

MARTIN LORING MASON EDITOR IS HUNTING VICTIM

Martin Loring, aged 30, associate owner and editor of the Mason News, was killed almost instantly Sunday morning by the accidental discharge of his rifle while on a deer hunt on the James river, below Mason. The shocking tragedy was learned here Sunday evening, and occasioned universal regret, Mr. Loring being held in highest esteem not only by the people of Mason among whom he was raised, but by all who knew him.

In company with Wallace Bostick, of Mason, Mr. Loring, according to report reaching here, had started out early Sunday morning, going to the James river on Max Martin's ranch, and about sixteen miles from Mason. There the two separated to look for deer, agreeing to meet at a certain spot at a later hour. When Bostick approached the place, he found Loring already there standing with the butt of his gun on the ground and the rifle barrel leaning against his side. To an inquiry by Bostick, Loring replied that he had seen some deer and, in fact, was then watching them across the river. Conversing further, Loring remarked that he had not shot his gun this year, to which Bostick replied that neither had he. A second later, Loring's gun was discharged. Bostick who was some 25 of 30 feet away, called to ask if Loring was hurt, and simultaneously saw the unfortunate man throw up his arms and fall over. By the time Bostick had reached his side Loring was dead. The rifle ball had entered his side just above the hip, coursing through his body and lodging in the back of his neck. Bostick had to go something like two miles to reach a house and phone for help.

Martin Loring succeeded his father,

Van Loring, as owner and publisher of the Mason News, one of the oldest weekly papers in this section, and which is now in its 47th year. The elder Loring had been publisher of the paper some 25 or 30 years, up to the time he relinquished the paper upon his removal to Tennessee something like eight years ago. Later, Irl Larrimore became associated with Martin Loring in the ownership and publication of the paper.

Martin Loring was a genial, wholesome young man, enterprising and progressive, and was of the highest type of citizen. He will be greatly missed by all his host of friends, and his tragic passing is sincerely mourned. He leaves a wife and three daughters, the youngest only two months old. Also his father, Van Loring, of Tennessee, two sisters in San Antonio, another sister in New Mexico, and a brother. The elder Loring, who had been visiting in New Mexico, arrived with the sister in Brady this morning enroute to Mason for the funeral, which will be held this afternoon.

$100,000 CONTEST BOK PEACE PLAN DRAWS INTEREST

Postmaster H. N. Cook has posted in the local office full announcement of the world-famous Bok Peace plan, wherein are set forth the rules and regulations covering the $100,000 prize offered by Edward W. Bok for the best practicable plan by which the United States can maintain world peace. Since the award was announced on July 2nd, more than 245,000 individuals in this country have been supplied with conditions of the award. Many hundreds of thousands more have been acquainted with the conditions through the newspapers.

The conditions of award are in every one of some 61,000 postoffices in the country, and have attracted great local interest. It is proposed to pass on the plans offered through a nation-wide referendum, in which 50,000,000 citizens will have voice. In spite of the fact that the competition is open only to American citizens, there has been great interest in the award abroad, as evidenced by requests from individual citizens, and by editorial comment in the foreign papers.

If any McCulloch county citizen has a plan for world peace which he believes is practicable, he should lose no time in familiarizing himself with the conditions of the contest, and in arranging to submit his plan.

Death of S. R. Crisp.
The death of S. R. Crisp, aged 57 years, occurred at Menard on last Tuesday, October 30th, and the body was brought to Brady for interment in the local cemetery last Friday afternoon. The funeral services were held from the residence of the brother of deceased in East Brady the Rev. Buren Sparks conducting.

Mr. Crisp had lived for many years in McCulloch county, and was generally well known. He removed from the Melvin community to Menard county the first of the year. He was a brother of the late Greenville Crisp, who lost his life a year or more ago by being asphyxiated in a well on the Sam Jones' place.

