COTTON BREAKS ON GOV'T REPORT 11,015,000 BALES

The cotton market Tuesday morning was moving along with a 40 to 60 point raise when the government report on ginnings came in about noon.

This report placed the total ginnings up to September 25th at 3,215,394 bales, against 3,866,396 bales ginned at the same date last year. And the government issued another estimate on the total crop production, placing it at 11,015,000 bales, against its estimate of 10,788,000 made on September 1st.

The following is a report from the New York market:

The Government report was a surprise as many private reports had led the cotton trade to look for a crop of about 10,500,000.

From a state of pronounced strength, the market instantly changed to one of great weakness, the maximum decline being equivalent to approximately $100,000,000.

December contracts, probably the most active of the 12 months' trading, closed at 28.37 cents a pound. Because of strong Liverpool cotton cables, a bullish ginning report and expectation of a bullish Government condition report, the market opened some 20 points higher and continued to advance during the first hour until December touched 29.37 of 100 points above the previous close. Then after the crop report was issued, prices were precipitated 177 points to 27.60 per pound for December, while there was a subsequent slight rally to about 28 cents a pound for December, the market was sensitive to selling orders from any quarter.

With the present outlook for 11,000,000 bales of new crop cotton and a supply of about 2,500,000 left over from last year the total supply of cotton for the world during the 1923-24 crop year is about 13,500,000 bales.

Meanwhile the present crop is late and the frost has yet to be reckoned with. An early frost this year, in the opinion of some cotton brokers, could easily increase the yield 1,000,000 bales while an open fall could just as easily increase the crop half as much. The weather of the next 30 or 40 days will have much to do with determining the price at the mills. Should the consumption of American cotton this year be 12,000,000 bales as is now indicated in some quarters, the surplus of about 1,500,000 bales that would be the smallest in many years.

Brother of O. S. Macy Dies in California.

O. S. Macy of this city has the sympathy of all his friends in the death of his brother, W. A. Macy, which occurred at Long Beach, California, Monday night at 8:20 o'clock. A message received Monday morning by Mr. Macy, who is visiting in California, announced the fact that the brother's condition was much worse, and the message announcing his death was received Tuesday morning.

W. A. Macy made his home in Tulara, Calif., but had been in Long Beach for some time under treatment there. Mrs. Macy was with him at the time of his death. He had been in bad health for the past two years, and in recent months his condition had gradually grown more serious, so that his passing away was not entirely unexpected.

Deceased was 64 years old. A wife and two married sons survive; also three brothers, T. A. of Santa Cruz, Calif., L. M. of Adel, Iowa, and O. S. Macy of Brady Texas.

Funeral services were held at Long Beach Wednesday, and the body was carried yesterday to Santa Cruz for burial besides that of a son who lost life by drowning some ten or twelve years ago.

START ROAD SURVEY OF BRADY-BROWNWOOD ROAD

Preliminary survey of the highway running from Brady to the Brown county line at the Milburn bridge, was begun Tuesday by County Engineer Burrows and a crew of men. The work is preparatory to the placing of permanent concrete structures and the grading up of this road, for which work the highway commission recently granted $15,000 aid. At present, there are two highways leading towards the Brown county line, the lower road going out east of Brady, crossing the railroad tracks and passing through the East Sweden community, Rochelle and Placid, thence along the Frisco right-of-way through Mercury and on to Milburn. The other goes north from Brady, then follows the ridge, leaving Rochelle and Placid to the right, and intersecting the lower road at the Frisco right-of-way beyond Placid. It is very likely that the survey now being made will result in a new route being laid out, which will at once be practical and economical, and at the same time serve all the country traversed by the two highways to the greatest possible benefit.

In the meantime the work on the Mason road is in a state of status quo, pending personal inspection of the road by a Federal engineer. This should be accomplished within a very short time, and thus enable the advertising for bids and letting of contracts to proceed.

IRRIGATION VOTE TO BE TAKEN IN SAN SABA COUNTY

San Saba, Oct. 3.—After a hearing consuming two and one-half days, the commissioners' court of San Saba County at 11 o'clock Wednesday granted the petition filed with them by 379 landowners to create San Saba County conservation and reclamation district No. 1, under which at least 45,000 acres of fertile valley lands would be placed under irrigation.

The proposition was contested and much interest has centered in the hearing at which evidence was introduced on both sides by the examination of many landowners.

