McCULLOCH COUNTY SCHOOL JOURNAL.

The McCulloch County School Journal is the latest venture in the McCulloch county newspaper field. As its name implies, the paper is devoted to the interests of the McCulloch county schools. W. M. Deans, county superintendent, is the editor, and in the various teachers and schools over the county, he has some most able contributors—so much so that the initial issue is replete with interesting information and items of school news.

It is the intention to publish the journal once a month. The object will be to arouse interest in the schools among the patrons, and incidentally to let the pupils of one school see what the pupils in other schools are doing and accomplishing.

While it was the intention of the editor and his staff of contributors to issue only a four-page paper, so excellent a response was met with upon the part of both advertisers and contributors that the edition had to enlarge to six pages.

For timely school news, and for interesting information in regard to our public school systems, The Standard recommends a careful and thorough reading of the McCulloch County School Journal.

"Cotton seed bootleggers" are causing some concern in Texas agricultural circles. It is announced that the president of Texas A. and M. College will, in the near future appoint a "cotton seed board." This board will be charged with the duty of examining the products of cotton seed breeders, and a commission will certify and furnish tags to breeders of different varieties of good cotton. It is said that many unscrupulous persons have made it a practice to sell gin run cotton seed at exorbitant prices, claiming that it was some certain variety or other. Under the new law and plan it is hoped to check such and at the same time protect the breeder of meritorious cotton as well as the buying public.—Coleman Democrat-Voice.

A recent Marlin dispatch says: "A suit against Falls County has been instituted in District Court by the fifteen State and National Banks of Falls County, in which they allege that while property generally over the county is assessed at only 25 per cent of its value, the Commissioners' Court, sitting as a board of equalization, fixed the assessment of the banks at 60 per cent of their valuation." It was not so long ago that several Coleman county banks instituted a similar suit which resulted in the enjoining of the Tax Collector from collecting taxes on banks and bank stock at 60 per cent of its value while other property was taxed at 33 1/3 per cent of its value. A compromise was effected whereby the banks render at approximately 41 per cent of value.—Coleman Democrat-Voice.

WHY IS A CHURCH BELL?

Sometimes, when a man refuses to advertise, the explanation is his own personal vanity.

That sounds strange, because we often hear men accused of being self-advertisers because of their vanity.

Yet the fact remains: Vanity keeps many a man from advertising as much as his business requires.

He regards himself as so important that everybody must know about him. Therefore, surely, he figures he doesn't need to advertise.

The truth is that the biggest enterprise in the world could not survive a lack of the right kind of publicity.

Even the President of the United States, if his name were never mentioned in the papers, would soon become a nonentity.

Recently a very convincing argument was addressed to a man who had an exaggerated idea of the far-flung fame of his own business establishment.

The selling talk was brief. It was made by the elephant-banner man attached to a circus. It was the province of the elephant-banner man to induce a local merchant to pay a suitable sum of money for having a short, snappy advertisement painted on banners to be draped on the sides of one of the big elephants that marched in the parade.

He went to see the proprietor of the town's biggest dry goods store. This man was pleased over his own business success and was as sure of himself as the angel Gabriel.

"No," declared the merchant, "we don't need any elephant to tell the people where our store is. Every man, woman and child for miles around knows where Brown & Brown are located. It isn't necessary to advertise much any more."

"How long have you been in business," inquired the elephant-banner salesman.

"About eighteen years," was the proud reply.

"And how long has the Methodist church been here?"

"The Methodist church?" repeated the merchant, wondering what that had to do with it. "Why I guess there's always been a Methodist church in this town. Oh, that church up on the hill has been there ever since the town was laid out—sixty years, I reckon, anyhow."

"All right," went on the circus man, "and now let me ask you one more question:

"Isn't it a fact that the Methodist church after sixty years of successful operation here in town, still rings its bell regularly every Sunday morning?"—Rio Grande Farmer, Las Cruces, N. M.

Very Simple Mathematics

SUPPOSE you buy ice today and it lasts for three days, because the weather remains cool.

