

BRADY HUMBLING BRECKENRIDGE CRACK TEAM 1-0

The Breckenridge base ball team, rated as one of the three strongest independent teams in Texas, and with a record of 19 games won out of 21 played, received the surprise of their lives Sunday when the Brady aggregation humbled them by a score of 1 to 0. In fact, the Breckenridge fans said that Brady put up the best class of ball seen there this season, and they strongly urged Brady to return for several week-end engagements.

Keck pitched one of his usual all-star games for Brady, allowing but two hits, while Freeman for Breckenridge allowed 8 hits. Brady made her score in the third inning. Red White came up to the bat swinging a stick in either hand, which earned him some good-natured banter about his being used to plow-hands. Red's answer was a two-bagger. He also showed himself a whirlwind at short and when he simply robbed Breckenridge of a clean hit by a sensational stop, the fans fairly went wild. The Brady bunch was pretty well advertised before the game by thousands of posters scattered around the town advertising the long series of games Brady had won, but declaring Brady couldn't win from Breckenridge. Needless to say, Brady was even better advertised following the game. Brady has a record of 19 games won out of 26 played.

Mason Series of Games.

Brady made it three straight in the home series with Mason last week, winning Friday's game 10 to 3, and Saturday's game, after 13 hard-fought innings, 4 to 3. The Friday game was more or less of a farce. Saunders, pitching for the visitors, appeared rheumatic—at any rate, he was pulled after Brady had touched him up for five runs and about six hits, including two three-baggers. Green, Farrar and Anderson all were tried out on the mound, with Brady doing some heavy stick work all along. Shearer lost credit in the 8th for a three-bagger, being declared out for not touching first base. McCarty, pitching for Brady, got along very well, except in the second, when Mason rapped him for two two-baggers and one single all in a row, hitting two of her three scores. Hale replaced McCarty with two down in the 6th.

Score by Innings—
Brady . . . . . 600 000 04x—10
Mason . . . . . 020 100 000—3

Thirteen Innings Saturday.

Saturday Mason came back with blood in her eye. Using E. Henke and U. Henke of Fredericksburg as battery, Mason set out to win—and all but succeeded. A series of four hits netted three runs in the third, a lead that almost proved the undoing of Brady. Except in the third, Hale held Mason hitless and scoreless. Brady got a run in the first and another in the third. In the ninth, McCarty hit safely, made second, and when Hale hit to short, Mc landed on third, and beat the ball into home plate after Hale was thrown out at first. His run tied the score. Although Hale had pitched three innings Friday, he held up strong throughout the thirteen innings Saturday, and Henke for the visitors also pitched good ball throughout. In the thirteenth inning, Hampton got a hit, and Adkins and B. Lane both landed safely thru errors, which incidentally enabled Hampton to get home with the winning run.

Score by Innings—
Brady . . . . . 101 000 001 000 1—4
Mason . . . . . 003 000 000 000 0—3
Summary of Game—Hits: Mason 4; Brady 9. Three-Base Hits: Adkins. Struck Out: By Henke 8; by Hale 16. Bases on Balls: By Henke 2; by Hale 2. Umpires: Hart and Keller. Time of Game: 2:15.

INCREASING CROWDS AND INTEREST TRADE IN BRADY DAY LAST SATURDAY

AMUSEMENT PROGRAM WELL CARRIED OUT—BAND CONCERT APPRECIATED FEATURE—FREE PRIZE AWARDS BY MERCHANTS ATTRACT ATTENTION.

That the "Trade in Brady Saturday" movement is getting desired results was well emphasized last Saturday in the increasingly large crowds that thronged the Brady streets and square. Considerable interest was manifested in the various amusement features during the afternoon, and good-sized crowds participated. An unexpected and appreciated feature was the appearance of the Brady Municipal band in an hours concert on the courthouse square. One of the most interesting events was the free registration and prize-drawing by a bunch of merchants, who report the greatest of interest in the same. Each and every prize was awarded as announced, one of the prizes going as far distant as Menard.