Judge W. M. Taylor of Dallas represented the anti-irrigation faction. James S. Baker of San Saba, attorney for the irrigation committee, was assisted by Senator T. S. McGregor of Austin. The organization of the district has been placed under the direction of Frederick Porter of Dallas, assisted by a committee of farmers from the valley appointed by W. M. Johnson, president of the San Saba Chamber of Commerce. The date for the election will be set within the next few days.

POLO GAMES AT BROWNWOOD TO BE OCT. 8-9-11

Placards heralding the polo games between Brady and Brownwood polo teams were distributed about town the first of the week, and the event appears one of the most widely advertised features of the Brownwood Fair. The correct dates on which Brady and Brownwood polo teams meet are Monday and Tuesday, October 8 and 9th, and Thursday, the 11th. T. I. Evans is manager of the polo event, and announcement is made that the games will be played at 4:00 p. m. on the days mentioned and at the old circus grounds between Melwood avenue and Victoria streets.

Concerning the polo games, the Brownwood Bulletin had the following to say in the Wednesday issue:

Polo games will feature three of the fair days next week—Monday, Tuesday and Thursday. Tom Evans is in charge of this part of the program and promises to give the people some real up-to-now sport. There are very few people in this part of the country who ever saw a game of polo and the events on the three days mentioned, therefore, promise to be of more than ordinary interest. The Brady Polo team will play Brownwood and an exciting time is anticipated. Tom Evans has been spending considerable time in New York the past three years, has associated with many of the best polo players in the world and knows the game like a book. The sport fans of Brownwood, therefore, are going to expect him to see that Brownwood is not defeated.

TWO DAYS' MILLINERY SCHOOL IS HELD THE PAST WEEK AT COURT HOUSE

Members of the Home Demonstration clubs of McCulloch county held a very interesting millinery school in the district court room of the court house on Thursday and Friday of last week. Miss Mae Belle Smith was in charge, and was assisted by Mrs. Dora Barnes, of the extension department of A. & M. college. A large attendance was had at the school and the instructions proved both interesting and helpful.

AUDIT REPORTS OF BRADY CITY & LIGHT WORKS

Ernst & Ernst, auditing firm of Fort Worth, have completed their audit of the books of both the City of Brady and the Brady Water & Light Works, and have submitted their reports, that the City of Brady being under date of August 17, 1923, while that of the Brady Water & Light Works is dated August 21st. Both reports go into detail, and make interesting, if somewhat dry, reading.

The Standard, in another column of this issue, presents a summary of the two audits, as prepared by City Secretary E. G. Gilder, and which shows both assets and liabilities of the city and water works plant. The report shows the city to be in a very satisfactory financial condition, and also the water works plant.

While the published article contains only a summary of the audit, a number of copies of the complete audit are on hand, and citizens interested should by all means make a careful reading and study of these complete audits. A number of recommendations are made by the auditing firm, and these recommendations will no doubt be carried out. The audit cost the city something better than

$1,250—but it was money well spent, if for no better reason than to get city and water works books in shape, where there will be little trouble in future of giving detail report on municipal affairs.

ENLARGE BRADY CEMETERY WITH NEW PURCHASE

The enlargement of Brady cemetery, so long desired because of need of additional burial grounds, is at last about to be accomplished. Through the kindly offices of J. H. White, who has been at work on the proposition for several months past, something like eight acres additional land will be added to the present cemetery. The new purchase is of land belonging to Savage Bros. and lying north of the present cemetery, and other land lying east, and belonging to Jim Anderson. Some of the former is quite rough and unsuited for burial grounds, and this part is being traded in to Jim Anderson for part of his land, which is smooth and very well located.

By reason of the new purchases, the local cemetery acquires all land needed for many years. The purchase is a most fortunate one, since it obviates necessity of establishing a new cemetery at another location, and to which there has always been serious objection by those having loved ones laid away in the Brady cemetery.

Members of the city council, in company with Mr. White, Wednesday went to the cemetery site and had the new acreage surveyed out. The land will be platted, and laid out in ornamental style, with main drives and pathways to make for convenience in reaching all graves which may be located there.

ROBS CALOMEL OF NAUSEA & DANGER

The latest triumph of modern science is a "de-nauseated" calomel tablet known to the drug trade as "Calotabs." Calomel, the most generally useful of all medicines thus enters upon a wider field of popularity, purified and refined from those objectionable qualities which have heretofore limited its use.

