Black Fly Stings the Fat Green Bug.

Washington—The joyful tidings have been waited from the department of agriculture that the black fly has eaten the green bug.

The green bug grew fat, however, on the wheat crops of Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas before the black fly made a banquet of the pest.

The black fly appears to have been prompted by revenge as well as by appetite in the merciless slaughter which is now in progress on the plains of the great southwest, for Acting Entomologist Mariatt advises Secretary Wilson as follows:

"The adults are beginning to emerge freely and are actively at work stinging the green bugs in the field. Millions are coming out in wheat fields and the green bug has been overtaken by its enemy."

The pell mell flight of Kuroshiki was before Mukden was as an orderly inauguration day parade as in comparison with the mad stampede of the green bug before the black fly.

There is some of the wheat crop still left, says the department, but when the Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas farmers offer up thanks for what is left they do not want to overlook one James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, who directed the slaughter with the precision and skill of a general in the field. The bureau of entomology sent several hundred thousands of the parasites into the land of the winter wheat and green bugs, there to get busy by the rule of geometrical progression and save at least a fragment of the crop that is now bringing over a dollar a bushel.

How well the parasites obeyed orders may be judged by the fact that 50 per cent of the green bugs have been stung and the other 50 per cent get out of the way fast enough to escape the grim reaper in the guise of the black fly.

Already some anxious inquirer has asked what damage is to be expected of the prolific and thin black fly?

To this Acting Entomologist Mariatt makes no reply, but looks mysteriously wise into his cuff as if to say that this game of bug eat bug can be played with infinite variations, some of which still lie un-sprung up his sleeve.

Colorado Chautauqua Ten Years Old.

The assembly which opens July 4, 1907, at Boulder, Colorado, will be the tenth one held on the grounds of this association. From an uncertain experiment at the beginning it has grown to be one of the few really great assemblies of the country and the greatest in the West. This has come about from a settled policy of giving to its patrons the very best obtainable talent regardless of expense and at all times minimizing the expense of attendance. This assembly is closely patterned after the parent Chautauqua of New York. Its session is long enough to admit of a strong educational feature, and the Summer School has become one of its popular departments. In it thirteen regular organized schools are maintained under the direction of specialists. Besides the class room works a more popular form of education in the gymnasium, where the most noted educators deliver courses of lectures. The evenings are given up to social functions and auditorium entertainments.

Three kinds of excursions are described: Railway excursions, carriage drives and mountain climbs. Some very attractive trips are offered under each head; among them being the famous Georgetown Loop, the Wild Flower excursion, through Platte canon, Snowball excursion, up Boulder canon to the falls, to Arapahoe glacier and Silver lake, up the new Flagstaff road, and many others.

At this Assembly the choice is offered between tent and cottage life. All about the grounds comfortable little cottages have been erected and many of them are for rent to visitors. Among these cottages many tents are pitched and furnished during the session thus making ideal camp conditions. The grounds are most beautifully laid out and parked, and taken all in all there is no site in America more beautiful or better adapted for building up an assembly of international importance.

Every man (but an editor) carries the picture of some beautiful woman in his pocket and his wife or sweetheart is never jealous of her but wants to spend her.

The headlines of many papers now tell us that wheat has soared above the $ mark, thus lifting the mortgage from many a farmer's home. But nay, not so, Reuben, advanced prices are never reached until the products are out of the producer's hands and get into the speculator's and grafter's clutches, and are afterwards dished out to the producer in the form of food and clothing at cut-throat prices.

The Language and the Boy.

A child, with its meager store of language, is somewhat in the position of the fabled woodchuck, which was simply obliged to climb a tree whether it could do so in harmony with the facts of natural history or not. He must express himself with what language is immediately at his command, or fall in more or less serious degree to express himself at all; and so his little store must be treated as thoroughly plastic, just as the language of his race, in its earlier stages, was plastic, says Atlantic. The existence of "whiten," "to make white," is all the justification he needs for smaller, "to make small," or lower, "to make low." "Jimmie Jones hasn't grown much since he was here before," says some one. "Why, I believe he's ungrounded some," answers my younger, expressing his thought clearly and fully, and delightfully unconscious of the fact that linguistic authorities do not recognize the right of this handy prefix to attach itself to this particular verb. Ought I to have stopped him right there and loaded his undeveloped memory with parallel columns of words which do and do not admit the prefix un-? If I had done so his brother would probably not have ventured to ask, a little later, how people make un-hand-painted china, and his knowledge would have been less today by the small amount of information which I was able to give him on that subject.

Even the wolves are enjoying the present era of prosperity. The government has issued a bulletin in which is shown the flourishing condition of the coyotes on the western cattle ranges and of the larger wolves known as "loafers," or "lobos." The natural food of these beasts of prey was the buffalo, but they find cattle and horses a satisfactory substitute. Cattle are preferred; not that the wolves have any prejudice against eating horse-flesh, but because the old method of attack from the rear, which they practised on the buffalo, is equally successful with range steers. When they try it on horses, however, they meet with a painful surprise. How serious is the pest of wolves, remarks Youth's Companion, may be gathered from the fact that Wyoming alone has paid out $65,000 in bounties in the last ten years, and this makes no account of the sums paid by counties and stockmen's associations. The cattlemen reckon their losses to be about ten per cent. of the herds. Great organized neighborhood wolf-hunts on the western ranges have been advertised all over the east during the past winter.

Sleep and Old Age.

There is no question that the quantity of sleep required steadily diminishes from infancy to old age. This is a rather interesting exception to the general rule that, as in so many matters, old age returns to the needs of infancy. As regards sleep, says London Pall Mall Gazette, old age is more remote in its needs from infancy than is any other period of life. If elderly people obtain good sleep during the first few hours, and if they have not lost that delight in reading which we all had in youth, but which so many of us curiously lose, their case is not to be grieved over. The special value of the earliest hours of sleep, by the way, has been proved by psychological experiment. The popular phrase "beauty sleep" is well warranted. It is the early (the deepest) hours of sleep that make for health and beauty.

Camels, the old ships of the desert, will soon give way to the new ships of the desert, automobiles. The succession, like that of steam greyhounds to clipper-ships at sea, has to meet prejudice and conservative habit, but the conquest by the automobile of the sand wastes of Nevada is an accomplished fact. Here, to be sure, it was not the camel, but the burro and the stage coach that had to yield. Under the heavy cars the sand hardens into smooth tracks, and with a little work good motor car roads can be made. Several toll roads have been built and more are promised. Rich miners and others who use motor cars for business and pleasure are behind the movement to construct roads to connect all important points; and the commercial development of southern Nevada is assured.

