School doors open next Tuesday

At the outset, I suspect like many, I looked at the problem from a "practical" standpoint — but here let's substitute dollar marks for the regular quotes surrounding $practical$. Because it's partly my tax money involved in this instance, and I don't like to see my tax money thrown around any more than anyone else... although I should be used to it by now. So... I viewed the whole situation $practically$!

Why should I, as a taxpaying Texan, be expected to provide an education for the children of illegal aliens? That's an absurd question! Let 'em go back to where they belong! That's the $practical$ answer!

Why not, indeed! Because, in the first place, they're human beings! They didn't ask to be set down in the middle of a so-called prosperous and educated (?) society. They're only victims of a desire on the part of their "illegal" parents to seek a better life for themselves and their children. And regardless of the shadowed status of their parents, they do deserve — they have a human right — to expect better than they've been getting or what they will end up with if some people have their way.

Why are their parents here in the first place? To gain a better existence for themselves, firstly. They're not victims of "oppression" as we've come to know that word, except the oppression of poverty and want. They've come across the border without permission, seeking that which the rest of us have always bragged about. With few exceptions, they've been willing to accept the risks involved, in most instances willing to do many of the things the rest of us — native-born or legally admitted — hesitate or refuse to do. They do this for the opportunity to grasp just an edge of the "good life," accepting the third or fourth class status to which we shunt them — only for the opportunity.

And what do we do? We eagerly adopt them — as long as they stay in their place, and as long as they continue to accept less for doing more than the natives will do. It's the $practical$ thing for us!

But what happens when these "illegal" aliens begin believing that what we preach is true? That this is a land of opportunity and that all are entitled to the chance to grasp the brass ring. We come unglued, frankly. Why should they expect us to educate their kids? Let 'em go back where they belong!

And then, with the attention of the rest of the world focused on us, we begin waving our Bibles in one hand and beckoning with the other, and take up the chant, "Give us your tired, your poor, your huddled masses...!" And thousands of Cubans — criminals, prostitutes, outcasts — and probably many trouble-making "plants" — among many good people, of course — are welcomed with open arms! We're ready to spend millions to help these poor, oppressed peoples! After all, we're that kind of a nation you know.

But you illegal aliens, you who have worked us out of many back-breaking jams so many times — take your kids back across the river... don't expect us to educate them!

On a $practical$ point of view, we should all review this whole situation. Mexico probably is the best true friend we have on this globe called Earth! What did He say about the children?

Paving project

Charles Grenwelge of the City Street Department operates a maintainer to prepare a street for new paving, during the current paving and seal coating program. Several streets in town are receiving new paving, along with curbs and gutters, and many blocks of paved streets are being seal coated.

City budget hearing Tuesday

Taxpayers of Winters will have an opportunity to examine the proposed budget for the operation of the City of Winters during the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, at a public budget hearing scheduled Tuesday, Sept. 2, at 5:30 p. m. at the City Hall. In the past, little public interest has been shown in these budget hearings, but city officials have again extended an invitation to the public to look over the figures for the several departments in the city operation, and to provide input or recommendations to the city's governing body.

For the most part, there is little difference in this new proposed budget for the next fiscal year, except that there has been an increase in anticipated revenues and expenditures in most areas, due primarily to inflationary hikes. Estimated revenue from ad valorem taxes is reasonably stable, provided no changes occur in the base tax rates, but an increase is expected in this area because of the added taxable sources, it was suggested. In the sales tax receipt area, the amount can only be guessed at, officials indicated, and actual receipts depend on the state of the economy over the next few months.

Receipts from Federal Revenue

Sharing sources can only be guessed at, officials state, as this has become a controversial area nationwide, and there could be a lesser amount received than anticipated, or even a greater amount, depending upon congressional action.

A substantial jump in one area of the Water Department expenditure column is laid to the high costs associated with engineering payments for the proposed dam and water reservoir. Engineering costs for the past fiscal year were budgeted at $30,000, but this climbs to $60,000 budgeted for the next fiscal year, as work increases.

