LISTEN TO LUKE

By Albert

The meeting at the court house Monday night proved to be fruitful for Sanderson in that there was sufficient interest expressed to justify the commissioners' initiating the application for the Soil Conservation Service watershed flood control.

It was expressly pointed out at both the morning meeting and the evening meeting that the project was economically feasible and that it would take interest now on the part of the people to insure progress.

"Economically feasible" means that there was a sufficient loss from the recent flood to clearly show that such a project would save possibly a greater amount than the project would cost. And this figure was only on a dollars and cents basis.

The fact that there were 27 lives lost also gives great importance to the proposal and enhances the possibility of deliberation in the execution of the work that lies ahead.

We will all know more about the financing possibilities when the plan is approved.

The stress of attendance was made for the meeting which will be scheduled with representatives of the State Water Board.

When this program was initiated about two years ago, some of the commissioners went to Ozona and Sonora to talk with those people about their flood control projects and they had the benefit of the advice and information of those people as well as the information from the Soil Conservation Service representatives.

In reviewing this information at the Monday morning meeting of the commissioners, it was their opinion that the plan offered by the SCS was more practical and had greater benefits than the plan of the Corps of Engineers of the U.S. Army, which was — straightening and strengthening the channel for about four miles.

The time factor is important, but undetermined because of the inability to foresee such another rain of the kind which fell to cause the flood.

In this effort, there seems to be a great amount of interest on the part of the Soil Conservation District and the residents of Sanderson.

If this interest can continue, and even grow, then without a doubt, there will be a completion of the project.

We regretted to hear about a certain amount of looting that occurred on immediately after the flood. It seems to be a natural recurrence following catastrophes, and every effort is usually made to hold it to a minimum.

It seems that regardless of the efforts and otherwise honesty of people, a little usually occurs.

There was, too, a small amount of parasitical action on the part of a small minority of people. The group named to screen applicants for grants or financial aid did a real good job of weeding out some leeches who were trying to obtain help under false pretenses.

It seems that this is going to occur when there is generosity being exemplified, and the selfishness of humanity seems to override honesty and sound reasoning some times.

West Texas, particularly has its pocketbook, so to speak, to Sanderson, and they poured out their hearts to us in their willingness to serve neighbors, and it is distasteful to see some people try to take advantage of the situation.

We have heard few people who suffered any loss in the flood who said, "But our loss was —"

Pumpville P. O. Robbed Sunday, Bradford Shot

An area-wide manhunt was launched Sunday morning after the Pumpville post office was robbed and Pelham Bradford was shot in the leg.

Bradford's wound was in the calf of the leg and he is recovering satisfactorily.

It was reported that the Bradfords were sleeping at their home when they were awakened by a man who came through the house turning on lights. The man was masked, wore gloves, and had a pistol in his hand.

According to the story told of officers, the bandit said he wanted Mrs. Bradford to go with him to the store and post office to get the money out of the safe. Mr. Bradford, thinking that the man was talking to him, started to walk off and two shots were fired, one striking him in the leg. One of the bullets was recovered and said to be a .38-caliber.

Mrs. Bradford then asked the man if she would be allowed to tie up her husband's wound, and after being granted permission, jerked the sheet off the bed and tied it around his leg. The bandit then handed her a cotton rope he had brought with him and ordered her to tie her husband.

Mr. Bradford was sitting in a chair and she tied him, but with loose knots.

Mrs. Bradford reported that as she and the bandit entered the store and post office building, he knew where all the lights were. She opened the safe and he took about $200, leaving several dollars in silver in the register at the store.

During their absence from the house Mr. Bradford freed himself of the ropes and got a .30-30 rifle, but was unable to find any shells for it. After the bandit returned to the house with Mrs. Bradford they were ordered to get into bed and wait 30 minutes before getting up after he left.

The bandit had jerked the telephone receivers from the sets in the house and store to prevent their calling for help, but he did not know that Mr. Bradford had a key to get to the railroad phone.

The bandit went out of the house, disconnected wires on the pickup and tried to start the Bradford's car, but was unable to find the right key. Mrs. Bradford helped him get the car started and was told to go back into the house. She and her husband tried to see which way the car fled, but were unable to do so.

After the bandit had left, they immediately got up and went to the railroad telephone to report the robbery, and to summon aid.

Mr. Bradford was taken to a Del Rio hospital for treatment.

The Bradford car was found abandoned near Langtry Sunday morning.

It was stated that the bandit spoke with a definite accent and was thought to be of Mexican descent. His familiarity with the surroundings indicated that he knew his way around the house and store building.

Texas Rangers and Postal Investigators from San Antonio are leading the search for the bandit.