IN WESTERN CANADA.

Delicate in the Old Home; Better Health in the New.

Churchbridge, Sask.,
December 1st, 1906.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,

I came to this country from the State of Wisconsin three years ago, and must say that I am greatly pleased with the outlook in this western country. For my own part I am entirely satisfied with the progress I have made since coming here. I have raised excellent crops of grain of all varieties. Last season my wheat averaged 23 bushels of wheat to the acre, oats 60 and barley 40.

We had a splendid garden this year, ripening successfully tomatoes, melons, water melons, sweet corn and kindred sorts.

The country is well adapted to wheat growing and mixed farming, and to my mind it is the best country under the sun for a man with a family and small means, as it is possible for a man to commence farming operations with much less capital than is required in the older settled countries.

The climate is all that could be desired, being very healthy and invigorating. My wife came out about six months ago, and although inclined to be delicate in the old home, she has enjoyed the best of health since coming here.

In short, I am more than satisfied with the land of my adoption, and I am also satisfied with the laws of the country.

Yours very truly,

Would Grow Tobacco in Ireland.

An effort is being made under direction of William Redmond to repeal the law which prohibits the growing of tobacco in Ireland. It is held that soil and climatic conditions in Ireland are favorable to the production of a good quality of tobacco, and that its cultivation can be made profitable.

EVEN IF DISCOURAGED

TRY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR YOUR RHEUMATISM.

The Pills Have Cured the Disease in Almost Every Form and Even in Advanced Stages.

Rheumatism is a painful inflammation of the muscles or of the coverings of the joints and is sometimes accompanied by swelling. The pain is sharp and shooting and does not confine itself to any one part of the body, but after settling in one joint or muscle for a time, leaves it and passes on to another. The most dangerous tendency of the disease is to attack the heart. External applications may give relief from pain for a time but the disease cannot be cured until the blood is purified. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best medicine for this purpose as their action is directly on the blood, making it rich, red and healthy. When the blood is pure there can be no rheumatism.

Mrs. Ellen A. Russell, of South Goff St., Auburn, Me., says: "I had been sick for fifteen years from impure blood, brought on by overwork. My heart was weak and my hands colorless. I was troubled with indigestion and vomiting spells, which came on every few months. I had no appetite and used to have awful fainting spells, falling down when at my work. I frequently felt numb all over. My head ached continuously for five years.

"About two years ago I began to feel rheumatism in my joints, which became so lame I could hardly walk. My joints were swollen and pained me terribly.

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended to me by a friend, after I had failed to get well from the doctor's treatment. When I began taking the pills, the rheumatism was at its worst. I had taken only a few boxes, when the headaches stopped and not long afterward I felt the pain in my joints becoming less and less, until there was none at all. The stiffness was gone and I have never had any return of the rheumatism."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured such diseases as nervous and general debility, indigestion, nervous headache, neuralgia and even partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia. As a tonic for the blood and nerves they are unequalled.

A pamphlet on "Diseases of the Blood" and a copy of our diet book will be sent free on request to anyone interested.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists; or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

W. Burke Cockran at a St. Patrick's day dinner told a story of an Irishman who was talking about the case of Baring Gould, whose obituary was recently printed by mistake. Mr. Gould still being happily in circulation: "So," said the Irishman, "they've printed the funeral notice on a man that ain't dead yet, how they? Faith, an' it's a nice fix he'd be in now if he was wan o' thim people that believes everything they see in the papers."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly falling to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. It is doubtful whether Oklahoma will get statehood. Her people will not ratify the "one man" constitution. A controversy is under way to determine who is the world's greatest man. It would be a joke on the men if it were to be discovered that the honor belongs to a woman after all.—Ft. Worth Record. It would also be a joke on the query. If it were decided in favor of a woman it would not be a man and the question would still be unsolved.

Ambassador Wright at Tokio, Japan, has appealed to Secretary Root for protection to the Japanese at San Francisco. Two Japanese restaurants and a bath house there had been destroyed by mobs. After the earthquake at San Francisco had demolished Chinatown it was determined that that "hell hole" should never be maintained again, and those people should be encouraged in their efforts to suppress that polluted class and iradicate them forever.

A Hiatha clergyman preached a rather exhaustive sermon from the text, "Thou art weighed in the balance and found wanting." After the congregation had listened about an hour some began to get weary and passed out; others followed, greatly to the annoyance of the minister. Soon another person started, whereupon the preacher stopped his sermon and said: "That's right, gentlemen, as fast you are weighed pass out."

Without doubt, the pedigree and diary of President Roosevelt would make a most interesting and more thrilling book than any of the Diamond Dick series, but yet the world will never know all of him until he has passed into oblivion politically. Owing to his popularity a greater amount has been withheld from the public, but some little has come to light. For instance, it is said that while in command of the rough riders that he "was one of the boys" and once won the affections of a lady who died last winter and willed to him many of her personal effects and went to her last resting place with an unrelieved secret concerning their relations and at various times has waded the fair sex whom, on account of his high position were termed crooks and imposters, and now comes Fries who is incarcerated in a sanatorium on a charge of being crazy and says he is the rightful husband of Mrs. Alice Roosevelt-Longworth.

Primer Lesson No. 1.

See the flowers!
Are the flowers wild flowers?
Yes, the flowers are wild flowers, dear.
Can you tame them, ma?
Yes, you can tame the wild flowers until they are quite tame.
Oh, see the dog! Is it a wild dog?
Yes, it is a wild dog.
What makes the dog wild?
A tin can with an arsenic bottle in it makes the dog wild.
Can you tame the wild dog?
Yes, but you must catch him first.
How can you catch the wild dog?
The two cans filled with arsenic bottles to yourself and run twice as fast.

Who tied the can to the dog's tail, ma?
Th' people, child.
Why?
Because they have been sucking other people's eggs.
Oh, see the fat men running! What makes them so wild, mother?
The people are getting ready to tie the cans to them, dear.
Who are the wild, fat men, ma?
They are the trust magnates, dearie!
And who are those other fussy folks loping around the circle?
Those, honey, are the people who have been buying their groceries of the mail order houses.
They are wild, too, aren't they, ma?
Very, my child. The people are going to tie the cans to them, and send them after the trust magnates.
How many cans to each, mother?
One, my child.
Why?
Because with two cans they never can catch them and both will run themselves to death!
The lesson will now close with a chorus, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."—Ex.

Anna Laurie Sang Over Warrior's Grave.

