EXHIBIT SCORES GREATEST SUCCESS IN COUNTY'S HISTORY

TWO-MILE PARADE OPENING EXHIBIT PRESENTS A GORGEOUS SPECTACLE

ENTRIES RANGE FROM WONDERFULLY ATTRACTIVE AND SYMBOLIC FLOATS AND CARS TO COMICAL IDEAS PRESENTED IN MOST CLEVER FASHION.

As the parade goes, so goes the Exhibit, was the slogan that prompted C. H. Vincent, director in charge, to exert every effort to stage one of the greatest and best parades ever seen in Brady. Accordingly he enlisted the hearty co-operation of both town and communities in a full representation in the parade, and the favorable and hearty response met with encouraged the advertising of "a mile and a half parade, with three bands playing." So splendidly did the citizens turn out that the parade was over two miles in length, and in place of the three bands, there were five—two comic bands being incorporated into the great spectacle. The unqualified success of the parade proved an auspicious fore-runner of the unqualified success attending every feature of the big two-days Exhibit, and which unquestionable goes down in history as the greatest affair ever staged in McCulloch county.

Lohn community was universally conceded to have won first place in the parade by the magnificence of their showing. Lohn concentrated upon the idea of showing itself up as the greatest cotton center in Texas, and emphasized the idea in numerous floats depicting the king of staples—cotton. A float loaded with cotton bales, and with big cotton stars adorning the wheels, the riders on horseback, one of whom was garbed in a cotton cape, and the advertisement of Kasch cotton seed ginning by the Stewart gin, in which two children were made up as cotton bolls, all served to carry out the idea and to establish Lohn's reputation as a cotton center. Lohn's participation was 100% so far as her business firms were concerned. Pete Lembke's float was deserving of special mention, and L. O. Marshall also had very creditable representation. The Lohn Oil & Gas Co. had a representation of a derrick in the parade. A car of Lohn's beautiful young ladies fully justified the banner reading "Peaches from Lohn." The car driven by Miss Lattitia Shelton decorated in rose-colored crepe, and containing a number of little children all garbed in rose-colored crepe dresses, was one of the most attractive of all the cars in the parade. To Mrs. Wm. F. Roberts goes credit for organizing and directing Lohn's participation so successfully.

Rochelle was splendidly represented by the beautifully decorated car of Roy Barton's garage, a color scheme of orange and black being used. Also by the car of Rochelle school, decorated in colors of yellow and white and on which the four trophy cups won by Rochelle school in interscholastic events were carried. Four young ladies on horseback carried the Rochelle banner.

Fife's truck decorated in white with green trimmings, and carrying a bevy of girls, sounded a horn thru-out the parade and left no one in doubt as to the meaning of their banner, "We Blow for Fife."

Other communities represented in most attractive manner by floats, decorated cars and other unique features were Fairview, Voca (Montgomery school), Camp San Saba, Calf Creek (displaying banners reading "Cute, Curious, Careful Calf Creek"), East Sweden, Claxton, Lost Creek, Fife and Dodge. The immigrants' mule wagon driven by Fritz Otte of Camp San Saba and bearing a sign "We are for Better Education," and the mock band of East Sweden were two original features.

The float of the Brady Water & Light Co., with its six light posts and electrical illumination, was one of the best floats and showed elaborate preparation. Broad Mercantile Co. had a very pretty representation of Winchester guns and ammunitions, a deer surmounting the whole, and mounted deer heads and other trophies, together with a live setter carrying out the hunting idea to perfection. Simpson & Co. displayed a Chevrolet car mounted on a truck, upon which a black bear cub, and a sign, "It's a Bear," conveyed the idea of the car's worth and performance.

Probably the most symbolic of all the floats was that of the American Legion, showing four sod-covered graves, with simple crosses at their head, and signs on either side of the float, one of which read, "In Flanders Field, Where Poppies Grow," while the other read, "Lest We Forget."

Walker-Smith distributed cigars and candy from their truck. The Brady high school was represented by a truck decorated in the school colors of black and gold.

C. H. Vincent had a float load of little children whose efforts were devoted to advertising Billikin shoes. Last, but not least, the Brady school showed they had the right spirit by entering a big bunch of their pupils, all loaded onto a truck.

The Model market was cleverly represented by Misses Jim Gay and Arvie Wegner, attired in riding habit with green coats, and green and red caps, and green and red decoration upon the bridles of their mounts.

Among the prettiest of the decorated cars was that of S. A. Benham, pink crepe being used in the decoration and which furnished a background for a group of charming and beautiful young ladies attired in evening costume.

Central Drug store's entry was a car decorated in purple and white, making for most attractive effect.

Allen & McClure's presentation of an up-to-date grocery store was a clever idea carried out in splendid fashion.

To Mrs. J. B. Granville goes credit for the carrying out of the Four Seasons' idea, in which summer, winter, spring and fall were graphically represented. Mrs. Granville in her snow-covered Studebaker sedan with holly decorations, represented the winter season in unmistakable fashion. Assisting her in carrying out the clever four seasons' idea were Mrs. Wiley Walker in a Chevrolet, decorated with green leaves and flowers in representation of spring; Mrs. Gibbon T. Roberts in an Overland coupe adorned with lavender and purple, with floral decorations typifying summer, and Mrs. Jack Keyser in a Studebaker, with autumn leaves and red decorations giving the spirit of the fall season. The whole combined to make a most striking and novel effect.

Transportation was represented by a prairie schooner, depicting that of the past; the automobile, representing that of the present and the airplane symbolizing that of the future.

Among the comic features, all of which added to the full enjoyment of the parade, were the Brady Mucilage Band, a clown aggregation carrying a banner reading "We Stick Together"; the Gumps—Andy, Min and Chester—in true-to-life presentation of these famous characters by P. B. Melton, Miss Mary Lyle Vincent and Joe Medlin; the travelers from Puntkinville, Mizzuri, coming to Texas because they had heard of the McCulloch County Exhibit, and driving a team of burros hitched to a dilapidated spring wagon, loaded with a drove of youngsters in hap-hazard attire. The characters were represented by Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Schwenke and family, and by Alice Lucille Lindley, Billie Cargill and Chester and Margaret Dunn.

Deserving of special mention is the program of marches and airs furnished throughout the parade by the Brady Municipal band which had been divided into two organizations and also the Melvin band.

