PERSONNEL OF FRISCO FORCE IS GIVEN OUT

According to information had, the Frisco local force, with the exception of the agent, will be reconstituted June 1st, much the same as it was before the Frisco and Santa Fe offices were consolidated as a war-time measure. In addition to C. Crawford of Dublin, who has been named agent, the force will consist of Ovis Andrews, cashier; George Weise, operator; Clint Zimmerman, car clerk; Jim Anderson, warehouseman. The last four resume their former positions.

Andrews has been stationed at Menard as cashier, since his transfer from Brady, while Weise saw naval service during the war. Zimmerman and Anderson have been attached to the Santa Fe local force during the past three years.

McCULLOCH COUNTY FARMER IN BROWNWOOD TO SEE THE CLOSING COLLEGE EXERCISES

R. L. Burns, county commissioner of precinct No. 2, in McCulloch county, is here today attending the closing exercises of Howard Payne college. Mr. Burns is a farmer and lives about ten miles south of Brady. He had a good report concerning general industrial conditions in that part of the country and said farmers were feeling very good over the fact that enough rain had fallen to insure a very good crop of various kinds.

Mr. Burns witnessed the graduating exercises of the academic class at Howard Payne this morning, among the number of graduates being his son, Oliver Burns.

Work commenced today on the Mason-Brady road and a large force of men will be kept busy until the road is made one of the best in the southwest, according to Mr. Burns. — Brownwood Bulletin.

PROPERTY TAXPAYERS ONLY MAY VOTE IN SATURDAY SCHOOL ELECTION

L. Ballou, who has been named as judge in charge of the school election to be held Saturday in Brady Independent school district, requests The Standard to state that the law permits none but qualified property tax payers to vote in the election, the purpose of which is to decide upon the raising of the school tax limit from 50c to $1.00. As this tax is paid by property owners, quite naturally only those who pay property tax may have a deciding voice in the matter.

COM. PRE. NO. 3 GETS CATERPILLAR TRACTOR

J. F. Priest, county commissioner, has just received from the U. S. government a Holt caterpillar tractor, the tractor being furnished free by the government, and the only cost attached being the freight expenses. The tractor will be set up within the next few days, and given a try-out on the roads near Brady before being moved out to Precinct No. 3 by Mr. Priest.

Application for the tractor was at once filed by Mr. Priest about two months ago, following receipt of notice that the same was available without cost. But one tractor has been allotted to any county in the state of Texas.

a large eastern mill bought 1,100,000 pounds in one deal. The price ranged from 20 to 27 cents. C. J. Fawcett, director of the Farm Bureau wool pool, reports that 1,500,000 pounds were sold during the first week in May. "This marked high-tide for a single week's business," says Mr. Fawcett, "and augurs well for the success of the wool pool during the on-coming season. DRILLING AGAIN IN PROGRESS AT THE CITY WATER WELL AFTER SERIES DELAYS

Work on the city water well, near the waterworks plant, was resumed Tuesday night, following a several days' shut-down, while Messrs. Geo. Bodner and Gene Conaway of the contracting firm of Bodner and Conaway were at Ranger having a stem welded. On the trip, they were accompanied by H. H. Sessions.

The break in the stem was the third accident of the kind had since operations at the well were begun, and previous efforts to have the stem properly welded having been unsuccessful, it was decided to carry the same to Ranger, where special equipment for this work is had. In order to forestall any future such delays, the contractors brought back with them both the repaired stem and a new one.

Drilling at the well is progressing at over 500 ft. and is still in the same hard lime formation.

DAY-DALEY COMPANY IS DRILLING AT 1520 FT. WITH TEN-INCH HOLE

The Day-Daley Petroleum association well on the Hall-Dutton tract has been drilling without incident the past couple weeks and is now reported at 1520 ft. with a ten-inch hole. Thad O. Day has just returned from Eldorado, Ark., where he visited the new oil field recently discovered there. He reports the field not looking as promising as was expected at first, there being too much water.

CHARGE AGAINST DAVE TAYLOR DISMISSED TUESDAY

The charge against Dave Taylor of Voca, in connection with the capture of an illicit still on the Marion Miller place by local officers last Friday, was dropped Tuesday following an examining trial before Justice N. G. Lyle. No witnesses could be produced to testify that Taylor was in any manner connected with the still or its operation.

The cases against Sam and Will Caldwell, who are alleged to have been operating the still, have been turned over to the federal authorities by Sheriff Wall, and these cases will be taken up in the federal court, according to advice received from R. D. Shumate, federal officer, by Mr. Wall.

WITH THE CHURCHES

Catholic Church. Mass will be said on the third Sunday of each month at 10:00 a. m. by the Rev. Francis Hudon.

Primitive Baptist Services. The Rev. J. A. Goodwin, Primitive Baptist minister, will hold services at the Brady Baptist church at 11:00 o'clock Sunday morning. Lunch will be served at the church. Services will again be held at 3:00 o'clock in the evening.

At Baptist Church. On account of the pastor being at Mason next Sunday to deliver the Commencement address, no preaching services will be had, but the church house will be given over to the Primitive Baptist folks. On the Sunday following full announcement will be made concerning our protracted meeting. J. H. TAYLOR, Pastor.

FIFTY-BARREL WELL NEAR WINCHELL WITH VERY FINE GRADE OIL

Developments in Brown county oil territory about which little has been said recently are again attracting attention to the Winchell section. The J. G. Burton well four miles east of Winchell, at 1125 feet, struck producing formation and after a shot yielded 25 barrels in twelve hours. The well was allowed to rest for twelve hours, and another 25 barrels was pumped in the next twelve hours. Estimates of its initial production range around 50 barrels daily.

In drilling this well three distinct oil producing horizons were found. The product of the well is of very high gravity, apparently almost pure kerosene and gasoline and under normal conditions would be worth around $10 per barrel. The owner of the well is arranging to run a pipe line to Winchell, so that the product can be loaded for market.

The rig, after completing this well, has been moved across the lane to the W. D. Pierce farm, where another well will be started at once. The driller, Mr. Peterson, states that with his knowledge of the different strata, gained through the drilling of the Burton well, he expects to drill the Pierce well within thirty days or less.

Mr. Gibson is drilling a well half a mile east of Winchell and it is said that the prospects for production there are encouraging.—Brownwood Bulletin.

BRADY WINS FROM PEAR VALLEY SATURDAY—LOSES TO MERCURY WEDNESDAY

Brady won her game from Pear Valley last Saturday, by the interesting score of 1 to 0, Brady's lone tally being made in the final half of the ninth inning. The Pear Valley team came back, following their inglorious defeat of a week or two ago, with surprising strength and both teams played classy ball, each side remaining scoreless up to the time Brady's winning run was made. Taylor pitched a splendid game, and is rapidly developing into one of the best amateur pitchers in this section of the state. Vaughn, caught the first two innings, when he was obliged to retire from the game on account of a sprained ankle, and was replaced by Lawrence Fuller.

Wednesday's Game.

Mercury got sweet revenge for the 11 to 1 score Brady handed them recently. Wednesday the Mercury boys took Brady down to the tune of 7 to 3. Mercury had her favorite battery—Beasley and Cox—tuned up and working in fine shape. Brady worked under the disadvantage of a new line-up, Vaughn being out of the game, and Fuller being placed behind the bat, while Connolly was played at short and Melton at second. Despite this fact, Brady held the advantage over their opponents up until the seventh inning. Brady scored one in each the 1st, 2nd and 3rd innings, while Mercury scored two in the third; thus the score stood 3 to 2 in Brady's favor until the 7th. Then Mercury scored again, tying, and in the 8th scored one more. In the 9th, Brady proceeded to hand the game to Mercury on a silver platter in a series of wild throws, and abortive attempts at making double plays. Throughout the game, Taylor pitched fine ball, and was in every way deserving of better luck.

The deciding game between Mercury and Brady will be played on the Mercury lot June 11th.

For this afternoon, a game has been matched with Eden, and one of the best exhibitions of the season is promised. Jimmy Daniels, Eden's crack infielder, and home-run slugger, will be seen in his last game here before leaving Eden to join the Boston Braves at St. Louis on June 15th. Through the interest of J. A. Maxwell, Manager Stallings of the Braves has signed up Daniels for a try-out—and Daniels is so confident of his ability to make good that he says he would be willing to pay all his expenses if he fails.

You expose them, and let me finish them. John McDowell.

CONTRACTORS BEGIN MASON ROAD IMPROVEMENTS

Oglesby & Mitchell, road contracting firm of Cleburne, Texas, to whom contract was recently let by the McCulloch county commissioners court for the Mason road improvement work, began operations here Tuesday, the work being in charge of R. N. Mitchell, junior member of the firm. According to the contract, the work of improvement is to begin at the point where work was stopped last fall, and continue to the San Saba river, a distance of one and one-half miles. Upon the specifications submitted, the contractors bid $9,982.65, which bid was accepted by the commissioners court on April 27th. Approval of the contract was had last week from the State Highway department.

