Iran Resistance Is Halted

Iranians reportedly have stopped fighting and agreed to a peaceful occupation of the country by the British and Russians. But the Allies, fearing a German-engineered trick, are maintaining alertness and rapidly pushing armed occupation of the strategic oil and transportation centers.

Reds said they had halted Nazi-Finnish thrusts against Leningrad. But observers agreed that a more significant action is the bustling Russian drive that is hammering toward Gomel, taken by the Germans several days ago.

Some observers said at noon that Gomel might have been re-taken by the Reds. The Soviets said this drive had already smashed five enemy divisions, and that their forces were slicing steadily through heavy German resistance.

This counter-attack is significant because if successful, it will eliminate the chance of a German flank attack against the Russian lines stretching from Gomel southward to the Black Sea.

If that flank attack ever develops, the Nazi conceivably could cut in behind the Red defenders, and paralyze all Soviet resistance south of Moscow and west of the rich Donetz industrial basin.

Nazis reiterated their last night's report that they had reached and cut Russia's vital Leningrad-Moscow railway.

Pierre Laval, vice-premier in the Vichy government before he was shown the door by Premier-Marshal Petain and long an ardent pro-Nazi, is reportedly resting well this afternoon after physicians had operated to remove the bullet of his would-be assassin.

Paul Colette, 29, who made his attempt yesterday under the very thumbs of Nazi watchdogs, injured three other persons, apparently pro-Nazi Frenchmen, who were trying to protect Laval. The politician was shot in Versailles as he accepted volunteers to fight the Russians.

The attempt accelerated the ruthless German and Vichy program to stamp out terrorists and Communists. Three persons were guillotined today in Paris. Many others drew long prison terms.

Most commentators see special significance in the fact that Colette contends and may have proven that he is a supporter of General Charles de Gaulle, leader of the Free French forces, that have never stooped to lick the Nazi boots.

Germany has been claiming all along that the unrest and wave of sabotage in France were due to

Planned Sabotage Strongly Implied

WASHINGTON — "Sinister and planned sabotage" may be back of charges that there is no Eastern gasoline shortage, and that reports of it are only Administration efforts to whip up war propaganda, declared Assistant Oil Coordinator Davies today.

The Eastern gasoline situation unfortunately is a weak spot in the nation's defense program, he added. And because of that might be the target of saboteurs who are using it to create confusion and spread dissension.

As proof of the fact that there is a real gasoline shortage, he said he could get no bidders on a contract to furnish 2,500,000 barrels of oil to the U. S. Navy.

Tankers were so busy hauling gasoline to the Atlantic seaboard, that companies would not consider the oil contract unless the Navy's own tankers would haul the oil from the Gulf coast.

Square Dancers To Buffalo Lake Fete

Eight members of the Dalhart Square Dance club last night at Buffalo Lake, south of Amarillo, attended a special square dance party, including a dinner, honoring Jimmy Clossin of El Paso.

Clossin, who is recreation director for the county and city of El Paso, frequently borrowed by the State WPA office at San Antonio to journey over Texas, organize and train square dance clubs.

He was in Dalhart last spring for four days, gave instruction to more than 200 persons and helped get the thriving Dalhart Square Dance club started.

He is now giving instruction in the Buffalo Lake area. The event in his honor was arranged by the Amarillo Heel & Toe Dance club.

Dalhartans attending were Messrs. and Mesdames S. F. Weaver, D. H. Allred, Sam Huggins and Henry Rhoades. Weaver is president of the Dalhart club.

They report a fine visit with Clossin and a royal reception by the Amarillo dancers. The Amarillo group was invited to Dalhart, and said they would visit the local club sometime in October.

MRS. PETRA GOLANO DIES IN CITY THIS MORNING

Mrs. Petra Golano, 75, mother of Mrs. Max Gallegos, died this morning in Dalhart. She had been ill a week. Last rites will be held tomorrow morning at 10:00 from St. Anthony's Catholic church. Burial will be in the Dalhart cemetery.

Appendix Finally Stops Him

Martins Ferry, O. (UP) — Sam Canda, 22, of Fort Worth, Texas, is a game roofer for the New York Yankees. He left Texas by bus with two tickets for the world series games in New York, but he developed appendicitis and was taken off the bus in three different cities. Hospital attendants here finally decided to operate. Canada heard the games by radio in his hospital room.

Merry-Go-Round And FDR Accused Of Big Frame-Up

Washington — Newsmen around the White House are accusing F.D.R., Drew Pearson and Bob Allen with secret collusion. On Monday morning The Washington Merry-Go-Round came out with the flat story that Francis Biddle would be appointed Attorney General and Charles Fahy would be made Solicitor General. Pearson and Allen made no reservations whatsoever. They went out on a limb all the way.

But they didn't stay there long. A few hours later, about twelve o'clock noon to be exact, President Roosevelt sent to the Senate the names of Francis Biddle and Charles Fahy to be Attorney General and Solicitor General respectively.

Five Persons In Head-On Collision

Two women, a baby and two men escaped death last night when their cars crashed head-on, three miles southeast of Hartley on U. S. Highway 87.