Bringing up the rear of the parade were Mr. and Mrs. James T. Mann and a number of children in a car decorated in orange and black and carrying out the Halloween idea in detail. The children were attired as spooks and ghosts and carried jack-o'-lanterns, while black cats, witches and bats were used in scary decoration about the car. As this car passed before the eyes of the great throngs their attention became riveted upon the banner carried and which read, "We'll Do It Again in 1923," a thought and a suggestion that met with the full accord of every citizen present for the big parade.

NO ABSENTEE VOTING IN GENERAL ELECTION PROVIDED BY TEXAS LAW

Absentee voting as provided under the Texas law applies to primaries and not to general elections and therefore, no provisions will be made for absentees to cast a ballot in the Nov. 7th election according to announcement made Tuesday.

Had the law applied to the general election the ballots would have been ordered printed immediately, regardless of the fact that final decision has not been reached in court as to whether Earle B. Mayfield's name shall appear as the Democratic nominee.

STILL CAPTURED IN EDGE OF McCULLOCH COUNTY; THREE MEN IMPLICATED

In a raid Wednesday morning in the upper edge of McCulloch county in which the sheriff's department, city officials and state ranger participated, a still was captured and three men taken in charge and brought to Brownwood. Information regarding the location of the still is said to have been in the possession of the officers for some time and the raid was planned a day or so ago. —Brownwood Bulletin.

BRADY GINNINGS TOTAL 5,696 BALES UP TO END OF PAST WEEK, REPORT

On account of having made a misprint in one of the figures in Tuesday's edition, The Standard is here-with reprinting the Brady ginnings as reported up to Saturday night of the past week. The total as given last Tuesday was correct, but a figure 1 was substituted for a figure 2 in the Planters gin total, thereby lopping 1,000 bales off that gin's total. The correct figures are as follows:

SAYS EXHIBIT IS BEST EVER WITNESSED

Of all the many compliments and comments passed upon the McCulloch County Co-Operative Exhibit, the following, coming from an out-of-town visitor, is one of the most appreciated, and, incidentally, is typical of the many favorable expressions passed upon McCulloch county's big show:

Speaking to a number of Brady citizens, Reid McElmore of Abilene, representing the Maxwell House coffee people, said: "I have been in most all towns of West Texas and have seen a dozen different fairs—at Amarillo, Lubbock, Abilene, Sweetwater, Clarendon, Colorado City, San Angelo and others—but the McCulloch County Co-Operative Exhibit is by far the best, showed the best parade, the best county organization and spirit and the best county-wide representation of any I have seen anywhere."

WONDERFUL DISPLAY McCULLOCH RESOURCES IN EXHIBIT BOOTHS

LOHN ESTABLISHES ITSELF AS HOME OF FLEECY STAPLE—OTHER COMMUNITIES EMPHASIZE McCULLOCH'S ADAPTABILITY TO DIVERSIFICATION.

Never were McCulloch county's wonderful advantages set forth to better purpose; never was the unequalled productiveness of her soil better exemplified; never was the industry of her citizens displayed to greater advantage than in the community booths at the Exhibit hall. It was as though the great State Fair of Texas had been assembled here in miniature form. And most wonderful of all was the fact that the wonderful exhibits had been assembled only in the past two weeks; in fact, several of the communities had only organized and begun their preparations one short week ago. But every community taking part in the exhibit, showed a spirit of co-operation and united purpose that proved a revelation to everyone, including themselves. All McCulloch county is proud of the great show the communities put on, and the success met with has set a high mark for all future occasions.

As one entered the Exhibit hall, one was at once struck by the wide diversity of the display, as well as the attractive arrangement of each individual exhibit. Artistic skill was everywhere in evidence and the various articles making up the booths were displayed to best advantage.

Montgomery School. Montgomery folks made no effort to conceal their pride in having won nine blue ribbons. Their name was lettered over the booth in sections of popcorn, while in the booth itself were displayed every manner of canned goods and preserves, farm and garden products, cakes and pies and appetizing samples of the culinary art; and as well there was butter and cream. As indicative of what may some day become a giant enterprise in this section, Mart L. Williams had on display samples of his home canning, attractively labeled.

In art and needlework, the display had a splendid showing of crocheted garments applique sheets and quilts, and various other pieces of work.

Camp San Saba School. C. S. S. S. lettered in burr oak acorns, gave clue to the identity of the Camp San Saba school booth. Here was displayed canned goods and preserves in abundant array, field and garden products, splendid corn, pecans, butter, flowers, cakes, cookies, corn sticks and light bread and other samples of culinary art. The needlework included embroidered work, crocheted and drawn work of tatting. There was marble from the Appleton ranch, and many other interesting exhibits.

Lohn School. In the Lohn booth, Lohn's claim as the cotton center of Texas was again emphasized in the large Texas map, in the center of which Lohn's position was marked with a cotton boll. A background of cotton served to effectively establish the idea in every visitor's mind. The miniature cotton bale, weighing 24 pounds, and prepared by M. Z. Bates' gin was another feature. But Lohn's efforts were not confined to cotton alone, for her exhibit included a diversified line—canned goods vieing with garden and field products and with fancy work and samples of culinary art, for first place. The dress and samples of needlework exhibited by Mrs. J. K. Shelton were especially beautiful and excited much favorable comment. P. D. Jordan exhibited samples of a new product, hegarl—a field crop between cane and maize, and as well seven different products produced off of sod land. Mrs. Jordan was especially proud of the blue ribbon won by her plums canned seven years ago.

Lost Creek School. Lost Creek school had their booth most attractively decorated, a lattice of orange and black adding to its attractive appearance. Their booth displayed all the various products for which this fertile section is famous—garden and field products of every description, wonderful fruits such as apples, peaches, figs, exceptionally large pears and pecans. Their exhibit of canned goods and preserves, and of all kinds of needlework, including embroidery, crocheting, tatting and applique, were among the best shown.

Rochelle School. Rochelle's efforts were not confined so much to agricultural displays, as to achievements in other lines. The four loving cups won by Rochelle school in interscholastic events occupied prominent place in the booth, while examples of mechanical ingenuity were to be found in the Ford motor rigged up and in operation, and in the handmade set of tools made by W. T. Banks, Jr., nine-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Banks. Canned goods and art work also added to the attractiveness of the display. Mrs. Kid Jeffers displayed samples of her famous butter. The display of relics and curios was quite large, description of which will be found in another column.

We have been having good rains of late. We had a good rain last Monday week, and another good one Sunday night. Most all the farmers are almost through picking cotton.

Our school started Monday, the 24. We have four teachers this year, with Mr. Frank Lohn our principal, Mr. Martin and Miss Vera Evans as primary teachers. We hope the school will be a grand success.

