OWNING STILL NOT PROHIBITED BY DEAN LAW, COURT HOLDS

Austin, Nov. 9.—It is not against the State law to possess equipment for manufacturing intoxicating liquors, the Court of Criminal Appeals held today in reversing and dismissing the case of Frank Cox, sentenced one year in Shelby county for that offense.

In amending the Dean law the legislature at the last special session did not enumerate possession of equipment in the forbidden acts, the court held, after an examination of the amended statutes. Therefore it is not unlawful, the court decided. The case against Cox was dismissed.

GRAND JURIES WITH WOMEN HELD VOID BY COURT OF APPEALS

Austin, Nov. 9.—Women are eligible to serve on grand juries in Texas, the Court of Criminal Appeals held today in reversing and dismissing the case of Dick Harper, given two years for burglary in McLennan county.

The records showed that ten men and two women composed the grand jury which returned an indictment against Harper. He appealed his case, claiming that such a grand jury was illegal and could not return a legal indictment.

I returning the decision the court held that the Constitution says that grand juries must be composed of "twelve men" and that it cannot be construed as including women. Also that the suffrage act by Congress gave the women right to vote but that did not qualify them as grand jurors.

Death of J. C. Taylor.

The death of J. C. Taylor, which occurred Tuesday night at 10:15 o'clock at the home of his sister, Mrs. S. S. Graham, brought sadness to his host of friends. Mr. Taylor had been in ill health for a number of weeks, but following treatment at the local sanitarium, appeared much improved in health; so much so, in fact, that he was able to come to town for short periods the past week or two. Since last Thursday, however, he appeared worse again, and Sunday was unable to leave the house. Monday a decided turn for the worse persuaded the fact that the end was not far off. Death resulted from diabetes.

Despite his ill health, Mr. Taylor bore his sufferings uncomplainingly. Of quiet and unassuming disposition, he always had a smile and a cheerful word for his friends, and was loved and esteemed by all who knew him. He was born in Madison, Ind., 48 years ago, and had spent the greater part of his life there. For a period of about ten years he had made his home in Frankfort, Ky., where he was engaged in business, but for the past three years he had made his home here. Within the past few months he had opened a filling station on South Blackburn street, conducting the same up to the time of his fatal illness.

Funeral services were held at the Graham residence Wednesday evening at 5:00 o'clock by the Rev. S. H. Jones. The body was sent to his old home at Madison, Ind., on the night train, Mr. Graham accompanying the corpse. Funeral services will be held at Madison Saturday morning.

Mr. Taylor is survived by three sisters: Mrs. Graham of Brady, Mrs. W. W. Collins of Kansas City and Mrs. C. R. Belcher of Lexington, Ky., and one brother, I. B. Taylor, of Indianapolis, Ind. Mrs. Collins had been here the past several weeks assisting in the care of her brother. To the bereaved ones is extended the heartfelt sympathy of all.

IMAGINARY SPEECH OF JOHN ADAMS

The Brady Standard's Americanization Series

In his eulogy on Adams and Jefferson, Daniel Webster gave the following imaginary speech of John Adams in urging the adoption of the Declaration of Independence:

Sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish, I give my hand and heart to this vote. It is true, indeed, that in the beginning we aimed not at independence, but there's a divinity which shapes our ends. The injustice of England has driven us to arms; and, blinded to her own interest for our good, she has obstinately persisted, till independence is now within our grasp. We have but to reach forth to it, and it is ours. Why, then, should we defer the declaration?

Is any man so weak as now to hope for a reconciliation with England, which shall leave either safety to the country and its liberties, or safety to his own life and his own honor? Cut off from all hope of royal clemency what are you, what can you be, while the power of England remains, but outlaws? If we postpone independence, do we mean to carry on or to give up the war? Do we mean to submit to the measures of Parliament, Boston Port Bill and all? Do we mean to submit, and consent that we ourselves shall be ground to powder, and our country and its rights trodden down in the dust?

If we fail, it can be no worse for us. But we shall not fail. The cause will raise up armies; the cause will create navies. The people, the people, if we are true to them, will carry us, and will carry themselves, gloriously through this struggle. I care not how fickle other people have been found. I know the people of these colonies, and I know that resistance to British aggression is deep and settled in their hearts, and cannot be eradicated. Every colony, indeed, has expressed its willingness to follow, if we but take the lead.

Sir, the declaration will inspire the people with increased courage. Instead of a long and bloody war for the restoration of privileges, for redress of grievances, for chartered immunities held under a British king, set before them the glorious object of entire independence, and it will breathe into them anew the breath of life. Read this declaration at the head of the army; every sword will be drawn from its scabbard, and the solemn vow uttered, to maintain it, or to perish on the bed of honor. Publish it from the pulpit; religion will approve it, and the love of religious liberty will cling around public halls; proclaim it there; let them hear it who heard the first roar of the enemy's cannon; let them see it who saw their brothers and their sons fall on Concord, and the very walls will cry out in its support.

Sir, before God, I believe the hour is come. My judgment approves this measure, and my whole heart is in it. All that I have, all that I am, and all that I hope in this life, I am now ready here to stake upon it; and I leave off as I began, that, live or die, survive or perish, I am for this declaration. It is my living sentiment, and, by the blessing of God, it shall be my dying sentiment—INDEPENDENCE NOW, and INDEPENDENCE FOREVER!

(Editor's Note—The articles appearing in the above space from week to week are taken from "Americanization" by Elwood Griscom, Jr. This excellent volume, which is a collection of articles upon the general theme of patriotism and good citizenship, is presented to the schools of Texas by the Bodies of Scottish Rite Masonry in Texas).

MAN TRAVELING UNGUARDED TO SERVE 6-YEAR TERM MAKES APPEAL TO NEFF FOR PARDON

Austin, Nov. 5.—Unaccompanied by an officer, A. M. Harkey of McCulloch county, enroute to Huntsville to serve a six-year sentence in the penitentiary on conviction of attempted poison of his father-in-law, made a personal appeal to Governor Neff for a pardon.