According to Mr. Mitchell, the firm expects to use local teams and local labor in all the work. They will also use some 15 or 20 trucks, preferably Ford trucks, in the work. The work of road-building will require about 90 days to complete.

SCHOOL BOARD NAMES SIXTEEN 1921-22 FACULTY

Sixteen members of the 1921-22 members of the Brady school faculty have been named by the local school board, out of a total of twenty to be selected. The list is headed by J. B. Smith, who will head the schools as superintendent, and whose election was announced some weeks ago. Mrs. W. B. Anderson has been again named as principal of the high school, and Miss Cunningham, principal of the Central schools. Boyd Commander has been named as teacher of sixth grade in Central school and will also direct the athletics of that school.

Other teachers who have been re-elected or new teachers who will join the faculty the coming year are: Mrs. Mary H. Pence; Misses Rawlins, Granger, Kirkman, Puckett, Stobaugh, Heinatz, Davenport, Fahrenthold, Smith, Davidson, Hall.

"HELIO-TROPE" ONE OF THE MOST REMARKABLE FILMS OF THE YEAR;—PLEASED ALL

As denoting the high class of pictures being shown at the Lyric, one need not ask theatre-goers about the various pictures shown. For instance, "Heliotrope," which was shown Friday, May 13th. This picture is everywhere acclaimed as one of the most remarkable ever filmed. Fred Burton, who plays the leading role, is just as natural as life. Julia Swayne Gordon is likewise a most accomplished actor. The whole story is most cleverly depicted. Ask anyone who saw the picture, and he will tell you it was wonderful.

Then, you remember that spectacular play, "Behold My Wife." It was shown here over a month ago—it is now just being shown in Brownwood. Other pictures shown weeks ago are just now being given in Temple, and at the Old Mill in Lullais.

Rest assured, when you go to the Lyric, you are going to see the best.

NEW FLASHER GIVEN TRYOUT FRIDAY AFTERNOON—OPERATES O. K.

The new flasher, which is used to put the wild-cat in the electric siren used by the Brady Fire department, was installed and tested out yesterday afternoon, with entirely satisfactory results. The siren, in itself, gives but the steady whistle, but when equipped with the flasher it gives the rising and falling notes, which make the wild-cat whistle penetrate to such great distances. The fire boys ordered the flasher some two months ago, but the first one received was the wrong model, and delay ensued while awaiting arrival of the correct machine.

COUNTY CORRESPONDENCE

EAST SWEDEN NEWS.

Mr. and Mrs. Edd Bryson Moving from Brady to Ranch.

Brady, Texas, May 20. Editor Brady Standard: I have not very much news for this week, but I thought I would send a few items.

Miss Hazel Johnson spent a night with Miss Beda Hendrickson last week.

Mrs. Jim Schafer and son, Lewis, and daughter, Miss Fay, have been spending a few days at Brady the past week. Mrs. Schafer's mother has been very sick at that place.

Misses Lythia and Amy Turner, and Robert Blount from Brady, went to Kamey last Thursday and stayed till Saturday, where they attended the school exercises at that place. Jno. Nelin and family went to Richland Springs last Sunday to spend the day with Mrs. Nelin's brother, J. D. Johnson and family.

Ed Bryson and family are moving from Brady this week and they will make their home on their ranch east of Brady.

Irvine Hurd and wife, and son, of Brady were visiting at O. E. Engdahl's Sunday.

Mrs. C. A. Johnson and Carol Dial returned from Viejo, Texas last Tuesday, where they spent a few days with her son, Paul Johnson, and wife. Mrs. Julia N. Fikes, better known as "Grandma" Fikes, is here from Kamey, spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Will Turner, and family.

Emil Nelin helped his uncle, Jno. Nelin, bale some hay one day the past week.

O. E. Hurd and family were callers at the Engdahl home Sunday.

Mrs. G. W. Knoy and daughter, Miss Kate, are visiting Mrs. Chas. A. Johnson for a few days.

I will bring my letter to a close for this time.

WALDRIP WORDS.

Interesting Lecture on Holy Lands—To Move Gin from Edgewood. (Too late for last week).

Waldrip, Texas, May 17.

Editor Brady Standard: We had another good rain Saturday night; has been most too wet to work until today.

Last Saturday evening the Fife girls and boys came here and played ball, and Waldrip was again victorious in both games; the girls game was 21 to 26 and the boys 5 to 10. Baseball is getting to be a very exciting entertainment and draws a large crowd every time. The girls intend to play Lohn some time this week.

Mr. Maddison, a man who has been in Russia and some more foreign countries gave us a lecture last Wednesday night and one last Sunday night on the Holy Land, and it was attended and especially enjoyed by a large crowd.

Mr. Stepp, Mr. Lincoln and some other parties will leave Monday for Edgewood, where they will make preparations for the moving of a gin.

Mrs. V. C. Stepp and daughters, Edith and Reta, are visiting relatives in Van Zandt county this week.

Jessie Hill is now in the Brady sanitarium rapidly recovering from a severe case of appendicitis.

Mr. Ed Goen is also in the sanitarium and from all reports is not doing very well.

Some of the young folks went to Pear Valley Sunday and reported a good time.

Mrs. Edna Ramsey and son, Justin, of Cleburne, are visiting Dr. and Mrs. Powell.

Little Paul Jeff Bratton was taken to the sanitarium and had his tonsils removed and is doing nicely now.

FIFE FINDINGS.

Saturday Election Day — Vote for Better Schools, Says "E. Z." Fife, Texas, May 24.

Editor Brady Standard: Oat harvesting and cotton chopping has opened up. Oats are short and many will be mowed. Cotton and corn looks fine but will need rain soon.

Mesdames E. Martin, F. W. Ulke and J. N. Cook of Stamford were visiting with Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Martin here this week.

R. K. Finlay and Tom Bradley were at Millersview Saturday on business. J. Everett is at home again from Ranger, where he has been employed for some time.

Many of our people attended the play, "The Poor Married Man," given at Waldrip Saturday night by the pupils of Calf Creek school. The play was good and was enjoyed by all.

Rev. Martin of Rockwood, entertained us with a lecture on the Holy Land.

Mrs. R. K. Finlay Jr., returned Sunday from Brownwood where she has been undergoing treatment for catarrh.

Friday night closed one of the most successful terms of school we have ever had here. The play, "The Bug Hunter" was a hummer and was played to perfection; everybody present enjoyed it and all agree that it was the best they have seen for some time. Our teachers, Misses Bertha Miller, Bertha Geye and Ethel Doyle are to be commended for their work in the school and community, also. Misses Miller and Geye left Saturday for their home at Lamkin, Texas.

The ball game with Rockwood Saturday failed to materialize, the Rockwood failed to materialize, the Rockwood appearance. The boys played the scrubs and won by a score of 18 to 1. Mercury has been invited to play here next Saturday.

Next Saturday is election day here; let everybody come out and vote—and when you cast your ballot, vote for the tax and for a better school. "E. Z."

VOCA VOICES.

Three Poisoned from Eating Syrup—High School Play Was Good. Voca, Texas, May 18.

Editor Brady Standard: Here I come again. Most everybody is very sorry to report Mrs. Passmore is very ill at this writing. But hope she will soon be up again.

The singing at Mr. M. A. Leddy's Sunday night was enjoyed by a large crowd.

Miss Buna Wren has returned to her home at Calf Creek. She has been staying with her sister, Mrs. Penson, going to school. We all hcted to see her leave.

Mr. Waymon and Miss Bernice Freeman visited friends here Sunday.

Miss Meda Woods is staying a few days with Mrs. Jessie Bratton.

Mr. Clarence Worsham who has been visiting relatives and friends returned back to his home at Eden.

The play Tuesday night by the high school was reported real good. The name of the play was "The Average Man."

The graduates of 1921 were Misses Mabel Ziriax, Emma Leddy, Myrtle Birk and Mr. Hubert Looney.

Miss Cora Penson left Tuesday for Brownwood, where she intends to stay a few weeks.

We are glad to report Mr. and Mrs. John Massey and Mrs. Carter better. They were poisoned by eating some syrup.

Well, as news is scarce, I will ring off.

WONDER WORDS.

Interest In Lost Silver Mine—Tunnel Underneath River.

Wonder, Or., May 20.

Editor Brady Standard:

Dearly beloved reader: I would not have you think that I am trying to discourage or to dissuade any individual or organization from "starting something," for I consider men who try to do something and fail, infinite better than those who try to do nothing and succeed.