Mrs. Bridge and Mrs. Perry received the sad news of their sister-in-law, Mrs. Whipple dying last Monday night. She lived at Lampasas. She leaves a husband and two children besides a host of relatives and friends. Mrs. Whipple resided in Brady for over a year from which place they moved to Lampasas and have made their home there for one year. The two children will make their home with Mrs. Bridge and Mr. Whipple will still make his home in Lampasas.

Mrs. Quince Walker and Mrs. Jim

Williams spent the day Saturday with Mrs. Bridge.

Miss Hazel Awalt spent Sunday night with Miss Leah Blasdel.

O. A. Whipple returned to Lampasas and Luther Bridge went with him.

As my letter is getting rather lengthy, will bring it to a close and give space for the other writers. "DAISY."

BRADY, TEXAS, Oct. 27, 1922.

HONEST INJUN.

We told you so—it's always FAIR weather when McCulloch county citizens get together.

Excuse us, dear readers, we just couldn't help getting the above little crow off our chest.

HOW BRADY MEASURES UP.

Every reader of The Standard should carefully read and reflect upon the article published over the signature of the Brady Chamber of Commerce in another column of this paper, and which is entitled, "The Tests of a Town."

The article, originally reprinted from the American Journal, sets forth in concise form the advantages every city should possess in order that it may be most attractive to the prospective citizen and investor.

The Standard is happy to say that Brady measures up far above the average in the various tests suggested, and where we lack requirements, there is a progressive bunch of citizens earnestly striving to accomplish those things and overcome such obstacles as stand in the way.

From the standpoint of "Attractiveness," Brady can boast of possession quiet, having abundant roominess, and climatic advantages that cannot be surpassed. It is truly clean in every way—from a physical standpoint as well as a moral standpoint. It is not as well-lighted as might be, but that one great obstacle is to overcome as quickly as the manufacturers can complete shipment of lighting fixtures, when Brady will take rank as one of the best-lighted cities in West Texas. Its paving program still is one of the problems to be met with in what, we hope, will be the no-distant future.

Now go on down the list as set forth in "The Tests of a Town." Note the many advantages Brady already offers; note also that earnest steps are being taken to bring about the accomplishment of other desirable features for the town—and then note that there remain many things for Brady to build to, grow to and strive for—all of which will take united, whole-hearted and cordial co-operation upon the part of every citizen, young or old, man, woman and child.

In the past six months Brady has seen an awakening such as must have commended itself to even the most casual observer. Credit for this awakening, progress and growth cannot be claimed by those who talked calamity, who refused their assistance in progressive moves, who set back in the harness. All history relates and verifies the fact that it is the dreamer, the man with a vision who brings about the unexpected; who starts the ball of progress to rolling; who, in fact, accomplishes the impossible—the very thing that the ultra-conservative says cannot be done.

In the McCulloch County Co-Operative Exhibit, just closed, the citizenship has had living proof of what can be accomplished by a citizenship united in effort, and co-operating in every move for their mutual welfare. If it can be done two days in the year, why not do it 365 days in the year, and 366 in leap years? It can be done, and it should be done—and when it is done, what wonderful strides will not only town and country make, but every community and every individual in every community as well.

The Merchant Who Doesn't Advertise Is Usually Looking For A Nice Quiet Spot—And He Has It—In His Store.

THE GREATEST EVER.

Looking down from the second story of the Brady National bank building upon the crowd assembled for the McCulloch County Exhibit, one of Brady's most prominent, as well as oldest citizens, remarked that it comprised one of the biggest assemblages he had ever seen in Brady, even the big reunions not excepted. That man is not given to exaggeration; in fact, if anything, he might be termed very conservative. Which makes the statement of all the greater value, and writes the 1922 McCulloch County Co-Operative Exhibit down as the greatest event ever staged in McCulloch county history.

BRADY ELEVEN HOLDS JUNCTION TO SCORE OF 0-0

One of the closest and hardest-fought games ever witnessed in Brady was the out-standing feature of Tuesday afternoon's Exhibit program. The Brady high school eleven was matched with the crack Junction high school eleven—a team rated as one of the strongest in this section and which had a record of not a single defeat so far this season. Added to this, the visitors had the advantage of out-weighting the locals quite a bit, and also the Junction team was composed of the same players as had made up the team last year, with the exception of one. All this counted tremendously in favor of the visitors, and made the exhibition put up by the locals all the more remarkable.

Junction had the advantage in the first two quarters, keeping the ball well on Brady territory, but never being able to do anything with it. Brady played a kicking game, and kept the ball out of danger by kicking it back into the middle of the field whenever they had possession of it.

The third quarter was a draw, the honors being quite evenly divided.

In the fourth quarter Brady showed the stuff that was in her by carrying the ball down the field and barely missing kicking goal. In fact, it looked like Brady was good for a score when time was called.

The outstanding features of the game were the kicking of Brown Strickland, the headwork of John Allison Polk in guiding the team, and the defensive work of Arthur Awalt, Chas. Samuel, James Snider, Glenn Ricks, and of Strickland and Polk. As a matter of fact the entire team played jam-up foot ball, and proved that Brady had the stuff in her to make a winning aggregation. An immense crowd witnessed the game, and the splendid playing of the boys made rooters out of even the most conservative fans.

Brady's next game is scheduled with San Angelo a week from tomorrow (Saturday) at which time it is hoped to send a big delegation along with Brady to the Tom Green county capital.

NINE-YEAR OLD LAD SERIOUSLY HURT TUESDAY

Ogden Carroll, nine-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Carroll of Lohn, was knocked unconscious and was quite badly hurt about the head and body last Tuesday morning when he was struck by a car driven by Mrs. Ira Springer of this city. The accident happened on South Blackburn street, opposite the Texaco Filling station, where finishing touches were being placed on one of Lohn's decorated floats. The lad, with other children, was playing about the truck, and darted across the street just ahead of the car coming down the hill. Eyewitnesses differ as to the actual occurrence, some seeming to think the boy was run over by the wheels, while others state he was knocked down, crumpled up and rolled along underneath the car. From the numerous bruises covering his entire body, and especially on his hip and his head, it would appear that the latter was the more correct.

The unfortunate accident created profound dismay and concern among the vast crowd assembled for the opening of the two-day exhibit, especially as it was at first thought the little fellow had been fatally hurt. He was rushed to the local sanitarium, where he remained unconscious until Wednesday afternoon.

He is now reported doing very nicely, and is enabled to return to his home at Lohn.

The accident was greatly regretted by all, and especially by Mrs. Springer, who was almost prostrated by the shock of the accident.