The various contests were had as advertised and served to create much amusement and interest. In the Potato Race, a Rochelle boy and McCarty of the Brady baseball team, tied. In the three-legged race, McCarty and Bill Vaughn were winners. No one essayed to throw the base ball across the square except Ernest McMurray, and he only covered three-fourths of the distance. In the horse-shoe pitching, old champions were dethroned and new ones made.

The Brady Municipal band concert proved a great treat and was thoroughly enjoyed. At the swimming pool, three young men from Brownwood gave exhibitions in water-racing, fancy diving and various other aquatic stunts, in which they were joined by Hardin Jones of Brady. The performances were held beginning at 5:30 and were enjoyed by quite a large crowd of watchers.

The various free drawings attracted much attention, and 117 persons were registered at one of the stores, indicating the interest taken in this feature. Among the winners are reported the following:

- Myers Bros. Store—1st Prize, J. Milton Williams. 2nd, A. R. Pool; 3rd, Miss Minnie Whitehead.
- Broad Mercantile Co.—1st Prize, E. O. Barker; 2nd, N. Z. Bethel, Menard; 3rd, Clifton Fowler, Lohn.
- Trigg Drug Co.—1st Prize, Joe Ogden; 2nd, Eunice Schaeg; 3rd, Mrs. Otis Turney.
- Vincent's—1st Prize, Gladys Taylor; 2nd, J. C. Wall; 3rd, W. J. Hampton.
- Abney's—1st Prize, Howard Broad, Jr.; 2nd, Eula Mae Evans; 3rd, J. R. Kennedy.
- Taylor-Finlay Drug Co.—1st Prize, Harvey Davis, Pear Valley. 2nd, W. J. Hampton; 3rd, Roy Smith.
- Moffatt Bros. & Jones—1st Prize, Mrs. Henry Tipton; 2nd, A. R. Pool; 3rd, G. A. Crawford.

Popular Dry Goods Co.—1st Prize, Mrs. J. R. Kennedy; 2nd, Mrs. R. E. Passmore; 3rd, Miss Jim Gay.

O. D. Mann & Sons report great interest manifested in their offers, Simpson & Co. and Otis Turney had good results on their tire offers and, in fact, nearly every merchant participating saw direct benefit from last Saturday's trading.

Wrestling Match and Fights.

A good crowd was out to witness the wrestling match and fight staged at Dutton City park under auspices of the local post of the American Legion, and everyone had a word of praise for the clean exhibitions given. Thomas secured two throws on Miller, the first in 21 minutes of wrestling and the second in 32 minutes. In the bout between Erickson and Shorty Malone, the two fighters showed to be evenly matched, and their classy exhibition called forth much approving comment.

Big Program Next Saturday.

Another big program of amusement and entertainment is scheduled for next Saturday. The various features will include the following:

- Potato Race.
- Three-Legged Race.
- Cigarette Race.
- Burro Race Around Square.
- Pony Race at Ball Park.
- Horse-Shoe Pitching.

Another Big Fight Program.

With the interest aroused by last Saturday's matches, another big program of fights for next Saturday night is assured. It is expected that no less than five local bouts will be arranged, including one wrestling match. A boxing exhibition has already been arranged between Young Selvidge and Clary of Rochelle; another is being arranged between Bagley and a boy from Ballinger, and at least two other local events are under way, and will be ready for announcement by Saturday. The American Legion is endeavoring to foster interest in good, clean exhibitions of the manly sport and hope to receive the encouragement and attendance of the citizens.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Having sold several tons of grasshopper poison, Coleman drug store clerks would naturally have arsenic constantly on their mind. A few days ago a man entered a Coleman drug store and bought a bill of goods. The clerk charged the goods to John B. Arsenic. — Coleman Democrat-Voice.

A wire received by Paul Klatt from his brother, Arthur, at Hallettsville reads: "In Time They All Flop—Alfred Married Last Night." The foregoing will be surprising news to Brady and McCulloch county friends of Alfred Reissner, who many years ago had given him up as an absolutely hopeless matrimonial risk. The next question naturally is, "Who is the brave young lady, and where—etc." No word so far!

Someone bright and early Monday morning caused some grief and considerable anxiety by scattering, maliciously or unintentionally, a big handful of upholstering tacks on South Blackburn street just at the intersection by the Brady National bank. One or two punctures resulted, and then some of Brady's most prominent citizens went on a still hunt for the tacks, and recovered at least 99 percent of them.

