LABOR DAY WAS HOLIDAY FOR HANDICAPPED VETS TOO - Ewing W. Mays, of Fort Lauderdale, Florida, lost both his legs in World War II action. Here he shows 19-year old Jerry Paul Landreth of Heber Springs, Arkansas, how a handicap need not be a handicap at all. Mays also operates a direct mail pen sales firm, and his avocation is touring military and civilian hospitals giving inspiration by example to the newly handicapped. He demonstrates his artificial limbs, answers their many questions, dances with the nurses, and can even pluck a patient from his bed and carry him about the ward. It's Mays goal to return Vietnam vets and other newly handicapped to productive society - either in the skilled labor fields or professions.
