SAN ANGELO PASTOR CALLED TO LOCAL CHURCH

Members of the Brady Christian church are looking forward to the first of next month, at which time the Rev. M. C. Jackson of San Angelo will arrive here with his family to take charge of the local church. A call was extended to Rev. Jackson some time ago, and was accepted by him. Rev. Jackson has been evangelist in the San Angelo district of the Christian church two years past, and resigned this place in order to accept the Brady call. The family will occupy the parsonage adjoining the Christian church, while Mr. and Mrs. Crawford, who at present occupy the parsonage, will take an apartment in the new Hotel Brady.

According to press reports from San Angelo, in the two years or more that Rev. Jackson has served as evangelist, he has preached 386 sermons to 24,982 people. He has also organized two churches, and has raised cash and pledges about $15,000. No one has yet been secured to take his place as evangelist.

Brady citizens will be glad to extend cordial welcome to Rev. Jackson and his family, and his work in local religious circles is certain not only to build up the Christian church, but to have beneficial influence upon the entire community.

PERMANENT ORGANIZATION EFFECTED BY BRADY GUN CLUB AT RECENT MEETING

At a recent meeting of the Brady Gun club, a permanent organization was effected, with officers for the ensuing year named as follows:

Lee Jones, president.
Hardin Jones, secretary-treasurer.
Edwin Broad, field captain.
B. A. Hallum, ammunition.
Curtis Norman, targets.

Charter members total 29, and there is prospect of the membership being increased by reason of the growing popularity of the sport.

In the shoot Tuesday afternoon, five full squads participated, high men for the afternoon being H. C. King, E. L. Ogden and Curtis Norman, each of whom made a score of 23.

ADVENTURERS START TRIP NO WHITE MAN HAS YET COMPLETED

Honolulu, Oct. 22.—A breath of romance—limpid lagoons—boiling through the ocean, with all sail set, at the speed of an average steamer—life among the natives in a far-off South Sea isle—of the beginning of a 600-mile trip up a river on which many white men have set out, but none returned—is contained in a letter received here from Myrry N. Fay, commander of the "Narwhal Expedition," adventurous group of men, who sailed their own small vessel out of an Francisco bay almost a year ago to cruise among the South Seas, drifting from port to port with whatever cargo might be picked up.

The miscellaneous cargo, including a large shipment of dynamite, that the Narwhal carried from San Francisco, was delivered safely at its South Sea destination, according to the letter, which was received by A. P. Taylor, Honolulu newspaperman and author.

The letter was dated "Latitude 15:34; longitude 180, July 27, 1923" and spent more than seven weeks reaching its destination.

"The 'Narwhal Expedition' is still on the map, or rather moving around on the map," it is said. "Right now we are passing through the channel between the island of Thikombia and Vanau Levu of the Fiji group. We also are crossing the 180th meridian, where we jump a day.

"We had a wonderful time in the Samoan islands. I think I saw as much of them as any white man has ever seen. While at Upolo, I went on a trip with the New Zealand governor and visited native villages along the shores. We were feted in each village. We lived in their grass huts and I was able to get pictures of some of their celebrations that have never been photographed before. I stayed in Apia several weeks and went to Pago Pago where I made two trips—one to the Manua group, where we lived with the natives for a week. The Samoans on the island appear to be far ahead of the others, because the white man very rarely gets to Manua.

"Our next stop will be Noumea. We will spend a week or two there getting the final touches for the real adventure. For we intended to go from there to New Guinea where we hope to ascend the Fly river for about 600 miles. We realize that we are taking a long chance, as five expeditions have gone up this river, and not a man has returned from them. We hope to benefit by their mistakes. We have a fast whale boat and we are guarding ourselves against the diseases that play havoc with the white man in these countries and we will always be careful. About the time this letter reaches you we will be starting up the river and I feel sure, with the precautions that we are taking, that we will get through safely.

"These South Seas are surely the place for a fellow to get Romance under his skin. It seems to be a sort of disease that every one gets down here. This old sailing vessel of ours only adds to that romantic feeling that steals over us. Right now we are boiling along as fast as the average steamer goes. All sail is set, and every time a gust of wind hits us, the old ship gives a graceful swoop that sort of reminds me of a race-horse.

"The enthusiasm that prompted us to go on this trip has only been intensified by the wonderful experiences we are getting."

Fay said that the Narwhal expected to be in Honolulu on its return trip to the mainland in seven or eight months.

SALVATION ARMY QUOTA IS $500 FOR M'CCULLOCH

H. N. Sapp is here from Dallas for the purpose of naming the McCulloch county Advisory Board for the Salvation Army for the ensuing year. Mr. Sapp is not a member of the Salvation Army, but has volunteered his services in assisting the Salvation Army to secure Advisory Boards in each of the counties of this section, and through which boards the Army will endeavor to put over their annual drive for funds. McCulloch county's quota of the Salvation Army fund has again been placed at $500, and this quota has been accepted by the local board. Officers of the Advisory Board are Jas. Hobbs, Pres., Evans J. Adkins, Sec'y, Harry F. Schwenker, Treas.

The main purpose of naming a local Advisory Board is that local relief work upon behalf of the Salvation Army can then be conducted through the board, rather than to be held up pending advising and investigation by the Army headquarters. Thus the work of the Army is not only facilitated, but direct benefits are had in needy or deserving cases. The local Advisory Board is allotted for use in local relief work, 25% of the net contributions, the expenses of the campaign being deducted from the amount raised.

During the past two years, McCulloch county has responded in splendid fashion to the call of the Army, and the other towns and communities of the county, have co-operated in splendid fashion.

Mr. Sapp is a most pleasant gentleman, and is heart and soul in the work he is doing. With the assistance of the American Legion boys, all of whom will testify to the wonderful work of the Salvation Army during the war, and also the general citizenship of the county, he hopes to secure not only an active and representative Advisory Board, but full financial co-operation as well.

WEST TEXAS CONFERENCE OF METHODIST CHURCH MEETS IN GONZALES—PASTORS ATTEND

The annual meeting of the West Texas Conference of the Methodist church will be held in Gonzales this week, and is being attended by the Revs. C. L. Browning, pastor of the Brady M. E. church, W. L. Wall, pastor of the Rochelle M. E. church, and I. T. Morris, retired, of Brady. The annual conference is always looked forward to with great anticipation, especially since at each conference many pastors are transferred to new appointments, and their movements are always of interest to old-time friends and members of former parishes.

It is learned with universal regret by the citizenship of Brady that Rev. Browning will not return to Brady, but will ask to be transferred to a new appointment, preferably in South Texas, in the hopes that a lower altitude will benefit Mrs. Browning's health.

BROWNWOOD MAN DRAWS MINIMUM FINE FOR POSSESSING RARE WHITE SWAN

John A. Morton of Brownwood was fined one dollar in federal court at San Angelo this week, for possession of a live white swan in violation of the migratory bird treaty with Canada. Testimony revealed that Morton had found the swan crippled near Brownwood and had sought to learn its identity. A game warden read the report of the incident, published first in The Bulletin, and after six months of investigation a complaint was filed. Meanwhile the rare bird was sent to a San Antonio zoo. The dollar fine was the minimum permissible, and was assessed by Judge Atwell after he was convinced that Morton acted without intention to violate the federal law.