In biliousness, constipation, headache and indigestion, and in a great variety of liver, stomach and kidney troubles calomel was the most successful remedy, but its use was often neglected on account of its sickening qualities. Now it is the easiest and most pleasant of medicines to take. One Calotab at bedtime with a swallow of water,—that's all. No taste, no griping, no nausea, no salts. A good night's sleep and the next morning you are feeling fine, with a clean liver, a purified system and a big appetite. Eat what you please. No danger.

Calotabs are sold only in original, sealed packages, price thirty-five cents for the large, family package; ten cents for the small, trial size. Your druggist is authorized to refund the price as a guarantee that you will be thoroughly delighted with Calotabs.—(Adv.)

CLOSE TO DEATH

Animal Collector's Experience With Orang-Utan.

Incident Illustrates the Remarkable Strength Possessed by the Jungle Beast.

To transfer a wild animal from one cage to another is a simple matter. Food is placed on the floor of the new cage, and this is backed up to the open end of the old one; the bars are lifted and the beast walks into his new quarters. Nothing could be easier, and yet at the time of which I am writing I still feel twinges from an almost fatal accident that happened to me when I was putting an orang-utan into a larger cage at my animal house in Singapore.

He was just short of full-grown, a peaceable sort of fellow. His favorite food, a large onion, was in his new home, which was pushed up against his old cage. I was on top of this, pulling up the bars to let him move out. The iron sockets were rusty, and I had some trouble in shaking the bars loose. At last there was only one left, but that was stuck fast.

While I was trying to shake it free with both hands, my left hand, fortunately, grasping and covering the end of it, suddenly the thing shot up and—my hand still covering the end—gave me a terrible blow, which knocked my nose flat against the side of my face and sent me rolling, unconscious, off the cage. My men, who did not realize that I was hurt, roared with laughter.

What had happened was this: The orang, having watched me pull up the other bars, caught the idea of what I was trying to do. He was impatient to get at that tempting onion, so he grabbed the bar and shot it up. If my hand had not been over the top of it, he would have killed me.

The next time I saw the orang, Hsi Chu, I was feeding him boiled rice and talking to him in Malay. What I heard him say was something like this: "If I could make you work, you jungle-man, I wouldn't do a lick for a year." Certainly the beast had a terrible strength. My nose is still crooked as a mark of it.—Charles Mayer in Asia.

Laws Against Kissing.

Kissing is considered an unhealthy practice by some people. A few years ago the physicians of Milwaukee prepared a bill for the absolute suppression of kissing, on the ground that the practice was hygienically dangerous.

The bill did not become law or it would have made Milwaukee more famous. But such laws existed in Puritan New England. In 1656 Captain Kemble of Boston was "set for two hours in the public stocks for his lewd and unseemly behaviour," which consisted in "kissing his wife publicly on the Sabbath-day, upon the doorstep of his house," when he had just returned from an absence of three years." Twelve years later "Jonathan and Susannah Smith were each fined five shillings and costs for smiling on the Lord's day." The smile, it would appear, was only less heinous than the kiss itself.

Remarkable Telescope.

Many interesting new features have been embodied in an astronomical telescope recently supplied by an English firm to the Brazilian government. This telescope is 18 inches in diameter and has two photographic star cameras placed above the main tube. The vertical axis of the telescope revolves in ball bearings—the introduction of which has been attended with complete success. Not only do they render the telescope very easy to set, but they reduce the work which has to be done by the clock which drives the telescope so as to keep it fixed upon a certain portion of the heavens for photographic purposes. So accurately made is the whole mechanism that it will maintain the telescope directed to a particular star for three or four hours without the slightest adjustment.

Gardens Inside Houses.

Pompeii is being made to look as much as possible as it did when the clouds of ashes and streams of lava overwhelmed it from Vesuvius. Professor Spinazzola has discovered that the houses were two-story structures; previously people thought them one story. They had little balconies overhanging the streets. The shops had windows of slats fastened by a long bar. Inside many houses were little gardens no bigger than a good-sized table. From the flower designs of the frescoes on the walls he has learned the varieties of the flowers that the inhabitants of Pompeii knew and has replanted the gardens with the flowers that decorated the beds almost two thousand years ago!

Best Work After Seventy.

The ten most useful years of my life as a missionary were those between the years of seventy and eighty, says Rev. W. P. Johnson, D. D. Sixty-three years ago he and his wife sailed from Boston to begin their missionary service in India. Doctor Johnson, who is now eighty-two years of age, has contributed very largely to the literature made accessible to Indian Christians by translation and also by authorship, and in this field, perhaps, he has achieved his greatest success as a missionary. During the last ten years the simplified Hindi version of the four gospels was prepared and published, and 53,000 of these have already been put into circulation.

