LISTEN TO LUKE

Like we said several months ago, the oil business and their operations here are going to possibly change many things in Terrell County.

We are still staggered by the possibilities of the many things that lie in the always-dark future. We sat in on some of the sessions at the courthouse Thursday and it was most interesting to hear the plans of the school and how something of the plans of the oil companies as were indicated very strongly by the tax representatives of the oil companies that were present.

There was a good deal of pro and con discussion of the values imposed on completed wells, leases and offset leases, and we will be the first to admit that the figures and the talk are both way over our heads.

What will come of the discussions we don't know, except that the tax and the assessors will eventually have to come to an agreement on valuations. We know that, from what was said, there is a tremendous giant apparently lying idle, waiting to be released — in the form of natural gas and possibly oil.

We know that while the oil companies' entire operation is on speculation, that there is some well-founded basis for the payment of some $580-odd dollars for the privilege of drilling on one land in Terrell County.

We know that apparently the companies are very interested in what's under the ground in the county, and apparently are planning to be in this vicinity for several years yet.

We know, from what was said, that there is tremendous value in the completed wells in the county that will come in to their owners when transportation facilities for the gas are completed.

We know, from what was said, that there has been a huge sum of money spent in the county for the development of the possibilities of the entire county are still staggering.

It was not our first hobble — we're not too embarrassed. Our story last week about the possibility of the construction of a carbon dioxide extraction plant and pipeline were slated for summer — was not entirely true. We didn't say this summer, did we?

Forgery Charged Against Man Here

Charges of forging an instrument with intent to defraud were brought against C. J. Smith here last week-end on a complaint signed by Sheriff Lee Billings.

The charge grew out of the alleged cashing of a check for $30 by Smith at a local service station.

Smith waived examining trial in Justice of Peace Court and J. A. Gilbreath set the bond at $500 to hold the defendant over for action of the grand jury.

Smith is being held in the local jail, pending his making bond.

Due to popular demand, Joe Chandler has opened a new place for fishing for the public on his ranch 30 miles south of Sheffield on Independence Creek. There is water and electricity in all of the cabins and they are modern in every respect. There are many large shade trees which make the place ideal for camping and there is plenty of fish bait available.

Chandler operated a club at his place for many years, open to club members only, who have had access to the lakes on the ranch. The new fishing place may be used by small or large groups by the day and it is for fishing or camping on the river only.

The Chandlers also operate a store at their home where fishing tackle, canned goods and other grocery supplies are available.

Several local citizens were on hand for both sessions.

Thos. Y. Pickett, tax advisor for both groups, was also here for the meeting.

The purpose of the meetings was to try to reach an agreement on a proposed tax structure for properties and leases of the oil companies in the county.

At the afternoon meeting, Supt. Matt Bader presented a tentative budget to the tax representatives for their information and consideration.

The plans for assessing all company property and leases in the county were presented and the needs for additional tax revenue for the school district to take care of the increased and increasing needs of the school as pertains to teachers, additional facilities, additional room, etc.

This need has been brought about, according to Supt. Bader, by the influx of 82 additional students in the elementary grades whose parents are directly connected with oil exploration and drilling crews. He stated that an undetermined number of additions to the schools were due to the influx of those who were indirectly associated with the oil industry or those who moved here for the indirect relation of offering services or seeking employment because of the increase in business caused by the increase in population.

The oil company tax representatives voiced unanimous opposition to the proposal conceived by Mr. Pickett as to the manner of valuation assessments of oil company properties and leases in the county. Future meetings between the two parties concerned are expected during the next several weeks.

The meetings were informative and interesting to local citizens who attended.

Senior Class Presents Play Last Thursday To Packed House

The senior play, "Don't Darken My Door", was presented to a packed auditorium in the high school last Thursday evening.

The three-act comedy was directed by Mrs. W. H. Savage, senior sponsor, assisted by Mrs. Dudley Harrison.

Miss Peggie Cooke, class president, presented cash prizes to Arnolfo Villarreal and Ana Leo Riggs for ticket sales.

Two of the female characters in the play, complained that the suitors did not have "enough romance in their souls" Under the direction of Jane Perkins, a writer of romance, who assumed the guise of Miss Perkins' secretary, after being brought to the Kent home following an accident while bicycling in a storm, the male suitors soon show enough romantic nature to win the favor of all of the females with the exception of Louisa Featherstone, who remains a man-hater to the end.

