AUSTIN — Natural gas, trading stamps, cigars, cigarettes, snuff, gasoline, uranium, and beer, license fees would be taxable under the bill to provide $100 million additional state revenue for the next two years.

Revealing sharp difference of opinion over the bill was the fact that it passed the House engrossment by a close vote of 74 to 49.

Without surprise, the Legislature found it easier to spend money than to raise it. A few examples: Liberalizing of the teachers retirement system by constitutional amendment was voted by the House.

Governor Allan Shivers asked for emergency consideration by the Legislature of a bill to pay indemnity to owners of sheep and goats destroyed in an effort to halt a scabies epidemic.

Extension of the veterans land program was approved by a Senate committee. (Theoretically, this program is self-financing. The state issues bonds to buy the land, and the bonds are retired as the veterans make payments on their property.)

Requested by the governor was an appropriation to give the underprivileged children the Salk polio vaccine.

Proposals were made by the Travis County group that the state sponsor a supplement to state employee retirement benefits in the amount of $600,000 per year.

Car Dealers Licenses
Seventeen amendments were added in the House before the car dealers licensing bill gained initial approval.

Principal provisions of the bill would:
Make new car dealers pay $50 for a sellers' license, and used car dealers $25; prohibit offering for sale as a new car any vehicle that had been driven or towed more than 50 miles; and require dealers to post $10,000 bond.

Original purpose of the bill, before the amendments were added, was to prevent used car dealers from offering latest model cars for sale as "new" cars.

Trinity Bill Fades
A big segment of the Texas population lives in the Trinity River valley.

Hopes of those people for an organization to administer flood control, water conservation, and irrigation were dimmed when the Senate Water Committee rejected a Trinity River Authority bill and sent it to a subcommittee.

Representative Barefoot Sanders of Dallas, who pushed the bill through the House, blamed the railroad lobby for its failure in Senate committee. Sander said:

"The railroads, in the final analysis, are responsible for this setback because of the propaganda they put out on the effects of this bill."

Water Bill Falters
Trouble was ahead for a proposed constitutional amendment rated high on the list of administration-recommended water legislation.

Purpose of the measure would be to let the people vote on whether to authorize $100 million in bonds to finance water projects of the state.

Passed by the House, the resolution was patched with amendments. The Senate refused to concur and asked for a conference committee.

Veterans Land Probe
Far from abating, the veterans land investigation was expanding and reaching as far afield as Minnesota.

Cecil E. Burney, special assistant attorney general, told the Senate Investigating Committee that two years ago, when Attorney General John Ben Shepperd was vacationing in Minnesota, he happened to see former land commissioner Bascom Giles.

Giles invited Shepperd to visit his Minnesota farm of 8,600 acres. When the veterans land investigations began, Shepperd sent an investigator to Minnesota.

As a result of that investigation, Burney predicted, the people will hear that money from the veterans land program went to Minnesota to buy land for Texas.

"It is amazing," said Burney, "that some of the same people who were anxious to buy cheap Minnesota land at high prices were the same persons who were anxious to sell cheap land in Texas to veterans for equally high prices."

$30,000 in Fees
Another witness before the Senate Investigating Committee was Alvis Vandygriff, a former officer of the veterans land board.

Vandygriff testified that during a four-year period after he left the board, he received more than $30,000 to expedite block land deals.

County Advertising
A bill by Rep. W. W. Allen of Laredo was approved in House committee, permitting counties of 50,000 population and over to use funds for local advertising.

Under the bill, county commissioners courts could appropriate five cents per $100 assessed property evaluation for the purpose of advertising. Under existing laws, counties of 100,000 population and over already are permitted to advertise.

Short Snorts
On foot is a drive for strict enforcement of narcotic laws and passage of new state legislation to help control the dope traffic. Three narcotic bills have passed the House and are in the Senate. Passed by the Senate is a bill establishing a Texas commission on higher education to govern the state's nine senior colleges and universities. Sen. A. M. Aiken, told the Senate the commission is necessary to take care of expanded enrollment and curricular problems of the institutions. Gas companies would be permitted to sue the state for taxes paid under the unconstitutional gas gathering tax, according to a resolution passed by the House and by the Senate with amendments. Texas oil production for May will be reduced, according to an order of the Texas Railroad Commission. Allowables will be 3,972,150 barrels daily, lowest of the year. Texas has enjoyed a near-record oil flow for the past four months.

A SOCIALIST AWAKENS

Sometimes the revelation of the dawning of truth in the mind of a skeptic can be dramatic. In the Lloyd Douglas book, "The Robe," a skeptic set out to disprove the divinity of Jesus Christ. The dawning of truth in his mind made a dramatic story which may have influenced other doubters and skeptics. There has just been published the record of the dawning of truth in the mind of a quite famous Socialist who set out to prove that capitalism was evil and that Socialism held out the greatest hope for human progress.