Mrs. Nevada Ragon, 22, and her 20-month-old daughter, Priscilla Ruth; and Mrs. Ragon's sister, Mrs. Florence Franklin, 18, of Dalhart, were in a coupe. The women are daughters of Mrs. Paul Vernon, of Dalhart.

Thurman Powers, 22, and Jake M. Blakeney, 24, both of Hartley, and employed by P. G. and Gardie Bryant, were in the other car.

Blakeney reportedly is injured internally. Powers has a chest injury; a gash on his chin and suffered loss of two teeth.

Mrs. Ragon has an injured left eye and knee. Mrs. Franklin's left ankle and knee were hurt, and she has a cut over her right eye.

The baby, at the home of its paternal grandmother, Mrs. Pat O'Connor, has minor cuts and bruises.

Grains And Stocks Are Irregular Today

Both grains and stocks are mixed today. Chicago wheat at noon was a quarter to three-eighths of a cent lower than yesterday's close: Sept. $1.113 3-8. Corn was up a half to three-quarters: Sept. 77 1-2. Oats were up one to one and three-quarters: Sept. 47 3-8.

Trading was brisk the first hour on the New York stock market, then it slackened off and fourth hour volume was 290,000 shares. Industrials in the Dow-Jones list, at the end of the fourth hour, were up 54 cents; rails were off 17; utilities advanced 6. The entire list was up 9.

Cotton in New York and New Orleans was about 4 to 8 points higher.

Ambassadors Meeting Tonight

The regular weekly meeting of the Ambassador club will be tonight at 8:00 in the club rooms, officials reminded today.

More than 30 Dalhart firms have already joined the community-wide effort to step up sales of defense saving stamps, it was revealed at noon.

But this is just a starter in the opinion of J. T. Mann, Jr., chairman of the Dallam County Defense Bond Committee; and Postmaster Jack M. Wade, who is a member of Mann's committee and also is chairman of the Dallam County Postmasters committee for sale of defense savings bonds and stamps.

The plan for stepping up sales of defense savings stamps briefly is this:

All stores, retail outlets, banks and similar institutions are henceforth to keep a supply of defense savings stamps in their cash registers and when a customer makes a purchase he can, if he likes, take the stamps in change; or he can take part of his change in stamps.

It his, however, been emphasized time and again that no one will be urged to take the stamps. They will simply be offered to men and women, boys and girls.

Behind this national program, which was organized locally by the County Defense Bond and County Postmasters committees, headed by Mann and Wade, is this reasoning: A person with a spare dime or quarter might not take the trouble to go to the post office to buy a defense savings stamp, but if one was offered to him in the store or firm where he happened to be at the time he would jump at the chance to take it.

Mann and Wade, with help they have been able to enlist, have tried to contact every firm in Dalhart and ask them personally to join the campaign. That, of course, has been impossible in the short time allotted. The two men had their own businesses to look after, preventing them from making all the contacts they had mapped. In addition, they missed some managers and owners when they made the call.

For that reason the 33 firms whose names are signed to the page ad in today's Texan represents just the start of the campaign, Mann and Wade said. The ad sets forth the necessity and benefits of defense savings purchases.

"We expect to keep right on until we do contact every business institution in the city," Mann said. "We would like to have 100 per cent cooperation, and the splendid response secured so far indicates that the goal is not at all impossible."

While the local program was being perfected by Mann and Wade, it so happened that about the same time a similar program, planned on a national basis, was being developed.

Part of the national program was to put the defense savings stamps on sale in the nation's several million chain stores. His phase of the program was organized down to a state and community basis. More than a thousand chain stores in Texas lined up. A. G. Riplett, manager of the J. C. Penney Co. store in Dalhart, was made chairman of the Dalhart Chain Store Managers Association.

When he got his literature and instructions for starting the chain store defense savings stamps campaign locally the program originated by Mann and Wade was already in gear.

The WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round by Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON—There was real dynamite behind that let President Roosevelt sent the Democrats convention in the White House as "obstructionists who are wrong party."

The scorching attack was a tip-off to the next year's congressional session the hottest in years.

It has been said about it, certain Administration and Republican leaders have discussed to oppose all congressional proposals regardless of party label.

The proposed plan, Administration backing would be behind incumbent anti-isolationist Congressmen whether Democrats or Republicans. A strong coalition candidate would be entered against isolationist Congressmen seeking re-election.

One of the most significant about the plan is that it has the hearty approval of Wendell

It is with a group of the GOP standard bearer. The people should have opportunity in every senatorial congressional election next year of a clear-cut expression of opinion on this all-important issue of foreign policy. This referendum should not be cluttered up with inconsequential issues.

Districts represented by isolationists we should put the best candidate in the field we can, regardless of his party or economic views. I'd like to see men and women brought into this fight. It's primarily and they should be lead in it.

Personally, I am prepared to support anti-isolationist candidates of their party affiliation and economic views. If they are on the foreign issue, then I will support them and will take the lead for them."

Fighting On More Than One Front Is Good Strategy

BUT YOU'VE GOT TO BE EQUIPPED FOR IT

War isn't the only activity in which you usually have to fight on more than one front.

Take farming, for instance. It has a whole host of fronts. Behind each of them lies profit. But to realize those profits you've got to be able to go into action on the proper front at the proper time.

That all adds up to having the right kind of planning, plus adequate equipment.