The distance from Coleman to Doole in McCulloch county, via of Gouldbusk and Stacy is 38.6 miles, and from Doole to Coleman via of Stacy, Voss and Valera is 38 miles, according to J. M. Crawford's speedometer. Mr. Crawford visited Doole last Saturday. He reported grasshopper depredations not as great as he expected to see. The greatest destruction to cotton, he said, was south of Voss, where most of the fields had to be replanted. In other fields along the route the grasshoppers seem to have been held in check or else were not present in as great numbers. — Coleman Democrat-Voice.

BASKET PICNIC PLANNED JULY 4TH AT BRADY

Plans are now under way for a big county-wide Basket Picnic to be held July 4th at the Brady Tourist park. Inasmuch as not only the banks, but all the business houses will be closed in celebration of the national holiday, the occasion is most opportune for a grand get-together celebration. A basket picnic offers the most practical way of celebrating, and everyone from near and from afar will be invited to participate.

The Tourist Park offers an ideal site for the picnic, there being an abundance of shade, tables and seats being available, and as well a barbecue pit and other conveniences. The swimming pool adjoining will lend attraction and amusement, and across the creek Edd Broad has offered use of his shady grove to the picnickers.

Free lemonade and ice cold drinking water will be furnished.

Edd Broad has been placed in charge of the affair, and is busy this week appointing sub-committees, and in getting everything off to a good start.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC AT WHITELAND GREATLY ENJOYED—LARGE ATTENDANCE

Brady visitors at the annual Sunday school picnic at Whiteland last Saturday were quite a large attendance, the citizens of West Sweden, Whiteland, Dodge and Melvin all being represented by large delegations present. As usual, there was a super-abundance of the most delectable eatables, and no one but what had every opportunity to satisfy his hunger to the last degree. The barbecue and coffee as prepared by Dad Smith was said to have been the finest ever, and all praise most highly the hospitality of the good people of West Sweden and Whiteland and their cordial neighbors.

Card of Thanks.

Kind friends, it is beyond the power of words or pen to express our appreciation of the flowers brought to the bedside of our loved one and the kindness shown him and ourselves during his illness and death. But as we cannot take each of you by the hand we take this method of thanking you and may God's richest blessing reward you one and all is our prayer.

WHERE THE BIG FISH YARNS ORIGINATE.

A press dispatch from Brady denies the report that some twenty-two people in Brady are suffering from poison caused by eating fish that had eaten poisoned grasshoppers. To the stranger it might seem possible that there might be some truth in the report, but those of us who are familiar with the situation know there is not a fish near Brady big enough to swallow a grasshopper. Come to Menard for your fishing—Menard Messenger.

There must be some big fish around Menard if they swallow everything that John and Josh put out in the Menard Messenger.

THE GOOD NAME OF LEE.

When Robert E. Lee faced the problem of earning a livelihood in a devastated country he was offered the presidency of a New York insurance company at $50,000.00 a year.

"But I am not qualified for such a position," objected the great Virginian.

"We are not asking for service, general," he was told; "we merely want your name."

"If my name is worth that much," gravely answered Lee, "don't you think I should be very careful of it?"

He refused the offer, and became president of what is now Washington and Lee University, at $1500 a year.

Current press dispatches announce the conviction of a venerable man called Robert A. Lee, who allowed himself to be made the figurehead president of a get-rich-quick enterprise whose promoters wanted the noble name of Lee because they knew potential victims all over the country had faith in its perfect integrity.

In passing sentence on the two men convicted in Fort Worth, Judge Benjamin F. Bledsoe said:

"You have not only violated the laws of the nation, but you have desecrated the memory of the valiant and honored dead. In the name of the valiant Robert E. Lee, in my judgment the Chevalier Bayard of United States history, you have mulcted the people of our and his country."

Never was tribute more deservedly paid. Half a century has not served to obliterate the influence of a great character.—Houston Chronicle.

BOYS—AND DADS.