Brady Girl Sponsor.
The many Brady friends of Miss Cleone Deaver will be interested in learning of her election as sponsor of the Tivy high school football squad at Kerrville, where she is now making her home and where she is attending school. Miss Deaver is the attractive and popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Deaver, and a leader in the social and club activities of the younger set. Her election as sponsor in her new home attests her charming and winning disposition, and is quite a distinction. The following is reprinted from the Kerrville Mountain Sun:
At a meeting Monday morning, Miss Cleone Deaver was elected sponsor of the Tivy High school football squad. Her duty is to give entertainments to the visiting teams. The players have great confidence in Miss Deaver and believe that she will give the Tivy opponents good first class entertainments.

Stevens. Quite a number of little folks responded, and a merry time was had in playing various games, while the birthday cake, with its four candles came in for much admiration. One of the most delightful of the pastimes was the fishing of favors out of an improvised fish pond, the favors being in the form of fish, ducks, boats, frogs and turtles.

Hallow'en decoration lent added attraction to the rooms. Numbered among those present were little Misses June Jordan, Mar-

ENTERTAINMENT PROGRAM MOST COMPLETE HAD

The entertainment program offered visitors at the McCulloch County Exhibit was unquestionably one of the most complete and varied ever offered. Every advertised feature was presented with one exception, and that was the live stock parade, which had to be called off at the last minute because many of the animals refused to be led. The band concerts by the Brady Municipal band were among the most appreciated of all the features. The entertainment programs at the tabernacle in which Lohn, Melvin and Brady Central schools participated, served to attract a large attendance, and were thoroughly enjoyed. Supplementing these programs was the entertainment provided Tuesday afternoon by Miss Pinkie Jones' music class, and on Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. J. B. Smith's music class and the Brady Glee club. These all proved thoroughly enjoyable and appreciated. The picture show Tuesday afternoon and the showing of the Collin County live stock reels at night were also greatly enjoyed, while the lyceum number drew a large attendance and was appreciated for the timely characterizations and the clever sketching of the cartoonist.

The various contests served to keep the crowd on the qui vive throughout the two days. The sack races proved a novelty that was enjoyed by the crowd, while the greased pole climb aroused the greatest of enthusiasm. The latter was won by Mr. Maples' son, with two others receiving prizes for their good showing. The fat men's race was a big feature, Otis Waddell, Loss Watkins and Carroll Gray contesting, and Waddell winning at all four posts. Los Watkins got away with a big lead, but lost his balance and suffered a bad fall with disastrous effects to his clothing just before reaching the first quarter post.

The wolf, fox and greased pig chases Wednesday morning were witnessed by a large crowd. The announcement that a man had been found who offered to catch a wolf barehanded was carried out, when Victor Wolf was roped and tied by Otis Waddell. Raymond Claxton and Barney McCoy, both of Brady were the first to capture the greased pig, while Clark Wash and Ray Jones, both of Brady, captured the pig at the second trial. W. M. Bryson had charge and is due credit for these events.

In the tournament races, Dock Wyres won first and Bill Wegner second in Tuesday's contest, while John Morris won first on the second day. In the cigar race, George Spiller, Jr., of Voca won first. Tom Owens and E. Leifeste tied for second and split the pot. Tom Owens won in the goat roping, time being 15 seconds. A feature not advertised was the riding of the bucking horse belonging to Luther Graham, and which was ridden, after several others had been dismounted, by Will Liverman of Voca. This feature attracted a big attendance both days. Success of these features is attributable to the efforts of Dock Wyres and W. F. Dutton.

To Howard Broad goes credit for having staged the grand finale of the two days' exhibit in two exhibition boxing matches, which proved the best entertainment of the entire program. An immense crowd which filled the entire southeast quarter of the public square saw the two exhibitions, which were staged upon a high platform in plain view of everyone, brilliant electrical illumination having been arranged by W. O. Kirchner, superintendent of the Brady Water & Light Co. The preliminary event between Willie D. Evans, 14, of Brady and Denzell Malone, 15, of Rochelle, proved a fast and furious 7-round affair. The exhibition matched between George Garrett of Doole and Lon Cates of Rochelle, went eight rounds, and there was no question but what the entire audience was pleased and satisfied with the bout. Garrett appeared to have the better of the contest at the end of the eighth round.

WONDERFUL DISPLAY McCULLOCH CO. RESOURCES IN EXHIBIT BOOTHS

In addition to a complete showing of canned goods, field and garden products, Dodge showed splendid samples of fancy work, also excellent examples of the leather tanning art, and of mounting done by Conrad Carlson; Butter cookies made by Mrs. Theo. Lyckman, so delicious that they melted in one's mouth; also a display of wheat, flour and bread, and of corn, meal and corn bread, all of which proved very attractive. The relics and curios displayed proved an important and interesting part of the exhibit.

East Sweden School.

In addition to every manner of agricultural and garden products, canned goods and fancy work, East Sweden exhibited especially fine samples of grains and seeds of all kinds; appetizing rye bread, cake, pies, cookies and waffles; also honey, home-made soap and innumerable other articles. A cabinet made by 17-year old Lance Welch displayed genius of exceptional ability.

Melvin School.

Melvin school had an especially attractive display of art and needlework, included among which were samples of crocheting, piece quilting, applique and Broderfast embroidery, in which Masonic emblems were worked out in perfect detail. The scarf, hand-embroidered and adorned with crocheting, displayed by 10-year old Louis Stucke, won for the little lad much favorable comment. Melvin's display of field and garden products and of canned goods and preserves was also good, but not quite as complete as could have been wished.

Fairview School.

Fairview had set her pegs right at the beginning to win first prize, so when her citizens assembled their manifold products, then found that one booth could not contain them all, so they were forced to change to a new location in the rear of the building, where double space could be allotted to them. Fairview did herself proud, and Fairview citizens cheerfully give Mrs. A. J. Johnson full credit for the successful direction of their efforts. Mrs. Johnson was ably assisted, however, by Mesdames A. R. Carlson, C. V. Gustafson, Kirby Huffman, and as well by all the other ladies of the community, and the men folks as well. Texas stars composed of open cotton bolls adorned the top of each of the booths. In addition to one of the most complete showings of home canned goods and preserves, the exhibit included ten different varieties of, delicious cookies prepared by Mesdames Johnson, Carlson and Gustafson; also candies, cakes, salads, baked hen, muffins, bread, etc. Home-made soaps also were displayed, as well as home-made meats, and samples of butter and cream. A beautifully artistic piece of work was the shuck hat made by Mrs. G. C. Black, and the paintings by Mrs. L. F. Harrod attracted much favorable comment. Four different bed spreads were displayed, as well as dress forms and notable displays of needle and art work. In the agricultural booth was displayed the most complete showing of divers farm products in the entire exhibit, practically every variety of seed and grain, as well as forage crop being represented. H. J. Huffman also had his home-canning outfit on display, and which attracted much attention.