As the Horrible Example, take Hitler. He had to go to bat against Russia on the Eastern front before he was through in the West. He hadn't planned on that, so he had to take needed equipment out of the West for his fight in the East. That left his Western guard down. As a result the RAF has been playing hob with him.

England came near being a Horrible Example. It overslept the alarm. As a result it lost some fronts, like in Yugoslavia and Greece. But it's planning better now. It and Russia have just opened a new front in Iran. Instead of it being a problem, like the Eastern front is to Hitler, it's a help. It shortens the Pacific route for U. S. supplies to the Near East, whence they can be transhipped to Russia, the Suez area or North Africa.

There's a lesson in this, it seems to us, for the farmer. He wants to plan his work so he's through on one front before he has to shift to another; or so each front he opens will be a help.

With good equipment he can do this. He gets his plowing done in time to take advantage of the most favorable planting season. He gets that done in time to start cultivating at the right moment. The weeds never get the jump on him.

He gets harvesting done on time. Then if he has versatile equipment, like Farmall tractors and the McCormick-Deering line, he can make ensilage, or do a thousand and one other things that all add up to more farm profits.

We've also got a big repair and service department ready to serve you any time you need it.

MERRY-GO-ROUND—

a contented gnaw, he ran away.
The Marine pursued, and when he finally caught up with Falla, the dog was attacking the bone in a strategic position between two pairs of legs. One pair belonging to Winston Churchill, and the other pair belonged to his master.

POLITICAL-GO-ROUND

Some Democratic leaders in Oregon have launched a movement to give the State's able, veteran Senator Charles McNary the Democratic as well as the Republican nomination when he comes up for re-election next year. McNary stands high in Roosevelt's esteem and Administration chiefs have expressed approval of the non-partisan plan. . . Although 1944 is still a long way off, Illinois' ambitious Governor Dwight H. Green already is dreaming dreams about the GOP presidential nomination. Political intimates launched a boom for him at a luncheon at French Lick attended by GOP bigwigs from Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky. In political circles the affair is viewed as savoring strongly of a "stop Willkie" movement. . . Senator "Curly" Brooks, militant Illinois isolationist, will have tough opposition for the GOP nomination next spring. Former Representatives Ralph E. Church is planning to oppose Brooks squarely on his isolationist record.

BRASSHAT DIDOES

Bloody strife rages the length and breadth of Europe. A new phase of the war is about to burst in Iran. The Far East is a powder keg. But Navy brasshats are all atwitter over rival publicity schemes.

The undercover fracas is as hilarious as anything seen on a Gilbert and Sullivan stage.
It began several months ago when Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, conceived the idea of boosting morale in factories filling Navy orders by giving public recognition for especially good work. So Admiral Blandy asked James Selvage, former ace Washington newsman, to work out a plan.

Selvage's recommendation was simple, inexpensive and apt. He proposed that the Navy's E (for "excellent") now awarded banners to ships with the highest efficiency rating should also be applied to factories, and that factory workers should receive small "E" buttons.

Admiral Blandy liked the plan and adopted it for his Bureau. Whereupon Admiral Samuel M. Robinson, chief of the Bureau of Ships, decided that shipyards too should be given awards. But instead of adopting the E plan, he asked Albert Lasker, big-gun advertising executive, to devise a new award.

Lasker delegated the job to his son, Edward, who after lengthy cogitation, finally emerged with one of the most elaborate hooplas ever conceived by an advertising agency to hypnotize a million dollar client.

The presentation covered 30 pages and called for cash prizes, awards of wrist watches, picking the best plant of the week, month, six months, and so on. The plan had everything in it but a dog show.

Young Lasker's creation immediately raised a furore in Navy press circles, where it was pointed out that the cost would run into millions, and would require a staff of several hundred to operate it. Also dishing out cash and other valuable prizes to highly-paid factory workers would bring a storm of protests from the families of selectees now serving their country for $21 a month.

But Admiral Robinson is sticking by the Lasker scheme, and the gentlemen in gold braid now have another weighty problem to keep them in fighting mettle.

Note: Comptroller General Warren Lindsay, asked for an informal opinion on the Lasker plan, warned that he would not approve any expenditures for cash prizes.

CAPITAL CHAFF

There's a story going around Washington that Emperor Hiale Selassie, after returning triumphant to his people in Ethiopia, sent a cable to Churchill saying, "Now that we've finished the job, what do we do with the tools?" . . . Daily diplomatic reports to the State Department from London are so voluminous it takes two hours merely to read them. . . A new annex of the British Embassy is just being completed. This is the third addition to the Embassy establishment since the war began.

PROPHET

No. 1 prophet of the isolationist cause is Senator Burt Wheeler. Years ago, Wheeler also made an interesting prophecy regarding the railroads.

To stimulate lagging heavy goods industries in 1939, the President sent to Congress the so-called Lend-Spend bill containing a $500,000,000 item whereby the government would finance the railroads in order to buy thousands of freight cars and other needed equipment.

Wheeler vehemently opposed this, contended the carriers had plenty of freight cars, and as chairman of the Interstate Commerce committee, was able to kill the plan.