BRADY SENTINEL CHANGES HANDS M. S. SELLERS OUT

M. S. Sellers, for the past twelve years owner and publisher of The Brady Sentinel, this week announces the purchase of the plant and good will by Messrs. J. H. Kavanaugh of Melvin and M. R. Moore of Brady, and his own retirement from the local field. The deal was closed this morning, and the new proprietors will take immediate charge, this week's issue of The Sentinel to be published by the new management. Mr. Kavanaugh will be editor and manager of the paper and Mr. Moore will have charge of the mechanical department.

The new proprietors are well known, both in the newspaper, as well as the local field, Mr. Kavanaugh being a co-partner with J. W. Munsell in both the Menard Messenger and the Melvin Enterprise, of which latter paper he is the founder and present publisher. Mr. Kavanaugh will continue the publication of the Melvin paper, with Carroll Williams in charge. Mr. Moore has been engaged in the printing business since early youth, and after learning the trade here, worked on various papers over the state before re-locating in Brady to take charge of the Sentinel mechanical department a number of years ago. Both Mr. Kavanaugh and Mr. Moore are enterprising and versatile newspaper men, and will unquestionably meet with success in their endeavors.

Mr. Sellers states he has no definite plans for the future, but will enjoy a deserved rest for the next several months, and possibly join Andy Gump in the exploitation of the Combination Hair Brush & Mirror Co. Mr. Sellers has been identified with the newspaper business in Brady for the past seventeen years, and in the twelve years he has built the business into one of the recognized leading newspapers of Texas. As a contemporary, he has been fair and above-board in all his dealings, and has won the good-will and good wishes of all.

To the new proprietors, The Standard extends fraternal greeting, with wishes for their success, and to Mr. Sellers we give assurance of our good will, and venture the prediction that the call of printers' ink will soon draw him back into the newspaper game.

Some Sheep Herder.

"Are you a good runner?" asked a farmer of a student applying for a job on his ranch.

The student said he was.

"Well," said the farmer, "you can round up the sheep."

After several hours the student returned, perspiring and out of breath.

"I got the sheep all right," he reported, "but I had a fierce time getting the lambs."

"The lambs?" said the farmer. "I haven't any lambs."

"Well," replied the student, "they are in the corral." Thereupon the farmer went to investigate. In the corral with the exhausted sheep he found half dozen panting jack-rabbits.—Our Dumb Animals.

HOTEL BRADY OPENING TO BE FRIDAY NIGHT

As announced last week, the formal opening of Hotel Brady is to be held next Friday night, with a public reception from 6:30 to 8:30 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended the citizens of neighboring towns, the traveling public, and, of course, the entire citizenship of Brady and McCulloch county, to be present upon the occasion of the opening of Brady's wonderful new hotel, and to make personal inspection of the modern and model hostelry that Brady now boasts.

Following the reception, dancing will be had in the ball room. Refreshments will be served throughout the evening. Committees will be on hand to show the guests through the entire building.

Coincident with the formal opening of the new hotel, Trigg's Rexall Store No. 2, and the Polk Barber Shop No. 2, will be formally opened. Both the drug store and the barber shop are models of neatness and good taste, and are a credit to a city many times the size of Brady. The Western Union office will be very much "at home" upon the occasion of the formal opening of the hotel, having last Thursday occupied its new quarters, and where it is now serving the public.

All Brady will join next Friday night in commemorating the opening of Hotel Brady—an achievement of which every citizen is justly proud.

ROBERT E. LEE IN THE DRAM.

A few years ago John Drinkwater wrote a play entitled "Abraham Lincoln," which was received with enthusiasm in London, as well as in this country.

Mr. Drinkwater has since written a play entitled "Robert E. Lee," which opens in Richmond, Va., on the 5th of November, going thence to Norfolk and thence to Washington, after which it will be carried to New York.

Mr. Drinkwater had never achieved any special distinction as playwright before he wrote the Lincoln play. Whatever may be the measure of his ability he has now undertaken a task worthy of the genius of Shakespeare.

It would difficult to name two characters more radically different than Abraham Lincoln and Robert E. Lee.

