COON RITES TOMORROW

Friends from many parts of Texas and the Southwest will gather in Dalhart tomorrow at 3 p.m. to pay final tribute to R. S. (Uncle Dick) Coon, 80 years old.

All Dalhart business houses, in token of the universal esteem in which Mr. Coon was held, will be closed tomorrow afternoon from 3 to 4.

He died yesterday afternoon at 1:30 in Houston. He had suffered a heart attack ten days prior, from which he rallied. But Monday he took a sudden turn for the worse.

His two nephews, W. H. Coon and wife, and Dick Coon, and his old-time partner in the Coon & Culbertson ranch, W. O. (Bill) Culbertson, went to his bedside and remained with him.

Last rites in Dalhart will be held from the First Baptist church. Dr. William States Jacobs, who for years was pastor of the First Southern Presbyterian church in Houston, and is now pastor of the Houston Independent church, will be in charge. Dr. Jacobs is also a cattleman of some prominence, and was an intimate of Mr. Coon. He has visited here several times and many High Plains cattlemen know him.

Emory Cantrell, choir director of the Central Methodist church, is arranging special music by a quartet.

Pallbearers will include three Houston men—A. D. Simpson, Walter Williams and G. A. Lorenz. Others will be Tom Record, Dumas, for years the foreman of Uncle Dick's Moore county ranch; Robert Stalcup, Dalhart attorney, and Mr. Culbertson. Burial will be in Memorial Park cemetery.

Mr. Culbertson returned to Dalhart this morning to complete the funeral arrangements.

Last rites for Coon were held at 3:00 this afternoon at the Geo. H. Lewis & Co. Funeral Home in Houston. Dr. Jacobs was in charge. The body was placed aboard a train at 3:30 and will arrive in Dalhart tomorrow morning on the Denver passenger, due at 10:50. The widow, whose health has been delicate several years, will not be able to make the long trip to Dalhart.

The body will lie in state from 12 noon till 3 p.m. tomorrow at the Baptist church. The casket will not be opened after the service.

Chiefs Meet

Washington and London re-early today that President of the U. S. and Prime Minister Winston Churchill of had met three days af-nd somewhere far out in Atlantic and jointly formu-an eight-point statement; of as follows:

U. S. and Britain seek no dement, territorial or othare opposed to any ter- changes without the full e consent of the people afey want rights of all people ed, particularly their right se their form of government eligion. And they want all ment smashed by Nazism d.

ey stand for free enjoyment rid trade and resources by ions, big and little, victor unquished.

ey stand for full collabora- of all nations for their com- economic prosperity and the ment of labor standards al security.

ey stand for the final de- on of tyranny and the es- tment of a world order that ke each nation safe within n boundaries.

ey stand for complete free- of the seas.

ey affirm that all nations nize necessity of aban-doing force; and that since no lasting peace can be achieved until war is outlawed, the aggressor nations must be disarmed.

Immediate reactions included praise, criticism and ridicule. The Japanese official news agency said it was significant that Japan was not mentioned by the statement.

Analysts, however, were general-ly agreed that Japan was men- tioned, at least inferentially, in the bluntly-worded warning to Ger- many and her satellites.

It was revealed that the meet- ing was held at President Roose- velt's express invitation, issued through his personal representa- tive, Harry L. Hopkins, who has been conferring recently with lead- ers both in London and Moscow.

Some observers believe the invi- tation was prompted, or at least hastened by the threat of war in the Pacific.

Roosevelt left the eastern coast a week ago in his yacht, Potomac, and subsequent reports indicated he was cruising off the New Eng- land coast.

Announcements of the historic Churchill-Roosevelt meeting did not say whether it took place on the yacht, nor did it mention whether the principals traveled to the three-day session by air or boat.

It was disclosed that ranking aviation, Army and Navy officials of both nations attended the meet- ing, and that Lord Beaverbrook of England will continue to the U. S. to discuss further with officials the problems common to both coun- tries.

Observers hold that Japan was mentioned inferentially when the chiefs of the world's two greatest democracies emphasized the dan- gers to world civilization result- ing from the program of brutal, military conquest upon which Ger- many and her cohorts have em- barked. Japan is a junior partner in the Rome-Berlin Axis. The Ja- panese press gave wide notice to the statement.

A jubilant British press analyzed the statement as meaning greater American support for enemies of Nazism; greater unity among Washington, London and Moscow; and greater U. S. participation in post-war reconstruction. The announcement plainly states or im- plies these facts, the British said. It also embraces, they said, Roose- velt's four freedoms.

Other analysts pointed out that the statement clearly shows the U. S. and Britain have definitely abandoned the idea of a general world disarmament. The war-mak- ing nations will be disarmed; the others will remain strong and able to enforce order.

In many quarters the announce- ment was compared with Presi- dent Woodrow Wilson's 14-point (Turn to Page 9, Column 1)

WASHINGTON.—It is no secret that the most anxious diplomacy the United States has attempted in Europe for some time has been the effort to keep France out of the Axis; for complete surrender of Vichy to Hitler meant that vital African bases would become Nazi stepping-stones to South America.

But it is a secret that the chief influence the State Department wielded over Vichy was through Bob Murphy, counselor of the American Embassy, who went to mass daily with Marshal Weygand. Murphy was transferred from Vichy to North Africa especially to nurse Weygand.

Ardent co-religionists, they be- came good friends; and it was upon Murphy's recommendation that vitally important U. S. oil and aviation gasoline was sent to North Africa. Unfortunately, this oil and gas—sent despite British protests—now arrives just in time for use by the Nazis when they take over the French bases.

While the State Department and Bob Murphy were right that Wey- gand and the French Catholics have been the strongest opponents of Hitler, they were wrong in one other vital respect. They over- looked the strength of the Nazi espionage system in France and the underground terrorism estab- lished by Hitler to sway French leaders.

