

BRADY WINS 27-0 IN SPECTACULAR GAME WITH MASON

Brady High yesterday afternoon won the football honors from Mason High in a spectacular game, and one replete with thrills. Throughout the game, Brady had everything her own way, and she registered a touchdown in every quarter. Strickland and Bradshaw were the outstanding stars on the Brady team. In the third quarter, Bradshaw made a sensational run of 80 yards for a touchdown, and in the last quarter Strickland made a virtual duplicate of the play, carrying the ball 70 yards down the field for a touchdown. Polk made the second touchdown of the game in the second quarter, carrying the ball through the line.

The first touchdown was made in the first quarter, Strickland carrying the ball over the line following two successful forward passes. The extra point was made on a pass, taking the place of the goal kick. Straight football marked the second quarter, when Polk registered a touchdown, carrying the ball through the line. Again an extra point was made on a pass. In the first half of the game, Mason made but two first downs, and she made none in the second half.

In the third quarter, Mason had a good chance to score. A wonderful punt by one of the Mason players carried the ball far down the field, and following this, Brady was penalized for an off-side play, which placed the ball within a few yards of the goal line. The ball went to Brady on a fumble, and after working it down the field for a number of gains, Bradshaw got the ball, and started his sensational run. Dodging a Mason player who blocked his path, Bradshaw ran almost the length of the field when he glanced back and saw another opposing player pounding along right at his heels. Bradshaw literally "stepped on the gas" and in a wonderful burst of speed that left his pursuer far behind, he placed the ball safely behind the goal line. Strickland failed to kick goal.

In the last quarter, Mason played in better form than at any time during the game. Successful line bucks, and two completed forward passes gave them good opportunity to score, but eventually she lost the ball on a fumble. Soon after Brady got the ball, Strickland made his wonderful run of 70 yards for a touchdown. His interference was perfect. The third extra point was made by Polk with a place kick.

The locals never showed up in better form than in yesterday's game, and all the boys played real football. Samuel played the game of his life, and his line work made him an outstanding star.

The line-up:

Brady	Mason
Broad	Leifeste
center
Zimmerman	Geistweidt
right guard
Campbell	Kothmann
left guard
Wright	Weismann
right tackle
Roddie	C. Sanders

Polk	Kidd
quarter back
Bradshaw	Doell
right half
Freeman	S. Sanders
left half
Strickland	Zesch
full back

Brady subs: Hutschenreuter for Zimmerman, Adkins for Bradshaw, Awalt for Campbell, Hext for Roddie, Reed for Broad.

Mason subs: Clark for Weismann; Lemburg for Clark.

Splendid attendance.
A wonderful attendance and an enthusiastic crowd had material effect in pepping up the game. The Brady cheer gang was there with the noise and the songs, too. In addition to the season tickets, something like $31 worth of admission tickets were sold yesterday and the gate receipts ran $132. With such wonderful support, the local team is encouraged to put

McCULLOCH COUNTY POOL SELLS TURKEYS TO MAY- HEW PRODUCE CO. FRIDAY

The McCulloch County Pool last Friday held the sale of their turkeys, the entire lot being bought in by Mayhew Produce Company at a price satisfactory to both parties. Some 9,000 turkeys were included in the pool, representing about one-third of the entire McCulloch county turkey crop. The turkey crop in McCulloch county this year is just about double that of last year. Dressing of turkeys is now in full swing, the daily output being around 1,500 birds, not including those shipped out alive.

BRADY LUNCHEON CLUB TO MEET THURSDAY NOON AT HOTEL BRADY, 12:00 SHARP

The Brady Luncheon club will resume its weekly meetings again next Thursday, assembling for luncheon at the new Hotel Brady promptly at 12:00 o'clock sharp. An appetizing menu and a most interesting meeting is assured, and it is desired that every business man and citizen who possibly can, be present.

The best there is in it into every game—and that's what they did yesterday.

San Angelo Saturday.
Brady goes to San Angelo Saturday, and with the present team expects to bring home the honors of the game. The final game of the season will be played with Santa Anna on the local grounds Thanksgiving Day.

Super Salesmanship
A young man called at the house of a celebrated diagnostician and asked to see the doctor.

"Have you an appointment?" the office nurse asked.

"No, I haven't," the young man replied.

The nurse consulted the doctor's appointment list.

"I think I can work you in after the next patient leaves," she said.