Revenues and expenditures in the proposed budget to be reviewed next Tuesday, compared to the last fiscal year's budget, for the several departments, are:

Blizzards scrimmage Ozona Friday night

The 1980 Winters High School Blizzard football squad got a warm, fast workout Friday, as they went against Early footballers in a controlled scrimmage on Blizzard Field. The Blizzards made good yardage against Early, when they could hang onto the ball, but fumbles were costly.

However, according to head coach Les Fisher, that is the purpose of the pre-season controlled scrimmages — to find weaknesses and to develop teams into more coordinated groups before the counting season.

Scrimmage set Friday night

The Blizzards will go against Ozona in another controlled scrimmage session Friday night, with the JV starting at 6 followed by the varsity teams at 7.

Coach Fisher said boys have been moved around from last year's lineups, and there may be more moving this week and next, following the Ozona scrimmage.

and before the Ballinger opener here Sept. 5.

Fisher said this year's offense could be stronger than in the past three years. Tommy Davis and Bryan Davis will provide good size in the offensive line, and Andy Smith, who started at center as a sophomore, and is expected to do a good job this year, the coach said.

Joe Escolona started some last year in an offensive guard spot, and should be a big help this year, the Blizzard coach said. Ralph Austin, a junior, has been brought up from the JV to the RG spot, as Scott Hall has been shifted to tight end from the guard position. With Hall at TE, Fisher said, the blocking TE team should be stronger.

Ricky Torres played as a junior last year some, and will fill the pro-back slot.

Terry Chambliss, up from the JV, and a senior, will compete with Jeff Butts, also up from the JV, for the starting split end spot.

Homecoming at Drasco scheduled for Labor Day

The annual Drasco Homecoming will be held Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 1, at the Winters Community Center.

Former residents and friends have been invited to attend this event. A basket lunch will be served at noon.

Teachers in the Winters Public Schools started a week of in-service training last Friday, and will conclude this pre-school work Friday, Aug. 29. The first day of the 1980-81 school year for all students will be Tuesday, Sept. 2.

Buses will run on normal schedule on the morning of the first day of school, and the cafeteria will serve the noon meal.

For this first day of school, only, classes will be dismissed at 2:30 in the afternoon.

All students new to the Winters system, who have not registered during the specified registration period, should contact the respective school principal. Kindergarten and first grade students need birth certificates and immunization records, according to school administrators.

Schedules for classes in high school already have been prepared, and for the most part, students have been notified. In the primary and elementary school, room assignments will be posted on the first day of school.

Voters opt for manager

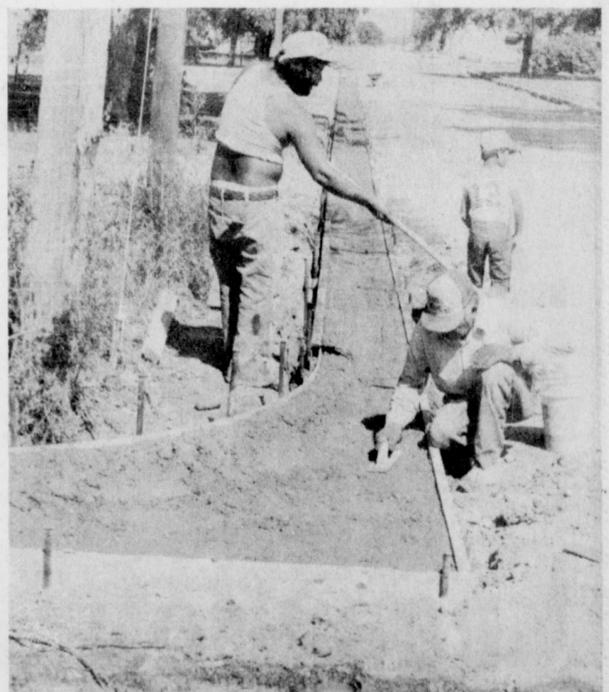

In a close 138-129 vote Saturday, Winters voters approved a proposition to organize a council-manager form of city government.