'SPECIAL COMMISSIONERS'

This began some time ago under the direction of Alfred Rosenberg, famous Nazi philosopher and Jew- baiter. Marshal Petain fought this organization from the start, but many of those around him cooper- ated. Most active were Jacques Doriot, the former Communist; and Methonier, a sort of KKK leader who wore a hood and who became famous after the bombing of the French Union of Factory Owners.

Under this French Communist- Nazi supervision, secret agents called "commissionaires speciaux" were appointed, and cells were formed to eliminate forces oppo- (Turn to Page 4—Col. 1)

Trinidad Boosters Make Visit

To invite Dalhart to the Trinidad Round-Up on Aug. 22, 23 and 24, and encourage better relationship between the towns on the Colorado-to-Gulf high- way in Texas, New Mexico and Colorado, was the dual purpose of the delegation that spent two hours in Dalhart Wednes- day afternoon from Trinidad, Colorado.

"We would like to arrange sev- eral meetings each year, prefer- ably in the winter, between the towns in this section and those in Colo- rado and New Mexico at which time we could discuss our common problems", Wm. Robinson, in charge of the caravan, said. Mr. Robin- son is a county commissioner at Trinidad.

"For instance", Robinson contin- ued, "Dalhart and Trinidad have two of the biggest celebrations in this section of the country. We could combine our efforts, each cooperating with the other, and help both shows. Then too, if there is any outstanding effort made to direct traffic over the C. to G. highway the towns of Amarillo, Dalhart, Clayton, Raton and Trin- idad will have to do the major part of the work".

Harry Bierne is president of the Round-Up Association and Paul Nelson, vice-president. Other of- ficers are Con Risley, treasurer, and Brandy Doveton, secretary. The organization has no connection with either county, or city organ- izations.

Jones and Martin Have Ambassador Program

R. M. Jones and R. O. Martin are in charge of the program at the Ambassador club meeting tonight at 8:00 in the club rooms.

Members are urged to attend, of- ficials said.

THE WEATHER
Texas: Partly cloudy scattered thunderstorms in portion this afternoon evening. Friday fair; slight- warmer south portion.

"Now Is The Time For All Good Men To Come To The Aid Of Their Country"

Many a boy and girl, man and woman will recognize the above sentence because they made their fingers stiff pecking it off on the keyboard of a typewriter. It is one of the practice sentences used by typists, but it has a meaning all of its own.

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their country, not particularly to join the armed forces or purchase defense stamps and bonds, although both are essential to the welfare of our Nation. Whether you come to the aid of your country by this method or some other, it is the proper time to do your share.

For the farmer, the producer, it is the time to aid your country by producing in the most efficient and economical method. That means that your farming equipment should be in first-class condition. Right now the Texas Panhandle apparently is on the verge of producing one of the best feed crops in its history. That means hundreds of binders will soon be in the field and the farmer will be "coming to the aid of his country." If that binder is a McCormick-Deering and needs parts and repairs it would be foolish to delay getting it ready. If a new binder is needed, it would be equally as foolish to delay getting in your order.

Of course those who need new binders must understand that our nation is busy with its national defense program and some delay in delivery of farming equipment must be expected. But you may rest assured that those in charge of our defense program, and the manufacturers of McCormick-Deering farm equipment, realize that production of feed crops is an essential part of the program and your order is not going to be delayed any longer than it is humanly possible to deliver it.

Members of the high school and sets will enjoy their annual summer dance tomorrow (Friday) at the Legion Hall. Dancing will begin at 8 o'clock with a social prevailing throughout the evening.

Ed Brown and Chas. Steel were asked to serve as hosts in this affair. Mr. and Mrs. Allyn and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Byrd are sponsors.

STERN STARS TONIGHT

J. T. Roper, worthy matron, will have full attendance at the meeting of the Dalhart Chapter OES at 8 o'clock at theasonic Hall. Entertainment program will be furnished by piano selections by Mary Ellen Causey.

AUXILIARY BREAKFAST

Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary met yesterday for a breakfast meeting at the home of Mrs. W. L. Fones.

Plans were made for an old-fashioned picnic to be held Friday night at Rita Blanca Lake adjacent to the VFW.

Partners Are Seated At Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. John Farris and Mrs. J. C. Hammack motored to Channing last night to be at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Jim McFarlin at their home.

HARVEY TO LEAVE FOR END RECEPTION

Ora Mae Harvey of the Texas Memorial staff left this morning for the weekend in Shamrock to attend the parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. Harvey.

Tomorrow Miss Harvey will attend a reception honoring Rev. and Mrs. R. Wallace, who will celebrate their Golden Wedding anniversary and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. McFarlin of New York City. Mr. McFarlin is associate editor of the Texas Digest.

AND ABOUT TOWN

A. Peterson, Rock Island agent and yardmaster at Dalhart, is widely known here, reported as slightly improved this morning. He has been in a good condition at St. Anthony's Hospital, Amarillo, since he underwent an appendix operation Sunday. Mr. Peterson, a veteran of the Spanish-American War and World War, is commander of the Dalhart Defense Guard, which he organized.

J. L. McFarlin, 15 miles east of Dalhart, was brought to Dalhart this morning for medical attention. She has been ill since last week.

Mr. O'Connor is resting well and expects to gradually recover his health. Mrs. O'Connor said this morning. The pioneer, who has suffered for some time with stomach trouble, was gravely ill Tuesday following three hemorrhages.

It is the regret of many friends that Mrs. B. F. Vicars and son, Carl, are leaving tomorrow for Rock Island to make their home. Mr. Vicars, Rock Island trainman, will have headquarters there. Norwood, who was graduated in May from DHS, will enter the Pratt Junior College in September.

The front office of the HWB Grocery Company is being enlarged and redecorated. The remodeling is expected to be completed the first of next week, according to Manager Ralph Waite.

Mrs. Jimmy Kemish, who was seriously ill for three months with a heart ailment, is slowly recovering. As soon as she is able to travel, she will go to points in Illinois for an indefinite stay. Mr. Kemish, a Rock Island refrigeration inspector, will work in Silvis and Chicago for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Pigman, daughter, Patricia, and son, Jimmy, are home from California.

