TRIBUTE PAID TO WASHINGTON BY PAPER IN 1800

The Standard is in possession of quite an interesting relic, being a re-issue of the Ulster County Gazette for Saturday, January 4, 1800. According to the title heading, this paper was published at Kingston, Ulster County, by Samuel Freer and son, the Volume number being II, and the Issue number 88. The paper was left with The Standard by J. F. Tindel to whom it was presented by a friend at Pioneer, Texas.

The paper is made up of four pages, each sized 11 1/2 x 16 1/2, and each containing four columns. The inside two pages have column rules and top and bottom borders reversed in token of mourning for George Washington, first president of the U. S., and whose entombment is the subject of one of the articles. In addition to this article, a young lady contributes a poem extolling the great Washington. The front page of this issue is devoted in part to the doings of the American Congress. Then there follows an announcement that "By the arrival of the Factor from Falmouth we are put in possession of London papers to the 20th of October, inclusive, from which we make the following selections." Whereupon on January 4, 1800, the Ulster County Gazette tells the happenings of the Old World up to and including October 20, 1799, including the English account of the Battle of Zurich, the retaking by the Army of the Rhine of Manheim and Frankfurt, and the Evacuation of Holland.

Among the advertisements are notices of an estrayed heifer; executor's notice; petition in insolvency; numerous notices of sheriff's sales by the sheriff, one Peter Ten Broeck and various advertisements by both merchants and individuals. One man, Matys Van Steenberg, forbids any person whatsoever from harboring or trusting his wife and from trusting her on his account, as he is determined to pay no debts of her contracting.

The account of the burial of Washington is reprinted herewith:

George Town, Dec. 20.

On Wednesday last, the mortal part of WASHINGTON the Great—the Father of his Country and the Friend of man, was consigned to the tomb, with solemn honors and funeral pomp.

A multitude of persons assembled, from many miles round, at Mount Vernon, the choice abode and last residence of the illustrious chief. There were the groves—the spacious avenues, the beautiful and sublime scenes, the noble mansion—but alas!

the august inhabitant was now no more. That great soul was gone. His mortal part was there indeed; but ah! how affecting! how awful the spectacle of such worth and greatness, thus to mortal eyes, fallen!—Yes! fallen! fallen!

In the long and lofty Portico, where oft the Hero walked in all his glory, now lay the shrouded corpse. The countenance still composed and serene, seemed to depress the dignity of the spirit, which lately dwelt in that lifeless form! There those who paid the last sad honors to the benefactor of his country, took an impressive—a farewell view.

On the ornament at the head of the coffin, was inscribed SURGE AD JUDICIUM—about the middle of the coffin, GLORIA DEO—and on the silver plate,

GENERAL GEORGE WASHINGTON

Departed this life, on the 14th December, 1799, Aet. 68.

Between three and four o'clock, the sound of artillery from a vessel in the river, firing minute guns, awoke afresh our solemn sorrow—the corps was removed—a band of music with mournful melody melted the soul into all the tenderness of woe.

The procession was formed & moved on in the following order:

- Cavalry, } With arms reversed,
- Infantry, }
- Guard, }
- Music, }
- Clergy, }
- The General's horse with his saddle, holsters and pistols.
- Cols. } Cols.
- Sims, } Gilpin,
- Ramsay, } Marsteller
- Payne, } Little.
- Payne, }

Mourners, Masonic Brethren, Citizens.

When the procession had arrived at the bottom of the elevated lawn, on the bank of the Potomac, where the family vault is placed, the cavalry halted, the infantry marched towards the Mount and formed their lines—the Clergy, the Masonic Brothers, and the Citizens, descended to the Vault, and the funeral service of the Church was performed.—The firing was repeated from the vefell in the river, and the sounds echoed from the woods around.

Three general discharges by the infantry—the cavalry, and 11 pieces of artillery, which lined the bank of the Potomac back of the Vault, paid the last tribute to the entombed Commander in Chief of the Armies of the United States and to the departed Hero.

The sun was now setting. Alas! the SON OF GLORY was set forever. No—the name of WASHINGTON—the American President and General—will triumph over DEATH. The unclouded brightness of his Glory will illuminate the future ages!