The Socialist who has finally found the truth about Socialism and capitalism is Max Eastman. His own story of his gradual recognition that Socialism is an evil force and that capitalism is the best economic system for human progress yet tried makes dramatic reading. Let us hope that it may reach and influence the minds of thousands of Americans whom Eastman himself calls "the left liberals — our American creepers toward socialism . . . leading us in the direction of the slave state."

A Leading Intellectual

Eastman is best known in America's intellectual world. He has been a leader in it for 40 years. His book, "Reflections on the Failure of Socialism," was published last month by Devin-Adair Company, New York. A condensation was published in the April 1 issue of "U. S. News & World Report."

Max Eastman was born in Canandaigua, New York. Both of his parents were Congregational ministers. In his teens he became a disciple of Marx and Lenin and dedicated his life to bringing about the Communist millennium through the destruction of capitalism and faith in God—as called for in the Communist Manifesto. He graduated from Williams College, and began to make a reputation in the intellectual "liberal" world as editor of such periodicals as The Masses and The Liberator, and as professor of logic and philosophy at Columbia University. Fought for Reds.

"When the Bolsheviks seized power in Russia in October 1917, shocking the whole world of progressive and even moderate socialist opinion, I backed them to the limit in The Liberator." Eastman writes in his new book. "I gave my heart to Lenin more completely than I have to any other leader, and fought for the Bolsheviks on the battlefield of American opinion with all the influence my voice and magazine possessed. . . . I was engaged in civil war and my socialist convictions grew hard and firm."

In 1922 he went to Russia and subsequently spent 21 months there studying the application of the Marx-Lenin brand of Socialism which placed all property, management, wealth and even human control in the hands of the Soviet government. In 1927 he began to turn away from the totalitarianism he saw hardening its brutal grip in Russia. But he stayed with "democratic" Socialism until 1940. A Choice to Make.

"It seemed perfectly clear, (by 1940)," he writes, "that if the socialist hypotheses were valid in general, some tiny shred of the benefits promised by it would have appeared when the Russian capitalists were expropriated and production taken over by the state. . . . By that time (1940) everything in Russia was worse from the standpoint of socialist ideals than it had been under the regime of the Tsar. I did not need any additional experiments such as that in Nazi Germany, or in England, or the obvious drift in other countries, to convince me."

"Mankind," writes this man who pursued the Socialist bubble for 40 years, "is confronted with a choice between two, and only two business systems — a choice which involves the fate of democratic civilization. We can choose a system in which the amount and kind of goods produced is determined by the impersonal mechanism of the market, issuing its decrees in the form of fluctuating prices (capitalism). Or we can choose a system in which this is determined by the commands issuing from a personal authority backed by armed force (Socialism)." Max Eastman throws the full weight of his vast experience and intellectual power behind the choice of capitalism.

bridge is completed, and it will be news to the people here because of the many direct benefits we will receive from it.

The erection of the Diablo Dam and the Pecos River bridge will be probably close together and then we can expect a big increase in tourist travel through this section which will be drawn by the sights to be seen and the advantages of coming over this route.

All of the civic clubs of Sanderson and other groups as well, and all of us as individuals should be alert to do things that will attract people to our town.

One of the things that is needed again — as it is needed every year at this time — is a good clean-up drive.

The entire community would profit tremendously by an effort to out-do all other efforts in a campaign to make Sanderson shine.

There should not be the necessity of a club having to get out and push such a move. If each person will clean up his own backyard, it will be taken care of.

We started working on the painting of our front fence in the winter and hope to have it done before spring is over. That is just one of our own private clean-up projects, and we are foolish enough to like to see others working while we are putting out our efforts — and artistic ability.

Clean up your yards!

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh
Red Finds a "Sweet Solution"
Red Jackson found a slick way to get his cows to eat what's good for them. Seems they were passing up the tall green grass — full of minerals and vitamins — and eating the short grass, which is naturally sweeter.
Red solved the problem by spraying a solution of corn syrup over the grass that was going off. The cows sure went at it. Red says it's lucky for him — and the cows — that every one of them has a "sweet tooth."
Next week, according to Red, he's going to have his cows clean up all the weedy grass along his fences — after he sprays them with more corn syrup, of course.
From where I sit, some folks, like Red, are always trying out new tricks — and others stick with the old tried and true methods. Just a question of preference, I guess. Like the way you may enjoy coffee with meals, while I prefer a cold glass of beer. So let's not allow any bad feelings to "erup up" by thinking ours is the only choice.

WELDON BRIGHT, popular radio star of KGNC says, "My wife has always used light Karo for cooking... and on the table..."

it's Karo for me, the best-tasting waffle syrup of 'em all

Yes, indeed... biscuits go like hot cakes when you pour on plenty of delicious Karo waffle syrup. There's nothing like it for good eating. Satisfyin' flavor. So rich it stands right up on top of biscuits (keeps 'em light and fluffy). Keep Karo on your table morning, noon and night... it tops anything!

Ask your grocer for Karo waffle syrup, in pints and quarts