Is that small daily investment worth while—the protection of three days' food supply at a cost of only a few cents a day?

Again—suppose the weather turns warmer and you have little or no ice. You know what happens. You call the ice man. So does everybody else. Yes, that happens in the Fall—because weather varies more at this time of the year than most people remember. And while the ice man is getting to your home, that unprotected food is endangered.

Why risk valuable food for a so-called "saving" on ice? Take ice regularly this Fall and Winter—and you'll never go back to food gambling.

CAN TELL COMING WEATHER

Almost Universal Belief That Tabby Has Foreknowledge of Any Approaching Changes.

"Cats have the reputation," says Dunwoody, according to the Detroit News, "of being especially weather-wise, an old notion which has given rise to a most extensive folklore. It is almost universally believed that good weather may be expected when the cat washes herself, but bad when she licks her coat against the grain, or washes herself over the ears, or sits with her tail to the fire.

EXCELLENT MOTTO TO ADOPT

David Crockett's Advice "First Be Sure You're Right, Then Go Ahead," Always Good.

David Crockett was the author of the famous motto, "Be sure you are right, then go ahead." It is said to have first appeared in print in Crockett's "Autobiography," published in 1834—appearing on the title page in the following form, says the Detroit News:

"I leave this rule for others when I'm dead. Be always, sure you're right—then go ahead."

The statement has been made that "Crockett wrote this highly entertaining history of his own life . . . full of blunders in grammar and misspelled words," although it had been revised and corrected by his more scholarly friends, "but the Britannica speaks of it as 'a so-called autobiography,' which he very probably dictated or at least authorized published in 1834. A work purporting to be a continuation of this autobiography and entitled 'Colonel Crockett's Exploits and Adventures in Texas' is undoubtedly spurious."

John Bartlett, in his "Familiar Quotations," describes "Be sure you are right, then go ahead" as "the motto of David Crockett in the War of 1812."

When Mammoths Roamed the Land.

Mastodons and woolly mammoths were once as thick in New York as bison were on the western plains a century ago, according to Dr. Sherman C. Bishop, zoologist of the state museum. Although the mammoths were more closely related to the elephants, the only surviving members of the family, they were the first to become extinct and probably passed off the scene while the mastodons were still thriving. Skeletons of mastodons, more or less complete, and some of them suitable for museum mounting, have been found in about 100 localities in this state, the last one at Temple Hill, Orange county, in 1921. The first was found in Columbia county, not far from Albany, in 1705. These huge mammals are believed to have flourished about the end of the last glacial period, some 20,000 years ago. Their skeletons are found generally in the marsh lands of those early days.

Worse and Worse.

"How yo' feelin' now, Sam?" questioned his wife, entering the hospital ward nervously.

"Liza, Ise a sick man," moaned the patient. "De doctors says I's got berkolosis."

"Dat's all right, Sam; we'll take keer of yo' an' get rid of dat berkolosis."

The following day, however, when his wife returned Sam was more dejected than ever.

"Tain't no use, Liza; no use. I ain't never gwine git well. De doctors say dis heah mornin' I got two berkolosis."

Henry Hudson.

Charles Barnard, an authority on the subject, says that the time and place of the birth of Henry Hudson appear to be lost. "We only know," he says, "that he had earned, perhaps by the time he was forty, sufficient reputation as a bold and skillful navigator to be placed in command of the ship Half Moon of Amsterdam. Early in 1609 he made a contract with a party of Dutch merchants to act as captain of their private exploring expedition, and in the written agreement between them he was described as 'Henry Hudson, Englishman.'"

Her Occupation.

Hannah, the young colored cook in the Steadman household, had decided to make a change and try her luck in the capacity of catwren, feeling that she would find the work much easier. Shortly afterward she had occasion to return to the house, and as she was leaving her former mistress asked her where she was working now.

"Oh, I isn't workin' nowhere now, ma'am," quickly returned Hannah, coyly; "Ise copering for a congressman."