Today, with each passing week setting new freight records, the railroads are frantically beseeing Defense chiefs for greater steel priorities to build the freight cars tardily ordered last winter for delivery by October; more than 20,000 will not be ready on time.

In fact, at the present rate of output of 6000 a month, the full order will not be completed until next January.

ACUTE SHORTAGE

Meanwhile, with the September-October traffic peak approaching, the freight car situation is becoming menacing.

The railroads still optimistically claim they will be able to meet the constantly skyrocketing demand for freight cars. But they predicted a freight traffic increase of only 12.5 per cent this year, or 40,900,000 carloads, and already the figure is over 17 per cent. Defense experts estimate it will top 20 per cent—46,000,000 carloads—beginning in September, when the heavy fall harvest movements get under way.

That will mean a shortage of 135,000 freight cars, approximately the number it was proposed to buy under the Lend-Spend plan killed by Wheeler.

Defense experts believe the only way to avert a catastrophic transportation muddle such as the country experienced in the World War is a drastic rationing of freight cars, plus a huge expansion of trucking through the use of the vast fleet of trucks owned by the Army. But they say nothing about the gasoline!

The ePnney Co. and the other chain stores wholeheartedly joined it, putting vigorous and willing shoulders to the wheel, Wade and Mann said.

Generally speaking, they said, all Dalhart stores will carry the ten and 25-cent defense stamps. And each store will have albums in which these stamps can be kept. Persons wanting the 50-cent, $1.00 and $5.00 stamps will be able to get them at some stores; they can make a special request for them; or they can get them at the post office where they will always be available.

The 33 firms pledged to the community-wide program at noon

AUSTIN—The 70,000 members of the Texas Federation of Women's club will not only observe Texas Children's Week, Sept. 7-13, but hope to do something constructive in connection with it.

The week has been proclaimed by the governor, and the TWFC is anxious to link its efforts with all other community and civic forces.

Clubs during that week, said State TFWC President Mrs. J. W. Walker of Planview, should devote that week to consideration of the every day problems of children.

She said they are especially urged to plan programs for pointed and constructive study of the problems of the state's under-privileged and physically handicapped children.

"Those are my wife's initials. Everything I have in her name."

The fellow who writes "The Range Rider" in the Amarillo News and who stuck his neck out by criticizing the condition of the Dalhart cemetery came into our office yesterday and said, "Here's a little check to help out in the work of the Dalhart Cemetery Association. I want you folks to know that I have always appreciated sincerely the fine citizenship of Dalhart and wouldn't say or do anything that I thought might injure them or this community. It was a pleasure to notice how much constructive work has already been done at the cemetery since I was here a short time ago and maybe this check will help the good work along."

Of course you know by this time that the speaker was Mason King but you don't know that the "little" check was for $25.00, more than twice the amount that local people have contributed to this work thus far. Thanks to Mrs. Sam Marks the local contributions have not been altogether a complete failure. Mrs. Marks brought her check in for three dollars Tuesday.

If we haven't done anything else we have proven to Mason King, John McCarty and other Amarillo people who happen to read the Dalhart Texan that we can "take" it" when we know the medicine is good for us. This time Mason handed us a dose that we knew would improve our condition if we swallowed it. It wasn't altogether pleasant for those effected with "civic pride" and no effect on those who just don't care was noted whatsoever. Maybe it just takes longer for this medicine to work. Anyway here's thanks to Mason from those of us who care.

I wrote and mailed a letter yesterday that will be of interest to some local folks. For that reason an exact copy of it is published here.

Mr. Colin Neblett, Chairman, Department of Game and State of New Mexico Santa Fe, N. M.

Dear Sir:
Recently several local sportsmen were arrested and fined by Game Warden of New Mexico Conchas Lake, for violating game laws. Since that time my understanding that they had paid their fines, had their licenses returned to them, and the property they were seized to leave in possession of the State as a guarantee of their return to either face trial or pay their fines. It is not the purpose of this letter to either defend or criticize the action of the local sportsmen or the game warden. We are particularly interested in the other than a statement that to have been made by you game warden in a conversation with the attorney representing local parties.

We have been advised that the State Game Warden has made a statement that Texas sportsmen are consistently violating the game and Fish laws of New Mexico and they are all poor sportsmen. That special efforts are being made to "lay for" Texas people to prosecute them on the spot.

It is of interest to the public particularly the Texas people who furnish the State of New Mexico with its greatest number of fishermen, to know a statement was made by the State Game Warden and if it represents the views and policies of the State Game and Fish Department.

The further fact that it is reported that your State Game Warden used exceptionally strong language in his statement about sportsmen prompts this letter. It will be appreciated if you furnish a reply to this letter. We may pass on to our readers the Texas Panhandle. Very yours, The Dalhart (Texas) Fishing Co.

Selfish Politicians, Professors May Run Nation Into Ground

By ROGER W. BABSON

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 30.—The nation should be run for the good of the people as a whole. Because a person has money—especially if inherited—he should have no special privileges. Likewise, no special privileges should go to any group because they happen to be organized.

Are We Free?

Government should run a nation on a "free and equal" basis. For selfish political reasons, Congress has thrown out this basic principle. We are giving special privileges to special groups. Real freedom no longer exists for any except those belonging to the CIO or those on relief. Neither politics nor socialism will win World War II.