It is not meant by this statement to even appear to disparage the character, ability or achievement of Mr. Lincoln. His fame is fixed. The day is far in the future, if it ever comes, when he will be displaced as an outstanding figure in American history.

While this is true; in lineage, in education, in social status, all the environment which gives color and direction to human character, and even personal appearance, the advantage was with Robert E. Lee.

In simplicity, in clearness of speech, in purity of thought and action, in intellectual and moral equipoise, in fidelity to conviction, in fortitude under adverse fortune, in unselfish devotion to duty, as he saw it, he stands in unchallenged pre-eminence among the great men of the world.

He was gentle, kind and sympathetic as the most tender hearted woman. Yet he was the very genius of battle, and was courage incarnate.

He rode into the very midst of a leaden hail to lead Hood's brigade into battle, and dismounted from his war horse while his men were falling on every side of him, to replace in the parent nest some unfledged birds that had been shaken out by the shock of bursting shells.

Penniless at the close of the struggle of 1861-65, he declined an estate in England, and the offer of $50,000 a year for the use of his name in a business enterprise, and accepted the presidency of a college practically in ruins, at a salary of $1500 a year.

He was an humble, devout Christian, and the last words he spoke outside of his own home, was to say,

"I will give it," referring to an amount necessary to complete the increase of the salary of his rector, who had been his chief of artillery when he led the army of the South.

Then he was a strikingly handsome man; indeed, in his youth his was a manly beauty rarely equalled by any man in all history.

While genial and a delightful companion, there was an indefinable something about him which forbade familiarity, or any infringement upon his dignity. He was one of the few big men who the nearer he was approached the greater and grander he grew.

He was the very impersonation of gracefulness. It has been said that no man ever saw him in an ungraceful attitude.

It is evident that any man who seeks to portray such a character has entered upon a perilous enterprise. He cannot succeed half way. There are but two ends he can achieve—utter failure, or complete and triumphant success. If he fails to do justice to the great Virginian his play is doomed.

The people of the South will not admit that any man was the equal of Robert E. Lee. So to portray him physically, intellectually and morally, without failing to come up to their estimate is a task which nothing short of dramatic genius can successfully accomplish.—Houston Chronicle.

SOME WAYS OF USING SOAP

A bar of common yellow soap is the housekeeper's friend in many ways. If you have a bed spring, a piano pedal or door hinge that squeaks, rub well with the soap, and the soap will make windows which are inclined to stick work smoothly.

Rubbed on a nail it will prevent the wood through which it is driven from splitting. This is often used by carpenters, who drive the nail through a bar of soap before using. Stop all the holes where mice come in with soap and it will keep them out.

Cracks in woodwork and furniture can be filled with soap and smoothed even with the wood before painting. Mixed with stove blacking, it lessens the labor of applying and improves results, and when mixed with starch it makes the ironing easier and prevents the irons from sticking to the goods.

The inner wrappings from bars of soap are useful to clean and keep the irons smooth when ironing. An excellent cleaner and polish is made as follows: To one tablespoonful of linseed oil add an equal proportion of turpentine, together with a piece of pure soap the size of a walnut. Pour this into a vessel containing one quart of boiling water and let boil about ten minutes, stirring all the while so that it may be well mixed. Wring a soft flannel cloth out of the fluid and apply while warm to a small portion of the surface to be cleaned, then take a fresh flannel to polish, and a few minute's vigorous rubbing will soon restore the wood to its original polish.

If you have saved all the small pieces of toilet soap, they can be boiled to a jelly in enough water to cover and used for washing flannels or any nice woolen articles. An excellent healing soap can be made from the small pieces by melting together with an equal amount of mutton tallow and half as much corn meal. This must be well mixed and cut into squares after cooling. A few drops of carbolic acid added to the mixture adds to its healing qualities. For an inflamed sore of any kind, try a salve made up of one part each of yellow soap, spirits of turpentine and sugar and two parts mutton tallow. Mix thoroughly and apply on a cloth until the inflammation subsides, then dress with plain mutton tallow.—A. M. H. in Junction Eagle.

