section 13 of the law expressly forbids this.
3. The distribution of books must be made by trustees, superintendent, principals, teachers, or such employes of the board of trustees as they may designate to do this work.
4. School trustees must provide some secure place of storage for books for such time as they are not consigned to pupils. In small schools, locked cases of either wood or steel should be provided. In towns or cities secure storage rooms should be provided. Books stored in large quantities must be insured until distributed to pupils. Trustees desiring to purchase steel cases will find it advantageous to apply to the Department of Education for a list of those that have been approved.
5. Printed book labels will be furnished by the Department of Education. These labels must be pasted on both inside covers of each book. These labels furnish blanks for the number of the book and for the name of the child to whom the book is consigned each year. Teachers should see that these blanks are properly filled.
6. Teachers must require pupils to cover all books consigned to them. Covers of heavy paper are preferable to those of cloth. Patent book covers may be used if desired, or paper book covers supplied by merchants as advertisements. The teacher must require the pupil to remove the book covers when the books are returned.
7. All books must be fumigated before reissue. Directions for fumigation should be obtained from county or city health officers. The county superintendent should apply to the city health officer for instructions and should give to trustees or rural schools directions for the proper fumigation of books.

8. Duplicate book cards for all pupils will be supplied by the State Department of Education. Teachers must enter on these cards the name of the child, the name and residence of his parent or guardian and fill out the proper blanks designating the school attended. On these cards the number of each book issued to the pupil must be entered opposite the name of the book. When a book is returned, its number must be cancelled on the card by drawing a line through the number. When all books are returned, both cards are received by the teacher, and one card given to the pupil. The duplicate card must be filed with the principal, superintendent, or school trustee. The card receipt of the pupil must also be signed as approved by the principal or superintendent, except in the case of the one-teacher school. Book cards given as receipts to pupils in rural schools must also show the name and address of the trustee to whom the books are consigned, or the name of some responsible person, to whom application can be made for a duplicate card, in case of loss. In rural schools, the said trustee should assume charge of the duplicate book cards while the school is closed, these to be turned over to the teacher on resumption of the work. In case of the loss of a book-card, trustee, school-officer, or teacher, should give to the child a copy of the one in the possession of the school, unless there is cause to suppose that fraud is intended. After the session of 1919-1920, pupils who have previously been enrolled in the public schools of the State of Texas must not be granted free text books save on the presentation of a receipted book card.
9. No trustee, superintendent, principal, or teacher may require pupils to make a money deposit to secure the return of books. A pupil or its parent or guardian must pay for books lost or for books which are wilfully damaged or injured and, failing to do so, shall not be entitled to the benefits of free textbooks. Reasonable wear is to be expected and should not be penalized.
10. Teachers should post in each class room a copy of the rules for pupils as to the care of books. The teacher should read these rules to the pupils at least once each month, and should inspect all the books of all pupils each month. Pupils in the elementary grades should be required to memorize the "Good Citizenship Book Code" as given in the Rules for Pupils.

11. Pupils from the third grade up must be permitted to take books out of school for home study, if they so desire. Each district board of trustees should make a ruling as to whether pupils of the first and second grades shall be permitted to take their books home. By permission of the trustees, books may be issued to pupils for vacation study, a record of these books being kept on book cards, as during the school session. Such pupils must return their book-card receipt while holding books in their possession.

12. The five percent of the value of the books to be allowed to each school is made to aid in meeting the cost of distribution and care of books. This must include charges of transportation from the station, unpacking, labelling, numbering, storing, insurance for such time as books are stored, distribution to pupils, fumigation, etc. It was not the intention of the legislature that this should merely be added to one person's salary, but that it should serve as a fund to provide partially for extra assistance and for the extra expenses suggested above. It was not expected that this fund would meet the entire expense, but that each school would bear some part of the work or expense in return for the advantage to the children of free books provided by the state. The allowance for care of the books, and the money to pay pupils for old books, will not be available until taxes are collected. Schools must use their local funds temporarily and reimburse these funds when the money is available. Schools which have no local funds can only enter the money for old books to the child's credit, and make the payment on receipt of the allowance.

Churning. The triplane, making a twelve-hour journey from London to Hongkong, had got into difficulties among the stars. Something was wrong with the engine, for the customary speed of the triplane had considerably slackened.

"Good heavens!" cried the skipper, "we shall be half a second late! What makes her go so slow?"

"Why sir," said the engineer, "we're passing through the Milky Way, and the propeller's full of butter."

WHITE STAR OIL CO. OF TEXAS TO DRILL ON SUR. 142

Good weather and good news from the McCulloch county oil fields appear synonymous. The present spell of pretty weather is responsible for renewed activity throughout the county. The roads have dried so as to enable fuel and casing to be hauled, and this has permitted the resumption of operations.