The swan was brought to Brownwood and was viewed here with considerable interest after being found by Morton. The bird was crippled, probably having been shot by some hunter. The case has been pending for three or four years.—Brownwood Bulletin.

TECH COLLEGE SITE COST AVERAGE OF $120 ACRE

Lubbock, Texas, Oct. 22.—W. W. Caves, assistant attorney general of Texas; C. W. Meadows of Hico, secretary of the board of trustees of the Texas Tech College, and R. A. Underwood of Plainview, a member of the board of trustees, have completed the purchase of the 2,000-acre site for the Texas Tech College, and the deeds have been filed in the Lubbock county clerk's office.

In addition to the State's $150,000, Lubbock paid $91,000 on the site, bringing the 2,000 acres within the amount set by the State Legislature in the Tech bill.

The site cost an average of $120 per acre.

LOST CREEK ECHOES

Mr. Dee Schooley and Mrs. Fannie McBee Married Sunday
Voca, Texas, Oct. 24, 1923.

Editor Brady Standard:
Quite a bunch of the people from here went to Brady Monday—most of them were in attendance, at the court there.

Messrs. Riley Latham, Tom Latham and Hugh Barnes from across the line in San Saba county were also at Brady attending court as witnesses in the C. M. Burns' case.

Last Sunday evening Mr. Dee Schooley and Mrs. Fannie McBee were united in marriage. Quite a little bunch accompanied the couple to the home of Elder S. W. Alford on Willow Creek in Mason county, who spoke the words that made them man and wife. The whole community extends congratulations and best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Schooley.

Mr. R. E. Evans made a business trip to Eldorado last week.

A year or two ago in one of my communications to The Brady Standard, I asked the question: "Did the Chamber of Commerce stand for the good of all of the people of all McCulloch county, or for Brady and the Brady business men?"

The answer came back to me that it stood for the good of all of the people of all of McCulloch county.

If so, I have a problem that I would like to see worked out. The road in Precinct No. 1, between Brady and Voca, is almost impassable, and I am reliably informed that there will be no more money expended on that road. Now this is an important thoroughfare to Brady, carrying a wonderful amount of traffic to and from Brady. If the Chamber of Commerce wants to help Brady and all the people of McCulloch county, at least all the southeast part, now is the time to help us work this problem.

Road Work On Santa Anna And Brady Road Going Good.
Fife, Texas, Oct. 23, 1923.

Editor Brady Standard:
Prof. J. M. Young paid us a pleasant visit Saturday. He was on his way to Pear Valley where he will teach this year as principal of that school.

Our school is seemingly going good under the direction of Prof. W. R. Scott as principal, assisted by the three lady teachers.

Mr. Hargist Patterson and Miss Velma Tinningan of the Cow Creek community were married at Brady Saturday.

Mr. G. W. Clark and Jack McKeand have gone on a prospecting thrip to the plains. They will probably be gone for several days.

Burly Lively will be home again in a few days to cut and save his fall feed.

They have started the work on the Cow Creek low water cement bridge. This will be a great help to the Fife people and also for Brady townspeople as quite a lot of cotton crosses the river on that road.

R. K. Finlay has gone to San Angelo for his car that he and Uncle Tom Mitchell left there during the fair.

INDIAN STORIES.

Early Day Reminiscences.

Wonder, Oregon, Oct. 15, 1923.
Editor Brady Standard:

I feel that I must crave your indulgence and give an account of my long absence. For the last three or four weeks I have been courting. Served for part of two weeks as petit juror in the circuit or district court at Grants-Pass. Then right on the heels of that I received a registered letter containing (not money, but) a subpoena from the U. S. marshal at Portland requiring my appearance at Medford, Or. to serve as trial juror for the Federal court.

Here's where the Indians come in Klamath and Modoc Indians, from the adjacent Klamath Indian Reservation. It would have been interesting to you to be there and see those tame civilized Indians who are now wards of the U. S. government and who were at one time so hard to subdue. For reference, read the life of Bill Drannon, or "Twenty-seven Years on the Plains and in the Mountains."

Bill Drannon was an Indian scout and figured conspicuously along with Kit Carson and "Buffalo Bill." (Col. W. F. Cody.) It is near the Klamath reservation where the caves are located wherein the Modoc tribe made their last stand and were starved out. Now the Indians have allotted to them some of the finest lands in Oregon and are progressive; owning fine farms and stock ranches. And Oh! My! would you believe it they dress in silk and broadcloth! And ride in the finest of automobiles! No little tin Lizzie Fords for them! No-sir-ee!

Nearly all of the cases against them were "Moonshine" cases. Three or four stills were brought into court as evidence against them. One bad Indian who was convicted on three or four different counts, but thru leniency of the court got a stay of execution until January 1st, in order that he might take care of his crop and make preparations for his family, went right down in town and got drunk that same evening and next day had another case in court. They are certainly great for "firewater!"

I visited the Eden Vallen Nursery while at Medford. That Medford and upper Rogue River valley country is a fine country. Black fertile soil. Fine farms and orchards, walnut and other tame trees almost a hundred feet tall. I am told that there are six large packing establishments now running in full force boxing apples and pears for shipment. Each packing house or plant is said to employ about one hundred men, women and girls at prices ranging from two to six dollars per day and they are paying four dollars a day for pickers in the orchards. I visited one packing house, but time and space forbid my giving you a minute description of it. Suffice it to say that a great deal of the work is facilitated by the use of machinery, though the fruit has to be carefully inspected and sorted by hand which is done by two long rows of women and girls seated on each side of an inclining plane where the apples are carried along by means of revolving belts. It is surprising how fast those expert girls can wrap the apples in paper and place them in the box; and with what rapidity the men can nail up the boxes ready for shipping.

WHERE DIXIE SLEEPS FARTHEST NORTH IN CONFEDERATE REST

CONFEDERATE PRISONERS WHO NEVER WENT BACK TO THEIR HOMES REST IN PEACE IN WISCONSIN PLOT—SOUTHERN WOMAN BURIED WITH THEM

By HAZEL HANKINSON in Dearborne Independent.

Visitors to Madison, Wisconsin corner of the city's beau sin, are surprised to find in atiful cemetery rows and rows of little stone slabs marking the graves of one hundred and thirty-six Confederate soldiers who were laid to rest during the days of the Civil War. That there should be a Southern cemetery in a state which lies so far to the north of the war's battlefields seems a curious fact. But the really puzzling part of it is that there is included within the plot a one-hundred-and-thirty-seventh grave—the grave of a woman.

How these soldier boys came to be buried here, how a woman's grave came to be among them, is one of the stories from among many written tales of loyalty, of love, and of allegiance, which the Southern people felt for the cause they were sure was a worthy one in the days from '61 to '65.