Santa Rosa, Cal., May 25—"Annie Laurie" was rendered between the chants and hymns of the Episcopal service at the funeral of Col. Horace W. Byington. In announcing that the old song would be sung, Rev. Allen L. Burleson said the last request of the old warrior had been: "Sing 'Annie Laurie' over my casket when I am dead and gone." Later he told the wondering mourners of a romance of 50 years ago in the life of the late colonel.

"Half a century ago," he said, "while riding horse back in the sand hills of San Francisco, Colonel Byington was attracted by a girl's voice singing 'Annie Laurie.' He paid more attention just then to the singing and the song than to his horse, with the result that he was thrown from his mount. The girl came to his assistance. He thanked her and rode on.
"Next day he made up his mind to return and be more frequent in his thanks. The acquaintance ripened into love and the pretty black-eyed singer became his wife. Fifteen years ago she died and ever since then the singing of that song has brought tears to the eyes of the old pioneer. His last request was that it be rendered over his bier. That is why the song was sung by Miss Hatley of St. Helena."

An Admission From The Enemy

The Santa Fe Eagle.
It is an undisputed fact that the most unmitigated liars sometimes tell the truth. Surprising as it may seem, the first issue of the New Mexican this week heralded to its readers a great truth. In the course of an editorial concerning the proposed formation of good government leagues in New Mexico that paper said: "Every citizen who is at all acquainted with the politics and especially New Mexico politics knows that this scheme, if carried into effect, can only rebound to the benefit of the opposers and the Democratic party and to the injury of the regular Republican party, its organization and its principles." We are delighted to give publicity to the admission of the New Mexican that the formation of good government leagues would rebound to "the injury of the regular republican party, its organization and its principles." The principles of the Republican party in New Mexico, as at present constituted, are not in line with good government. Just now the plunderbund is in control of the Republican party of New Mexico, and if there is anything on earth that the Plunderbund does not desire it is good government. The masses of the people of New Mexico are not supporting the Plunderbund this year and the managers of that organization will have to get a hump on themselves to save the Republican ship from political shipwreck next year.

Remarkable freight is going into Santa Fe just now. Carloads of coffins, containing the remains of dead soldiers, have gone into the ancient city the past two weeks, the remains being interred in the National cemetery there. These bodies are from the burying grounds of the many abandoned military posts in New Mexico and Arizona. Bodies there of men who died in the Indian wars at the hands of Geronimo and his bloody Apaches.

The task of finding the remains, identifying them and transferring them to the National cemetery is enormous. It was undertaken several weeks ago at the order of the war department. When placed in the National cemetery each grave is marked with a small head stone. The bodies are being disinterred from the old burying grounds at Ft. Stanton, Ft. Union, Ft. Sumner, Ft. Wingate and from the several abandoned posts in Arizona. It will require several weeks to complete the transfer of the bodies.

Brief Bits of News From Abroad.

Panama is on the verge of a race war between the Negroes and the Whites. A little clash at any time may cause the outbreak.

Mrs. McKinley, widow of the late martyred president, succumbs to apoplexy at 1:05 p. m. Sunday and was buried Wednesday after an impressive sermon.

Cattlemen who have been shipping their cattle to western Kansas for pasture are complaining that the pastures there are short and on account of draught, a shortage of grass.

Last week a charter for $50,000,000 was granted at Guthrie, Oklahoma, for the construction of a railroad through Indian Territory, Oklahoma and New Mexico, with feeders in each territory.

It will take at least another week to empanel a jury in the Moyer-Haywood case. This long delay and expense is due to the many biased newspaper articles and that letter of President Roosevelt's.

Last Saturday about 2:30 p. m. a disastrous cyclone struck Mills Point Texas, killed three outright and seriously wounded several and the loss of property is approximated at about $50,000. An hour later the cyclone struck Emory, Texas, killing two and injuring fifty persons. Storm caves in both towns saved many lives and injuries. The towns of Waxahachie, Navarro, Como, Temple, Cleburne, Guinville, and Aunis were visited by the storm but with no fatalities and little damage to property.

Now that the Missouri—one of the greatest rivers in the world—has been practically abandoned, engineers are considering the question of utilizing its magnificent water power for the generation of electricity. With the Missouri harnessed and supplying light, heat and power to St. Louis, it is claimed that this city would have an advantage over all other cities in the United States that would put it past the 3,000,000 population mark. Engineers agree that the building of a dam that would accomplish these objects is entirely feasible, that the execution of this gigantic scheme is merely one of finance and statesmanship.

That Mexico has allowed the present condition of affairs with respect to Gautamala to continue as long as she can well afford to is the opinion expressed at the Mexican embassy in Washington. It was stated at the embassy here today that the continuation of President Cabrera's policies, an example of which was the sentencing of nineteen men to death without trial, for an alleged complicity in an attempt to assassinate him, means that Mexico in the interest of civilization, must intervene. In spite of all that Mexico has done to preserve peace, in the opinion of Mexican diplomats here, the time is near at hand when some drastic steps must be taken. It is pointed out that Mexico can no longer tolerate the attitude and action of President Cabrera. It is felt that his latest action, when verified, will bring matters to a climax. Mexicans here say that Mexico can stand by and look on no longer. The Mexican embassy is keeping in close touch with the situation, and a formal declaration of war would cause no surprise here.

At a regular meeting of Camp Bedford Forrest No. 1,606 on Saturday, May 25, it was resolved that all members of the camp should attend our next meeting at the court house in Portales at 2 o'clock p. m. sharp, as business of importance for disposal will come up before the camp as to the time and place for our annual reunion. Comrades, be governed accordingly.

NEW MEXICO NEWS SUMMARY

Double Killing at Alameda.

Roswell, N. M.—This city was shocked by the announcement that S. B. Owens, one of the wealthiest and most prominent citizens of Roswell, was murdered on April 26th, near his old home at Alameda, Texas, by B. S. Turbyfill of Vernal, Utah, a real estate dealer, who formerly lived in Roswell. Turbyfill was immediately shot by Solon Owens, the young son of the murdered man, and died two hours later.

Owens and his son left here Monday. They met Turbyfill and Tom Plemons at Rockledge switch, six miles west of Alameda. As they met, Turbyfill and Owens exchanged some words, and immediately began firing as they left their buggies.

Owens was instantly killed, being shot through the right arm and in the abdomen. Turbyfill then shot twice at the Owens boy, and turned and ran. The boy, seeing that his father was killed, got his father's rifle and shot twice at Turbyfill, who was over fifty yards away. One ball passed through Turbyfill's body and the other through the right thigh.