BRADY, TEXAS, Oct. 5, 1923

HONEST INJUN.

The man who achieves, is the man who believes.

NOR ANY LIKE BRADY WATER.

"Water, Water, Everywhere,
Nor Any Drop to Drink"—
LIKE BRADY WATER.

That was the catchy little phrase used by Brady boosters upon the occasion of the late-lamented visit of the "Tech" Dis-locating Board to Brady, and the phrase adorned the thermos jugs of Brady water, which were presented to the members of the Board. Parson Power thereupon intimated through his column in the Brownwood Bulletin that the jugs might have contained other than the water for which Brady is justly famous. Since the visit of the Brownwood Fair boosters to Brady last week, however, "The Parson" is ready to admit that pure Brady water has a most exhilarating effect. Just note the following taken from "The Parson's Column" in the Brownwood Bulletin:

"The only drawback to the complete success of the affair was the presence of the famous or notorious—the Parson knows the meaning of the two words, but has never been quite successful in properly applying them—of the famous or notorious Mark McGee. His readers may remember that some time ago the Parson made some remarks in this column on the Brady water and expressed some suspicion as to the intent and purpose of the gift of the thermos bottles of it to the locating board of the Tech. It is quite evident that it affected the members of the board deleteriously, since the school went to Lubbock. But the Parson had no idea that it was so potent as it proved to be in the case of Mark. The Parson, Doctor Rives, Lindsey Dublin and Will Latham contented themselves with moderate potations of Budweiser—the Parson drank such water as he could obtain—and remained fairly well balanced. But Mark and Ed Henley were missing at the beginning of the banquet. The Parson discovered later that they had been to the well. When they turned up, the Parson observed that Mark was making cabalistic signs or hieroglyphics on a piece of paper. The general effect from the Parson's point of view was like that of an inky spider's footprints. When Mark was called for and had recovered his balance after rising, he proceeded to make remarks that showed that the whole world was reeling before his eyes. His first observation, made sub voce, was that "it was hard to be a sailor in a storm like this." Then, as might have been expected, he accused one-half of his audience—the Parson specifically included—of being intoxicated. He was in no condition to pronounce that word, so he used a shorter and uglier term. The Parson has not the paper to spare and will not clog up his typewriter with repeating the slanderous remarks that followed. But everybody took it mirthfully and the general observation was: 'Oh, it is only Mark McGee inspired by Brady water.'

"The effect on Ed Henley was equally remarkable—almost tragical. He would insist on singing a solo. It was one of the most wonderful and moving songs the Parson ever heard. The Parson is not expert in the use of musical terms, but he thinks that it should be described as fortissimo, tempus fugito, tara-tala-tando. Anyhow, a cat that the Parson had noticed prowling about after scraps, took immediately to the woods, swimming a brook in her alarm. Jack Ragsdale rose to his feet waving his arms in a semiphoric manner expressive of deepest agony. Rex Gaither shouted in dismay. The cars all began to move at once and with signals of alarm, sped for town. The Parson proposed in one or two places afterwards visited, and his proposition was greeted with applause, that we should on the day of the fair, send Ed over to sing on the streets. If that were done, the Parson is sure that the attendance at the fair would be substantially increased for there would not be a man, woman or child in the town who would not pursue him and never desist from the chase till they reached Brownwood. The Parson, though, poor, is ready to subscribe fifty cents to this enterprise."

TECH ECHOES.

POLITICAL SOP.

Texas A. & M. College authorities are hustling more tents in which to house the students clamoring for admission in that great school. At the close of registration for Freshmen last week exactly 776 "Fish" had applied for and received classification, while 24 hours later upper classmen returning to school had swelled the total to more than 1,000 with many others still to come. Over at State University the same crowded conditions prevail, and classes are still being held in frame "shacks"—a disgrace to the campus of what should be the biggest University in the United States. So long as these conditions prevail The Reporter is of the opinion that the State of Texas should not squander money in the establishment of unnecessary "Technological Colleges," located in almost inaccessible territory simply as political sop to a certain section. With the belief our sympathy is with those interests which are even now laying plans for the killing of the "Texas Tech" bill in the next Legislature. After Texas shall have been able to properly care for educational institutions she now has will be time enough to establish others.