"It happened in '62," relates one of the old Wisconsin guard, "that a goodly number of the 'Boys in Gray' were stationed on Island No. 10, a point in the Mississippi near the corner of Tennessee, Missouri and Kentucky. Early that spring a troop of them were surprised and taken captive by a regiment of Federals, and thence they were sent to Northern camps to be retained for a time as prisoners of war. Some of the 'rebels' were kept at Springfield, Illinois; a few remained at Camp Douglas; while a large number were dispatched in boats up the Mississippi to be cared for at Madison.

"And they needed to be cared for," continues this veteran of the Nineteenth Wisconsin, the regiment selected to guard the prisoners at Camp Randall, the site of which now borders the campus of the Badger State's great university. "In the defense of Island No. 10, the Southern boys had been exposed to the cold rains of early spring. Often they had stood up to their waists in water in resisting our attacks, and they were not physically fit to endure the cold, raw winds of Wisconsin's April weather. Neither did they have clothing warm enough to come into such a climate."

But that they received the best treatment possible the southerners themselves who survived admit. They were given the same rations as the "Boys in Blue." They were given as comfortable quarters as could be arranged for them. But just as the dread influenza took away so many of our soldiers of the World War, so pneumonia siezed these boys from the South, and they died by the tens and the twenties. In less than two months from the time they arrived, the little plot of ground set aside by the people of Madison for receiving their bodies was filled. And the greater number of those who died were members of the First Alabama Regiment.

How some of the citizens of Madison, loyal supporters of the North, carried food and medicine and comfort to the suffering young fellows in the hospital; how one family, some of whom still reside in the city, took one of the boys to their own home and cared for him until he finally succumbed; these are touches of tenderness which show that at heart North and South were never far separated. But the chief concern of this narrative is the woman who "is buried beside 'her boys,' as she loved to call them, not one of whom she ever knew personally."

For several years after the war was over, "Confederate Rest," as the little Southern grave-yard came to be called by the people of the Northern city, was almost forgotten. And it was not strange, for Wisconsin, like every other state, had her own soldier-dead to mourn over and to tend. While the resting places of the strangers were not allowed to be molested, they were neither marked nor given special attention.

One day there came to live at Madison from Baton Rouge, Louisiana, a Southern woman, Mrs. Alice Whiting Waterman. A widow she was without very much of this world's goods. But when she discovered the little cemetery, "Confederate Rest," where lay the "Boys in Gray," she gave all her spare time to the tending of their graves. With her own hands she heaped the earth into mounds above each of the one hundred and thirty-six. From her own meager funds she paid for wooden slabs which were marked with the names of the boys, and with the dates of their deaths. She became as devoted to "her boys" as though they had still been alive, and by her beautiful character and personality she won the aid of others in her noble work. Three of her most loyal helpers, it is said, were Union men, each of whom had lost an arm in

At her request, she is buried beside 'her boys,' not one of whom she ever knew personally."

Dixie. Round the little plot of ground Mrs. Waterman planted hedges, "to keep the cold wind off my boys," she said. White flowering bushes are still to be seen there after fifty years or more. She had planted them amid the graves because they would blossom even though she were "not there to watch them." Two butternut trees were set out through her efforts so that "the children will go there to gather nuts, and thus make the place more pleasant by their presence."

And so, when Mrs. Alice Whiting Waterman died in 1897, having cared for "her boys" for twenty-five years, she, too, was laid down for her last sleep in "Confederate Rest." During all those years she had longed for the establishing of a monument of granite on which should be carved the names of these dead soldiers of the South. But not until after her death was the place marked through the efforts of the Daughters of the Confederacy, and then no greater consideration was given to the soldiers themselves than was bestowed upon the little lady of the South who had mothered them after they were dead.

Today at "Confederate Rest," the northern-most cemetery of the "Boys in Gray," stands the longed-for monument of substantial proportions containing all the names of the soldiers and that of Mrs. Waterman in bold relief. Each grave is marked with a slab, and that of Mrs. Waterman is distinguished by one larger than the rest.

The graves of the Southern "mother" and "her boys" are as tenderly cared for as are the graves of the Wisconsin soldiers in their plot only a few rods away. Each year on Memorial Day, every grave of the Confederates as well as every grave of the Union soldiers, receives the Stars and Stripes and an offering of flowers. Each year, midway between the resting places, of the "Boys in Gray" and the "Boys in Blue," the salute is fired by silver-haired men in blue and young men in khaki.

And a little woman who loved "her boys" whom she had never seen did much to find and to foster that spirit of tenderness.

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value. Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic is simply Iron and Quinine suspended in syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs QUININE to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. DESTROYS Malarial germs and Grip germs by its Strengthening, Invigorating Effect. 60c.

SIZING UP NATION'S WEALTH

Middle Atlantic States Have Largest Income, With Nevada at the End of the List.

What is the richest part of the United States—the richest, that is, in the sense of having the largest income? Probably most people would have no difficulty in answering this question. That the Middle Atlantic states have the largest amount of liquid cash would naturally be expected from their great population and industrial development. And from this standpoint the Middle Atlantic states are the most prosperous, and, as would be expected, New York, with an income of more than $2,000,000,000, leads all the rest, whereas Nevada, with $25,000,000, brings up at the tail of the procession. The figures have recently been compiled by Dr. Wesley C. Mitchell and published by the National Bureau of Economic Research.

Yet there is another way in which to gauge prosperity and perhaps, upon the whole, it is a more satisfactory test. That is the per capita distribution. Is that section the richest which has the largest aggregate income or that in which the individual income is the largest? Probably most philosophers would incline to the latter view. And in this regard the Pacific states have a slight advantage over the Middle Atlantic—$798 as compared with $673. Yet New York state, with an average income per person of $674, is still at the head of the list.

This study also discloses the earnings of farmers, which, in some parts of the country, are high—as incomes go. In 1919 farmers in the Pacific states averaged $2,800 a year and in the West North Central states, $2,300. The few remaining agriculturists who are attempting to scratch a living from the discouraging hills of New England are obliged to content themselves with $1,100, while Alabama and Mississippi yield their farmers less than $300 a year.—World's Work.

SHIP INSPECTORS AT WORK

Branch of United States Department of Agriculture Has Largely Extended Scope of Duties.

All fruits and vegetables consumed on passenger ships operated by the United States shipping board out of New York will hereafter be inspected by the United States Department of Agriculture, it is announced. Approximately 500,000 pounds of fruits and vegetables a month are consumed on the 11 large vessels in this service. Arrangements are also under way to make federal inspections of produce consumed in army and navy hospitals in New York. The inspection service of the Department of Agriculture has made tremendous growth since its inauguration in 1917, when inspection offices were opened at New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Chicago, Minneapolis, Kansas City and Port Worth. About 6,000 inspections were made during the first eight months of the service, and 30 stations were soon in operation at important terminal markets.

His Speech "Sit Down, Boy!"