"So please go inside that room and take your clothes off."

"Take my clothes off?" the young man exclaimed, "what for?"

"The doctor has made it an absolute rule not to see anybody unless that is done," the nurse said firmly.

"But I don't want to take my clothes off," the young man insisted.

"Then I'm sorry, but you can't see the doctor," the nurse said.

"Well, if that's the case I'm game," the young man said.

A few moments later the doctor entered the room and found the young man awaiting him, stark naked.

"Well, sir," the doctor said, "what seems to be your trouble?"

"Doctor," the young man replied, "I called to see if you would renew your wife's subscription to the Ladies' Home Journal."

Who Could Blame Her.

The old-age pension officer was questioning the old woman with a zeal worthy of a nobler salary.

"And now," he said, "we come to the important questions. Have you ever been in receipt of parish relief?"

"Never," answered the old woman. Foiled again, the officer turned to the last question on the list.

"Tell me," he snarled, "have you ever been in the hands of the police?"

She hung her head. "Well," she said, "I don't see as it's any business of the gov'ment's, but I don't deny it. Girls will be girls, you know, and in my young days I was a cook, but still—with enormous pride—he was a sergeant."—London Weekly Telegraph.

CONGRATULATIONS

San Angelo, Texas, Nov. 10, 1923.

Chamber of Commerce, Brady, Texas,

We wish to congratulate Brady on the new Hotel Brady and to assure you that if it proves as good an advertisement for Brady as the St. Angelo has to San Angelo that your citizens will never regret their investment. We are sure the management does not need any recommendation to you but it is with pleasure that we can assure you that you have leased your hotel to the best hotel man in West Texas and recommend to you in every way Mr. McBurnett and all of his assistants. The San Angelo Standard.

HOTEL BRADY OPENED LAST FRIDAY MOST AUSPICIOUSLY—1500 ATTEND

GAY ASSEMBLAGE OF CITIZENS FROM FAR AND NEAR INSPECT MAGNIFICENT BUILDING AND SHOWER PRAISE AND CONGRATULATIONS UPON BUILDERS

Brady's magnificent new hostelry, "Hotel Brady," was opened most auspiciously last Friday night with a public reception from 6:30 to 8:30, followed by dancing which continued until 2:00 o'clock a. m. A wonderfully pleasant night added to the complete success and enjoyment of the occasion. Approximately 1500 guests were in attendance, the number including not only citizens of Brady and all parts of McCulloch county, but neighboring points as well, Sonora, San Angelo, Menard, Eden, Brownwood, Fort Worth and other towns being represented. The reception committee greeted the guests in the spacious lobby, following which the First Floor committee showed them through the ball room, kitchen, dining room and coffee shop. On each the second and third floors, committees escorted the guests upon an inspection trip of the elegantly furnished rooms, the ladies' parlor and the attractive court. Punch was served throughout the evening.

Not only did the members of the Hotel Brady company come in for congratulation and commendation upon the wonderful, fire-proof building, modern to the last detail, and one which could accommodate itself to growing needs, but Mr. C. C. McBurnett also came in for praise for the elaborate and complete equipping and furnishing of the building. In fact, it was the consensus of opinion that Brady now boasts of a hotel the equal of any city—and one far ahead of those usually found in cities outside of metropolitan places.

Appreciation of the hotel Brady citizens have given to their town and the general public was to be found in that even on the opening night all rooms on the third floor were reserved, so that while guests were privileged to make inspection of the third floor, they found all the rooms closed. Total guest registrations the first night were 92.

For this week, the first of the new hotel operation, three banquets are scheduled. To the Knights Templar falls the honor of being the first to banquet in the new hotel, the occasion being set for tomorrow (Wednesday) evening at 6:00 o'clock, the Sir Knights attending in full uniform. On Thursday, at noon, the Luncheon club will meet there in regular weekly session for luncheon. On Friday afternoon from 3:00 to 5:00 the Five Hundred club will be entertained.

Store Openings.
Simultaneously with the Hotel Brady opening, the Trigg Rexall store No. 2, and the Polk Barber shop No. 2, were opened to the public, and each in turn won compliments.

MAGAZINES
I have the agency for all magazines published. On account of illness in my family, I am unable to see the people personally. Will appreciate all the subscriptions given me. Mrs. D. L. MAPLES, Phone 201, P. O. Box 266.