Jackie Bob Riggs Wins Two Events At Ozona Kids' Rodeo

Jackie Bob Riggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Riggs, won both go-rounds and averages in the barrel race and break-away in Ozona last weekend at the junior rodeo. Her prizes were cash and two belt buckles.

She was also winner of both go-rounds and average in the barrel race and won second in the average in pole bending and 4th in the average in the flag race at the Alpine junior rodeo two weeks ago.

Commissioners Approve Application for SCS Dams

Terrell County Commissioners met in called session Monday night following the public meeting at the court house and unanimously approved the proposal of filing application for assistance from the State Soil Conservation Service and State Water Board for flood control project on the Sanderson Canyon watershed above Sanderson.

The work of filing the application was begun early Tuesday morning.

At their regular meeting last week the Rio Grand-Pecos River Soil Conservation supervisors voted to co-sponsor the project if accepted by the Terrell County Commissioners.

The commissioners promised an all-out effort to expedite the project in every way possible and urged the citizens of Sanderson to proceed in an orderly but urgent manner in soliciting aid in boosting the project.

The commissioners asked that the citizens express their interest by attending any and all meetings called for the public, to invite and urge strict attention to any request for cooperation of any group or organization, and to go to responsible people for the answers to questions so they may be truly informed and to do everything possible to aid those responsible in seeing the project's completion.

Burglars Hit Sheriff's Office

Burglars broke into the office of Terrell County Sheriff Bill C. Cooksey one night last weekend. There was nothing of value taken from the office and very little was disturbed. Cooksey reported there was also a report of vandalism Friday night when a car windshield was broken with an axe. The car, reportedly stolen from California, was parked on the east side of the court house and the axe was a part of the found property stacked outside the courthouse awaiting claim by an owner. The axe was smashed through the driver's side of the windshield on the late-model car.

Legion, Auxiliary Hear Boys, Girls Talk on Trips

There was a joint meeting of the Clarence Halley Mulkey Post No. 100 of the American Legion and Auxiliary last Thursday evening in the Legion Hall to hear the reports of the delegates to Boys' State and Bluebonnet Girls' State. Vice-commander W. H. Savage presided during the business meeting.

Reporting on two days each of their stay at Boys' State were Steve Harkins, Travis Harkins, and Simon Fuentes. Carla Dunn reported on Girls' State with Jodie Tronson supplementing her remarks and the girls gave a demonstration of the introduction of a bill in the House of Representatives. They had scrapbooks, papers, etc., to show the audience.

Mrs. Clyde Higgins, Auxiliary president, presented "honorable mention" awards to the following eighth grade students for their essays on "What Americanism Means To Me", a project directed by their teacher, Mrs. F. T. Baker: Robie Harrison, Rosa Linda Valles, Jack Whistler, Christine Downie, Gwyn Mansfield, Sherry Stavley, Candace Cooksey, Oscar Villarreal, Christine Ochoa, and Shirley Golden.

After adjournment, cake, punch, tea, and coffee were served by Mrs. P. G. Harris and Mrs. W. H. Dishman.

Oak St., U.S. 90 Gets Seal Coating

Local Texas Highway Department maintenance crews, assisted by crews and equipment from Fort Stockton, have completed application of a seal coat on Oak St. or U.S. 90 through Sanderson.

The asphalt and gravel were applied last week and after being rolled several times, the excess gravel was scraped up Tuesday.

J. R. Coker, local maintenance foreman, stated that the highway through town was beginning to show some cracks before the flood, and it was thought that conditions warranted the application of the seal coating in an effort to preserve the base and also to eliminate some of the dust.

The maintenance crews have spent many hundreds of man-hours on the highway since the flood, and are doing everything possible to protect the motoring public, Coker stated, and at the same time preserve our highway.

Business Goes On In Odd Conditions For Some People

Business as usual is not as usual for some local retailers due to the flood and the way it has affected some of the businesses.

Of course, it is known and understood that some businesses no longer exist as a result of the flood. They include Sanderson Courts, Clymer Courts, Shell Station, Old Mexico Bar, Chama's Place, Flores Grocery, Sunset Siesta Motel.

The Sanderson Wool Commission Co. has its office in the north end of the east side of the building, one of the few parts of the building left with four walls and a roof. The manager, John T. Williams, and employees all occupy the same office space with some feed, salt, and a few other items salvaged from the flood. Most of the time is spent in salvaging records, straightening out accounts and ledgers, and pushing back the dust and silt that sifts from every crack in the building.