Harkey insisted to the Governor that he was not guilty of the charge for which he is convicted. The Governor listened to Harkey's plea but gave no intimation as to what action he will take, but merely advised Harkey to proceed to Huntsville, comply with the rules and regulations of the institution and make a good record. The case against Harkey was recently affirmed by the Court of Criminal Appeals. According to the record, he made an attempt to poison J. N. Coalsen, his father-in-law by placing strychnine in a coffee pot in which his mother-in-law was in the act of making coffee. She discovered a peculiar substance in the pot and threw out the grounds. An analysis was made of the grounds and disclosed the presence of strychnine.

TEXAS TO BE PROTECTED UNDER NEW HIGHWAY LAW IN RECEIVING FEDERAL AID

Washington, Nov. 4.—Adoption of the conference report by the Senate last night on amendments to the general road act is to be followed by a supplemental bill which would make certain the ability of Texas, Arkansas and other States to participate in the Federal aid equal to other states. The new law is ready for the White House and approval of the leaders has been obtained to make further change to meet objections of some of the states.

The total of the new act is for $90,000,000 Federal aid, $75,000,000 of which is for the states, the remainder being for national parks and trails. Texas will participate to the extent of more than $4,000,000.

BRADY LOSES TO JUNCTION ELEVEN SATURDAY BY SCORE OF 20 TO 0

The Junction eleven claimed the second defeat of the season administered to the local team, when they carried off the honors of the gridiron last Saturday, 20 to 0. Brady played the game hard, and Brady rooters pulled hard for the team, but without avail. The Junction team had the advantage of weight, and bucked Brady's line with good effect. Their first score was made towards the close of the first quarter, when they put the ball over from the 30 yard line. The period ended with Brady in possession of the ball on the ten-yard line. In the beginning of the second quarter Brady put the ball on the five-yard line by a forward pass, but lost it on downs, after advancing it to within a yard of goal line.

A return game will be played by Brady with Junction today, the contest being one of the features of the big Armistice Day celebration in Junction.

E. J. Demasters, of Visalia, California, was in Brady yesterday, in company with A. O. Melton of the Cassidy Commission Co. at Fort Worth, buying hogs. Ben Strickland was showing the gentlemen around and assisting them in filling Mr. Demasters' needs. Some two or three carloads of stock hogs are to be made up for shipment to California, which Mr. Demasters will use to stock his own ranch and also to sell out among other stockmen. Mr. Demasters remarked that it was a long way to come for hogs, but that McCulloch county was the only place he could fill his needs. He was mightily pleased with the class of stuff being secured for him by Mr. Strickland.

Next week the city will begin connecting 80 per cent of the private consumers with the city lines. LEONARD WILLIS SHOOTED ED LEMONS AT LONDON

Word received here late this evening by Sheriff J. C. Wall told of a shooting affray in which Leonard Willis and Ed Lemons, both well-known Voca men, were principals. The tragedy occurred near London, but in Menard county. First intimation of the affair was had from parties living in the London community, and shortly after Sheriff F. M. Slaughter of Menard phoned Mr. Wall.

The only facts in the case so far known are that it is alleged Willis, in company with his father, W. J. Willis, was hot on the trail of Lemons, who was accused of stealing from the former. The shooting occurred almost immediately after Willis overtook Lemons, and while the latter was seated in his car. The weapon used was not ascertained, but it was stated that Lemons was mightily seriously hurt.

Mr. Wall was advised that Mr. Lemons had left the scene of the shooting at about 5:00 o'clock yesterday evening, and was heading towards Brady.

LOST CREEK ECHOES.

"A Citizen" Boosts the Home Town Paper—Fire Burns Kitchen.

Voca, Texas, Nov. 8.

Editor Brady Standard:

I have noted that the last Friday's issue of The Standard was full of letters from the correspondents, while there was nothing of interest to report from here, yet it looked like the Lost Creek Echoes should have been heard—but none was to be heard.

Late Tuesday evening fire destroyed the kitchen of John Evans at Voca. The kitchen was built in September. The main building, but only a few feet distance and on the north side and the wind was from the south and the fire broke out on the north end which gave the fire fighters the advantage and as the fire consumed the north end the men kept prizing the building away from the dwelling and using water freely with buckets and saved the main building. The cause of the fire was a defective flue.

People should give their flues a close inspection once or twice a year. It would save many houses from being destroyed by fire.

Quite a lively game of basket ball was played at the Lost Creek school house last Friday evening between the best players among the citizens and the school players. Both sides played to win. We had some lively playing, ending with a tie.

Mr. Eddie Greene and family of Field Creek are moving to our community. Mr. Green has leased the S. N. Lemons place.

Everybody should help the editor boost The Standard during the week of the Home Paper Boosting Week. All home town papers should be read by every home county citizen. If he is one hundred per cent home county man, he should be one hundred per cent for his home county paper.

I guess I am two hundred per cent for we have two home papers and I read both every week. Wonder how many there are that don't read either? I hope they are few.

An Appreciation.

I should have sent in my renewal to your paper ere this, but have been thinking that some of my papers would have to be discontinued and have tried to make up my mind that I could leave off The Standard, yet somehow there remains that desire to keep in touch with your section and there seems no better way than to renew my subscription to The Brady Standard—so here it is.

I think the Mississippi Delta people have tried to keep up with Texas this fall in gathering their cotton. Have never seen the cotton as nearly out at this season of the year as it is now, and there is a very good crop, except in a few sections where the boll weevil damaged it.

Wish you would please wake up your Calf Creek correspondent, as we have not heard from there in some time.

With very best wishes to The Standard and all my Texas friends, I am, sincerely,

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Among Brady's returning hunters the first of the week was the party composed of Messrs. John Blackwell, Henry Jordan, Bill Murphy, Jeff Wood, Aubrey Jones and Vernon Jordan, who had been out something like ten days or two weeks, camping, fishing and hunting. Their bag included five buck, all of which were killed on the return trip from the Chisos mountains. While in the Chisos mountains, Mr. Jordan had opportunity to shoot a black bear, but mistook it for a black calf until the animal loped out of range. Investigation then showed very plainly the tracks of the bear where it had been feasting on acorns. The party reports that bear are very destructive in that section, stripping the trees and shrubs and the ranchmen welcome hunters. In fact, the bears became so destructive a couple years ago that the ranchmen hired men to hunt them. The party left Brady the latter part of last month, and while waiting for the open season on deer, they enjoyed bountiful catches of fish while camped on the Llano.