Abraham Lincoln

At what point shall we expect the approach of danger. By what means shall we fortify against it? Shall we expect some trans-Atlantic military giant to step the ocean and crush us at a blow? Never! * * *

At what point, then, is the approach of danger to be expected? I answer, if it ever reaches us, it must spring up amongst us; it cannot come from abroad. If destruction be our lot, we must ourselves be its author and finisher. As a nation of free men we must live through all time or die by suicide.

I hope I am over wary; but if I am not, there is even now something of evil omen among us. I mean the increasing disregard for law which pervades the country—the growing disposition to substitute wild and furious passions in lieu of the sober judgment of courts, and the worse than savage mobs for the executive ministers of justice. * * *

The answer is simple. Let every American, every lover of liberty, every well-wisher of his posterity, swear by the blood of the Revolution never to violate in the least particular the laws of the country, and never tolerate their violation by others. * * *

Let reverence for the laws be breathed by every American mother to the lisping babe that prattles on her lap; let it be taught in the schools, in seminaries and in colleges; let it be written in primers, proclaimed in legislative halls and enforced in courts of justice. And, in short, let it become the political religion of the nation; and let the old and the young, the rich and the poor, the grave and the gay of all sexes and tongues and colors and conditions, sacrifice unceasingly upon its altars.

PARENT-TEACHERS PRO- GRAM AT HIGH SCHOOL IS COMPLETE SUCCESS

The program of the Parent-Teachers association, offered on Thursday night of last week was a complete success, and incidentally was one of the most enjoyable had here. The large auditorium was filled to overflowing and the adjacent corridors were occupied by patrons and friends, forming an audience that was thoroughly appreciative of the various numbers rendered.

Not only were the readings of the school pupils highly enjoyed, but also those of Miss Neal were accorded enthusiastic approval. The dances by the primary pupils and also that of the third grade pupils led by Mary Ed Burrow were rendered in faultless fashion, and won merited applause. As always Mrs. J. W. Ragsdale won appreciation with her piano selection, and Mrs. Lou Townsend rendered her solo in charming fashion.

An unusual number of the program was the saxophone duet by Messrs. Rose and Striegler, delighting all, as did the cornet solo by Master Cecil Striegler. Other musical numbers included those of the Brady Symphony orchestra, and the band, and, needless to say, they formed among the most delightful of the program numbers. Superintendent J. B. Smith addressed the audience, stressing the important part athletics were playing in the building up of the high school, and asking for a hearty co-operation and liberal support upon the part of the general public. Incidentally, Mr. Smith spoke of the pleasure it was to have the first public program in the new high school auditorium presented under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers association, and which he declared as most appropriate. He spoke in terms of unmeasured praise of the unselfish and untiring work given for the Brady schools by Mrs. Wm. C. Jones, past-president of the association, and paid her a glowing tribute. Mrs. Burrow, declared the speaker, was proving herself a most worthy successor to Mrs. Jones, as president of the association, and he predicted continued success in their efforts to upbuild and aid the schools, and bespoke for them, too, hearty co-operation and support of the citizens.

A Correction.
In giving the list in last Friday's Standard, of stockholders in the new Hotel Brady, in the announcement of the formal hotel opening, the names of a number of the original stockholders were omitted through a regrettable oversight. Among these were some of the earliest and most enthusiastic subscribers and promoters of the hotel company. The following should have been included in the list as published: F. W. Henderson, H. P. Jordan, Lewis Brook and Son, J. H. Odgen, C. H. Vincent.

HONEST INJUN.

With the diving Venuses just around the corner, with Noah's ark disgorging a giggling and half-hysterical humanity; with freaks to the left of us, and the gaze of the woman of a thousand eyes to the right of us—with all these distractions, no one need expect this editor to write illuminating editorial matter this week. It's Carnival week in Brady!!

A WONDERFUL EDITION.

The Standard is in receipt of the "City and County Improvement Edition" of the Randall County News, published at Canyon, Texas, by C. W. Warwick. The special was issued in six sections of eight pages each, making a total of 48 pages, and was in commemoration of the completion of over three miles of street paving in Canyon, as a result of which that progressive place now boasts of more paved streets than any other city in Texas of like population. The edition throughout reflected the enterprise and public spirit of the citizens of Canyon City and Randall county, was gotten up in admirable fashion and was a wonderful advertisement for town and county in the elaborate setting forth of the attractions, advantages and possibilities of that country. Our congratulations are extended Editor Warwick upon the achievements of Canyon and Randall county, and no less upon the able and interesting manner in which he recounted and exploited these achievements.