Hitherto the proceedings of the Filipino legislature have been in Tagalog or in Spanish, although English is technically an official language. But the last election returned to the legislature a number of young men educated in English schools in the Philippines or in the United States. They are intent upon breaking up the Spanish-speaking tradition of the older generation of Filipino public men, who received their early training under the Spanish regime. Therefore, quite a sensation was caused in the gallery of the house recently when English was used for the first time in debate. The speech was admirable in point of brevity, and can be reported in full. It was addressed by one of the members to a colleague on the floor, and was: "Sit down, boy!"—Living Age.

To Duplicate Famous Shrine.

Plans are being made for the erection in Fiskdale, Mass., of a shrine patterned after the famous Ste. Anne de Beaupre in Canada to house a relic for which healing powers are claimed. The relic, owned by St. Anne's parish, in the Bay state, has attracted several thousand persons from all parts of New England in Sunday pilgrimages in recent months. Some of them have asserted their visits resulted in cures of various ailments.

Mennonites Go to Mexico.

Two hundred Mennonites have left Herbert, Saskatchewan, for Mexico, where they propose carving out new homes for themselves. Cars of the United States road were used when the Canadian Pacific refused to allow its rolling stock to cross the boundary. In all 25 box cars and some colonist cars are being used. The Mennonites are moving to San Antonio, Chihuahua, Mexico. Shortage of cars has also delayed the move from Wymack, Sask.

Mechanical Coal Cutters.

There were 495 coal cutters in use in South Africa in 1921, according to the official statistics of the government mining engineer. Of this number 50 were operated by electricity and the balance by compressed air. With the exception of three or four, all of the electric machines were imported from the United States.

DATE HAS HIGH FOOD VALUE

Fruit Not Properly Appreciated, According to Experts of the Department of Agriculture.

According to the Atwater bulletin on food composition issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, the dried date is composed as follows: Carbohydrates, 70.6 per cent; protein, 1.9 per cent; fat, 2.5 per cent; water, 13.8 per cent; ash (mineral salts) 1.2 per cent; refuse (fiber), 10 per cent.

"The protein and fat content, though small, is in a readily available form, the protein as a builder and the fat as a fuel," writes Dr. Charles L. E Bennett. "A man who includes two pounds of dates as the bulk of a day's ration will not require much additional protein. In fact, a pure date dietary meets the requirements of many Arabs in every-day activities for long periods at a time, without the addition of other foods."

"The value of the date as a food is not half appreciated by the American public," writes another authority, Dr. John Harvey Kellogg. "The date not only furnishes a variety of sugar which is readily assimilated and which is much more wholesome than cane sugar, but it also supplies a fine quality of food iron, which is entirely lacking in cane sugar. An ounce of dates, in fact, supplies one-third more food iron than an ordinary beefsteak and iron of much finer quality."

MANY OLD SCORES EVENED

Stenographer Improved Glorious Opportunity to Administer a Gentle Rap to Her Fellow Workers.

The stenographer in a business office in a southern Indiana town had endured many jests based on her single state and the number of her birthdays. Chief among her tormentors had been the "boss," whose own birthdays had passed the half-hundred mark, but whose appearance belied this. He took great pride in this latter fact.

One morning the stenographer answered the telephone, to hear her brother's voice inquiring for "the old man," meaning their father, also employed in the office. She did not approve of this mentioning her father, and she saw, too, a way opened to repay some of the jests of which she had been the object.

"Old man?" she inquired. "Well, there are several old men around here; just to which one do you have reference?" she asked in a tone that was audible all over the office. Absolute silence for several minutes was followed by the voice of the "boss," repeating, "Several old men around here."—Indianapolis News.

University Radio Courses.

Foreseeing millions of listeners, the bulk of them of college age, the national radio chamber of commerce is developing a plan to establish radio extension courses in American colleges and universities.

England and Germany, it is said, are planning to broadcast university extension courses. Several prominent institutions of learning in the United States have made a beginning in this direction, the announcement continued, and their reports of the encouraging success attending their efforts show us that the possibilities of the new method are not underestimated.

Sixty other educational institutions are broadcasting educational and musical programs, forty-seven of them being colleges and universities. The combined area nominally covered by these institutions has been estimated to be seven or eight times the total area of the United States.

Ragman Put in Stocks.

In England the punishment of the stocks has been inflicted within the memory of men now living. In the Manchester Guardian of June 14, 1872, there is an account of a rag and bone dealer of intemperate habits being fixed in the stocks for drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

"Twenty-six years had elapsed since the stocks were last used," states this account, "and their reappearance created no little sensation and amusement, several hundreds of persons being attracted to the spot where they were fixed."

The "amusement" does not appear to have been shared by the prisoner, who was released after four hours and "seemed anything but pleased with the laughter and derision of the crowd."

Colorado Town's Claim to Fame.

Meeker, Colo., lays claim to being the third largest inland city in the United States, and is county seat of Rio Blanco county, the last remaining undeveloped empire in the Union, and the last stamping ground of the Ute. Rio Blanco county claims the greatest oil domes in the country; enough unmined coal to supply the nation for 50 years and the largest and greatest length of outcroppings of uranium and vanadium ores in the world, an extensive natural gas field, carbon black plant and extensive asphaltum beds. Meeker was the scene of one of the greatest Indian massacres the country has ever known.

How Leadville Aided Denver.

Leadville has been called the cradle for the rebirth of Denver. This is because this great camp produced the great fortunes for men who later removed to Denver and really built the city. Of their number was H. A. W. Tabor. A half-million dollars' worth of precious metals have been taken from Leadville mines and mining still is not only active, but on the increase in the district.

BRADY, TEX. OCT. 26, 1923.

HONEST INJUN.

These chilly nights threaten to put the frost on the pumpkin—and on a good many field and garden products, as well.

THERE ARE OTHERS.

We—meaning "we as people"—all have our troubles, and not many of us are spared. Far be it from our purpose to gloat over the misfortunes of others, or even to find comfort in their disasters. Nevertheless, it is salve to our own erring judgment to note that others make the same, or similar, or even worse mistakes than we, ourselves.

In last week's news dispatches was contained the item of the loss by the Ballinger Country club of their dam at the club lake, completed during the early summer at a cost of $6,300, and with a resultant loss of around $1,500, and as well the thirty-acre pool of water. The loss is attributed to the fact that the earthen dam had not had sufficient time to settle before the heavy rains of the past week caused the water to seep through and weaken the dam to the breaking point.

The Shropshire Lake club had an experience about a year ago practically identical with that of the Ballinger club. It was a case of both error in human judgment, coupled with a miscalculation of the severity the elements could attain. Brady club members paid for their mistake then, just as Ballinger club members must pay for their mistake now.

THE PARSON AND WATER.

A Man's sins shall find him out! So mote it be!

Just read the following, reprinted from "The Parson's Column" in last Saturday's Brownwood Bulletin:

The Parson several mornings during the last two or three weeks on turning the faucet for his morning plunge has released a fluid of a delicate amber hue. This grows deeper and richer as the bath fills, till the bottom of the tub fades from sight. This is very restful to the eyes, since the glare of the white enamel vanishes. There is also a thrill of adventure in plunging into unseen if not soundless, depths. The parson presumes that there is also some sanitary benefit in it. Anyway, the good fairy who supplies it has the Parson's unqualified.