Jolly Harkins, E. J. Hanson, and F. M. Weigand, local gasoline consignees, have salvaged a portion of their tanks and barrels and are back in the wholesale gasoline and oil business. Harkins, also a butane dealer, along with E. F. Pierson and S. J. Burchett, also butane dealers, have recovered some of their tanks that were lost in the flood and continue in business. The storage tank of Mr. Pierson's, while not lost, has not yet been restored to service. None of the dealers lost any of their delivery vehicles in the high water.

The Sanderson State Bank did not cease operation except for the day of the flood even though they had to work without the benefit of their posting machine for several days until a replacement could arrive. Banking went on, almost as usual, during the clean-up process after about three feet of water had invaded the building.

The Oasis Restaurant was closed for several days for cleaning up and was not re-opened until that was completed.

The post office continued to serve local patrons during their cleaning up process, even though many box holders had to receive their mail at the counter until the lower boxes could be cleaned of silt and dirt.

The offices and services of the railroad began operation as soon as possible after the flood with train service being restored at midnight Tuesday following the flood.

The Kerr Mercantile Co., whose warehouses, the original buildings, were destroyed by the rushing water, and who had several feet of water in the basement, has continued to operate other departments of their business while cleaning up in the basement and lumber yard. Work has not yet started on the warehouse area of the business.

Sabins Cafe, D-R Furniture Outlet, George's Barber Shop, Rancho Grande Bar all began operation as soon as the settled silt could be moved off the floor and fixtures.

The Western Hills Motel began renting rooms as they were cleaned and outside cleaning has continued since that time. The Club Cafe, Shamrock Truck Center, the Dairy King all opened and began serving people as soon as was possible. Mr. Pierson opened one of the Rock Courts Wednesday and the remaining rooms will be made available as soon as possible.

Business goes on as usual in Sanderson, but not under the usual conditions.

About 150 People Hear Flood Control Talked

About 150 people were on hand Monday night at the court house to hear Ed Thomas, Soil Conservation Service, of Pecos give details of Public Law 566 and tell of the procedure in filing application for assistance under that law. Mr. Thomas also went into the details of the proposed cost of planning construction, obligations of those involved, and possibilities of expediting completion.

Mr. Thomas had met earlier in the day with the Terrell County Commissioners' Court to explain again to them the intricacies of the procedure and the details of the proposed project.

Mr. Thomas explained that the project of construction would be — if the application were approved — completely financed by federal funds on a grant. He said that the cost of maintenance, the securing of easement for the dam and maximum water retention level would be up to the sponsoring organization, and all administration and legal work connected with the project.

The cost of the planning and engineering could be financed by the federal government, the state government or by local funds, or a combination of the latter two, he explained. The federal grant for this phase of the work, he stated, would be contingent upon the availability of funds, the availability of the party by priority based upon urgency, by state funds for by the same reasoning, or by local funds or the combination of the latter two to insure maximum speed in the planning and engineering.

It was emphasized that the financing of the project would be fully explained later, after the approval of the project, and Mr. Thomas indicated strongly that government financing was probably available due to the extreme urgency of the need for flood control due to the loss of lives and property, and due to the fact that there was no watershed project proposed or considered in this area, thus eliminating priority competition.

Mr. Thomas estimated the planning and engineering phase of the project to be around $50,000.

He added that the maintenance of the constructions near Ozona and Sonora were extremely small due to the type of construction and estimated a similar situation on the Sanderson watershed.

Mr. Thomas stated that the preliminary survey, already completed by his organization, indicated the possibility of the construction of from 10 to 15 dams on the Sanderson watershed. He said that the waterfall on the Three-Mile Draw watershed coming toward Sanderson from the north, could be controlled 100 per cent by the dams, and that at least 60 per cent of the waterfall on the Sanderson Canyon watershed west of town could be controlled by eight dams, and if another dam could be built to control the waterfall on the tributary west of the fork of the railroad and highway west of Sanderson, that control of the watershed would be greatly increased. He emphasized the fact that his report was not necessarily the proposals that would be adopted or acted on by the engineering party.

The purpose of the Soil Conservation Service's interest in projects of this nature, he stated, was to get maximum benefit from every drop of water that fell on every acre, and the resulting action would be the best possible flood control.

It explaining the use of the water retarding dams, Mr. Thomas pointed out that all structures probably would be on the tributary canyons, and each structure could impound no more than 5,000 acre feet of water at flood stage, and could retain no more than 200 acre-feet of water after draw-down of flood water, and if the land-owner desired, would be completely drained after each flood.

The dams, usually earth-fill with a rock blanket in this country, were built to a height to permit maximum effectiveness and in compliance with federal limitations of the 5,000 acre-foot maximum. They had a flood-stage by-pass in case there was a water fall that exceeded the capacity of the dam. There is also a draw-down tube that released the water behind the dam gradually into the tributary canyon, usually calculated to draw down from the maximum to the minimum in from seven to 10 days, thus controlling the flow of water down the creek in a manner calculated to be far below any danger of flood.