One of the oldest American sports is horse racing. Yet, the story is told that a certain New Dealer objects to it "because it is inhuman." He recommends that the horses be examined and judged by their "points." Says he, "Better still, march them before the grandstand and let the audience VOTE, in a truly democratic manner, which is the best horse."

Ways of Selecting Leaders

Leaders are absolutely necessary under every form of government—Monarchist, Fascist, Socialistic, or American. The main difference in these four forms is in their methods of selecting leaders. Heredity determines who shall be leaders under Monarchies; brute force determines them under Fascism; college professors determine them under Socialism. "Survival of the Fittest" should (and did until 1900) determine the leaders of the United States and Canada.

We are no longer free to work, employ, buy, sell, or in any way earn a living, except under rules laid down by college professors. These men are honest and anxious to do right; but they lack practical experience.

Professors Are Poor Executives

We all respect college professors as men. All of us know some to whom we owe much. But they won their positions by being good teachers in non-competitive work supported by taxation or endowments. Yet, you and I know that getting our daily bread is a constant struggle under very competitive conditions. These college professors have had little experience in factories, stores, or on farms either as workers or employers. They do not understand our problems.

This is why Washington is in a jam today. This is why national defense is being held up. Theorists are useful in college halls; but they will never win a war nor solve unemployment problems. When we need a surgical operation, we do not send for a professor of physiology, but rather for one who has had actual experience in surgery. Washington and Ottawa today need men with more practical experience.

The Debt Question

Some of these professors have a wrong conception of debt and taxes. In 1900, U. S. taxes were only 6 per cent of the national income. Between 1900 and 1929, taxes doubled to become 12 per cent of the national income. By 1941, taxes have become over 25 per cent of the national income. In 1900, it would have taken only $150 of everyone's savings to wipe out the public debt. Today, it would take about $1500 from every man, woman, and child. Have we got it? Yet, these professors say we must expect our government to run on a deficit for years to come!

Many citizens believe these professors are over-emphasizing "humanitarianism" which is linked up with this debt question. Of course we should help others; but the present method of giving relief may be doing others a wrong. The solution of the unemployment problem lies with employers and the unemployed. The present relief system—designed by college professors who never hired anyone—makes men more unemployable.

Where Are Super-Men?

A nation perhaps could toy with the alphabet—AAA, NRA, OPM, OPACS, etc.—if more super-men existed, but "a river cannot rise higher than its source." The capacity of every man has limitations. The real difficulty today is that tremendous undertakings are being carried on by only average men. This means that whatever hon-

I CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as Lively as a Youngster— Now her Backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with our kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

est and well-meaning officials advise, you had better: (1) Get out of debt and stay out. (2) Accept what the Government gives you as subsidies or aid; but operate your business, farm, or household so that when this is withdrawn you will not be broke. (3) Insist your children get a good USEFUL education—not merely a diploma—and take some adult educational courses yourself. (4) Develop health and character, remembering your local church.

Life Terribly Complicated

Professors decide questions according to textbooks written by men who also never had enough practical experience. Professors do not realize what a great factor human nature is and how difficult it is to change economic habits. We all are like the cogs on the wheels of a watch. One broken cog, on one little wheel, ruins the watch.

Have these professors full conception of the magnitude and complexity of life? Many single factories make 20,000 different items. Some stores carry 100,000 different

Cub Charter To Be Presented Friday

A charter will be presented to the Dalhart Cub Scouts at 8:00 tomorrow night at the regular monthly pack meeting at the court house in the district court room.

Den mothers, Mrs. Jake Felder and Mrs. Ed Bishop, Cubmaster Earl Farris, and Chief Scout Executive Chester L. Dunlap will be in charge of the program.

An exhibit of the "Things That Go" — theme of the August den activities — will be judged according to dens, then individually, Cubmaster Farris said. Prizes will be awarded.

articles. If under Prohibition we could not regulate the sale of one commodity like whiskey, how can any nation regulate the sale of thousands? It is like attempting to upset nature. Killing off the birds brings pests; killing one pest brings another.

Co-Operative Movement

I am not appealing for capitalism, per se. There are things more important than bigness, money, and even efficiency. As we progress, we will gradually co-operate more, reducing needless waste and unfair practices. Sane leaders of the Co-operative Movement are probably aiming at the right goal. To reach this goal, however, needs a spiritual awakening on the part of us all.

IN THE ARMY NOW!
WHY AND HOW
By S. T. Williamson

If your name is on a voters' list, if you have a post office box, or if you are in a telephone directory, it's a safe guess that sometime during the year you have received the mailed arguments of one of at least a half dozen organizations which are raising a ruck with the morale of the Army of the United States. Some are hell-bent for war; some are for war, a little bit; some are for war, maybe; some are for war, if, as and when; and some are for war "nohow."

They are affecting Army morale because they are doing more to divide than to unite the country; and it is civilian morale which makes Army morale. Upon one important matter these organizations and their spokesmen agree—at least publicly. All protest that they are for an impregnable national defense—and then they concentrate upon their pet arguments.

That being so, ask one question each of the interventionist and the non-interventionist leaders. Ask the interventionists: "How much effort are you making to be sure that we are fit to fight?" Ask the non-interventionists: "What have you done to further military preparedness in this country?" Then urge both to put forth dead-cats on ice until we have an army sufficiently trained to be a defensive force.