STUBBORN STREAK

By MYRA A. WINGATE

(© 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

SEATED on a ledge, overlooking valley, stream and distant mountain, Ed and Beth happily talked the afternoon away, until Sue and small Lyle, their hands full of wild flowers and bits of pink and purple quartz, came scrambling up the slope. Both hummed a strain of music, and broke off to say idly:

"Who was the owner of the fine voice at church this morning?"

"That was Archer Burleigh," returned Sue. "Archer was suspended at college two years ago, which forever condemns him in Edward's eye."

"I've nothing against Burleigh, except that I shouldn't like to have my sister choose him for a friend," said Ed. The jaw that Beth had admired for its firmness was stubbornly set.

"I have not. I told you that I had a fall on the street yesterday and he walked home with me. You did not let me explain," protested Sue.

"A girl should not put herself in a position demanding an explanation," persisted Ed doggedly.

"Piffle!" retorted Sue. "Come, Lyle, let's get the lunch baskets."

Beth regarded Ed with troubled eyes.

"Ed, was the college affair a bad one?" she asked.

"No. The climax of a series of pranks. But a girl should be guided," said Ed sententiously.

"I'm asking you to take my judgment. Accept her explanation, dear. You will see how much more smoothly things will go."

"I did accept her explanation; but I think a girl should not have to explain. Like the rest of the world, I judge by what I see."

"Then, like the rest of the world, you will often be wrong," she returned emphatically.

Back came Sue and Lyle with the lunch baskets and Beth could say no more.

Coming along the "horseback" above the river next day from inspecting the season's drive of logs, Ed, stepping out from the screen of bushes to begin the descent to the road below, confronted Beth and Archer Burleigh coming up. Beth had laughed out a little startled, halting note. Archer, partly supporting her up the path, glanced up and said embarrassedly:

"Why, hello, Ed!"

Ed, with a colorless face, lifted his hat and plunged past them, unheeding Archer's hail. The set of his jaw told Beth that the "Morgan stubborn streak" was in control, and she knew, as if the words had been passed between them, that she would henceforth wait in vain for the familiar ring at her doorbell.

The "Morgan stubborn streak" was well known in the village from the great-grandfather's time. Beth, a comparative newcomer, had heard of it. Ed's mother had been wont to say: "Poor boy, he can't help it. It's inherited."

If Beth suffered, none knew it—a little quieter as the summer months passed, a gray hair or two in the brown when the year was complete. Sue, mystified and sorrowful, saw the signs of bitter conflict in Ed's worn face. Yet the year had lengthened into two before the terror gripped him—the fear that he might never be able to yield.

Came a night when he admitted he had known that Beth, loyal and true to the very heart, had not purposely defied his wish. There was an explanation. Knowing this, he was still powerless. If only he could get to Beth and tell her he knew!

That night he reached the front door before he failed. Night by night he gained a few steps. Ridiculous! Possibly. A life-long habit of mind is not easily broken. Weeks had passed when Beth heard the doorbell ring the familiar peal.

Ed faced her, trembling and spent. "Beth," he said without preamble, "I always knew it was all right. You could not be wrong."

"Do you want me to explain, Ed?" she asked gravely.

"Not now, or ever. I always trusted you, but I had to beat the Morgan stubborn streak."

A moment's pause, while Beth faced that dread specter, and defied it.

"You poor boy," she said, and drew him in with a mothering gesture.

At the home gate Sue awaited him. There was a peace and a gentleness in his face that emboldened her to say:

"Archer is coming in to see you tomorrow, Ed."

"Archer has proved himself," returned Ed quietly. "He will not find me difficult."

Sue pressed closer to his shoulder.

"You never knew that Archer saved my life, Ed. At log-driving time I was trying to roll a log with my feet as the rivermen do. Of course I slipped in among the logs and he came just in time. I was too dripping wet to go through town, so he and the girls helped me up to that little camp on the bank, then he ran to get Beth to bring me some dry clothes. Beth stumbled in the steep path and twisted her ankle so that she could hardly get there and home again."

As simple as that! And suppose the explanation had come three hours earlier! For thinking of his own peril, there was scarcely place in his mind for Sue's, but his heart fervently echoed the girl's exclamation:

"Thank the Lord, everything is all right now."