Fife School.

As an example of decorative ingenuity and skill, Fife easily deserved first rank. In the background of her booth was a large star, the center of which was composed of a pumpkin, while the five points were made up of maize and feterita, the alternate light and dark grains contrasting most effectively. Stars in each corner of the background were formed from ears of corn on one side and tomatoes and kaffir corn on the other. The whole was surrounded with a border of cotton—the whole decorative scheme being to effectively impress upon all the diversification in which Fife citizens are taking a leading part and which is doing so much to build up this enterprising community. Fife, in addition, had a splendid display of canned goods, farm products, needle and fancy work including embroidery, piece quilting, etc. Her dry land corn was worthy of especial mention. In fact, her whole agricultural exhibit was a splendid example of dry land farming, for the Fife community had no rain since the 8th of June. Her citizens came and entered the Exhibit just to be coming, but at that they captured blue ribbons just the same. For all of which they deserve especial credit.

Calf Creek School.

Calf Creek had the start on a splendid exhibit, but lacked the full co-operation of every citizen to make the affair the success it should have been. Her latticed booth in orange and purple was most attractive and there were splendid samples of canned goods, farm products and fancy work, the latter of which included a hand-painted pillow top by Mrs. J. F. Alexander, tatting, embroidery and also a beautiful crocheted cap by Mrs. Aug. Fielder. The pictures showing the gathering, weighing, loading, marketing and the bales of C. Davenport's big Kaach cotton crop, totaling 17 bales, were a distinctive feature.

Claxton School.

Claxton school got a late start on her exhibit and all but got crowded out. However, she made the most of the tiny space allotted to her, and showed herself game and in the ring. Her exhibit was not large or varied, but formed a nucleus which proved this little community to have the land and the citizens to put on the right sort of a show, and next year it is safe to say, they will be up early and going strong at exhibit time.

Brady Schools.

The Brady schools had an exhibit that was in a class to itself, being distinctive from all other exhibits. The high school department had samples of science and domestic arts, and the History and English classes and also the 7th grade had splendid exhibits of their work. The specially decorated table by the domestic science class displayed their skill in the preparation of various appetizing dishes and preserves, as well as the proper serving and the carrying out of decorative schemes in the serving. The domestic arts class displayed many beautiful samples of needle and art work. The fifth and sixth grades had an elaborate display of drawings, books, maps, paintings, mounted butterflies, etc. The first and second grades showed cutouts, paintings and colorings, giving a clear insight into the work accomplished by the little folks in their first years at school.

Fancy and Needlework.

Brady's showing of fancy and needlework was most elaborate and included a wonderful showing of art, skill, patience and cleverness all combined. It is impossible to convey any idea of the beauty of this showing—it had to be seen to be appreciated. Mrs. H. R. Hodges was in charge of this department, and was assisted by Mesdames E. B. Newman, Marion Deans and Tammy Cook.

Culinary.

The culinary department exhibited an appetizing array of cakes, fruits of all kinds, canned goods, including canned sausage and spare ribs, candies and the like. A Japanese persimmon, grown in Mrs. J. W. Batey's yard was an oddity. In this department were also a display of various curios and oddities. The tobacco plant and the coffee bean and other plants attracted attention. The curios are described in another column. Mrs. Edd Broad was assisted in this department by Mesdames Arthur and Tom Wood.

Home Demonstration Department.

Miss Bess Winters, home demonstration agent, had a display of made-over children's clothes that was little short of wonderful. Her display also included samples of home-made millinery, canned foods and tins prepared with the Burpee sealer and pressure cooker.

Fine Arts.

Tucked away in a corner was a most beautiful display of art work and paintings. The paintings included splendid pieces of work by Misses Katharine Ballou and Mary Lyle Vincent and Mrs. Lelia Irwin. In hand-painted china, Mrs. Irwin showed a beautiful chop plate, while the lemonade set and the part of a dinner set displayed by Miss Daysie Hill formed invaluable pieces of hand-painted china which spoke in terms of highest praise for the skill and art of their creators.

Other Displays.

Other exhibits included many exquisite samples of photographic art displayed by St. Clair's studio; a beautiful display of ferns, geraniums, carnations, tube roses, cinnias, coleus and many other blooming and pot plants, exhibited by Mrs. E. R. Behrens; a splendid rocker of black walnut, grown on Katemey creek, upholstered and hand-made by J. M. Page; samples of hand-stamped leather and silver mounted saddles by H. P. C. Evers and Bro., and also a display of Texaco products.

The foregoing is but a bare mention of a few of the many attractive exhibits. The Exhibit hall was most attractively decorated within and without, the decoration being planned and arranged by Mesdames G. W. Henderson and J. F. Schaefer, while Mrs. E. B. Newman personally supervised the decorating and arrangement of the art and culinary booths for Brady.

Judges of the Booths were the following: M. R. Bentley of College Station, J. D. Tinsley, Santa Fe Agricultural agent, Miss Mary Jessie Stone of College Station, Miss Maysie Malone, Home Demonstration agent

Live Stock Exhibit.

At the Dutton City Park many splendid showings of horse flesh, sheep, goats, dairy and beef cattle and hogs were had, this feature of the Exhibit being in charge of F. M. Richards. The judging of the horses, sheep, goats, hogs and dairy cattle was done by S. C. Evans of College Station, while Roy Terry of Paint Rock, Concho county agent, judged the beef cattle.

Poultry Exhibit.

The poultry exhibit was supervised by Lee Morgan, and exceeded by far the most sanguine expectations. Additional coops and racks had to be provided in order to accommodate all the poultry entered in the competition, and the visitor to this department was at once impressed with the fact that McCulloch county poultry raisers have gone in almost 100% for the pedigreed and fancy birds. This feature, in itself, constituted a whole show and was one of the best of the entire exhibit. Judging of poultry was by J. Skaggs of Paint Rock.

In An Old Hindu Temple

ABOVE us the huge tower of the temple, one of the six gopurams, tapers gradually upward, covered with the incrustations of its myriad images, says Doctor Dearmer in the Manchester (England) Guardian. Dark hued people in dazzling colors swarm along the street, the white lines of Vishnu or of Shiva gleaming on their foreheads under the bright December sun; and from the street a stream passes continually through the high gateway into the dark arcade of shops and great painted images—the piers of this architecture—through which one can dimly see passage beyond high passage, as far as the vague hint of the shrine at the end of this dark perspective.