Owens over one year ago bought the magnificent George W. Medley ranch and residence near Roswell, and paid for same $105,000, and has since made his home here with his family.

The bad blood between Owens and Turbyfill was caused by a controversy over a $2,000 commission claimed by Turbyfill and also by W. W. Anderson. Judgment was awarded in favor of Anderson. Turbyfill then sued Owens for $20,000 damages, and the case was set for trial at the term of court that is in session here now. When Owens left here Monday for Alameda, Texas, he told several of his friends that he expected to have trouble, but no one supposed that he was referring in any way to Turbyfill.

Big Crop of Criminals.

Santa Fe—Another batch of prisoners was received at the Territorial penitentiary, all of them being from Colfax county.

Among the new convicts is Cabe Adams, who was convicted of second degree murder and sentenced to a term of ten years' imprisonment. There were two women, one being colored.

Appended is a complete list of the names of the prisoners, their ages, term of sentence, and offenses committed.

Cabe Adams, aged forty-four, sentenced to ten years, murder in the second degree.

Frank O'Neal, aged twenty-three, sentenced to two years, larceny of a watch.

Raymond Johnson, aged nineteen, sentenced to two years, horse stealing.

James Gliven, aged twenty-two, sentenced to one year, grand larceny.

James Hall, aged twenty, sentenced to one year, grand larceny.

James Garner, aged twenty-nine, sentenced to one year, grand larceny.

Julian Torrest, aged twenty-one, sentenced to one year, larceny of a watch.

James Wilson, aged fifty-seven, sentenced to one year, larceny of a watch.

Effe May Wallis, aged twenty-two, sentenced to one year, writing threatening letter to extort money.

Anna Jones, colored, aged twenty-six, sentenced to one year, grand larceny.

Father Jouvenceau Dangerously Ill.

With his entire right side paralyzed and unable to speak coherently, Rev. Anthony Jouvenceau of Bernalillo, a well known and popular Catholic priest who has charge of the parish there, is in a critical condition at St. Vincent's Sanitarium in Santa Fe. He was taken there three weeks ago and while there has been little perceptible change in his condition. It is doubtful if he can recover.

Father Jouvenceau is about sixty years of age and has enjoyed good health until recently. He was stricken with paralysis on the evening of Good Friday. Father Jouvenceau is a native of France, but has been following ministerial duties in New Mexico for a good many years, and was the founder of St. Katherine's Indian school in this city.

To Force Incorporation.

A damage suit has been filed in Union county by Newton E. Charlton in his own behalf and in behalf of the other 128 petitioners for the incorporation of the town of Clayton, against E. F. Gallegos, Augustin Vigil and Christian Otto, composing the Board of County Commissioners of Union county. Suit is brought to compel the board of commissioners to incorporate the town of Clayton, in which on the 10th day of April the court granted an alternative writ, commanding the said board to convene and declare the said town incorporated, and provide for an election to complete said incorporation or to elect such officers as are necessary, or that they show cause on the 10th day of May why they have not done so.

New Appointments.

Following appointments were made by Gov. Hagerman in New Mexico:

Robert P. Ervlen was re-appointed as commissioner of public lands under the law enacted by the Thirty-seventh Legislative Assembly. Mr. Ervlen has been nominated by the governor and confirmed by the council under the old law which was repealed.

R. S. Vance of Dawson was appointed as a private in the company of New Mexico mounted police upon the recommendation of Capt. Fred Fornoff. This brings the territorial ranger force up to its full quota.

Boy Murderer Released.

Isaac D. Cobbling has been released from the Territorial Penitentiary and sent to his home at Cloudercroft by the Society of the Friendless. He had been convicted of the murder of his father when between twelve and thirteen years old and sentenced to a term of three years' imprisonment in expiration of his crime.

Mercy was tempered with justice in the conviction and sentence of the boy who had slain his own father, owing to the extreme youth of the slayer and the pathetic circumstances. The little fellow, in spite of his tender age, was compelled to herd sheep for his father who lived on a ranch in Dona Ana county and one day several of the sheep strayed away and could not be found. The youthful sheep herder feared to report the loss to his father, who had been in the habit, it is said, of mistreating him. He realized that his father would whip him if he told of his misfortune and with a dread of further parental chastisement he secured a gun and shot his father. The wound proved fatal.

The Society of the Friendless became interested in the lad and upon his liberation secured him transportation to his home at Cloudercroft.

A Race With Death.

Albuquerque, N. M.—In order to reach the bedside of his dying wife before the end comes, Judge Axel Chytraus of the Illinois Circuit Court, whose home is in Chicago, left the limited boarded, boarded a special at Gallup, which was arranged for in this city, and started on a mad race ahead of the flyer for Los Angeles. He arrived in that city seven hours ahead of the regular schedule of the limited. For the distance run the special beat "Scooting Scotty's" record.

The car in which Judge Chytraus made the flying trip was the La Rosa, Pullman, which was taken from the flyer, the occupants being transferred to another car.

The judge was accompanied by a sister-in-law. The special, after leaving Gallup, attained a speed of sixty miles an hour over much of the road. At Barstow the special was held up by a derailment of another train and was sent via the Southern Pacific to Mojave.

Judge Chytraus saw his wife alive.

Articles of Incorporation.

The following articles of incorporations have been filed in the office of Territorial Secretary J. W. Reynolds:

Folsom Lumber Company; principal place of business in Folsom county; territorial agent, Francis C. White, at Folsom; capital stock, $10,000, divided into 100 shares of the par value of $100 each; object, lumber business; duration, fifty years; incorporators, Benjamin W. Fulghum and Edgar W. Fulghum, both of Raton, and Frances C. White of Folsom.

The Superior Refining Company; principal place of business in New Mexico at Roswell, Chaves county; territorial agent, M. Well at Roswell; capital stock, $30,000, divided into six hundred shares of the par value of $50 each; object, dealing in oil and petroleum; duration, fifty years. The company was organized in Kansas and filed amended articles of incorporation to comply with the laws of New Mexico.

Pensions Granted.

The following pensions have been granted New Mexico veterans:

Leu Sebario, Chaperito, $12 per month from October 30th, 1906.

Mrs. Agnes D. Campbell, of Las Vegas, New Mexico, pension of $8 per month and $2 additional per month for her minor child from February 12, 1891. This will bring her in nearly $2,000 in round numbers.