The Grants Pass Commercial club or "Chamber of Commerce" I was telling you about extended its membership throughout the county of Josephine, which, as we think, was the proper thing to do. They by co-operation, have started three other things that are of benefit to the community, viz: a creamery; a railroad and a large irrigation project, embracing several thousand acres of tillable land. The dairy farmers all have separators and trucks to take the cream to the creamery. The railroad, though only thirteen miles as yet, is kept busy shipping lumber from the sawmills and wood and ore. While I am not so sure about the outcome of the irrigation project, for the reason that the greater portion of the arid land to be reclaimed thereby is of not a very fertile quality of soil. Much of it is probably as poor as the blackjack sand of Robertson county, Texas, which for centuries has been unsuccessfully trying to produce bushes large enough to furnish shade for the panting lizard. And by far less production than the white sandy piny woods of East Texas or Louisiana. It is a sort of whitish gray decomposed granite. Yet it is being bought up and houses built all over, and clearing being done preparatory for the coming season's initiatory trial. Well, time will tell the tale. But if there isn't some awfully dissatisfied purchasers of real estate in a few years from now, then I miss my guess.

I promised to tell you about the lost silver mine. All I know about it is this: A few years ago an old man by the name of Alexander, who many years ago worked cattle for Dofflemyre of San Saba county, and I think also for Judge Wadsworth, stopped with me and was very much interested in the matter of that silver mine. He wanted Erin to correspond with someone, Messrs. Robert McGhee had influenced Roy's representative in the Bill Jones, to induce him to introduce a bill through requiring a Connolly, of estate to sell their land for a stipulated price, equivalent to twice its intrinsic value. He claims to have been in the tunnel which runs under the San Saba river below Menard. Says it is exceedingly rich in silver; and was once tried to be obtained by buying the land adjacent but that the owners would not sell. Of course I didn't consider that I had very much influence over any one else who had influence over your law makers, so I didn't "but in." And yet since my experience with a railroad corporation and had to give up land (for rightofway) worth $2000.00 and only received the pitiful sum of $250.00, I think it would be a good law in any state to require any corporation or individual who desires to appropriate the property of another to his own use and benefit to pay to the owner thereof a sum equivalent to ten times its value according to the last assessment rolls as rendered to the assessor for taxable purposes. Such a law would prevent a soulless corporation from robbing a poor individual, and second, it would cause everyone who owns property to give it in (or appraise it) to the assessor at something near its real value. Then the party who desires to condemn and confiscate the property of another will have two chances: first to pay for it, or second to let it alone.

Well today is like the one I said. "There has not been a sound today To break the calm of nature. Nor motion I might almost say, Of life or living creature." Yes these calm gentle rains of Oregon are something wonderful; but soon they will cease for the remainder of the summer. Everyone we get now we think will be the last. O.I.C.U.R. RIGHT."

Won A $1,000 Prize.

A syndicate of Western editors offered a prize of $1,000 for the best appeal poem to newspaper subscribers to pay up their subscriptions. Christopher McShee, editor of the Rocky Mountains, won the prize with the following:

Lives of poor men oft remind us
 Honest toil won't stand a chance;
 More we work there grows behind us
 Bigger patches on our pants.

On our pants once new and glossy,
 Now are stripes of different hue;
 All because subscribers linger,
 And won't pay up what is due.

Then let us be up and doing,
 Send your mite, however small;
 Or when snow or winter strikes us,
 We shall have no pants at all.

How's This for Brevity?

An instructor in short story writing, according to an exchange, drilling his class in selection and compression of details, illustrated his lecture with this story:

Two Maine farmers, who were noted for their brevity of speech, met one morning on the village road. They both drew rein.

"Mornin' Zeb."
 "Mornin' Hank."
 "What did you give yer hoss when he was sick?"
 "Turp'ntine."
 "Turp'ntine?"
 "Turp'ntine?"
 "Yep."
 "Git-ap."
 "Git-ap."
 That was all.
 Next morning they met again.
 "Mornin' Zeb."
 "Mornin' Hank."
 "What did you say you gave yer hoss when he was sick?"
 "Turp'ntine."
 "Turp'ntine?"
 "Yep."
 "Killed mine."
 "Killed mine."
 "Git-ap."

WONDER WORDS.

"O. I. C." Starts Something—Tells How Failures Are Made.

Wonder, Or., May 10.

Editor Brady Standard:

"Time to start something?" There is an apt expression; "Never start something that you can't finish." The Kaizer started something that he never finished! What good would it have done the old egotist if he had gained the world and lost his soul? He could have lived for only a brief space at most, and tho' he had a monument erected to his memory what good would it do him after he is dead? He would know nothing about it then.

I want to relate to you my observations of things that have been started at a town—city they call it—that is the greatest place for starting things that I ever knew. Twenty years ago or nearly so, they started the "Grants Pass Commercial Club." And now that they have begun to imagine that they are the ball bearings upon which the spindle of the world revolves, they have changed the name of the organization to the "Grants Pass Chamber of Commerce." (G. P. C. C.) The same initials but a higher sounding title. What they started first was a pine straw mattress and turpentine factory. It was boosted and was intended to be a great and resourceful benefit to the whole community. Small boys and girls could gather the pine needles or straw and the factory would extract the turpentine and then make mattress filling of the remainder. Well, they failed to get the pine leaves gathered at a price to make it a paying institution, so it was regulated to the shades of oblivion and reckoned with the things of the past; after going to the expense of erecting and installing the necessary equipment for conducting the enterprise. 2nd. The next thing they started was a Grants Pass Flouring Mill. Well, they failed to get local grain enough to keep it running, and the expense of shipping it in was so great that that project also was abandoned. 3rd. Then they started a Grants Pass brick yard. 4th. And a Grants Pass cement works; and for some cause unknown to me those two projects are inoperative. 5th. Then they started a Grants Pass Brewery. 6th. Yes, two of them! One of them closed down and the other one burned itself down to get the insurance; so I was told. This makes six or eight things started. I will mention a few more that involved several millions of dollars. 7th. They started a Grants Pass spray manufactory, and ran it one season and supplied the county with liquid spray for all the orchards. Then some Eastern or Northern firm went to shipping in lime and sulphur spraying material in a dry powdered form and our home plant shut down and quit. 8th. Then they started a Grants Pass cannery and only run it one season. In connection with canning fruits and vegetables they made hundreds of barrels of cider and vinegar. To show you how cheaply they got fruit, I took them some, mostly blackberries, and they would only allow me fifty cents a crate of fifteen one quart cups of berries. The crates (empty) cost me ten cents each and the cups one cent each, and it cost me two and one-half cents a cup to get the berries picked. So I was out sixty-three and one-half cents a crate besides my time and expense, taking them to market and only got fifty cents in return and my empty crates and cups back, which it is needless to say I didn't need; for I let the balance of my berries dry up on the bushes or drop off just as they pleased, and I had many bushels of as fine one as you ever saw. I never could see why they shut down as they employed about fifty girls and women and about a dozen men to carry the boxes and trays of fruit about, while the girls did all of the lighter work. 9th. Then they started an Oregon and Utah sugar beet factory. An elaborate concern costing several million dollars. The first season's run convinced them that they couldn't get beets enough to keep it going one half of the time. So the company tore it up and moved it out of the country.

I liked the article of "A. Citizen" very much. It contained good logic. And I will say that if there is any instrumentality that is capable of starting things and keeping them moving, it is the local paper which has the best interests of the community at heart. And I will further say that I believe The Brady Standard is the fairest and cleanest paper that I ever read.

I will tell you about that lost silver mine before long.

A Farmer's Dream.

A farmer had a dream. He dreamed that he had raised a thousand bushels of wheat and he was happy over the fact. Then he dreamed that he sold it for $2.00 a bushel and his happiness was great. But he dreamed again that he had sold it to a thou-and different people, a bushel to each one, and that nobody had paid him and he was sad. When he awoke it was broad daylight, and leaping out of bed he exclaimed to his wife: "Rebecca, I have had a solemn warning and I know the meaning of it. I am going right off to town and pay that printer the subscription I owe him on the paper."—Exchange.

FIRST thing you do next—go get some makin' papers and some Prince Albert tobacco and puff away on a home made cigarette that will hit on all your smoke cylinders!

No use sitting-by and saying maybe you'll cash this hunch tomorrow. Do it while the going's good, for man-o-man, you can't figure out what you're passing by! Such flavor, such coolness, such more-ish-ness—well, the only way to get the words emphatic enough is to go to it and know yourself!

And, besides Prince Albert's delightful flavor, there's its freedom from bite and parch which is cut out by our exclusive patented process! Certainly—you smoke P. A. from sun up till you slip between the sheets without a comeback.

Prince Albert is the tobacco that revolutionized pipe smoking. If you never could smoke a pipe—forget it! You can—AND YOU WILL—if you use Prince Albert for packing! It's a smoke revelation in a jimmy pipe or a cigarette!

Prince Albert is sold in tippy red bags, tidy red tins, handsome pound and half pound tin humidors and in the pound crystal glass humidor with sponge moistener top.

HONEST INJUN.

The pessimist more often than not gets what he is looking at—the hole in the doughnut.

SWAT THE ROOSTERS.

We notice where a mercantile store in one of Brady's neighboring towns has offered to pay 5c per dozen above market price for all infertile eggs. This offer is made in connection with the establishment in that county of Egg Circles, the members of which stamp each egg with the name of the farm, the date laid, and guarantee the eggs to be infertile.