And yet, when Brady was entertaining the Tech board—and no

SUSPICION'S FEARFUL TOLL.

Suspicion is the curse of every age. It has provoked all misunderstandings, and prepared soil for war. Suspicion is the child of incomplete knowledge.

Secret meetings of whatever sort fill the outsiders with uncertainty, suspicion creeps in, and trouble follows.

No greater boon could come to the world than for well-meaning peoples everywhere to refrain from meeting behind closed doors.

The star chamber, the modern executive session, the secret councils of whatever sort, fan the fires of suspicion and provoke the people to troublesome disturbances.

Our national, state, county and local political affairs would right themselves, and the distempers of the day would be composed, if all men in authority refused to go behind closed doors to deliberate, and would freely invite the presence and suggestions or objections of every citizen of whatever state.

One of the most striking righting of municipal affairs of recent years seems to be Jacksonville, Illinois.

Here are three paragraphs taken from Emerson Robinson's story of this city:

Opposition is negligible, due to officials conducting an open forum; there is nothing secret; the humblest citizen may file his complaint and get the same hearing as the most influential property holder.

Politics is barred in city affairs. So is the secret caucus in which politicians arrange public contracts and public milkings. There has never been a private session of the council in four years. All conversations are in the open.

The mayor goes on the theory that when the taxpayers believe an administration is honest and making a sincere effort to serve and give a dollar's worth of service for every dollar paid into the treasury, then they will get behind the government and support it.

And, the surest way to make the people "believe" is to let them know the details of the official's every act, and to feel that his acts are not the result of plans and programs made from behind closed doors.

Could the secret lobby be cut out and the clique caucus be dumped into the discard, legislation would compose itself from Austin to the smallest balliwick.

Give us open and above board dealings in political, social and industrial affairs and our troubles will be negated almost completely.—Texas Commercial News.

SUPPORT FOR A CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Says the Coleman Democrat-Voice: The Coleman Chamber of Commerce which is functioning on a hand-to-mouth policy, might get some inspiration by study of the financial plan adopted at Cisco.

A recent Cisco dispatch says: "The Cisco City Commission has created a new Chamber of Commerce, to be supported out of the general fund of the city's finances. The City Commission will appoint fifteen directors who will prepare and submit a budget covering proposed activities of the chamber. The commission will then appropriate not less than $15,000 nor more than $32,000 for an annual budget, which will be derived by a tax of not more than 2 mills on the $1 valuation. This plan was adopted to obtain support from railroads and other nonresident property owners of Cisco, who have large interests here but have not previously contributed to support of the local Chamber of Commerce."

SEVENTY YEARS OF TEXAS

It is interesting to compare notes on the first decennial census taken by the federal government in Texas after annexation and the present time.

In 1850 Harrison county led in population with 11,822, which was nearly 4,000 ahead of the next most populous county, Rusk, with 8,148. Cameron, Starr and Webb were all taken together as one county, showing a total of 8,541, of course practically all Mexicans. Cherokee comes next with 6,673 inhabitants. Bexar county was fourth with 6,052, including, of course, San Antonio, which is now one of the "Big Three" with over 150,000. Dallas county had 2,743 all told. Galveston had 4529. The whole number of dwellings enumerated in the state was 27,988 with 28,377 families and 212,592 inhabitants, of which 84,863 were white males and 69,237 were white females, making total white population of 154,100, not as many as are now housed in Dallas alone. There were 58,161 negro slaves and 331 free blacks.

Of the white population, 49,117 were born in Texas. Of the other states of the Union, the largest number were born in Tennessee, 17,692, with Alabama next, showing 12,040. Georgia was third with 7,639, Mississippi fourth with 6,545, followed by Kentucky with 5,478, North Carolina with 5,155, Missouri with 5,139, Arkansas with 4,698, South Carolina with 4,482, Louisiana with 4,472, and Virginia with 3,580. Of the states north of Mason and Dixon's line, Illinois led with 2,855, Indiana next with 1,799, New York with 1,589 and Pennsylvania with 1,005. All other states gave Texas less than 1000 each, and of these Maryland and Ohio only gave us more than 500 each.

The agricultural statistics are also interesting. Improved farm lands are given out at 639,107 acres—an area only about equal to the total area of Comanche county. Unimproved lands attached to farms were 14,454,699 acres, both items valued together at $16,398,748, or only a fraction over $1 per acre. The whole number of farms under cultivation was 12,198, with farming implements and machinery valued at $2,133,731.

There were 901,545 cattle, of which 214,758 were milch cows, or a little more than a cow to each inhabitant; three were 49,982 work oxen and 636,805 range cattle. Horses listed are 75,419; sheep 99,098, asses and mules 12,964, hogs 683,914.

During the year for which the census was taken, there were sold 131,374 pounds of wool; 2,326,566 pounds of butter; 61,619 pounds of cheese; and 1,106,032 pounds of slaughtered meats. The total value of the livestock is given $10,266,880, considerably less than the entire assessment of Comanche county.

Of grain crops, there were produced 41,689 bushels of wheat; corn 5,926,611 bushels of corn; 178,883 bushels of oats; barley 4,476 bushels and rye 3,108 bushels. As an oddity in this day, there was also listed 59 bushels of buckwheat.

Of other food crops, there was 87,916 pounds of rice, 179,332 bushels of peas and beans, 93,548 bushels of Irish potatoes and 1,323,170 bushels of sweet potatoes.

Cotton was then counted in 400-pound bales, with a total crop of 57,506 bales; and 66,897 pounds of tobacco was reported. Cane sugar amounting to 7,351,000 pounds; molasses 441,638 gallons; beeswax and honey 380,532 pounds, and 8,279 tons of hay complete the statistics of the principal crops. There are some other curious reports, for instance there were 10 bushels of clover seed reported, seven pounds of hops, 1,048 pounds of flax seed, 22 pounds of silk cocoons and 99 gallons of wine.

As to periodicals, there was not a single daily newspaper in the state, and only 37 periodicals of all kinds. Three of the 37 were devoted to the whig party, eleven were devoted to the Democratic party, and 23 avoided politics altogether, some of them being devoted exclusively to literary science or religion. Three of the 37 were tri-weeklies, two were semi-weeklies and 32 were weeklies. The aggregate circulation of the three tri-weeklies was 2500, of the semi-weeklies 1800, and of the 32 weekly papers 14,837, or less than 500 average. Fifteen counties had each one weekly, Anderson, Bowie, Cherokee, Calhoun, Dallas, Fannin, Fayette, Galveston, Jasper, Lamar, Matagorda, Red River, San Augustine, Victoria and Washington. Five counties had two weeklies, Bexar, Cameron, Harrison, Travis and Walker. Harris had four and Rusk three. The two semi-weeklies were published in Washington and Galveston counties; Galveston had two tri-weeklies and Houston one.