KEEPING CLEAN FOODS WHOLESOME IS ESSENTIAL TO PROMOTE GOOD HEALTH

Research work being carried on by the ice men of the country is bringing out some interesting facts about the mistakes made by the average housekeeper who wishes to economize on food.

One of the outstanding discoveries so far made by the Household Refrigeration Bureau of the National Association of Ice Industries is that women have very little practical knowledge of the principals of refrigeration and how to take care of foods after they are bought.

The Mann Bros. Ice Company furnishes us with the following facts based upon a recent publication by Dr. Mary E. Pennington, who is in charge of the Bureau in question: Many thrifty housewives consider ice a luxury not to be indulged in with the passing of the hot days. This practice is an extravagant form of economy. The latest edict from the dietetics laboratories is that we should have raw salad greens twice daily and a fresh uncooked fruit at each meal for our best health. Long and intense heating does destroy bacteriam but also some of the valuable vitamins are lost, especially vitamin C, the scurvy preventing vitamin. These vitamins so vital to maintenance and growth occur largely in fresh fruits and vegetables. Cold only maintain freshness in foods and retard bacterial decomposition without changing the composition of those foods on which nutrition and good health largely depend. The more easily assimilated foods which are urged in the diet of infants and anaemic persons spoil very easily. Chronic digestive disturbances often are traceable to contaminated and decaying foods.

Milk, butter and soup stocks should be kept cold until utilized. The more delicate cooked vegetables such as asparagus and cauliflower are difficult to keep unless they are kept at a uniformly cold temperature. Cold-slaw will be crispier and sweeter if the fresh head of cabbage is wrapped in a cloth or oiled paper and kept in the refrigerator until needed. Leftovers will not represent waste and planned-overs for portions of food cooked in advance will save hours in the kitchen. The saving on the food by eliminating deterioration and its subsequent loss will more than pay the ice bill, as well as insure food that tastes better, looks better and actually is better.

TO BRADY HOUSEWIVES

Dear Madam:

Our Company holds membership in an Association which is spending money and time in the development of highly interesting and important facts on home refrigeration.

We believe you will be distinctly interested in the pamphlets so far published by the Household Refrigeration Bureau of the National Association of Ice Industries.

Doctor Mary E. Pennington, in charge of this Bureau, has the happy knack of giving the reader the whole gist of an important topic in a few short paragraphs. She knows the subject of refrigeration through practice, study and specialization.

If you would like to be placed on a mailing list of housewives who are regularly receiving Doctor Pennington's findings, advise us.

After you have read the scientific and economical methods of ice usage set forth by these pamphlets; after you have gained what may be new information on the whole subject—

We believe you will want to keep on taking ice the year 'round.

If our driver is not making regular deliveries to your home now, why not call up—ask that he come tomorrow—and tell us to send in your name for the Pennington publications.

You know we will gladly serve.

Very truly,

TO GRADE ALL TOURIST CAMPS IN TEXAS TOWNS

A conference was held in Dallas last week of representatives of the automobile clubs and highway departments of the Chambers of Commerce of practically all the larger cities in Texas and representatives of the American Red Book Company.

At this meeting the American Red Book Company was requested to grade all tourist camps in Texas and publish the grades in their forthcoming issues for the guidance of the tourists and traveling public generally.

It was suggested that the classes of AA, A, B, C and D be used in the grading. Class AA would be the camps or parks that were fully equipped in every way, and it is understood that only two camps in Texas would at the present time come under this classification, that of El Paso and of Fort Worth.

Class A would be those having practically all conveniences such as shower baths, sanitary rest rooms, cooking places, either gas or wood, lights, water, care-taker, etc. Class B, C and D would be those with fewer facilities and conveniences.

It was brought out at the meeting that at the present time the tourist has no authentic guide as to camps, and that such a guide would be very helpful to the tourists, as well as giving credit and sending traffic to those towns and cities who care enough for the tourist to make arrangements to take care of him.