Produce dealers tell us that the marketing of things in the hot summer weather is practically impossible because fertile eggs may form blood rings within 24 hours, if not properly cared for. This, of course, makes them unmarketable. Consequently, those folks who market their eggs under a guarantee of being infertile not only find a market for their products, but are given better prices.

Swat the rooster is the slogan with poultry raisers now-a-days. It means reduced expenses and increased income!

WHAT OTHERS DO!

The town of Rockdale, in Milam county, (1920 population 2323) has just had approved a bond election in which some two years or more ago they voted $75,000 to build a new high school building. Accumulated interest has added $12,000 to this sum, giving them a fund of $87,000, with which they propose to build and equip one of the most modern high schools in that section of the state. Not content with this, they are staging plays and entertainments for the purpose of raising funds to equip the new high school building with a gymnasium and play grounds in keeping with the new building.

Yet some folks right here in Brady are producing arguments of every manner and description against giving up an additional $5.00 per $1,000 property assessment for the purpose of aiding the home schools. Verily, verily, as long as that sort of spirit prevails within the precincts of Brady Independent school district, Brady schools will never attain to the height that Brady schools deserve, nor will future generations be able to forget that the citizens of today failed them in the effort that was made to give Brady Bigger, Better School, and the school children a bigger and better chance to make their way in the world.

SOME POOR BLIND FOLKS HAVE NEVER SEEN A MIRACLE.

By Bruce Barton, in Public Service Monthly.
Here is an important distinction that many people overlook. God made the world; but He does not make your world.
He provides the raw materials, and out of them every man selects what he wants and builds an individual world for himself.

The fool looks over the wealth of material provided, and selects a few plates of ham and eggs, a few pairs of trousers, a few dollar bills—and is satisfied.

The wise man builds his world out of wonderful sunsets, and thrilling experiences, and the song of the stars, and romance and miracles. Nothing wonderful ever happens in the life of a fool.

A primrose by a river's brim
A yellow primrose is to him,
And it is nothing more.

An electric light is simply an electric light; a telephone is only a telephone—nothing unusual, at all.

But the wise man never ceases to wonder how a tiny speck of seed, apparently dead and buried, can produce a beautiful yellow flower. He never lifts a telephone receiver or switches on an electric light without a certain feeling of awe.

And to think what a miracle it is, this harnessing of electricity to the service of man!

Who, unless his sense of awe had grown blunt through constant familiarity, would believe it?

The sun, the center of our universe, goes down behind the western horizon. I touch a button, and presto! I have called it back—the room is flooded anew with light.

The thunder that men once called the voice of God, rolls out its mighty waves of sound, and the sound carries only a few score miles. But I—puny speck upon the face of the earth—I lift a little instrument; and behold, my whisper is heard a thousand miles away.

Prometheus stole fire from the gods and brought it down to earth. For that crime the gods chained him to a lonely rock and sent a huge bird to feed upon his vitals. Each night the wound healed and each day it was torn open again.

That was the punishment of the man who dared to wrest away the richest treasure of the gods.

But fire—the treasure of the gods—has almost disappeared out of our daily life; we scorn it.

Do we want heat? We press a button; and lo, heat, invisible, all-pervasive, flows into our homes over a copper wire.

Do we need power? We have but to press another switch, and plants come to us over the same slender roadway. Clothed in invisible garments, they cleanse our homes, wash our clothes, crank our automobiles—do everything that once taxed the strength of men and hurried women into unlovely old age.

Don't let your life become a prosaic affair; don't let familiarity with the marvels about you breed thoughtlessness and contempt.

Let the fool build his world out of mere food and drink and clothes; you fashion yours out of marvelous experiences; furnish and decorate it with miracles.

Exercise your mind in the wholesome activity of wonder; train your soul to reverent awe.

If you had stood with Moses on the shore of the Red Sea, and had seen it divide to let the children of Israel pass over, you would have had no difficulty in recognizing that as a miracle.

But every night when the sun goes down, a man stands in a power-house in your city and throws a switch, and instantly the city and the country for miles around are flooded with sunshine.

And you say to yourself casually: "Oh, I see the lights are on."

THE AUTOMOBILE AND GOOD ROADS.

The automobile has come to stay, of course.

It will be to future generations what the horse and ox were to past generations.

It is practically useless without good roads.

With good roads, its usefulness can hardly be overestimated.

The automobile calls for a more enduring type of road than we have been accustomed to build.

It also calls for a smoother road.

Road building, therefore, promises to become one of the great activities of the future.

We have invested $20,000,000,000, if not more, in railroad development during the past 75 years.

We shall probably invest an even greater amount in automobiles and highways during the next half century.

Further than this, we shall invest it on a larger unit system.

Because of its speed and operating radius, the automobile will call for more trunk line highways.

Where the horse could travel and traffic within a convenient distance of 40 or 50 miles, the automobile can cover five or six times as much.

The automobile can be made to cover more, if the proper kind of transportation service is organized.

If there were a system of relays, for instance, it would be comparatively easy to go from Houston to St. Louis, or from Houston to Colorado, as quickly and as comfortably by automobile as by train.

The thing will be done when roads are available.

The automobile has come to play a great part in short haul freight and passenger traffic, but it is still in its infancy. It is being held back by the lack of good roads.

Transportation experts who fail to reckon with the automobile in their calculations miss the mark.

We have seen it as a novelty, and we are now seeing it largely as a vehicle of pleasure. The next stage of its development, and that stage is near at hand, will be as a vehicle of business in competition with even the most extended lines of transportation.

In order to be fair to those who have purchased coupon books during May at the old price, without question, and that they may have protection, these prices will apply as of May 1st, 1921. If you have charged coupon books, you will still have the privilege of taking the cash discount up to and including Saturday, May 21st, if you choose, otherwise you will be credited with the difference in the price charged and the present charge price. If you paid cash for book we will rebate the difference by the 1st of June.

We will continue our bookkeeping service at our discretion, for the benefit of those who wish coupon books charged for their convenience, until the first of the month following, for which service you will notice we are making a very small charge—but under no conditions will charges be made for ice on delivery and in no other form except coupon books when signed for by purchaser or authorized person.

We realize in making these reductions that business prospects are poor, and that we can not hope for any large volume until conditions change, but we are willing to share in the adjustment of things to a more settled basis, which, we think, will be determined largely through increasing efficiency, and output, which we hope to accomplish by the use of coupons. It will take a long time, if ever, to get back to pre-war conditions on account of freight rates, labor, etc., and we seriously question the advisability of might profitably adopt a higher standard, especially if we want to increase the earning and paying power of the country and people in general, which it looks like we will have to do, if we ever get out of debt. We fully appreciate, now, the result of too low prices on some commodities and can see that it produces impoverished and stagnant conditions all along the line which must be overcome.

We not only want to increase our efficiency and production, but our service as well, which we are hopeful will result in increased demand—a determining factor in the cost. Your co-operation is earnestly solicited in the elimination of unnecessary expense in this SERVICE and we think we will be able to operate at prices, satisfactory to you, and in line with much larger towns and even cities, more favorably situated as to fuel and water supply.

We could lower the cost some by changing to a raw water system, but as long as we are in business we want to know that we are selling a pure product and not one that might be contaminated.

We want the people in the country to observe these prices so you may know what you ought to pay for ice. You know what the freight rates are. We are operating on a very close margin and we know of ice being sold in some places in the country at $2.50 per cwt. last year, that only cost 50c per cwt. at our platform. Ice has ceased to be a luxury, but, on the contrary, is a great necessity, and ought to be handled on a small margin, and if you will let dealers know your requirements and take it regularly it will eliminate a lot of waste and they will handle it much cheaper. If we increase our volume to any great extent it will have to come from the country and in this day of automobile and trucks there is no need of people in the country doing without ice, which is not only a great comfort, but almost essential to good health.

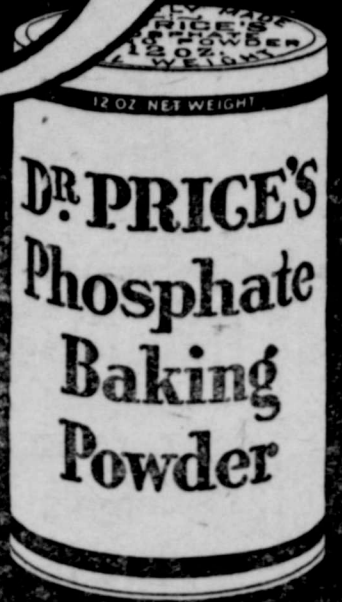

Assuring you of our high appreciation of your co-operation and of our desire to serve you well and with the hope of being able to maintain a continuation of your future valued patronage, we are,

Yours truly,

McShan-Bell.
Miss Ruth McShan and Mr. Lewis Bell, well-known and popular young Brady folks, were quietly married on last Saturday night at 8:00 o'clock at the Baptist parsonage, the Rev. J. H. Taylor officiating. Only a few intimate friends of the couple were in attendance upon the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Bell left Sunday morning in their car on a wedding trip to San Antonio, Austin, and other points, planning a week's tour. At Austin, they will visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bell.
Both Mr. Bell and his bride are Brady products, having attended the Brady schools, and Mrs. Bell having been a member of the graduating class of Brady high school in 1917. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee McShan, and is a most attractive young lady, with charming personality. Since completing her high school course she has been employed with the Walker-Smith Co. as a bookkeeper and stenographer. Her work has been of a most satisfactory nature, and she is highly respected by those with whom she has been associated.