SAVED SICK SPELLS

Black-Draught Found Valuable by a Texas Farmer, Who Has Known Its Usefulness Over 30 Years.

Naples, Texas.—"I have used Theford's Black-Draught for years—I can safely say for more than 30 years," declares Mr. H. H. Cromer, a substantial, well-known farmer, residing out from here on Route 3.
"I am 43 years old, and when a small boy I had indigestion and was puny, and my folks gave me a liver regulator. Then Black-Draught was advertised and we heard of it.
"I began to take Black-Draught, and have used it, when needed, ever since. I use Black-Draught now in my home, and certainly recommend it for any liver trouble.
"I have given it a thorough trial, and after thirty years can say Black-Draught is my stand-by. It has saved me many sick spells."
Mr. Cromer writes that he is "never out of Black-Draught," and says several of his neighbors prefer it to any other liver medicine. "I always recommend Black-Draught to my friends," he adds.
This valuable, old, powdered liver medicine is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and has none of the bad effects so often observed from the use of calomel, or other powerful mineral drugs. Be sure to get the genuine, Theford's.

PENITENT UNCLE

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

AND so, after all these years, I am trying to make up for my indifference by this method of reparation. The money is yours to do with as you desire. When you receive it I shall be dead and beyond the reach of thanks.

This was the conclusion of the letter which Jimmy Stiles several days ago had signed with a flourishing signature and then reeled with grinning satisfaction. How tickled Mary Louise would be! And how unlikely ever to discover the hoax.

Now he sat at his desk and wondered whether Mary Louise had yet cashed the inclosed certificate of deposit.

She had come to visit her aunt, who was matron of the County Home, where Jimmy was one of many lonely, blue-overalled and aproned orphans.

Mary Louise's mother, because of whose illness she had been sent away, died during her absence and she stayed on with her aunt. And when matrimony with a widower of small means and considerable family claimed the estimable matron, Mary Louise still lingered.

Jimmy became her companion in all the playground squabbles, nor did the marvelous piece of luck which befell him when he was fifteen make him forget her.

Jimmy rose rapidly—graduated brilliantly from high school—went into a lawyer's office daytimes and continued study at evening school. Ultimately he entered the bar and became an attorney with a reputation before he was thirty.

Meanwhile Mary Louise had been "bound out" to a lonely farmer's wife. Growing attached to her, the woman had done more than the stipulated clothing and feeding of the child—had taught her what she could of grammar, geography and similar rudiments of learning.

A summer boater had taken an interest and lent her books, not only buying her stay but for many months afterward.

These changes had meant separation for the boy and girl, during which the memory of each grew dim to the other but did not utterly fade. And at Drift Harbor, that wonder spot of ocean beach and vivid sunset and riotous surf, their paths converged once more.

Signing his name in the Drift Harbor house register, Jimmy looked up from the final flourish of his signature—James W. Stiles, Boston—straight into a pair of well-remembered soft blue eyes.

"You! Mary Louise!"

Yes, it was Mary Louise, who sometimes filled in at the hotel, which stood a mile or two from her adopted home, in various capacities from that of clerk to waitress.

"Are you happy, Mary Louise?" he asked one day.

Mary Louise threw him a questioning glance from beneath her curly lashes. "Just now," she said ingenuously. "But winters—oh, Jimmy, it is very lonely. And—and I see no future. If only I could afford to go to the city and have a couple of years at a normal school. Then—oh, just think, I might be able to teach!"

She sighed blissfully, as though teaching were an achievement too heavenly to contemplate. "I dream nights of what I would do with a thousand dollars. That's my favorite air castle in Spain."

That winter Jimmy unexpectedly won a case which netted him an even thousand and the sight of the check brought back to him the words of Mary Louise.

An intense longing surged within him to help her out even as years ago he had been helped by the kindly rector. But handing over a sum of that amount to an unrelated young lady presented a problem.

Suddenly the idea of creating a fictitious great-uncle occurred to him—a great-uncle who would exist but for a moment on a sheet of paper, but long enough to bequeath to Mary Louise a thousand-dollar legacy.

The letter had been written and sent and now Jimmy sat and dreamed in his office of its reception by a blue-eyed girl in a lonely farmhouse near Drift Harbor.