I presume the census of 1850 was the first dependable or approximately correct account taken. The Republic existed only ten years, reckoning from the Declaration of Independence March 2, 1836, until the organization of the state government under annex-

ROBS CALOMEL OF NAUSEA & DANGER

Medicinal Virtues Retained and Improved — Dangerous and Sickening Qualities Removed. Perfected Tablet Called "Calotabs."

The latest triumph of modern science is a "de-natured" calomel tablet known to the drug trade as "Calotabs." Calomel, the most generally useful of all medicines thus enters upon a wider field of popularity—purified and refined from those objectionable qualities which have heretofore limited its use.

In biliousness, constipation, headaches and indigestion, and in a great variety of liver, stomach and kidney troubles calomel was the most successful remedy, but its use was often neglected on account of its sickening qualities. Now it is the easiest and most pleasant of medicines to take. One Calotab at bedtime with a swallow of water,—that's all. No taste, no griping, no nausea, no salts. A good night's sleep and the next morning you are feeling fine, with a clean liver, a purified system and a big appetite. Eat what you please. No danger.

Calotabs are sold only in original, sealed packages, price thirty-five cents for the large, family package; ten cents for the small, trial size. Your druggist is authorized to refund the price as a guarantee that you will be thoroughly delighted with Calotabs.—(Adv.)

BAJA CALIFORNIA

Creeping Devil Cactus of Lower California.

Corfu's most important middle period began in 1480, when it placed itself voluntarily under Venetian protection. In 1401 Venice assumed complete control and for 400 years held the island. It was during this period that the island took its modern name.

It was a veritable stronghold against the Turk when Ottoman fleets were on all of mainland Greece and practically all her islands. Time after time the Turks tried to seize Corfu, but the Venetians always managed to drive them back.

It took the great political cataclysm that Napoleon brought about to shake Venice's hold from Corfu. When Bonaparte handed Venice to Austria in 1797 he kept Corfu for France. It was occupied by the French for only two years, however. Then a combined force of Russians and Turks captured the island, and combining it with the six other Ionian islands, set up the Federation of the Seven Isles under Turkish sovereignty. The short period from 1799 to 1808 was the only one during which the Turks held even nominal control over this island that had so long defied them and which they so long had coveted.

In 1807 the French again came into possession of Corfu, but they were ousted at the "European clearing house" of 1815. Then Corfu added another erratic chapter to its checkered career and became with the other Ionian Isles a protectorate of Great Britain. In 1864 Corfu once more found herself a part of Greece when Great Britain ceded the Ionian Isles to that kingdom.

Corfu does not show the marks of its many masters as plainly as might be expected. Only the scantiest of relics of ancient Corcyra and the Greek classic age are found, and there is hardly a trace of Roman works. A few buildings show British influence, a few military works the hand of France. Probably the deepest impress was made by Venice. Not only in the town of Corfu, but throughout the island as well, are numerous monasteries and other buildings showing an unmistakable Venetian cast.

Population is Mixed.

The people show more plainly the effects of the many cross-currents of authority that have flowed over the island. In Corfu city, for example, a considerable fraction of the population is made up of Jews; something like a third are of mixed Greek and Venetian blood; and the rest are a mixture of all the strains of the many-peopled shores of the Mediterranean—Greek, Italian, Turk, Albanian, Maltese, Dalmatian and many others.

The town of Corfu, like many other communities that have survived from the Middle Ages, has in its lower part a labyrinth of narrow streets, many of them too steep and rough and constricted to permit the use of wheeled vehicles. The hand of Italy appears again in the many arcades, and the East shows its influence in the dark recesses and crowded bazaars. On a higher level the city is built on a more open plan with better and more sightly buildings.

The town is picturesque if somewhat dirty. But the real charm of Corfu is in the open and higher country. Passably good roads skirt the sea cliffs and penetrate the hills from both of which there are entrancing views of sea and sky and mountain, olive and cypress-clad hills and cultivated lowlands. On one of the hills is the Achilleion, the palace—built for the unhappy Empress Elizabeth of Austria and purchased for a winter home by the former German emperor in 1907.

The wonderful olive groves of Corfu alone are worth a visit to the island. In few places in the world do those valuable trees grow to such size and age as in this Ionian island. The Venetians, during their control of Corfu, paid a bounty for each olive tree planted. The thrifty husbandman of those days collected the bounties with a will, and as a result large sections of the island's uplands are huge, unbroken olive groves.

The pressing and shipment of the oil constitutes Corfu's chief industry, hundreds of thousands of gallons being shipped annually. The all-important olive vintage begins with a great festival each September.

Just as Corfu had been an important naval base in Grecian, Roman and Venetian days, it played a stellar role in the sea fighting of the World war.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

The recent occupation of the island of Corfu by Italy was on the face of it the taking by force of Greek territory by an alien nation; but the island has been cuffed about and batted back and forth so continually through the centuries that half a dozen nations, including Italy, might lay claim to it on the plea of former ownership.

Corfu is one of the parts of the lock that secures the Adriatic sea at its narrow neck from the Ionian sea and the open waters of the Mediterranean. It lies like a watch-tower in the Ionian sea before the narrowing entrance of the Strait of Otranto. To the north of it a rugged finger of Albanian mountain-land reaches out into the strait, and bending back, forms the splendid harbor of Avlona, one of the golden hopes of Austrian and Italian ambitions. To the northwest of Corfu, the long Italian heel cuts out into the waters of the Ionian sea. Together, these three elements dominate the Adriatic's outlet.

Corfu is shaped somewhat like a sickle or a rough crescent, the points or horns of which are toward the Greek mainland. The northern point lacks only two miles of meeting the mainland, but the southern point is some ten miles offshore. The bulge of water which Corfu and the mainland almost make into a lake forms a wonderful land-locked roadstead which has played its part in naval affairs for two millenniums.

The town and harbor of Corfu are on the east side of the island on the shore of this roadstead across which some twelve or fifteen miles away rises the rough shore of Epirus. In the harbor is the little bustling isle of Vido, which has often been heavily fortified by its various owners.

Homer Told Its Beauties.

Bathed in Mediterranean sunshine, with a rather dry climate for a considerable period of the year, the island of Corfu has always been considered a pleasure spot; and it failed to lose this reputation even when the siting up of a number of arms of the sea and the formation of stagnant lakes brought malaria to some of the lowlands.

Homer describes the island as a sort of paradise in the dim days of Greek beginnings. He makes it out an idyllic lotus-land of beautiful people and beautiful scenery with an abundance of figs and grapes and other fruits.

The island first emerges in history as the site of Corcyra, a city founded only a few miles from the present town of Corfu by colonists from Corinth. The date of Corcyra's birth is set at 734 B. C.—twenty-six centuries ago. The colony grew rapidly in wealth, in maritime power, and into a confident spirit of independence. Corcyra's fleet, protected in its wonderful roadstead, grew strong, and in 664 B. C. fought with its mother-city, Corinth, the first recorded Greek naval battle. Corinth won; but before long Corcyra was again independent. When a second dispute arose with Corinth, Corcyra allied itself with Athens, much as our colonial forefathers allied themselves with England's great rival, France. This move of Corcyra's led to the Peloponnesian war, the World war of classic times.