Five Hundred Club.
Miss Wiley W. Walker entertained on last Friday afternoon, the occasion being the regular weekly meeting of the Five Hundred club. Members present included Mesdames C. D. Allen, Lewis Brook, Ed Campbell, J. S. Anderson, J. G. McCall, John Wall, C. T. White, G. C. Kirk; Miss

PUBLIC FORUM.

Vote For Better Schools.

The election to be held Saturday, May 28th is for the purpose of maintaining and improving the efficiency of our school. For the last few years our scholastic census has been steadily increasing, and our tax rate has been stationary. In the past the 50c tax rate has been ample to run the schools and finish with a small surplus. This year the surplus is gone, due to a larger attendance, and, of course, the more pupils we have in school, the more it costs to teach them. When we open the school this coming Fall, we will have the largest attendance in the history of the school. Now, fellow citizens, there is no need to fuss and fume over this proposition. It is a fact, and if we are going to be the men and women that will command the respect and confidence of our children, and this community, we will march to the polls Saturday, with this thought: I am going to vote to uphold our schools; to give my children and the children of my neighbor the very best education that I can. I am going to cast my ballot for the educational interest of this county, state and nation—first, last, and all the time.

Some of you say we are taxed enough. You might just as well say you are taxed enough for the education of your children. The more you pay for education, the more you get for it. It will cost, that's true in most everything, but I have not seen anyone in this town or any other who had too much education; on the other hand, we touch elbows every day with men and women who have practically none. Who was to blame? All of us are! For nations are but small communities grouped together, forming the whole. Citizens! in the name of liberty, let's wake up! quit pulling against the "krupper;" let's forge ahead. Every line of industry is working night and day to improve, and is improving on the works of the past generation; shall our schools, the very foundation of it all, drag and hold us down? Men and women, please don't overlook that our boys and girls of today are going to be the ones who will shoulder our tomorrow. If you would only put your vision into the future, it is easy to see. You who are opposed to this election, I want you to get right down and ask yourself this question—"what in the world is the matter with me? Is it because it will cost me eight or ten dollars more taxes? (yes); friends, don't argue that, when there is so much at stake. Is it because I have no children to send to school? (yes); Then in Heavens name, get away from a thought so narrow. Is it because you don't like the teachers that are employed? (yes); Then you are not a disciple of Democracy. Dismiss such feelings. We must pull together to do things. Is it because we are paying too much in salaries? (yes); we are trying to get good teachers, and that takes money. If you can supply the needs for less money, please, oh please come forward. Is it because you don't like the way the school board does things? (yes); then by all means come forward—one at a time, or in bunches. I'll gladly give you my place; and I think there are six other places that could be secured. You don't have anything to do but meet from one to six times a month; if you can't leave your business without closing it, close and come on! and when you get there, tell a few yams, draw your salary, which is by far the most important, and then disperse. "Oh, it's a grand and glorious feeling." Come on!

Now friends, anybody can find fault, but there are few remedies offered. Let's get down to business and vote this Fall and let our children something that many of us didn't get an education. I'm in favor of instituting a commercial course in our high school, so that when my children and yours finish high school and are not financially able to go to college, it will not be necessary for them to spend three or four months in some business college in order to get a position. This course will cost us something; but the benefits to be derived are worth the price. In other words the school board wants to do everything in its power to educate your child properly. Citizens, it is going to take more money to run the school next term than it did the past term, and the school has to be run and the money has to be provided; and there are three ways to raise the money. First, by the tax vote; second by higher valuations; and third by donations. Which do you want? the school board wants the tax vote which is the truth, according to God. Now, fellow citizens, ask yourselves all of these questions before you cast your ballot, and the way the majority wants it. That is the way we will do it.

Vote for better schools,
J. B. WHITEMAN.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

J. J. Parker was a very pleasant visitor at The Standard office Tuesday. Mr. Parker, who lives in the Rochelle community, says that he comes to Brady only once in a great while. He reports the rabbits doing great damage to his crops, and says they have even attacked his corn fields. Last year they kept the stalks stripped as high as they could reach—and they reach surprisingly high, says Mr. Parker. Last year they did not bother his maize, but this year they have started on the crop, which Mr. Parker planted late, and which is therefore comparatively small in growth. Still another pest that has put in its appearance, according to Mr. Parker, is the flying grasshoppers, which are coming on in swarms. Mr. Parker says a good rain down his way right about now would prove most timely.

OVER the COFFEE CUP

How do you make coffee?

I put this question to one of my good Gold Plume Coffee customers, who is considered one of the best cooks in town.

Her answer certainly surprised me, and gave me a new light on the coffee-making subject.

"Well, one thing—I never 'guess' when I make my coffee. I measure both the coffee and water."

"We use a percolator. I put the coffee in the receptacle then pour the boiling water over and let it percolate 15 minutes."

"The time it should percolate depends on the grind of the coffee. With Gold Plume, this works fine."

"I have made 60-coffee cups of coffee from one pound of Gold Plume Coffee. And that cannot be said of many grades of coffee on the market."

"The reason is this," I told her. "Gold Plume Coffee is pure coffee-berry, coffee. No chaff or coffee impurities. No difference how the price varies, it is the cheapest coffee you can buy—because there are more cups of good coffee to the pound."

A TWICE-TOLD STORY.

One of Interest to Our Readers. Good news bears repeating, and when it is confirmed after a long lapse of time, even if we hesitated to believe it at first hearing, we feel secure in accepting its truth now. The following experience of a Brady man is confirmed after four years.

Mr. Doan's Kidney Pills have proven very beneficial to me. I have used them at different times when I have needed them. Doan's have always relieved my back and strengthened my kidneys." (Statement given April 30, 1915.)

Always Gets Good Results.

On May 16, 1919, Mr. McShan said: "My opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills remains the same as it did in 1915. Only occasionally now do I have need of them and they always relieve me. I highly recommend Doan's to all sufferers from kidney trouble."

LITTLE ROCK MAN WAS SURPRISED.

I'm the Most Grateful Man on Earth Since Tanlac Did So Much for My Wife.

Another wonderful endorsement for Tanlac that will be read with interest by the people of Arkansas was given by C. O. Farabee, of 822 Elm St., Little Rock, Ark.

Mr. Farabee called at Snodgrass & Bracy's drug store and made the statement that the benefits his wife had received from a few bottles of Tanlac is one of the surprises of his life.

Mr. Farabee, who is now retired from active business life, was formerly a merchant and stock-dealer, and also holds extensive banking and farming interests. His standing and influence are too well known to require further comment.

"It is certainly surprising," said Mr. Farabee, "that Tanlac could help my wife as much as it has, after suffering for so long a time without being able to get relief. Why, she has been in ill health for fifteen years. About three months ago she had to undergo an operation for appendicitis and being already in a weak condition I had fear of her not being able to survive. She had no appetite—couldn't digest her food properly and suffered terribly from palpitation and shortness of breath. She had no strength nor energy and we could find nothing to build her up."

"One of our her friends brought her a bottle of Tanlac about three weeks after she got out of the hospital and it is certainly wonderful how she responded to this medicine. She kept taking the medicine and now has a splendid appetite, is looking after her housework and her chickens and cow besides. She sleeps like a healthy child, and has more strength and energy than she has had in years. I'll tell you I'm the most grateful person in the world for what Tanlac has done for my wife."

Tanlac is sold in Brady by Trigg Drug Co., in Mercury by J. T. Matlock, in Rochelle by C. W. Carr, and by leading druggists everywhere.

"Oh, yes," said the stranger, "you will pass many sleepless nights and toilsome days."

"Um," said the man, "and who are you?"

"I am called Opportunity."

"Um," said the man, "you call yourself Opportunity, but you look like Hard Work to me."

And he slammed the door.

Darkness and Dawn

By HAZEL SMITH

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

It was merely a business coincidence that James A. Holton, lawyer, had offices in the same skyscraper where James B. Holton, also lawyer, had an office. The comparison, however, was grotesque. "Judge" Holton occupied a suite on the second floor, about as elaborate as the upholsterer's art could make it. "Jim" Holton, as his friends familiarly called him, had a little ten-by-twelve room at the top story. It contained a worn rug, a small desk, two chairs and a book-case holding only the most necessary law books required in the profession.

At these, his sole possessions, Jim was staring gloomily. It was the darkest hour in his life, and the late afternoon shadows formed a fitting frame for his environment. The agent for the building surveyed Jim rather pityingly.

"Sorry, Mr. Holton," he said, "but it's the rule. There's two months' rent overdue. I'll just have the stuff here stored with good care. Soon as you get on your feet again you can pay up and get it back."