We have it on the authority of no less than Tom Elliot himself that chickens which ventured out into the fields in the Camp San Saba neighborhood following the big rain last week, were mired down and had to be pulled out.

C. M. Liverman, who has been making his home in the Brady section the past several years, is this week moving to Paint Rock, where he will farm the coming year. C. M. says he regrets to leave Brady, and expects to make frequent visits back here.

Mrs. K. W. Huffman has received a letter from her sister, Mrs. H. C. Urban stating that the Urbans have moved from Thorndale to San Antonio, where Mr. Urban is doing government vocational work. It fell to his lot to have the thrilling experience of meeting up with a former "buddy" whom he had wrapped up in his overcoat on the battlefield of France and left for dead. At the time, Urban thought his comrade was all shot to pieces, but instead he had both legs and one arm broken, from which injuries he eventually recovered, and is now also in vocational training at San Antonio.

Married In San Antonio.

Miss Margaret White last Friday was in receipt of a wire from Dallas announcing the marriage of Miss Alma Browning to Mr. Edward Moser of San Antonio. The marriage took place in San Antonio, and at the time of sending the message the happy couple were honey-mooning in Dallas. Mrs. Moser is remembered as the charming and talented daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. C. L. Browning, who removed only a few weeks ago from Brady to San Antonio. She is a lovely and lovable young woman, and in winning her for his bride, Mr. Moser is to be warmly congratulated.

ROBS CALOMEL OF NAUSEA & DANGER

Medicinal Virtues Retained and Improved - Dangerous and Sickening Qualities Removed. Perfect tablet Called "Calotabs."

The late triumph of modern science is the "e-nauseated" Calomel tablet known as "Calotabs," the most generally useful of all medicines thus enters upon a wider field of popularity, purified and refined from those objectionable qualities which have heretofore limited its use.
In biliousness, constipation, headaches and indigestion, and in a great variety of liver, stomach and kidney troubles Calomel was the most successful remedy, but its use was often neglected on account of its sickening qualities. Now it is the easiest and most pleasant of medicines to take. One Calotab at bedtime with a swallow of water—that's all. No taste, no griping, no nausea, no sleep. A good night's sleep and the next morning you are feeling fine, with a clean liver, a purified system and a big appetite. Eat what you please. No danger.
Calotabs are sold only in original sealed packages, price thirty-five cents for the large, family package; ten cents for the small, trial size. Your druggist is authorized to refund the price as a guarantee that you will be thoroughly delighted with Calotabs.—(Adv.)

FARMS MAY HAVE PESTS TO CONTEND WITH NEXT SPRING

Says the Coleman Democrat-Voice:
One Coleman county farmer, engaged in resetting a fence line on his farm, finds numerous grasshopper eggs deposited in the soil along the old fence line, which indicates a local infestation of hoppers next spring, barring weather contingencies which may destroy them at hatching time.

Fall-Winter Clean-Up Urged.

R. R. Reppert, Entomologist of A. & M. College, in a recent college bulletin, makes the following observations as to probable insect infestation next spring:
"In general we believe Texas farmers have come to realize the effectiveness of the fall clean-up to control various cotton pests, including the boll weevil. Excessive rains have thus far prevented carrying into effect the measures recommended, however, both because picking has been delayed and because the soil has been too wet for stalk cutting or plowing in those communities where picking has been completed.
"These very conditions, however, are favoring heavy infestation next spring by breeding large numbers of insects this fall. While weevil infestation was low the past summer, due to the drought and hot weather, the moist conditions of the past few weeks have been favorable to the insects' multiplication. Wherever the writer has examined fields, practically all green squares were found to be harboring weevil larvae. This is going to insure large numbers of young and well-fed larvae, going into winter quarters if the cotton so continues to grow.
"The same conditions of moisture are inducing a heavy growth of weeds both in the field and along the fences. This growth is encouraging a multiplication of both web worm and cut worms. We have personally observed cut worms at work in the gardens and the web worm is also doing a great amount of damage. If conditions favorable to these two insects and next season's cotton fields are weedy and grassy during winter and up to near the time of planting, the damage that resulted last spring from the web worm and cut worm, especially the latter, in parts of the cotton belt, will appear insignificant as compared with what will occur next spring.
"Preventive measures are useful at this time, where such can be applied. As before mentioned, winter conditions may be such as to make our fears groundless. But don't count on them. Present conditions favor heavy insect infestation of cotton next year. Do what you can now to prevent damage next year. As soon as the weather is favorable, get the cotton picked, then—
"1. Kill the cotton plant at once.
"2. Prepare the soil this fall, preferably by plowing to a depth of six inches.
"3. Keep weed growth entirely eradicated during winter and spring by occasional harrowing.