In the past year these organizations have collected and spent some $2,000,000. That is nearly one-sixth of what the United Service Organizations seek for community work for soldiers while on leave. It is too late to do anything about that two million, but partly because of its expenditure the country has been divided, and Army morale has suffered. To bolster that morale, U.S.O. will need a deal more money.

And we have a deal more mail. W. B. N., St. Paul, Minn.: Are Army officers permitted to write for publication without War Department censorship?

No restrictions apply to non-military topics, or to military subjects "which contain nothing prejudicial to military discipline." Otherwise, War Department permission is required.

V. E. C., Cleveland, Ohio: Are drafted men paid the same as regulars and national guardsmen?

Virtually the same. All receive $21 a month during the first four months of their service, then either pay for higher grades or privates' pay of $30 a month. Unlike selec-

Ambassadors Win First Playoff Game

The Ambassadors softball team won over Porters Market, 10-3, last night in the first of the three-game series to decide the Dalhart Softball League championship.

Batteries for Ambassadors were Swafford and Stout; for Porters, Davis and Koepple.

The game tonight will begin at 9:15, after the regular Thursday night Ambassador club meeting, officials remind.

Clayton To Have Labor Day Event

CLAYTON—Clayton is planning quite a program in connection with its $2,000 match roping contest that will be held in the fairgrounds Labor Day afternoon. The program begins at 1 p. m. Admission is 50 cents.

The match roping, arranged by Ferol Smith and Andrew Hamilton, ranchers of the Clayton section, will be between Pat Lewis, Las Vegas, N. M., and J. C. King of Capulin.

Smith is backing one of them, Hamilton the other. They are claimed to be among the very fastest ropers in the Southwest. Each will rope ten calves. The fastest aggregate time will win.

Other attractions include horse tees and national guardsmen, regulars are assessed 25 cents a month for U. S. Soldiers' Home Fund.

Oldham Now Owns City Grocery

There has been a friendly dissolution of the City Grocery partnership. Elton Oldham announced this morning that he had bought the interest of Jake Felder who purchased the Butrum Grocery in Albuquerque.

Oldham and Felder have been partners in the City Grocery for three years. For the prior seven years they were together in a local grocery store. And for six years previous to that they were associated in the grocery business in Hollis, where their fathers ran a grocery.

"We have been together a total of 13 years and both of us were glad to part," said Oldham this morning. "But on the other hand we felt the opportunity offered by Jake was one he shouldn't pass up."

Felder, Mary Beth and Son, plan to go to Albuquerque this week to live. Oldham was active in civic affairs and was a member of the Rita Flying club, headed by Herbert Peoples. He and Mrs. Felder was popular in her social set.

Communist sympathizers or Communists. If to these is added the strength of fearless patriots, determined to overthrow the Nazi yoke, the French can easily develop into a major problem for Hitler. This is especially so in view of his present relations with Russia, and the problems that have arisen in connection with Allied occupation.

Another embryonic head for Hitler is the Tokyo cabinet that most observers agree must result within a fortnight into: 1, a government seeking to re-establish full and friendly relations with the U. S. and Britain; or 2, a government pledged to a Pacific war. The current government seems to be in trouble principally over: 1, its inability to cope successfully with financial crisis resulting from British and American freezing of Japanese funds; 2, its inability to halt shipments of U. S. war supplies to the Reds at Vladivostok.

However, the present government may be driving hard to work out those problems before the zero hour in the cabinet crisis. Ambassador Nomura today had a 45-minute conference with President Roosevelt, and gave to him at that time a personal message from the Japanese premier. Its contents were not revealed. Secretary of State Hull sat in on the meeting; was even closeted briefly with Roosevelt before Nomura arrived.

OES Rob Morris Picnic Tomorrow

The Order of the Eastern Star will hold its annual Rob Morris picnic tomorrow evening at Rita Blanca lake, Mrs. E. L. House, acting secretary, said this morning.

All members and their families she said, are to bring a basket lunch. It will be spread at 6:30, and an interesting program will follow.

Mrs. House reminded that all members are urged to attend the OES meeting in the Masonic hall tonight. Final arrangements will be made for the picnic. Arrangements also will be made to meet with committees from the Dumas and Texline Orders and prepare a reception for Mrs. Robbie Dyer, Amarillo, worthy grand matron of Texas, and other grand officers.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

On the last night of his stay in Chicago, Griff took March to dinner at the penthouse of a friend. It was a gay party, not large, but composed of congenial people. The food was excellent, there was dancing to the music of a radio and the conversation was stimulating. March was enjoying herself thoroughly when Griff suggested that she permit him to show her the view from the terrace.

There was nothing wrong with the view. Lights below and stars above, all about the terrace the vague forms and fragrance of an exquisitely synthetic garden, infinitely removed from earth. The flashing lights made March think of Brent and of the night they had stood in the window of Clay Saunders' office, the night they had decided to marry. A rather romantic melancholy settled over her, thinking of Brent, missing him with all the fervor of her love. At first she was scarcely aware of what Griff Morgan was saying. It was the touch of his hand, laid over hers, that brought her abruptly back to the present, that made her concentrate with growing uneasiness on Griff's impassioned words and the shaken, unnatural tones of his voice, uttering them.