NOVEMBER 11, 1918.

Five years since the Armistice was signed! A long time, yes. But we're still too close to the World War for any of us to "grasp" what really happened and sense its connection with the future.

Under arms in the great war were 65 million men. Casualties totaled more than 37 million. That tells only part of the story of horror. But it should be called daily to the attention of every one.

Alas, memory is short. Humanity likes to forget the unpleasant side of life. That is why catastrophes like wars are repeated. One generation, trying to forget fails to impress indelibly on the minds of the rising generation the frightfulness, sorrow and futility of the battlefield.

Celebrate Armistice Day by teaching your children to hate war and all that goes with it. Forget the "glory" which is the camouflage of the militarists.

Thirty-seven million casualties! Tell them that.
Thirty-seven million casualties! Tell it again.
Thirty-seven million casualties! Never stop telling!!—San Angelo Standard.

MORE THAN A RAIN SHEDDER

African Chiefs Take the Possession of an Umbrella Very Seriously, According to Reports.

Some time ago, there was what the news described as unrest in the West African colony of Lagos; telegrams were dispatched between that country and Great Britain, governors and deputy-governors were interviewed, and it was with difficulty that a native war was averted. The cause of all this commotion was an umbrella!

Now, in our country, as we all know, an umbrella is looked upon as a harmless possession—but not so in West Africa. There, among most of the native tribes, the umbrella is regarded as an emblem of royalty, and its possession is strictly confined to the chief or king of the tribe.

Therefore the indignation was intense on the part of one of these kings, when he found an inferior chief putting up an umbrella of his own. The king at once took a journey to Lagos, to lodge a formal complaint of the chief's treasonable conduct with the British governor.

An African king's umbrella is a very elaborate affair, and it often costs large sums of money. Most of the umbrellas for Ashanti and the Gold Coast are made of gigantic size, some of them when open measuring ten feet across.

The coverings of these umbrellas are of colored silk—the brighter the better, with very deep fringes. The largest umbrellas are carried over the heads of chiefs, by bearers while other bearers steady the umbrella by cords attached to the uppermost parts.

One state umbrella had for its apex a silver eagle standing on two silver canons, while another umbrella had a gold hen on the top, the hen being surrounded by numerous chickens, to represent the chief and his tribe.

CHANGES IN "OLD FAITHFUL"

Yellowstone's Famous Geyser Has Slightly Lengthened the Periods Between Its Eruptions.

Old Faithful, Yellowstone's most famous geyser, has slightly changed the period of its eruptions.

According to the observations of the park naturalist and the rangers, the geyser now spouts on an average every 64.6 minutes. Last year the average period was 60 minutes.

The alteration in Old Faithful's "tempo" does not indicate any lessening of its vigor or "faithfulness." On the contrary, Naturalist M. P. Skinner's observations show the mighty fountain to be increasing in volume. The change is believed to be due to an alteration in the subterranean tube of the geyser.

For the last year or so Old Faithful has acquired a habit of occasionally throwing out small rocks. The passage of the rocks through the tube is believed to have enlarged its dimensions slightly, this in turn being responsible for the lengthened period between eruptions and the increased volume of water.

A number of other interesting changes, lending a constantly varying interest to the mysterious manifestations of the park's performing natural wonders, also are reported by official observers.

That Word "Corker."

The American word "corker," meaning a person or thing of superlative quality, is only a slang use of a legitimate, English word, Corker, in its original sense, meant a conclusive argument. It probably originated from the finality which a cork thrust into the mouth of a bottle stops all egress, or ingress of material in it.

The relegation of the word as used in America to the limbo of slang by the dictionary writers has neither weakened the word nor limited its use.

The word "corker" is a perfectly good word. It expresses precisely a shade of meaning that needed to be expressed, and the chances are that it will be a word of good and regular standing long after the bones of the last living dictionary writers have thoroughly bleached.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Newspaper Accuracy.