It was emphasized that if the landowner where a dam was to be built wanted to preserve more than 200 acre-feet of water behind the dam, it would be necessary for him to get permission from the State Water Board and to pay for one-half of the construction cost of that part of the dam over state limits. He stated that by the same token, if the landowner wanted to preserve only the 200 acre-feet of water behind the dam for his own use he might do so at his own discretion, or he could, if he wished, have the entire pool drained after each filling or partial filling, and that the use of the pool by the public would be at the discretion of the landowner completely.

He also pointed out that the change of ownership could not affect the easement secured by the sponsoring organization.

The sponsorship of the application, Mr. Thomas stated, had to be by two organizations, one of whom had the power of eminent domain and taxation, in order to secure the easements, by purchase or condemnation, and to levy taxes, if need be, for the financing of the sponsors' obligations in engineering or maintenance, or both.

It was brought out that with maximum effort, the best of planning, and greatest cooperation, it would take about two years before work would start and possibly three additional years for completion.

A preliminary cost of construction, that portion borne by the state or federal government, was $1.8-million dollars, based on a 12-structure project.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

While there is probably no great credence to be attached to it, it is understood that there is some sentiment in Washington prevailing to pressure the Generalissimo of the War on Poverty to have his name changed legally.

As is well known, the head of the War on Poverty is Sargent Shriver, and it is his last name that confuses people, as the question arises, "How can a sergeant run a war?"

Rep. J. Arthur Younger of California recently pointed out that the Sargent has under his command in the Washington office of the bureau alone some 40 assistants who receive more than $18,000 a year. Congressman H. R. Gross and others have at various times pointed out that in setting up local branches of the bureau to prosecute the War on Poverty, the first thing done in any given city is to appoint an administrator at a salary of between $24,000 and $25,000 a year, with several assistants paid from $18,000 to $22,000.

To some it does not seem fitting that all of these high priced staff officers should be headed by anyone who can be called Sargent.

After all, a salary of $18,000 a year is somewhat less than that paid to a 4-star general or admiral, and is about 50% more than the base pay of the Marine Corps General who took the forces into Vietnam.

Thus the problem becomes one of relativity. The base pay for a chief of staff is only about $24,000 a year. But it can pretty well be taken as a gospel fact that a chief of staff of the other services that conduct war is not letting anybody call him sergeant.

Therefore it has been suggested that the head of this war should have a name more befitting the rank. Obviously, even a 5-star general or admiral in the other forces is not paid sufficiently enough above the huge staff under Shriver, and it would perhaps seem a bit peculiar if he changed his name legally from Sargent to Admiral or General.

Therefore the only suggestion that seems to have merit is that although the Americans have never gone to war with a commander carrying a title of Field Marshal, which is quite common in Europe, it would be most fitting if he changed his name to Marshall.

This would probably put the War on Poverty in a status somewhat comparable to the amount of money being spent on the effort, as in the public mind there would be no more confusion that this war is being directed by a sergeant, but rather by a marshal, and thus the public would probably feel much better about it.

In the meantime the nation's independent businessmen seem to be waging their own war on Poverty, as according to surveys being conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business since last year almost one-third of them have expanded their operations, and produced over 3.5 million new jobs without costing taxpayers one cent.

Notice for Bids

Terrell County Independent School District is accepting bids on an addition to the superintendent's house. Plans and specifications may be obtained from Ken McAllister, Superintendent of Schools, Sanderson, Texas. Bids to be opened on July 19, 1965, at 7:00 p.m.

To The Floodstricken People of Sanderson:

I am taking donations for the wife and children of Jesus Marquez, one of the victims of the Sanderson flood. Due to the fact that I have worked with Jesus at the McKnight Motor Co. off and on for the last 25 years and that he was a personal friend of mine, I feel that I would like to be of some help to his wife and four little children. Certainly they need it, just as so many more that were in that horrible flood need help. Certainly I know the Red Cross and everyone else is doing all they can for those people, but still a little extra cash can always come in handy. Now I have put in about $60 to start this off, and if you care to make a small donation it will surely be appreciated by the family and friends of little Jesus. If you don't think you are able to or don't care to make a donation, then go by the McKnight Motor Co. any way and see Jimmie or Eddie Hanson or Eleno Marquez and let them show or tell you just how we are handling this. If anyone would care to mail in a donation, we will write them a personal letter and let them know what we are doing about this. There will be a list there at the McKnight Motor with the name of each donor if you wish to sign it. Thanking you in advance. One of Jesus Marquez's many friends, Clayton Stublefield.