Mrs. Ben Scott and children, Jean and Harry, will return to their home in Amarillo Friday.

Rose Davies

Rose Davies, sister of Marion Davies, the movie actress, has been left $300,000 by the will of Edward B. McLean, former newspaper publisher who died in Washington. The will left $5,000 to each of three children.

They came to Dalhart ten days ago to attend the reunion and visit Mrs. Scott's mother, Mrs. E. B. Elliston.

Jasper Dodd and three nieces of Dallas, Tex., visited the Grady Martin family the past week. Mr. Dodd and Mr. Martin, cousins, had not seen each other in 28 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCleskey and children, Wichita Falls, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Corkill and other relatives.

L. L. Sanford left yesterday for Oklahoma to join Mrs. Sanford and the children, who have been there for a week. They will return home over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Neff and family are leaving within a few days for a visit with relatives at southern Texas points.

Mrs. Perry Johnson and children have returned to their home in Chicago following a visit with relatives and friends. They formerly lived here.

Mrs. Grace Stephens and son, Carl Mac, will be home today from Canyon, where Mrs. Stephens has been attending summer school.

Mrs. Emma McCartney continues to be quite ill at Loretto with pneumonia.

ing French cooperation with Hitler. Even high officers of the French Army were arrested when they dared oppose Nazi collaboration.

And behind the recent murder of Marx Dormoy, cabinet member in the Blum Socialist government, was the fact that he had tried to expose these terrorist groups.

The State Department failed to gauge the strength of this movement and bet its money—and gasoline—on the nice but impotent old men of Vichy.

SLAPPING DOWN PAPPY

Senator "Pass the Biscuits, Pappy" O'Daniel lost no time in sounding off in the Senate, and the Senate lost no time in slapping him down.

The day after he took his seat, the Texas crooner, breaking the hallowed tradition that rookies should be seen and not heard, lectured the Senate at length on numerous matters. The chamber took it in silence. But next day, when he offered an irrelevant amendment to the selectees retention bill, the Senate nailed "Pappy" hard.

As soon as he sat down, without a further word the Senate threw the amendment into the wastebasket.

The slap-down happened so fast that for a minute O'Daniel didn't know what hit him. When he realized what had occurred, he started to protest, but by that time another senator had the floor.

NOTE—In addressing the Senate on his first appearance, O'Daniel was emulating the late Huey Long, who pulled the same stunt. Like the Louisiana Kingfish, O'Daniel harbors secret presidential ambitions.

LEWIS ON THE MOVE

News copy was flowing fast over the desks of telegraph editors last week. But in the space of a few hours came three stories connected with John L. Lewis.

On the surface, there was no relation between them. But when put side by side they revealed the telltale trail of the bushbrowed laborite's maneuvers to restore himself as a political power and master of the CIO.

Story No. 1 bore a Joplin, Mo., dateline. It reported a speech by Reid Robinson, head of the CIO Mining and Smelter Workers, attacking OPM Associate Director Sidney Hillman by name.

Robinson is a Lewis henchman and thereby retains his job. He was one of the few top-rung CIO leaders who followed Lewis in his bolt to Willkie, and his direct attack on Hillman is the first made by any important CIO executive.

Inside CIO word is that the hand of Lewis was behind the blast; also that other blasts will be coming from key-placed Lewis henchmen as part of his fence-building to recapture the CIO presidency at the annual convention this fall.

Story No. 2, from Washington, reported that Lewis had deposed certain officials of the United Mine Workers' Gas, Coke and Chemical Division, replacing them with Ora Gassaway, another of his henchmen, and Kathryn Lewis, his daughter and confidential secretary. The men replaced are able, experienced but independent labor leaders. They did not bolt to Willkie and have cooperated with Hillman on defense problems.

MUNITIONS BOSS

The Gas, Cole and Chemical Division covers all workers in the munitions industry, which of course is rapidly expanding, and the union is keeping step with the growth.

So by installing Gassaway and his daughter at the head of this union Lewis quietly made himself labor boss of one of the most strategic defense industries. He put himself in a key position where the Government must deal with him to obtain gun powder for the Army, Navy and Air Corps.

Also, he ensured that the union will vote as he orders at the CIO convention.

Story No. 3, the only one that attracted attention, was the Lowden-Hoover-Landon attack on Roosevelt's aid-Russia policy. Lewis was one of the fifteen signers of this blast, and thus disclosed the circuitous political game that he is playing.

To the rank and file of the CIO John L. is parading as an ardent defender of their interests. "Labor has no real representation in the defense setup" is his battlecry and his henchmen's. But simultaneously he is lining up with Old Guard Republican isolationists who have opposed the defense program.

This juxtaposition charts Lewis' strategy. As president of the CIO, the ally of the GOP Old Guard, and an isolationist leader, he would be at the top of the political heap. In next year's congressional elections and in 1944, he could write the ticket, possibly even put himself on it.

This ambition is Lewis' consuming passion—second perhaps to his hatred of Franklin Roosevelt. Note—Lewis' next public maneuver will be a nationwide radio speech he is quietly planning to make on Labor Day. In this address he will attack Roosevelt's foreign policies and the administration of the defense program.

A LETTER FROM FDR

One of Roosevelt's most consistent foes in the Senate is Senator Edwin C. Johnson of Colorado, who, although a Democrat, describes the President as the "high priest of intervention" and opposes him on almost anything.

Some time ago friends of the two men tried to patch up a compromise. They persuaded the President to write a letter to Senator Johnson which read as follows:

"Dear Ed:

You are absolutely right about AVA, and Carr, is wrong. More power to you. (signed) FDR."

AVA referred to the Arkansas Valley Administration, a project for Colorado similar to the TVA. The "Carr" referred to was Ralph L. Carr, Republican Governor of Colorado.