OPERATTA AT LYRIC THEATRE FRIDAY NIGHT BENEFIT OF GLEE CLUB

An operatta, entitled "The Fairy Band," is to be presented at the Lyric theatre next Friday night, April 20th, under the direction of Mrs. Chas. Williams, with musical arrangement by Miss Jennie Bannister. The play is to be given for the benefit of the Girl's Glee club.

The following is a synopsis of the story:

A party of school girls go to woods to spend the day. One girl wanders away and is lost. She finally becomes tired and lies down and falls asleep. The fairy princess discovers her, and with a wave of her magic wand, she shows her a few of the people who dwell in fairy land. Among the different characters portrayed by the young ladies will be the fairy queen and the princess, wood nymphs, brownies, butterflies, gypsies and fairies. All will be appropriately costumed to represent the parts.

A large attendance is anticipated. Reserved seats are now on sale at the Williams & Newman confectionery.

Easter Lily.

Howdy, there sweet Easter Lily!
Come to bring the world a song?
Come to smile upon a fellow—
'Cause so many things go wrong?

Come to sing a song of gladness
To ten thousand muddled brains?
Are your pure white hands to carry
Balm to wash a million stains?

You're a type of that rare Being,
Who is death's dark valley flower;
Planted in the tomb of Joseph
But who arose with might power.

Oh, the whiteness of this Lily!
How it fills a world with light;
Giving strength to countless millions
Saving souls from sins dark night!

Bud and leaf and flower blooming,
Life abundant everywhere;
Joy and peace and love descending
Easter Lily—Christ is here.

GEO. F. HORNSBY HANGED AT BELTON FRIDAY—MAINTAINED HIS INNOCENCE

PAID PENALTY FOR BRUTAL MURDER OF J. N. WEATHERBY, BROWNWOOD AUTOMOBILE DEALER, OCTOBER 1920—GOES TO DEATH CALMLY AT 2:12 P. M.

George F. Hornsby, who was convicted at Belton last March on the charge of murdering J. N. Weatherby in Brownwood on October 17, 1920, was hanged in the jail yard at Belton at 2:12 o'clock Friday afternoon. Hornsby maintained to the last that he was innocent of the crime for which he was convicted. He left a note with Deputy Sheriff Vannoy of Belton at 11 o'clock Friday morning, a few hours before his death. This note was opened after the execution. The note read: "Mr. Vannoy: I am an innocent man, so help me God to tell the truth. GEORGE F. HORNSBY."

Trap Sprung at 2:12. The trap that brought George F. Hornsby's life to the end of a rope was sprung at 2:12 o'clock by Sheriff Albert Bonds of Bell county.

Sheriff Bonds was assisted in the execution by his friend, Sheriff W. R. Hamilton of Coleman county, whom he had requested to be present. Sheriff Bonds, in addition, had a number of state rangers and a large squad of special deputies present to preserve order.

The execution was held privately, the scaffold being inclosed by a boarded stockade which kept out the curiously inclined.

About 200 persons witnessed the hanging, including the special deputies, the usual number of doctors, a number of newspaper reporters, and a hundred others invited by the sheriff.

The crowd witnessing the execution included a number of relatives and close friends of the murdered man, J. N. Weatherby from Brownwood and Goldthwaite. It is understood that among these relatives and friends from the two towns mentioned, there were several women.

Hornsby Talks from the Scaffold. Hornsby walked from the jail a hundred feet or more to the scaffold, accompanied by Rev. Marcus of Belton and Rev. Blaylock of Temple, and surrounded by officers. He was not supported, but walked alone with a fairly firm step.

Shortly after the sheriff's party had mounted the scaffold and religious services had been held the condemned man was invited by the sheriff to make a statement to the crowd if he had anything to say.

Hornsby addressed the crowd, speaking for about a minute. His words were clear and there was but a slight tremor in his voice.

The substance of his address was that he was innocent of the crime for which he was to hang. He repeated that he had not been given a fair chance, but he said he held no malice against anyone, that he had been baptized the day before, had made his peace with God, had forgiven every one, and that he was ready to die.

Following Hornsby's talk Rev. Blaylock of Temple delivered a very earnest, soul stirring prayer. At the conclusion of the prayer, the minister, Sheriff Bonds and others on the scaffold, shook hands with Hornsby, bidding him good-bye. Hornsby then stepped upon the trap, the black cap was drawn over his face, his feet and hands were bound. With a brief announcement, the sheriff sprung the trap, and Hornsby's body dropped through, a distance of eight feet.