The friends of Ferris Woodard are having considerable fun at his expense over the fact that he got four shots broadside at what he describes as the biggest buck he ever saw, and missed all four. Ferris says his aim was good, but the sight on his gun was considerably to the bad. In company with the Jones boys and Harvey Walker, one-time county judge of McCulloch county, Ferris says they journeyed from the Eldorado country to San Diego peak, where they had been invited by Lee Shuler, well-remembered as a former McCulloch county ranchman, and where they had the time of their lives. The party found Mr. Shuler highly pleased with his progress since moving to that section. When the war came on, and Mr. Shuler's boy was drafted for service, he sold all his sheep and goats, the market being at the top, and paid his ranch and cattle out with the proceeds. As a result he now controls some 76 sections of land; his cattle are sleek and fat despite the fact that it is dry there the same as elsewhere in Texas, and Mr. Shuler is living on the fat of the land.

The hunting party composed of Ben Smith, D. C. Blauvelt, Warren F. Harkrider and J. S. (Pappy) Smith, accompanied by Willie Blauvelt and Horace Nance of Lampasas, spent the past week hunting in the vicinity of San Diego peak, report the most exciting time of all the parties so far returned. In their hunt, they were joined by J. I. Smith of Eldorado, son of "Pappy" Smith, who is pasturing stock in that section. A bear was spotted in a cave, and Warren Harkrider undertook to watch the cave while the rest of the bunch were being rounded up to aid in the killing of bruin. On account of the high altitude, a fire had to be built to keep warm, and while toasting his shins at the fire, along rambled another bear. Warren took several shots at him, tumbling him over, but the bear got up, and in circling about a clump of bushes, met another one of the party almost head on in a path. In the meantime, a couple of the bunch were firing at bruin from up the mountainside, and in all twenty-two shots were fired without stopping the bear, who went up the side of an almost perpendicular 300-foot bluff. Attempts to set a trap gun at the entrance of the cave were futile and the party returned minus the coveted bear skins, although they had antlers enough to satisfy them for the time being. The two Lampasas men remained at the peak in the hopes of getting another shot at Mr. Bruin.

Catarrahal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of Deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists, 75c.

"EVERYTHING FROM A PIN TO A LOCOMOTIVE."

BRADY, TEXAS

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Mrs. S. W. Espy and son, Jim, expect to leave Saturday for Galveston, where they will visit an aunt, while Jim has his eyes treated by a specialist. From there, he will go to Waco to attend business college to take a bookkeeping course.

Considerable interest was manifested by Bradyites in the arrival here Monday of Bert Holland and Jim Chamberlin of the Mercury community upon their return from a hunting trip. Among their bag they showed the paw and skin of a small black bear.

J. B. Smith, superintendent of the Brady schools, is about once more, and all his many friends are pleased to learn of his speedy recovery from his operation for appendicitis. Mr. Smith was out in less than two weeks from the time he went on the operating table.

W. H. Ballou and Broady Ogden joined the numbers of mighty hunters who have been faring forth from Brady recently, and in company with Joe and Jim Matthews enjoyed a hunt in Menard county. Will says he bagged a six-point buck, but failed to tell of the prowess of his companions.

The many friends of Clyde Terry were pleased to see him about town again this week, following a siege of about sixty days with typhoid fever. Mr. Terry is getting about with the aid of crutches, and plainly shows the effects of his long illness, but says it feels good to be able to get about once more.

L. Ballou was 78 years young the past week—young, because he is as spry as a man half his age. Further than that, he has the proud distinction of having been born in Texas, at Navasota, and having spent all his life here—three of the number being while Texas was a republic. This is a record which few men in the state can boast.

W. O. Hall, the Lohn telephone man, was in Brady yesterday on business. Mr. Hall states that he has been working mighty hard this week trying to get water power rigged up on his father's place in San Saba county, and about four miles north of Pontotoc. He says his father has a splendid windmill, but that the

Remember Us, America.

We are your sons who fought your fight
Deep in the mud of Flemish rain,
And who, when duty called us forth
Chose not to count the cost or pain.
We are your sons who paid for you
Who raise our voices broken, sore,
To call to mind a trust you keep
That we may sleep in peace once more.

O wake and speak, America!
Shake off the spell that fastens you!
Bring back the far-look to your eyes!
Complete the task you swore to do!
O shame that you have martyred him
Who led you safely through your fight—
Why have you scorned his lofty dreams?
Why have you thrown away your light?

We are your sons who loved you well,
Who can no longer sleep the day—
We see the purpose that we held
Trampled in dust and thrown away!
We fought your good and noble fight.
No selfish comfort did we seek—
Great God! Will you not listen now?
We are your martyred sons who speak!

O fairest land of all the world,
Sweet homeland that we left with tears,
Dream on your dreams of brotherhood
While we lie silent through the years.
Turn back to God, America!
Lift up your troubled face again,
And keep the trust we left with you,
That we shall not have died in vain.

—By Aubrey Allan Graves.
(America's reaction from the idealism that led her into the World War inspired this poem of protest. Its author is a young Texan who was born in Temple in 1900. Mr. Graves was for three years a student at Southwestern University and is now taking his last year at the University of California.)

If every person in McCulloch county could read this poem, surely they would join the "Red Cross, for the very least we can do is to help the poor disabled soldiers who helped to save America.

MRS. WILSON JORDAN,
Chairman Roll Call Activities.

Winds have been so light that all the farmers there are being forced to put in pumping engines.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hickey were here from Waldrip community Wednesday shopping, and Mr. Hickey reported that he has just returned from one of the best hunts he had ever enjoyed. Together with Ben Drake, last Monday he went to the vicinity of Llano, where they had been invited by their friend Ewell Moore. Mr. Hickey says he killed a buck that same night, and his friend Drake killed one the next morning before sunrise. Mr. Hickey says he will just be compelled to try another hunt, after having such good luck.

P. C. Clifton was in Brady Wednesday, accompanied by his daughter, Vera. P. C. says that he and John Matthews started on a deer hunt about a week ago in the Kerrville mountains, and had been out only a few minutes when they received a telegram that one of Mr. Matthews' children was threatened with pneumonia, but who is now improving. P. C. says he saw a deer leap over the cedar bushes, and shot at it in the hopes of turning it into an open spot, but without success. He says he has just had his appetite for venison whetted, and expects to go back for another shot.