Short as the letter was, Senator Johnson seized upon it as a message from another planet. Wherever he went he showed it to friends. Especially after political meetings, he took it out and exhibited it as proof that he was an intimate friend of the President.

Soon the letter got so warm that it looked like a museum piece. But Ed Johnson still cherished it, kept it wrapped up in paper, finally made photostatic copies.

It was originally arranged by Johnson's friends that in return for this letter the Senator would vote with Roosevelt for the lease-lend bill. But just before the vote on lease-lend, Johnson's colleague from Colorado, Senator Adams, tipped off Senator Wheeler that Johnson had traded his vote for a White House letter.

Wheeler and Johnson are close friends; in fact Johnson seldom casts a vote on anything, especially foreign policy, without consulting Wheeler. So when Wheeler called a caucus of all those opposed to the bill, Ed Johnson sat in the front row. But during the meeting he was strangely quiet. He said absolutely nothing.

Afterwards, Wheeler called Johnson to one side, said: "Ed, I heard you weren't going to vote for us tomorrow, that there was a little deal on between you and the White House. Now I just want to give you this little piece of advice. It's going to look mighty funny to the people back in Colorado, if, after you've been with us all this time, you suddenly back out at the last moment."

"It's going to look, Ed, as if you

Army Vacancies Announced Today

The Dalhart recruiting office has received information of vacancies in the U. S. Army air corps and in the regular army, Corporal Leo Cawthron announced today.

Young men between 18 and 35 who are in good physical condition are of average intelligence may qualify for the positions.

Vacancies are in the Hawaiian department and in the Philippines. Infantry, field artillery, coast artillery corps, engineers, medical department, and ordnance department have vacancies in Hawaii. The infantry, coast artillery corps, quarter master corps, medical department, and chemical warfare service report a need for recruits.

Grains Drop Today, But Stocks Advance

The New York stock market today ended a fortnight's steady price decline. Chicago grains, however, were off.

Industrials in the Dow-Jones list on the New York market were up 42 cents at the end of the fourth hour. Rails were 31 cents higher and utilities had advanced a dime. The entire list was up 22 at $42.82 and volume was 310,000 shares.

Chicago wheat opened higher, but closed unchanged to a quarter lower: Sept. $1.11 5/8. Corn was off five-eighths to three-quarters: Sept. 77 3/4. Oats were a half down: Sept: 41 1-2.

Cotton in New York was 7 to 23 points lower; and in New Orleans was 13 to 19 points off.

Baby Reported In First Baby Event

The first and only baby reported so far in the Dallam-Hartley counties first baby contest being held in connection with "Blossoms In the Dust", is a son born to Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Murdaugh. The report said he was born at 2:42 this morning.

To the first baby born between 12:01 Wednesday morning and midnight tonight the following Dalhart firms will give an array of gifts: C. R. Anthony Co., Wanser Drug store, McIlroy Furniture Co., J. C. Penney Co., Rita Blanca Studio, Mission theater.

"Blossoms In the Dust", is the dramatic story of the Texas Children's Home and Aid Society at Ft. Worth and of Mrs. Sam Gladney, its founder and still its superintendent. It shows the last times this afternoon and tonight at the Mission.

Texas Horse Breeder Going To California

San Antonio—R. A. Coward, prominent as a breeder of thoroughbred horses, has purchased the Thousand Oaks Ranch near Camarillo, Calif. will move his stock and plant to that location, it was revealed here today.

Earl Harris, Enid, Okla., will arrive Saturday to join Mrs. Harris, who was called to Dalhart a few days ago to be with her mother, Mrs. John Rish, ill for a week with flu and complications. Mrs. Rish was released from Loretto today, where she received treatment since Sunday.

Elmer Elliott, Dale Elliott, Joe Smith, and Joe Smith, Jr., are home from a trip to the Rocky Mountains.

had sold out to the Administration for some piddling little job".

So the junior Senator from Colorado thought twice, and in the end voted with Wheeler against Great Britain. However, the story is still one of the big jokes among Rocky Mountain senators. And now, neither the White House nor Wheeler quite trusts Ed Johnson.

LAFF-A-DAY

"The floor show must be over. They're putting the table back!"

told me about it. Seems you was having trouble farming drought and poor market and things contributed to several failures in a row. Young Dick down and wrote his Uncle a detailed report of his er to tell of the hardships of ing in this section. And he the answer within a few days was simply "Plow Deep" and signed "Uncle Dick".

Today, more than ever before, I envy those folks who had an intimate acquaintance with Uncle Dick Coon. So many of them have spoken in the last few weeks of the many real good things he did for humanity, the stories he told of things that happened around Dalhart in the early days and the excellent advice he occasionally gave, young men, that I feel that I missed something real in this life by not knowing him better.

And strange as it may seem those who speak of Mr. Coon never have anything but something good to say. Great and good men have passed on before and friends have remembered their deeds on this earth but occasionally someone will remark, "He was a fine fellow, but—". That isn't true with those who speak of Uncle Dick. Even those who did not agree with his way of life have nothing to say that doesn't indicate their deepest respect and kindest regard for the pioneer.

I never knew Mr. Coon until after he had reached the age when he wasn't very active but he always seemed to know me. I remember meeting him in Marlin several years ago and having a long talk with him about Dalhart. He knew every corner in this town, every building and most of our people. He could recall many incidents that happened here but in that conversation that continued through part of two days never did I hear this man utter a single criticism of any individual in Dalhart.

One single incident stands out in my mind as telling more of the true character of Mr. Coon than any other. It is a framed penciled statement hanging in the Coon office on Denrock street. In a scrawley hand are these two words, written across an entire page of paper, "Plow Deep". And Dick and H have

And if those who knew the character are correct that was followed closely by the who made a fortune and gave much of it to humanity. He ed deep" in every undertaking dealt in big things, believing a person paid too much attention to the little things he would look the bigger ones. He without knowing it Uncle "plowed deep" in the hearts minds of his associates a that neither time nor tide erase.