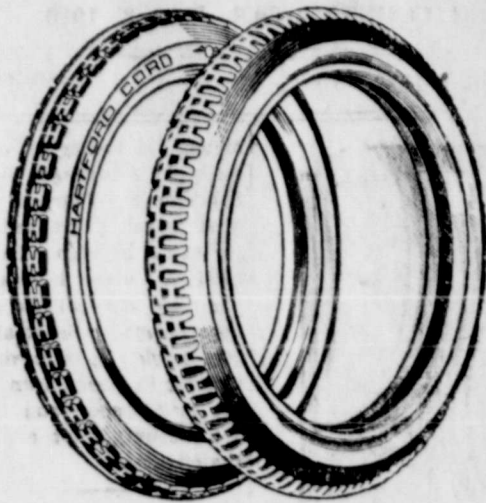

Unless a man has a son, or preferably several of them, he has missed the greatest thing in life. Fame, riches, glory, and power, are empty, indeed, if there be not someone coming along to take an interest in what "dad" does. Happy, indeed, is the man who has a son to chum around with, to guide his unfolding life into the right paths, to put into his mind the things that ought to be there.

There are usually three stages in the boy's life. During the first one, his "dad" is the greatest man that ever lived. During the second stage, when the young is just arriving at the "young man" era, he is apt to be impatient with "dad," to think him old fashioned, a man who failed to make the most of his opportunities. A liking for "dad" may persist, but it is tempered with youth's impatience at the conservative age.

And then, the third stage is when the son has attained the stature of man, assumed man's responsibilities, and has learned first hand some of the things "dad" had to contend with. And then comes renewed reverence and love for "dad" that should continue through life.

That there are exceptions to the above outline is not denied. And in too many instances "dad" is too busy with what he considers more important affairs to take his boy into his confidences, make a chum of him. Boys can be spoiled so easily by over-indulgence, so that they regard "dad" as a walking pocket book. Again "dad" is very much inclined to have

Take an interest in your boy, help him in every way that you can; punish him when necessary, but always justly, be patient with his mistakes and in the years to come, he will be a source of great pride, and a pillar of strength in declining years.

SUNDAY CLOSING LAW TO BE ENFORCED IN COLEMAN BEGINNING JULY FIRST

"The Sunday closing law will be enforced in Coleman county beginning July 1st," said County Attorney T. H. Strong Thursday morning. He stated that numerous complaints had reached his office of violations of the Sunday law by merchants and gasoline filling stations and he desired to put the public on notice that on and after July 1st all violations coming to his notice would be prosecuted.

Sale of Gas Prohibited. The sale of gasoline and oil on Sunday is prohibited by the provisions of the Sunday statute, except up to 9 a. m., as is the case with groceries and provisions. GRASSHOPPERS LAY EGGS IN FALL AND HATCH IN SPRING, SAY ENTOMOLOGIST

There seems to be quite a difference of opinion among farmers as to when the grasshoppers lay their eggs and when they hatch out. Many have the idea that they are already laying, and that we can expect another crop of young ones in August and September. For the benefit of our readers and others who might wish to know about this matter, the News has made inquiry from men who are informed on these things.

It is said there is only one generation of grasshoppers in the course of a year's time. They lay their eggs in the late summer and fall, and the eggs hatch out in the spring and early summer. If the spring is late, as it was this year, the hatching period will be a little prolonged, as has been the case this year. But there is nothing to the idea, according to entomologists, that we may look for another crop of young grasshoppers later this year, for such a thing is not possible.—Brownwood

CHAPTER VI—Riding the range, Gale falls in with a party of three Mexican raiders encamped at a water hole. Watching his opportunity to oust them, he sees two Indians ride into the camp. One of them, a Yaqui, is evidently badly wounded, and the Mexicans seek to kill him in a cruel way. Dick drives them off, conveying the wounded Yaqui to Belding's ranch.

CHAPTER VII—The Indian is taken in, cared for and remains in Belding's services, becoming Dick's ardent admirer. Gale's admiration for Nell increases, and he believes she is not averse to his attentions. Belding's horses, thoroughbreds, the pride of his life, after his wife and stepdaughter, are run off by Mexicans.

CHAPTER VIII—Gale, with Ladd, Lash and the Yaqui, pursue the raiding party across the desert, finally cornering them. Five of the six thieves are killed and the party of whites, with the recovered horses, return to the ranch in triumph.