Upon the crowd at the scaffold, within the stockade, as the condemned man's body fell through space and was jerked violently on coming to the rope's end, there was a great solemn hush. In the street without the stockade, where a crowd of five hundred or a thousand people had assembled, the noise of the fallen trap brought forth many exclamations. The crowd on the street could not see what was going on within the enclosure, but they heard the death rattle of the gallow's lever and the swish of a hemp rope as it drew suddenly taut.

The sound, if not the spectre, of grim death was in the air, and they knew it and felt it, and throughout this crowd in the street there ran a rumbling of strained voices. The exclamations of "Oh, God," were many, and here and there were sobs, that emotion that leaps from the human soul when it is quickened by "man's inhumanity to man."

Hornsby stood the ordeal of his last day on earth extremely well. He refused breakfast, save a cup of coffee, and he refused dinner. He shaved himself shortly before the death warrant was read to him in his cell.

Myrtle Chambers Again. Myrtle Chambers, the woman in the Hornsby case, was in evidence to the last. She had been denied admission to the courthouse at Hornsby's trial, young admission to the jail where her former lover was confined, and she was denied admission to the scene of the execution. But the woman, trying in a crude way to play the part of the heroine at the cross, hung on. She held a position in the street close against the boarded barricade. She heard the proceedings within, and her lamentations, while restrained, were unmistakable, and when the trap fell she broke down in earnest and was supported by friends from the scene of the tragedy.

When Hornsby was moved from Belton to Austin a few days ago, Myrtle Chambers followed. Austin people and Austin newspapers, who, like ducks in a muddy pond, revelled in sickening sentiment over the Hornsby case, made a good deal over Myrtle. It was a new sensation for Myrtle, and she starred at the state capital as the suffering woman in the tragedy.

Her Fault, She Declares. The Austin American, in the issue of April 13, devoted a good deal of space to Myrtle.

Here is some of it: "While her lover lingered in the shadows of the death cell, awaiting the hour when the hangman's noose should descend and settle about his neck, Myrtle Chambers married another. She married him, not for love, she said, but for protection for assistance in her fight to save George Hornsby from the gallows.

"Myrtle Chambers was married to George Grigsby at Groesbeck March 16, 1922, upon Grigsby's promise, she said, to aid her in her fight for Hornsby's life.

"Mrs. Grigsby made futile efforts Wednesday to see her condemned sweetheart, to tell him, she said, of her marriage to the other man, and to explain to him why she had married him. Guards at the jail, however, refused to grant her admittance to the jail.

"Although I love him better than any man I have ever known, if George Hornsby should be released, I would not want him to come back to me; I would use my influence with him to get him back to his orphan sisters and brother in Alabama and forget he ever knew me," Mrs. Grigsby said Wednesday night. "I feel that I have been to blame for his trouble, for if he had never known me, he would not have gone to Brownwood and suspicion would never have pointed to him."

"Continuing, she said: 'Our love was high, noble, holy, and true—as holy and as true as the love of any man and wife in Austin or as the love of any mother for her child. They ask why we lived together as man and wife when we were not married—I answer them that it was Godly love; that we could not be kept apart by man's institution the machinery of the divorce courts. I loved George and he loved me and that was enough.'

No Woman on the Scaffold. Mrs. Bennett Smith of Temple, who, among other Bell county women, endeavored to save Hornsby's neck, did not stand on the gallows with Hornsby, as she declared she would do, if permitted.

The Bell county sheriff refused to have any heroics or scenes of frenzied sentiment in connection with Hornsby's execution.

Austin Women Sing Hymns. During the week he spent in the Travis county jail, Hornsby was visited daily by ministers and church women, who brought him flowers and sang to him beautiful and touching hymns.

It was perhaps Hornsby's first introduction to the emotional feeling developed from hymnal music. The hymn that he liked was "Lord, I'm Coming Home." This song he had repeated to him over and over.

Refuses to Confess. Hornsby, to the last, refused the appeals of ministers that he purge his soul of a possible lie and confess his crime.

According to the Austin American, Rev. Aulick, an Austin minister, asked Hornsby if there was any message he might deliver to the young men of Texas who might follow in his footsteps.