A total of 267 ballots were cast in the election, called in response to a petition presented recently by a group of citizens favoring the change.

According to officials, state law requires the city council to name a city manager within 60 days of the election. City councilmen already have been studying the situation, and it is understood they have several prospective candidates for city manager in mind.

PTO to hold Coffee for mothers

The Winters PTO will sponsor a Coffee, Sept. 2 from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. for all mothers of children enrolled in Kindergarten through third grade. The Coffee will be held at the City Park.

Curbing

Workmen put the finishing touches on curb and gutter before a street is paved, during the current paving program. The city council recently adopted a policy that requires curbing and gutters be installed, where they are not present, on any new street paving.

Poe's Corner
 BY CHARLIE POE

Catching Wild Animals and Reptiles
 Cecil Fox, former game warden and newcomer to Winters, demonstrated his favorite wild animal call when he spoke to members of the Triple L (Live Long and Like it) Club at the First Baptist Church recently.

Mr. Fox uses a hard rubber duck call with which he can imitate a dying rabbit...the favorite food of coyotes, bobcats and hawks. This call lures the prey close enough so that it can be killed.

"When we give this call I don't like to take more than one or two with me," said Mr. Fox. "But one day I had a man and his boy, another fellow and his friend with me."

"I told them to be quiet and not say a word when we stopped and got out to go call. Don't move your hands, don't even turn your head, just use your eyes to look this way and that. That coyote is going to catch every move you make and if you move that coyote is going to stop out yonder."

"So, I was lying down there. We all did. There was a bluff about eight feet high, then a wheat field out in front of us and a pasture. I put two on one side and two on the other and gave this call. Here came three coyotes in the wheat field. They ran under the fence and I mean they were coming. They stopped about half way and I gave another call (a little squeak like a dying rabbit) and they could hear it even though they were a good way out."

"They started out again in a dead run and the man from Chicago got up and yelled 'Here they come...here they are right yonder.'"

"Those coyotes took off in the opposite direction and I said, 'Let's go in.'"

"Oh, Mr. Fox, I won't do it anymore!"

"That's not the first time this had happened to me. I finally said, 'We'll go around and stay with it if you won't holler anymore.'"

"By Golly, we got over there and a coyote was lying out in front of us, about as far as from here to the street, just over the hill. I was over here on another slope and the coyote came and jumped right over this old boy, and I'll tell you he hollered again. He thought that coyote had him."

"I said, 'I thought you weren't going to yell anymore.' And he said, 'I couldn't keep from it.'"

"But we got the coyote anyway."

Mr. Fox had many examples of different kinds of eggs and snakes. The largest eggs were those of a bull snake. He kept a record and after mating it took the female 52 days to lay the eight eggs. They are soft shell and have a yellow and white in them like a hen egg, and are about the size and shape of a very large weiner. The prairie snake lays a much smaller egg. He also had specimens of turtle eggs, lizard and hornet frog eggs. They all lay from 20 to 40 eggs at a time.

"The reason I like to display these things is because they are never seen anywhere. The eggs are deposited in the ground somewhere. I lived at White River Lake a year after I retired and I noticed a lot of those big sliding turtles crawling around the lakes and up on the hills. They were all females and I discovered they were going to deposit their eggs where they could get moisture and sunshine, for that's what hatches them."

"When you water your garden this time of the year, you sometimes see a lot of little hornet frogs. The mother went there and deposited the eggs when the ground was wet and they hatched out, but you don't see the eggs. I've seen the little frogs around the garden with their tails or feet cut off; they've been hit with a lawn mower. I put this program on for a lot of boys and girls and I tell them not to kill the little creatures for they catch a lot of insects."

Included in the display was an albino rattlesnake, a king snake and the embryo of rattlesnakes at six weeks and just before birth.

"All poisonous snakes give birth to their young," said Mr. Fox. "There are four types in the United States of which the Coral is the most deadly but rarely seen except in the piny woods of east Texas. Others are the copperhead, water moccasin and rattlesnake. And they all have pupils like cat eyes, if you want to get close enough to look. All non poisonous snakes lay eggs and deposit them in the ground.