Typical of Uncle Dick was statement to several friends ing the close of the XIX here last year. In the De hotel lobby, sitting in his chair near the entrance and his brown-paper cigarette in mouth, Uncle Dick told friends won't be here for the next year. He knew his time was limited didn't complain. He told a friend later that "I'm just finished". And he seemed to it without regret, believing he had been blessed with a long during which time he had the most from it.

I wonder how many of us feel that way when our time

Traders' Grocer Has New Location

Mrs. Grady Roberts, owner, announced that the Trader Co. has moved into its new location 714 East 7th St. The store is for business, but dates for the formal opening have not been set.

The building is of frame stucco, more than doubling floor space of the former building. It is made more attractive by ious displays, large windows and fluorescent lighting.

Mrs. Roberts has owned and operated this business for about years. She has lived in Dal however, since 1924.

Foods Will Help In Victory Over Nazis

By ROGER BABSON

Babson Park, Mass., August 14.—The steady gain being made in the production of essential foods will do as much to ultimately win World War II for the Democracies as will the building of mechanized and other implements of defense. At the proper time the agricultural surpluses of the United States and Canada which for months past have been under transfer to strategically located seaboard points will be of prime value in negotiating with the German people (not necessarily with Hitler's gang) the kind of peace the Allies want. The day may come when the man or woman of Berlin will consume as much American and Canadian wheat as will the people of Detroit, London or Montreal.

Grain Holdings

The United States Government owns approximately 320,000,000 bushels of wheat, corn and rye. In addition they hold as collateral under seal for loans to producers another 340,000,000 bushels of corn, wheat, barley and rye. All this was either acquired by the Government or sealed under Federal loans at prices under current market quotations. Allowing for deductions covering shortage, carrying and handling charges, the U. S. Government and cooperating farmers have a paper profit from their operations since 1938 which is estimated at approximately $50,000,000.

The weekly visible supply of wheat is showing huge increases in the U. S. and Canada. Both countries will have large harvests from spring sowings. The U. S. total crop will be the fifth largest on record. Storage facilities are becoming acute as these harvests gain momentum. In one mid-west terminal alone 85 per cent of the arriving wheat is for storage rather than for sale. Freight cars are piling up to the detriment of defense shipping. In spite of our big crop and large carry-over the price of wheat continues to rise. I anticipate that there is little likelihood of a price ceiling for wheat or for other farm products, at least in the near future.

Prosperity for Farmers

The Department of Agriculture officially reports a continually rising level of prices for farm products. From the middle of March to the middle of July prices rose 22 points. Certainly, still higher prices can be expected for the grains. This is why wheat farmers are at present storing so much grain rather than selling it. Ultimately they feel the Government will take it over anyway, so why sell now for less than they can get by borrowing on their current crop at present Government loan rates? Hog prices also should continue to average well above a year ago and the price of cattle may likewise be maintained at a relatively high level. Consumer demand for these products as well as for lambs, chickens, and dairy products should mean higher prices all around for the long term.

While no reliable news is available, in all probability not a great deal of wheat in the Russian Ukraine has been lost either thru destruction by the Russians in their retreat or by the German advance. For one thing the crop was too green to burn. Hence, the bulk of this will probably be available for Central Europe. It will be far from sufficient, however, and with the continuance of the British blockade food conditions in Europe will be terrible. Our own exports of all farm products to Great Britain, particularly of dairy products are steadily bulking larger. Ultimately the U. S. and Canada will be called upon to feed the greater part of the world, at least until shipping facilities expand to reopen the Australian and South American granaries.

Agriculture Big Business

American and Canadian farmers are working at peak pressure and under no mean difficulties. Demands of industry and the armed services makes farm labor in both countries scarce. This year the farmer is certainly as of much importance to the nation as is the factory manager. This will be true for some years to come regardless of the time of the ending of World War II. The average reader has little conception of the size of U. S. agriculture as a business. U. S. farm products will have a value of at least $10,500,000,000 in 1941 and our farms as of July 1 furnished employment for 11,769,000 individuals.

The wholesale value of our manufactured products for 1941 will be about $70,000,000,000. This, of course, includes defense business. We are, however, very apt to reach a time when the value of our agri-

Dalhart All-Stars Lose To W.T., 1-10

Dalhart All-Stars lost to the West Texas State College Buffaloes 10-0 last night on a grassy Canyon field.

The game was the second taken by the Buffaloes this season; the Monday night game on the Dalhart legion field during the XIT reunion ended in a 6-5 score in favor of the Buffaloes.

Batteries for the All-Stars were Davis, Barton and Koepple. Other players were Fowler, Chernosky, Locke, Thurman, Ball, Young, Bearden and Bailey.

Tonight in the regular Thursday night Dalhart Softball League games, Charros will meet the Porters Market team; Ambassadors, the Rock Islanders.

The first game begins at 8:15, league officials remind.

Office Formed From County Court Room

A partition is being placed across the Dallam county court room to form an office for George McMeen, field supervisor of Farm Credit Administration.

The judge's chair and the jury box will remain for commissioner's court and similar meetings; regular county court will be held in the district court room, County Judge McNeill said.

agricultural products will be very much higher than they are today. The day may come when industrial products will be manufactured from different and cheaper materials and hence have a smaller value, while the quality of farm products used in manufacturing will result in a much higher importance as well as value being placed upon agriculture as a business. Many types of plastics are already being made from farm products. With the strides chemistry is making thousands of materials embraced in consumer goods will have their origin on the farm.

Conclusion

Certainly the farmer can look forward to better days over the near term. The prosperity of the industrial areas is being felt in farming centers and mail order sales are reflecting the increased spending of our farm population. For the long pull a closer tie-up between agriculture and industry promises much. It may be that the increased development of our farming areas from an industrial point of view may do much to cushion the post-war slump.