"Tell them," Hornsby replied, "that the life I have lived has been one of

ROCHELLE WINS FIRST PLACE IN DISTRICT MEET

To the Rochelle school goes first place for Class B schools, in the district meet held last Saturday at Comanche, Wesley Gainer and Ollie Clary, star athletes for the Rochelle school, netted a total of 17 points for Rochelle, thereby giving that school first rank in the district.

Willoughby Craddock alone won a total of 13 points for Brady, and had John Allison Polk entered the hurdles as he intended and made as good time as he made at the Brady meet, the Brady school would have taken first place with a total of 18 points. The winner of the hurdle race ran two seconds slower than Polk did here on April 1st. Polk was advised that there was plenty time before the hurdle race would be called and went back to his room on an errand. When he reached the field, the hurdles had already been run.

The following were the points made: Rochelle.

- By Gainer: 1st in Discus, 101 ft. .... 5
- 2nd in 440-yard Dash ..... 3
- 2nd in Half Mile Run ..... 3
- 4th in 12-lb. Shot Put, 38' 10" ... 1
- By Clary: 2nd in Mile Race ..... 3
- 3rd in Half Mile Race ..... 2
- Total Points .....17

- By Craddock: 1st in 50-yard Dash ..... 5
- 1st in 100-yard Dash ..... 5
- 2nd in 22-yard Dash ..... 3
- Total .....13

The Rochelle and Brady schools were the only ones in McCulloch county having representatives at the meet Saturday, at which time the athletic events were held. The literary events and preliminaries in athletics had been held on Friday and Saturday of the week previous.

Delegates from Brady high school at the meet Saturday included Walter, Gerald and Miss Mary Jo Adkins, J. D. Miller, Willoughby Craddock, Royston Taylor, John Allison Polk and Ralph Plummer. Misses Jim and Lulu Gay accompanied the party.

The State Interscholastic League meet will be held in Austin some time in May.

E. P. Lea Married at Orchard. News has been received in Brady of the marriage at Orchard, Texas, of E. P. Lea, former county attorney of McCulloch county. The name of the lady was not learned, but it was reported she was a school teacher, and aged about 50 years. Mr. Lea is over 70.

Following the death of his wife, Mr. Lea resigned as county attorney, sold his residence here, and three weeks ago left for Orchard, Fort Bend county, where he stated he would make his home with friends.

News of his marriage was received with surprise by his friends here, all of whom, however, will wish much happiness to the newly-weds.

WHY THE COGS SLIP.

Up in dear old Floggersville the chief of police died the other day. At his funeral, a great flaming cross, symbol of the Ku Klux Klan, was placed upon his coffin. Which circumstance serves to substantiate the belief that the Dallas police force and sheriff's office, almost as a body, is a member of the Ku Klux. Small wonder, then, that all the investigations of the police officials in Dallas have not brought to justice a single one of number who perpetrated outrages upon Dallas citizens.

of a city is honeycombed by the Ku Klux Klan, justice is perverted and mob law rules.

The Ku Klux has always denied responsibility for floggings, tarring and featherings, and similar outrages. The Ku Klux warns evil-doers that that body has an all-seeing eye and that the evil-doers are being watched. Why is it then that the Dallas Ku Klux cannot bring to justice the floggers of Floggersville? Why cannot the Klan discover who it is that impersonates the Klansmen in order to wreak vengeance upon someone else? Would it not appear that the answer is, the Klansmen themselves are the guilty ones?

The Ku Klux Klan claims to advocate 100% Americanism. Yet they place their oath to the Klan above their oath to support the laws of the land. They refuse to give testimony before grand jury after taking an oath before God to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

is that Americanism? By the constituted authorities of a city or county, they stage their parades in defiance of such authority, even though it be at the risk of the life of some innocent bystander.

Is that 100% Americanism? If it is, then Heaven help America!

INVISIBLE BUNK.

Says the Coleman Democrat-Voice: Judge James C. Wilson, Federal Judge of the Northern District of Texas, addressed an open meeting of the Weatherford Chamber of Commerce, in which he said, in part: "The Ku Klux is a part of the crime wave, is the first cousin and hand maiden of anarchy."

"Some of the best friends I have are members of the Ku Klux," he said. "They have talked to me about it. They were just misled and made a great mistake. In speaking of the Dallas chapter of the Klan, Judge Wilson said he was reliably informed that there were 9,000 members enrolled there and that among these were a great many of the police force of the city, employees of the Sheriff's department and other representatives of the government."