"I've corrected a lot of falsehoods about snakes as I traveled around the country giving programs," said Mr. Fox. "Some of them are: I got an old rattlesnake one time and it had a horn right between its eyes". Another had one with two horns. One man said, "I saw one bite a fellow with its tongue. And there are other myths."

"Some lawyers called me in on an unusual case at Del Rio when a rattlesnake bit a man on the leg while he was in a discount grocery store. The man sued the store for $50,000. The back door where they figured the snake got in was a steel door but right in the middle of it was a hump about 3/4 of an inch high."

"They had me in court but they wouldn't let me bring this rattlesnake in because there were five women on the jury. They were afraid it would get out and then it would tear up this whole court business, but we had a picture."

The picture proved that the snake could get his head through, and thence his whole body, for his head was larger than his body.

The man won the suit and the grocery store had to pay the $50,000.

Mr. Fox has many fascinating stories about nature and wild animals and he enjoys telling them.

Motorists warned to be extra careful over Labor Day weekend

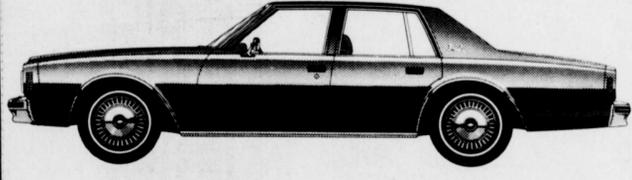

The Texas Department of Public Safety has urged motorists to be "exceptionally careful" during the long Labor Day weekend because of the increased volume of traffic which can be expected.

Colonel Jim Adams, director of the DPS, said "Labor Day, the last holiday of summer, becomes the last holiday-period-for far too many Texans and many more have their holiday ruined by a traffic accident."

"Our Statistical Services Division of the DPS has predicted that 45 persons may die during this 78-hour period. In order to provide maximum protection for the driving public we are placing additional Troopers on the highways. Most will be in well-marked, black and white units, although unmarked units will be utilized to detect those determined violators who make the highways unsafe for others," Col. Adams said. He also said they will be especially watchful for drunken drivers.

Col. Adams said we can easily overcome the predictions if motorists comply with the speed limits, use their seat belts, avoid driving while impaired by alcohol or drugs and watch out for the other driver.

Do you and your spouse have separate credit histories?

Of 45.5 million initial notices sent to married customers by seven large creditors advising them of their right to have separate credit histories, only 11 percent requested them, says Bonnie Pierrot, a family resource management specialist with the Texas A&M University System.

Make timely reports to SSI

Many people drawing supplemental security income are overpaid benefits. There are many reasons for overpayment to occur. One reason for this problem is people receiving supplemental security income checks fail to report timely any changes that need to be reported.

When a claimant files a supplemental security income claim, that person agrees to report any change in his income, resources, or living arrangements.

Equally important to what to report is when to report. Even if the report is made the same day as the change occurs, the overpayment may still occur. If the reporting is delayed, the amount of overpayment usually increases.

The time to report a change is the moment the individual discovers there is going to be a change. He will then know what effect that change will have on his check and/or what else he will need to do before the Social Security Administration can make the change on his record.

Rehabilitation means hope for heart attack victims

Since four times more people survive heart attacks than die from them, some doctors are working to improve the kind of life survivors have while other specialists are trying to improve the survival odds themselves, a Houston heart specialist said.

Heart attack disabilities cost more than $50 billion annually in the United States due to work days lost and treatment costs, but a few disabilities can be prevented if the patient has good rehabilitation. Stress, depression, nutrition, exercise and several other factors must be considered if the patient is to return to as normal a life as possible, said Lysle Peterson, M. D., in a speech prepared for a cardiac rehabilitation symposium at the Texas Medical Association's recent convention in Houston. Dr. Peterson is director of the Houston Cardiovascular Rehabilitation Center.