 War statement.
 disclosed today that Roosevelt and Churchill have written a letter to Premier Satalin of the Red praising the heroic and to Nazi aggression and aid.
 German sources ridiculed the meeting and the pronouncement as a stunt propaganda stuff.
 administration leaders in the U. S. were laudatory. Rep. of New York applauded the crystallization of the aspirations of freedom people.
 Barkley, Senator majority said it would find an elastic reception among all who believe in democracy.
 assistant minority leader in house said "it is a good proposition but he would have to consider the details. Senator Downey of California said all persons would be on the ideals expressed in the two points, but might differ on the other points, aimed at out those ideals.
 Lee O'Daniel, new senator of Texas: "Very interesting", he would have to study it before saying more.
 Connally of Texas charged it as a "noble and magnificent statement of policy".
 Walter F. George and withheld judgement. GOP Short of Missouri was "The President", he said, true to form—taking first and telling congress later." He said undoubtedly kind of alliance was pledged "I don't like these secret agreements".
 Gerald P. Nye of North speaking to an American in Chicago, charged that administration has led the on the brink of war the lul- mises of peace.

forces under General Semyon Budenny in the Bug river area forced surrender or annihilation. The whole Western defense of the Ukraine, according to the German high command, is about to collapse.
 The only indication in the Red report that all was not going well for General Budenny was its failure to locate the military action in the Ukraine. Soviets claimed, however, that by and large defense were holding fairly well. They told of the destruction of 29 Nazi divisions, about 300,000 men. They said this figure did not include a number of other divisions, wholly or partly destroyed.
 Russians formally admitted loss of Smolensk, 235 miles west of and gateway to Moscow. Russians have held it four weeks after Germany claimed its capture and assertedly have piled up Nazi dead by the uncounted thousands.
 Germans apparently made some additional progress today in the Leningrad sector.
 The Nazi-dominated Paris press today reported riots in the former French capital, said they were incited by Jews and Communists.

Federal Oil Coordinator Harold Ickes revealed today that the first of four U. S. ships designated to carry aviation gasoline to Russia left Los Angeles today, presumably headed for the Siberian port of Vladivostok.
 It carried, he said, 95,000 barrels of 95 per cent octane gasoline. Other tankers are to follow soon. The ship that left today is under American registry and flies the American flag.
 Japan has cajoled and threatened against the U. S. shipping Red war supplies to Vladivostok. It claims it fears the supplies will remain there for use against Japan instead of going to the Russo-German front. At one time Japan rather openly implied that if the shipping continued German subs would strike at the U. S. vessels.

 The significance is not yet clear, but a pistol shot today wounded a Japanese prince, who in the past had been accused of Fascist tendencies, but was considered friendly to the U. S. and Britain. Tokyo apparently blamed the Black Dragon society, extreme nationalists and militarists.

"I BELONG TO YOU"

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

Later, alone with his grandmother in the sunny living-room of her small house, Brent told her about March. Abigail took the news of his marriage quietly. And listened while he tried to explain, justly and without bias, the reasons for his wife's attitude, the details of her decision to remain in the city. Abigail's troubled gaze rested on his face, but Brent's eyes were fixed on the dancing flames in the stone fireplace.

There was a look of grimness and defeat about his mouth, saying, "She wasn't wrong, Gran, but neither was I. The hellish part is, we're so different—and I love her so. I try to put her out of my mind and I can't. Once she said to me, 'I'll always come between you and anything that tries to keep us apart.' And that's how it is. . . . But I won't go back, I can't go back to that way of living!"

His head bent forward until it rested in his hands and the firelight played fitfully across his dark hair, his broad, bowed shoulders. Abigail sat rocking gently, her sewing forgotten in her lap, her gnarled hands idle. Her hair, that had once been as dark and crisp as Brent's, was white now. And she was old and the fire and passion of youth had turned to ashes within her. Her life was nearly done, a few years more, and years pass quickly for the aged. But Brent was young. His life stretched out before him, endless, empty, without this girl he loved. This girl Abigail did not know and yet who seemed to have gained substance from Brent's words, this lovely, arrogant, stubborn girl, who had put pride before love and gambled on the hope that Brent must capitulate when he saw that she would not. But the Randolph men were strong. Abigail could have told her that; Abigail who had married one of them and borne another. And in their strength lay their weakness, for it led them sometimes to destroy the things that were nearest their hearts. As Brent had done.

Abigail said bluntly, "Seems as though, loving each other, you might have found some common ground."

Lord knows I tried, Gran. I think March tried, too. We couldn't seem to—reach each other some way."

Abigail rocked on. After a while she said, "Maybe she'll change her mind. Women have been known to. In the meantime, it'll be better to say nothing about your marriage. There'll only be a lot of talk."

Even Brent, who wanted no part of subterfuge or pretense, saw the wisdom of her suggestion. But his heart cried out to March across the distance: March, my darling. . . . What have we done to each other? How have we come to this?

The days that followed seemed to Brent as empty as pages torn from a calendar. He prowled his grandmother's snugly comfortable house like a caged animal. He drove to town to see people, lining up workmen for early spring, making plans. He snowshoed back and forth between Abigail's cottage and the log house, sturdy and square, pathetic somehow in its disuse, that James Randolph had built on a high bluff overlooking the lake when he and Abigail first came to Kenoqua. It was this house Brent meant to enlarge and modernize into a central lodge. Cottages would be strung along the bluff on either side of it. There was an excellent beach below, sandy and gradual, where snow now stretched in an unbroken white expanse from shore to shore.

He tried to lose himself in plans for the future, more for his grandmother's sake than for his own. But, despite his efforts at concealment, Abigail was aware of the restless unhappiness that haunted his waking hours. And the knowledge lay like a weight on her valiant spirit, dimming her earlier delight at his coming.

One evening almost two weeks after Brent's arrival, Sara Gregory stopped at the Randolph house. The early winter dusk was falling. Beyond Abigail's windows the snow was softly blue. Brent had been standing idly, looking out, when he saw the slim figure in the dark red ski suit trudging up the path from the road.