This wasn't the Griff she knew at all, the cynical, amusing person who took nothing seriously, least of all himself. It was as though a stranger stood beside her, saying incredible things. Not quite a stranger, though, nor were his words wholly incredible. For Griff had been changing all this last week. Belatedly March faced the fact and, facing it, looked back with a sharp sense of self-blame at all the little signs she had ignored so lightly. A word here, a look there, Griff's hands lingering on her shoulders as he held her wrap. And she had been too smugly intent on her own affairs, too secure in her love for Brent, to notice what was happening.

It was this troubling sense of her own responsibility that made her voice gentle, breaking in on the hot flow of his words, begging, "Griff . . . Griff, you mustn't say such things, you mustn't even think them . . ."

But Griff demanded, "Why not, my darling, when they're true? I've never been in love before. Once, years ago, I thought I was. Now I know the difference. I'm mad about you. You're inside of me, like a flame, warming me, making me alive."

March said, "No, Griff. No!" But he didn't hear her. He said, "Don't think I haven't fought against this—just as you're fighting. But it's bigger than we are. It shows up all our noble little resolves, the high-sounding 'Thou shalt nots' we set up to scare ourselves with, for what they are. All it takes to knock them down like so many ten-pins is a good breath of human feeling—" His voice was husky, shaken. He said, "I thought marriage wasn't for me, that it was no good. Having someone marry you for your money at nineteen is pretty hard on illusions. But knowing you has changed all that. It's changed me, March. We should have met long ago, when you were free. Since we didn't, there's divorce—"

March cut in sharply, "Divorced! You must be mad, Griff. I love my husband. I'm sorry you feel as you do. Please believe that. I thought we were—friends. I thought you looked upon me as I did you, someone who was congenial, someone to dance with and joke with, nothing more than that—"

Griff said hoarsely, his hands creeping upward to her shoulders so that she winced a little under his hurting grip, "You can't mean that,

March! You aren't serious. Surely you care—"

"Not for you, Griff," March said clearly, unequivocally. "Not like that. I love Brent. I love him so completely it must have blinded me to what was happening." Her voice was gentle again, a mere thread of sound there in the dark, the stillness. "I'm sorry . . ."

Griff said thickly, "Sorry!" He pulled her to him roughly, his mouth seeking hers. March struggled against that inexorable embrace, begging, "Griff, let me go!"

Panic gripped her and then, as his lips met hers in sheer conquest by strength, she ceased abruptly to struggle. She lay limp and quiescent in his arms while he kissed her hair and her warm throat where the quick pulse throbbed and then her mouth again, eliciting no response.

He gasped, putting her from him, "I can't reach you. I can't get near you." And then, accusingly, "What are you made of?"

March stood there, still and straight in the moonlight, a kind of terrible white finality in her face. She said, her voice level, low, "Of course you can't reach me. I don't love you, Griff. And now you've destroyed even the liking I felt for you. I'm going now and I don't want you to come with me. I don't want to see you again. Ever, do you understand, ever!"

She left him standing there by the terrace rail, staring blankly after her.

It was scarcely twenty-four hours later that March stepped off the train at Kenoqua. Her decision to return so suddenly had been engendered equally by that scene with Griff and her sharp longing to be with Brent again. It was like a golden thread, that longing, tenuous and strong, drawing her back along the miles that separated them. And she was glad to be so drawn, reveling in the prospect of Brent's arms holding her close, his lips pressing hers, effacing the bitter memory of other kisses.

She hadn't notified him of her arrival. As on that winter night when she first came to Wisconsin, no one met her. But there the resemblance ceased. Tonight there were other passengers alighting, there were people all about and Main Street was ablaze with lights. March got into one of the nondescript cars that served as taxis and asked to be driven to Abigail Randolph's house.

The lighted windows, shining square and yellow through the pines, seemed to beckon her. They seemed to say, Here is home. Here are all the things important to your happiness. Here are the people who matter. Here love lives. Here is work to be done, dreams to be dreamed.

In this moment and for the first time, March was consciously aware of these truths. And the memory of the slightly hectic gaiety of the days just past slipped from her like a willingly discarded garment. She thought, her heart singing, Why, I've changed. I'm different. I must tell Brent.

It was her going away and coming back again that had made her aware of the change within, that had opened her eyes to the quiet charm of this place, this mode of living. She must tell Brent that, too. A great impatience swelled in her, so that she sat forward on the extreme edge of the seat as the car swung onto the drive, halted. She pressed money into the driver's hand.

"Just set the bags on the walk. Thank you."

She was out of the car, up the steps quickly. Her hand was on the door-knob, the door was open. But the glad words on her lips were never spoken.

Brent sat there, alone, his back toward her. He hadn't heard the faint sounds of her coming. He was slumped forward, his dark head in his hands, desolation in every line of his long form.

March whispered, suddenly afraid, "Brent . . . Darling, what's wrong? I'm home—"

Brent turned slowly, a kind of terrible incredulity in his face. Then he was on his feet, looming above her, his hands clenched at his sides. And there was hate in his black gaze, the awful, vulnerable hate that springs from betrayed love. His voice shook, saying, "So you did come back!"