Dr. A. White of the Detroit News, after long investigation, finds that daily papers make only one error in every 3,250 opportunities for mistakes. This country recently celebrated the anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth, Rock and history has pointed out the very spot where they landed. Now a scientist discovers that at the time the Pilgrims landed this spot was under sea. Which leads Mr. White to ask, "If history cannot report a fact correctly in 300 years, ought we expect a newspaper to be unfailingly accurate in six or eight hours?"

Diphtheria Germs in Wild Horses. Wild horses running on the open range and never in contact with human beings have been found to be infected with the diphtheria germ, according to Dr. H. W. Schoening of the pathological division of the bureau of plant industry, at Washington. This fact, he claims, indicates that the diphtheria organism is widespread in the soil and is not carried to the horse by some human being, as has been held.

As She Appeared to Him. Miss Sarah Bellum—No one of this generation appreciates me. I was born too soon.

Max Multrow—Quite so. I believe you'd be a pretty young girl right now if you had only been born about 20 years later than you were.

"I AIN'T AFRAID."

When President Harding died, as every man of us would choose to die in action, I thought of Eben Holden.

Irving Bacheller wrote the story, and the last words he put into the mouth of staunch, great-hearted old Eben seem to fit the man we know so affectionately as Warren G. Harding.

"I ain't afraid."
'Shaped o' nuthin' I ever done.
Alwuss kep' my tugs tight,
Never ketcht a fish biggen'n 't was,

Er lied 'n a hos trade,
Er shed a tear I didn't hev to.
Never cheated anybody but Eben Holden.

Goin' off somewheres, Bill—dunno the way nuther—
Dunno 'f it's east er west er north er south,

Er road er trail;
But I ain't afraid." —Note Book.

"Do you want an acting manager?"

"No I'm my own acting manager."

Helping to Keep the Kiddies Well

THE families with children should never take chances with the purity of their foods. That may sound like useless advice—but it's surprising the chances some mothers do take of milk's spoiling, as an example.

Milk is delivered pure to your home.

And the only way to keep it pure is in a good refrigerator well filled with ice.

That applies every day in the year—and if all foods given children are similarly protected—you'll find ice helps greatly in keeping the kiddies happy, sturdy and well.

THE young man in Palm-Beach suit, and with a white rosebud decorating his buttonhole, looked whimsically down upon his small nephew.

"How am I to amuse him," Delphine? he asked his sister.

Delphine regarded her son meditatively.

"You might read a fairy tale to Donny," she suggested, "he never tires of them. And that form of entertainment would be least likely to soil your clothes. Donny is apt to crawl over one, or to lead on to other thorny paths. This place agrees with him splendidly. I am so glad we decided on the lake shore for the summer. You like it, Dick?"

"Immensely," Richard Dorn was looking admiringly across the stretch of blue waters.

"I'm almost persuaded to purchase the big Brooks place, and send on for my housekeeper."

"While I would love to have you here as our guest," his sister said, "I can appreciate your desire to be free at times from interruption; bachelorhood causes the habit to grow," Delphine smiled. "And I realize that Donny is an exacting master." Donald presented his book, "Read it, Uncle," he demanded. Eagerly small fingers sought out the favorite illustration. In a highly colored garden, a beautiful princess waited beside a pool, where goldfish darted. Richard Dorn interestedly studied the picture; this was a pretty bit of landscape gardening portrayed. White pillars formed entrance to the garden, pink roses caressing. Upon either side pointed trees walled in other riotous roses, pink, and red, and white. A tall blue larkspur sentinel for each pointed tree. The maid beside the pool was lovely, in a trailing robe of gold; her hair, rippling to her waist, was golden, too. And the eyes, ever watching expectantly the pillared gates, were blue as the sea and the sky above it. Uncle Dick read the title of the story, "The Enchanted Garden." Donny listened with never falling delight to the tale of the prince.

"And so," Uncle Dick finished with a yawn, "the lovely princess went out with her prince from the enchanted garden, to live happily ever after, in a white castle by the sea."

Donny sighed his content. "And now," he said, "let's walk, Uncle Dick, down to the beach."

The sun was bidding good night through the tall trees in a blaze of splendor. The young man arose resignedly. "All right," he agreed.

"Look, look," cried Donny, "the enchanted garden!"

True enough, before them two white pillars, rose draped, led into a tree-walled garden. Larkspur stood before each pointed tree, roses rioted everywhere. Dick, admiring, obeyed the tug of the small fingers. But inside the white pillars he, too, stood, surprised mingled with his admiration. For a stone basin was in the center of the garden, and beside the basin a lovely maiden stood, watching the goldfish in its depths. And Oh! unbelievable; the maiden's golden hair rippled to her waist, and she wore a belted, golden velvet robe.