Even Roger Kent, a bachelor, whose home is the scene of the play, is a victim of Miss Perkins' wiles and gives up his bachelorhood.

The characters in the play were well-cast, each portraying his or her role in a very satisfactory manner. Lots of action, many hilarious moments and a constant suspense as the plot unraveled added to the enjoyment of the play.

Peggie Cooke played the part of Jane Perkins; Barbara Sudduth and Elizabeth Lopez were the two old maid sisters, Louisa and Susie Featherstone. David Graham had the role of Roger Kent and Patty Gray was Rosemary Kent, his niece. Cookie Cobos was "Poppy" the maid and Pedro Hernandez, Alec Stubbins, Poppy's "devoted" and a hired hand at the Kent place. Brooks Bader was Tom Gerriek, Rosemary's suitor.

After the play, Mr. and Mrs. Bader invited the members of the senior class to their home for refreshments consisting of punch with cookies and sandwiches.

Gifts were presented to Mrs. Savage and Mrs. Harrison by the class. Also present were Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Riess and Dudley Harrison.

Wednesday evening after the final dress rehearsal, Mrs. Ben Causey invited the seniors, Mrs. Savage and Mrs. Harrison to her home for hamburgers and cold drinks. Mrs. Causey read a comical prophesy which she had prepared and presented each senior with a gift typical of the fulfillment of the prophesy. Since Wednesday was Joe Causey's birthday, the guests sang the "Happy Birthday" song and presented him with a cigar.

TEXAS CHAMPIONS OF FREEDOM Robert M. Williamson Guardian of the People's Rights Robert M. Williamson, wise and witty editor, lawyer and statesman of San Felipe, Stephen F. Austin's colony, was respected and loved by his neighbors of early-day Texas. They called him "Three-Legged Willie" because of a stiff knee he always used a very fancy cane. One of the many salty stories told of Three-Legged Willie is dated 1834, when, as the colonists' troubles with Mexico grew to fighting pitch, he and other patriots of San Felipe marched to join the loyal Texans at the Guadalupe River. There his assignment was to protect a precious 4-pounder cannon. A Mexican force under Captain Castañedo arrived to demand the cannon. Williamson hand-lettered a large sign which he placed on the cannon, in full view of the Mexicans. The message on the sign was brief and to the point: "Come and take it!" Captain Castañedo forthwith took his command out of there, pronto. In Congress, the Legislature and on the bench Williamson built a distinguished career, inaccessible to threats or bribes, unflinching in his judgments, ever watchful of the people's rights. Like so many kind and constant champions of freedom, Judge Williamson was generous to a fault. He died in poverty because of his unselfishness. Today Texans still demand and get their right to choose the way they want to live. In this vigorous and freedom-minded homeland, Beer Belongs, and this is why the United States Brewers Foundation works constantly, in conjunction with brewers, wholesalers and retailers, to assure the sale of beer and ale under pleasant, orderly conditions. Believing that strict law enforcement serves the best interest of Texans, the Foundation stresses close cooperation with the Armed Forces, law enforcement and governing officials in its continuing Self-Regulation program. Culture Club Has Art Exhibit Tea Saturday Afternoon

The Sanderson Culture Club members were hostesses for an art exhibit tea in the Band Hall Saturday afternoon, inviting members of the Evening Study Club and other guests.
Mrs. Henry Hilliard Rowe of Fort Stockton, an artist, brought some of her paintings and etchings and also exhibited a variety of sketches in water colors and rayons from her art classes. After an introduction by Mrs. R. A. Gattin, incoming club president, she related several "human interest" stories about some of the pupils in her children's classes and had exhibits to show their progress.
Explaining that the making of etchings was her "first love", Mrs. Rowe told of the tedious work and time required to make etchings, step by step.
The tea table, covered in a cloth of linen and lace, was centered with an arrangement of snapdragons and roses in pink shades in a silver bowl. Mrs. Joe D. Brown of Uvalde, a former president of the Sanderson Culture Club, ladeled the punch from a silver bowl. Assorted sandwiches, cookies, and mint were also on the table.
A large arrangement of iris and columbine on the piano added a further decorative note to the hall with a bouquet of pink roses also on the speaker's table.