Through the work of Delegate W. H. Andrews, Leverett Clark, an old soldier of Albuquerque, has been granted a pension of $6 per month from October 29, 1901, and from October 17, 1906, $10 per month. Thus it will be seen that Mr. Clark will receive $420 back pension which will no doubt come in handy to the old veteran, who is now in California.

Rich Copper Strikes.

Deming, N. M.—What is believed to be one of the richest copper strikes in the history of the territory has been made at Tres Hermosa. Albert Schultz, after sinking an eighty-foot shaft, struck seventy feet in big pay ore and there is apparently no limit to the ore bodies. Hundreds of people are locating claims and Deming people have located properties adjoining the strike. Considerable excitement prevails here and all who have seen the mine assert that it will be a big thing. The name of the camp is Copper City and all the old prospectors in this vicinity are loading up their burros and trekking to the scene of the strike.

Payin' Off New Mexico Debt.

Santa Fe, N. M.—Territorial Treasurer Levi A. Hughes today forwarded to New York City a draft for the sum of $48,475. Forty thousand dollars of this will be applied in taking up that amount of current expense bonds falling due May 2d, and the remainder for the payment of interest on the entire bonded indebtedness due May 1st.

The time and option of these current expense bonds were twenty years. They were issued May 2, 1887, under the administration of Governor Prince and the original issue was for $150,000. Fifty thousand dollars more will be due and payable on November 1, 1907.

Big Grist of Cases Disposed Of.

A large batch of cases were disposed of at the recent term of the District Court for Roosevelt county held at Portales and presided over by Judge William H. Pope. The cases in which sentence was pronounced are as follows:

Territory versus D. D. Cross, charged with handling a rifle in a threatening manner, sentence was suspended on account of condition and promises made by defendant, he being seventy-five years old.

Territory versus W. A. Kennon, charged with violating the gambling law on three counts, plead guilty on one count and was fined $200 and costs. Other two counts were dismissed.

Territory versus John McGraw, charged with violating the gambling law and allowing minors to loiter at his place, jury trial; found guilty and sentenced to thirty days in jail and pay a fine of $50 and costs. Jail sentence was suspended pending good behavior of defendant.

Cases against George Gordon and George Slaten, charged with violating the gambling law in both cases and both were fined $100 and costs.

Territory versus John Stockton, charged with unlawful killing of a cow; sentenced to three months in the county jail and pay a fine of $50 and costs.

Territory versus Frank Warnica, charged with burglary and larceny; sentenced to three months in county jail. The case against him was for breaking into Faggard's store.

Territory versus Enoch Sanford, charged with larceny; sentenced to six months in jail and pay a fine of $100 and costs. Provision was made that if he pay the fine and costs jail sentence would be suspended providing he leave the territory inside of twelve hours and stay out.

Territory versus J. P. Mullanax, charged with larceny; sentenced to thirty days in the county jail and pay a fine of $50 and costs. He has a claim in this county and the case against him was for taking a pair of horse collars.

Territory versus Gerlie Kennon, charged with allowing minors to loiter at her place; sentenced to serve thirty days in jail and pay a fine of $50 and costs. Jail sentence was suspended pending no further complaint against defendant for same cause.

Territory versus Fred Ritter, charged with forgery; sentenced to serve three years in the penitentiary. He had passed some forged checks at Texico.

Territory versus Charles Wolf, charged with flourishing a deadly weapon; sentenced to serve two years in the penitentiary. This is a case which originated at Mesquite.

Territory versus M. M. Scott, charged with flourishing a deadly weapon; sentenced to serve one year in the penitentiary. Mr. Scott is one of the proprietors of the Annex Bar at Portales. His sentence was first made eighteen months and, upon presenting a petition and pleading in his behalf, it was cut to one year.

Territory versus Hill A. Jenkins, charged with violating the gambling law; fined $100 and costs.

Territory versus Joe Vernon and T. D. Doss, charged with allowing minors to loiter in their saloon; fined $50 and costs.

Cases against Charles Clement and G. H. Watson, charged with larceny; continued. The case against these two young men is the charge for holding up an employe of the depot at Texico.

New Settlers in Estancia Valley.

A party of about thirty homeseekers en route to the Estancia Valley reached Santa Fe via the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railway. The intending settlers remained over night and resumed their journey over the Santa Fe Central railway.

Most of them were from points in Kansas and Oklahoma, and judging from the hotel registers the majority hailed from Belle Plain, Kansas, and Newkirk, Oklahoma. Several in the delegation had already visited the valley and filed on homestead claims, and were returning to take up their permanent residence.

The new settlers who are rapidly filling up the valley are a desirable class of people, and it is a noticeable fact that as a rule they are in comfortable circumstances.

New Paper For Santa Fe.

It is reported that Frank Owen, manager of the Santa Fe Water and Light Company, and R. H. Hanna, attorney for the same company, have purchased the printing outfit of Jose Segura, who, for some years past, has published a weekly Spanish paper under the name of El Buletin Popular in Santa Fe. It is understood that this will be consolidated with the Eagle, a small Democratic weekly paper and that a tri-weekly paper will be published under the editorship and management of A. J. Loomis, who has been running the Eagle for some time past. The publication of this tri-weekly is to begin at an early date.

Notaries Public Appointed.

The following have been appointed notaries public by Acting Governor J. W. Reynolds:

Eleuterio D. Armijo, of Encino, Torrance county; Guillermo Martinez of Black Lake, Colfax county.

Robert C. Stubbins, of Amistad, Union county; Jesus Ma. Armijo, of Logan, Quay county; Edward J. McWenle, of East Las Vegas, San Miguel county.

AID ART BY FOOTBALL

CARLISLE INDIAN PLAYERS BUILD A MUSEUM.

Proceeds of Games Used to Buy Material and Structure It Put Up Entirely by the Students.

New York—A mute reproach to the legislators who would have withdrawn the appropriation from the Carlisle Indian school stands at the entrance to the grounds of that institution in the shape of a battlemented building of striking design. It is a monument to the affection of the Indians for their home and of the dogged perseverance with which the red man will follow up an idea. The building is an art school and museum of Indian curios, and was built by Indian boys from the proceeds of the football games of last year, in which the redskin experts of the gridiron did so well.

With the money thus won the boys bought the stone, the lumber, the glass and the other material. The work they did themselves, for the boys learn everything in the mechanical trades at Carlisle. The carpenter work, the doors, sashes, and, in fact, all of the mill work of the building, was turned out in the shops of the school by the boys themselves. Even the plumbing and heating arrangements, all of the latest design, are the work of the boys, while the color effects, painting and decorations are the handwork of Carlisle Indian artists. The roofing and tin work were all done in the school shops. So, everything about the structure is the Indians' own.