It is said that some cities, particularly El Paso, are going after tourist traffic and trade in a very extensive way. The El Paso camp will afford the traveler practically all the conveniences of home, with modern fully equipped cottages, lights, water, fuel, baths, and amusement devices.

More and more the progressive towns and cities are taking up this matter in a business like way and the town which fails to provide a comfortable and convenient camp, loses the tourist and the money he spends, for they will drive many extra miles in order to get into a place adequately prepared for them.

Good Excuse.

The recent discussion of the severe burden placed upon the Presidents has recalled the old story of Lincoln, who when told he looked tired and worn from his duties remarked to a friend:

"Yes, I feel very much like the Irishman who, after being ridden on a rail, remarked, 'If it was not for the honor of the thing, I'd rather walk.'"—Evening Mail.

ROBS CALOMEL OF NAUSEA & DANGER

Medicinal Virtues Retained and Improved—Dangerous and Sickening Qualities Removed. Perfected Tablet Called "Calotabs."

The latest triumph of modern science is a "de-nauseated" calomel tablet known to the drug trade as "Calotabs." Calomel, the most generally useful of all medicines thus enters upon a wider field of popularity,—purified and refined from those objectionable qualities which have heretofore limited its use.

In biliousness, constipation, headaches and indigestion, and in a great variety of liver, stomach and kidney troubles calomel was the most successful remedy, but its use was often neglected on account of its sickening qualities. Now it is the easiest and most pleasant of medicines to take. One Calotab at bedtime with a swallow of water,—that's all. No taste, no griping, no nausea, no salts. A good night's sleep and the next morning you are feeling fine, with a clean liver, a purified system and a big appetite. Eat what you please. No danger.

Calotabs are sold only in original, sealed packages, price thirty-five cents for the large, family package; ten cents for the small, trial size. Your druggist is authorized to refund the price as a guarantee that you will be thoroughly delighted with Calotabs.—(Adv.)

Some demon statistician has just sent us word that the people of the United States spent about $8,000,000 annually in sending the "Please" in telegrams. A good investment say we. And the nice part of it is that electric railway folks, having their customers right at hand where they don't have to telegraph them, can say please as often as they desire without spending a cent.—American Electric Railway Magazine.

A CALENDAR ROMANCE

Our hero was the common sort, when all is said and done He worked his head off daily and was out to get the MON.

The reason for this diligence was commonplace, 'tis true— He tried to swell his salary so it would suffice for TUE.

And maby that's the reason why one day he lost his head And falling on his knees, he cried "Oh maiden, wilt thou WED.

He may have thought this sudden but it seemed not so to her; She lisped a quick acceptance and said forcibly, "Yeth THUR."

But when they went to keeping house he feared that he would die, For, oh, that modern maiden could neither bake nor FRI.

She could not run a bungalow, or even run a flat, So on many sad occasions in a restaurant they SAT.

But he forgave her everything—as man has always done, When she presented him one day a bouncing baby SUN.

YOKOHAMA IN RUINS, IS PASSED UP BY SHIPS CITY MAY NEVER REBUILD

Tokio, Oct. 20.—Thousands of American tourists have entered the land of the cherry blossoms through the teeming, crowded, busy port of Yokohama, gateway of Japan. They saw it as symbolic of the East—noisome, populous, fetid, colorful. Above all was the picture of it's purging packed humanity.

Today there is nothing left at Yokohama except ruins. Yokohama is just a name, a memory. Moss gathers on the tumbled rafters of houses. Another spring and grass and vines will tangle the deserted thoroughfares.

Yokohama can not come back until Tokio is reconstructed. There are no funds to devote to the seaport city. Rebuilding Tokio will be a matter of years; Yokohama will have to wait. At present it seems probable that old "Yoko," as the foreigners call it, will never be more than a faint, sickly ghost of what it used to be.

No Food Nor Water.

There is now no food nor water in the city. All foreigners left long ago. A few Japanese remain, in the quiet suburbs. The piles of dead that are heaped in the streets after the quake have been burned, but hundreds of dead still lie beneath ruined houses.