"The enchanted princess!" whispered Donny. Their presence and their voices aroused her; the princess caught at her golden locks—then she smiled. It certainly was an entrancing smile—so thought Uncle Dick. Donny was drawing him on. "Maybe," he said excitedly, "you are the prince, Uncle Dick, made so, you remember, by enchantment, the golden fish, who really were fairies—and everything."

Not unlike an olden prince, Richard bowed low.

"Your pardon," he begged, "my small nephew is under the impression that this is all a fairy tale, come true from his book. He led me inside."

"I—I had been bathing in the lake," the girl explained confusedly, "and I paused to admire our flowers. And also I feared that you had come to buy our lovely temporary home. If you have," the blue eyes questioned wistfully, "then aunt and I will have to leave. Of course, we rented with the understanding that we should have to vacate it if the place was sold. But it has been like heaven, after our city apartment. The white castle is much too large for our needs, of course—renting price was made lower because of that very undesirability. We live mostly in the gardens. You see, Mr. Dorn—the young woman laughingly admitted—"I do know that you are the prospective buyer. You have so been pointed out to me."

Donnie's eyes widened. "The white castle," he said—"The white castle by the sea?" Uncle Dick did not hear him.

"I have decided," Uncle Dick was telling the princess, "to stay on for the remainder of the summer with my sister. So you and your aunt may stay undisturbed in your heaven."

"Donald!" called Uncle Dick, remembering his charge.

Donny had instantly lost interest in the realization of his favorite story in the exciting occupation of trying to catch a goldfish in his palm; but he now ran to the two with a question: "Will you be married, and live in the white castle by the lake?"

"I—I hope so," Uncle Dick answered. He was smiling into the perplexed eyes of the girl.

"May we," he begged of her, "bring a fairy tale over to read to you this evening?"

FOR THE EYES OF POSTERITY

Satisfactory Way Said to Have Been Found to Preserve Newspapers for Indefinite Period.

How to so pickle newspapers that they can be preserved indefinitely in the public libraries is a problem which has apparently been solved, according to the American Paper and Pulp association.

Eight years of experimenting, participated in by three big New York newspapers at a cost of $5,000 a year each, under the supervision of the New York public library, has taught librarians how to preserve for posterity newspaper files. The solution seems simple, being the mounting of each newspaper sheet between two sheets of thin Japanese tissue, shutting the air from the original sheets, reducing its legibility but slightly, and strengthening the page. Bound volumes of the mounted pages are now in constant daily use, and are free from the wear and tear which destroyed the untreated newspapers.

The New York experiments have been so successful that a big Western newspaper has sent representatives to New York to study and adopt the practice for use there.

The first investigation was made in Boston, and the library there tried to persuade the newspapers to print library editions on an extra paper, but the expense was too great. This is now done by a London paper, and was tried by a Brooklyn paper, but the cost was prohibitive.

In the New York experiments silk was first used, but the Japanese tissue was found the best for the purpose, as it hermetically sealed the newspaper pages from the air. Shellacs, varnishes and other substances were tried, with little success. Under the method now in use the operator wets a glass or steel-covered table, lays down a sheet of tissue; with the pasting machine, rice paste is put on, then in turn the newspaper page, paste and tissue, when the page is dried and pressed under a gas-heated mangle.

CASE OF MISTAKEN IDENTITY

Precipitate Individual Foresaw Hard Task in Squaring Himself With His Fellow Citizens.

Clad in knickers and driving home from college two girls stopped at Noblesville. While there they went into the library.

When they came out into the street, most of the town was out to see them.

Deciding that knickers must not be the thing in Noblesville, they hurried to get under the shelter of their car.

A man came up to them and invited them to stay longer as guests of the town. They refused, saying that they were in a hurry to get to Warsaw.

"Warsaw?" he stammered. "Why, aren't you the two girls who are bumping your way from New York to Indianapolis, and whose picture was in the paper this afternoon? We have been expecting two girls all day and as soon as I saw you go into the library I thought you were the ones, and had gone in to see what the Noblesville press had to say about you, and I hurried around and told everybody you were here. What'll I do?"—Indianapolis News.

Walking to Learn the World.