G. A. Crawford reports that his father, Bud Crawford, erstwhile "Sage of Pasche," but who for the past year has been making his home at Moro, a place in Taylor county about 42 miles from Abilene, made good crops there this year, including 350 bushels corn, plenty of maize to do him and 7½ bales of cotton. Mr. Crawford, however, is moving to a larger place, about eight miles from Abilene, where his son, O. N., and children who have been at Carlsbad, will join him. Uncle Bud always has had a hankering to go back to Old Mexico, and every move he makes, he has been getting nearer to the border.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Harris were Brady visitors from their Broadmoor ranch yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Harris have recently returned from St. Louis, Indianapolis and Cincinnati, where they visited their daughters and son, and where Mrs. Harris has been spending the past four months. While in Indianapolis, Mr. and Mrs. Harris celebrated their 56th wedding anniversary, the occasion being a most delightful family gathering. Mr. and Mrs. Harris are one of McCulloch county's most highly esteemed couples, and all their many friends will join in congratulating them upon having lived to see so eventful an occasion, and trust that many more such enjoyable anniversaries may be theirs.

MONTHLY MEETING WAPLES-PLATTER CO. IN BROWNWOOD WELL ATTENDED

The Brownwood Bulletin gives the following account of the monthly meeting of Waples-Platter company held in Brownwood last Saturday, and which was attended, among others, by R. M. Teas and E. B. Newsom, both of the Brady house, and also by L. B. Young, formerly with the local branch:

The regular monthly meeting of the Waples-Platter Company was held in Brownwood Saturday, one feature being luncheon at the Jefferson hotel, which was attended by L. B. Young and John N. McCain of Brownwood, E. R. Burr of Dublin, R. M. Teas of Brady, R. A. Browning of Dublin, O. Kunitz and wife of Brownwood, J. B. Laskie of Fort Worth, E. B. Newsom of Brady, J. A. Johnson of San Angelo, J. S. Behr of Brownwood, W. Y. Young of San Angelo and Holloway Smith of San Angelo. L. B. Young and John N. McCain were hosts and the social features were of a most enjoyable nature. BRADY, TEXAS, Nov. 11, 1921

HONEST INJUN.

Our hat is off to this, the greatest of National Holidays—Armistice Day—and to the gallant boys whose deeds of valor made the day. May the Peace they won for us endure for a thousand years!

FORGETFULNESS.

Forgetfulness has cost many a man a pretty penny. Forgetfulness is, in many cases, a waste of time, effort and money. Too often it is the excuse for actual indifference. As a concrete example take the matter of replacing the 6-inch water main on Blackburn street from the square to the top of the hill with an eight-inch main. As The Standard has heretofore pointed out, this would mean the cutting down of our key rate from 42c to 32c—a saving of nearly one-fourth of the money spent by the mercantile and business interests of Brady in paying fire insurance premiums. This saving would pay for the cost of the new main in just a year or two—and the city would still have the old 6-inch main in place in some section of the city where an extension of the mains is badly needed.

Are the citizens of Brady indifferent to this saving? Or are they merely forgetful in the matter?

Now that economy is the rule in all matters of business and living, let's economize in this matter. For years we have tried to stop up the small leaks, the while letting our finances be drained at the spigot.

A couple thousand dollars expended in placing eight-inch mains on these six blocks will mean added fire protection, and give us this added fire protection at a greatly reduced cost.

GOOD ROADS.

If McCulloch county is to have good roads, then McCulloch county citizens must look upon the subject with liberal minds. A good roads bond issue of only a few thousands won't accomplish the desired result. The issue must be large enough to provide for the building of first-class graveled highways throughout the county. McCulloch county has been fortunate in that all her main highways—three to the north and two to the south of Brady, are officially designated highways. This means that for money spent by the county in the improvement of these highways, we are practically assured of federal aid being given, dollar for dollar on the amount we spend. That means in addition to the money we ourselves vote to spend on the roads, an equal sum will come to us from federal sources. In other words, for every dollar we put into circulation in our county, another dollar will be put in circulation here by the federal government.

Then there is another point to consider in naming the amount of the proposed good roads bond issue, and that is, after improving all our recognized highways, there should remain a sum sufficiently large to improve the main roads connecting the various communities with these highways. If McCulloch county is to build good roads, let's build them right. Let's not be penny wise, and pound foolish.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL.

November 11th to 24th is the period of the Red Cross Annual Roll Call. Every citizen of the United States should feel it not only a duty, but a privilege to have his name on the Red Cross Roll Call. A great national organization whose efforts are devoted to the relieving of distress in times of famine, pestilence, flood or other need, should not have to beg for the membership of any man, especially when but $1.00 pays for a year's membership. Nor should the citizenship be content merely to give $1.00 when placing their name upon the Red Cross roll—everyone who can, should give as much as possible. $10, $25, $50 and $100 memberships are needed to carry on the work of this organization in McCulloch county. But 50c of each membership goes to the national organization; the balance remains here for service in this county.

Most every citizen realizes the great benefit of having a Red Cross community nurse. Then every citizen should give as liberally as his means permit, in order that McCulloch county may again secure the services of a community nurse.

MULTUM IN PARVO.

There are many ways of looking at a road bond issue. One is to figure the actual dollars and cents that it will cost each individual in tax money. The other is to figure the infinitely greater sum in dollars and cents that bad roads will cost in maintenance, repairs, time and labor.

THINGS TO THINK ABOUT.

Here is an appreciated gem from the pen of The Standard's Lost Creek correspondent—appreciated, at least, by the editor:

"Everybody should help the editor boost The Standard during the week of the Home Paper Boosting Week. All home town papers should be read by every home county citizen. Stover Sampson Windmills

The Most Important Windmill Improvement in Years

The original double geared windmill now possesses the most important windmill improvement in the last decade—HYATT ROLLER BEARINGS. These famous bearings run in tight hard oil cases and will run for years without attention. These bearings entirely replace the babbitt bearings formerly used and eliminate friction to such an extent as to increase pumping capacity, prevent harmful wear on shafts and greatly add to the dependability and life of the 8-, 9- and 10-foot Stover Samson Windmill on which they are installed.

The fact that practically nine out of every ten motor cars, trucks and tractors are equipped with them best attests the added efficiency and economy of operation the installation of Hyatt Roller Bearings imparts to all 8-, 9- and 10-foot Stover Samson Windmills.