The interior of the building is gay with the bright colors that the Indians love. Genuine Navajo blankets, in gorgeous reds, of curious Indian patterns, adorn the walls and floors. Store products are these blankets, the real thing, thick as oriental rugs, soft as wool can be, pliable as velvet and capable of holding water like a bucket, so finely woven is the material.

Spread on the tables in the rich confusion of color are beadwork, Indian saddles, baskets, drawings, paintings, ings and models of various designs used in the home life of the tribesmen. Examples of the burnt leather work of the Indians are to be seen, pictures of the famous chiefs of other days, relics of the redskins who died vowing that their tribes would ever hate the white man with the same implacable hatred that they had shown. It is curious to view the pictures of these fierce old warriors and then turn to the intellectual countenance of Alfred M. Venn, the Chippewa Indian who has charge of the museum and who conducts a Bible class of students at this institution. It is still more remarkable to compare the pictures of Indian squaws of the old days with the dark eyed, placid faced girls who come to the studio to paint, fashion Indian art curios and do the bead work at which they are deft.

The building has been named the Leupp Indian Art Studio, in recognition of the friendship, interest and careful nurturing of Indian art by Commissioner Francis E. Leupp. The plans of the building were suggested by various students at Carlisle and the best ideas of those offered were embodied in working plans drawn up by a graduate of the school, George Balenti, a Cheyenne Indian. The entire building, as well as its equipment, remains the property of the athletic association.

WILL HEAD THEOSOPHISTS.

Miss Annie Besant Nominated to Succeed Late Col. Olcott.

MISS ANNIE BESANT.

(Woman Who Will Become Leader of the Theosophists.)

Kansas City, Mo.—Official announcement has been made of the nomination of Mrs. Annie Besant as world president of the Theosophical society to succeed the late Col. Henry Steele Olcott, president-founder of the organization. Col. Olcott, an old New York newspaper man, died recently in India.

On his deathbed he named Mrs. Besant, who had for years been his co-worker, to succeed him, a prerogative which he held.

Mrs. Besant is a resident of Benares, India, where she conducts a school for the education of native children.

Mrs. Besant was born in England about 60 years ago. Her husband, a clergyman of the Church of England, was a brother of the famous novelist, Sir Walter Besant. Rev. Mr. Besant and his talented wife have been separated for years. She introduced theosophy to English society, lived down ridicule and established herself strongly by her winning ways. She says Americans make good theosophists because they are a psychic people. Mrs. Besant lives nine months a year in India and usually spends the other three months building up her cult in England. She visits America rarely.

PEDDLING LIVE FISH IN CHINA.

Typical Scene in Many Cities of the Oriental Empire.

New York—The accompanying picture shows a typical Chinese fish pedler, who is to be met in the thoroughfares in many cities of the empire. His load is by no means a light one. He will be noticed balancing two receptacles, each one containing fish. There is some aversion among Chinese to buying fish that show no signs of life. For that reason the pedler is compelled to keep a sock of both live and dead fish. In the large hamper he has a supply of fish whose life has become extinct, while in the large pail at the opposite end of the pole he has a collection that wriggle about in the water. A big premium is always paid by Chinamen for live fish.

Where Did He Go?

"Pop?"

"Yes, my son."

"Did Noah have a hired man in the ark?"

"Very likely he did, my son."

"And did he have to go home to sleep nights?"—Yonkers Statesman.

Sunflower and the Sun.

"The sunflower," said a naturalist, "is the most deceitful of all plants, for it has fooled six nations."

"Six nations believe that the sunflower turns toward the sun, and so thoroughly are they deluded they call it by a name which bears witness to their error."

"Thus the French call the sunflower tournesol. The Spanish call it girasol. The Italians call it girasole. The Hungarians call it naptaforgo. Each of these words means 'turn to the sun.' The English and Americans don't go quite that far in admitting themselves to be the plant's dupes. They only call it sunflower. They mean by that name, though, quite as much as the other names imply. The belief is general among six nations that the sunflower turns with the sun and always faces the luminary."

"As a matter of fact, there is only one flower that turns or keeps with the sun, namely, the sun spurge."

At the Sausage Counter.

"Concerning your meals, did you hope for the best?"

"Certainly; that is why I got the worst."—Baltimore American.

The Mystery of Carney-Croft

JOSEPH BROWN COOKE. COPYRIGHT 1907 BY STORY-PREPRESS CORPORATION

"That's more'n I know," said the man, turning and looking me squarely in the face, "but they said they seen two ghosts, one fur the old man, an' one fur the boy, aout under the trees in front of the house right where ole Carney fell off his hoss! Every one of 'em seen the same thing, an' when they all agree to a dot on a thing of that kind it's pretty hard, even fur a member, not to believe it."

"They'll all tell ye the same story. The boy was a-swayin' back an' forth, but he did after the hoss kicked him, an' the ole man kind o' hoverin' an' hoverin' over him like he was in the middle a-cussin' him again. The signs was perfectly plain, all in white, but them that stayed to look long enough said ye could see the trunk o' the trees an' other things right through 'em, too."

"I suppose they all came back to Hoskins after seeing this wonderful sight," I remarked.

"You bet they did, an' they come a-swayin', too," said the man. "I never seen a scarier lot o' men in my life. They made pretty good business for Hoskins that night, eh?" I ventured.

"Well, I guess it did!" he rejoined, with a grin. "An' it'll keep right on makin' good business fur him, too! Them fellers won't git over talkin' o' that fur a month o' Sundays!"

"How did they get home that night?" I continued persuasively.

"His grin broadened as he chuckled. "Them as couldn't walk had to ride home in this 'ere rig. Haow I ever piled so many in is more'n I kin tell!" said he laughed immoderately at the thought.

"So when business is good with Hoskins it's likely to be good with you, too, eh?" I went on.

"Most generally," he replied. "Most generally; less Hoskins gits all their money fore they're ready fur me an' their credit ain't no good."

"And when the men aren't working at Carney's they spend a good deal of time at Hoskins, don't they?" I asked.

"Yes, an' a good deal o' money, too," he rejoined. "Ole Carney allus paid 'em well; nobody can't deny that."

"So it's a good thing for Hoskins and a good thing for you, to get them away from the place every little while," I suggested warily.

"I s'pose it is, an' I s'pose we can't weather of us help it if they want to leave," he returned sullenly and with sudden suspicion as he pulled his horse up sharply at the station platform.