"No," said Jim defiantly; "sell it. I'm through."

"Don't say that," spoke the agent. "Don't give up the ship—always darkest before the dawn, you know."

"I'll be on hand when you call on me," he added as he left.

Holton pulled open a drawer. As if a devil had stung him, his hand shot out eagerly at the little silver-mounted weapon it contained.

"The quick way," he said hoarsely. There was a click. Then with a shudder he flung the weapon back into the drawer, crashed it shut, and his face fell across his arms. Some power drove his lips to the low sobbing utterance of a prayer, learned at his mother's knee.

"Is this Mr. Holton?" asked a timid, almost frightened voice.

"I—that is—" the girl was pale and her hand was trembling as she tendered a large envelope. There was no doubt that she had seen the weapon and heard the prayer. She was confused in delivering a message. "My aunt, Mrs. Helen Hurley, asked me to give you this. It is—something about—about another lawyer, and—you are to write aunt or see her."

Then she was gone. Jim sank to a chair. His heart had leaped up at such loveliness. But—not for him! He, penniless, a failure! He opened the envelope, supposing it to be some papers in one of the few law cases he had assisted in. Around a file of documents two fifty-dollar bills were folded. Next to them was a note. It read:

"I am the attorney at Sackville of Mrs. Hurley. She will come to you to assist her in getting possession of some important papers, will give you a retainer fee, and if we win the case at this end there will be a contingent fee for you."

"Why," exclaimed Jim glancing at the envelope, "this is for the Holton downstairs. All that money!"

An hour later Jim was ushered into a suite of rooms in an apartment house three miles away. An old lady and a young one arose to greet him.

"Mr. Holton—you are prompt," said the elder lady, holding his card in her hand. The younger one, his office visitor, looked at him with interest, but strangely.

"Mr. Holton, yes," said Jim with a forced smile, "but not the Mr. Holton for whom these documents were intended." And then Jim told of the other Holton, of his absence, and handed the lady the envelope.

"Aunt," almost whispered the young lady, "may I speak to you for a moment?"

Jim sat fidgeting in his seat. It was the young lady who finally returned, alone. She brought back the packet.

"You will trust me, a stranger—" began Jim, choking up.

"Yes," she replied, "because—because I know you need a client, and because that dreadful temptation, your mother's prayer, have told me to be—be your friend. Have I said too much?"

It was a simple case. A miserly old fellow in the city had some papers.

Here again the star of hope and fortune arose for Jim. The old fellow happened to be a client of a friend of Jim, a struggling young lawyer like himself. One week later, at no expense whatever, Jim brought the coveted documents to Mrs. Hurley.

In the meantime, through the Hurleys, he was introduced to some influential people. Two new clients came to him, and things began to look up for loyal, patient Jim.

The day he got back into his old office he called on Helen. He told her the whole history of that dismal afternoon when they had first met.

"And, oh, how sorry I felt for you," confessed Helen, "for I guessed that you were in deep trouble. That dreadful moment when—but that will always be our secret. The sweet mother's prayer drove all the fear and temptation away."

"And you appeared, an angel on the threshold," said Jim. "Yes, but will be our secret, but there is another one. I only dared to tell it."

Helen swayed nearer to him. Her eyes told him he might speak, her lips invited the lover's kiss, and Jim knew that the full glorious dawn had come at last!

ORDER FOR ELECTION.

The State of Texas—County of McCulloch.
On this the 26th day of April A. D. 1921, the Board of Trustees of the Brady Independent School District, in the County of McCulloch, State of Texas, being in called session, came to be considered the petition of Joe A. Adkins and more than twenty other persons all being resident tax-paying voters of the Brady Independent School District, praying this Board of Trustees to order an election to be held in the Brady Independent School District to determine whether or not that an annual ad valorem tax of one dollar ($1.00) on the one hundred ($100.00) dollar assessed values of taxable property within the Brady Independent School District shall be annually assessed and collected for the maintenance of the schools of the Brady Independent School District.
And it appearing to the Board of Trustees that said petition is signed by more than twenty of the resident property tax-paying voters of said Brady Independent School District and the said tax will not exceed the maximum allowed by the Constitution and the Laws of the State of Texas for such purposes.
It is therefore considered and ordered by this Board of Trustees that an election be held in the Brady Independent School District, on the 28th day of May A. D. 1921, which is not less than thirty days from the date of this order, to determine whether or not an annual ad valorem tax of one dollar, ($1.00) on the one hundred ($100.00) dollars of assessed values of the taxable property within the Brady Independent School District shall be annually assessed and collected for the maintenance of the schools of the said Brady Independent School District.

Notice of said election shall be given by posting a copy of this order at three public places in the Brady Independent School District for not less than three weeks prior to the date for said election. And by publication of such notice in a newspaper published in Brady, McCulloch County, Texas, for not less than three weeks prior to the date of such election.

Said election shall be held at the McCulloch County Court House, in the town of Brady, in the room on first floor located in the northwest corner of the building and known as the Justice Court Room. L. Ballou is hereby appointed judge of said election and W. W. Jones and W. P. Yearly are hereby appointed as clerks of said election.

Said election shall be held under the provisions of the law and only qualified voters, who are property tax-payers of the Brady Independent School District shall be allowed to vote, and all voters desiring to support the proposition shall have written or printed on their ballots the words:

"For Maintenance Tax."
and those opposed shall have written or printed on their ballots:
"Against Maintenance Tax."
The manner of holding said election shall be governed by the laws governing general elections of this State.

A copy of this order signed by the Secretary of the Board of Trustees of the Brady Independent School District shall serve as the proper notice of said election, and the Secretary of the Board of Trustees is directed to post such notices in three public places in said School District for three weeks prior to said election.

E. L. JONES,
President Board of Trustees, Brady Independent District.
MRS. EDD BRYSON,
Secretary Board of Trustees Brady Independent District.

ORIGIN OF WORD "HIGH-JACKER" IS RECALLED BRIEFLY

Fort Worth, Texas, May 17.—"High-jacker," a word that has been adopted generally in Texas from the slang of the oil fields, obtained its present meaning through evolution. The appellation is now given to all highwaymen and bandits. Originally it meant something else.

The word "high-jacker" is said to have originated in the mining camps near Joplin, Mo., and Picher, Okla. In the mining of lead, the deposits of zinc which were found in the ore were discarded. Large heaps of this zinc were deposited about the camps. The miners called the practically worthless refuse "jack."

Zinc, however, became valuable. Then, the story is told, the lead miners, on passing the piles of zinc, would place lumps of it in their dinner pails or some other receptacle and carry it home. Soon, in this manner, enough zinc was accumulated to bring a good price. It was then that the name "high-jacker" was given to the miners who carried off the zinc, or high grade "jack."

Later Oklahoma became a prohibition state. "Bootleggers" and miners from the Oklahoma camps would cross the line into Missouri to obtain liquor. On their return they would seek to bring back a few drinks to tide them over until the next visit across the line. Others, however, who remained at home found a way to obtain their liquor without going to Missouri for it. They would hold up the miners or "bootleggers" when the latter crossed the state line and seize the liquor. As it was unlawful to carry liquor into Oklahoma the practice of seizing it became widespread—for the losers had no redress. The miners began calling those who thus took away their liquor supply, "high-jackers," and the term came to mean anybody who took something that could not be claimed lawfully by the person who possessed it.

The use of the term "high-jacker" spread to the oil fields. Because those who seized the contraband liquor were usually hardened "bootleggers," who used rough tactics in forcibly taking from others the liquor, the oil field workers called all bandits, including those who held up any person and took his property, "high-jackers."

Thus the name "high-jackers" is used extensively in Oklahoma and Texas. Among them are "roadhogs," meaning a truck driver who uses the middle of the road, and "mule skinner," for mule driver. "Pay sand" in the vernacular of the oil fields has a similar meaning to "pay dirt" of the mining camps. To strike "pay sand" is to find oil in paying quantity and to strike "pay dirt" is to find a paying quantity of desired metal. "Wildcatting" is another term borrowed from the mines, being used similarly to mean speculative promotion and drilling for oil.

BROWNWOOD JAIL BIRDS GET STACKS OF MATRIMONIAL REPLIES TO LETTERS

Eight jail birds in the Brown county jail, by writing a romantic letter, appealing to the chief of police of Camden, New Jersey, to find them brides, have started a matrimonial correspondence, reaching from the sand flats of New Jersey, to the rock ridges of Central Texas, that promises to swamp the mails.

Letters, bearing photos, locks of hair, and in some instances the odor of perfume, are coming in in bales to the sheriff's office at Brownwood, addressed to the eight prisoners confined behind the bars of the county jail, eight men who now need the luxury of a wife about as urgently as the devil needs a hymn book.

The letter written to the New Jersey chief of police by the boys in jail represents a species of humor peculiar to the fancy of the cowboy swains who range the ridges of West Texas, and though fate should find them in jail, life is never too hard or sodden to prevent them from indulging in a prank.