There is an hour in the year when a beam from the rising sun pierces the whole long length through the midst of the temple and strikes the image of the god Shiva Sundareswar in the depths of his innermost sanctuary, where none but Hindus may ever enter.

To pass through that first high but gloomy passage into the precincts of the temple itself is to travel back 3,000 years. I feel that I shall never long be transplanted into ancient Egypt again. I have been there, and I know what it must have been like.

Nor will the Parthenon be ever again to me an empty ruin. I can imagine it now as it was, only Greek refinement instead of Hindu coarseness and excess, with the Greek beauty of sculptured gods and goddesses instead of the cruel, minatory grotesques of this strange pantheon. I can picture now what the ancient paganism was like, and how the philosophers taught one thing while the people fiercely believed another, and how the common worship of the crowd and the ancient immemorial tradition drew the hearts of the philosophers in spite of themselves.

Life and Traffic Ancient.

True, the architecture of this Indian temple is but a few hundred years old; for most Hindu buildings are modern compared with their faith. But the spirit is as old as Egypt—the half sinister air of mystery, and the swarms upon swarms of people, crowding the vast corridors, passing out into the sunshine under the painted colonnade round the square expanse of bright green water, each seeking his special god, each worshipping where his fancy leads him. The people are darker, the pervading smell is of melted ghee instead of incense. But it is the life that is the same, the life of thousands who are here because all the gods are real to them—the women, for instance, who clasp their hands and prostrate themselves when our guide opens the doors which protect the gilded cars and subsidiary images (slapping them familiarly with his hand).

It is the life and the traffic that are so real, so immeasurably old, from the temple elephant, swaying to and fro in a corridor that is not the least dwarfed by him, to the men who are chanting Vedas by the tank, and the little naked children turning solemnly round because their parents do so, and the hundreds of drowsy men who squat at different boards on the floor selling coktree flowers and other offerings for the gods.

Ruined temples smell of flowers, or earth, or desert sand, and are washed clean and dried by nature. But this living city of columns smells of life, and the stone pavement is soft with dirt; the weird carvings are obscured with many layers of solid whitewash or blackened by greasy hands and hot elbows; the sacred idols drip with oil and are blackened also.

In the Heart of the Temple.

One gigantic image especially no one who has seen it is likely to forget, as it looms out, black and sticky, in the light of two flaring lamps (made as the Greeks made lamps) that are held up by two half-naked servants. It is Ganesha, the good-natured elephant god, as broad as he is long, but looking portentous and horrible, his trunk lying across the huge protuberance of his inhumanly human abdomen.

And the life of the temple is so real because it is also the life of the city. It is involved not only by the tradition that in India is literally timeless, but by the customs of every hour, and by the heaviest of all customs, caste. At any hour the life of the people may be seen in epitome here. In the heart of the temple; three gaunt widows well wrapped in their dull white saris are squatting on the ground to feed a sleek young Brahman clad in a loin cloth. The darkness is lit up by little dishes of burning grease which are spread out among the dishes of food upon the floor. The Brahman eats the meal which the widows proffer, and then gets up, shakes himself, strokes his fat stomach and waddles off without a word, his large liver-colored calves shining in the smoky flicker of the lamps.

Next day I came again, and another scene was being enacted. There were the same little brass dishes on the floor; but the Brahman was old and thin, and a whole family squatted before him, making due postures, while he muttered the sacred texts. And still the barefooted worshippers shuffled incuriously by.

APES THAT RESEMBLE MEN

Almost Human Characteristics of the Malas, Gibbon and Macaque Found in Borneo.

The Sarawak region in Borneo, ruled over by the Brooke family, is a famous hunting ground of naturalists, says the New York Evening Post. One of the best books on zoology and biology of the island that has yet appeared comes in Robert W. C. Sheldford's "A Naturalist in Borneo."

Sheldford was for seven years following 1897 the curator of Rajah Brooke's museum, and, an active and indefatigable curious man, he has extraordinary opportunities of studying the wild life of the island.

The most interesting of Borneo's animals are the mammals and especially the simians; and here Mr. Sheldford offers some information that is quite new upon the malas—as he insists what is ordinarily called an orang-utan should be called—the gibbon, and the macaque. The first is not easily studied. "I want to know how many wives he keeps and how he treats them," one Englishman asked; but until men can acquire arboreal habits such things will remain mysteries. The malas are quick travelers in the tree-tops, they love swampy regions, where men can move but slowly, and they are remarkably inconspicuous in the foliage. They are fruit eaters of dainty habits, and seldom stay long in one locality. Each night they make a small nest by bending down small branches, to form a platform in the fork of a bough, and with the feet and hands tightly clasping the limbs go to sleep. A young malas that Sheldford kept as a pet always slept in an empty room furnished with an iron bedstead. "On the steel laths of this the ape would solemnly climb every evening at about 6:30; he invariably sprawled on the flat of his back, pulled over his head and chest a piece of sack with which he was provided, and with hands and feet got a good grip on the posts and frame of the bed. In a few minutes he would be asleep and his snoring was so loud that it could be heard nearly all over the house." The malas make a good pet, being clean, affectionate and more intelligent than any other animal except man. Mr. Sheldford gives the impression that watching a young malas is like watching a baby not quite so young; the interplay of reason and instinct is much the same.

The gibbon has less intelligence, but is distinguished by the musical morning cry with which the jungle fairly rings at dawn—a cry more powerful than the song of birds to bring the sluggard out to enjoy the most salubrious part of the Bornean day. But the macaque has apparently, again, a good deal of sense. He alone of the three will, given a bowl of water, lift it with his hands and drink man fashion. He can also be trained to pick coconuts, the modus operandi being very simple. A cord is fastened about the monkey's waist and he is sent up a palm, where he begins laying hold of the nuts. If the owner thinks a particular nut ripe he shouts and down it comes; if it is unripe, he plucks the cord and the monkey goes on to another. Sometimes the cord is dispensed with entirely and the monkey submits to his master's voice, something like gee and haw probably representing ripe and unripe respectively. We are not told that any macaques have been developed which are able to use a trustworthy judgment of their own as to the ripeness of coconuts; but the practice of eugenics upon a few generations of these monkeys should do as much.

The king of Slam has a bodyguard of 400 trained and armed women doing service in his capital.