"The first thing they try to do when they come to a city is to try to render the local government powerless and helpless. They go to the sheriff's department and get employes and officers of that department in their organization. "They have it that way in Fort Worth. In Dallas much the same thing is true. The whole trouble in Dallas is that a great part of the police force is in the organization."

"In Fort Worth even trial District Judges are members. The Klan even goes to the pulpit. It has made life miserable for preachers in Fort Worth."

If the Klan gets the Sheriff's department, and trial judges, the police force and the preachers in its midst, it can come to your house, slap your daughter down and take you out and tar and feather you with impunity. "It attempts to chloroform the local and State Government and it has attempted, even to chloroform the Federal Government."

"If the Ku Klux Klan has ten dollars it wants to give to an orphan, it gives the money to the orphan through some pulpit. It likes to get plenty of advertising but it keeps its whippings secret. It commits these from behind masks. It turns out that there have been sixty-three in Dallas. Culbertson did not miss it much when he said it would overthrow the Government if allowed to go on."

"What has become of the Constitution and the guarantee to every citizen for protection against illegal search and seizure? When the Ku Klux goes into a man's home to take him out to flog him, it is in effect says 'damn that part of the Constitution.' "It is a slander for the Klan to say it is for law and order and the home. It is for anarchy and disorder."

"A man has the right under the Constitution to have witnesses in his favor and has a right to be heard out of his own mouth, and by assistance of counsel. The Ku Klux says 'damn that part of the Constitution.' "There is no other way in the world in which a man can violate so many statutes at once as to join the Ku Klux Klan and meet in its hall to plan a flogging. Thing of what a damnable thing this Ku Klux is. And yet there are some good people in it. The people who burned witches were good people."

"Are we going to have favorite criminals with special privilege to violate the law? No, you are not going to stand for it. The people are going to destroy this Klan."

"Talk to me about your law and order and your homes. My God, what are you thinking about? You are making a mockery of 100 per cent Americanism. "Civilization abandoned the whipping post as unbecoming any but heathens and barbarians years ago and yet the Klan dares to take a man out, tie him to a whipping post, and flog him."

"The Ku Klux member is on the same footing as a murderer. The law has withdrawn all its protection from members of that society. "When you go in disguise in the night time on the premises of a person, even if it is only to scare him, you can be killed with impunity by the intended victim, or even by the bystander. The homicide is justified under the law. "If the Klan does not stop operating, some of its members are going to hear the penitentiary doors clicking behind them before they know what has happened. The people will not tolerate the Klan. We have not become a nation of jellyfish. We are not going to surrender all regard for authority because hijackers and thugs are becoming more numerous. "Even impartial courts and juries, in spite of all the safeguards of the law, make mistakes. What chance in the name of God, has a man got with an ex-parte trial such as is administered in the halls of the Klan? "We denounce an anarchist who wants to set aside government for all time. The Klan wants to set aside government. It wants only a temporary overthrow of the government. That is the only respect in which it differs from anarchy. "What will stop the Ku Klux Klan? Public opinion, for one thing. "The end of the Ku Klux is coming. It is coming because the American people are not going to put up with any such damned foolishness as this."

BOOST FOR LAMPASAS.

S. G. has just received the first circular announcing that Lampasas will be in the running for the next meeting of the Texas Press Association. The announcement comes from the Lampasas Business Men's League and gives a picturesque view of "America's Finest Mineral Spring." Sun-of-a-Gun is for Lampasas. Bob Thompson of the Record and Herbert Abney of the Leader are over at Lampasas and they want to entertain the Texas Press. And Lampasas can do it in grand style. They have already promised numerous entertainments and S. G. is going to suggest another and that is a joint entertainment between Lampasas and San Saba at Pioneer, where the members of the press may be shown the greatest peach experiment station on earth and then banquet them in the shade of the stately pecan trees of the Bend section. The Pioneer Record Press is published at Pioneer and will show the gang some sure enough peans. The press ought to come to Lampasas. It is near the great heart of the state, can easily be reached by the editors from all parts of the state. When the association meets at one end or one side of the state it is a great inconvenience to the boys at the other end and the other side. Lampasas is handy and convenient to all and everybody. If the Texas Press Association will come to Lampasas every sun-of-a-gun will be glad he come.—San Saba News.