When the great fleet of Athens and her allies was on the way to Syracuse there was held in the roadstead of Corcyra a review of what was probably the greatest concentration of naval strength up to that time. Again, in 1571, the same roadstead was the gathering place for another great world navy, the combined fleets of Venice, Spain and the pope, which sailed from there to the battle of Lepanto, in which they crushed the rising and formidable naval power of Turkey.

With the passing of a powerful Greece the island that is now Corfu fell into the hands of corsairs and became a pirate stronghold. Rome delivered it in 229 B. C. and absorbed it into the empire. Augustus made it his base for operations against Antony in 31 B. C.

When Rome declined this island off Greece lost importance, too. The Normans of Sicily held it in the Eleventh and Twelfth centuries, and the Genoese after them. The first foothold by Venetians was gained in 1207, but seven years later the island passed to the Greeks of Epirus for nearly half a century.

DAN STRACKBEIN, FORMER CITIZEN OF MELVIN, DIED PAST WEEK AT MASON, TEX.

The following account of the passing of Dan Strackbein, former citizen of Melvin, and prominently known throughout this section, is reprinted from the Mason News of last week: The death of Mr. Dan Strackbein occurred at the local sanitarium Wednesday morning about 5:30 o'clock following an illness of several months duration.

Mr. Strackbein was brought to the sanitarium Sunday, October 7th, for special care. He had been ill, it is stated, for two months and the News has not learned just what was the attributed cause of his death. We are informed however his illness first became apparent from an infected tooth, which was extracted a short time ago.

The body was removed to Melvin for interment beside that of his wife, who died several years ago. He is survived by one child, a daughter and a student of the local high school. He is also survived by a brother, W. E. Strackbein, of this place.

FRANK JAMES TRIAL 40 YEARS AGO MARKED EPOCH IN HISTORY OF MISSOURI

Forty years ago there was enacted at Gallatin, Mo., a scene that marked an epoch in the history of the state. Frank James, the last of the outlaw band that had been "riding the brush" and terrorizing Missouri by a series of sensational holdups since the Civil War, was on trial for his life. Soon after his brother, Jesse, had been killed by the Ford brothers at St. Joseph, Mo., Frank James, realizing that the "game was up" that the revelation of his former associations, Dick Liddle and the Ford boys made it improbable that he could much longer remain in hiding, began negotiations for his surrender through some of his old war-time friends. Governor Crittenden agreed to accept his surrender, but would not hold forth any terms of clemency—the reputation of the state being at stake and it could make no truce with banditry. The outlaw leader must come in and take his chances with the courts—such was the decision of the governor. So at last, Frank James, accompanied by a friend or two, walked into the executive mansion at Jefferson City one day and in spectacular fashion befitting an outlaw who read Shakespeare and Walter Scott between his robberies, handed his pistols, butt outward to the governor. The pistols were filed away for future reference and then Frank James took up his residence temporarily at the Independence, Mo., jail, where his cell is still shown to curious visitors.

There was a general belief current at first that the prosecution would be only a perfunctory one. There were many, who, while not regretting the termination of Jesse's career, yet condemned the manner of his taking off. One Missouri editor, John N. Edwards, had written a scathing editorial on the subject that had aroused considerable feeling and there was a reaction of sympathy—an inclination to let bygones be bygones—in the popular consideration of the case of the surviving brother who had so "chivalrously" extended his pistol butts to the governor. But Jackson county happened to have a prosecutor at that time—a young man of flashing eye, an old fashioned conscience and a tongue of rare oratorical fires—William H. Wallace by name, who did not believe in compromises with crime, no matter how sensational the circumstances. Besides he had for years been drawing a net work of evidence around the James boys—he had been following their trail with the relentlessness of a Jarvert—and so whatever others might have been thinking, Prosecutor Wallace started out to make the strongest case possible against James and to try him not only for train robbery but for murder. It was for that reason Galatin became the scene of the famous trial—it was here that the outlaw band, headed by the James brothers, had robbed a bank and killed the cashier, and it was on indictments charging murder and robbery at Winston, Mo., that Frank James was finally brought to trial. This put the case nominally in charge of the prosecutor of Davis county, but William H. Wallace, the fiery young prosecuting attorney, then at the height of his fame as a brilliant orator, and an uncompromising fighter, was given the leadership in the prosecution and his speech at the close of the case became a Missouri classic.

But all the fine oratory available amounted to little. The war was over, but many of its memories were still fresh and potent. The jury brought in a verdict of acquittal and the last of the border riders walked out of the court room a free man.—Kansas City Star.

Aunt Jane's Parrot
By CLARA DELAFIELD

DEAR old Aunt Jane! How well I remember her! How well I can see her now, saint that she was; a little, gray-haired lady, bustling in her kitchen, always so gentle and kind and soft-spoken! All of us children took our troubles to Aunt Jane. If ever there was any family trouble dear old Aunt Jane poured oil upon the troubled waters. No one ever saw Aunt Jane angry. No one ever knew her do or say an unkind thing.

Dear Aunt Jane, with her fondness for animals! I remember when she had all us children visiting her that summer, how suddenly she decided that she would like a parrot for a pet. Of course everybody was eager to get her one. We went to an animal shop near the docks and bought an African gray parrot, a good talker. Aunt Jane said she wanted a good talker.

She kept the bird in her room and it was a real companion to her. Mary paid her a visit a little later—everybody used always to be visiting Aunt Jane—and came back with the dreadful news.

What do you think? The parrot seemed to have been owned by a sailor, and it used—oh, the most dreadful language Aunt Jane was so upset, she had to get rid of it. The best feature of this distressing affair was that Aunt Jane didn't know what most of the words meant. But she understood one of them—no, two. Both began with "d."

Well, there was no help for it. The parrot had to go. It was simply corrupting dear old Aunt Jane's mind, and none of us could have permitted that.

Mary got Aunt Jane another parrot at another animal shop, and the old parrot was sent away, with many tears. I don't know where it went, but I think it was sold back to the original shop, and probably went eventually to another sailor with a taste for strong language. The new parrot was a beauty, Mary said—one of the green kind with a yellow collar, and Aunt Jane was so pleased with it that she almost forgot her sorrow in the loss of the other one.

Roger and Dolly went to stay with Aunt Mary the following spring, and what do you think? The new parrot was even worse than the old one. Aunt Jane was perfectly miserable about it. She had to keep it in the cellar, she said, where the neighbors wouldn't hear it. If you went near it it saluted you with the most hideous abuse. Polly said—but then, never mind about that. It was pretty bad, and it had Aunt Jane so terrorized that she was simply afraid to take it back to the shop, the way it shouted in the street.