CHAPTER IX—Gale secures from Mrs. Belding what she is reluctant to permit to allow him to seek Nell for a wife. He begins his courtship with energy, confident that he can win her.

CHAPTER X—Not getting word from Thorne whose period of army service has expired, Mercedes loses heart. Nell, although forbidden, rides to Casita to seek information of him. She finds he is a prisoner of Rojas, and is instrumental in effecting his escape, bringing him to Mercedes at Belding's ranch. Thorne and Mercedes are married. Rojas, with a large force of raiders, appears at Belding's and demands Mercedes be surrendered to him. Fearing their ability to stand off the bandits, it is arranged that the three rangers, with the Yaqui as guide, and Thorne, convey Mercedes across the desert to Yuma, where she will be in safety. The party sets out.

CHAPTER XI—They find the way to Yuma blocked by their enemies and are forced to take to the lava beds. Rojas, with his men, overtake them, but the Yaqui, familiar with the country, is confident they can beat him off.

CHAPTER XII—The rangers find a place of safety for Mercedes and the eight beggars. Three of the whites, Ladd, Lash and Thorne, are badly wounded, but Rojas, though he succeeds in finding Mercedes' hiding place, is killed by the Yaqui, the remainder of the Mexicans fleeing.

CHAPTER XIII—Forlorn River is invaded by white miners and prospectors, driven from Mexico. Prominent among these are Ben Chase and his son Radford. The latter at once makes himself obnoxious to Nell.

CHAPTER XIV—While Mercedes' defenders are in the desert Dick's parents, with his sister, Elsie, come to Forlorn River seeking knowledge of him. Belding tells them the reason for his absence and how he has "made good."

Belding argued with himself that if Ben Chase and his son, Radford, had turned out to be big men in other ways than in the power to carry on great enterprises he might have become reconciled to them. But the father was greedy, grasping, hard, cold; the son added to those traits an overbearing disposition to rule, and he showed a fondness for drink and cards. These men were developing the valley, to be sure, and a horde of poor Mexicans and many Americans were benefiting from that development; nevertheless, these Chases were operating in a way which proved they cared only for themselves.

Belding went to Casita with a number of his white thoroughbreds and shipped them to ranchers and horsebreeders in Texas. Then, being near the railroad, and having time, he went up to Tucson. There he learned some interesting particulars about the Chases. They had an office in the city; influential friends in the capitol. They were powerful men in the rapidly growing finance of the West. They had interested the Southern Pacific railroad, and in the near future a branch line was to be constructed from San Felipe to Forlorn River. These details of the Chase government were insignificant when compared to a matter striking close home to Belding. His responsibility had been subtly attacked. A doubt had been cast upon his capability of executing the duties of immigration inspector to the best advantage of the state. Belding divined that this was only an entering wedge. The Chases were bent upon driving him out of Forlorn River; but, perhaps to serve better their own ends, they were proceeding at leisure. Belding returned home consumed by rage. But he controlled it. For the first time in his life he was afraid of himself. He had his wife and Nell to think of; and the old law of the West had gone forever.

"Dad, there's another Rojas round these diggings," was Nell's remark, after the greetings were over and the usual questions and answers passed.

Belding's exclamation was cut short by Nell's laugh. She was serious with a kind of amused contempt.

"Mr. Radford Chase?"

"Now Nell, what the—" roared Belding.

"Hush, Dad! Don't swear," interrupted Nell. "I only meant to tease you."

"Nell, you may as well tell him and have it over," said Mrs. Belding, quietly.

"Well, if you weren't such a good old blind dad you'd have seen long ago when Mr. Radford Chase ran round after me. At first it was only annoying, and I did not want to add to your worries. But these two weeks you've been gone I've been more than annoyed. After that time I struck Mr. Chase with my quirt he made all possible efforts to meet me. He did meet me wherever I went. He sent me letters till I got tired of sending them back. He followed me until it was less embarrassing for me to let him walk with me and talk his head off. He made love to me. He begged me to marry him. I told him I was already in love and engaged to be married. He said that didn't make any difference. Then I called him a fool."