In the Stover Samson Windmill of today is found the highest windmill development. Cost limitations have not interfered with the use of everything in the way of materials and features necessary to make the Samson the most durable, efficient and thoroughly practical, long-lived windmill on the market today.

We have the Samson windmills in stock both in the plain and Hyatt Roller Bearings. We especially call attention to the Roller Bearing Mill, because it is noiseless, oil-less, only needs to be oiled once in the lifetime of the mill.

To the Sheriff or any Constable of McCulloch County—Greeting:

You are hereby commanded that you summon Thad O. Day, Maurice E. Daley, Frank J. O'Brien, Sidney J. Winter, Albert L. Tom and Joseph L. Gill, by making publication of this citation in some newspaper published in McCulloch county, Texas, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not then in the nearest county where a newspaper is published, once in each week for four consecutive weeks previous to the return day of this citation, to be and appear before the District Court of McCulloch county, Texas, at the next term thereof, to be held at the Court House in Brady, Texas, on the Eleventh Monday after the First Monday in January 1922, the same being the 20th day of March A. D. 1922, then and there to answer the Plaintiff's Original Petition filed in a suit in said Court on the 12th day of September 1921, wherein Ernest Cornils is Plaintiff, and Thad O. Day, Maurice E. Daley, Frank J. O'Brien, Sidney J. Winter, Albert L. Tom and Joseph L. Gill are defendants, the File No. of said suit being No. 2105, and the nature of Plaintiff's demand and his cause of action is as follows:

"The State of Texas, County of McCulloch. In District Court, McCulloch County, Texas, September Term, 1921.

To the Honorable District Court of McCulloch County, Texas:

Your petitioner, Ernest Cornils, hereinafter called plaintiff, complaining of Thad O. Day, Maurice E. Daley, Frank J. O'Brien, Sidney J. Winter, Albert L. Tom and Joseph L. Gill, hereinafter called defendants, respectfully represents that plaintiff resides in McCulloch county, Texas, and that all of the defendants are non-residents of the State of Texas, and that defendants are doing business under the name of Day-Daley Petroleum Association and compose the Day-Daley Petroleum Association or firm, and for cause of action plaintiff respectfully shows:

That said defendants have been engaged in the business of drilling oil wells and prospecting for oil in McCulloch county, Texas, having defendant, Thad O. Day, located in McCulloch county in charge of said work play hands and secure labor to carry on said work and make any and all contracts necessary or essential in the prosecution of said work, and said defendant, Thad O. Day, acting for himself and said other defendants, employed plaintiff to work for defendants in said drilling operations, under which contract plaintiff began work for defendants on or about April 29, 1921, under the terms of which contract defendants agreed to pay plaintiff the sum of $10.00 per day straight time for each and every day, Sundays included, plaintiff being employed by defendants and working for defendants as a tool-dresser and working as a tool-dresser in the work of drilling said wells, and acting under said contract of employment plaintiff worked for defendants continuously from the time he began on April 29th, 1921, to and including September 11, 1921, amounting to 136 days; that under said contract under which plaintiff did said work for defendants, plaintiffs said wages were to be paid on the first of each and every month for the preceding month, and plaintiffs' wages were due at the end of each of said months, and said wages for said eleven days since September first were due as performed, as hereinafter alleged, and plaintiff says that all of said wages so due him by defendants are long past due and wholly unpaid, and though often requested so to do defendants have wholly failed and refused and still fail and refuse to pay same or any part thereof; that defendants paid plaintiff the sum of $15.00, leaving a balance due and unpaid of $1345.00, and all of said sum of $1345.00 is past due and wholly unpaid. That plaintiff is the legal owner and holder of said account. That defendants ceased active operations in McCulloch county on August 20th, 1921, and the defendant, Thad O. Day, who was in charge of said work as aforesaid, left McCulloch county and the State of Texas on or about said last mentioned date, and before leaving told plaintiff that his, plaintiffs, said contract and employment would continue and his wages under said contract would continue to run until plaintiff was paid off and discharged, and that defendants would need plaintiff to hold himself in readiness to ship their equipment and property out of McCulloch county to defendants at such place in the North as defendants might desire, and under such instructions from defendants plaintiff has continued in said employment and sues to recover said sum of $10.00 per day since August 20th, until and including September 11th, together with said wages due prior to August 20th, 1921.

Wherefore, premises considered, plaintiff prays that defendants, who are non-residents of the State of Texas, be cited by publication to appear and answer this suit, and that upon hearing hereon plaintiff have judgment against defendants for his debt in the said sum of $1345.00 and all costs of suit, and for such other and further and different relief, general and special, legal and equitable, as plaintiff may be entitled to receive.

Herein fail not, but have you before said Court, on the first day of the next term thereof, this Writ with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and seal of said Court, at office in Brady, Texas, this 10th day of October A. D. 1921.

P. A. CAMPBELL, Clerk of the District Court, McCulloch County, Texas.

OSCAR CALLAWAY, FORMER CONGRESSMAN, CANDIDATE TO SUCCEED BLANTON

In commenting on the action of the house of representatives in voting unanimously to censure Congressman Thomas L. Blanton, and in coming within eight votes of expelling him from that body, the Comanche Chief declares it out of the question to think of again sending him to Washington, and says:

Fortunate indeed for the people of this district that they have among them a citizen who has shown himself to be a wise and courageous statesman—a man who commands the respect of not only the people of his state and district, but who stands admired and honored by his associates, of every shade of political faith, in the highest law-making body in the world of which he was at one time one of the active and influential members. That man is Oscar Callaway, of Comanche.

There is nothing of the spectacular about Oscar Callaway; he never plays to the galleries, he never seeks to ascertain which way the political wind is blowing, but like the statesman that he is, with only the highest welfare of the people at heart, he studies to know the right, and with courage and fidelity stands by his convictions. That is the kind of a man that is needed to represent this district in congress. With Oscar Callaway in the seat now occupied by Thomas L. Blanton this district would have some influence in shaping legislation and protecting the rights and liberties of the people. With a mind ever alert and able to discern the legitimate result of the enactment of unwise laws, Oscar Callaway would stand, as he has ever stood in the past, as the unflinching guardian of the interests of the great body of people who constitute the mud-sills of civilization, the farmers of our country.