OR A NATURE STUDY OF BRADY.

"The dumping of trash, tin cans and dead animals along the public highways is resented not only by the residents in the city but by the people living outside the city, and it ought to be stopped. The city maintains a public dumping ground where all manner of trash may be disposed of without marring the health or comfort of the people and without creating a nuisance of any kind." The foregoing is a comment of the situation in Brownwood by the Bulletin; but it sounds like it was intended for Coleman.—Coleman Democrat-Voice.

"It's none of our business maybe, but we can't help thinking that the man who gave up $146.50 to an imperial wizard for the privilege of parading the street in a mask and bedsheet has been leagled out of about one hundred per cent of his money and Americanism.—Coleman Democrat-Voice. "Guard your stomach. It is the foundation of health and the world's most famous medicine is Taste.—Krigs. Con-

CARE OF FRUIT TREES; POINTS GIVEN ON PRUNING BY EXPERT ORCHARDISTS

There are two seasons of the year when peach trees are pruned. These are summer and winter, or the growing and the dormant. Some orchardists prefer one, and some the other. Winter pruning has two distinct advantages over summer pruning: 1st, there is no such a rush for time at that season of the year; and, second, the leaves have fallen from the trees and the pruner can judge better what branches should be removed.

In pruning peach trees there are generally speaking, two types to be considered; namely, the young or the growing trees, and the bearing or older trees. For pruning the young trees the following program can be used:

- 1. See that the head of the tree is properly formed. If the main branches forming the head come out opposite each other they are too close together they will have a tendency to split off when the tree comes into bearing. There should be from three to five of these main branches, and if less than that number appears, they should be severely pruned until the proper number is formed. 2. Keep the leaders in the top cut back. High trees are troublesome to spray and do not afford the advantages of ease of harvesting that low trees do. 3. Watch for poor forks on the main branches. If the main branches should happen to form into two branches, or if two branches should come out directly opposite each other on the main branch there is danger of them splitting later on. One of them should be cut off close in the fork. 4. Cut out the cross branches. Their rubbing together scratches the bark and gives entrance for disease and insects. 5. Never take out the small shoots as long as they are healthy. If the top is too thick, take out small branches. The shoots are the fruit bearers.

The following program may be used for pruning bearing trees:

- 1. Preserve the fruit spurs, or little shoots, as suggested above. 2. Trim the top uniformly. In doing this take out relatively small branches—branches about the size of a man's finger. If large branches are removed they will leave an opening, and most bad weather will destroy any disease or insects that might be on these branches. 3. Cut out dead, diseased or broken branches and burn them. This will destroy any disease or insects that might be on these branches. 4. Keep all water sprouts cut back. If allowed to grow they will take up the food elements that should go to the main tree and soon starve it to death. In some trees these may need removing twice per year. 5. Shorten back the leaders if they are growing too high for seasons as given for young trees. In making the cut, it should be done near a side shoot so the wound will soon heal over. 6. Take out crossing branches as suggested for young trees. ad said: "Macy & Co. can supply you needs for all kinds of field seed. See us before you buy."

POST AMERICAN LEGION MONTHLY MEETINGS HELD LAST THURSDAY IN EACH MONTH

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Little Miss Lenora Parker, daughter of Mrs. S. E. Parker, proprietress of the Queen hotel, recently won a prize offered by the Gage Millinery Co. of Chicago, for artistic merit in the coloring of a booklet containing hats, the contest being limited to children under twelve years of age. Quite naturally, all the friends of the little Miss are pleased at this recognition of talent.

From the Brownwood Bulletin it is noted that the mother of Sterling Hornsby, who, with his little son, was drowned a couple weeks ago in the flood waters of the Colorado river, has thrice been bereaved in recent years through tragic accidents. Last November another son, John Hornsby, met a tragic fate when he was dragged to death by a mule. Several years before, Mrs. Hornsby's husband was killed in a gin accident. The death of Sterling Hornsby completed the trio of tragic deaths. The elder Mrs. Hornsby lives four miles east of Blanket.

Messrs. Jim and Joe Matthews were here Monday from the Peg Leg ranch at Menard. They report having put in some mighty good ticks on their farm work, and by the end of the week hope to have their corn, maize and other crops all in, and their cotton ready to be planted. By early planting of their cotton, they hope to get the jump on early production, providing a freeze doesn't catch them. Jim says the pecan trees are going to be loaded this year, if we do not have a freeze to kill the yield. The Matthews have one of the finest pecan groves in this section of the state and produce a greater quantity of pecans than anyone in the Menard section.