"Well, partly because I read in the papers of your thousand-dollar fee in the Hitchcock case, but mostly because only one person in the world makes the funny 'J's' that you do. I had only to compare the 'J' of Jonathan with the 'J' on the hotel register to have my suspicions confirmed. Of course I couldn't—"

"Mary Louise," interrupted Jimmy firmly, "hand over that certificate!" And when she did so he folded it evenly and slipped it into his pocketbook. "What an idiot I was to give you a chance to go out of my sight again!" And his face wore the expression of one upon whom a great light has broken suddenly. "Come straight into my arms, my darling!"
And Mary Louise came.

Miss Benham's Classes in Dancing.

Miss Benham announces Classes in Dancing to begin November 1st. Miss Benham has spent the summer in California, studying with the noted dancing teachers of the United States—Dennishawn School of Dancing; Theodore Kesloff, Russian Ballet, and Oscar Druyea of New York, a Ball Room course. Miss Benham will return the latter part of this month and will immediately begin forming her classes, giving advantage to her pupils of all the special training she has had from these widely renowned masters.

Concerning Miss Benham's work, no better recommendation could be offered than the following, copied from a letter written to a Brady friend by Mrs. Beckham, formerly of Brady, but now of Los Angeles, and who tells of Miss Benham's charm and talent as follows:

"I want to thank you for letting us know about Lucille's stay here. We did enjoy her so much. But she was a very busy and conscientious girl about her work—and her compensation complete—for she did the "big honors" at the closing recital and acquitted herself in a most creditable way. We were very proud of her work—her dancing is beautiful and she received twice the applause and compliments over girls who had studied there two and three years."

Where Life Still Is Simple.

In some sections of the Staked Plains of West Texas life is more or less primitive. A Federal judge of Texas tells a story illustrative of conditions in a wide and rather desolate area of that part of the state. According to his account, a traveler on horseback, was making his way thru an especially remote district. After hours of lonely riding he approached a tiny adobe house sitting in the midst of an unbroken expanse of alkali and mesquite and bunch grass. Just as he came abreast of this forlorn homestead, a thin, undernourished woman in a faded wrapper darted out of the door, sped across the road and hid herself in the chapparrel before the traveler either could hail her or inquire into the cause of her flight. As he checked up, puzzled to account for this curious behavior on her part, a lubberly boy apparently about 14 years old, came hurriedly forth from behind the little building.

"Mister," he called, "did you see a woman runnin' away jest now?"
"I did," said the stranger. "Who was she?"
"That was my maw."
"Your maw, eh? And what was she running away from?"
"I reckon she's runnin' away from me—doggone it!"
"Why, you infernal young scoundrel!" exclaimed the traveler. "I've half a mind to get down off this horse and give you a good thrashing. What do you mean by chasing your poor mother about over the country like this? What has she done to you?"
"She's a' aimin' to wean me," said the youth.—Fort Worth Star-Telegraph.

MORE IN LIFE THAN MONEY

Writer Admits That His Rules for Living May Be Odd, but He Defends Them Ably.

Do you find your mind dwelling a great deal upon money, upon the making of money, upon the spending of money? I don't know whether my idea, my policy, my practice regarding this matter is wise or not. However, it has worked out to my satisfaction and is not going to cause any regrets at the close of the chapter. I very early made up my mind how I would act in regard to money making and money spending. I said to myself: "I am going to make all the money I can honestly, and I shall spare no effort to increase my usefulness, and as a corollary, my earning capacity. I am going to spend what I need to spend and spend it neither stingily nor foolishly, but in a rational, sensible way. And then I am going to let it go at that. Whether I build up a fortune rapidly or succeed in saving only slowly, I am not going to worry one iota."

The result was that I rarely let my mind dwell on the subject of money. I found myself becoming more and more interested, as I grew older, in what I could accomplish, in what I could put into the world, and less concerned over how much I could have in return. To make the confession which follows will probably damn me as a business man, but the truth is that I repeatedly forgot to go and draw my salary, and was surprised to find two or three checks handed me by the cashier instead of one check—with the result that the cashier finally hit upon the plan of mailing me my salary weekly! Let me make another confession, also a very unbusinesslike one, I fear: I never kept regular tabs on how much money I had in the bank. I knew, of course, in a general way about how rapidly or slowly I was getting ahead of my expenditures and once in a while I would inquire as to the exact status.

I don't like people who are continually thinking about money and continually talking about money. Money isn't life; money is only a by-product of life. The main thing, as I see it, is to develop your abilities to the fullest extent, apply them day by day with all possible diligence and intelligence, honestly earn as much as you can; spend prudently, and, as your circumstances improve, more and more generously and unselfishly utilize the surplus as profitably as you know how. Then forget the money end of life and devote your mind to useful effort.