March's words fell like pebbles into the pool of his silence. "You knew I'd come back, Brent."

She could see that he was fighting for control over the emotions that seethed in him. A feeling of utter unreality gripped her. This couldn't be happening! It was senseless, causeless . . . Brent was like some figure of vengeance, terrifying in his wrath, infinitely removed from her. Futilely she groped for understanding.

Brent said, his voice sarcastic, cruel, "That's right. You couldn't know I'd find out about your plans to meet Griff Morgan in Chicago! You couldn't know the same blind fool who kissed you good-bye wouldn't be waiting to welcome you with open arms."

March caught his wrist, but he flung her off, as though her very touch sickened him. She said desperately, "Brent, I don't know what you've heard or who told you these lies—but you must listen to me! You must believe—" his brief laugh was like a slap, but March went on, "you must believe the truth. Griff was in Chicago. He followed me there. I hadn't the faintest idea he was coming."

"Will you deny you called him the morning you left?" Brent demanded.

March felt as though she were struggling through nightmare. She said, "I called him, but not about that. Oh, Brent, why should I lie when I've done nothing wrong, nothing of which I'm ashamed? I've never lied to you. I never shall. You mustn't doubt me—" her voice broke wretchedly. "It's unspeakable that these things should have to be said—between us—"

From the depths of his private hell of disbelief and torturing suspicion, Brent said bitterly, "You have more courage than he, at least. He didn't dare come back, he wouldn't face me. When I went there his sister told me he'd changed his plans, that he wasn't coming back for awhile." Brent's voice rose. "Did you imagine we could go on, that things could be the same between us after this?"

March began, "But, Brent, nothing has happened, nothing is changed—"

She saw then that it wasn't any use. He wouldn't believe her. Dimly, she became aware of Abigail standing in the doorway beyond. She couldn't see Abigail clearly for the tears in her eyes. But it didn't matter. Nothing mattered but Brent. And he was lost to her. . . . A sob caught in March's throat and bleak hopelessness closed around her. She was drowning in the dark torrent, battered and swept along by it. Of what use was struggle?

March said dully, her chin high, clinging to her tattered shreds of pride, "I'm going now, Brent. But these things you accuse me of, these things you accept as true, are lies. All lies. Built up out of jealousy and lack of faith—"

For a moment she thought that he would strike her; then his hands fell to his sides. Silently she turned from him and let herself out into the night.

W. L. Crouch Wins In Sales Contest

"There's business in the Dalhart territory if you go after it", declares W. L. Crouch, sales manager for the West Texas Utilities Co. in District D. His headquarters are Dalhart.

Crouch has some pretty solid achievements to back his statement. He is one of three sales managers to win in a West Texas Utilities Co. sales contest that covered its West Texas empire.

District D was pitted against the districts that headquarters at Cisco and McCamey. There are nine districts in all.

The three top sales managers in the WTU territory and the seven high salesmen won a week's expense-paid trip in a chartered air-conditioned Pullman to the following factories: Hot Point Range, ABC Washing Machine and Thor Washing Machine companies in Chicago; the Bendix Washing Machine Co. in South Bend, Ind., and the Frigidaire Corporation, Dayton, O.

From Dayton Crouch will go on to Louisville, Ky. to visit relatives and friends.

Crouch said the factories had asked the ten WTU men to make the trip in full cowboy regalia. "We may do it," he said.

Crouch this coming weekend must go to a sales managers' meeting at the WTU headquarters office in Abilene where they will study the new installment buying rules laid down by Uncle Sam in connection with the defense program.

"It probably will take a week for the Abilene meeting and to set up new regulations in our districts," Crouch said. "Immediately after that we likely will start our trip".

Making Of Cotton Stockings Urged

AUSTIN—Through their state president, Mrs. J. W. Walker of Planview, the 70,000 members of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs have renewed their campaign for cotton stocking factories in Texas.

The club women in a state meeting in November 1940 urged the factories, and by resolution pledged their full support.

"Club women now feel", said Mrs. Walker, "that if Eastern capital cannot be interested in the factories, a sincere effort should be made to make Texas capital available".

New Taxes To Be Proposed At Once

WASHINGTON—A Senate Finance subcommittee today announced recommendations for new taxes that would bring in an estimated $400,000,000 a year. These would be added to the approximately $3,500,000,000 tax program already virtually perfected by the Senate. The subcommittee gave no details, but said its report would be made immediately to the full committee.

Some sources believe that current corporation surtax rates may be hiked one per cent. They are five per cent on amounts under $25,000; and six per cent for amounts above that figure.

Defense To Be Theme Of West Texas Fair

Abilene—West Texas' contributions to national defense in business, industry, oil, livestock, agriculture and allied field will form the theme for the annual West Texas Fair in Abilene Sept. 29-Oct. 4.

Premiums are up to a new high

Ted Dudley and daughter, Sue, were in Amarillo Saturday. Miss Willie May Greer of Amarillo returned with them to spend Sunday at home.

Mrs. J. R. Patterson returned Wednesday morning from Carmen, Okla., where she attended the annual family reunion of the J. M. Coulter family. Seventy-six attended a picnic dinner at the park; 23 visitors came during the afternoon.