None of the docks, piers or warehouses on the water front remained undamaged. Even the big concrete piers are split and shivered, or half sunk into the sea. There is no place where a big liner can tie up. Many of the trans-Pacific boats are eliminating Yokohama altogether as a port of call, putting into Kobe instead.

The ships that do stop anchor out in the harbor, far from shore. The entire bottom of the bay has buckled or sunk and channels that were safe before are treacherous now.

The authorities probably will try to build two or three piers at Yokohama and resurvey the harbor to determine safe channels as soon as possible. This, and the repairing of the railroad between Yokohama and Tokio, will give some life to the town.

But for some time to come Yokohama must consist of a few water front piers and sheds, and just enough houses to give homes to the men who work the shipping.

Yokohama was the great silk market of Japan. The market has already shifted to Kobe. Foreign business firms have gone to Kobe, Osaka and Tokio. Few foreigners will return, for the memory of the high foreign casualties in the quake will not soon be effaced from the American and European colonies in the Orient.

There is some talk of rebuilding Yokohama, but it is talk with little backing. The Government, the entire will and power of Japan, is behind the rebuilding of Tokio. There will be something at Yokohama of course—for Tokio must have a port—but the new Yokohama will be but a pale reflection of the great city that once flourished there.

J. H. (CYCLONE) DAVIS ADDRESSES AUDIENCE SUNDAY PRINCIPLES KU KLUX KLAN

J. H. (Cyclone) Davis, Sunday afternoon addressed an audience that filled the Methodist tabernacle, many being obliged to stand. Mr. Davis lived fully up to his reputation of a humorous, as well as most interesting speaker, and his address, while evoking only moderate applause, nevertheless had the apparent sympathy and approval of the majority of those present.

Mr. Davis gave quite a bit of time to a recital of historical events and occurrences in which the sinister influence of the Catholic church was alleged, but, upon the whole, his address differed from the two previous Klan speakers in that he warned against arousing enmity against any class or creed of citizens, and dwelt upon the necessity of maintaining harmony and co-operation among the citizens of town and country. Mr. Davis mentioned the fact that members of his own family were married to Catholics, and that a niece had been married in his own home by a priest. He professed to have none but the kindest of feelings towards the Catholics as individuals.

Concerning the Jews, the speaker stated they, themselves, were most clannish. "They will not marry one of us," he said, "nor allow one of us to marry one of them."

The address here was the conclusion of a week's speaking dates over the county, many of which Mr. Davis was unable to fill on account of continuous rains and impassable roads.

 LOCAL BRIEFS. *****

The many friends of F. W. Henderson are pleased to note that he is greatly improved in health following his return to Brady a couple weeks ago from a trip and visit since last July out to Colorado, Utah and California, and also a stop upon his return in his former home in Kentucky. Mr. Henderson has leased his Kimble county ranch, and will again make his home among us.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Hodges returned this morning from Marlin, where Mr. Hodges had been for a number of weeks under treatment for rheumatism, and where he recently underwent an operation that all but had fatal consequences. The operation opened up an accumulation of pus in his head and back of his nose, and was followed by severe hemorrhages. Specialists were called into consultation before the hemorrhages were finally overcome. Mr. Hodges returns much improved in health, but says he never expects to be as close to Death's door again, without passing through.

One of the most interesting exhibits is to be seen at the Commercial bank in the lemon and orange trees placed there for protection during the winter by S. J. Striegler. The former is the Ponderosa lemon, with fruit of tremendous size—one lemon is said to be enough to make four lemon pies—and in addition to the twelve large lemons that originally graced the tree, there are a large number of smaller fruit. In moving the plant to the bank from the Striegler residence, five of the large lemons were jarred off. The orange tree is equally prolific, and when its fruit ripens it is said to present a beautiful sight, the oranges being a bright yellow. The trees are about five years old, and have borne fruit almost from their first year, and in addition have survived a freeze which destroyed the plants almost to the ground.