Mr. Callaway is an able lawyer, an eloquent speaker, and a man among men. Since his retirement from congress where he served his people so faithfully and well, he has been on his farm in this county and has devoted his time to a personal study of the needs and requirements of the agricultural and livestock interests of the south. He knows from personal experience and contact with the men who till the soil and follow the business of stockraising, what is needed to make them prosper, and it was Oscar Callaway who in 1913 as a member of congress pointed out the disasters that would follow the establishment of the present Federal Reserve system, placing the finances of our country in the hands of a board that could be manipulated to meet the demands of the big financiers of the north and east. With prophetic eye and the courage of a true patriot he pointed out the pernicious results of the enactment of this law, which the events of the past twelve months have demonstrated. For standing up and denouncing a system fraught with such disaster to southern farmers and stockmen, and declaring his hostility to the measure put forth by the leaders of the democratic party and championed by a democratic administration, his seat was contested in the following election and he was retired to private life—a condition he preferred to a repudiation of sound principles of government in violation of his convictions. But the people now see that Oscar Callaway was right and that in him they had a representative who dared to do his duty and who had the wisdom to foresee the ruin that would follow the enactment of such a law.

Should the voters of this district elect Oscar Callaway to represent them in congress as they will do, they will have reason to be proud of their choice, for he will do his duty and fulfill every pledge he makes to the people.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Young Carlyle Wilburton Dale, or "Bill Dale," as he elects to be known, son of a wealthy coal operator, John K. Dale, arrives at the Halfway Switch, in eastern Tennessee, abandoning a life of idle ease—and incidentally a bride, Patricia Clavering, at the altar—determined to make his own way in life. He meets "Babe" Littleford, typical mountaineer girl. "By Heck," a character of the hills, takes him to John Moreland's home. Moreland is chief of his "clan," which has an old feud with the Littlefords. He tells Dale of the killing of his brother, David Moreland, years ago, owner of rich coal deposits, by a man named Carlyle. Moreland's description of "Carlyle" causes Dale to believe the man was his father.

CHAPTER II.—Dale arranges to make his home with the Moreland family, for whom he entertains a deep respect.

CHAPTER III.—Talking with "Babe" Littleford next day, Dale is ordered by "Black Adam" Ball, bully of the district, to leave "his girl." Babe replies spiritedly, and they fight. Dale whips the bully, though badly used up. He arranges with John Moreland to develop David's coal deposits. Babe Littleford sends a challenge to John Moreland to meet him with his followers next day, in battle. Moreland agrees.

CHAPTER IV.—During the night all the guns belonging to the Littlefords and the Morelands mysteriously disappear.

CHAPTER V.—Dale arranges to go to Cincinnati to secure money for the mining of the coal. The two clans find their weapons, which the women had hidden, and line up for battle. "Babe," in an effort to stop the fighting, crosses to the Moreland side of the river, and is accidentally shot by her father and seriously wounded.

CHAPTER VI.—To get proper surgical aid, John Moreland, Babe Littleford and Dale convey "Babe," unconscious, to the city. Doctors assure them she is not seriously hurt. Dale meets an old friend, Bobby McLaughlin, who had married Patricia Clavering. Telling his father of David Moreland's coal, the old gentleman's actions convince Babe of her father's guilt in the killing of Moreland.

CHAPTER VII.—It is arranged that "Babe" is to stay with Mrs. McLaughlin to be educated. Dale, refusing his father's proffered financial aid to develop the mine, interests Newton Whiskey, a gambler, who agrees to furnish the money. Babe realizes he loves "Babe."

CHAPTER VIII.—Returning to the Halfway Switch, Dale meets Major Bradley, lawyer, and real friend of the mountaineers, whom he engages as counsel for the company. A man named Goff, of evil repute, tries to bribe Dale to betray the Morelands by selling him the coal deposits, and telling them they are of little value. Dale attempts to threaten him, but Goff draws a revolver. Dale is unarmed.

CHAPTER IX.—Goff enlists the aid of a turbulent crowd, the Balls and Torreyas, to make trouble for Dale's company. The Littlefords and Morelands agree to forget the feud and dwell in harmony.

CHAPTER X.—"Babe" returns to her home, fearing she is a burden to the McLaughlins. Dale remonstrates, and she agrees to go back for the sake of an education. Waylaid by "Black Adam" Ball, Dale fights a pistol duel with the desperado, and Ball is killed. Dale is arrested and taken to jail at Carterville. He doesn't see how his shot could have killed Ball.

CHAPTER XI.—There is much speculation as to who really killed Ball, the general opinion being it was by Heck, who had constituted himself Dale's guardian.

CHAPTER XII.—On the pretext of investigating another coal deposit, Dale is decoyed to a gathering of the Balls and Torreyas. They "try" him for the murder of Adam Ball, find him guilty, and sentence him to be hanged next day. He is rescued by Heck. Goff is forced to leave the neighborhood.

CHAPTER XIII.—"Babe" writes Dale that she is living with his parents and that her education is progressing. Jimmy Payne, rich and dissolute, asks "Babe" to marry him, but she tells him she loves Dale.

CHAPTER XIV.—"Babe" comes to Carterville to attend Dale's trial. He is acquitted of the murder of Ball. Dale asks "Babe" to marry him. She loves him, but tells him she cannot be his wife.

CHAPTER XV.—"Babe" comes to Carterville to attend Dale's trial. He is acquitted of the murder of Ball. Dale asks "Babe" to marry him. She loves him, but tells him she cannot be his wife.

CHAPTER XVI.—"Babe" tells Mrs. Dale her son had asked her to marry him and that she refused. Pressed for a reason, she confesses she killed "Black Adam" Ball to save Dale's life, and that she feels she is not worthy to be his wife.

CHAPTER XVII.—Jimmy Payne presses his suit. "Babe" finally and definitely refuses him, though he promises that if she will marry him, he will hold up and concede the Littlefords, the girl's dearest wish.

CHAPTER XVIII.—Learning that the Balls and their kindred are planning to attack the place and kill him, Dale gathers the Littleford and Moreland clans for a last fit against the outlaws. The Balls are ousted and rounded up. A small boy is sent to kill Dale, but his generosity conquers the little fellow. Dale and the clan chiefs release the outlaws, giving them their freedom.