President Masaryk of Czechoslovakia has lately given another example of his practical idealism and wise foresight. He is furnishing the funds for a walking tour of the world this summer by students of Prague university. In the group are two Czechs, a Serbian, a Bulgarian and a Russian. After walking through Yugoslavia and Bulgaria the students will go to Constantinople and then to China and Japan. Thence passage will be taken to San Francisco and the leading cities of the United States will be visited on foot. Prague university will publish a report of the expedition. President Masaryk knows the folly of national isolation and the value of learning something about other nations besides his own.—Christian Science Monitor.

Toronto's Vacation Schools.

Utilizing schoolhouses, churches and public buildings, Toronto is maintaining this summer daily vacation schools in the congested districts of the city. More than 3,000 children are in attendance, says the Christian Science Monitor. While the primary object is to provide a place of refuge from the hot streets, the school has also a distinct educational value. The morning session is devoted to "play-work" and includes basketry, sewing and raffia instruction, story-telling, kindergarten activities and occasional moving picture exhibitions. In the afternoon come picnics, hikes and organized sports.

Unearth Ancient Roman Barge.

Important archeological discoveries have been made at Castello di Porto, near Rome. The hull of an enormous Roman barge has been excavated near a small lake. It is presumably a relic of a mercantile fleet which was used to ship wheat from Sicily to Rome, before Castello di Porto shipped by the Tiber. The hull is like a similar relic of Nero's fleet at lovely Lake Nemi. Excavations are proceeding and other discoveries are expected.

MABEL'S REACTION

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

CARTER KEITH, owner and editor of the Evansville "Clarion," sat at his desk and scanned the proofsheets of the weekly edition.

Suddenly he paused and cocked one eye reflectively ceilingward. So Mabel was coming home! Home to quiet little Evansville after four years at a women's college in the city.

What, he speculated, would be the result? How would Mabel react to the drab environment of her birthplace, whose chief dissipation was a strawberry festival whose chief source of uplift was an occasional Chautauqua? Well, there was a vast field for Mabel's influence, Carter decided. A vast and hitherto unfarrowed field.

And in the weeks that followed Carter lent an occasional editorial pen to the preparation of that field for the seeds of Mabel's sowing.

"Miss Mabel Chester adorned her part as taken in the Shakespearean play presented by her sorority on Friday last. Perhaps with her advent the old Dramatic club of Evansville will awaken to new triumphs."

"With pleasure Evansville welcomes the imminent return of Miss Mabel Chester, a native daughter, who will undoubtedly bring with her great inspiration from her contact with the neighboring metropolis which will redound to the advantage of our town."

"Miss Mabel Chester on her arrival on Monday's noon train commented favorably on the improved appearance of Main Street. 'An imposing structure,' she characterized Eb Clark's new hardware store. So say we all."

As a matter of fact "some little gift shop" would have been a more accurate interpretation of Mabel's remark, but Carter, loyally building a reputation for her, had edited as he saw fit. Since school days Carter had had Mabel more or less on his mind and now, although she had grown up, he did not seem to find it easy to shift the responsibility.

Not only, however, through the medium of his paper did Carter seek to aid and abet Mabel in an effort to uplift Evansville.

"Yours is a wonderful opportunity, Mabel," he told her solemnly on the occasion of his first call. "Here is an entire town sunk in intellectual apathy, as it were. Yours shall be the guiding hand that summons us upward."

"You—you are very confident of my abilities," said Mabel, regarding him doubtfully.

"But the advantages you have had! Why, you owe it to yourself to expand, to develop, to unfold! It would be a crime burying your talent—"

"Wait," interrupted the girl coldly. "Remember, my dear Carter, you are not writing an editorial. Tell me who's been married or jilted while I was gone."

But Evansville backed up Carter. Mabel was exalted to a pedestal of his making and of the town's approving. She was asked to speak at church societies on "Ways to Improve Evansville." Her advice was sought regarding the curricula of the local schools. She was made a member of the library board.

Carter himself hunted up the old members of the Dramatic club, gathered them into a somewhat reluctant session, and spurred them into voting Mabel in as president.

The idea was that the entire population of Evansville was to turn out and betake themselves with basket lunches to a certain popular grove reserved for picnics of any kind.