Curiously, the thought of Sara had scarcely occurred to Brent until he saw her. Nor had his grandmother mentioned her except casually, saying that she was well and that she had been teaching the Keene's Point school for the past three years. Sara had not answered the letter Brent wrote the night he met March. But it had required no answer.

Now he crossed the small room swiftly and opened the door before she knocked, so that she looked up, startled, into his smiling face, forgetting the things she had meant to say, the greeting she had figured out so carefully. Saying his name instead, with an odd breathlessness.

Sara looked up, startled, into Brent's smiling face.

Brent drew her forward into the warmth of the room, into the light. He said, his hands still clasping hers, "Sara, it's great to see you! And you haven't changed."

She hadn't changed. She was merely more beautiful than he had remembered, more vivid, more alive. Her cheeks were flushed with cold, her eyes darkly bright by contrast.

Brent called across his shoulder, "Gran, here's Sara." Abigail came in, wiping her floury hands on her apron. Abigail had been making biscuits for supper. She exclaimed fondly, "Well, take off your things, child, and get warm! I'd been wondering whether you'd forgotten me."

Sara's cool, firm lips brushed her cheek. "As though I could, Mrs. Randolph! But I knew how much you and Brent would have to talk about."

She slipped out of her jacket with its upturned parka, gave her brown curls a casual pat. Between her and Brent was none of the stiffness and strain she had anticipated with such dread. Here was no stranger, but the same quiet, rather grave boy she had known and loved so long ago. Whom she still loved. In her heart Sara admitted it frankly. . . . They sat there, talking and laughing, Abigail and Sara and Brent. And the fire crackled on the hearth and the night grew darker. Brent had changed, Sara realized, growing accustomed to his nearness, studying him more closely under cover of their easy talk. He looked older, a little thinner, and there were lines of restraint or weariness at the corners of his mouth. But he seemed genuinely glad to see her. At the thought, hope sprang up in Sara, who had thought never to hope again. . . .

"Stay for supper," Abigail commanded. "If your mother knew you were stopping by, she won't worry. She'll know I'd try to keep you." Brent said, "Gran, that's an inspiration. And we'll eat here by the fire. I'll bring in the table."

They lingered long over the simple, yet delicious, meal. And when they were through at last, Sara and Brent insisted upon doing the dishes.

Brent accused his grandmother, "You work too hard, anyway. I think you should get a girl to help you."

Abigail said, "Nonsense! If I had a girl to do the work, what would I do?"

But she allowed herself to be persuaded to sit on before the smoldering fire, while from the little kitchen came laughing voices and the clatter of china and silver. The homely sounds lulled her, so that she nodded and roused and slept again. Not since his arrival had Brent seemed so like his old, normal self. And Abigail was glad.

She was awakened suddenly by someone pounding on the outer door and stumbled to her feet confusedly, moving toward the sound by instinct. She was vaguely aware of Brent and Sara, coming through the doorway behind her, of Brent's voice, exclaiming, "Who on earth can it be at this hour?" She pulled open the door and peered out uncertainly into the darkness.

Cal Tate stood there, bulky and familiar in his old coonskin coat, and beside him was a girl, a slim, fair girl Abigail had never seen before, a girl whose teeth were chattering, whose eyes were wide and dark and seeking in a white face, pinched with cold.

Cal was saying heartily, "It's Brent's wife, Miz Randolph. Imagine that sly fox holding out on us! She got in on the ten o'clock an' I just happened to be down to the depot."

Brent was beside his grandmother then. And the girl was in his arms, her face pressed close to his as he half drew, half lifted her into the warm room. Cal said something about bags and went back down the steps and Abigail shut the door against the bitter wind, a great tide of thankfulness rising within her.

But Sara, standing shocked and forgotten in the dining-room doorway, turned away from that look of deep fulfillment on Brent's face. And her heart contracted at the humble huskiness of his voice, murmuring, "March. . . . March, my dear. You did come. . . ."

Lonesome Cowgirl Wanting Husband

Dan Spencer of the Scott Motor Co. wants help.

He can peddle cars. And he's proved he can run an XIT Reunion. The sixth annual event, just closed, was eminently successful. Spencer has brilliantly settled all its problems—but one. And here it is in the world of a lonesome cowgirl:

"President XIT Association, 'Dalhart, Texas.

"Please do not think I'm crazy. I am not. I'm only mildly loco from too much aloneness, and homesickness.

"I wish I could have attended your round-up, but was not in a position to do so. Too busy working for bread and potatoes.

"Now here is what I've got to say. I want to hear from some lonesome old chap, who has enough of this world's goods to divide with two, for 'you can't take it with you.'

"One who has no children, who is alone, like myself. Who is sober, industrious and would like a good pal to side range with to the last round-up. I am country-raised, so often long for the wide open field and fresh air.

"Am a widow, not too old, not too young. Said to be nice to look at, that is if one is not too hard please. And of good old Southern stock. Baptist faith, good health, full of life. No, I do not drink smoke. But am not an angel, either. Love home and would appreciate a good man.

"Now, if in your wide acquaintance you know such a man who would be interested in knowing just hand him this letter. I would like several old pen pals, who might enjoy a letter once in a while.

"My grandfather at one time, I've been told, was an old Texas rancher. I did not know him, only him. If you know no one just drop in wastebasket. And I'll say thank you for reading it. Of course, the name I'm going to give is not the correct one. But anyone interested will be answered in my correct name. All letters will be answered.

Nervous indigestion, my stomach would flutter and almost choke. My kidneys bothered me. I could not sleep at night. After eating I had bloating, belching spells. Pains in my hips and legs kept me awake. I immediately reached for a bottle of my trouble. I can sleep and my kidneys are quiet. My nerves are quiet. I feel better in every way. The compound has done wonders for me.