Roger covered it up and took it away and did something with it—I never asked him what; and as Aunt Jane was still crazy about parrots, and Roger got her another, a young one, positively guaranteed to have no knowledge of the English language. Roger was sure that everything would be all right then, and Aunt Jane thanked him with tears in her eyes.

Dear Aunt Jane! How sweet she was all through her troubles!

I hadn't been down to see Aunt Jane for months. I kept writing, suggesting a visit, but some of the other nephews and nieces were always staying there, and as her house was so small there was never any room for me. Aunt Jane seemed to spend all her time cooking for us boys and girls and entertaining us. At last, however, she had a free week, and I went to see her.

In the living room was the new parrot. The moment I entered it saluted me with a flow of language that would positively have done discredit to a bargee.

"Aunt Jane" I cried in amazement. Aunt Jane wrung her hands. "Oh, my dear, I meant to put Polly downstairs before you came. It's so terrible, isn't it! I—I'm getting to know what some of the words mean, too! Oh, why should I be doomed to have such parrots?"

Suddenly a light came to me. I grasped her firmly by the hand. "Aunt Jane," I cried, "you taught him that—all of them!"

For a moment Aunt Jane looked frightened, then a defiant look came on her face. "Well, what if I did, Elizabeth?" she demanded calmly.

"Good gracious, Aunt Jane, it isn't like you! I never heard you say words like those!"

"No, my dear," answered Aunt Jane cynically, "those are the words I've always wanted to say when I've been cooking for the whole family all day long. It's—it's sort of comforting to have a parrot to say them."

Hotel Noted for Service.

"Hang it, boy!" exclaimed the tenderfoot from the East as the bellboy for a Texas hotel came bounding in on him without knocking. "haven't you got any manners about you?" "Didn't you ring?" asked the boy. "Of course I rang." "Didn't you ring three times?" "It may have been three, as I was in a hurry for ice water, but that doesn't excuse you for bursting in the door."

"Beg pardon," replied the boy, as he backed out, "but you ought to read the bell card. It's one ring for the porter, two for the bellboy and three for a gun, and when a guest rings for a gun in this hotel the orders are to get it to him before the other fellow can beg his pardon!"—Exchange.

NEW STATE ADDED TO UNION

Interesting Fact, Unknown to Many, Was Brought Out by Recent Reclamation Report.

It has been found possible to add a state to the Union without increasing the number of commonwealths. The answer to this enigmatical statement is found in the annual report of the reclamation service, declares the Pittsburgh Gazette-Times. In the twenty years of its existence it has made 1,675,000 acres to blossom and produce, where up to the time the service was inaugurated the land grew only sage brush and was inhabited only by the jack rabbits, the coyote, the prairie dog and the rattlesnake. Where there was desert now there are nearly 32,000 farms. The crops produced last year on reclaimed areas were of value of nearly $100,000,000. From an agricultural standpoint a state, measured by productiveness, has been added equal to that of West Virginia or the combined values of the crops of Vermont and Connecticut. It is significant, too, that the value of the crops grown on irrigated land averaged $48.25 an acre, against $14.52 an acre for the ten leading crops on non-irrigated land in the United States. This but recounts the achievements of the reclamation service and does not include projects under private enterprise.

LEFT TOWN'S NAME TO LUCK

Men Who Had Decision Agreed to Decide Argument by the Flipping of a Coin.

The death of Francis W. Pettygrove, a former Portland (Me.) resident, which occurred recently in Portland, Ore., has brought to light the story of how the city on the Pacific coast almost was named Boston instead of Portland.

A flip of a coin fixed the name of Portland, Ore., on what was then but a tiny settlement.

The coin was flipped in the autumn of 1843. A man named A. L. Lovejoy of Boston, and a second named F. W. Pettygrove of Portland, Me., were new settlers in Oregon and were joint owners of a small store, one of a few buildings in a settlement on the Willamette river.

The settlement was called everything from "the village" to "Stumptown," and the partners determined to dignify it with a real name. Lovejoy wanted to call it Boston; Pettygrove preferred Portland.

Finally they agreed to toss a coin. The Portland man called the turn over the Boston man, and the village forthwith was named Portland, Ore.

The Size of Pygmies.
There are certain popular errors concerning the race of under-sized men and women known as pygmies. Usually travelers have measured the most diminutive specimens and thus an exaggerated idea of their smallness has been produced. The average stature of the pygmies that have been measured is about four feet eight inches, but the best authorities in anthropology say that the real average limit of stature is five feet. Some are taller than that.

The pygmies have been found in eight or ten different places in central Africa, but wherever found they possess certain striking resemblances. The plant furnishing the covering for their huts is the same in the widely separated regions visited by Stanley and others, and the shape of the huts, a rough hemisphere, is the same. All the pygmies are alike characterized by neglect of agriculture, by the use of poisoned arrows and by the absence of any centralized tribal organization.

An Old Nickel.

"Say, cap, have you got an old nickel you can spare? I need a cup of coffee mighty bad."

A peddler in the Rock Island station made this request and he put a slight emphasis on the adjective. It was the same he would have used if he had asked for an old hat or an old pair of shoes. He merely wanted an old nickel that had served its purpose and was no longer of use to the owner.

"It may have been unintentional, a mere slip of the tongue," said the man who was approached. "I gave him the coin he asked for and I have been wondering ever since what was going through his mind."—Chicago Journal.

Colorado Important State.

Colorado ranks seventh in size among the 48 states. It has a land area of 69,341,120 acres, or 103,656 square miles. It is more than twelve times the size of Massachusetts, approximately twice as large as Iowa and about the same size as New York, Ohio, Connecticut and New Hampshire combined. The extreme length of the state is 387 miles east and west, or 37 miles more than from New York to Portland, Me. Its width is about 276 miles, or the distance from Chicago to St. Louis. There are counties larger than several of the important states.

The Telephone in Asia.
Asia has 488,645 telephones, which allows but a tenth of a telephone for every one hundred people. The increase since 1914 is 61.3 per cent. It has about 1,290,000 miles of telephone wire, or two-tenths of a mile for each one hundred people.

KEY RATE TO CITY IS RAISED FROM 42c TO 50c EFFECTIVE OCTOBER 15TH

Brady's insurance key rate has been increased from 42c to 50c, according to advice received here by local insurance agencies from the State Insurance board. The change in rate was effective beginning October 15th. Recommendation for the increased rate was made by inspectors after a thorough examination made a month or so ago. Brady's present chief handicap appears to be the small mains on the Brady public square. The enlarging of these mains would do much towards restoring Brady's lower rate, and the amount necessary to make this change would be saved year after year on insurance premiums paid by Brady business men.

Knew the Signs.

A commercial traveler visiting a Glasgow warehouse made a bet with the manager that he could pick out all the married men among the employees.

Accordingly he stationed himself at the door as they returned from dinner, and mentioned all those whom he believed to be married. In almost every case he was right.

"How do you do it?" asked the manager.

"Oh, it's quite simple," said the traveler. "The married men wipe their feet on the mat; the single ones don't."