Beneath a spreading maple by the river's brim Carter lay stretched at Mabel's side while she read from the younger poets for several minutes. Suddenly, however, she stopped and closed the book with vehemence. In fact, it looked for a second as if she were about to cast the delicate little volume from her.

Then, "Carter," she began and her eyes were blazing. "I think you are to blame for all this tomfoolery!"

Carter looked at her quizzically. "What tomfoolery do you mean?" he asked.

"Why—all this uplifting business! As if I had nothing to do but reform Evansville! I am sick to death in hearing of my wonderful advantages and unparalleled opportunities and—but what's the use?"

"You're possessed with it all and so I could not make you understand. Before I came home, I did have a little bit of an idea that I could do something perhaps to stir up the town. I had even made a few plans for civic improvements and activities. Now I never want to hear of such a thing again!"

Mabel, gazing mournfully down the river as one who watches vanishing illusions, failed to catch Carter's little satisfied nod and the smile in his eyes. But the sudden feel of his strong young arms about her startled her completely from her reverie.

"Dear little girl," said Carter tenderly, "I'll never mention uplift to you again—if you'll just marry me! I was so afraid when you came home you would become absorbed in all sorts of schemes that—"

"That, what, Carter?" demanded Mabel endeavoring to free herself from his still encircling arms.

"That—that I couldn't sleep nights!" said Carter feebly. Then, rallying, he stopped further words with a tender kiss.

And at that precise moment Evansville stamped once more into its deplorable but contented state of intellectual apathy.

In a certain Southern city the lady who is at the head of the public library has a fondness for loading her speech with quotations from foreign languages, including the dead ones. Especially is she addicted to Latin phrases. Locally, there is a suspicion that she sometimes gets a trifle mixed. But the lady herself goes serenely along, pumping strange words into her everyday conversation.

One day a patron dropped in to get a book.

"You weren't here the last time

I called," said the visitor, "your assistant said you were taking a little rest. Did you enjoy your vacation?"

"Very much," said the learned one. "I just took a little jaunt up to New York via train and came home vice versa."

"How did you say you came home?" asked the astonished citizen.

"Vice versa," repeated the lady blandly. "By steamer, don't you know."—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

ROBS CALOMEL OF NAUSEA & DANGER

Medicinal Virtues Retained and Improved — Dangerous and Sickening Qualities Removed. Perfected Tablet Called "Calotabs."

The latest triumph of modern science is a "de-nauseated" calomel tablet known to the drug trade as "Calotabs." Calomel, the most generally useful of all medicines thus enters upon a wider field of popularity,—purified and refined from those objectionable qualities which have heretofore limited its use.

In biliousness, constipation, headaches and indigestion, and in a great variety of liver, stomach and kidney troubles calomel was the most successful remedy, but its use was often neglected on account of its sickening qualities. Now it is the easiest and most pleasant of medicines to take. One Calotab at bedtime with a swallow of water,—that's all. No taste, no griping, no nausea, no salts. A good night's sleep and the next morning you are feeling fine, with a clean liver, a purified system and a bright appetite. Eat what you please. No danger.

Calotabs are sold only in original sealed packages, price three cents for the large, family package; ten cents for the small, trial size. Your druggist is authorized to refund the price as a guarantee that you will be thoroughly delighted with Calotabs.—(Adv.)

GOOD MORNING!

Good Morning! So very glad to see you, friend, for I like your happy smile; I like to know you're such a pal—it helps me all the while. When starting off the busy day, it means a lot to know you'll help me steer the proper course through calm or stormy blow. It really means so much to me to have a friend like you; a fellow without such must wonder how and what to do.

This world in which we have been placed is just a combination of things that can be valuable, or worse, conglomeration. It's up to every one to do the very best he can; to work things out into a really worth-while, pleasing plan. You help me build a structure of happiness and worth, and keep on adding to it while sojourning on earth.

You know, my friend, you're wonderful, and good, and wholesome, too, your charms are really numerous, you haven't just a few. You're a little bit of sunshine and a little bit of song, and a great great, big happy factor in cheering folks along. You say you can't believe it, but all the others know 'tis true; and it's all because you do the things just, well, the way you do.

So here's an early morning toast to one so dear to me; may this and each and every day bring all that's good to thee. May shadows never cross your path to cause a single sigh; may tears of sorrow never dim the brightness of your eye. May every thing concerning you just make a happy blend; so, once again, I greet you: Good morning, dear old friend!—Dallas News.