"Next time he saw me he said he must explain. He meant I was being true to a man who, everybody on the border knew, had been lost in the desert. That—that hurt. Maybe—maybe it's true. Sometimes it seems terribly true. Since then, of course, I have stayed in the house to avoid being hurt again. I feel like a poor little rabbit peeped by a hound. And I haven't peeped out."

Somehow the thing struck Belding as funny, and he laughed. He had not had a laugh for so long that it made him feel good. He stopped only at sight of Nell's surprise and pain. Then he put his arms around her.

"Never mind, dear. I'm an old bear. Nell, it's only the old story. The fellows fall in love with you. It's your good looks, Nell. What a price women like you and Mercedes have to pay for beauty; I'd a—good deal rather be ugly as a mud fence. . . . Well, the first time I catch this loco Romeo sneaking round here I'll—"

"Dad, you promised."

"Confound it, Nell, I promised not to pack a gun. That's all. I'll only shoot this fellow off the place, gently, mind you, gently. I'll leave the rest for Dick Gale."

April grew apace, and soon gave way to May. One morning Belding was called from some garden work by the whirring of an automobile and a "Holloa!" He saw an elderly, sallow-faced, rather frail-looking man who was an entire stranger to him; a handsome dark-eyed woman whose hair showed white through her veil; and a superbly built girl, whose face made Belding at once think of Dick Gale.

"Is this Mr. Tom Belding, inspector of immigration?" inquired the gentleman, courteously.

"I'm Belding, and I know who you are," replied Belding in hearty amaze, as he stretched for his big hand.

"You're Dick Gale's dad—the governor, Dick used to say. I'm sure glad to meet you."

"Thank you. Yes, I'm Dick's governor, and here, Mr. Belding—Dick's mother and his sister Elsie."

Beaming his pleasure, Belding shook hands with the ladies, who showed their agitation clearly.

"Mr. Belding, I've come west to look up my lost son," said Mr. Gale. "His sister's letters were unanswered. We haven't heard from him in months. Is he still here with you?"

"Well, now, sure I'm awful sorry," began Belding, his slow mind at work. "Dick's away just now—been away for a considerable spell. I'm expecting him back any day. . . . Wou'd you come in? You're all dusty and hot and tired. Come in, and let mother and Nell make you comfortable. Of course you'll stay. We've a big house. You must stay till Dick comes back. Maybe that'll be—Aw, I guess it won't be long. . . . Let me handle the baggage, Mr. Gale. . . . Come in. I sure am glad to meet you all."

Eager, excited, delighted, Belding went on talking as he ushered the Gales into the sitting-room, presenting them in his hearty way to the astounded Mrs. Belding and Nell. For the space of a few moments his wife and daughter were bewildered. When the Gales had been shown to rooms, Mrs. Belding gained the poison momentarily; but Nell came rushing back, wilder than a deer, in a state of excitement strange even for her.

"Oh! Dick's mother, his sister!" whispered Nell. "Oh, I knew it! I always guessed it! Dick's people are proud, rich; they're somebody. I thought I'd faint when she looked at me. She was just curious—curious, but so cold and proud. She was wondering about me. Dick has never written her that he's engaged to me. I'm wearing his ring. It was his mother's, he said. I won't—I can't take it off. And I'm scared. . . . But the sister—oh, she's lovely and sweet—proud, too. I felt warm all over when she looked at me. I—I wanted to kiss her. She looks like Dick when he first came to us. But he's changed. They'll hardly recognize him. . . . To think they've come! And I had to be looking a fright, when all times on earth I'd want to look my best."

Nell, out of breath, ran away evidently to make herself presentable, according to her idea of the exigency of the case. Belding caught a glimpse of his wife's face as she went out, and it wore a sad, strange, anxious expression.

Presently the Gales came back into the sitting-room, looking very different without the long gray cloaks and veils. Belding saw distinction and elegance. Mr. Gale seemed a grave, troubled, kindly person, ill in body and mind. Belding received the same impression of power that Ben Chase had given him, only here it was minus any hardness or hard quality. He gathered that Mr. Gale was a man of authority. Mrs. Gale rather frightened Belding, but he could not have told why. The girl was just like Dick as he used to be.