CHAPTER XIX.—With "Babe," old John K. Dale visits David Moreland's grave. The girl has long since guessed the grim secret of Dale's life, the killing of David Moreland in a drunken rage. John Moreland meets the old man at the grave and proposes to kill him. "Babe" pleads for his life. Learning he is "Bill" Dale's father, Moreland relents and finally agrees to forgive and forget the past.

Soon the thunder of the many rifles became almost a steady roar. The air was filled with the pungent odor of burning powder. Bill Dale emptied the magazine of his repeater, and sank behind the big chestnut to fill it again with cartridges from his belt. Bullets now whined on both sides of him; they cut greenish white furrows in the bark of both sides of the tree, and knocked up little spurts of black earth to his right and to his left; they cut off twigs within an arm's reach of him. A dozen Balls were now firing at him, seeking to avenge want to see my son; there is something I must tell him. Will you go with me, Elizabeth?"

"Of course, I'll go with you."

She thought she knew what it was that stirred him. By intuition, supplemented by Bill Dale's occasional cryptic utterances and pieced out by hill tradition, Elizabeth Littleford gradually had come into possession of the old coal man's grim secret.

Neither of them knew that John Moreland was then visiting his beloved old hills for the sake of some shooting.

The following day John K. Dale and Elizabeth Littleford alighted from a northbound passenger train at the Halfway Switch. The mountains were covered with three inches of snow, and the hemlock and pines bore heavy burdens of the beautiful white stuff; but the air was still, and it wasn't very cold.

"You'd get your clothing all black on the coal train," Dale said to his companion, "so you'd rather walk over, wouldn't you? Anyway, the train isn't here. I'm good for six miles, I think."

"Yes," smiled Ben Littleford's daughter, "I'd rather walk—if you're sure that six miles won't be too much for you."

Together, with the girl leading the way, they set out across David Moreland's mountain. The old trail showed not one footprint ahead of them; it was not so much used now. They said little. Each thought their own thoughts, and neither cared to speak them to the other.

Just before they reached the mountain's crest, they passed a group of snow-laden pines that concealed a big, brown-bearded man who had been stealthily following the trail of a lone wild turkey. He wore khaki hunting-clothes and high laced boots, and there was a certain English fineness about him. In his bare hands he carried a repeating rifle, which marked him as one born in the hills; a lowlander would have had a coke-bored shotgun.

When he saw John K. Dale he stopped suddenly. It might have been intuition, or it might have been sheer curiosity, the average hillman being a stranger to neither—he followed and watched the two, unseen by them.

On the pine-fringed crest, Elizabeth Littleford halted to view that which lay around and below him. Old Dale stopped close at her side, and he, too, looked at that which lay around and below them; and to his mind also there came memories crowding.

The young woman brushed back a wayward wisp of brown hair and turned to the man beside her.

"The Moreland part of the settlement looks lonesome, don't it?" she said. "See, there's no smoke comin' from their cabin chimneys. . . ." She went on absently, "But the Littlefords are there yet."

Old Dale caught the meaning that was in the latter sentence. It was not a shallow meaning.

"We are going to take care of the Littlefords, Elizabeth," he assured her, "I've thought much over it, and just now I've decided. When I decide, it's for all time! you know that, don't you?"

A great gladness filled Elizabeth's heart. It did not occur to her to ask how, in what manner, he was going to take care of her people; it was enough to know that he was going to take care of them. He put a father's arm lightly around her shoulders. She tried to speak, choked, and couldn't utter a word.

There was a slight sound, the muffled breaking of a dry twig in front of them. Elizabeth Littleford looked up to see the giant figure of John Moreland, whose face was white and whose eyes were filled with the fire of hate and anger, who held a rifle in his cold, bare hands. The rifle's hammer came back, and the fine trigger caught it with a faint click.

Moreland took another step forward and leveled the weapon across the palms.

"If it was any use fo' ye to pray, Carlyle," he said, and his voice was shaking and hoarse and choked, "I'd give ye time. But it ain't no use at all. Look up. Face it. Try to be a man fo' one second in yore low-down life."

Old Dale raised his head, saw David Moreland's brother, and realized all there was to realize. His eyes widened a little; then a look of relief flitted across his heavy countenance.

"Shoot and even up the score," he said bravely, and his head was high. "According to your code, it is just. And I'll be able to forget at last, at last. So shoot and settle the account."

Moreland winced perceptibly. The big, crooked finger came way from the hair-fine trigger. He had never expected to hear the man whom he knew as John K. Carlyle say that which he had just said. It had never entered his mind that John K. Carlyle could be sorry.

Then the great and bitter desire for revenge rushed into his brain again, and his head went down, and his keen right eye looked along the sights and to the kneeling man's breast. His trigger finger began slowly to crook—

Until this instant Elizabeth Littleford had been as one frozen, had been as a figure carved in stone. Now she sprang to her feet and went between Moreland and his ancient enemy.

word. But it didn't matter. John K. Dale understood perfectly.

Then he took his arm away, faced to the right, and drew his hat rim low over his eyes. For two minutes he stood there and looked for the little old cabin down near the foot of the north end of the mountain, and he failed to find it. His mind had gone back once more to that awful night that had cut his life in twain. He remembered painfully waking in the early morning with an aching head and with the rankling taste of much dead whiskey in his mouth. Remembered seeing David Moreland, with a bullet hole through and through him, lying on the floor beside him. Remembered his horror, his smothered cries of anguish, and his hurried flight. . . .

He had wondered, he remembered, why the law made no attempt to track him down. He had not known that the mountaineer's code of honor demands that the mountaineer himself collect that which is due him.

"Tell me," he said in tones so low that Elizabeth barely heard, "where is David Moreland buried?"

He had turned, and stood facing her. She pointed to the southward.

"They buried him out the crest of the mountain a little ways, on the highest place, by the side of his wife. That was always a touchin' thing to me, that he buried his wife on the very highest point of his own mountain. You know why, don't you? David Moreland believed in God and a hereafter, and he believed that heaven was up. He wanted to get even his wife's ashes as close to heaven as he could."

"I'd like to go out there," John Dale said, his voice almost a whisper. "I'd like to see the place."

"I wouldn't," replied Ben Littleford's daughter. For she knew—oh, she knew.

"Yes, yes, my dear—I must see the place," declared John K. Dale, hoarsely whispering—"let's go out there."