IN THE ARMY NOW!
WHY AND HOW
By S. T. Williamson

Here are two capsules of concentrated military history. Capsule I: In 1870 German armies poured across the border. With irresistible efficiency they defeated the French in six weeks and were in Paris. France changed from an Empire to a Republic.

Capsule II: Seventy years later, in 1940, German armies poured into the Low Countries. With irresistible efficiency they defeated the Allies in six weeks and were in Paris. France changed from a Republic to an I-don't-know-what.

Sez you: "What have these two capsules to do with life in the U. S. Army?"

Sez I: "Plenty." Whether swallowed or picked apart and analyzed, these events have a bearing upon what sort of an Army we have. The people who swallow both capsules whole say, "History demonstrates the success of German military efficiency; therefore to have an efficient defense we must copy the Germans closely."

The people who analyze both capsules say, "Despite their successes, Germans made mistakes; we must profit by both. Our Army must not imitate the Germans slavishly; an imitation is never as good as the real thing. Our defense problem is not only to equal or excel the German best, but to train, organize—even pioneer—where Germans are weak or have fallen down."

Step by step, along with training green recruits in fundamentals, our Army is gradually evolving its own military doctrines. It has formed experimental divisions, based upon what it has learned from last year's invasion of France; and their performances during the next three months of maneuvers will have a decided influence upon our future military organization.

Meanwhile, what's in the mail? R. H. K. Rockport, Mass.: I registered for the draft in Newark where I was then living, but now my residence is 250 miles away. Now I am directed to report to my Newark local board for physical examination. This means I must travel 500 miles there and back. Is there some solution?

You may request a transfer to the local board where you now live. Paragraph 382 of Selective Service Regulations authorizes this if it is a hardship upon the registrant to comply with notices from the local board with which he registered.

D. C. L., Spokane, Wash.: Is "doughboy" the only army slang for an infantry man?

By no means. A doughboy is also a blister foot and a gravel-agitator, and from then on you can make up your own.

NYA Applications Are Necessary Now

Boys and girls wanting student work jobs under the National Youth Administration program should make immediate application to the head of the school or college they wish to attend.

That is the announcement from J. C. Kellam, state NYA administrator at Austin. NYA applications, he said, have been made in the 254 counties, and directly to schools in cities of 25,000 or more. He estimates that NYA will be able to help about 20,000 students aged 16 to 24, during the school term in Texas. Try newspaper advertising

2 Joe Langhornes
Letter Discloses

Roy Thompson, formerly of Dalhart and now of Sweetwater the other day got a letter from Joe Langhorne—but he was in the insurance business in Henderson and not a barber, horseman, golfer and all around sports lover from Dalhart.

So Thompson wrote to Joe Langhorne, pioneer Dalhartan, who says the Joe Langhorne of Henderson is his first cousin.

Thompson said in his note that he recently had a good visit with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tatum.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ray have returned to their home near San Francisco, Calif., following a visit here with relatives.

J. F. Adams Yard And Garden Show Places

By ED BISHOP

What one woman can do by hard work and one man can claim credit for is ably demonstrated by a garden and yard at the J. F. Adams place at 614 Olive street, where black-eyed peas are growing in profusion and string beans are running a close second.

The Adams yard has a natural incline toward the front and this was used to an advantage when the garden was so arranged that when watered the water drained off onto the lawn where Bermuda grass has recently been set out.

Thoroughly at home in the art of growing things Mr. Adams has had years of experience. In fact the 75-year-old pioneer takes pride in naming the year that most of the best trees in Dalhart were planted. He makes no mistake because he either planted them or helped to get them started.

Starting June 22, Mr. and Mrs. Adams set out their first black-eyed peas and beans. At regular intervals of about ten days other rows of beans and peas were set out and as a result they have plenty on the vines now and an ample supply coming up. Radishes were planted but the birds got the seed. Turnips will soon be ready and Mrs. Adams has some mustard plants of which she is particularly proud.

While most of the talk and explanation of the garden was done by Mr. Adams, he occasionally admitted that "this was planted by the wife." We asked about the beautiful morning glories that cling to the front of the house and he explained that they are the property of Mrs. Adams. Later we discovered that most of the garden is also the property of the lady of the house.

"Not since about 1920 have we had a better garden," Mr. Adams explained. "Most every year we have some kind of a garden, but this is one of our best." Asked about the cost of producing the garden, he stated that his water bill seldom exceeded five dollars and "it would have been almost that high without a garden."

The grass on the Adams yard is just getting started and will be leveled off after it has got a good start and has spread out.

Some idea of the work necessary to produce the garden this year can be obtained by looking at the weeds back of the alley on the vacant lot west of the Adams place. Before the garden was planted weeds were cut, carried out into the alley and allowed to deteriorate, then placed back on the ground as a fertilizer.

An interesting experiment is being carried on at the Adams place. In a small plot they have used commercial fertilizer and another plot cowlot fertilizer was used. "Commercial fertilizer is mighty

Dalhart Band To Perryton Fete; To Rehearse Tonight

Director C. W. Beene this morning announced a Dalhart High School-XIT band rehearsal at the band hut tonight at 8:00.

He also announced that the band would go to Perryton's birthday celebration Aug. 22. Perryton's crack band, he reminded, supported the Sixth Annual XIT Reunion in Dalhart a fortnight ago.

good if properly handled," Mr. Adams stated.

When visitors come, and the Adams children are expected home for a visit in September, it is very unlikely that they will go hungry at this place that has been home to these pioneers for so many, many years.

DEFENSE BOND Quiz

Q. Why should Americans buy Defense Bonds and Stamps now?

A. Among the reasons are: (1) It is the quickest way in which every citizen can both serve his country and conserve his earnings, and (2) the purchase of the Bonds and Stamps helps not only to finance National Defense but also to prevent high prices and increased cost of living.

Q. Can I pledge a Defense Bond as collateral for a bank loan?

A. No. Bonds are registered and not transferable. They are payable only to the persons named on the Bond.

Note.—To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the Treasury of the United States, Washington, D. C., for a mail-order form.