Belding imagined the sooner the Gales were told that Dick was to marry Nell the better for all concerned, and especially for Nell. In the general conversation that ensued he sought for an opening in which to tell this important news, but he was kept so busy answering questions about his position on the border, the kind of place Forlorn River was, the reason for so many tents, etc., that he was unable to find opportunity.

"It's interesting, very interesting," said Mr. Gale. "At another time I want to learn all you'll tell me about the West. It's new to me. I'm surprised, amazed, sir, I may say. . . . But, Mr. Belding, what I want to know most is about my son. I'm broken in health. I've worried myself ill over him. I don't mind telling you, sir, that we quarreled. He went away. And I've come to see I didn't know Richard. I was wrong to upbraid him. For a year we've known nothing of his doings, and now for almost six months Frankly, Mr. Belding, I weakened first, and I've come to hunt him up. My fear is that I didn't start soon enough."

Mr. Gale patted, and the white hand he raised expressively shook a little.

Belding was not so thick-witted where men were concerned. He saw how the matter lay between Dick Gale and his father.

"Well, Mr. Gale, where most young bucks from the East go to the had out here," he said bluntly. "They blow their money, then go to punching cows, take to whisky."

Mr. Gale lifted his eyes. "Then it's bumbling around, regular tramps, and to the bad generally." Belding spread wide his big arms, and when one of them dropped round Nell, who sat beside him, she squeezed his hand tight. "Sure, it's the regular thing," he concluded, cheerfully.

He rather felt a little zee at Mr. Gale's distress, and Mrs. Gale's crushed I-told-you-so woe in no wise bothered him; but the look in the big, dark eyes of Dick's sister was too much for Belding.

He choked off his characteristic oath when excited and blurted out "Say, but Dick Gale never went to the bad! . . . Listen!"

Belding had scarcely started Dick Gale's story when he perceived that never in his life had he such an absorbed and breathless audience. Presently they were awed, and at the conclusion of that story they sat white-faced, still, amazed beyond speech.

Belding kept back nothing but the present doubt of Dick's safety. Mr. Gale rose unsteadily from his chair. His frailty was now painfully manifest.

"Mr. Belding, do you mean my son—Richard Gale—has done all that you told us?" he asked, incredulously.

"I sure do," replied Belding, with hearty good will.

"Martha, do you hear?" Mr. Gale turned to question his wife. She could not answer. Her face had not yet regained its natural color.

"He faced that bandit and his gang alone—he fought them?" demanded Mr. Gale, his voice stronger.

Belding nodded with a grin. "He's a ranger now—riding, fighting, sleeping on the sand, preparing his own food? Mr. Belding, you say Richard works for you. May I ask, at what salary?"

"He gets forty dollars, board and outfit," replied Belding, proudly.

"Forty dollars?" echoed the father. "By the day or week?"

"The month, of course," said Belding, somewhat taken aback.

"Forty dollars a month for a young man who spent five hundred in the same time when he was at college, and who ran it into thousands when he got out?"

Mr. Gale laughed for the first time, and it was the laugh of a man who wanted to believe what he heard yet scarcely dared to do it.

"What does he do with so much money—money earned by peril, toil, sweat, and blood? Forty dollars a month?"

"He saves it," replied Belding.

Evidently this was too much for Dick Gale's father, and he gazed at his wife in sheer speechless astonishment. Dick's sister clasped her hands like a little child.

Belding saw that the moment was propitious.

"Sure he saves it. Dick's engaged to marry Nell here. My stepdaughter, Nell Burton."

"Oh-h, Dad!" faltered Nell; and she rose, white as her dress.

How strange it was to see Dick's mother and sister rise, also, and turn to Nell with dark, proud, searching eyes. Belding vaguely realized some blunder he had made. Nell's white appealing face gave him a pang. What had he done? Surely this family of Dick's ought to know his relation to Nell. There was a silence that positively made Belding nervous.

Then Elsie Gale stepped close to Nell.

"Miss Burton, are you really Richard's betrothed?"

Nell's tremulous lips framed an affirmative, but never uttered it. She held out her hand, showing the ring Dick had given her. Miss Gale's recognition was instant, and her response was warm, sweet, gracious.