Sometimes heart attack damage itself is only one part of the problems a victim faces in returning to a normal life. A victim may feel that family relationships, job and even life itself are threatened after a heart attack. This unstable feeling may lead to depression, anxiety, loss of self-respect and other problems.

Excess weight and other physical conditions that reduce the body's efficient operation can keep a person from functioning normally any time but may be even more of a hindrance after a heart attack.

If these and other causes of disability are not evaluated, a vicious cycle may begin, Dr. Peterson said. This cycle can speed up because the symptoms of some psychological or physical problems mimic heart disease.

MRS. PHILLIP RAY COLBURN

Karen Mostad and Phillip Colburn were married Saturday

Karen Lynn Mostad, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clayton F. Mostad of Winters, and Mr. Phillip Ray Colburn were united in marriage in a double-ring ceremony in the First Baptist Church of Winters Saturday, August 23, at seven-thirty in the evening.

Mr. Bruce Black, minister of the Main Street Church of Christ, performed the ceremony.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Colburn of Winters.

For the wedding, the altar featured an archway decorated with greenery and white gladiolus, flanked on each side by fan-shaped candelabras. White potted mums accented each side of the altar. Large white satin bows marked the pews. The registry table was covered with white linen cloth and accented with a bud vase of multi-colored silk azaleas.

Mrs. Steve Polaski of Winters was pianist, accompanying Miss Teri Nethery of Albuquerque, N. M., and Mrs. Reggie Boles of College Station, who presented wedding songs.

Jennifer Boles and Mary Mostad, of Winters, nieces of the bride, were flower girls. Brandon Boles of Winters, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

Glen Colburn, brother of the bridegroom of Winters, was best man. Ushers were Mark Hegi of Petersburg, Mike Davis and Gary Schwartz, both of Winters, and Leroy Jones of Midland. Groomsman were Royce Lewis of Brady and Carey Jobe, Jeff Russell and John Hurt, all of Winters.

Miss Marianne Mostad, sister of the bride of Winters, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Randall Boles, sister of the bride, of Winters, Mrs. Monte Angel, sister of the bride of Lubbock, Mrs. Leroy Jones of Midland, and Mrs. Mark Hegi, sister of the bridegroom of Petersburg.

The bride's attendants wore floorlength gowns of peach-colored sheer cotton and polyester leno weave featuring wide ruffles at the necklines and hemlines, marked with peach satin ribbon at the gathered waistlines and ruffles. Each attendant carried long-stemmed carnations, baby's breath and long streamers. Flower girls wore complimented printed leno weave long gowns and wrist corsages of peach carnations and baby's breath. They carried white baskets of rose petals.

Given in marriage by her brother, George Mostad, the bride wore a gown of white organza featuring a high-rise neckline outlined in Chantilly Lace. Lace victorian sleeves were cuffed with a point. The fitted empire bodice was accented with seed pearls. Rows of tiered lace marked the hemline of the gown and chapel train. A lace bandeau held the tulle veil with matching lace marking the edge of the veil. Lace motifs sprinkled the fingertip veil. The bride carried a colonial bouquet of white and peach-colored silk roses, white silk gyp, baby's breath and lily of the valley flowers. Satin streamers with love knots fell from the bouquet which was fixed upon an heirloom Bible belonging to Mrs. Lee Harrison.

A reception immediately following the ceremony was held the Fellowship Hall of the church. Members of the house party were Mrs. George Mostad, Mrs. Boyd Bedford, Mrs. Tommy Antille, Mrs. Royce Lewis, Mrs. Leon Hilliard, Mrs. Jack Aduddell and Miss Carla Dean. The bride's table was covered with an antique white linen tablecloth and decorated with the three-tiered wedding cake, white candelabra with peach votive candles and ribbons, and crystal punch bowl and accessories. The groom's table featured a beige tablecloth topped by a chocolate cake depicting a farmland scene. Coffee was served from a silver service.

The bride is a 1978 graduate of Winters High School and presently is a junior elementary education major at Texas Tech University.