COWBOY'S WEAPON THE RIFLE

Never Had the Popularity of the "Gun," Which Was Name Unversally Given the Pistol.

In describing the weapons of the cowboy of the Western range, Phillip Ashton Rollins in his book says: The rifle, when carried, was conveyed, not by the cowboy himself, but by his horse, which bore it in a quiver-shaped, open-mouthed scabbard, into which the rifle went up to its stock. This scabbard sometimes hung from the saddle horn, but more commonly was slung, butt forward, in an approximately horizontal position along the near side of the animal, and passed between the two leaves of the stirrup-leather. The rifle was thus escheved, because, being heavy, it interfered with ready saddling and unsaddling; and, being bulky, it materially detracted from the rider's comfort.

After the early '70s the rifle, regardless of its make, was usually called a "Winchester," though this particular term, because of its similarity to the name of a well-known condiment, was occasionally paraphrased into "Worcestershire." Falling these titles, the weapon was styled merely "rifle." It, except in the case of the rifles specially designed for bison shooting and called "buffalo guns," never was termed "gun," that word, save for the single exception noted, being consecrated to the pistol.

"Scatter-guns," otherwise shotguns, were occasionally produced by tunderfoots; but they, unless with "sawed-off" barrels, loaded with nails or buckshot, and in the hands of express messengers, served for the westerner only as objects of derision.

OLD IDEA IN UNIVERSITIES

Student Bodies, Fraternally Linked, Had Their Beginnings in the Fifteenth Century.

University life today embodies many ancient practices in slightly modified form. College fraternities really date back to the Fifteenth century, when universities were few in number and students were attracted to them from many lands. The student body naturally gathered into groups according to nationalities, and these groups were known as "nations." Later came the organization of the student corps in German universities. In some American universities today there are nation societies, as the Philippine, Chinese, Japanese and Cuban, representing the nations, and the Southerners, Southwesterners, Pacific coast and others representing sections and states of the Union.

Poor students of the Fifteenth century drifted from one university to another, supporting themselves by singing, begging, stealing and, occasionally, working.

The freshmen had a rather sorry time. In the German universities they were termed "Schutzen," and were compelled to perform all sorts of menial offices for the upper class men, who were termed "Baechanten," and were often worthy of that title. From this practice developed the system of "fagging" in the English grammar schools. That practice traces back even to the academic schools of Athens. The freshmen, on admission to a university, were put through an initiation ordeal which was the origin of the present-day hazing.

Hard Cider Homilies.

Different people have different ways of giving us pain; our friends leave us—and our relatives fall to.

Eternity is almost beyond human comprehension; imagine, if you can, a period so long that it would allow a man to save enough cigar coupons to get a piano or a motorcycle.

Propinquity may account for many marriages, but it is responsible for even more divorces.

It has taken Satan thousands of years to reach his present technic; yet the latest arrivals from the earth can always show him a thing or two.

People seldom turn maxims over and look at them from the back. It is easy to believe that great oaks from little acorns grow, but it is quite as easy to believe that little acorns from great oaks grow.—Edwin H. Blanchard, in the New York Sun.

Mr. Jones.

Consider the case of Mr. Jones. He bought a watch for 50 bones. Does Mr. Jones rant, curse and swear, does Mr. Jones his toupee tear; whenever in the day or night he finds that watch not running right? No, Mr. Jones, a thoughtful man, knows watch never will or can, so long as heat and cold prevail, hit time exactly on the nail. Now this identical Mr. Jones will buy—well, not for 50 bones, but for the price of a cheap cigar—the right to ride on a trolley car, a car that has to run its race within no sealed and dustproof case, but on a crowded city street where all the tides of traffic meet, and yet Mr. Jones starts a hot debate whenever that car's a minute late.—From Electric Traction.

Length of Birds' Life.

The chief of the biological bureau in the United States is able to give the ages to which some birds have lived. The following are his figures: Thrush, 15 to 25 years; swallow, 9; catary, 20; cardinal, 21; raven, 60; magpie, 21; large owl, 68; golden eagle, 40; white pelican, 41; cormorant, 23; large blue heron, 60; swan, 102; mallard, 20; other ducks, 11 to 23; oyster-catcher, 20; herring gull, 44, and wandering albatross, 46 years.

totaled in value $3,114,000,000, as against the $6,516,000,000 value of exports in the previous fiscal year. During the same period imports totaled in value $2,608,000,000 as against the $3,654,000,000 value of imports in the previous fiscal year.

CHINESE NOW CLAIM HONOR

Buddhist Priests Said to Have Discovered America Long Before Day of Columbus.

Legends common to the literature of both China and Japan relate that about the year 499 Hwui Shan, a Buddhist missionary, in company with five brother priests, found a land many miles to the eastward of China which he named Fusang. They sailed along the Chinese coast to Kamchatka and thence along the Aleutian Islands to Alaska. The description of the peoples they found fits the Aleuts and the Eskimos as they are today.

From Alaska, which they called Great Han, they sailed along the coast to Fusang. Hwui Shan describes the dwellings made of blocks of sun-dried mud, which housed many people, a description which fits the pueblos of ancient America. He mentions a plant used in making cordage and paper, which afforded vegetable milk and which yielded tender edible sprouts. The magney plant also answers this description.

He also describes a plant and its fruit which is the species of cactus commonly known as the prickly pear. From the Chinese records, therefore, Fusang was very like Mexico.

A few years ago the Chinese government directed its historian to make a search of the Imperial records, and from them came the foregoing account.

PESSIMISM NEVER IN ORDER

Present Time Always Just as Good a Time as Any, if One Will but Consider.

Our age is bewailed as an age of In-troversion. Must that needs be evil? We, it seems, are critical; we are embarrassed with second thoughts; we cannot enjoy anything for hankering to know whereof the pleasure consists; we are lined with eyes; we see with our feet; the time is infected with Hamlet's unhappiness—

Sickled o'er with the pale cast of thought.

Is it so bad then? Sight is the last thing to be pitted. Would we be blind?

Do we fear lest we should outsee nature and God, and drink truth dry?

I look upon the discontent of the literary class as a mere announcement of the fact that they find themselves not in the state of mind of their fathers, and regret the coming state as untidied; as a boy dreads the water before he has learned that he can swim. If there is any period one would desire to be born in—is it not the age of Revolution; when the old and the new stand side by side, and admit of being compared; when the energies of all men are searched by fear and by hope; when the historic glories of the old can be compensated by the rich possibilities of the new era? This time, like all times, is a very good one, if we know what to do with it.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Origin of Polka-Dot.