"I think I am going to be very, very glad," she said, and kissed Nell.

"Miss Burton, we are learning wonderful things about Richard," added Mr. Gale. "In an earnest though shaken voice. 'If you have had to do with making a man of him—and now I begin to see, to believe so—may God bless you! . . . My dear girl, I have not really looked at you. Richard's fiancée! . . . Mother, we have not found him yet, but I think we've found his secret. We believed him a lost son. But here is his sweetheart!'"

It was only then that the pride and hauteur of Mrs. Gale's face broke into an expression of mingled pain and joy. She opened her arms. Nell, uttering a strange little stifled cry, flew into them.

Miss Ima King of Richland Springs was drowned Sunday in the San Saba river, at the mouth of Brady creek. The accident happened in water approximately waist-deep, and it is thought the unfortunate woman was taken with a cramp, or else suffered an attack of heart failure. Although the body was recovered within a comparatively short time, life had fled.

At the time of death, Miss King was aged 29 years. She was quite well known in Brady, having been a student nurse in the local sanitarium up until about six months ago. At the time of the fatal occurrence, she was a member of a party of several families who had gone to the river on an outing.

Funeral services were held at Richland Springs Monday afternoon.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Mr. E. W. Marshall returned last week from Sterling City, where she had been in attendance upon a reunion of the family, and at which five sisters and three brothers were present. The number included Mrs. J. T. Nicholson of Stanton, Mrs. H. C. Perry of Cherokee, Mrs. I. P. Barrett of Tolar, Mrs. S. T. Walraven of Sterling City and Mrs. Marshall of Brady; also Messrs. M. M. and J. L. Edwards of Quitqua, Texas and C. A. Edwards of Tipton, Okla. The oldest member of the party was 68 years and the youngest 44 years. No "in-laws" were present, the reunion being confined only to the family, all of whom greatly enjoyed meeting one another once more and in talking over old times.

A letter received by Postmaster H. N. Cook from his daughter, Mrs. Herbert L. Wood stated that she and Mr. Wood were planning to leave Denver on last Thursday for Yellowstone park, spending two weeks on that trip. Mr. Wood's sister, Mrs. D. W. Lewis, accompanies them on the trip to Yellowstone. The Wood's reported a delightful trip to Denver from Brady, the only untoward incident being compelled to drive through fifteen miles of hail just before reaching Colorado Springs, and following their arrival at that place they found the tourist park flooded and were compelled to seek refuge in a hotel. They plan to make the return trip via Roswell, where they will visit with relatives, and expect to reach Brady about July 15th.

EARLY ROUNDUPS IN TEXAS WAS STRENUOUS AND ACCOMPANIED BY HARD WORK

When the range was open and free and the cattle industry was operated by men who stayed long hours in the saddle, will be a very interesting story that will appear Friday, July 6th in the Magazine section of The Brady Standard.

At these old-time roundups, "outfits" would come for many miles to participate in the roundups and pick up any stray cattle which might belong to them.

It was all strenuous work, accompanied by hardships and dangers, but along with the work there was a certain amount of thrill, and always the call of the big outdoors.

Read it and discuss it with some of the old-timers in your neighborhood; these old-timers are the vanguards of our civilization, and each one has hid away in his memory a good story of the frontier that he will tell you if you show him a little friendliness and kindness.

ROBS CALOMEL OF NAUSEA & DANGER

Medicinal Virtues Retained and Improved—Dangerous and Sickening Qualities Removed. Perfected Tablet Called "Calotabs."

In biliousness, constipation, headaches and indigestion, and in a great variety of liver, stomach and kidney troubles calomel was the most successful remedy, but its use was often neglected on account of its sickening qualities. Now it is the easiest and most pleasant of medicines to take. One Calotab at bedtime with a swallow of water—that's all. No taste, no griping, no nausea, no salts. A good night's sleep and the next morning you are feeling fine, with a clean liver, a purified system, and a big appetite. Eat what you please. No danger.

Calotabs are sold only in sealed packages, price 10 cents for the large, fairly package; 50 cents for the small, trial size. Your druggist is authorized to refund the price as a guarantee that you will be thoroughly delighted with Calotabs—(Adv.)