"My train arrived in a few moments, and as I was about to step aboard I drew the fellow toward me and said to him in a low tone, that others might not hear:

"The men were quite right about the ghosts. I saw them myself, from my window, perfectly distinctly and exactly as you have described them."

"The car was already moving and I swung up on the step and left him standing bewildered."

CHAPTER II.

Two Letters.

My Dear Mr. Ware:

My apologies for not replying to your letter of nearly two weeks ago are weak by the fact that I am now writing to you in great distress.

My brother will be here day after tomorrow, and it has just occurred to me that I have made a most dreadful blunder and I need your advice more than ever before.

You know, I asked Miss Weston, my old school friend, to come here and stay with me for a time at least, and she did so understanding, as I have since learned, that Jack was away and not to return.

She is here now and seems to me to be quite ill again, but the embarrassing part of it is that she and Jack was once great sweethearts, and his going away to Honolulu was really due to some disagreement that they had nearly three years ago. I never knew just what the trouble was. As Annie was my dearest friend in school and afterwards, too, I quite overlooked the whole matter in my anxiety to have someone with me when I was so awfully alone. You remember, I merely telegraphed her to come, and she did not even know of father's death and supposed, of course, that Jack was away.

Now she is too ill to go home again, and Jack is coming so soon that I don't know what to do. It is a frightfully embarrassing position to be placed in, especially as there was so much mystery over their separation.

You see under the circumstances, I cannot possibly adopt your suggestion to close the house and come to town for the present, and, anyway, I feel that I ought to stay here till Jack comes to keep an eye on father's things.

Miss Weston is, I am sure, quite too ill to be moved, and with Mrs. Remsen, our old housekeeper, I feel perfectly safe. Please write me at once and advise me in my present predicament.

Very truly yours,
FLORENCE CARNEY.

P. S. There is a rumor that Carney-Croft is haunted, and some of the village people even go so far as to say that you saw a ghost when you were here. Have you heard anything of this sort? It is ridiculous, of course, but it makes me nervous.

F. C.

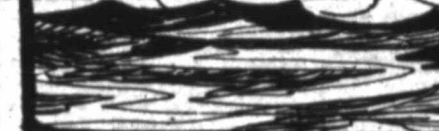

My Dear Miss Carney:

Your letter of yesterday is at hand. I would not worry. If I were you about your brother and Miss Weston, it was probably some childish affair that they have both forgotten by this time.

I am sorry to hear that Miss Weston is ill again, for it must add to your cares materially, but as you have told me that all your house servants are reliable and trustworthy I suppose you are managing fairly well.

I expect your brother in town to-day or to-morrow and he will probably stay here over night and go on to Carney-Croft the next day. Either he or I will telegraph you as soon as he arrives.

I thought you knew about the ghosts or I should have written you before. There were two large pieces of mosquito netting in my room which were apparently intended for covering portraits. I threw them over a chair-back near the window and they blew out during the night and caught in the branches of the trees in front of the house. I knew that some of the men from the village had seen them and taken them for ghosts, but as I myself saw your butler pulling

"I am going to Carney-Croft to-night."

"I am going to Carney-Croft to-night and have wired Florence to have a carriage for me at the midnight train and not to sit up. I don't expect to stay there long, and I should think it would be better to close the place and have her take a house here in town where she would be more comfortable."

"I made the same suggestion myself," I replied, "but she wrote that she felt perfectly safe at home, and that she wanted to remain until you came to take charge of things. As you have turned all such responsibility over to me, as your attorney, there is but one thing now to prevent her leaving."

"What else can there be?" he muttered thickly.

I watched him closely as I answered. "Do you not know that her friend, Miss Weston, is with her?"

"What! Annie Weston there!" he exclaimed. "Is she well?"

"No," I replied, studying him. "She is not at all well. In fact, she is too ill to be moved, and that is why Miss Carney cannot close the house at present."

"I never dreamed that Annie Weston would be in my house," he whispered, as if to himself. "Poor girl! Poor girl!"

"When Miss Carney asked her to come, Miss Weston did not know that you were to return, and even now she has not been told that you are on your way home," I continued. "Your sister was quite upset over the fact that, in asking Miss Weston to visit her when she was in such need of a companion she entirely forgot the disagreement between you a few years ago."

"Disagreement!" he almost shouted, pulling himself up in his chair. "Why, what on earth are you talking about, man? We had no disagreement, I tell you! Nothing of the sort. I suppose Florence told you that, but she knew nothing about it at all. I went away because Annie thought I ought to; but she was mistaken, poor girl! If I had stayed at home I shouldn't be in this condition now, but she thought it was for the best. Poor little woman, she tried so hard to do the best thing for me and—look at me now! Look at me, Ware! But she must not be disturbed under any circumstances. You say she does not know I am coming home. She must not be allowed to know it. As I told you, I shall not stay there long, and there is no need of her knowing that I am in the house. I shall not see her, Ware," he almost sobbed. "I'm not fit to see her! I'm not fit to see her, man!"

CHAPTER III.

John Carney.

As Mr. Carney was ushered into my private office I rose to greet him, and stepped from behind my desk with outstretched hand; but as he raised his face to mine I drew back in amazement and disgust and motioned him to a chair with scant ceremony.

"Drunk! the beast!" I muttered to myself, as he shambled drowsily to the seat I had indicated and dropped into it with a thickly uttered "Thank you."

He seemed to fall asleep for a moment, and I eyed him steadily for some time before I could bring myself to speak. And so the handsome, straightforward, manly fellow of three years ago had sunk to this! A sodden, degraded wretch, unfit to associate with pigs in a sty, and yet the heir to a vast estate and the sole legitimate protector of the sweet-faced orphan at Carney-Croft who awaited his coming with the impatience born of love and hope and confiding trust! God help the poor girl now, and God help the accursed wreck that sat opposite me!

His heavy breathing wheezing in and out of his throat; his listless, stupid face, flushed and mottled from the effects of his excesses; his body, dripping with perspiration which stood out in beads on his forehead and glistened on his hand as it lay in the sunlight; and his drooping, blood-shot eyes, now half closed and again wandering aimlessly about the room; all combined to make a disgusting picture. It was with the utmost difficulty that I could restrain my feelings sufficiently to address him with ordinary civility. Finally, my judgment prevailed over my indignation, and I remembered that I was the legal adviser, only, of the house of Carney, and not in any way concerned with the moral conduct of its head.

"You had a comfortable journey, I hope," I remarked icily.