Shoe on Other Feet.
I had worked in a well-known plant on the fourth floor of the building and knew all the girls on that floor. I left and came back about one month later to take charge of the fifth floor.
The plant had a cafeteria in the basement and at noon I went down for luncheon and joined five of my old friends. They were very glad to see me back and asked what floor I was working on. I told them the fifth. One named Martha said, "The fifth! They have a new forelady there and say she is awful." Others chimed in with as much and worse.

Good Work of Wireless.
Broadcasting, which has become almost a mania in England, has been applied to novel purposes in the last few days. At midnight the Manchester station sent forth an appeal for volunteers for a blood transfusion to save the life of a man dying in a hospital after the amputation of an arm. Within an hour four men arrived at the institution to offer their blood, but the patient had died in the interval. One of the volunteers traveled five miles. A few evenings ago a woman residing in a country town which has no telephone or telegraph service at night, was brought to the bedside of her son, who was dying in London. The woman's neighbors had heard the call sent out for her by wireless.

Heavy Insurance Policies.
In the United States heavy life insurance policies appear to be all the rage among the rich men at the present time. The latest compilations current among underwriters list between 20 and 25 citizens of the United States on whose lives million-dollar policies have been written, and 20 others, including one woman, who have secured insurance for amounts greater than $1,000,000, the top figure being $5,000,000, which is reached in two instances. There are also hundreds of other policies ranging all the way from $750,000 to $250,000.

Accident Resulted in Invention.
A brick fell on the head of Charles H. Brisbin during the great San Francisco earthquake. It hurt. So Brisbin invented the earthquake-proof brick, resolving that if he ever happened to be around another earthquake the occurrence would not be repeated. His brick, which is being manufactured in California and Arizona, is concave on one side and convex on the other. The bricks fit into each other. Less mortar is required than is used for the ordinary brick.

MUST BE GOOD TO MAKE ROODEO GRADE AT STATE FAIR MEET

His penchant for the production of the biggest rodeos in the country, Tom L. Burnett, millionaire Texan and owner of the Triangle Ranch, who will produce the State Fair Rodeo at Dallas, as the feature attraction for each afternoon of the second week of the Fair, Oct. 27-28, has sent forth a dictum.

"None but the best need apply," he has said. "The going will be rough, and only the most expert can expect to survive."

Every ranch owner in the west has had the call from Burnett, to send as the representative of his particular domain, his crack roper, bulldozer or rider.

Burnett is fully posted in every branch of cowboy sports and the requirements he lays down for his rodeo productions are of the most stringent character. For that reason it is asserted that the State Fair contest in calf roping, broncho busting, trick riding, fancy roping, steer bull-dogging, wild horse races, wild steer riding and the like, will be of the most thrilling nature. The prizes, it is said, will be sufficiently attractive to bring to Dallas the greatest assemblage of expert talent ever assembled in the southwest.

Burnett's following among western cattlemen is the largest of any rodeo producer in the country.

Already the word has gone forth to the Burnett scouts throughout the west, to gather the most untamable, human hating, outlaw bucking horses, the wildest long-horned Mexican steers and the trickiest Brahmas to be found, with the fleetest of calves from the open ranges, for use in the State Fair contests. With the assembling of the many score trained cow-ponies, and with 200 or more expert riders, it is declared the melting pot at Dallas will seethe with spectacular interest.

SEN. ROYAL S. COPELAND of New York

Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York, declared to be a strong "dark horse" candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, will visit the State Fair of Texas, Dallas, Oct. 13-28. Dr. Copeland will deliver an address at the Fair on Oct. 20. He is one of the most prominent medical men in the country, and an alumnus of the University of Michigan.

THIRTY PREMIUMS FOR COUNTY EXHIBITS

Thirty premiums are offered by the State Fair of Texas this year for county exhibits in the agricultural department. The premiums range from $50 for first to $100

MARTHA slid the chicken into the oven and closed the door. Through the window she could see the orchard all a-bloom with the misty white of apple blossoms; but resentment surged in her breast.

"Oh," she thought, rebelliously, "it isn't fair. Ann always gets the best, never mind what she does."

For five years, since Ann had left the old farm for the lure of the city, Martha had struggled to keep the worry and tears from her mother's eyes.