Albert Henry, representing the White Star Oil Co. of Texas, was here this week from Charleston, West Va. and has contracted the drilling of a shallow test on the Northeast corner of D. C. Randal Survey No. 142. Mr. Henry yesterday carried Surveyor W. P. Doty out to make the location and announces he will begin operations at once.

The Prairie Oil & Gas Co. Wednesday spudded in on their new shallow well, west of the deep test, and will try out the 380 ft. sand for oil. The Prairie's deep test on Survey 89 is drilling at 2500 ft.

Of interest to all is the announcement that the Texas Oil & Refining Co. on J. H. Gibson Survey No. 1 has recovered their lost string of tools after a number of weeks of effort, and are again drilling at about 500 ft. with an 18-inch hole.

The Douglas Oil Co. resumed drilling on Survey 1134 Tuesday and is making good progress at above 2,000 feet.

A. B. Pickens, local superintendent for the Annie Laurie Oil Co. on Survey 141 had a good showing of oil the first of the week at 600 feet. After drilling through the sand, the drill again entered blue shale. Mr. Pickens left last night for Amarillo for a conference with the stockholders of the company, and in view of the showing had in the well, stated he was confident drilling would be carried to at least 1,000 ft. depth to assure a thorough test.

J. E. Morgan is drilling steadily on State School Survey No. 2, two miles north of Brady, and is making satisfactory progress.

Casing is being hauled to C. S. Thomas Salt Gap well on Survey 1351, and operations will be resumed at once. The Thomas well at Whitesland has recovered a lost stem and is drilling again.

Moore Bros. on Survey 495 are underreaming at 250 ft. to set 8 1-4 inch casing.

The Cooper-Shields well on Survey 1066 is again drilling.

A. W. Cooper and C. A. Divine were among the visitors here from Fort Worth Tuesday, having come down to look after their extensive holdings in the county.

Summer Complaint in Children.

There is not anything like so many deaths from this disease now as before Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy came into such general use. When this remedy is given with castor oil as directed and proper care is taken as to diet, it is safe to say that fully ninety-nine out of every hundred cases recover. Mr. W. G. Campbell of Butler, Tenn., says, "I have used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy for summer complaint in children. It is far ahead of anything I have ever used for this purpose."

Checking A Poet.

The young man rolled his eyes as he entered the editorial sanctum. "Here is a poem which you may publish in your paper. I dashed it off in an idle moment and you will perhaps find it a little rough. You can make any corrections you please." "Thank you," said the editor. "I will give you a check for it at once." "You are very kind. I shall be delighted." The editor handed him a check. "Many thanks!" said the poet. "I will bring you some more poems." He had reached the door, when suddenly he turned. "Excuse me, but you've forgotten to fill up this check." "Oh, that's all right," said the editor. "I have given you a check in its rough state, as it were. You can make any correction you please."—Pittsburgh Telegraph.

In every home where there is a baby there should also be a bottle of McGEHE'S BABY ELIXIR. It may be needed at any time to correct sour stomach, wind colic, diarrhoea or summer complaint. It is a wholesome remedy, contains no opium, morphine or injurious drug of any kind. Sold by Central Drug Store and Trigg Drug Store.

The Cause of Her Death.
Here lies a poor woman who was always busy, She lived under pressure that rendered her dizzy. She belonged to ten clubs and read Browning at sight, Showed at luncheons and teas, and would vote if she might. She served on the school board with courage and zeal; She golfed and she kodaked and rode on a wheel. She read Tolstoi and Ibsen, knew microbes by name, Approved of Delsarte, was a "daughter" and "dame;" Her children went in for the top education; Her husband went seaward for nervous prostration. One day on her tablets she fould an hour fire— The shock was too great, and she died instantly!—Philadelphia Record.

Loss of Appetite.
As a general rule there is nothing serious about a loss of appetite, and if you skip a meal or only eat two meals a day for a few days you will soon have a relish for your meals when meal time comes. Bear in mind that at least five hours should always elapse between meals so as to give the stomach a period of rest before a second meal is taken. Then if you eat no more than you crave and take a reasonable amount of outdoor exercise every day you will not need to worry about your appetite. When the loss of appetite is caused by constipation as is often the case, that should be corrected at once. A dose of Chamberlain's Tablets will do it.

SATISFY!

—what the deuce does that mean?

It means that NEW thing in a cigarette, that does for your smoke-hunger exactly what a drink of cold water does for your thirst!

To satisfy, a cigarette must do more than please the taste—it must "touch the smoke-spot."

That's what Chesterfields do. They let you know you are smoking—they SATISFY.

And here's why—Chesterfields have body. The finer, silkier leaves of TURKISH have been properly blended with several varieties of the best DOMESTIC tobaccos, famous for their full-bodied flavor.

SATISFY is something that no cigarette, except Chesterfields, can give you—regardless of price. Because no cigarette maker can copy the Chesterfield blend.

Say "Chesterfield" to your dealer.