"As comfortable as such a journey can be," he wheezed, turning his bleary eyes toward me as he spoke. "The conditions which made my homecoming necessary did not make my trip enjoyable, and I traveled with the greatest possible haste, as there are certain matters that I want you to arrange for me at once."

He spoke his words with a force and precision unusual in a man in his condition, but he was evidently controlling himself to the utmost degree and, as he talked, his face flushed in great blotches, his blood-shot eyes seemed almost bursting from his head, and the perspiration oozed from his body and trickled in little streams down his cheeks and neck.

"Do you wish to hear any of the details of your father's death?" I asked in a most matter of fact tone.

"No, thank you," he said, with some effort. "I found a long letter from Florence at my hotel this morning and portunity to rest from your journey and your—ahem—your health has improved somewhat?"

I regretted my words on the instant. In spite of the man's condition, they seemed to have cut him to the quick. An expression of anguish, pitiful to see, passed over his face and his whole body trembled. After a moment he said slowly with the same wonderful self-control:

"My health, as you choose to call it, Mr. Ware, will not improve to any appreciable degree, and my mind is, at this moment, as clear as it will ever be. I wish you to draw up a will leaving everything I possess to my sister, Florence Carney, and I wish, also, to give you power of attorney so that from this time on, you can conduct the estate in my stead and supply her with such funds as she may need. I do not expect to spend much time at Carney-Croft and I want these matters attended to now, before I go there at all."

His ideas were so thoroughly in accord with his duty to his sister that I was now anxious to carry them out at once as he requested, lest another opportunity might never occur. It took but a short time to arrange the details of the will, and then it and the power of attorney were signed by him in a trembling hand and witnessed by members of my office staff.

When these formalities were over and we were alone again, Mr. Carney said abruptly:

"I am going to Carney-Croft to-night and have wired Florence to have a carriage for me at the midnight train and not to sit up. I don't expect to stay there long, and I should think it would be better to close the place and have her take a house here in town where she would be more comfortable."

she has told me everything. I wish merely to arrange some money affairs with you and make my will, and I wish to do so at once."

"How much money do you need for the present?" I asked, sarcastically.

"How much money do I need?" he repeated, in a bewildered tone. "Why, I don't need any. I have all the ready cash that I want. I only want to arrange for the future, you know."

"Very glad to hear it," I observed dryly. "Now, as to your will. Do you think, Mr. Carney, that your state of mind to-day is such that you are quite ready to make a will? Would it not be better for you to wait a day or so until—er—until you have had an opportunity to rest from your journey and your—ahem—your health has improved somewhat?"

I regretted my words on the instant. In spite of the man's condition, they seemed to have cut him to the quick. An expression of anguish, pitiful to see, passed over his face and his whole body trembled. After a moment he said slowly with the same wonderful self-control:

Pe-ru-na Relieves Spring Catarrh.

MISS DORA HAYDEN.

"Without hesitation I write to thank you for the great relief I have found in your valuable medicine, Peruna, and will call the attention of all my friends suffering with catarrh to that fact. Besides I cheerfully recommend it to all suffering with catarrh in any form."—Miss Dora Hayden, 819 6th St., S. W., Washington, D. C.

A Case of Spring Catarrh.

Mrs. N. P. Lawler, 423 1/2 N. Broadway, Pittsburg, Kas., writes: "Last spring I caught a severe cold, which developed into a serious case of catarrh. I felt weak and sick, and could neither eat nor sleep well."

"A member of our club who had been cured of catarrh through the use of Peruna advised me to try it, and I did so at once. I expected help, but nothing like the wonderful change for the better I observed almost as soon as I started taking it. In three days I felt much better, and within two weeks I was in fine health. Peruna is a wonderful medicine."

Court's Acoustics Bad.

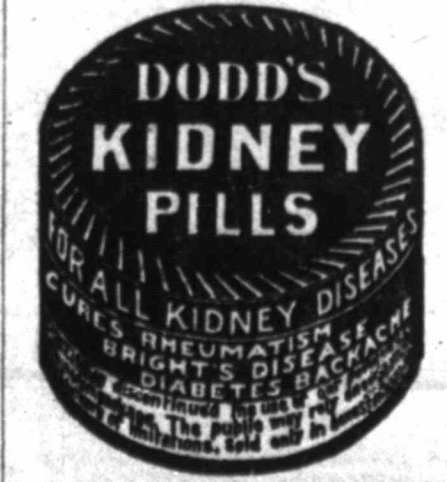

The acoustic properties of the courtrooms in London's new criminal courts building are so bad, it is said, that the other day a prisoner who had been sentenced to six months thought he had been sentenced to 12. He said to a warden: "One of the beaks gave me six months and another of 'em gave me six months before." Also, besides echoes, "reverberations" are complained of.

The extraordinary popularity of fine white goods this summer makes the choice of Starch a matter of great importance. Defiance Starch, being free from all injurious chemicals, is the only one which is safe to use on fine fabrics. Its great strength as a stiffener makes half the usual quantity of Starch necessary, with the result of perfect finish, equal to that when the goods were new.

His First Speech a Success. Ten years in congress before he made his first speech is the almost incredible record of Walter Brownlow, who has represented the famous east Tennessee district continuously since 1897. He broke his decade of silence and got into the Congressional Record. His oratory was an accident. An item in the sundry civil bill appropriating $32,000 for a cemetery at Greenville was attacked. This cemetery contains the remains of Andrew Johnson, whom Mr. Brownlow eulogized as "the greatest patriot of the civil war." He swept the house with unsuspected eloquence.

A sufficient contest affidavit having been filed in this office by Charles O. Wilson, contestant, against homestead entry No. 4082, made April 27, 1903, for SE¼, Sec. A, Twp. 2 S., R. 33 E., by Edward F. Roark, contestee, in which it is alleged that said Edward F. Roark has wholly abandoned said tract and changed his residence therefrom for more than six months since making said entry and next prior to date of said affidavit; that said tract is not settled upon and cultivated as required by law, and defendant's absence therefrom is not due to service in the army or navy of the United States during time of war.

Said parties are hereby notified to appear, respond and offer evidence touching said allegation at 10 o'clock a. m. on June 20, 1907, before C. M. Compton, Probate Judge of Roosevelt County, at his office in Portales, New Mexico, and that final hearing will be held at 10 o'clock a. m. on June 27, 1907, before the Register and Receiver at the United States Land Office in Roswell, N. M.

The said contestant having, in a proper affidavit, filed May 17, 1907, set forth facts which show that after due diligence personal service of this notice can not be made, it is hereby ordered and directed that such notice be given by due and proper publication.