A letter to home folks received from Dr. Joe White, in New York City states that the 10th of April was recorded the hottest day in 60 years for that time of year in New York City. About the same time, the Texas newspapers reported snow at Amarillo.

A warranty deed containing provisions out of the ordinary is on record in the county clerk's office at Coleman. It reads as follows: "State of Texas, County of Fisher, I, Edd Lodge, for and in consideration of love and affection, one gallon of rye whiskey, one bottled bull and ten dollars in cash, to me in hand paid by S. N. Eddenborough, do hereby these presents, bargain, sell, release and forever quit claim unto the said S. N. Eddenborough, the north half of the northeast quarter of the N. O. Section 30 situated on waters of Jim Ned creek 18 miles northwest of Goldman city." The deed is acknowledged August 24, 1901, in Fisher county, before J. H. Walling, Notary Public.—Coleman Democrat-Voice.

The Standard is the possessor of some remarkable freak eggs, which are on exhibition in our show window. A. M. Long brought in the first lot, which included the jumbo and the peanut in size. The first weighs five ounces, and measures nine inches around the tip and end. Presumably it was laid by one of Mrs. Long's Rhode Island Reds. As a counter to this jumbo, another hen laid a bantam in size and with a peculiar formation at the tip, much as though part of the shell had melted and run together forming a little ornamental design. Then followed A. E. McCoy of the Nine community bringing in another freak in the form of a large sized egg, with the shell shelled and pucked like a dried up lemon.

TO BUSSETT was also a freak. It was a second one the next day after the first was found.

sin, shame and suffering. Tell them it doesn't pay to live that sort of life."

Rev. Mr. Aulick opened his consultation with Hornsby by warning him against going to his death with a lie on his lips.

"I am not accusing you," the minister said, "but you must realize that you must not, you can not, go to your Master with a lie in your heart. If you would effect your salvation, your only hope is to confess it here and now, if you are guilty of the murder with which you are charged."

To this appeal Hornsby is said to have replied: "I do realize that, and I appreciate the force of your statement. But God knows better than anybody, except me, that I am innocent of this murder. I have no word of criticism for the officers or the jury, the courts or the governor; they doubtless feel that they are in the right. But I do hate to die at the noose end of a rope."

"I have prayed ten thousand times since I have been in prison," Hornsby said, when the minister asked him to pray.

"Were you a praying man before your trouble?" the minister asked. "No, if I had been, I would never have been accused of this crime," was the low reply.

Hornsby Baptized.

The Temple Telegram of Thursday, the day before the execution, stated:

"George F. Hornsby, who is sentenced to die tomorrow for the murder of J. N. Weatherby of Brownwood, has professed religion, and was baptized here today. The ordinance of baptism was administered by Rev. R. A. Marcus, pastor of the First Christian church of this city, who baptized the doomed man in a bath tub inside the jail.

"During the service, Hornsby broke down and wept bitterly.

"The accused man was returned to Temple early this morning by several state rangers and members of the sheriff's department who went last night to Austin to return him to Belton. The party left Austin by automobile about 2 a. m., and arrived at Belton at 5:00 o'clock this morning. Hornsby was given a sumptuous breakfast, which, he said, was the best meal he had had since he was taken from Belton two weeks ago.

"It is understood that the rangers who accompanied Hornsby here will remain until after the execution. There will also be a number of plainclothes men on duty, it was said at the sheriff's office and no demonstrations of any kind will be permitted."

Hornsby Buried at Temple.

Hornsby was cut down from the gallows 20 minutes after the trap fell. He had been pronounced dead by physicians some seven minutes before.

His body was placed in a neat coffin, and taken to Temple in an under-

PREHISTORIC PUEBLO
IN NEW MEXICO YIELDS TOMB OF AZTEC CHIEF

Two burial chambers are the most interesting of numerous recent discoveries in the Aztec ruin, an enormous prehistoric pueblo community dwelling near Aztec, N. M., which is being explored by the American Museum Natural History. Earl H. Morris, who is in charge of the excavating, writes:

"Beneath the debris adjacent to the famous Painted Room opened in 1920 there has been found a second chamber perfectly preserved in every detail. The pine and cedar beams in the smoke-browned ceiling are as sound as when the trees were felled, and on the wall stones the marks of the quartzite pebbles with which they were faced are as bright and fresh as if the artisan who shaped the blocks, though dead these thousand years, had but yesterday gathered up his primitive tools and stepped out of the finished chamber.