There was never any disobeying him when he was determined, and he was determined now. It is strange, that dread human thing that drew him—

Elizabeth turned and started out the snowy crest of the mountain, wending her way here and there between clumps of snow-heavy laurel and ivy and under snow-heavy pines. After a quarter of an hour of this somewhat difficult traveling, the two drew up before a small inclosure made of round oaken posts and round open railings and hand-split and pointed oaken palings as high as a man's shoulders, all of which were gray and weatherbeaten. Elizabeth knew the spot well. She swung the gate stiffly open on its wooden hinges and stepped inside. Old Dale, trembling in every fiber, followed her. His face was very, very pale.

Before them were two snow-covered mounds bordered with the dead stalks of flowers of another year—marigolds, pretty-by-nights, zinnias. Near the two graves there grew bare-branched wild honeysuckle and redbud, and green-leaved laurel, which in the summer time were covered with beautiful and fragrant blossoms of golden yellow, royal purple, and waxen white. At the head of one mound a great, roughly-shaped slab of brown sandstone marked the last resting place of David Moreland's young wife; it had been entered by David Moreland himself, and it was a crude but sincere tribute to womanhood.

On the face of the other great slab of brown sandstone were chiseled other ill-shaped letters and misspelled words. The hands of John Moreland had done this. Old John Dale stepped unsteadily closer and read:

It was a living curse, a breathing curse—a terrible anathema. If dead David Moreland himself had arisen from the tomb and uttered it, it would not have struck John K. Dale with greater force. He grew weak, as though with a fatal sickness. He sank to his knees in the snow, and his iron-gray head fell forward to his breast. Elizabeth Littleford knelt in the snow beside him. She tried to find comforting words, for she loved him and was sorry for him, but no words would come.

There was a slight sound, the muffled breaking of a dry twig in front of them. Elizabeth Littleford looked up to see the giant figure of John Moreland, whose face was white and whose eyes were filled with the fire of hate and anger, who held a rifle in his cold, bare hands. The rifle's hammer came back, and the fine trigger caught it with a faint click.

Moreland took another step forward and leveled the weapon across the palms.

Old Dale raised his head, saw David Moreland's brother, and realized all there was to realize. His eyes widened a little; then a look of relief flitted across his heavy countenance.

"Shoot and even up the score," he said bravely, and his head was high. "According to your code, it is just. And I'll be able to forget at last, at last. So shoot and settle the account."

Moreland winced perceptibly. The big, crooked finger came way from the hair-fine trigger. He had never expected to hear the man whom he knew as John K. Carlyle say that which he had just said. It had never entered his mind that John K. Carlyle could be sorry.

Then the great and bitter desire for revenge rushed into his brain again, and his head went down, and his keen right eye looked along the sights and to the kneeling man's breast. His trigger finger began slowly to crook—

Until this instant Elizabeth Littleford had been as one frozen, had been as a figure carved in stone. Now she sprang to her feet and went between Moreland and his ancient enemy.

Death of Mrs. L. G. Purdy.

(Contributed.)
Mrs. L. G. Purdy died at the home of her niece, Mrs. Adolph Henrich, Friday evening at 9:15. Deceased was born in Patrick county, Virginia, and was aged 65 years, 6 months, 15 days. Her husband preceded her in death 19 years ago. She was left with six small children, four boys and two girls, of whom all still survive. She also has four grandchildren. She came to Mason county 41 years ago, but has made her home in McCulloch county for the past 18 years, near Lohn.
Mrs. Purdy's death was sudden, heart failure, to which she was subject. Thus over a happy home the shadow of a grave has fallen; and as another has said "It is wonderful how long a shadow a grave can throw." We feel the emptiness of human words in times of bitter sorrow, yet He who "has borne our griefs and carried our sorrows" will comfort and sustain. Above all should come the comforting thoughts that the kind and gentle mother has been spared any more of earth's cares and sorrows; that her memory but forms another cord to draw her loved ones to the brighter homes beyond.

Mrs. Purdy had been a true and devoted Christian for 18 years. She didn't only say, "Do unto others as you would have them to do unto you," but she lived it.

Funeral services were held by Rev. Gage, the Baptist pastor of Mason, at Bethel cemetery where she was laid to rest by the remains of her husband. The people of Katency had charge of lining the grave, and especially do we thank them and all others for their kindness and floral offerings.

Death of Mrs. Elizabeth Macy.

The following obituary of the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Macy, mother of O. S. Macy of this city is reprinted from the Dallas County News, printed at Adel, Iowa:

"Elizabeth M. Couch was born in Gilford county, N. C., June 28, 1833, and died at the home of her son, L. M. Macy, Sunday morning, October 23, 1921, aged 88 years, 3 months and 28 days. On December 27, 1854 she was united in marriage to Wm. L. Macy. In 1855 they moved to Iowa settling near the present location of Redfield, where they lived until 1874 when they moved to Warren county. Later they went to Arkansas and Oklahoma, returning to Adel in 1907 and this has since been their home. Mr. Macy departing this life September 21, 1921, after a married life of nearly 67 years. Their separation has been brief covering only one month and three days.

To this union seven children were born as follows: L. M. Macy, Adel. John F., who died in 1907; Wm. A. Macy of Tulare, Calif.; Mary R. Macy of Adel; Thos. A. Macy of Santa Cruz, Calif.; Oliver S. Macy of Brady, Texas; Elizabeth, who died in infancy. She is survived by four sons, one daughter, 16 grandchildren and 19 great grandchildren.

"Mrs. Macy had lived a long and useful life. Her grandfather came to America before the Revolutionary war. While a girl in North Carolina she united with the Methodist church and spent three-quarters of a century in faithfully living the Christian life. After her marriage she joined the Society of Friends with her husband. When they came to Adel she again cast her lot with the Methodist church. In conducting the funeral services, held at the home of her son, L. M. Macy, on Monday afternoon, Rev. D. B. S. Prather spoke of her as follows: 'She was blessed with an earnest, quiet faith in God. We all knew when in her presence that she had been with Jesus and had learned of him.' She had been weakened by age and failing health and after the death of her husband, barely more than a month before, she failed rapidly. It was a blessing that she was not long separated from her life companion. We are saddened by the parting but rejoice for a victorious life of faith.' At the services Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Roberts, Miss Georgia Hoffman, and Mr. James Forrester furnished the music with Mrs. W. A. Wright accompanying on the piano. Interment was at Oakdale."