When the chief of police at Camden received the letter from the parties in Brownwood, appealing to him to help them find brides, he turned it over to one of the Camden newspapers, and the paper printed the letter on its first page under big headlines, and with an inspiring introduction as follows:

LONELY RANCHMEN SEEK BRIDES HERE

Eight Texas Cowboys Want Chief of Police to Find Them Good Wives.

Eight good girls in this city are to be given an opportunity to wed eight fine fellows on a ranch in Texas. Chief of Police Gravenor this morning received a letter signed by J. W. Smith, Leonard Jones, Bill Carter, Jim Murphy, Dave Miller and Jack Myers, 401 West Broadway, Brownwood, Texas, and H. D. Hampton and W. W. Kriskchke of Bangs, Texas, all in care of Ranch No. 2. The object of these young fellows is matrimony. The letter is as follows:

"Dear Mr. Chief of Police:—No doubt this is a funny way to go at this problem, but we are coming to you for help. We are eight lonesome cowboys from the plains of Texas, who are so doggone lonesome we want you to find us a girl to write to. Our object is to marry after the fall round-up.

"We are in the cattle business here and as girls are scarce in these parts one of the boys was looking in an old book and saw the name of your city. It gave us the idea we could come to you. We are all under thirty years of age, can ride, rope and handle a gun. Yet we are just plain American men in a lonesome part of Texas. Now Mr. Chief, we know you are bound to know some right smart pretty girls who would write to a fellow. At least we hope so. You see we are sixty-five miles from the post office at Brownwood, and our nearest folks live about twenty-five miles from the ranch.

"We have to work hard, as spring is our hardest work time. When you were here to help us out, Mr. Chief, we work about twelve hours every day, and after one has passed these rugged yearlings all day he has got to sleep a part of the time. We do not get any of drink, but we do smoke cigarettes. Now, Mr. Chief, if you can help us we will be much obliged to you.

"May 12, 1921."

There is no need to wonder that this letter made an instant appeal to the working girls and the romantic girls of New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Most of the letters coming in are from Camden, Newark, Jersey City and Philadelphia.

Many of the letters enclose the above clipping from the Camden newspaper, many contain photos, and all the fair correspondents express a desire to come to Texas, and especially they declare they are eager to live on a ranch and be a ranchman's wife and helpmate.

The stream of letters are coming in on every mail. Seventy-eight letters were received Monday and 118 came in on Tuesday. The Sheriff's office and county attorney's office are beginning to wonder where they will end, and the officers also are wondering whether it devolves as a duty upon them to answer the letters and explain to the hundreds of earnest young women that the appeal for brides was a joke of prisoners in jail, prisoners burdened with time on their hands, but with humor in their souls.

To add to the tragedy of the situation, four of the "lonesome, bride-hungry cowboys" who were jointly authors of the love-lorn letter to the New Jersey police chief, were sentenced to the penitentiary Tuesday on pleas of guilty of the various charges assessed against them. These culprits are Claude Jones, Jimmy D. Murphy, Dave Miller and Johnny Smith.

Two other of the boys, H. D. Hampton and W. W. Kriskchke, who were charged with taking an auto without the consent of the owner, had paid their fine and were released from jail last week.

Who knows but what some of the letters received by these eight young men, of wayward mien, from the trusting life-hungry young women of the east, may yet change the drift of their lives, may fill them with a new ambition, and may make them better men.

A letter cast upon the winds is sometimes a life-line that leads an aimless voyager to safe and permanent anchorage. It may do it in this case.—Brownwood News.

C. H. ARNSPIGER BUYS COTTAGE ON SOUTH BRIDGE STREET FROM E. D. J. PETERS

Count C. H. Arnspiger among the home-owners of Brady, Mr. Arnspiger having just closed a deal for the purchase of one of E. D. Peters cottages, located on South Bridge street, and about four blocks from the court house. The property is well-located, and its proximity to the business section, makes it especially valuable. The house contains four rooms, with bath, screened in porch and front gallery. Mr. Arnspiger contemplates numerous improvements about the place, including terracing, grading and otherwise improving the lot, placing cement walks and curbs and, in fact, doing everything to make of it an ideal home place. He expects to secure possession within the next few weeks.

FARM BUREAU NOTES.

Waxahachie, May 18.—Eight business men and eleven farmers volunteered their services and automobiles at a Farm Bureau meeting in Italy, near here, last night to work until every man in Italy's trade territory either signs the cotton contract or flatly refuses, according to word received by the officers of the Ellis County Farm Bureau, who declare that this county is determined to sign up 100,000 bales of cotton with the association before July 1. The drive began in the Italy section this morning at 8:30 o'clock.

"We find men ready with their co-operation if it is presented in a business-like way," Monroe G. Wright, field worker of the State Farm Bureau forces here, said. "We insisted at Maypearl, the first marketing center visited, that we have the same co-operation here that put Oklahoma's cotton growers over with a whoop a month ahead of time. On Monday following the meeting there Friday night, 27 business men and farmers were in cars scouring the country for signatures to the marketing contract.

"Monday night at Boyce, a small place, we had 7 cars and 2 to 4 farmers for each car to volunteer to see every farmer in Boyce's trade territory before the drive, which begins next Monday, May 23, closes.

"We insist that it is a business proposition; that a farmer can neither pay old bills nor buy new goods unless he gets a good price for his money crop, cotton; that a purely speculative market, manipulated by those whose only intention is to get it for as little as possible and sell for as much as possible, will not give him justice or square business transaction; that it is not good business but purely wasteful to permit cotton to be handled 5 to 14 times, graded each time, and pay the great army of speculators and their employes to do such others work over and over again at our expenses while our bills go unpaid and our families in need; that it is nothing short of a crime to permit it further, where there is a proven plan, meeting the requirements of modern business, ready with relief, if we will accept it."
"A Million Bales."

Cotton Marketing Basis of Problem in South.

Dallas, Texas.—The marketing of cotton is the basis of the social problem of the South, according to Carl Williams, Oklahoma editor and agricultural leader, who is making several speeches in Texas in the interest of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Growers' Co-operative Marketing association.

"The co-operative marketing of cotton will bring on the time when I can meet a tenant cotton farmer on the road and he will not have in his frightened eye the look of a dog which had been licked and didn't know why. Let us get the hang-dog look out of his eye and his wife and children out of the cotton fields. Co-operative marketing will bring him the square economic deal, and that in turn will bring good roads, modern schools, revitalized churches and happy homes to the south.

which the co-operative cotton marketing associations of the south are subscribing, is the Magna Charta of the cotton farmer of America. In it is written the expression of the will of the common cotton farmer."

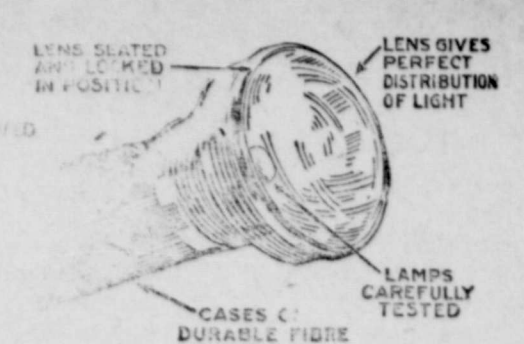

Farm Bureau Will Help County Agent

San Angelo, Texas.—The Farm Bureau organization here has received the sanction of the county commissioners' court and, depending upon the power of the Farm Bureau among the farmers, the court has decided to get a good county demonstration agent immediately. Heretofore it has been difficult for county agents to obtain the co-operation of the farmers and members of the entire farming population of the county to discuss matters of vital interest to all have been practically impossible. With the Farm Bureau, however, it will be possible to draw farmers together and the agent will have an opportunity to present his work to the whole body.

Rastus from Boston was trying to impress his southern cousin with the superior speed of northern trains. "When dat ole Montreal express gets to hummin', Mose," he asserted solemnly, "de telegraph posts look like slats on a chicken fence." "Hmpf!" sniffed Mose. "When de Southern express steps out for Noo Orleans, it nacherally makes de telegraph posts look closer'n strings."

After-dinner coffee was served in the library. Aunt Matilda clung to this relic of former days with grim persistency.

It was not so impressive as the previous announcement, "Coffee will be served in the drawing-room." But in a small apartment, the library was the best substitute Aunt Matilda had.

"I'm sorry, Katherine"—Aunt Matilda's tone was mildly apologetic—"that, as you read the paper only once a fortnight, you are not able to read the latest news."

Katherine's attention had been divided between the cup of coffee she was sipping from one hand and a newspaper she was trying to read from the other.

All at once her hand shook so she could scarcely put her coffee down without spilling it. The paper in her other hand rattled as though a sudden storm had attacked it. Her eyes grew big with surprise and terror.

She glanced quickly at her aunt. Had she noticed her sudden agitation? It seemed as though the cup had crashed onto the saucer, that the paper had rattled, and that her heart was beating, loud enough to be heard for miles.

But her aunt was peacefully unconscious of any unusual excitement.