"This room was the tomb of a warrior, who lay in solitary state against one wall immediately back of the recessed altar in the Painted Room. The body was that of a veritable giant more than 6 feet and 1 inch in height, who thus towered head and shoulders above the average men of his tribe. Death came to the stalwart defender of the village when he was in the prime of life, and in the height of his glory as well, if one may infer the esteem in which he was held by the excellence of his tomb and the number of his burial accompaniments. The mighty frame had been wrapped in a mantle of feather cloth and enshrouded with a mat of woven rush stems. Back of the body there were four magnificent pottery bowls, a cup and a basket. Upon the skull rested a large spherical vase with a neatly fitting cover, both of them exquisitely wrought and ornamented. Within easy grasp of the right hand were the wooden handles of two stone battle axes, and by them a hafted knife of quartzite, as well as chips of flint and implements for arrow making. A circular shield three feet in diameter, unlike anything previously found in pueblo ruins, covered the warrior from thighs to temples. It is an example of coiled basketry technique, but unusually thick and strong. The outer surface had been coated with gum and thickly spangled with flakes of mica. When held in the sunlight, due to the numberless reflecting surfaces the great disk would have shone forth with dazzling brilliance, perhaps sufficiently intense to have confused the vision of the archer who sought to drive his arrow through the shield to the living flesh behind it.

"A fallen chamber not far distant from the warrior's tomb contained thirteen skeletons. These bodies had been laid away at different times, and covered with ashes and sweepings from the floors of the village. Twelve of the burials, those of nine children and three aged persons, were in nowise unusual, the bodies being merely wrapped in matting with now and then a pottery bowl or cup beside the skull. The thirteenth, however, was one of the most extraordinary which has come to light in the entire ruin. The remains were those of an old woman who had been wrapped and bound in the usual burial position and then placed in one corner of the room. A stout splinter from a broken ceiling timber had been hewn to a point and then driven completely through the pavis and well into the earth beneath. The shrunken body thus impaled presented a spectacle so gruesome that at sight of it even hardened excavators shuddered. Of course a doubt will always remain as to how the stake happened to be where found. It may have been driven after the body was covered and hidden from view by some one who had no idea what substance was so stubborn that the blows of his stone hammer beat the head of the stake to a pulp before the point would sink to the desired depth. But it is equally probable that an old crone, who had fallen into high disfavor in the village—perhaps a witch—was subjected to this particularly cruel form of torture and execution."

taker's ambulance. Hornsby was buried in the Temple cemetery Sunday afternoon. All expenses of the auspicious funeral which he was given is paid from a fund which was subscribed by Bell county people who had tried diligently to have his sentence commuted to life imprisonment. Willie Carter Denies Letter.

After his confession to the governor, and while in the Austin jail, Willie Carter was reported to have written a letter to Judge Sam Snodgrass of Temple, Hornsby's lawyer, declaring that the statement he gave the governor about the crime was untrue. Judge Snodgrass exhibited this letter and endeavored to have the governor consider it; which the latter refused. Carter, afterwards, denied that he wrote such a letter, and Austin newspapers stated that it was perhaps written by a prisoner in the jail and passed to the outside.—Brownwood News.

Here are the "boiled down" facts concerning the Remington Portable:

It is the most compact of all writing machines—fits into a smaller space than any other practical typewriter ever built. Case when closed, is only four inches high. Weighs but eleven pounds.

42 writing keys, single shift and back spacer—like any standard machine. No shifting for figures.

It is a complete typewriter. Has the leading features found in all standard machines. Nothing is sacrificed to size. Carries same guarantee as the regular Remington machine.

In design and materials it is standard through and through. Built for strength and reliability—just like every Remington.

It writes standard letters—in the standard way. It has the regulation

The touch of the Portable Remington is light; its action is easy; its operation simple; and the quality and volume of its work are all you could ask of any writing machine.

These facts tell you why this is the machine YOU need. By YOU we mean everyone—man, woman or child—who needs a typewriter for his or her individual use.