Silvered with the dust of decades is the polka-dot pattern in men's scarfs. Fashions may appear and disappear, but the polka-dot is peerless and disappearless. As regularly as sunrise and the seasons, this design brightens windows and wearers. It is one-and-invisible with the fine art of dress alike in America and England.

To the polka-dot is ascribed an odd ancestry. Its name, of course, is derived from the polka, an old-fashioned round dance with three steps to the measure. This dance, introduced in Europe by a Bohemian, round about 1835, spread to the United States at the time that Polk was a candidate for the presidency. The polka-dot was bracketed with Polk's name by political admirers, and polka-this and polka-that, from shirts to shoes, became a bit of furore in merchants' windows.

Wood Has Bad Reputation.

Elder is of ill-omen since Judas, they say, hanged himself thereon, yet it has the virtue of beauty in the days of wild roses and honeysuckle. Elder-flower-water is good for complexions, say rustic maids, and old-time farmers claim for elderberry-wine that it is "a pretty tidy tippie."

Though the elder-wood is a dank, weed-infested place, it is to the liking of rabbits, that always seem to abound there.

Such woods cumber the ground, but here and there the superstition holds good that to cut or burn elder is to arouse the wrath of the trees' dryad, and so they are spared.

Eagle Must Prove Fitness.

Many were the strange stories told of the eagle during antiquity. It was believed to be the messenger and spirit of Jupiter. One of these stories, and perhaps the most peculiar of all of them, is the following, told by Pliny, the great naturalist of ancient Rome:

As soon as her fledglings can fly the mother eagle takes her young ones and bids them sit upon a limb in full view of the setting sun. If one of them ever so much as blinks or waters at the eyes the mother falls upon it and kills it, deeming it too degenerate and weak to propagate the species.

It Was Hard to Bear.

Mr.—Have you heard that Sjoberg's wife had run away?

Mrs.—No, indeed! Poor fellow! How did he take it?

Mr.—Well, he has now calmed down a little, but for the first few days he was delicious with joy.—Stockholm Kasper.

THE TESTS OF A TOWN

—QUESTIONS THAT PEOPLE ASK ABOUT YOUR TOWN BEFORE THEY DECIDE TO MAKE IT THEIR OWN.

ATTRACTIVENESS—

Shall I like the town—its "atmosphere?" Does it have the beauty of shaded streets and other beautiful features? Is it a quiet, roomy, airy, well-lighted town? Does it have attractive public buildings and homes? Is it well paved? Is it clean in every way?

HEALTHFULNESS—

Will my family and I have a reasonable chance to keep well in that town? How about its water supply? Its sanitary system? Its methods of milk inspection? Its health department? Its hospitals? Is it without any congested district?

EDUCATION—

Can I educate my family and myself in that town? How about its public schools—present and future? Its institutions of higher education or of business training? Its libraries? Its lectures and concert courses? Its newspapers? Its postal facilities?

PEOPLE—

Shall I like the people of the town? Are they home folks without false exclusiveness? Are they neighborly and friendly? Is the town free from factionalism? Does it have strong religious, fraternal and social organizations?

RECREATION—

Can I and my family have a good time in that town? How about the theatres, museums, gymnasiums, parks, etc.? Are inviting opportunities for pleasure drives afforded by well paved streets?

LIVING—

Can we live reasonably and well in that town? Are the best of modern conveniences available for its residents—electricity, gas, telephone, etc? Are the housing and shopping conditions favorable? Rents and prices fair? Hotels good? Home and truck gardens and dairy products plentiful?

ACCESSIBILITY—

Can we go and come easily? Does the town have adequate railroad facilities and train service? Street car lines? Interurban lines? Well marked automobile routes, and hard surfaced roads?

BUSINESS—

Can I make good use of capital in that town? Are there good banking facilities? Manufacturing interests? Up-to-date stores? Good shipping facilities? Fair real estate values? Favorable labor conditions? A prosperous farming territory? Reasonably cheap power? Active co-operation among business interests?

EMPLOYMENT

Can I get a job in that town at fair pay and good prospects for the future? Can I count on co-operation from organizations making it their business to help introduce and establish new and commercial interests and to welcome new citizens?

PROGRESSIVENESS—

Shall I find that I am in a live town having a progressive government, active civic organizations, and modern fire protection, and a "pull-together" spirit in everything? A town with a future?

You cannot control the climate, natural scenery nor historic associations of your town, but if, in other respects, it doesn't measure up to the standard that will be applied by intelligent town-buyers, get busy and help make it measure up. We must make our commodity right if we are going to sell it.

Every person interested in Brady should clip this article and keep it for reference. Select the item you think that Brady needs most and start in to put it over. You will get lots of pleasure out of the work and be doing something for your town at the same time.

We must sell Brady to the world and it needs some repairs and additions before we can offer it for sale. A new coat of paint will not hurt it. A town's growth depends on its people; if they work together continually it can't help but grow. Yonder is a city and here is a village; insofar as natural resources are concerned the village should be the city and the city should be the village—men make the difference.

Brady has just as good a location for a city as any place in the State, and the only reason it does not grow any faster is the lack of confidence some of its biggest citizens have in it. Water, the greatest essential towards building a city, we have in abundance; in fact, we haven't such a bad start towards making a very desirable place to live in, if we will just go ahead and make a few repairs and necessary additions—and the most essential thing is that we use team work and work together.

If you will adopt this program, and work towards carrying it out Brady will jump ahead surprisingly fast. Try it, the town is yours!

CONTRACT HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING LET MONDAY

The Brady school board met in special session Monday for the purpose of letting the contract for the new Brady High School building. Incidentally, the board appointed Dr. J. G. McCall as one of the trustees, vice J. B. Whiteman resigned.

Considerable competition was manifested in the bidding, some twenty-five contractors being represented. H. H. Richards of Waxahachie was the lowest bidder, and was awarded the building contract for $32,000.

Texas $20 bill issued when Sam Houston was president of Texas, and which served as currency of the realm during the ten years Texas was a republic.

Mr. Richards was just $265 lower than the second and third bidders, whose bids were identical one with the other. However, there was a wide range in the bids the highest of which ran over $40,000.

Contract for the electric wiring was let to T. W. Tomme of Brownwood, and the plumbing contract was awarded Mr. Martin of Austin. Architect Kuehne, whose plans were accepted some time ago by the board, was in the city and explained in detail the plans and all matters in connection with the building of the new structure.

Something like four months will be required to complete the erection of the new school building, and work will begin as soon as material can be placed on the ground.