Katherine started up, exclaiming: "Let's go to the theater, Aunt Matilda. You need cheering up. Don't say you don't, for you know you haven't been out for days. I'll telephone Mariana."

"But, my dear," Aunt Matilda offered as a feeble protest, "Mariana won't go without Dale Brinton."

"One has so few chances with an engaged girl," Katherine's grip tightened on the newspaper she was holding. "This is my turn for an inning with Mariana. Dale is out of town."

Which was part of the truth, but by no means all.

Before Aunt Matilda had time to argue further, Katherine was gone.

The subway was surprisingly crowded for a rainy night. Katherine looked anxiously about for her friend.

When at last she found her, she gave her a quick glance of keen scrutiny.

With her customary Southern courtesy, Aunt Matilda stepped aside as she felt the crowd jostling against her. So, the last ones in the car, it was with difficulty they found seats.

The train had stopped and was about to start again when Katherine remembered Aunt Matilda. Leaning over to see if she was all right, she gave a sudden gasp of horror.

Getting to her feet, she cleared the space in a single bound. As she reached the platform the door clanged shut behind her.

She glanced back. Mariana's face peered grimly out from behind the closed door as the train pulled slowly from the station.

"Here's a pickle," Katherine felt nervously of her empty pockets. "Mariana gone. Aunt Matilda somewhere unknown with the family pocketbook."

"Thank goodness, there she is!" she exclaimed fervently as she caught sight of her aunt through the crowd.

She hurried toward the little lady, who was looking wildly about.

"I saw your empty seat in the car just in time," Aunt Matilda put her hand over her heart to stop its excited beating. "Why didn't you tell me it was time to get off?"

"There was a vacant place on the train," Mariana had explained, "so I had just crossed over to sit next to her."

"I thought we had to get off at Seventy-second street and take a local to Times Square," said Aunt Matilda.

"Is this Seventy-second street?" asked Katherine in amazement. "Of all things! Mariana and I were talking and never noticed it!"

"What can we do about it now?" asked Aunt Matilda.

"We'll go right ahead," explained Katherine confidently.

Thanks to the rain, Katherine was able to get three fairly good seats.

Handing one of the tickets back through the window, she asked the man to reserve it for Miss MacLeod.

She watched the man write the name carefully on the back, making sure there would be no mistake.

While waiting for the curtain to go up, they watched eagerly. But no Mariana. As soon as the play began Aunt Matilda forgot all about her, but Katherine became seriously worried.

"Oh, dear!" A sudden sickening fear came over her. "What if Mariana knows? What if she has met some one who has told her? What if she got hold of a paper?"

But as the curtain went down, before Katherine had time to move, a familiar voice greeted her, and then her aunt:

"Ah, Miss Katherine, and Miss MacMickin," the stranger shook hands and then sat down in the empty seat beside Katherine.

"Jolly play, isn't it?" he asked.

"Why, really, Mr. Trent," replied Katherine, "I hardly know what's been going on. I'm—I've—there's something worrying me and I can't seem to get my mind on the play."

"That's too bad," said Mr. Trent cheerfully. "There are such a lot of cries flitting round loose, one is sure to butt up against one sooner or later."

Now, there's your friend, Miss MacLeod—"

Katherine drew a quick breath.

"I suppose, between the afternoon edition, announcing the terrible accident to young Dale Brinton, and the evening, contradicting it—she felt as if she had butted up against it hard."

"Contradicting it? Did you say contradicting it?" gasped Katherine.

"Haven't you heard?" asked Trent. "You read the afternoon account of how Brinton attempted a record flight? While five thousand three hundred feet up the motor went wrong. There was no time to learn how serious the accident really was, but the worst was feared."

"Yes, yes," broke in Katherine impatiently, "I read all of that."

"Well, the sequel in the later edition was that Brinton, in some marvelous manner, escaped, entirely uninjured. You don't suppose by any chance Miss MacLeod didn't see that later edition? Pshaw! She must have. She surely wouldn't be here if she hadn't."

"Here? Did you say here?" asked Katherine eagerly.

"Saw her just a few minutes ago sitting in another part of the house. Come to think of it, she did look worried; real sort of anxious."

"It isn't over Dale's accident. She doesn't know anything about that. I didn't see any use of Mariana worrying before all the facts of the case were known."

Trent hastened to offer to go in pursuit of the lost Mariana, and promised to restore her to her vacant place in short order.

"Remember," warned Katherine, "Mariana doesn't know anything about Dale's accident."

Katherine waited impatiently for Mariana's arrival.

Just as the curtain went up for the second act Mariana slid into the vacant seat.

"Well, Mariana," whispered Katherine, "for pity's sake tell me what happened?"

"Just what I want to know," said Mariana.

"As agreed upon, for similar emergencies," replied Katherine. "I came directly here—bought the tickets—returned one to the box office to be called for by you—"

"I handed two back, to be called for by Aunt Matilda and you," broke in Mariana.

"But, Mariana, why didn't you ask for the one I left for you?" gasped Katherine.

"But, Katherine, why didn't you ask for the two I left for you?" repeated Mariana.

"Because we got here first," answered Katherine.

"Just shed a tear over that second set of seats going to waste," groaned Mariana. "I've had enough excitement to last me for some few days."

"Meaning?" whispered Katherine.

"Why, first Dale's accident, of course, then this."

"You know?" gasped Katherine.

"My dear Katherine," replied Mariana, "you don't suppose for one second that that news was allowed to escape my attention. Fourteen perfectly good friends at the boarding-house let their soup get cold while they waited for me to return. With one accord they asked if I had heard the news—first and second edition."

"If I had only taken time for another guess," said Katherine wearily.

"I've about decided," whispered Mariana, "to tell Dale that he'll have to get either a new fad or a new fiancée."

Katherine didn't reply, but she thought it would also be much easier on her friends.

LOCAL BRIEFS

Mrs. J. A. Holton yesterday morning underwent an operation for appendicitis at the local sanitarium, and friends of the family are well pleased to know that the operation was entirely successful and Mrs. Holton promises a speedy recovery.

The many friends of W. F. Dutton are glad to see him able to be about, even though it is with the aid of crutches. Bill says his broken ankle is apparently mending nicely, and he hopes soon to be able to use the member as well as ever.

F. R. Wulff left Monday enroute to Detroit, where he will attend the annual meeting of Dodge Bros. automobile representatives, and incidentally inspect the Dodge Bros. plant and get first-hand information as regards their new policies and plans for the coming year. Mr. Wulff will also attend the automobile races at Indianapolis, before returning. He expects to be gone about ten days.

The Rev. J. H. Taylor returned last Friday from Chattanooga, Tenn., where he had been in attendance upon the Southern Baptist convention, and he reports the most enjoyable twelve-days' trip of his life. The convention was one of the greatest had by the Southern Baptists. Among other points of interest, the delegates were taken for a trip over Lookout Mountain, and also over the famous Chickamauga battle grounds.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Spiller, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Grady Burns, were business visitors in Brady from Voca community Tuesday. Mr. Spiller is getting about with difficulty, and is obliged to use crutches on account of a fall sustained last October. Mr. Spiller was pitched heavily to the ground and sustained an injured hip. Following this, rheumatism settled in the injured limb, and for a long time he was scarcely able to stir. He now can bear his weight upon the leg, but it still gives him much uneasiness.

Mr. Nathan is experiencing discomfort as a result of one of the ribs being fractured and having fractured another rib. The injuries were sustained Saturday while Mr. Abernathy was unloading a coop of chickens from a wagon onto the sidewalk in front of Brady Brokerage Co. His foot slipped and he fell heavily against the high cement curbing. Mr. Abernathy has been remaining at home the past few days, nursing his injuries and hopes, with care, to soon have recovered sufficiently to again take up his work.

Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Wegner returned yesterday morning from Austin, where they had spent a week following Mr. Wegner's long stay at the Santa Fe sanitarium at Temple, and all their many friends are delighted to learn that "Bully" is now on the high road to recovery. The severe illness he has just successfully passed through, shows in his emaciated condition, but his eyes are bright, and his spirits are good, and no one doubts for a minute but what within a month or so, he will be back to his former good health once more. Mr. Wegner's rapid and remarkable recovery is a source of gratification to all, and no less to himself.

H. N. Cook and Herbert Wood returned the latter part of last week from the Ozark mountains in Missouri, where they had spent a very enjoyable two weeks camping and fishing on one of the famous streams in that section. They report the country one of the most beautiful ever seen, the streams abounding in fish, and every accommodation offered the folks who desire to enjoy a real outing.

Boyd Commander was a business visitor from Lohn in Brady the first of the week, and was incidentally explaining that he had his thumb tied up for the reason that he had all but chopped off the end of it last Sunday, while cutting kindling. He placed the lacerated tip back in place and bandaged it well, and says the doctor thinks it will be just as good as new. Mr. and Mrs. Commander are this week occupying their residence in West Brady, and will make their home here, Mr. Commander having been named a member of the Central school faculty.