"4. Burn trash along fences, ditches and other waste places in mid-winter."

Plans were discussed for the building and maintenance of a club house. The next meeting will be held Wednesday, November 21, at the home of Edythe Weldon Busnach.

SAN SABA MASONIC LODGE PURCHASES ELEGANT FURNITURE TO COST ABOUT $2,000

The local Masonic lodge has closed a contract for a complete set of lodge furniture. It is of quartered oak and leather upholstered. The furniture consists of station chairs, altar and settee for the room which will be used instead of chairs. The new furniture will cost about $2,000. In addition to the new furniture the lodge room will be overhauled thoroughly. This will give the local lodge one of the most completely furnished halls in the state.—San Saba Star.

DAVID BUTLER —In— "ACCORDING TO HOYLE" 5-REEL COMEDY DRAMA	CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG —In— "WOMAN OF BRONZE" 6-REEL DRAMA	ALICE CALHOUN —In— "THE MAN NEXT DOOR" 7-REEL DRAMA	ROY STEWART —In— "BURNING WORDS" 5-Reel Western Drama	DUNSTIN FARNUM —In— "THE MAN WHO WON" 6-Reel Western Drama	HOUSE PETERS —In— "LOST AND FOUND" 7-REEL DRAMA
David Butler's latest comedy drama, "According to Hoyle," which he anticipates will be one of the biggest successes he has shown this year. Everywhere critics have praised it as one of the choicest bits of humor yet shown on the screen. David Butler's genial personality is said to fit perfectly the role of the hobo who recommends life strictly according to rules which lead him into uproarously funny situations. If you like good comedy don't miss this one. Also	A photoplay that plays on all the strings of human emotion. The story is one which will command your utmost attention right up to the powerful climax. The supporting cast has been carefully selected and the scenes have a realistic atmosphere which compel interest. Really it is a photoplay you can't afford to miss. Also	The man next door is one of the most famous novels by America's most popular novelist, Emerson Hough. He is the man who brought with vivid reality the great open west and its growth and development before the eye of the American millions who live east of the Mississippi river, that great water artery that divides the continent. He is the author of "The Covered Wagon." This picture is a story of the romance of a girl reared as a tomboy on a great ranch in Wyoming. Don't miss it. Also	A red blooded romance of the rugged northwest; its royal mounted; its hardy sons; its fearless daughters. The pride of the North West Royal Mounted, accused of murder, yet she loved him; was he guilty? would she give him up. Oh the power of words. Words of guilt, shame, hate, rage, passion, revenge, love, flaming, searing, scorching, consuming a man's life, a woman's love. A crashing drama seething with fiery passion of vindictive red blooded men. Also	A production which recalls Custer's last stand, in Wild Bull's last defense. A smashing story of selfishness and sacrifice. The man who won, of valiant deed and soul stirring action said to rival in soul stirring power and concentrated intensity, Custer's renowned last stand, the climax of the "Man Who Won," Dustin Farnum's latest production. A production of considerable entertainment possibilities. Don't miss it. Also	A flaming love drama of the south seas. Here is a gripping love drama of the south sea islands throbbing with the romance and love of a wild free land, a narrative of reckless traders of the sea, fighting men and beautiful women. A story of action and thrills that will delight you. Don't miss this photoplay treat, the first great moving picture to be filmed in the south sea islands. Also