And tomorrow Ann was coming. She had written a sad letter. Mother flung herself into father's arms after reading it, tears of joy streaming down her wrinkled face. They must "red" up the big front room with the windows facing the sea. Ann had always loved the view from there.

"She's been cooped up in a little hall bedroom no bigger than our pantry," mother had told them, "and she's half sick and so anxious to get back."

Martha recalled Ann's wild-rose beauty moodily. She felt that the past five years of overwork and worry had faded whatever claim she might have had herself to prettiness.

Last month he had come back to take his father's practice, and the old friendship had been renewed. Ann must have the best. Perhaps she would find Bruce to her liking, also. To Martha's weary mind came some old remembered words: "Lo, these many years do I serve thee, neither transgressed I at any time thy commandment." It seemed as if all her toil and self-sacrifice had been taken as a matter of course.

When Ann stepped from the train the next afternoon Martha, at the sight of her white face and shadowed eyes, suddenly forgot everything but deep sisterly affection and pity. In the big front room she made Ann comfortable.

"We'll have Bruce over in the morning to see you," she said with a slight flush on her fair cheeks. "You know he's our doctor, now."

"Oh, Martha," Ann exclaimed, tremulously, "it's so good to get home again. I wish you'd sleep in here with me."

Young Doctor Carrington found Ann's condition one of nerves and lack of nourishment, which good air and food would soon improve. He made many non-professional visits during the mild spring evenings, and Martha often stole quietly away and left them on the piazza.

One bright June morning when Bruce drove up to the house in his big car and called out cheerily, "Come on, girls, I have to go over to Cross Corners, and it's a dandy day for a long drive," Martha answered, "Can't be done, Bruce. I promised Dad I'd make him some crullers, but it's just what Ann needs."

She saw them start off down the long, white road, and there was a dull pain in her breast. Perhaps today's sunshine would bring its golden beauty to Ann's heart. She was not home when they returned, she having gone for the mail. So absorbed was she by the thick letter for Ann, postmarked Cleveland, that for the time being she forgot her own sorrow.

She hurried up to the big front room and tossed it lightly into her sister's lap. Ann went suddenly white, and, without a word, tore open the envelope and hungrily absorbed its contents. When she had finished she handed the open pages to Martha and threw herself on the bed.

Martha's startled eyes read: "Dear Little Wife of Mine: 'I shall be with you nearly as soon as this letter, as I leave here on the morning train. I have been in the hospital, too ill to know anything for days. I will tell you all about it when I see you. I have landed the job I went after, and oh, my dear, we will be so happy out here.'"

Martha did not turn the page. She was too stunned to go on. Suddenly Ann came and hid her face on her sister's shoulder.

"Martha, I've been suffering terribly. When Dick and I were married we planned to come here for our honeymoon, but the very next day his firm failed. He was too proud to come then, and went out to Cleveland, where he had the promise of a position. And I've never heard a word all these weeks."

Later, downstairs, Martha had her reward.

"Oh, Martha," her mother whispered, "I'm so thankful you'll never go so far away from us."

Martha slipped unnoticed out into the twilight and down to the old orchard. The moon was just coming up out of the bay and making a silver path across it. Suddenly she saw Bruce coming.

"You're always running away from me, Martha," he said quietly. "But you can't this time."

He drew her close to him. Neither spoke for a few moments. Then Bruce bent and kissed her lips tenderly.

"Dear little girl," he whispered, "you have given the prodigal daughter all but one thing, and that is my heart. No one can ever have that but you, Martha."

COURT HOUSE NEWS

The Stork made a good record last month, some twenty-five new arrivals being recorded in the 30-day period. Dan Cupid also had a good month, as evidenced by the following, taken from city and county records.

Marriage Licenses Issued

 John Flowers and Leola Arline,

They Looked Into This!

WILSON, LLOYD GEORGE CLEMENCEAU

(at work)—they all wear glasses and yet have you heard anyone remark "how odd they look."

Nine times out of ten glasses properly selected and fitted improve the appearance. Despite this, scores of people right here in Brady go along day after day—squinting and straining their eyes—all over a point of pride;—fearing they will not "look good" in glasses.

The squinting and straining of eyes is not half of it. It's the actual injury to the eyes, painful hours—and the fact that you face much more severe treatment when you fail to give proper attention to your eyes.

Come in this week and have your eyes tested. If you do not need glasses—we will tell you so.

If you need glasses—our prices are reasonable.
